Mexican Regulars Mass for Battle Near San Marcos

Mexican Embassy Says General Conditions Are Quiet Now

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Official reports received by the Mexican embassy today from Mexico City said large contingents of federal troops were missing for a further attack against the revolutionary forces from Vera Cruz following the evacuation by the rebels of San Marcos.

"No important developments are reported from the Guadalupe front, where the federal troops continue their advance," the embassy statement said. "The railroad tracks are being repaired preparatory to a decisive attack upon General Estrada's forces, and a battle is likely to take place at any time.

"Conditions throughout the republic continue undisturbed. Contrary to reports emanating from Rebel sources, normal conditions prevail in Sinaloa, where the governor, General Angel Flores, has reiterated his allegiance and firm support to the government.

"Railroad communication between Mexico City and all border points continues normal and communication with Guadalupe is being re-established with the advance of the federal army."

Obregon Makes Statement
NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(A. P.)—General Obregon, president of Mexico, has sent the following message to the Associated Press. In reply to a request for a statement on the situation in that republic:

"The military rebels, who are headed by Adolfo de La Huerta, have been issuing lies to mislead the public. Up to the present the great majority of the army remain loyal to the government and are fighting energetically against the traitors.

"I have reason to believe that peace will be restored very quickly, and I will continue to work for reconstruction and progress, initiated by the government over which I have the honor to preside."
(Signed) Obregon.

Engineers Will Have Steel Lockers

The individual lockers which are being installed in the college of applied science building will be ready for use by the time school opens up again. The lockers are of steel and are considerably higher than the ordinary locker, thus enabling students to check T squares and other instruments besides being able to hang up an overcoat instead of folding it up as is necessary in the ordinary lockers.

The lockers are made of steel and are made up eight in a set. Each locker has two compartments, a lower compartment about four feet high for clothes and bulky instruments and a small compartment right above it about one foot square for books and smaller articles. All of the lockers will be equipped with combination padlocks.

There are approximately 300 lockers for the freshmen sophomores and juniors. Senior engineers, by purchasing individual desks, which may be locked, and carry a key to their classroom, which is kept locked most of the time. These lockers will be set up in the halls at such intervals and places as will be most convenient for students entering and leaving classes.

Iowan to Manage Western Campaign

James W. Good

James W. Good of Iowa, formerly chairman of the house appropriations committee, has been placed in charge of Coolidge's western campaign headquarters in Chicago by William M. Butler, national manager for the president.

By the middle of next week the bulk of the material for the second edition of the Iowa Law Bulletin will be in the hands of the printers, according to Prof. Millard Breckenridge editor of the publication.

The editors expect to include in this issue the address which Dean Henry C. Jones of the law school will give before the Association of American Law Schools meeting, which is to be held next week in Chicago.

Two other addresses will probably appear in the January Bulletin. One by Vernon R. Seeburg, County Attorney of Polk County, delivered at the County Attorneys Association meeting held last June at Mason City; this address is entitled: "Wife Desertion and Child Abandonment". The other address will probably be one by some faculty member of the law school not definitely decided upon as yet.

In the book review section of the bulletin it is probable that Martin J. Wade, federal judge of the southern district of Iowa, will give a review of a book by Hon. Robert van Mochizisker, chief justice of the supreme court of Pennsylvania. The book is entitled: "Judicial Review of Legislation."

In this issue there will appear also a number of notes and cases reviewed by student members of the bulletin board. Among these reviews the following will probably appear. A discussion of a case in Wisconsin which held that the legislature could not prohibit a jury from directing a verdict.

There is to be a discussion of a recent Iowa case, which changed the Iowa law regarding the liabilities on a note made for a corporation and made by its president and secretary. Under the fact, the old law would have been to charge the president and secretary individually.

Another discussion of a similar nature will cover the Iowa rule which, despite the husband, who has been divorced, the right to sue a third party for alienation of his wife's affection. A recent case in Kansas has been decided to the contrary. This discussion will give the reasons upon which the Iowa rule was established.

Still another discussion will cover the points of law that were involved in the failure of the North Liberty Savings Bank and the question of whether when the bank collected a note for a third party and then became insolvent it must turn over the money so collected in full or whether the owner of the note must take its place with the depositors and other creditors and accept what it can get.

The editors hope that sufficient room will be reserved in this issue of the law publication for a discussion by a law faculty member of the late celebrated Wertz case.

It is further hoped that it will be possible to publish at this time a discussion by Prof. Dudley O. McGovney of the law faculty of the recent anti-alien land laws of the Pacific coast states.

Senate Deadlock Will Hang Until After the Recess

Upper House Decided To Quit Voting Yesterday

Fight on I. C. C. Committee Chairman May Be Dropped

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Unable after twenty-five ballots to break the deadlock over the chairmanship of the interstate commerce committee, the senate agreed today to defer further balloting until after the Christmas recess of congress, which begins tomorrow and ends January 3.

Meanwhile there will be a renewal of efforts to unravel the tangle into which the senate was precipitated ten days ago, but no one appeared willing to predict how the problem finally would be solved.

Two bills today failed to show any material change in the situation. Senators Cummins, republican of Iowa, and Smith, democrat of South Carolina, again ran almost neck and neck, with Senator Couzens, republican of Michigan, trailing the field, having the support of only the republican insurgents and the other so-called liberals on the majority side of the chamber.

Reed Haps Republicans
After the second ballot, and while Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the republican leader, was seeking to move for a legislative session, the flood gates were opened for democratic oratory for the first time this session.

In starting the discussion, Senator Reed, democrat of Missouri, referred to the continuous balloting as "child's play" and gave notice that after the holidays he would move for the senate to proceed to the public business.

Brookhart Makes Report
Other democrats charged that the republican majority was unable to organize the senate. This brought a report from Senator Brookhart of Iowa, a republican insurgent, that the republicans were not wholly to blame for the deadlock, since one democratic senator, Bruce of Maryland, had refused to support Senator Smith at a time when one vote would have elected him.

After the senate went into legislative session it got into another row over confirmation of postmasters, but finally approved the appointment of 704 of them. Methods of selecting postmasters in the southern states and charges that former service men have been discriminated against in appointments formed the chief subject of controversy.

Several Companies Announce Increases In Stock Dividends
NEW YORK, Dec. 19 (AP).—Several individual corporations and banks voted additional payments to their stockholders today in the form of extra dividends.

The Peoples Gas company declared a quarterly dividend increase of one fourth of one per cent. The Illinois Traction company declared an extra dividend of $1.50 on the common stock.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19 (AP).—Directors of the Peoples Gas, Light and Coke company today increased the company's dividend rate to seven per cent from six per cent. Economies in operation were said to have made this possible.

The Hurley machine company today declared an extra dividend of $1 a share payable in common stock. It was announced that for eleven months the company's sales show an increase of 45 per cent and net income of 65 per cent as compared with 1922.

Prisoners Escape In Governor's Car During His Visit

CANON CITY, Colo., Dec. 19.—(A. P.)—While Governor William E. Sweet and his advisory board on pardons were holding a session with in the state penitentiary grounds here today, two convicts, Paul Rand and Albert J. Green, jumped into the official automobile used by the governor and his party and drove through the gates. Both were wounded by rifle fire from guards on the wall and were later recaptured.

Convicted Slayer of Six Men Testifies at Zeidler's Trial

Says That Defendant Was Not Present At Bank Robbery, When He Is Alleged To Have Made Murderous Assault

(By The Associated Press)
EDWARDSVILLE, Ill., Dec. 19.—F. C. Langford, convicted slayer of six men, today testified that Gus Zeidler, charged with assault with intent to kill in connection with the robbery of the Tri-City State Bank in Madison, May 18, 1918, was not present at the time the robbery took place. He said that he did not know Zeidler and had never seen him.

Great Demand for U. S. Certificates

New Bonds Bear Four and One-Half Percent Interest

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Ill.—The demand for the new 4-1/2 percent Treasury Savings Certificates which were offered to the public on December 1 has exceeded the expectations of the U. S. Treasury department, according to a statement made today by William E. Bosworth, Government Savings Director for the seventh federal reserve district. "The government printing office could not print the certificates rapidly enough to keep pace with the sales at the twelve federal reserve banks and the 40,000 post offices which act as sales agencies," said Mr. Bosworth.

Over three million dollars have been invested in these new "Baby Bonds" since December 1 in the seventh district alone. The $400 certificate which now sells for $80 is the most popular denomination, in spite of the fact that a $25 certificate which now sells for $20 is also offered. The new interest rate, tax exemption and payment-on-demand features of these securities are attracting large investors also and many of them are disappointed when they learn that no individual can invest more than $4,000 in them this year.

An additional allotment of blank certificates is being sent to each postmaster this week and the federal reserve bank of Chicago is now in position to fill all subscriptions promptly.

Professor Predicts New Device to Help Deaf Hear Speech

EVANSTON, Ill., Dec. 19 (AP).—Every indication points to success in developing a hand-device which the totally deaf may carry and by which they may receive impressions of oral speech, Professor Robert H. Gault, head of the psychology department of Northwestern University, announced here today.

Professor Gault bases his announcement on the progress of a year of intensive work on the problem, and in making experiments in detecting words and sentences by tactual contact.

"Today it is safe to say that the human being can feel sound waves by touch, and can clearly translate such tactual impressions into words and sentences," said Prof. Gault.

More than a year ago Prof. Gault started work with two students, George and John Crane, brothers of Fort Wayne, Ind., and succeeded in communicating with a metal tube various words and sentences which the Crane brothers detected with the hand only.

At that time one of the brothers sat in a room and spoke through the tube while the other in an adjoining room, ears muffled and with hand over the receiving end of the tube, announced his interpretation of the sound vibrations. This year Prof. Gault has been utilizing an acousticon for amplifying vibrations at the sending end, while he employs a small receiving disk held in the hand at the other. Prof. Gault himself has been working upon the long vowels and upon several short sentences which a graduate student, S. N. Stevens, sitting in an adjoining building 60 feet away, repeats.

Prof. Gault says the long vowels, a, e, i, o and u, are more difficult to detect than are sentences. However, by long and patient practice, he says he has reached a point where he "feels" the long vowels correctly about 85 per cent of the time. Upon sentences he does better, he explains because of the stressing of words.

4,602,589 Saw Games In American League

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—(A. P.)—The aggregate attendance in the American League for the season of 1923 was 4,602,589. This is a decrease as compared with the three previous years.

Sees "Superman" Saving Germany

Count Herman von Keyserling

Count Herman von Keyserling, hailed throughout Germany as "the apostle of hope," plans to visit America shortly. This German philosopher believes that a great personality will soon arise in Germany to lead that nation back to prosperity.

The count, head of the School of Wisdom at Darmstadt, spends much of his time visiting German cities to spread his gospel of optimism.

DEAN KAY STILL VISITING IN EAST

Dean George F. Kay of the college of liberal arts who is traveling in the east on business for the University will spend today, Friday, and Saturday in New York City. He was in Boston yesterday. He will spend December 24, 25, and 26 in Washington, D. C. where he will attend the meetings of the Geological Society of America. At these meetings he will read a paper on "Recent Studies of the Pleistocene in Western Iowa."

Among other things, Dean Kay is interviewing prospective members of the faculty.

Dents Go Off on Holiday; Clinic Opens January 2

According to Dr. Ernest A. Rogers of the college of dentistry, the infirmary will be closed December 29 and remain closed until January 2.

Dr. Rogers stated that the University District Society of Dentists met at Cedar Rapids, Ia., the latter part of the week. Most of the faculty of the dental college attended the meetings, among whom were Dr. Arthur O. Klaffenbach, who gave a clinic on crown bridge work; Dr. Ernest A. Rogers, who gave a clinic on radiology; Dr. James K. Wick, Dr. Erling Theen, Dr. Rollo H. Moore, Dr. Ralph A. Penton, Dr. Earl S. Smith, and Dr. Ray V. Smith.

Dr. George H. Waudel of the dental clinic extension department was elected president of the society for the coming year.

New Tap Room for Men at California

BERKELEY, Cal., Dec. 19.—A new tap room has been officially opened for the men of the University of California. This will be exclusively for men and a fountain service will be provided.

The first drinks will be served to the guests of honor in old-fashioned German beer stein and during the opening of the tap room, which will be under the auspices of the Welfare council, free drinks of near-beer will be given to those present.

Emil Hildebrand, former bartender at the College Inn, which is located in Oakland, will again resume his profession upon the opening of the room.

U. S. Contractors Build Skyscraper At Tokio, Japan

TOKIO, Dec. 19 (AP).—Tokio's greatest skyscraper, the Marunouchi building, is to be made earthquake proof. The building was erected by a firm of American contractors for the Mitsubishi company. It was seriously shaken by the earthquake.

The structure, which covers an entire city block, is to be divided into thirteen sections, thus localizing the shocks as is the case with the Imperial hotel building, which withstood the shock well.

Quakeproof walls will be built between each section and its neighbors, piercing the building from roof to foundation. The work will extend over two years.

Laws of State Will Enforce Liquor Law

DES MOINES, Iowa, Dec. 19.—A proposal that the punishment for bootleggers in Iowa—even for the first offense—be a jail sentence, without the privilege of paying a fine, is receiving serious consideration of the members of the committees on temperance in both houses of the legislature.

The suggestion is in line with the idea of prohibition leaders, that if any changes in the state's liquor laws are made during the special session of the legislature they should put more teeth into the law. Legislators who have expressed themselves on the suggestion seem to favor it, and already have assured the prohibition forces that no change tending to let down on liquor law enforcement will be permitted to creep into the revised code.

The liquor laws probably will not come up in either house until about the middle of January. The code commissioners made numerous recommendations and, in addition, the Womens Christian Temperance Union, the Iowa Anti-Saloon League and several individuals have informed the house and senate committees that numerous other changes seemed desirable.

These interests have been told by the committees on temperance that the Iowa law defining intoxicating liquor would be stronger, when it is finally acted upon, than the Volstead act.

Some of the recommendations before the legislators would tighten the law forbidding sale of materials that may be used in manufacturing illicit liquor; re-insist the section forbidding the advertising of "innocent" beverages that may be "doctored" and made intoxicating; provide for the forfeiture of bond in cases of abatement; provide punishment for the publication of information as to the manufacture of prohibited beverages; or as to the place where such beverages may be purchased and stipulate imprisonment only as the punishment for second offenders in intoxication cases.

Fines assessed under the law would be remitted only by the governor, and no court would be permitted to impose bond of less amount than the minimum fine for the offense. The furnishing of intoxicating liquor that results in the death of the person who receives the gift or makes the purchase, would be made an act upon which a manslaughter charge might be brought against the giver or seller.

The giving or selling of liquor to an Indian would be a violation punishable by a fine of not less than $300, or imprisonment from 30 days to one year.

OUR ILLOGICAL LOGIC

TWO pigeon holes, if amply proportioned, are about all that is necessary to classify most of the human family. There is the man of reason and the man of fancy and apparently "never the twain shall meet." There is no compromise, no golden mean, no blending in the single individual of the qualities of both. We have heard so much about the one that we have almost concluded that to admit we are even so much as agitated by emotion, passion, and fancy, much less that we are ever actuated by the same is an admission that we are base and ignorant. And we therefore conclude that the antipodes, reason, will, on the other hand, solve all our troubles, relieve our miseries, and point the way to certain happiness. We go on the assumption that because one extreme brings us ill, the other must produce good; that whereas the north pole is an unpleasant place to live, the south pole is, to an equal degree, a paradise.

Now it is doubtless true that inasmuch as a man is motivated and governed entirely by his passions and "feelings," he is apt to come to naught but trouble. But it is equally true that he who places his trust altogether in reason, and builds his house on logic, may find therein an insecure foundation. DesCartes assures us that all excess is vicious, and it is possible to think of even an excess of virtue becoming a vice, or excessive logic becoming illogical. The fact is that too much logic in this very illogical world, and an excess of reason in this most unreasonable life are entirely out of place. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating." If "A" proves conclusively by the syllogism that "B" cannot strike him, and "B" replies by knocking him down; or if a man show beyond doubt that 9,002 angels can stand on the point of a needle and his adversary demonstrate that 9,003 can stand thereon, we begin to suspect that he who is governed exclusively by fancy will, in the whole scheme of things, be but little more in error than the one who just as blindly goes to the other extreme.

A WISE ELECTION

(Christian Science Monitor)

THE American public knows far less than it ought of the Academy of Arts and Letters, and therefore it is not surprising that little has been heard of the election to its rank of Dr. John C. Van Dyke. And yet, to everybody interested in art, that election is a good sign. While many are hunting about vainly and in the wrong places for the right way to do good to art, Dr. Van Dyke has steadily upheld a high standard both in his written criticism and in his lectures to his students at Rutgers. He is one of the real art critics in the United States—some say he is the only one. He has been lecturing on the subject for years, and for years he wrote upon it for the press. Also, art has been the theme of the greater number of his books. He is not an artist, but he has realized that art is something more than an amusement for the layman, and he has studied long and diligently and with understanding.

It was said of a London art critic in the often quoted nineties that he was given his job because he had inherited some odd prints from an uncle; for many other art critics in London, and perhaps more in New York, not even so good a reason could be found. But Dr. Van Dyke's qualification for the work was study—hard, serious study. This is why he is listened to with respect not only by his students but by artists, who as a rule have no use for the outsider's opinions, good or bad. And it is why, too, his recent book on Rembrandt has aroused so much attention and been approved. If not accepted, by everybody concerned with art except those whose interests it threatened.

It may be said that in trying to weed out the paintings wrongly attributed to Rembrandt, Dr. Van Dyke has gone to an extravagant extreme as the enthusiasts who have credited Rembrandt with more pictures than any one man could have painted in a lifetime. But it is recognized that Dr. Van Dyke's conclusions are neither hasty nor on sensation bent, but the result of research and knowledge, and though his list may be amended or lengthened or shortened, he has cleared the air and rendered a veritable service to art.

His election as Academician so soon after the publication of his book proves the high appreciation in which he is held by men whose appreciation is presumably best worth having. The Academy is rather a modest body and seldom figures in the limelight. The public that believes literature begins and ends with the latest best sellers, and reduces art to the fashions of the moment, at times dismisses the Academy and Academicians with a sneer. But if mediocrities have crept in among the Immortals, it is still true that the most distinguished writers and artists of the country have been, or are, Academicians, and it is to see that standards do not sink to the level of best sellers and passing fashions that their Academy exists.

The Sounding Board

Someone suggests that the Athens today recalls Palestine the day after the Jews were taken into Babylonian captivity. To us it digs up the classic lines

Where is now the merry party Far away, far away They have all dispersed and wandered Far away, far away.

Well, the fraternity grips were certainly given a good workout yesterday. A little observation yesterday sufficed to assure us that our suspicion that all of them are essentially the same, i. e. patterned after the boy scout grip was correct beyond a shadow of a doubt.

Today father and mother are getting another version of the story the professor told Dean Rienow about A 1.

A reporter assures us that he lifted this line from "Skookum Chuck" in the last issue of the Sat. Eve. Post: "and he listened with all of his ears."

Every other day we have a trick story from Cedar Rapids and on those days that the Parlor City fails to come through Sioux City usually manages to do pretty well. Comes now a bride of two weeks and asks the court to annul her marriage because she was "dazed" when she entered the contract.

A dispatch from Pullman, Wash. says that "Duke" Slater has been elected captain of the Washington State College foot ball team for next season. It is possible that this athlete is not Iowa's dusky tackle of other days.

Yesterday's uprisings included a royal trunk-packing in Greece in addition to the usual Mexican fracas.

NEW STUFF

(Christmas Tree Story from Yesterday's Iowan)

"The trees which are sold in Iowa City come principally from Minnesota although a few of the trees are brought from as far away as Canada and the state of Washington. In these woods are men who for several months prior to Christmas do nothing but cut the trees down and prepare them for shipment. The trees will keep in good shape if cut at the right time."

WHY WE LIKE IOWA

In Merchantville, New Jersey, a florist arrested for selling flowers on Sunday last week.

Fred Brown's "saloon" at Ann Arbor has been ordered closed because complaints reached the county sheriff that "students became intoxicated by sipping Fred Brown's soup."

In spite of the fact that several Phi Gam's names are found on the roll of the new Junior Honor Society Cal. Coolidge is still the best candidate for the presidency. If we get to go into Cleveland for the convention we shall cast our vote for him on every ballot.

We note in the Public Ledger stories to the effect that the holiday business is poor and also that retail stores are doing excellent business just now. Take your choice.

The Sounding Board technician assures us that the number of hours wasted daily in room 14 T. A. discussing abnormal psychology totals 113.

Organized Reserve Corps Forms Army Framework for Emergency

It is doubtful if many people really know the purpose of the federal government in establishing reserve officers training corps units throughout the United States. Probably many students do not understand the important part that military training at the University of Iowa plays in the general defense plan of the country. The R. O. T. C. is a factor of the first military policy that this country has ever had.

From the beginning, due to the experience of the colonists with the use of the British army that was quartered with and also due to the enormous cost, the traditional policy of the people has been adverse to a large standing army. In its place they desired a small standing army with dependence in time of war placed in an army raised from the entire able bodied male population between the ages of 18 and 45 years.

Up to the world war in conformity with this traditional policy the country has always had a small standing army and when war came it was met by hastily raising an army and officers were commissioned and men were enlisted for short periods of time. These were both placed in battle before they could be properly trained and the result was a tremendous cost in life. When these raw levies had served long enough to become valuable as trained soldiers, their enlistment was usually up and new levies of troops had to be raised to replace them. This resulted in costly wars of unreasonable length. The turnover of men during the revolution was nearly 400,000 and over half a million during the war of 1812. The greatest number available at any one time in these wars was 17,000 and 38,000, respectively.

In order to avoid the mistakes of past wars and the confusion incident thereto, and at the same time to adhere to our traditional policy, while providing for an adequate defense, the national defense act of 1920 was passed. This act creates the army of the United States, consisting of three equal and co-ordinate elements, the organized reserves, the national guard and the regular army. The national guard and the regular army form the first line of defense. These will be the bulwark behind which, if necessary, a citizen army will be raised and trained. This citizen army will constitute the organized reserves.

During peace the framework of the organized reserves is provided

Hawaiian Finds No Democracy at Iowa

Iowa Reluctant In Its Hospitality, Says Islander

"The one criticism I would make against the University of Iowa," said Gabriel H. Mihara of Hakalau, Hawaii, who is enrolled in the college of law here, "is that, compared to the other colleges there seems to be an air of aloofness here which many foreign students find a barrier to friendship."

At the University of Michigan, where I spent the preceding year, it is a regular practice to ask foreign students to spend the Christmas holidays as guests in private homes in Ann Arbor and in other cities throughout the state. People particularly interested in China will ask Chinese students to their homes, those interested in India, Hindu students, and so on. The same thing is regularly done at Hinsdale, a Baptist college in Michigan and Defiance college in Ohio, founded by the Methodist church. At Brown University in Providence R. I. where I spent several months, a friendly, cordial spirit also exists. Due credit must of course be given the Cosmopolitan club here. It does foster closer friendship between students of different countries, but I think the membership might be considerably increased."

Mihara is attempting to get a broad, national point of view on a number of subjects, this among them. With this end in view, he has attended Brown University in the east, Michigan and Iowa in the central states, and expects to visit several of the western colleges. He has visited a number of eastern colleges, among them Harvard and Princeton. He is a member of the Foreign Students Friendship Council, with headquarters in New York, which is at present attempting to gather and publish a consensus of foreign student opinion on colleges in the United States.

Mihara said that of the institutions he had visited and attended the one where democracy and good-will was most evident was a seminary in Ocean Park, Maine, where a theological conference was held last summer. Throughout the year theological training is given, but in the summer the course is broadened and enlarged and teachers and students come from many parts of the United States to attend. When asked why a man who expects to make the law his vocation should attend a theological seminary Mihara replied that he wished contact with people generally granted to have America's highest ideals.

no defense has been offered for Greek. As one who has specialized in the language for nearly half a century and for a long generation has been taught both classical and New Testament Greek, especially the latter, may I venture a few words?

A minister told me recently of a peculiar experience he often had and I invented for him on the spot a Greek name for his malady, namely, hypsophobia. He went home and found the word in his English dictionary and was impressed. I had never heard or seen the word before. I have often amused myself by explaining to professors of science, at their request, the exact meaning of technical terms they were using more or less blindly every day. Most of the vocabulary of medical, biological and indeed all other works of science is luminous to the Greek. I asked a merely English student the other day the meaning of the word protagonist and he floundered vaguely through some derived meanings, whereas the Greek knows the one original and evitable first-hand meaning, from which he can develop all the derived meanings necessary for his own use.

Very many of our greatest English authors have been trained in Greek and have used English words derived from the language with a precision and a rich elusiveness that are wholly lost on the man who is merely English-trained. A man who has acquired such an excellent English style that he is sought by the publishers and has now been elected editor of an important paper because of his gifts, has written me again and again to say that the best preparation for his literary work he ever had was in a course that he enjoyed in Greek, analyzing by contrast the style of Paul and the Epistle to the Hebrews in the light of the principles of classic Greek. The fact is that the style of the greatest Greek authors is a norm by which the principles of all literary style may be judged.

Should all students study Greek? No. A minister recently tried it with me for a few weeks and had to give it up though he was terribly in earnest, told me ruefully that he had done nothing else, neglecting pulpit and people and all the other duties of life for it, and worst of all, in spite of the taunt of his wife, that he was a quitter in giving it up. It was like resolving to be a postman when born without legs. Only those should take Greek who are good or at least average linguists. For such, even a single year in Greek would be worth while, especially in New Testament Greek. To get a glimpse of part of the basic structure of English, especially of the most difficult technical English, which all University students use and need, and to have some notion in the original of what some think is the most important book the world has ever known, looks like time well spent. A course of three hours a week for a year should encompass it. A linguist could buy a little book that costs 80 cents and do it by himself.

The former way of taking three years of Greek in the preparatory school and four in college was fit only for genuine linguists who were looking toward a literary career, or for people of leisure who could amply afford it. For them nothing will ever take its place. Its value is incalculable and supreme, but the average student ought at least to have a glimpse of Greek.

What Engineering Owes to the Imagination

From An Argument Over Watches Came KDKA

BACK in the days when wireless was just beginning to spread, Frank Conrad (now Assistant Chief Engineer of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company) and another official, happened to compare watches, to see if it was time to go back to work. Their watches differed.

Unable to convince his friend that his watch was right, Mr. Conrad suddenly remembered that the naval station at Arlington, Va., had just inaugurated a system for sending out daily time signals by radio. Just the thing to prove his point!

So he built a simple set of receiving apparatus, erected an aerial, and—you can imagine what happened! He was badly bitten by the radio bug. After proving to his satisfaction the accuracy of his watch, he started experimenting with the transmission of music by radio, with good success.

He began sending out phonograph music from his home, and attracted the attention of some of the big department stores, that had installed radio departments. They in turn, started advertising Mr. Conrad's "musical evenings."

Then, one day, upon arriving at his desk, he was

Team Gets Eight Day Rest Period Meets Creighton Five At Omaha Jan. 2

Iowa City, Ia., Dec. 20 (Special)—Following its 25 to 15 victory over Cornell college Tuesday night the Iowa basketball team disbanded yesterday and was allowed to go home for the Christmas vacation as the Hawkeyes are taking no holiday practice tour this year.

The Iowans will not loaf during the entire vacation however for ten of them have been requested to report back at the gymnasium at 10 o'clock on the morning of December 27. They will immediately go into practice for the two remaining pre-conference games on the schedule. The first of these pre-conference games will be played at Omaha January 2 when Iowa meets the fast Creighton University five. Three days later the Hawkeyes will return home to clash with the Marquette quintet. This will be the final practice game of the year for a week later the Iowans will meet Purdue here in the conference opener.

It is hoped that an eight day rest followed by a short intensive drill will put the Iowa team back into its 1923 championship style. In the game with Cornell here Tuesday the Iowans failed to show the stuff they had exhibited against Butler, and considerable improvement must be made in nearly every department of play before the conference teams are met.

The men invited to return on the twenty-seventh are: Captain Bob Burgett, Wayland Hicks, Hector Janes, James Laude, Jack Funk, William Fleckenstein, Chester Kirchner, Robert Schick, Emmett Scanlon and Lynn Swaney.

FAMOUS COMBINATION AS EVERS JOINS CHANCE

TINKER
TO EVERS
TO CHANCE

By Norman E. Brown
The recent signing of Johnny Evers as coach of the White Sox team by Frank Chance, new manager, brings back a flood of memories of the old time wags, particularly those who follow the national league.

For it means the reunion of two of the members of the famous old double play combination which was without a rival for years—Tinker to Evers to Chance.

How many times did the Cubs, then monarchs of the baseball world, pull themselves out of the hole in critical games through the dazzling work of these three men on an infield grounder.

Tinker to Evers to Chance. Why, they were death on any ball that came south of third base. He was the mainspring. Most of the plays started with him. Evers was the man at second base, Johnny Evers, at short, was the pivot man. And Frank Chance took Evers' throws from any angle at first.

The first of the famous trio returned to Chicago—although to the other side of the town—when Chance was recently signed to manage the White Sox.

Chance started his big league career as a catcher. He joined the Cubs on the spring training trip of 1898 as a backstop and held to that berth until he was moved to first in 1903 that the club might have the benefit of his bating and fielding in every game.

Frank Selee was forced to relinquish the managerial job because of ill health and Chance was named to take over the reins. In 1906 the Peerless leader led the team to the National league pennant but lost the world's series to the famous "Hitless Wonders"—the White Sox, led by Fielder Jones.

The next two years Chance led the club to the National and world pennants. The Cubs again won the title in 1910, under Chance's guidance. In 1913 Chance tried to guide the New York Yanks to a pennant and would have done so but for a series of misfortunes to the main members of the team. Evers succeeded Chance as manager, but when he failed to win a pennant his first year Owner Charles Murphy fired him. Evers went to the Braves and eventually dropped out as a player. He has kept in the game, however, as a coach.

Joe Tinker tries this hand at managing the Cleveland American association team and the Columbus A. A. clubs before dropping out of the game.

Fitzgerald Plans For More Skating

If old man winter appears this season, and we are most certain that he will, the Iowa students will again have the opportunity of spending their leisure hours on the skating rink, so said Mr. Fitzgerald, the local boathouse man.

Tentative plans will hold until the river is frozen but it is expected that another skating tournament will be held. Last year thousands of students used the Fitzgerald rink for many parties and it is expected that another season will be successful.

Chicago Schedules With Brown Grid Team Next Season

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—University of Chicago's football schedule for 1924 was completed tonight with the signing of Brown university for a game to be played at Stagg field October 11.

This gives Chicago two inter-sectional contests and seven games at home. Missouri will meet the Maroons here October 4. Chicago will play Ohio State at Columbus October 25 in the only game of the season away from Stagg Field.

Brown furnished one of the surprises of the 1923 season by defeating Harvard on its own field for the second time in two years.

Responsibility Is Traced To Russia

Guard of the revolutionary proletariat of the United States of North America, will not more successfully conduct its revolutionary work among the millions of American proletarians.

"For more intensive revolutionary work we suggest that following instructions be adhered to:

"1. All the activity of the party must at the present time be directed among the workers of the large industrial plants such as the railroad workers, miners, weavers, steel workers and similar workers engaged in the principal industries of the United States.

"2. Among these workers in the factories, mills, plantations, clubs, etc., there must be organized units of ten. The head of this unit of ten must in so far as possible be an old trusted member of the party.

"3. These units often must be organized by occupation and nationality.

"4. The head of the unit must know intimately each individual worker of ten—his character, habits, the degree of his revolutionism, etc., and report everything direct to the central committee of the party.

"5. Each of these units of ten must have its own fighting unit of not less than three men who are appointed by the leader of the unit with the approval of the central committee of the party.

"6. All the unit leaders of each district must meet once every two months to discuss the progress of their work and their plans for further activities in the presence of a member of the central committee of the party.

"We are firmly convinced that the work in the direction designated by us will give enormous results in the sense of preparing thousands of new propagandists, further leaders of the military forces of the party and faithful fighters during the social revolution.

"With reference to the organization of the W. P. A. of the federated farm labor party, the communist international expresses its complete satisfaction and its approval to the central committee of the party for its boldness and tact in putting this idea into effect.

Christmas Holidays Promise A Busy Time For All Students

Christmas holidays. Thirteen glorious days of no eight o'clock dad's car when ever you want it; the boarding house stew forgotten as you come to the table loaded with your favorite food; no books. Then the vacation is over.

Two weeks of intensive studying, note books are brought up to date, old outlines are brought out. You rush up to get out the kind of exams that you are likely to get in that history course.

The first semester officially ends January 26 at 6 p. m. All exam grades will be in by that time, and all worry over for some and just beginning for others.

Student Weddings Double in Semester

According to the statistics of the Johnson county clerk twice as many students have fallen victim to Cupid as had last year as this time.

Just what is the cause of this is not definitely known. Perhaps the weather has something to do with it.

Then too, the betterment of the financial situation may have something to do with it.

Some of the reasons for the increase in student marriages are the transfer of jeweled hardware and the added work at the clerk's office which had been evidenced lately.

Decline Checked By Strong Buying

Reactionary Movement of Yesterday Halted

WALL STREET SUMMARY Total stock sales 1,092,000 shares.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Strong buying support came into today's market, and checked the reactionary movement which developed yesterday.

The sudden reversal in speculative sentiment was based on Washington advice setting forth that the house ways and means committee had decided to defer action on a soldier's bonus until after it has considered administrative features of the Mellon tax program.

Declaration of the regular quarterly dividend on Northern Pacific, previously reported in danger, also was a constructive factor.

Favorite Sell Heavily Selling pressure was concentrated in the early dealings on such speculative favorites as Baldwin, American can, and Studebaker, each of which sold several points below Monday's high figures.

Considerable irregularity developed in the railroad list with the Northwestern carriers inclined to waver on the announcement of the Northern Pacific dividend.

U. S. Bonds Recede Call money opened at 4 1/4 percent and dropped to 4 1/2 before the close.

Practically all of the American government bonds showed recessions on the day, due to speculative uncertainty over the action of congress on tax reduction and the bonus.

INDUSTRIES OF IOWA IMPROVING

Bureau of Labor, Says Good Weather and Employment

(By The Associated Press) Des Moines, Iowa, Dec. 19.—Iowa industries have shown a steady gain in employment for more than a year and a canvas of the business outlook made by the state labor department discloses a better feeling for the future.

This improvement from month to month has been unbroken, the report states, except during October, when a slight seasonal decline occurred.

The reports from various industries for the month of November show an increase in employment of 1.3 per cent.

Pre-holiday trade and the unusual weather conditions account largely for the November gain which was noted in industries handling food and kindred products, textiles, leather products, paper products, patent medicines, tobacco and cigars.

A large gain in millinery and seeds is in preparation for the spring trade.

Building permits issued in November outnumber the total for that month in 1922, but the valuation was smaller.

Changes of opinion on the business outlook were firms deserting the "poor outlook" column and joining those who saw encouragement for the future. Detailed reports from the various state employment bureaus show that in November, 73.5 jobs were offered for each 100 applicants. In October the ratio was 73.6.
