Phi Beta Kappa Confers 19 Keys; Ullman is Speaker

Welcome Initiates; Seventy Attend Ceremony

Prof. Jennings Gives Talk on History of Fraternity

In a brief but cordial welcome to the incoming initiates of Phi Beta Kappa, Prof. Berthold L. Ullman, head of the department of Latin and Greek, yesterday evening opened the ceremonies that concluded with the initiation into full membership of the nineteen people recently elected to the honorary fraternity.

Professor Ullman in his address stressed the significance attached to the wearing of the key of Phi Beta Kappa. He pointed out the honor of belonging to the fraternity and the zeal and care that was to be the heritage of every wearer. In that name and integrity of Phi Beta Kappa must be forever cherished.

The initiation took place in room 104 of the liberal arts building and was attended by about seventy people. Following the welcome by Professor Ullman, a short history of the Phi Beta Kappa was given by Prof. Walter W. Jennings of the college of commerce. Starting December 5, 1776, in the college of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Virginia, Phi Beta Kappa was originated with the highest ideals of scholarship and citizenship.

Expansion of Phi Beta Kappa was more or less dormant from this time on, only seven chapters being installed up to the year 1837. Later there was evidence of a policy of expansion and at the present time there are ninety-nine chapters with about 45,000 members.

The new members of the fraternity, after the history of the organization by Professor Jennings, were introduced to the symbols and tokens of the order by Miss Helene Blatner of the speech department. Immediately afterwards the ceremony of initiation was performed and nineteen new Phi Beta Kappas were added to the rolls of the University of Iowa.

At a dinner held after the initiation in the Congregational church address were made by Gail DeWolf A4 of Spencer, Lee Travis G, research assistant, who talked on behalf of the recent alumni, and Miss Nellie S. Arner of the department of English, who used for her topic "Iowa Soil—Grave or Garden of the Humanities."

American World Fliers Arrived In Japan Today

MINATO, Mutsu, Japan, May 22.—The three United States army around-the-world airplanes arrived here today (Thursday) from Hitokaphu Bay, Yeterofuru Island.

The fliers arrived here at 10:40 a. m. seven hours and forty minutes after taking off at Hitokaphu. The distance flown is about 354 miles.

Owing to erroneous transmission messages received Monday by the Associated Press, were interpreted to mean that the American aviators had hopped off from Yeterofuru Islands early Tuesday morning and had landed shortly after at Minato.

Subsequent dispatches to both the Associated Press and the Japanese Navy department stated that the fliers had not left Hitokaphu Bay, Yeterofuru Islands, either Tuesday or Wednesday because of unfavorable weather conditions. It was then announced the aviators intended to attempt the flight to Minato early Thursday morning (Far Eastern time), if the weather moderated.

The landing at Minato, a little fishing village in the extreme North of the main island of Japan, is the first time American army aviators have ever flown over the empire of Nippon.

Order 15 Million Bonus Applications

War Department Asks Vets To Be Patient In Applying

(By the Associated Press) WASHINGTON, May 21.—Already besieged by requests from veterans for adjusted compensation under the bonus law, the war department issued a statement today pointing out to former service men the futility of asking payments at present.

The special application blank has been prepared and 15,000,000 ordered printed, the statement said. The necessary paper is being shipped to the public printer and on receipt the application blanks will be promptly delivered to the department for distribution throughout the country.

Printed instructions will be distributed containing all information relative to the bonus and the application blank itself will contain specific instructions.

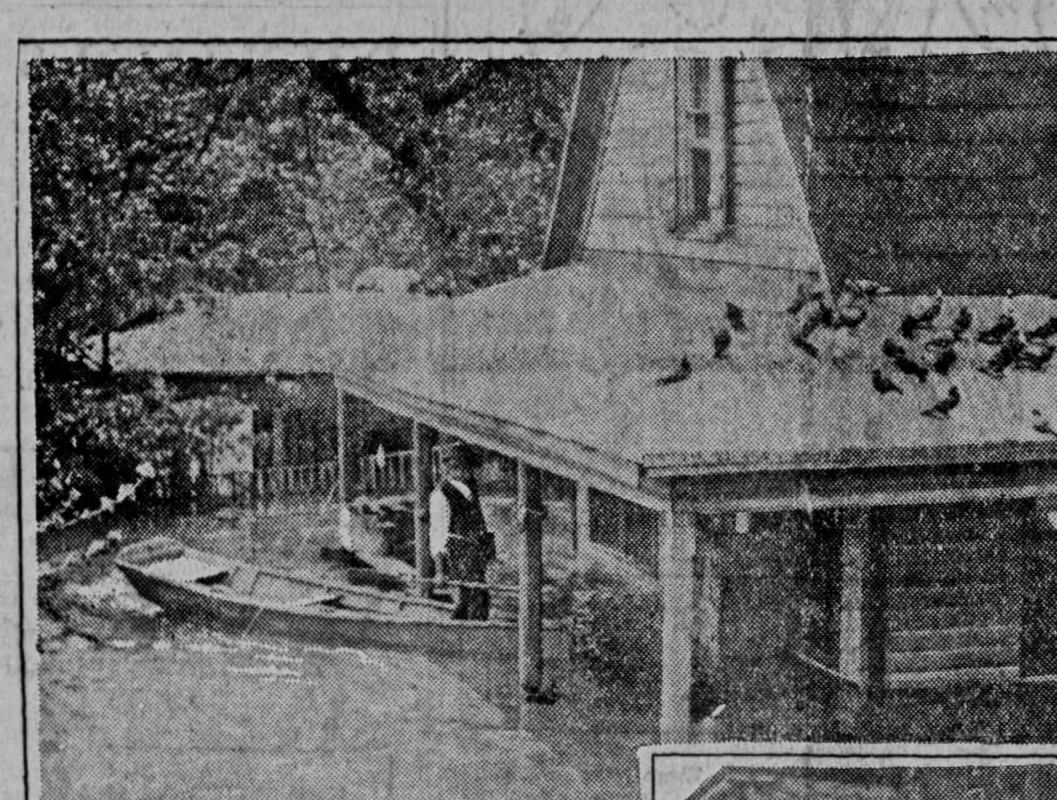

Major General Davis, adjutant-general of the army, today said: "The task of administering the compensation law is of such magnitude that any unnecessary correspondence on the part of the applicants will increase the work of administration and will result in a consequent delay."

Potomac Flood Laps Within Mile of White House

Above: A rescue worker in rowboat, going to the aid of a marooned family near Washington and below a view of the main thoroughfare of Harper's Ferry, Va., after a roaring stream.

More damage to houses and factories in the lower sections of the national capital is feared as a result of the continued depredations of flood waters of the Potomac River. A large part of Potomac Park, one of Washington's most beautiful spots, less than a mile from the White House, is flooded, and the Bolling field, the army air station, is under water.

No estimate has been made of the damage in Washington, but in Virginia, the loss is amounting above $2,000,000. Harper's Ferry, famed for its connection with John Brown's raid, is depopulated because the flood waters have taken possession of it.

Declares Greeleys Are Outdone Today

Lee White Says Journalism Is at Best Right Now

(By the Associated Press) CHICAGO, May 21.—The present is the highest point in the history of journalism thus far, and the famed period of "the Greeleys and Danas was the lowest," according to Lee White, publisher of the Detroit (Michigan) News. Yet the peak has not been reached and the curve will go still higher, he told the Inland Daily Press Association at the close of its May meeting here today.

"The publisher, who thinks the system is exactly right, that God is in his heaven and all's right with the world, that nothing remains to be done, is far from the truth. With illiteracy increasing, our responsibilities are great.

"Compare the newspapers of today with those of the period of Greeley and Dana. Observe the business the editors of that day engaged in; note the contumely they hurled. The New York Transcript one Sunday in 1836 had 34 columns, devoting fifteen of them to a murder and the other nineteen to advertising. What newspaper today has a ratio like that?"

"When a layman says 'I wish I owned a paper,' he is impertinent enough to ask him why. It will not be because of a disinterested, unobtrusive passion to discover truth. It will probably be to club somebody or to advance some personal ambition. What would the newspapers be if they were run as these laymen would run them?"

"They tell us we print mistakes. Nobody knows it better than we; it breaks the hearts of our editors. Yet what are our errors compared with those of historians? When the Pilgrims stepped on Plymouth Rock, it was two fathoms under water."

"I once started a campaign against typographical errors in my paper, thinking they were too plentiful. I counted up the words in an inch of reading matter and found that there was one mistake to more than 3,000 opportunities for mistakes. Improve your typographical accuracy, but say a good word for the boys in the proof room."

Nick Carter Shaded By Witnesses For Daugherty Probers

Gaston Means and Mary Duckstein Testify

Wide Espionage System Described by U.S. Secret Service

(By the Associated Press) WASHINGTON, May 21.—A detective story of extraordinary qualities was related today before the senate Daugherty committee.

A purported explanation of the mysterious disappearance of the spy records of Gaston B. Means, the committee's most noted informant, which attracted attention some weeks ago, came as an incident to the account of "shadows" set by the department of justice, to follow Means by day and night.

From the same witness, Mrs. W. O. Duckstein, once stenographer to Jess W. Smith and now secret service operative of the department of justice and her husband, a confidential agent to E. B. McLean, Washington publisher, the committee heard allegations also that a system of espionage had been hung around the committee itself.

Two agents of the department of justice, who participated in the enterprise of shadowing Means, said they had been on the assignment, with four assistants, from March 18 to April 1. The detective sat and grinned as R. J. Burns and Mrs. Alaska B. Davidson of the "Shadow" group, testified to having followed him and checked his visiting list. He became grimmer a few minutes later, when he heard the Duckstein family tell how Pettit and O'Brien, two New York detectives, leading "a crew of operatives and wire tappers," got away with his day-by-day diaries of spy work.

Duckstein related that he heard the two operatives tell of plans to "frame-up" Senator Wheeler and Chairman Brookhart of the Daugherty committee; of investigations set on foot in their home states; of the employment of women in the senate office building and of their attendance on the hearings.

Must Find Causes To Cure Cancers

Finding of Microbe To Light Way to Cures, Mayo Declares

(By the Associated Press) NEW YORK, May 21.—Cancer is not considered contagious, but if scientists eventually discover that a microbe transmits the disease a way will be open for its treatment and control, Dr. Charles H. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., set forth today in a telegram to Dr. George A. Hoper, managing director of the American Society for the Control of Cancer.

Dr. Mayo said his message was prompted by "somewhat exaggerated" reports of an address at Fairbault, Minn., last week, when news dispatches quoted him as having said that within a short time cancer would be considered contagious.

"There are several causes which contribute to the development of cancer," said his telegram today. "Microbe infection possibly is one of them. Chronic injury or irritation is a long recognized cause and may give opportunity for infection."

"While cancer should not be considered contagious, if a microbe eventually is found to be the cause of the disease it will permit control of a considerable percentage of the cases and give opportunity for the development of a rational form of treatment."

Medical Building Plans For Six Units Complete; May Start Work in Fall

Green Cap Rule Continues in Fall

Hawk-Guys Petition Charter From Pi Epsilon Pi

The Green Cap tradition will continue on Iowa's campus next fall, according to J. Howard Sheldon, president of the Hawk-Guys, newly organized pep organization. The situation was discussed last evening at a regular meeting of the club and a committee was appointed to carry out all the details. The committee consists of Bruce Potter A3 of Harlan, chairman; Harry Boyson A3 of Harlan, and Wayne Tias A3 of Mason City.

The present plans of the committee are to have every fresh "dome" graced with an "emerald turban" from the first day of school until some time late in the fall, when they will be discarded for the old gold toques so popular last season. The committee plans to have a "cap day" as other schools have, at which time the green caps will be burned in a big bonfire along with a general celebration, the details of which will be worked out later. The style of caps to be worn also lies within the discretion of the committee in charge and will be decided upon in plenty of time to have the caps on hand for the freshmen next fall. Whether or not they will be patterned after this season's cap is another matter that will be worked out.

The committee plan to invent a new means of enforcing the "wearing of the green," probably by inflicting some penalty upon anyone attempting to dodge the precedent. No doubt the fraternities will be asked to co-operate with the club in establishing the "Green Cap" on our campus as a hard and fast tradition. In years past the matter has been under the supervision of the student council and has been left pretty much to the discretion of the individual fraternities whether or not their freshmen should wear the cap.

Robert Chaffee A2 of Iowa City was elected by the club as delegate to the national convention of Pi Epsilon Pi, a national fraternity of pep organizations, to be held at the Hotel Baltimore, Kansas City, Mo., on June 7. Pi Epsilon Pi already has chapters established at Nebraska, Missouri, Washington College, Kansas, Kansas Aggies and Oklahoma. The Hawk-Guy club is now petitioning for a charter from the national organization and whether it will be granted will probably be decided upon at the convention June 7. The local club was invited to send a delegate to Kansas City by the national secretary of Pi Epsilon Pi, Gus Rau Jr. of Lawrence, Kansas.

West of the laboratories will be a six-story general hospital and isolation hospital in one large building. There will be 700 beds in the ward wings. This building will likewise be an oblong shape and will inclose two large open courts, one to be formed into a large garden and the other to contain a large lawn and a paved court, such that ambulances and trucks with supplies may drive into the court. The basement will also have a paved court for the reception of provisions and supplies. The storage rooms for drugs and food, and the kitchen, will be located in the basement. Dumb waiters will carry the prepared food to the center of the various wards so that the number of steps that the ward nurse will have to take will be reduced to the minimum. The basement will contain refrigerators for vegetables and meats with such arrangement that they both open up to the cook's desk, thus saving time and steps of employees. The operating rooms will be on the fifth and sixth floors.

The convalescent hospital of the new unit will be situated just west of the present psychopathic hospital. The purpose of this building will be to house patients who should be kept under observation, but whose cases are not sufficiently acute to require a bed in the main hospital. This will relieve the congestion of the general hospital, and at the same time supply care for the patients.

West and north of the convalescent hospital there will be a building which will be used for the care of venereal diseases. The fifth building of the new medical unit will be another nurses' home, which the present plans locate just south of the present home.

In discussing his work here, Dr. Parnall commented on the fine spirit of co-operation in the medical faculty, which, as he says, means a great deal in the teaching of medicine in the University of Iowa.

Parnall is consultant on the plans for the new medical unit

MEDIAEVAL EDUCATION

ALTHOUGH we may look askance at the Middle Ages for many things, we must at least envy them for their low cost of education. According to the expense account of a certain Medieval student which is published in Albert Mansbridge's book, "The Older Universities of England," $12.20 was sufficient to carry him through a school year of thirty-eight weeks at Oxford university. Undoubtedly this was a frugal student, but even allowing a little more, say an addition of 100 per cent for the frivolities of college life, he could get through very reasonably to say the least. Imagine starting out on a college course with $50, and having enough money to carry one through the four years with the tidy sum of $120 left at the end. With corresponding prices, this ought to be a sufficient sum to set a student up in some sort of business, or to give him a pleasant summer's outing before he had to settle down to work.

We might well envy this Medieval student his board at twenty-one cents a week and his room at five cents, but there are other things in his favor too. For one thing we might envy his comprehensive education. In those days it was possible for one student to read practically all the world's literature and to become learned in nearly every branch of human knowledge. Today we must be content with taking a peep at only a narrow field of learning. And then again, the Medieval student had a great advantage over us in the attitude that he took toward his education. Now we study only as a means to an end, that we may be better equipped to take our place in this complex world of today. But in the Medieval age, when only the privileged few were given an education, there was a tendency to regard knowledge as a power and value in itself, and to joy in its pursuit.

CANOE CAUTION

(New York Tribune)

On a small stream on a calm day anybody but a boat rocker is safe enough in a canoe. But on a wide expanse of water and in squally weather experts alone are competent to use the ticklish little craft, and they are just the persons who are particularly cautious. The ocean, of course, is no place for canoeists of little skill; lakes are treacherous and good-sized rivers almost equally so on a gusty day. Three lives were lost on Sunday when a canoe was blown over in the North River. On the Housatonic two Yale students drowned trying to rescue boys in a similar accident.

Real acquaintance with a dangerous implement increases respect for it; familiarity is far from breeding contempt. The guides of the lake region of Maine, wonderful artists with the paddle, take no unnecessary chances. They will pole a canoe up through swift rapids nonchalantly enough, but they dislike extremely to paddle out in midlake three or four miles from shore, with the possibility of a thunderstorm at short notice tumbling off Mount Katahdin. City "sports," as the guides call them, will do so with abandon. A guide was watching a couple of tenderfeet tossing among the whitecaps in the middle of Millinocket. "Them sports," he grunted, "know as much about a canoe as a moose does about God."

Those who are not strong swimmers had better stick to a rowboat, or, if they venture forth in a canoe, hug the shore pretty closely. The pleasure of paddling does not consist in the traversing of windswept open spaces and there is nothing ignominious in taking the same precautions as do the hard-headed woodsmen who know everything about a canoe.

TRANQUIL FIRST NIGHTS

Apprehensive playgoers who thought they might stumble into a riot at the first production of Eugene O'Neill's play of negro life, "All God's Chillun' Got Wings," at the Provincetown Playhouse the other night learned that the attitude of the public has changed since the days of the Forrest-Macready riots in Astor Place. Even with such a frank study of racial questions as the marriage of a negro and a white woman as its theme, the new drama failed to awaken any resentment in the audience. Those who hoped that at least a repetition of the storm that broke about the heads of the actors in "The Playboy of the Western World" might figure in their experience that night were disappointed.

New Yorkers do not take their actors so seriously as they did when the rivalry between two famous representatives of the American and British stages in those earlier days of our artistic history caused bloodshed and death. They are not even likely to become so excited over their dramas as theatergoers of other nations. Ever since Theophile Gautier in a scarlet waistcoat led the insurgents at the first performance of Victor Hugo's "Hernani," Parisians have dearly loved a premiere which included a new drama plus. Only the other night they were having the same kind of pleasure out of "The Soldier Under the Arc de Triomphe" in the same theater which reechoed to the applause or hisses evoked by every line of "Hernani." The post war drama of Germany has more than once turned audiences into gatherings interested in the polemics of a play or its ethical relations rather than its merely dramatic qualities.

The last riotous outbreak in a New York playhouse which interrupted the progress of "The Playboy of the Western World" was the protest of his countrymen against an Irish author. Actors from Dublin were appearing in an Irish play. Irish enemies and sympathizers fanned the flickering flame of protest and approval, and Irish policemen removed the offenders to the presence of Irish magistrates. However indignant the note of protest may have been on this first night, it was scarcely American.

So Eugene O'Neill's play was viewed altogether on its merits by the first gathering on its merits by the first gathering to witness it in the interesting experimental theater in Macdougall Street. The shallow indignation aroused by its publication in the American Mercury had died down before the drama reached the stage. Thus it was possible for the piece to be performed in such tranquility as enabled the spectators to pass judgment on "All God's Chillun' Got Wings" just as if there had not been a little hurricane of excited talk about it already, which fortunately died down so long ago that not even a trace of indignation could again be counterfeited.

... Fact and Fancy ...

POETRY

You ask, What is a poem?
I question, and my heart replies,—
Today a note of grief, a cry of woe,
While yesterday a piece of vibrant life;
Then from past time come voices
Singing of hope, though some in minor tones.
Tomorrow will be a new song,
Triumphant, mounting to the heavens,
Inspired by you.
—Laurance Williams

STARTLING denouements are in order these days when the neophytish short story writers labor late in hope of passing English (102).

SHORT stories ground out at the rate of one per evening can naught but be considered unique contributions to literature.

IT would seem that the nervous energy required to knock them out at such a rate could be exceeded only by the nervous fervor of the instructor when he reads them.

YESTERDAY we were permitted to read one of these masterpieces in which the heroine, a scandalized country girl who has gone to the great city on an ill omened mission, is shown standing at her hotel window gazing at the sky scrapers.

THEN came the denouement. Having nothing else to do she opened the door and walked out into the night of the city.

HAPPY is the life of the artist. Unhindered by the practical exigencies of life he finds that when faced by actual necessity he can become as prolific as the most confident "B" plus.

BUT our sympathy goes out to the young man who started his story last March and after deciding to give it a happy ending quarreled with his sweetheart and decided to give it up. He will not write a sad story and he cannot write a happy one. His only recourse, poor fellow, is to run his central character into a dilemma from which it would be impossible to extricate either by tenderness or violence.

WE have read Arlie Gelston (assigned you know), with a bad taste in our mouth to our Voltaire and our de Gourmont. We are thinking of taking up residence in France. There, where the science of introspection is more widely disseminated among the populace, there would be no excuse, we hope, for books like "Arlie Gelston."

ROGER SERGEL, by the way, has a story in the first issue of "Phantasmus," a new publication emanating from Pittsburgh.

WE have received a review copy of "The New Candidate" by John Courson. In the reincarnation Candidate becomes the son of a Chicago pork packer. Pangloss who still holds that this is "the best of all possible worlds" is a bootlegger. A charming volume.

"AUTUMN"

by Robert Nathan

Reviewed by Floy Davis

Reading a book is very like exploring a new trail. The trails of well-known authors are broad and clearly blazed, and previous travel on others of their making has dulled the edge of expectation, but the narrow path made by a comparatively obscure author is both a promise and a lure. Robert Nathan's name is sufficiently little known and his craftsmanship sufficiently great to make the trail he has blazed in "Autumn" a new and very pleasant one to travel.

"Autumn" is well named. It has the serenity of hills blued with haze. Its beautifully phrased descriptions glow with the colors of Autumn woods. And through it too, runs a stilled brooding sense of life's cruelty in giving eager young souls so much less than they dream for, not unlike the sense of loss that makes poignant the passing of perfect Indian Summer days.

Money Sent to Willis Nutting Pressed Into Service in Athens

For lack of a nail, a kingdom was lost!

But the kingdom wasn't lost! Late in January, 1924, a letter was sent from Willis Nutting, Iowa '21, to his father, Prof. C. C. Nutting, head of the University zoology department, in which an impassioned appeal was made for money, to be applied to the suffering, starving refugees who infested the streets of Athens.

Two, three weeks later a $675 total from Iowa City, of which $155 was the generous contribution of local Greeks, reached the relief station in Athens at which Mr. Nutting was stationed. Forthwith it was along with 350 other dollars, applied to the Near East kingdom of lost souls and it fed, and clothed, and saved them all. A detailed account of how this money was spent was included in a letter recently received from Willis Nutting, written after he had returned to England to resume his studies there as a Rhodes scholar from Iowa.

The first $300 saw service in a Turkish prison camp, releasing them with a foreman to teach them their trades. These men, thin and emaciated, were allowed to work only as they were able, were given a good meal, and after being paid 25 drachmas (a drachma equals about two cents in American coins) a day, were placed in real jobs as soon as they were able.

"142 returned prisoners," writes Mr. Nutting, "passed through our hands of these, 120 were placed in jobs in Athens, and 15 are still working with us. $80.00 of the total sum helped to straighten out the tangle which followed an 'exchange of population,' a plan by which Turks were shipped to Turkey, and Greeks transferred to Greece. Many of the destitute Greeks, speaking only Turkish, were forced to bribe the Turks, to be allowed to leave, and after being robbed of their belongings, reached Athens, with only a vestige of clothing to take up their life again.

Part of the money was used to set these people up in business. 350 drachmas were spent at Salonica, distributed about the camps, and placed so as to aid the neediest.

nor sordid. There is no attempt at gruesome detail. There is little personal description. There are only faint traces of psychological analysis. Instead, there is an attitude of serene observation, half wistful, half humorous, with a mellowness to which the pungency of occasional comments gives a faint tang, as in the old schoolmaster's saying of his pupils, "I have taught them to read the works of celebrated man, and to cheat each other with plus and minus," or "Some children were taken out of classes early and added, like another pig, to the farms."

If Nathan is expressing a philosophy in "Autumn," it would appear to be that life should be faced with philosophical calm. This attitude of serenity and passive acceptance does not make for vigorous and unforgettable characters—his people do not do things; things happen to them. Neither does it make for great writing—it dwarts the emotions that underlie every great work of art. But it does make for beauty of a quiet, minor type. The rhythmic weaving style of the descriptive passages, the feeling for color and nature, the serenity of the author's mood give at times the illusion that "Autumn" is the title of a painting rather than of a book. And one should not forget that, although it might have been in the dullest of drabs, it is in the colors of autumn.

Every College Has Women Enrolled

First of Iowa Women Engineers Graduates In June

That women play some part in professional life is shown by the fact that every professional college on the campus has some women representatives. The college of medicine has seven girls enrolled; none of them, however, to graduate this spring. The college of law has five women students, two of them seniors. Mrs. Lois Garret Griffen of Sioux City will graduate this spring, while Buelah Wheeler of Marshalltown, the only colored woman student to be enrolled in a professional college, will graduate at the end of the summer session.

woman representative, Leonora Boehach, of Iowa City, who will graduate this spring. She will be the only woman to have graduated from that college since its existence in Iowa City. The college of commerce has twenty-one women students who are working for their bachelor of science degree in commerce, and ten of these will graduate in June, while the college of pharmacy can count twelve of the fairer sex.

The college of dentistry boasts one woman student, Lily Zecha D2 from the island of Java.

To Bob—or Not to Bob?

DEANS of great universities, leading hair-dressers, health authorities, screen and stage actresses express their views on this tantalizing question that is causing the greatest discussion American women have ever engaged in. One woman says the bob is barbaric. A noted hair-dresser fears bobbing will bring bald heads. Others defend it vigorously, while some call it the greatest boon ever conferred upon the fair sex. Their remarks, pro and con, reveal an amazing division of opinion in the first nationwide survey of this important subject.

W.A.A. Holds First Annual Banquet at Youde's Yesterday

Award I Sweaters to Seven Most Skilled Women Athletes

Seventy-five women attended the first annual W. A. A. banquet which was held last night at Youde's Inn.

Probably the most interesting event of the evening was the presentation of the "I" sweaters to seven of the most outstanding athletes in W. A. A. Josephine Buis A3 of Des Moines received the first sweater.

Gladya Brooker has the distinction of winning her "I" sweater in two years, a very unusual honor. She has been very prominent in swimming, and has played tennis, basketball, field ball, soccer and baseball.

A great tribute was paid to Helen Spencer A4 of Des Moines when she received her second "I" sweater, having received the first at the end of her sophomore year.

The seniors in W. A. A. were each presented with a picture of the women's gymnasium as a very slight token of the good work that they have done during their four years of work in the organization.

Those who received numerals were: Lillie Anderson, baseball; Virginia Green, swimming; Fern Stigwell, baseball; Blanche Bailey, baseball; Clara Larson, basketball; Mary Gore, baseball; and Eleanor Chase, swimming, 1923.

The toast program which was given at the first of the program was as follows: "W. A. A. as It Used to Be," Mrs. W. H. Bates, the first head of the women's physical education department at Iowa; "W. A. A. Today," by Mrs. Marian L. Schwob, acting head of the department at present.

The banquet ended with a very brief business meeting when it was voted to give W. A. A. points to women who won places for Iowa in the telegraphic track meet.

Stars, which are given by W. A. A. to the captains of all teams, were then awarded. The three baseball captains honored were Fern Stigwell, Mable Franklin and Esther Flynn.

Following the presentation of awards was the initiation of new members. These were Ruth Brechert, Genevieve Sinnott, Bernice Frazer, Emma Doornink, Shirley Kliney, Alice Timmerman, Clara Larson and Helen Homansmith.

Elaborate Braid Trimming Gives Unique Touch

By MME. LISBETH

The distinctive trimming note of the illustration is the use of braided trimming on a crepe de chine overblouse in place of the usual embroidery.

A clever sports hat also trims with the braiding in the same colors would be appropriate. This idea carries out the one-color idea that is so prevalent.

Knitted frocks and suits are very well liked and have really spoiled women for the more stuffy tailors' costumes.

Work on 'You and I' Coming to Close

Helen Langworthy Is Directing Final Play of Year

"After marriage it's 'You and I' with the 'You' first every time," Matey tells his young son who intends to give up his career as an architect in order to marry the girl he loves.

"You and I" which is one of the cleverest comedies which the present day theatre has produced, is the work of a young Harvard student, whose work has been compared to that of the other Barrie whose plays have been so well loved by American audiences.

The problems of "You and I" hold attention even while one laughs at Rick's free young slang or Etta's amusing attempts to become a "de luxe" lady.

The play is under the direction of Miss Helen Langworthy of the speech department. With its presentation as the commencement production the University Theatre officially closes its season for 1923-24.

The cast of the play follows: Maitland White—Gordon Johnston A3 of Des Moines.

Roderick White—Paul Foley A2 of Corwith.

Geoffrey Nichols—Harvey Carter A3 of Shell Rock.

G. T. Warren—Merwyn Eaton A2 of Strawberry Point.

THE PANATHENAEA

Reviewed by Charles H. Weller

The Athena literary society has conceived a very clever idea in its annual Panathenea, and its fourth celebration of Tuesday afternoon on Old Capitol oval was admirably conducted.

While Old Capitol oval is an excellent place for the performance, its extent is rather too great. Possibly it might be a good plan to seat the south half of it with camp chairs and hold the program in the northern half, with Old Capitol as a background.

The first criticism of the dances might be that they moved somewhat too slowly, perhaps more slowly than last year.

On the whole, the Panathenea were and are a most creditable performance. It would be a distinct loss to the University if the practice should not be kept up.

Featured by close balloting at the final meeting of the society Tuesday evening, Erodolphian Literary society elected the following officers.

President, Heen Starbuck A3 of Iowa City; vice-president, Helen Wylie A3 of Iowa City; corresponding secretary, Viola Lake A3 of Iowa City; recording secretary, Blanche Wylie A3 of Meridian, Idaho.

The officers elected at the meeting will assume office next fall, and will replace the officials who have been in charge of the society for the past semester.

A summary of this sort may serve as commentary upon the program which the Panathenea of the Athena literary society puts forth.

Blanket Frivol Hits Funny Spot

Enormous Sale Shows Student Interest in Last Issue

Judging by the enormous sale of the Blanket issue of Frivol and the wealth of appreciation shown by the student body for the contents, Frivol's last appearance for the school year of 1923-24 was attended by complete success.

Knobs of students on the campus and in the various habitats where students congregate were enraptured yesterday by the gaily-covered Blanket Frivol.

The editor-in-chief, Ward Mayer A3 of Waterloo, contemplates making this year's program a regular part of next year's program.

"Our plans for next year," he said, "include a policy which will insure that all issues to come will be as good or better than the issue just published."

Edward L. Vollers A4 of Fort Madison, business manager of Frivol, also re-elected for next year's similar position on Frivol, said that he was highly gratified with the response the student body had made to the Blanket issue.

Spectacular Playing Marks Hawkeye's Victory Over Meiji University; Score 8 to 2

Tokio Team Shows Plenty of Speed But Hawks Outhit

Sahs and Scanlon Star; Nidegawa Applauded in Iowa's Sixth

Fighting and playing a clean brand of baseball all through the game on Iowa Field yesterday, the Meiji University team of Tokio, Japan, went down to a defeat when the Iowa nine displayed better work with the bat. The score was 8 to 2.

Yesterday was a day of spectacular playing. Scanlon got his long wanted opportunity to play first base and the way he performed with the bat and in the field won the applause of the scattering attendance many times. "Scan" is one of those first class baseball players that fields the ball with little or no effort. Several times yesterday he moved away from the bag to get out the feet-footed Japan runner. Sahs patrolled right field after the first inning, when M. Barrett was sent to the showers. The change proved to be very well done. In the fourth inning when his mean runs, Sahs ran up on a low hit fly and caught it at the ankles to retire the side. With the club he pulled a double and a single to help sweeten the team's batting average.

If the eight hundred and thirteen spectators should hope to live a thousand years it is doubtless that they will ever see again a more thrilling play than the one Captain Nidegawa performed in Iowa's sixth. After King has gone to second on a single and a wild pitch, and after Flynn had struck out, Hicks hit what looked like a sure single, but the wonderful little Meiji right fielder would not let it be and as the result he made a jump for the ball, turned completely over, and came up with it in the glove. He then threw to second to double King who was too surprised to return after going to within a few feet of the home plate.

In the sixth when the Tokio team was hitting rather consecutively Scanlon took part in Iowa's only double play. After Nidegawa had scored on Yokozawa's single, and Baimon had singled Yokozawa to third, Hayashi hit sharply to Scanlon, to touch him out, and then a quick throw to B. Barrett caught the runner by a second at the plate.

"Mutt" Barrett takes his hat off to the Meiji players when it comes to stealing bases, five men going to second and three were safe before his throw would reach its destination. Off like a shot, Hayashi took the honors by stealing around to third in the second inning. Jimmie Laude, who has been playing in left field, stole two and King one.

Jay Gould's Reign Outlasts All Others

By NORMAN E. BROWN

The records of games in which skill of hand, speed of body and perfect coordination of muscles are, prime requisites to victory, boast of no other champion who has reigned as long as Jay Gould, champion court tennis player.

Chess kings have exceeded his reign of nineteen years as America's greatest court player, but no one who must depend upon physical fitness and the dash and pep that usually go with youth have ever equaled it.

Gould showed that after this record reign he is still champion when he won the Bathurst cup, emblematic of the international court tennis title, at London recently.

Gould defeated E. M. Baerlebs, British champ, in three straight sets. Has Lost But One Set

That Gould would turn back his rival in straight sets was not unexpected. For, according to the records at hand, Gould has lost but one set to an amateur player in his 19 years as king.

The average sport fan may not be familiar with the fine points of the court net game, but it must be apparent to anyone that a man who can turn back every opponent but one without giving him the satisfaction of winning even one set of a match must be master of the game.

Gould won his first national title in 1905, at the age of 19. His victory that year was not unexpected. He had been giving exhibitions of his skill for several years. At the age of 12, when he seemed little larger than the racket he wielded, he was playing a game worthy of an adult expert.

Having won the national title, Gould that same year trooped over to England and won the world's amateur title in London.

Then, carrying on, he won the world's open title.

This title Gould held until after the war, when he defaulted to George Covey of England, being unable to make the trip across the Atlantic to defend his crown. Ohio Nine Blasts Illini Title Hopes BUCKEYES TROUNCE URBANA TEAM BY HEAVY SLUGGING (By the Associated Press) URBANA, Ill., May 21.—Jack Walther, slugging Buckeye first baseman, knocked out two homers today and drove in two more runs, Ohio State blighting Illinois' hopes of a Big Ten baseball championship. The Buckeyes won, 8 to 2. Roettger and Barta of Illinois also clouted out home runs, all with the bases empty.

Illinois lost the game in the third when four straight singles and three Illini errors sent Kinderman, who started pitching, to the showers, and gave Ohio State five runs. Walther had already made his first home run the inning before.

Barta took Kinderman's place and with the help of some pretty fielding by his teammates, held the Buckeyes scoreless until the eighth, when O'Conner's error on Klee's fly gave Ohio one run and Walther made his second four-bagger. Workman was steady in the pinches, Illinois having eight men left on bases. Score:

Conferees Agree On Tax Bill

Senate to Act Bill Friday House Saturday

(By the Associated Press) WASHINGTON, May 21.—The conferees on the tax bill endorsed both parties and voted in the senate on Monday. The bill is expected to be passed into final form by the end of the week. Early approval of the agreement of the conferees between the senate and the house reached today. The conferees reported to the senate on Monday and, if approved, the house will act Saturday. The senate is expected to be in session on Monday and there were indications that virtually no opposition would be offered. The conferees agreed to change the democratic schedule proposed in the senate. Senator Simmons, of Iowa, but turned down amendments gainers and republicans, providing for a tax return and a portion tax carrying undistributed profits. The Simmons amendment similar to the Longway amendment supported by the senate in its adoption provides for a revision of the tax laws with a maximum rate applicable on income over and over. It would cut the present rate of 33 percent to 25 percent.

Conferees Agree On Tax Bill Cuts

Senate to Act on New Bill Friday and House Saturday

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 21—A tax reduction bill endorsed by leaders of both parties and virtually every faction in the senate and house, was passed into final shape today.

Early approval of the unanimous agreement of the conferees on the differences between the senate and house reached today by both branches of congress, was predicted, and the hope was expressed by republican leaders that the bill would be signed by President Coolidge.

The conference report will be taken by the senate tomorrow or Friday and, if approved, it is said, the house will act Saturday. Little time is expected to be taken in debate and there were indications tonight that virtually no opposition would be offered.

The conference accepted without change the democratic income tax schedule proposed in the senate by Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, but turned down the other major amendments gained by senate democrats and republican insurgents, providing for full publicity on tax returns and a substitute corporation tax carrying a surtax on undistributed profits.

The Simmons income schedule, similar to the Longworth compromise supported by house republicans in its adoption by this body, provides for a revision of the surtax rates with a maximum of forty per cent applicable on incomes of $500,000 and over.

It would cut the present normal rates of four per cent on incomes up to $4,000 and eight per cent above that amount to two per cent on incomes of $4,000 and under; four per cent on incomes between $4,000 and $8,000, and six per cent on those above.

While the surtax rates are somewhat lower than first proposed by house democrats, the entire schedule varies greatly from the scheme advanced by Secretary Mellon and asked for by President Coolidge.

"Campaign Funds" Cause Hot Debate

Senate Sees Bitter Democratic Attack on G.O.P. Funds

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 21—Campaign contributions, with particular reference to methods of a "Calvin Coolidge" club in Massachusetts, were subjected to a heated debate in the senate late today with Senator Lodge, republican, Massachusetts, the center of an attack from the democratic side.

The discussion was precipitated by a resolution offered by Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, asking action by the senate committee on privileges and elections in the direction of legislation which would provide a correct practice law applicable to the election of senators.

He presented correspondence from Mayor Curley of Boston protesting against methods which it was alleged had been taken by republican "Calvin Coolidge" clubs in that state to raise campaign funds.

Resenting the language used by Mayor Curley, Senator Lodge said the letter "consists chiefly of a very violent and personal attack on the chairman of the republican national committee, Mr. Butler, and on the president of the United States, who are not involved at all in this movement to raise campaign funds."

Mayor Curley's letter, Senator Walsh asserted, disclosed that attempts are being made to organize all business interests in Massachusetts to raise a very large campaign fund.

Effort To Report Ford Shoals Offer Defeated, 10 to 6

Wall Street Briefs

NEW YORK, May 21—(AP)—With "Nickel Plate" and Chesapeake & Ohio common stock selling at about the same price, stock market observers were led to believe that the long waited proposal of the "Nickel Plate," for its consolidation of the C. & O. on a share for share basis was not far away.

Both railroads are controlled by the Van Sweringen interests. Net income of $18,987,947 for 1923 was reported today by the Great Northern railway company, one of the few great railway systems of the country that has never been reorganized.

Steady accumulation of Pere Marquette shares led to reports that it might prove to be for the account of Michigan Central, thereby placing the road in the New York Central family.

Traders are at sea regarding the oils because of what they term evidences within the industry regarding a difference of opinion among important producers regarding prices. The Humble Oil company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil of New Jersey, has restored a cut of 25 cents a barrel in the Southwest because, it is understood, the Prairie Oil & Gas company, another Standard Oil unit, refused to follow that cut. On the other hand the Atlantic Oil producing company has just announced a cut in the price of Smackover Oil in Louisiana.

Settling Tax Bill Benefits Market

Industrials and Rails Show Advances of 1 to 2 Points

Wall Street Summary

Table with 3 columns: Date, 20 Indus., 20 R.R. & Roads. Rows: Wednesday, Tuesday, Week ago, High 1924, Low 1924.

NEW YORK, May 21—With the bonus bill definitely disposed of, today's stock market began to devote its attention to the tax measure, prices making favorable response to reports that the senate and house conferees had decided to accept the house tax of 12 1/2 per cent on and that the publicity feature had been eliminated.

Net gains in the active industrial and railroad issues ranged from 1 to 2 points.

Some irregularity developed at the opening but before long many short traders apparently became convinced that yesterday's market had been "oversold," and began to cover some of their commitments. Meanwhile, independent strength developed in Chesapeake & Ohio and "Nickel Plate," which touched new 1924 highs on buying attributed to the belief that a consolidation of the Van Sweringen stocks was imminent.

U. S. Steel Closes at 97

The buying movement continued despite publication of rather pessimistic weekly steel trade reviews and a successful bear drive on the rubber shares.

U. S. Steel common closed more than a point higher at 97; Baldwin advanced nearly 2 points to 107 1/4 and American Can closed two points higher.

Strength in the railroad shares was one of the outstanding features of the day's trading, which totalled approximately 650,000 shares. Delaware & Hudson advanced 4 1/2 points to 114 and then slipped back to 113. St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island and several others advanced a point or more.

Bonus Drag Offset

Call money held at 3 per cent.

Favorable developments in tax legislation and the bulwark of easy money today offset the effects of the bonus enactment on bond trading and prices registered moderate improvements. Investment buying, however, was turned again from the liberty bond list into high grade railroad securities and foreign obligations.

Declares Students Favor Prohibition

Dry Forces Make Bitter Attack on Changes for 2.75 Beer

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Opponents of modification of the Volstead act to permit 2.75 per cent of alcoholic contents in beverages made a general attack on pending bills which would provide for such a change in the act at concluding hearings today of the house judiciary committee on the question.

Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon league, led off in the attack as that "prohibition enforcement is a failure."

Declaring that the overwhelming majority of American students are heartily in favor of the prohibition law as it now stands and opposed to any modification, Harry W. Warner, general secretary of the intercollegiate prohibition association, said the time is not ripe for modification as it has not had a real test. Such drinking as exists is "spectacular and exceptional and done in the spirit of adventure," he said, adding that habitual drinking in colleges does not exist.

Representative O'Sullivan, democrat, Connecticut, developed by questioning the witness, that straw votes in Harvard, Yale and Clark resulted in a majority for modification, but Mr. Warner explained that this was confined to "east of and near the Hudson river, and to the newer classes."

Methodists Limit Terms of District Heads to 6 Years

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 21—(AP)—The limitation of the tenure of district superintendents was recommended to the Methodist Episcopal general conference today by the standing committee on the itinerancy by a vote of 87 to 32.

The committee recommended that the terms be limited "to six years in any one district, and not more than six years in one consecutive twelve in the same conference area."

The election of bishops was the cause of a special session of the general conference late this afternoon. There the result of the second ballot, taken this morning was announced, the first ballot man the necessary two-thirds vote for election. Five new bishops must be chosen to fill existing vacancies. The second ballot was unsuccessful, it was announced. No one received the two-thirds vote necessary for election, and a third ballot was taken.
