Symphony Leader Has Fondness For Irish Linen and Bow-ties

Fastidiousness and eccentricities mark the habits and appearance of most talented men. In varying degrees and forms they display this characteristic throughout their work.

Henri Verbrughen, conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, which is to appear in concert here soon, is an example of this contention, revealing his idiosyncrasies in a passion for exactitude and clean-cut detail.

Those who have had a chance to observe him in personal ways declare that in the matter of dress, the Kapellmeister is most fastidious. For instance, his collars are all made to his special order and fitted by an Irish linen firm.

But even the best of men have a pet weakness or superstition. Mr. Verbrughen has a "faded" gray sweater which he wears at every rehearsal. Without it he would expect all sorts of musical calamities to overtake the enterprise.

THE RACE QUESTION

NO one who attended the discussion on interracial relations held last Sunday can doubt that these questions are of deep interest to an appreciable number of students attending the University.

If frank, sincere discussion, earnest seeking and giving truth, and the insistence of fifty people that the discussion continue after the hour was up a criteria of any value, then the meeting was one of the most worthwhile held at the University this year.

It was evident that there were two classes present—the American students and the others. Likewise, it became as evident that the blame for the failure of the races to fraternize was to be laid on the shoulders of the American students. There was no rancor. The charge was courteously made on the one side, and tacitly accepted on the other.

The discussions were as varied in character as the speakers themselves. Some were tense with the knowledge of prejudices and deliberate injustices; some were broad enough and keen enough to treat the matter with a humor that masked their seriousness and drove home their points.

In general, the foreign student is a man or woman of wealth, of intellect and of character—a tolerant cosmopolitan, and the product of an age-old culture. Matched brain to brain and soul to soul, the average American student suddenly stands shallow and purposeless, and the vaunted superiority of the white race is revealed a hollow sham.

THE RAGE FOR HANGINGS

WITHIN the past five years there have been more executions performed in the name of the state of Iowa than there had been for thirty years previous.

The mania for hangings of which the present wave is a part started shortly after the World War when unrest and unemployment caused an unprecedented wave of crime.

The justification of the death penalty has always been based on two claims. The first is that society is protected against the criminals ever committing the crime again and the second is that it acts a wholesome example to discourage criminals from the commission of crimes.

That the execution forecloses the possibility of the repetition of the crime by the particular criminal cannot be disputed. The only argument is whether or not such rash means are necessary. The penalty in based on the old classical theory of punishment, namely, to make the penalty approximate the crime and to punish the particular region of the criminal

Scriblerus Club

Larry Barreto, the author of "A Conqueror Passes," a first novel recently published, has an exceptional service record; and in Stephen Wicker, the hero of his book, he has portrayed the peaceful fine reactions of thousands of other soldiers when they first returned from service in France.

Mr. Barreto's modest, almost apologetic account of his army service is as follows: "I enlisted as a private June 4, 1917, and was discharged April 4, 1918—still a private. Through no fault of my own I got mixed up in a good many major actions—Verdun, Alsace, Aisne-Marne, Oise, Oise-Marne, and the Vosges Mountains, which gives me enough bars on my victory medal to make it unsightly. I was gassed in April of 1918, solely because the German gunners were quicker than my legs; and in August I was decorated by the French government for some work. I always figured that was a mistake because I daily saw men shot to pieces with never a bit of ribbon to show for it."

Mr. Barreto has not returned to France since the government gave him his two red chevrons and sixty dollars, yet "The New York Times" declares that the account of his hero's return to France after the war is the best part of the book, and goes on to say of the novel: "If it is the product, not of experience but of imagination, then it marks the appearance of a new writer of distinction, one rarely and richly endowed."

A. Hamilton Gibbs was in the United States writing a novel and acting in the cast of "The Blindness of Virtue," the play written by his brother, Cosmos Hamilton, when an attack of appendicitis sent him to the hospital, and then back to England, to convalesce. He had hardly arrived there when the curtain began to rise on the World War, and instead of returning to America he enlisted as a private. Within a few months he received a commission in the artillery, and by the time the Armistice was signed, having been in Egypt, the Balkans, and the hottest sectors of the British fronts in France and Belgium, had won the rank of Major. His account of experience, "Gun Powder," ends with a stirring plea for tolerance, kindness and brotherhood in the practice of peace. It has just been republished by Little, Brown and Company.

Excavations near Washington, D. C., have unearthed a leaden plate bearing the inscription, "Virgini Dare," and it far from the same spot, a mould-encrusted leaden casket containing some crudely-fashioned beads and a document which was taken to New York to be deciphered. When that is effected, light may be thrown on a mystery that has hitherto baffled all research—the fate of Sir Walter Raleigh's lost colony on Roanoke Island, Virginia. Virginia Dare was the first English child to be born on American soil. She is the heroine of Mary Johnston's romantic novel, "Croatan" which purports to give an account of what became of the mysteriously-lost colony.

Unightly Fences May Return Upon Minnesota Campus

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 29—Definite threats of again erecting the unsightly iron fences on the campus at every corner were contained in a letter from President Lotus D. Coffman to the Minnesota Daily yesterday.

The notice is as follows: "The Minnesota Daily recently contained an article which stated that it would be necessary to restore the lawns unless the student manifested more interest in this matter themselves. I had hoped that this article and various signs placed about the campus at the request of the Student Council would be sufficient, but it seems that such is not the case. The article has gone unheeded and the signs disregarded."

"The violation of campus ethics in this regard has been and still seems to be more flagrant on the part of the women students than on the part of men students. The abuse is particularly obvious in front of Shevlin Hall and the library.

"Unless there are evidences of willingness to comply with the request of the Student Council the fences must be put back, and the women of the University will, I regret to say, be largely responsible for their restoration."

For nearly seven years the campus has been free from restrictions of this kind. M. L. Burton, now president of the University of Michigan, abolished the fences while he was president here in 1917.

Genetics Course Admits Students To Research Field

The class in genetics begins this semester under the instruction of Prof. Charles C. Nutting, head of the department of zoology.

The purpose of the lectures given in this course, by Professor Nutting, will be to prepare the students of genetics to take up research work in this field. Having taken this course the students will be eligible to take a course that follows it, given by Prof. Phineas W. Whiting, research professor in the department of child welfare. In this course, Professor Whiting will supervise the laboratory experiments and research in the fields of genetics.

Last week two students, Rev. Albert U. Hauber, graduate student from Davenport, Iowa, and Mrs. P. W. Whiting, wife of Professor Whiting, passed the qualifying examination which permits them to continue their research in the department of genetics. They will, after completing approximately another year's work, be ready to come up before the department for their doctor's degree.

Engineering Levels Mountains

The Pack Train has become a relic of the past, along with the Prairie Schooner. Modern methods of transportation have leveled mountains, brought San Francisco nearer to New York, and widened the markets of all our great industries.

And the engineering brains and energy, that have developed transportation to the prominence it holds in the business of the world today, are no longer employed in improving means of overland travel alone. Street Railways, Elevator Systems, Interurban Lines and Improved Shipping Lines—these are some of the accomplishments of engineering in the development of better transportation.

Neither have the builders of such systems been concerned only in the actual hauling of people and materials. A study of the methods of handling passengers and freight at the large terminals has developed the Terminal Engineer, who has greatly improved existing methods, and has developed entirely new ones, as well.

Moving Pictures for Convention Feb. 8-9

Mark Advent of Films For Educational Purposes

Marking the advent of instructive films on the screen an educational film depicting the life-history of Columbus will be shown at a meeting of the Historical convention to be held February 8, and 9 at Iowa City.

"Columbus" the first of thirty-three American photoplay chronicles produced by the Yale University Press, and exhibited through the joint courtesy of the Yale Press and Pathe Exchange, tells simply and without any superfluous detail, the story of Columbus' search for recognition before the courts of Portugal and Spain, and his final achievement in bringing his little fleet to the coast of the Bahamas—the discovery of America.

An excerpt from "The World's Work" for December 1923 speaks of the scheme of these films, which plan to record America and American traditions on the screen and to present the outstanding events which have helped to shape the nation.

In commenting upon the authenticity of "Columbus," the article continues, "One of the chief comforts one derives from the presentation is that everything is absolutely true. The creators have not thought it necessary to add details for which there is no historic record. The scenes, the costumes, the events are all accurate to the most minute detail."

The beauty of the stage settings the historic accuracy, the care taken in creating the atmosphere of the time, and the excellent acting are among the features of the production. Opening with scenes in Portugal, the picture traces the career of Columbus until his three sturdy ships touched the shore of America.

Ex-Kaiser Poses With Princess-Wife And Step-Children

This map shows graphically how Europe is being governed at the moment. The area, all of mighty Russia, under the absolute control of soviets is shown by perpendicular lines. The countries under the rule of dictators set up by the middle classes or the military are shown by oblique lines. Those with horizontal lines are in the control of labor.

These markings do not take into account Turkey, which is, after thousands of years, out of the hands of religious leaders and in those of men with democratic ideas or Greece where a revolutionary element is endeavoring to set up a Republic.

"La Casa Espanola" Formed by Students

Will Work For Extension of Interest In Speech And Culture

The Spanish Club has taken a new step in the practical application and study of Spanish outside the classroom. About ten members of the club have arranged for a room at Pickworth's Boarding House where Spanish will be spoken at night, and English at night. "La Casa Espanola," the group calls themselves, is composed entirely of students, but members of the Spanish department of the University will be frequent visitors of the linguists. By this co-operation between students and faculty it is hoped to extend the interest in Spanish culture as well as to develop a better speaking knowledge of the language of the southern republics.

The students who will make up the group are: Fillmon Manzano, Cms. of Taquain, P. I.; Edith Decker, A3 of Ossage, Iowa; Myrtle Dollmire, A4 of Oxford Junction; Phillip Allen, A2 of Davenport; Phillip C. Walker, A2 of Algona; Pedro Basros, A3 of Villasis, P. I.; L. California Alumni To Stage Reunion At Los Angeles

Former students and alumni of the University will hold a gigantic reunion in Lincoln Park, Los Angeles, California, on Washington's birthday, February 22, at which 7500 former Iowans will frolic.

The affair is an event of considerable importance in the vicinity of Los Angeles, and is the one time during the year when former residents of the Hawkeye state meet to become acquainted and to reminisce.

An attractive program has been outlined by the committee in charge: a basket dinner, registration by counties, presentation of badges, and a short program which will include talks by Iowans who have attained some degree of fame in some activity, are among the interesting features.

The program staged by the Iowa contingent is one of the two large celebrations sponsored by former residents of other states. The Loyalty of Illinois, an organization similar to that of the Iowa contingent, will gather for their rally on February 12.

Attorney Here In Charge of Summer Tour of Europe

A special three months' tour of France, Italy, and Switzerland, under the direction of Mlle. M. S. Maimsonnat, professor of French at Lawrence College, and M. and Mme. L. E. Maimsonnat of Paris, is now being arranged and planned, according to Clement F. Mullen, graduate of last year's law class of the University and at present of the firm of Wilson and Evans, local attorneys. Mr. Mullen is personally in charge of the arrangements in the district adjacent to and including Iowa City.

The cost of the trip is very reasonable, $750 covering all expenses, including transatlantic passage both ways, and traveling and living expenses in France, from June 17th to September 15.

Such a tour is planned for people especially interested in the French, their country, their life, their customs, and their language. It will interest those who would like to go abroad but who hesitate because of a fear of difficulties and lack of comfort. A genuine family life will be offered to the members of the party.

Mycenae's Topic For Wace Lecture

Praises Discoveries Made by Excavator Schliemann

"Mycenae, the wonder city of Ancient Greece," was the topic of a lecture given last night in the physics building by Prof. Allen John Bayard Wace, director of the British school at Athens. The lecture was illustrated by a number of slides of the scenes concerning which Professor Wace spoke.

Schliemann, the German archaeologist who made the excavation of Troy about 1870, added a thousand years to the history of Greece, in the opinion of Professor Wace. Schliemann here made one of the most important discoveries of the eighteenth century. He had read a great deal of Homer, believed that Troy was a real city, contrary to the opinion of many archaeologists, and proved this belief by his excavations.

We now know more of the history of Greece than the ancient Greeks themselves did. The work of modern excavators during the last hundred years has done much to clarify numerous disputed points.

In speaking of Mycenae, Professor Wace presented very minutely the numerous points brought out during the excavations of the city. The speaker described the surroundings of the ancient city, the way in which it was fortified, the type of architecture, and illustrated the various points by slides.

Mycenae was not a fortified town, but had a citadel or palace, which overlooked a water passage for vessels below. The palace included rooms for meetings of army heads, cabinet men, domestic quarters, and so on.

Some of the dead in the city of Mycenae were buried in family "bee-hive" tombs, and covered with a thin layer of dirt. Sometimes they were laid on slabs and dirt from top of cave fell on them; their vases and other ornaments of value were taken by their relatives.

All carvings on arches and vases, and the cutting of jewels, were done

$250 In Prizes for the Prize Cap

For the best sentence of ten words or less on the value of the Williams Hinge-Cap, we offer the following prizes: 1st prize, $100; 2nd prize, $50; two 3rd prizes, $25 each; two 4th prizes, $10 each; six 5th prizes, $5 each. Any undergraduate or graduate student is eligible. If two or more persons submit identical slogans deemed worthy of prizes, the full amount of the prize will be awarded to each. Contest closes at midnight March 14, 1924. Winners will be announced as soon thereafter as possible. Submit any number of slogans but write on one side of paper only, putting name, address, college and class at top of each sheet. Address letters to Contest Editor, The J. B. Williams Co., Glastonbury, Conn.

Williams is as much better to shave with as the Hinge-Cap is better than other caps: The lather is heavier and holds the moisture in against your beard. Quicker softening results. Also, Williams lather lubricates the skin. There is noticeable absence of irritating razor friction. And Williams takes good care of the skin. Though you shave daily, your face remains smooth and feels comfortable. Williams is a pure, natural-white cream absolutely without coloring matter. Try it!

Unusual Slants In The Day's News

HE'S 64 years old but he has had only fifteen birthdays! John R. Courtney of Atlanta, Ga., is one of those unfortunate — or fortunate — persons who happened to be born on February 29.

EIGHTY-EIGHT years ago they were married in Russia, the bride then being 16 and the groom 20. Mr. and Mrs. I. Yasafsky of Baltimore, claim the world's record for long time marriage.

EAST AND WEST do meet once in a while, despite the well known Kipling dictum. Kaneko Baumfeld, beautiful Japanese wife of Herman Baumfeld, on their arrival in San Francisco on a tour of the world, said: "We have been married six years and we're very happy."

Anti-Saloon Head Is Found Guilty

Anderson Is Convicted Of Forgery Charge By Jury

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league of New York tonight was convicted by a supreme court jury on both counts of an indictment charging him with third degree forgery in connection with the "splitting" of commissions with a former league fund solicitor.

Justice Tompkins announced Anderson would be sentenced Friday, February 8. Bail of $5,000 in which he has been at liberty since the indictment was returned, was continued. It was understood an appeal would be taken.

The jury deliberated one hour and forty minutes.

Assistant District Attorney Peora took three hours to sum up the testimony, devoting the last half hour to a bitter denunciation of Anderson and several of the defense witnesses.

He grew sarcastic in his reference to "John T. King," vanished stranger, who Anderson had said made him a gift of $25,000 and "Henry Mann" the equally mysterious New York publicity man that the league head had declared had done publicity work for the organization and to whom he had paid $24,700 of the sum given him by "King."

The "dry" leader may be sentenced to a prison term of from two and one half years to five years for conviction under the third degree forgery charge.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Arthur Havers and James Ockendon open golf champions, respectively, of England and France, today defeated 15. B. Armstrong, former California amateur champion, and Chick Frazer, Midwick County club professional, four and three, in an exhibition hole match on the Midwick course.

Army Is Anxious For More Doctors

Many Vacancies Left In the Medical Corps Now

The Surgeon General of the United States Army is anxious to get doctors to consider a commission in the regular service of the United States Army. There is at present, approximately forty vacancies in the Medical Corps, and the service is greatly handicapped because of this fact.

In this work there is plenty of opportunity given one to specialize in any particular line that he may desire, and some exceptional opportunities for travel and study of tropical diseases.

If one passes the examination, he is commissioned as a First Lieutenant in the medical corps, and receives pay and allowances amounting to approximately $2,650 per year, if he is a single man, or $3,150 if he has dependents.

At the present time applications and letters of inquiry may be addressed to the Surgeon General direct at Washington, D. C., thus facilitating the exchange of correspondence.
