'A Flower to Worship'

WOMAN'S place is in the home; women have no place in politics; women should mind their own business and let men attend to politics; woman is a flower for men to worship, and she should not spoil her beauty by mingling in his affairs; women have enough to do without bothering with politics; women have no business voting; women who are determined to run the world will ruin it in the long run; the troubles of today are caused by women departing from the ideals and traditions of yesterday.

Thus ran the arguments of the opponents to the nineteenth amendment. They were silenced and the amendment was added to our constitution. Today these arguments are being resurrected. They come from the mouths of non-voting women as a defense for their slack attitude.

When an investigation of the non-voters of Chicago was conducted recently, it was found that one-eighth of the women non-voters interviewed were anti-suffragists, and the above reasons were those given by this group for not taking an interest in the affairs of government.

Strange that woman, having won their battle for the ballot, should resort to the arguments of her opponents to explain her indifference to its use!

"A flower to worship,"—yes, but is not her beauty enhanced rather than spoiled by mingling in the affairs of men?

Conquest of the Air

THE front page of every newspaper the past few days has carried two news stories concerning the flight of dirigible balloons. There is the ZR-3, sweeping through the air over the heaving water of the Atlantic at a sixty mile an hour speed, and there is the Shenandoah, making its record-breaking circuit of the continent.

It has been the same throughout this year of 1924. There was the feat of the American Army fliers in circuiting the earth. There were globe-girdling flights undertaken by the English, the French, the Italians, and the flier from Argentine. Early this summer the United States established 24-hour mail service from coast to coast. Since that time, our mail has whirled through the air at a speed of over 100 miles an hour with the regularity of train service.

Not since the years of 1916-17-18 has such progress been made in the conquest of the air. In the early days of the war rival aviators went aloft in machines which were liable to come down because of mechanical failure, and took random shots at each other with shot guns. A single bird shot was almost enough to bring down these first war planes.

Not many weeks of the war went by before each side realized the value of airplanes. The best engineers in every country were put to the task of developing them. The result was that airplanes became terrible engines of destruction. They were perfected mechanically so that they could be fairly riddled with bullets and still fly, if a few vital parts were not damaged by the gun fire. It was during that period that the Germans did their great work with the dirigible balloon. The world was amazed when the Germans flew their great ships to Egypt, and the British and French were under constant terror of German air raiders.

For five years following the way the air conquest lagged. This year the work is being taken up. Now it is not to kill mankind, but to show that air navigation is safe.

A significant fact may be noted. In all of the seemingly hazardous undertakings of this year, no life has been lost. Some, attempting flights that would have seemed fanatical a few years ago, failed. There was trouble, and the machines were wrecked, but no lives were lost.

New Complications in China

SHANGHAI has surrendered. After a period of fighting lasting many weeks the city has had to give in. Shanghai is located in the province of Kiangsu but until now it has not been under the control of Tsuchun Chi, the governor of the province, but under the dominion of Tsuchun Lu of the neighboring province of Chekiang. The two governors have been fighting back and forth over possession of the city for some time, and nearly every day has brought a new angle to the situation so that it has been impossible to predict the victor.

About three weeks ago an order from Peking gave Tsuchun Chi control of Shanghai, but to be recognized as governor by the officials at Peking, and to be accepted as ruler among the forces in the south are two different things. If it had not been for General Sun of the Fukien forces, it is doubtful whether or not Shanghai would have surrendered.

The entrance of General Sun into the fight brings in new complications. Tsuchun Chi is now supposed to be governor of Shanghai, but it was through the combined efforts of himself and General Sun that the Chekiang forces surrendered control, and it is likely that the General is going to demand his share of the spoils. It also seems likely that the Chekiang forces favor General Sun more than Tsuchun Chi.

The foreign powers are almost alarmed at the latest developments. The United States has landed more marines to look after foreign settlements. Part of the alarm is due to the apparently inevitable fight between General Sun and Tsuchun Chi, and part to the general disorder in Shanghai at the present time.

While this has been going on in the south, Chang, the Manchurian war-lord of the north, has been continuing his advances on Peking. The French are especially concerned with developments here. They are afraid that the Russian-Japanese aid which is back of Chang will bring about victory for him and consequently end any French prospects of recovering pre-war investments.

Lovely Labors Lost

And now the column takes on a classical flavor. One reader who has read of the twelve labors of Hercules in Grecian mythology (Correct us, Vivian, if any of these allusions have gone astray) will be glad to know that we are now able to present their modern counterpart. Through the generosity and inspiration of our friend Al, we offer in serial form "The Twelve Labors of Alcazar." Al has sent us only two thus far, but we join our readers in awaiting the other ten with—coincidentally—feverish anxiety.

And so . . .

THE FIRST LABOR

The other day I was walking along And singing a little song When all of a sudden A feeling of loziness Overtook me, And killed the song Upon my lips. A sense of loziness Swept my being, And, with a furtive Glance around, I went behind a tree And fastened My collar.

—Alcazar.

SORROWS OF A SUPER-SENSITIVE SOUL

Banana! Ugh! Today in my walk I found a cabbage. It lay in the corner of the hedge. Cruel boys had chased it there with stones. It was dead when I lifted it up. Like my heart. (To be continued)

They led him out of his cell early that morning and down the short, stone-flagged corridor to the little room. It was the first time he had ever been in the death chamber. He looked about and noted its appurtenances, the small, barred window, and finally, the chair. As they strapped him in it he turned curiously to one of the guards.

"Does the prison generate its own electricity?" he asked.

FASHION NOTE FOR OUR GULLIBLE READER

In response to a number of inquiries from our readers as to when it is proper to wear a Tuxedo, we respectfully submit the following:

1. When you own a Tuxedo.
2. When the tailor is pressing your only suit, and your roommate's does not fit you.
3. When your roommate's Tuxedo fits you.
4. When you expect a rough party and you want to prevent people from throwing things.
5. Any other time that you want to hide among the waiters.

A disappointed lover always learns something. For example, it makes him realize he will probably be disappointed the next time.

HOW TO WRITE SHORT STORIES

Ring W. Lardner Gives Advice in the Art of Writing the Short Story; Draws Illustrations from Golf, Baseball, the Ring

Reviewed by Charles Brown Nelson

Some day, if Ring Lardner can forget that he was a good newspaper humorist, there will be collected a book of his best short stories. Probably in that volume will appear two or three tales from "How To Write Short Stories." Certainly no more will be considered really representative of the man and his work. One "A Caddy's Diary," it seems to me should survive so long as golf and human nature are the absorbing things they are.

It is of interest to turn back to the preface after finishing the book. Ring states, after six pages written in his most careless newspaper style, that the stories to follow will "illustrate in a half-hearted manner what I am trying to get at." Likewise in the preface notes to each story—the funniest things in the book—he dips his pen in the ink of ridicule, belittling his best and really serious work. In most instances, no apology is needed.

The people are base-ball players, song-writers, prize-fighters, and devotees of the golf-course. He writes of them all humanly and understandingly. Each class has a different vocabulary, and he exhibits each to the life. No Boston slang this—Ring would never be guilty of calling a nigger in the wood-pile an "Ethiopian in the Kindling!" And what is more, his people are people, with all their little peculiarities, and not mere hooks for a chain of popular slang.

Several of the stories are more or less overdrawn; "Champion," for instance, would have been a very fine picture had it been sketched in less glaring light. Perhaps "A Caddy's Diary" is the best of the lot, not excepting the rather less subtle discourse of the old man in "The Golden Honeymoon," which has been quite generally chosen. The ancient art of setting by with something forms the theme, the story being told by a caddy who hates himself for lying, but for his various bosses does it again and again. You will probably recognize this caddy and the subject of his adolescent worship, the lovable Mrs. Doane, who proved as weak and human as the rest. But you will realize that you had never quite known them all. The bank clerk embezzled $8,000, for a woman. The caddy moved Mrs. Doane's golf-ball out of a rut for a smile. Did they all sell their souls? wondered the caddy.

Ring Lardner has the understanding and sympathy to become a writer of greater moment than the altar ego who grinds out hit-and-miss slang by the mile for the newspapers. Beautiful irony is his at command, and he has the story sense of the born reporter. Let him stay behind the scenes for a while, studying, tolling, writing and rewriting, that some day he may come before his audience at the curtain-call with the honest knowledge of fine work well done.

Anatole France Revealed In Intimate View As Man of Wit

"I always write like a boy that has been made to write for punishment," was a favorite saying of Anatole France, whose death on October 12, after a long illness brought to an end one of the most brilliant careers in modern literature.

"My most precious tools are paste and scissors—not the pen. Are you surprised? Did you never have think that I am dictated to by angels from above and that I can produce a page or a whole chapter at one stroke? No, "inspiration" is something I have felt very rarely and "intoxication by work" never. It's hard for me to write."

An instance of Anatole France's meticulous care in pursuing details is given by M. Brousson, his secretary, in his memoirs of his work with the author. In his book on Jeanne d'Arc there was a beautiful phrase about the apples that grew in Jeanne's orchard. When he read the passage in the proof, Anatole France sighed regretfully, took his scissors, and cut out the phrase about the apples.

"I cannot leave it," he explained to the secretary. "At this very moment some old maniac in Rheims or in Nancy may be writing a monograph about the history of the Lorraine flora. As soon as my book appears, he will cry from the house tops that there could not have been a single apple-tree in the orchard of Jeanne d'Arc, but that there were only pears, cherries, and apricots; and he will support his claim by ten thousand documents! He will be able to cover my head with shame for time everlasting."

M. Brousson tells also of the author's habit of checking up his work by getting the reactions of plain working people to it. A girl who sold papers was quite certain that this talkative old man, who regularly chatted with her, wanted to ask her in marriage. One of the most brilliant of the author's pages is devoted to the idea that Tacitus' account of the atrocities of Tiberius on the Isle of Capri was a gross exaggeration—the idea being given him by his chambermaid who declared, "It might all have been thought up by the reporters. You are a journalist yourself, sir, so you ought to know that one can expect anything from those people."

In September, 1920, a statue was dedicated to him in Paris. In a witty speech delivered on the occasion, Anatole France said, "The priests, who are a subtle folk, know that confession is not an affliction, but a pleasure. And that is why, on the brink of immortality, I am going to bare my soul. . . . I have made judicious use of Voltaire. . . . I will not mention the others. I have read them all with rapture and have been able to adopt their sentiments to my century. I have even delved into these incoherent little plays that were being given in the small clandestine theatres of princes, and I have sometimes culled their sallies with the generosity of a rich man who adopts an abandoned child. Do not accuse me of borrowing my inspirations from others. Only the young imagine that thought still contains unexplored regions."

Freak of Nature Attracts Attention of Many People

Another Vesuvius has appeared. Just south of the men's gymnasium is a large coal pile with a deep crater from which issues smoke and steam. Changes in temperature and alternate rain and sun have caused this oddity. Begrimed workmen have been digging at this pile for the past week reducing it by taking coal to the University buildings in preparation for cooler days.

There has been at least ten car loads of coal here, and the constant demand of the buildings brings frequent new shipments.

Microphone Case Improves Reports From Iowa Field

Iowa's own broadcasting station, WHAA, has greatly improved its broadcasting of football games and other athletic events through the installation of a new microphone case which permits the tuning down of the noise from the bleachers to such an extent that the voice of the announcer can be heard.

Considerable difficulty along this line was experienced with the first game of the season but reports on broadcasting of the Iowa-Ohio game tend to show that generally the reception was excellent. Director Carl Menzer is working hard to get a system of amplifiers ready for the Homecoming game, so that all announcements can be given through them, but he states that as yet it is uncertain whether or not they will be ready.

Seals Club Makes Plans For Annual Selection of Members

Notices listing the necessary requirements will be found at the women's gymnasium.

Attendance at Special Teaching Classes High

Attendance at the Saturday teachers' classes this year, is an increase over last year's enrollment. Present registration is between 115 and 120 compared with that of 102 the year before.

Although registration is not yet complete, it is probable that those who were in the classes at the first session Saturday, include practically the entire enrollment.

The sizes of the classes run from three, in French to fifty-six in education, others averaging between those figures.

150 Workers Will Grease Y. W. Wheels

Four Teams Drive to Raise $3,700 Budget

Enthusiasm Runs High At Luncheon Tuesday

"The wheel that does the squeaking is the one that gets the grease" said Miss Estella Boot of the department of English at the luncheon for workers in the Y. W. C. A. finance drive yesterday noon. With this thought in mind 150 workers are out to see that the wheels of the Y. W. C. A. are well greased this year by the $3700 which is the goal of the drive held this week.

The spirit of the campaign was obvious by the enthusiasm manifest at the luncheon Tuesday noon which launched the campaign. Solicitors will meet each noon for lunch when reports will be made of the progress of the campaign and instructions for further solicitation will be given.

Featuring yesterday's meeting were short pep talks by Dean Adelaide Burge, Miss Estella Boot and Gail DeWolfe, G of Spencer. Judith Tornell, A4 of Pilot Mound, lead the group in singing original campaign songs composed for the drive. Vivian Conrad, A4 of Burlington, presided over yesterday's meeting and Dorothy Wilson A4 of Mason City will preside today.

The campaign to secure the necessary $3700 to cover the budget of the Y. W. C. A. for the coming year will extend through Friday, October 17. Four general teams are working under the leadership of Eleanor Chase, A2 of Clinton; Dorothy Burt, A2 of Waterloo; Alice Ralford, A3 of Iowa City; and Mrs. Phillip G. Clapp of the school of music. Marjorie Kay, A3 of Iowa City, is general chairman of the drive.

Henceforth Sip Y. W. Tea Wednesday, Not Thursday

Thursday is no longer Y. W. C. A. tea afternoon. As a concession to the busy people of the University, who find it difficult to spare time for both Y. W. C. A. teas and vesper services, the time of the tea has been changed to Wednesday afternoon immediately following the vespers. "Having Time for People" is the subject upon which Prof. H. N. Hart, of the sociology department, will speak at the vesper services this afternoon. Mildred Wood, A2 of Davenport, will sing and Esther Van Cleave, A4 of Iowa City, will conduct the devotional services.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The religious education department committee meeting will be held next Wednesday rather than today as was previously announced.

There will be an important called meeting of the Erodolphian literary society this afternoon at 5 o'clock in Ero hall. Every member is urged to be present.

There will be a meeting of the Newman club this evening at 7 o'clock in the K. C. hall.

Sousa's March Muse Refuses To Function In An Armchair

John Philip Sousa, the great bandmaster, who will play here October 21, has spared a few minutes from his busy life to tell a few interesting facts about the way in which he writes his compositions.

"I do not think I ever received the initial inspiration for a march except by marching," the famous bandmaster said recently. "Perhaps the inspiration came to me when I was at the head of a band, either during my days in charge of the United States Marine Band in Washington, or during the World War when I took charge of the musical activities at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. Perhaps it came during a one-man march in which I was the entire body of marchers around my home on Long Island, or through a park or along a secluded road when I was on tour. But always the idea for a march came when I was on my feet, marching. With my life at stake, I do not believe I could sit in a chair and write a march."

"Strangely enough this is the form of musical expression which I must write most on the strength of inspiration. Any other form I can work out from a given theme exactly as an essayist, for instance, develops his work from certain basic ideas. In my suites I have generally found that the initial inspiration is something I have seen or from something I have read. A case in point is my new suite, "Looking Upward."

"The first movement is entitled 'By the Light of the Polar Star' and I had the idea as I was riding to a train in South Dakota on a crisp, cold night. The second movement is entitled "Under the Southern Cross" and the inspiration came merely from seeing an advertisement concerning a steamship of that name. The final movement is "Mars and Venus" and the suggestion came casually, because I happened to observe those two heavenly bodies. In no cases was any music written down for several months. Last season I presented a suite 'At the King's Court' which represented things I once saw at Court during the reign of the King Edward VII. That suite was literally a piece of reporting in terms of music.

PARIS TROPHIES A WARDED IN NOVICE MEET STARTING TODAY

Expect Battle Between Phelps and Everingham

Letter Men Barred From Competition

Men who compete in the novice track meet starting today and continuing Thursday and Friday will have the first chances at the prizes brought from Paris by Coach Bresnahan. The meet will be a double header, one competition being for freshmen only and the other for upper classmen, from which "1" men and "1-2" men will be barred. The varsity and freshmen will compete in identical events, the varsity running a time schedule five minutes behind the freshmen. Fresh tracksters will compete only against first year men.

The high scorer in each section will receive a statue, the second high point winner a plaque, and the third a cup. These prizes have the added feature that they are replicas of Olympic art and the competition is expected to attract a large number of cinder path aspirants. Scoring will be by the 5, 3, 2, 1 system, 5 points going to the winner of a first place, 3 for a second, 2 for a third, and 1 for a fourth. Ribbons will be given for the first four places in each event.

Sophomores Loom Strong
A close battle is predicted between Phelps and Everingham of this year's freshman team. Advance dope predicts that Everingham may win the 100- and 200-yard dashes. A first in the broad jump and a possible second in the 440 yard dash will possibly give Everingham first place in the varsity competition. Phelps and Boice in the hurdles and Beatty in the dashes and shorter distances may press the dash men for individual honors.

Of the freshman, Phil Taxman, Dallas Foster, and Charles Grausnik seem to have good chances of winning in the dashes. Nelson and White are two other men who may show up strongly in the longer dashes and runs. It is possible that some other freshman may show unexpected skill in the meet and press the most likely prospects for the individual honors.

The complete schedule of the meet is as follows:

- Wednesday, October 15
- 4:15-100 yard dash (trials)
- 4:25-800 yard run
- 4:35-100 yard dash (finals)
- 4:45-120 yard high hurdles (trials)
- 4:55-high jump
- 5:05-120 high hurdles (finals)
- Thursday, October 16
- 4:15-220 yard dash (trials), pole vault, and javelin throw
- 4:25-one mile run
- 4:35-220 yard dash (finals)
- 4:45-120 yard hurdles (trials)
- 5:00-220 low hurdles (finals)
- Friday, October 17
- 4:15-440 yard dash (one race only)
- 4:25-two mile run
- 4:35-broad jump.

Iowa Man Shoots On Winning Team In National Match

Seventh Corps Area Wins at Camp Perry

The seventh corps area R. O. T. C. team won first place in the National Rifle association matches held at Camp Perry, Ohio, September 1-20, 1924, according to word received here. In competition with the R. O. T. C. teams from the various other corps areas in the county, the seventh corps area men were credited in the announcement with a score of 2,676 out of a possible 3,000.

Firing with the championship team was Frank Wiggins, of the University of Iowa. Of the remainder of the men, the Universities of Missouri and Nebraska furnished two each, and Coe, Ouachita, and Kansas State agricultural colleges and the Universities of North Dakota, South Dakota, and Arkansas one each. There was one vacancy on the team.

An interesting item making the victory even more a seventh corps area affair is the fact that the team was coached by Lieut. Walter J. Dehner, of the Ordnance Reserve Corps, who received his commission through the infantry unit of the University here in 1923. Lieutenant Dehner's work in the R. O. T. C., not only in shooting but in all other subjects, was such as to cause the corps area commander to commend it.

The corps area commander also conveyed his congratulations to all members of the team. The men receive certificates of efficiency as instructors from the small arms firing school conducted at Camp Perry, preceding the matches.

Col. Morton C. Mumma, formerly head of the department of military science and tactics here, is now the chief executive officer at Camp Perry.

Red and White Team Prepares For East High

High School Gridmen Go to Des Moines Saturday

The Iowa City high school football team is now done to earnest work, preparing for the East Des Moines game which will be played in Des Moines Saturday. East Des Moines has always given the Red and White aggregation the small end of the score, and the local aggregation does not intend to allow a lack of practice or training aid the jinx eleven on their schedule. The last two practices have been extremely vigorous, one scrimmage lasting an hour and a quarter and the other forty minutes. During this time the men worked steadily.

Captain Siemmons has proved that he is an able leader. He is not only a deadly tackler and good at receiving passes but he continually inspires his men to fight harder. In all the past games, the team's undying pep has enabled it to keep up a fight that has bewildered and overcome its enemies.

In the absence of Boyles, second string quarter, last night, "Oley" Teeters went in at quarter and after making first down twice in four line plunges, he injured his head severely and was taken out. Strickler received a wrench on his ankle that was not serious, and he returned to the scrimmage.

The East Des Moines eleven has been taken in by the Oskaloosa grid-ers for a 17-0 count and later by the Sioux City machine by a score of 20-0. This does not prove, however, that East High is not a formidable foe. Both of these teams are unusually strong and rank among the best in the state. On the other hand, Iowa City has defeated three teams, Marengo, Marion, and Lone Tree. These teams are relatively weak and the locals have no cause to throw out their chests, and cease strenuous efforts. Realizing this, Coach Soucek has been driving his men harder than ever.

Grieve Is Named Iowa Winner of Essay Contest

J. Wallace Grieve, A1 of Pierson has been announced winner over all Iowa contestants in the Firestone good roads essay contest.

Grieve's essay, "The Relation of Improved Highways to Home Life," has been entered with the winners from other states in Washington, D. C., where the national winner will be decided. To the person submitting the best essay in the national contest, a 4 year university scholarship will be given by H. S. Firestone.

A prize of $25 was given Mr. Grieve by the Iowa State Highway commission for having the best composition in this state. Grieve wrote the essay last May, while attending high school at Pierson.

INDIA WOMEN REBEL

LONDON, Oct. 14: (AP)—From distant India comes a cry of the women for further political rights and privileges. At a representative meeting of Indian women held recently in Simla under the presidency of Lady Shafiq, the question of the disqualification of women for election as members of the several legislatures was discussed.

Gridmen To Get Hard Scrimmage This Week

Lights Installed to Allow Late Practice

Hard practice seems to be the program for this week for the varsity football squad, and last night's workout was a fair sample of what is to come for the remainder of the season. With no open week-ends on this year's schedule there will be no slackening of practice.

The flood lights have been installed and will probably be used the rest of the week. The team worked until dark yesterday but the lights were not used.

Freshman scrimmage against the varsity featured the work-out. The yearlings have been tutored in Minnesota plays and brought them into play with the varsity permitting the yellow-jerseyed backs to get through them for pleasing gains—pleasing to the freshmen, but not to Coach Ingwersen.

Fisher punted from scrimmage with the rest of the first string backs catching the kicks from behind the seconds. Otte, end; Krasski, tackle; Fleckenstein, guard; Griffen, center; Olson, guard; Romney, tackle; Hancock, end; and Illnes, Fry, and Dauber in the backfield acted as defense for the Hawkeye punter.

Captain Parkin, Graham, Schirmer, and Brookins played back to receive the punts while Smith, end; Galloway, tackle; Lindsay, guard; McIntyre, center; Daniels, guard; Lindell, tackle; and Rice, end, tried to break through and block the kicks.

The obvious object of this was to strengthen the line in holding for punts and to perfect the return of punts. The same line-ups were used in a like manner while Fisher and Hogan kicked.

Parkin, Scantlebury, and Brookins called signals during the practice and several combinations were used in the backfield. Olson received a slight injury and was forced out of the scrimmage with the freshman, but is expected out in uniform this afternoon.

Coaches Ingwersen and Locke are evidently considering Lawrence and fully expect the Wisconsin eleven to show the Hawkeyes a real struggle. The experience of Wisconsin in last Saturday's game with Coe in which the latter held the Big Ten team to a tie score will likely be taken as an example by other conference coaches. Small college teams are sometimes capable of exhibiting surprising strength.

Athletic Office Will Distribute Colored Posters

Homecoming is at hand. This is the glad tidings borne on the multi-colored posters issued to the various stores in Iowa City by the publicity bureau of the University athletic department, this week.

Over 2,000 of the big sheets have been printed and are ready for distribution. They will be sent to various clubs, schools, and stores, throughout the state and anyone wishing some to send to their home town can get them from Kenneth E. Griffen, manager of ticket sales, at the men's gymnasium.

NO ROOM FOR DIVORCED VIENNA, Oct. 14: (AP)—Vienna still struggles with problems arising from housing shortage.

Apartments are so scarce that in a great many cases divorced couples are compelled to go on living under the same roof.

Rifles Assigned To R. O. T. C. Men

Freshmen Get Drill in Marksmanship

Rifles have been assigned by the military department to first year basic course men, and work in sighting and marksmanship is being given. With three weeks gone the year's work is getting well underway.

The provision of a good stock of uniforms issued and fitted as carefully as possible and the excellent condition of other equipment may place the distinguished college list within reach this year.

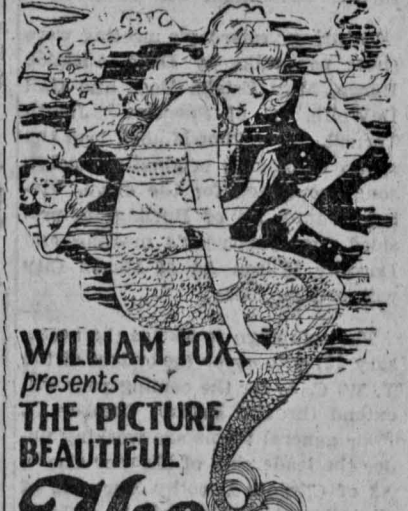

Members of the University band have been excused from the regular military classes and drills as the work in the band is accepted as fulfillment of the military requirement.

Beard, Walsh, and Rose Survive in Quad Net Tourney

I. A. Beard triumphed over S. F. Martin, 6-2, 6-1, and John L. Walsh defeated C. C. Cadwell, 6-1, 6-1, in the first round of play in the quadrangle net tourney. Marshall C. Watson will be one of the contestants in the semi-finals; his opponent, Kermit Rose, having forfeited. R. J. McCloskey was barred from further competition because of being entered in the all-University tournament. Rules for the quad tourney are that only men of the quadrangle are eligible who are not entered in another tournament.

BARRY DRILLS BASKETBALL CANDIDATES IN FUNDAMENTALS

Practice Season Opened Last Night

Inexperienced Men Give Sam Hard Task

The veterans on hand at tonight's practice were Captain Janse, Heinie Jensen and Ex-Captain Jimmie Laude. The rest of the team will have to come from unexperienced men as far as Big Ten basketball is concerned.

Coach Sam Barry, a firm believer in getting the jump on opponents, met his squad of basketballers in the opening drill of the season last night in the men's gym.

The practice consisted of fundamental work, including pivoting, dribbling, passing, timing and handling the ball. The men were kept at it from 7:30 until nearly 9:00 o'clock, and all seemed intent on working as hard as possible. Barry himself was out in a suit, illustrating the plays and positions.

This year's team will be hard hit by graduation, losing former captain Burgett, Jack Funk and Wayland Hicks, former all conference guard, from last year. However, Funk and Burgett were lost to the team by inability and sickness after the first or four games had been played last year.

A number of men who are now out for football are expected to report at the end of the gridiron season. Included in these are Raffensperger, Hogan, Fleckenstein, Speed and Smith. However, these men are losing valuable fundamental practice which will take some time to acquire.

According to Barry, the prospects for a winning aggregation on the board floor are not very bright, due to the lack of experienced men reporting and the difficulty of developing them into a smooth working team.

Barry is being assisted in his coaching by Rollie Williams, freshman football coach. They plan to work the men on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights from 7:30 on, until a little later in the season when practice will be held daily.

Barry hopes to put a well drilled, although green, team on the floor for the first game with Wabash on December 13. The men will have had two months' practice, which will be of great help.

The following men were out in suits for the initial practice: Hale Slavin, of Moravia; Harry Boyesen, of Harlan; Gordon Phillips, of Iowa City; James Laude, of Monticello; Irving Myers, of Hampton; Roy Palmer, of Des Moines; Heinie Jensen, of Cedar Rapids; Hector Janse, of Lúverne; Leland Nagle, of Iowa City; H. T. Miller, of Mount Pleasant; George Van Deusen, of Anamosa; and Charles McConnell, of Mason City.

Two Defaults and One Match Marks Tuesday's Net Play

Two defaults and completion of one match marked the progress made in the first rounds of yesterday's net play in the all-university tournament. Chaffee forfeited to Parker, as did Phillips to Alderks. Blackstone proved too strong for Pease, winning the match in straight sets 6-1, 6-2.

Cross Country Men Listless in Work Tuesday Afternoon

Taking a four mile run over the hilly part of the new course, the varsity cross country squad last night indulged in one of the most listless workouts of the season.

Although the course was in excellent condition the men seemed to lack drive in the middle of the race; they finished with a fair amount of punch.

R. Bright and F. D. Terbell were the outstanding men on the crew, both displaying the fine form throughout the race. Coach Brennan plans to hold shorter workouts for several days working for speed and hill technique, gradually rounding the men into winning form for the first meet with Minnesota on the 25th.

Daubert Ranks Among Baseball's Greatest

Popular Diamond Figure Makes Vain Fight For Life; Went Through 1922 Season Without Error

ONE of baseball's most picturesque players has "gone west." Jacob E. Daubert is the man who is being mourned by diamond fans throughout the nation today for he was one of the best first basemen that ever pulled on a spiked shoe and was a popular figure throughout his long service in the major leagues. Daubert, as baseball goes, was a veteran, having played the game professionally for nineteen years and stuck around in the big show for fifteen seasons and until a recent illness, following the close of this year's struggle, he was expected to "carry on" and see active service for quite a few years.

Daubert died from complications which set in following an operation for appendicitis. Blood transfusion and the best of medical attention could not keep the scintillating diamond artist from slipping through the doors of death. The end came Thursday and the body will be shipped to Schuylkill, Pa., the present home of the Daubert family, for burial. Daubert was born at Shomokin, Pa., in the heart of the mining belt on April 17, 1885 and was comparatively young in years, not quite reaching the forty mark.

"Jake" was not a great show-man. He was of great value on the defense because he had the faculty of estimating a situation and shifting to meet it. Daubert was one of the few ball players who have gone through an entire season without having an error charged against them. He performed this feat while playing with Cincinnati in 1922. He was a well built man, being 5 feet 10 1/2 inches in height and weighing 160 pounds. Daubert was also a good hitter, batting at about a .310 clip for his entire big league career. He was a left handed. Daubert participated in two world's series, one while playing with Brooklyn and the other with Cincinnati in 1919, the year of the great baseball scandal which wrecked the White Sox club of Chicago.

Ends Career with Cincy
Daubert first played professional baseball with the Kane semipro in 1906 and the following year joined the Pennsylvania and Ohio league playing with the Marion, O., club. He was purchased by Cleveland in 1908 and shipped to Nashville in the same year. In 1909 he played with both Toledo and Memphis. Brooklyn purchased him from Memphis in 1910 and he played with the Dodgers as a regular until 1918 when he was traded to Cincinnati, with which club he has remained until his death Thursday.

Unmined Coal Beds Good for at Least Two Hundred Years

CHICAGO, Oct. 14 (AP)—There is enough coal in middle western fields to last at least 200 years, according to estimates by Prof. Adolf Carl Noe of the University of Chicago. Professor Noe, discoverer of "coal balls" (fossilized life found in coal seams) has just completed a study of coal reserves in middle western coal states.

GIVE RADIO STAMPS

CHICAGO, Oct. 14 (AP)—Another innovation in the radio world will be launched tomorrow, when a score of the leading broadcasting stations of the United States and Canada will begin the issue of engraved stamps, each bearing the surcharge of the individual station, to listeners who submit reasonable proof they have actually heard a station's program.

RESTORE ASSAY FRONT

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP)—The facade of the old United States assay office building, which formerly stood at 15 Wall street, has been reassembled stone by stone as the front of the new American wing of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in Central park.

Lawrence Team Boasts Fast and Shifty Backs

Lawrence college will invade Iowa City Saturday and comes here with the firm intention of winning from the Hawkeyes. Lawrence is a member of the Little Five conference, which includes Beloit, Ripon, Carroll, and Northwestern colleges, also.

They have played two preliminary games, one with St. Norbert's college, in which the latter was defeated, 42-0, and the other with Northwestern college of Watertown, Wis., a conference school, which was defeated 55-0.

The Northwestern game gave the Blues their first real test as to offensive and defensive ability. From the kickoff it was plainly evident which possessed the superior team. The individual stars of the Blue team lived up to the most optimistic predictions.

The outstanding player was Eddie Kotal, brilliant halfback, from Chicago, who is playing his third year for Lawrence. Kotal is the type of backfield man that merits constant watching. Last year, against Ripon, he broke loose on his own five-yard line and went the length of the field for a touchdown, turning what appeared to be a sure defeat into a brilliant victory. The last few minutes of the Carroll game last year were enough for Eddie to win the game for Lawrence.

Stoll, right end, is a man of no little ability. So far this year, he has missed very few goals after touchdowns, and has had many opportunities, as the game totals indicate. He is a very good punter, his punts averaging around forty-five yards.

The Lawrence line is made up mostly of veteran players. Gander, Olson, and Hipke, last year's men, offer ample material for heavy, fast, and accurate centers. Packard, Kiessling, Council, Dunham, Stark, and Bayer, all letter men, will take care of the guard and tackle positions. Cooke, Holdridge, and Captain Stoll will get the call on the wings, but Kotal, Briese, and Nobles are fast and shifty players.

The Blue plan of attack is expected to consist mostly of straight football, and many spread plays, the type that won Mark Catlin, Lawrence coach, fame at Iowa. The team will average 180 pounds; the backfield, 160.

On Other Football Fields

PURDUE
Local critics think that the Boiler-makers will have a tough time against Northwestern next Saturday. All practice this week will include intensive drills on various offensive tactics. The varsity saw very little action against Rose Poly last Saturday—they being saved for the Purple game.

NOTRE DAME
A pall of seriousness settled down on the "Irish" football camp as the men underwent a big change in mental attitude due to the beginning of three days of intensive work before the long jaunt to New York and the Army game, which will hold the spotlight of the East on Saturday.

The squad has been carefully groomed for this game and a complicated attack has been prepared. Over 60,000 seats have already been sold and what few are left are at a premium.

MICHIGAN
Wolverine linemen were given a hard workout after hearing a lecture on their faults in the Michigan A.G. game last Saturday. The coaches showed their disappointment in the Wolverine offensive and pointed out that such a performance would not win against Illinois Saturday. All traces of optimism are gone and from now on the work will be long and hard.

NORTHWESTERN
A light workout was the extent of the Purple's drill on Monday, since some of them received minor bruises in the Cincinnati game Saturday, most of the time being spent in kicking and passing. Motion pictures for practice sessions are being shown in an effort to erase some of the faults of the squad. The Purple warriors will present a varied attack against Purdue Saturday.

ILLINOIS
The Illinois eleven will be almost intact when they meet Michigan Saturday, most of the regulars who have been out on account of injuries having reported again. Illinois scouts returned from Michigan with a vivid description of the Wolverine team and predicted a real battle for Saturday.

George Huff, athletic director at Illinois, announced a complete selling out for the game, which means that over 66,000 fans will see the game. Hundreds have been turned away.

CHICAGO
The Prince of Wales' visit to Chicago and the Midway in no way slowed up the Maroons' practice Monday. Much time was spent on perfecting the offense, which last Saturday ripped the Brown line to shreds. The Brown fray left no seriously crippled men on the Midway, thus putting the training force in high spirits.

The Maroons meet Indiana in the first conference game for both teams and the coaches will go to extremes to win.

"Fighting Bob" LaFollette's Son Unable To Give Talk Here

Conflict In Speeches Causes Cancellation

Member of Student La Follette-Wheeler Club Leaving for Des Moines Today in Effort to Secure "Phil" for Speech Later in Week

PLANS for a speech here today by Philip La Follette, son of "Fighting Bob" were disrupted for the present, when it was learned yesterday that a conflict in speaking dates would not permit his coming here.

Arrangements for the coming of Phil were made with Chicago La Follette headquarters Monday by a member of the executive council of the local student La Follette-Wheeler club. When he tried yesterday to secure confirmation of the date by the Des Moines office he was informed that it would be impossible for young La Follette to come here today.

A representative of the local club will go to Des Moines today where he will attempt to secure Phil for a speech later in the week.

Kiwanis Club to Help City Doll Up

Offers Loving Cup for Frat with Best Decorations

Following a custom which they established several years ago, Kiwanis club of Iowa City is offering a prize for the best decorated fraternity house at Homecoming.

For the past few years the award has been a cash prize of $15 but this year the club has purchased a loving cup. The cup is on display in the window of Bremer's store. It is to be a traveling prize but will become the permanent possession of any fraternity winning it three times.

The object of the local organization in offering this prize is to help Iowa City doll up for the annual event. Awards will be made on the exterior decorations by a committee from the Kiwanis club.

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Oct. 14—(AP)—The Coolidge lot in the little cemetery here, to which the nation's eyes were directed three months ago when the President and Mrs. Coolidge came to bury their young son, Calvin, was the scene of exercises again today when daughters of the American Revolution decorated the grave of Captain John Coolidge who founded the family interests in the Vermont valley.

It was because he was a soldier of the Revolution, in which he took part from the shot that was fired at Lexington to the end of the war, which found him at Fort Ticonderoga, that the memory of the President's ancestor was honored.

Thompson Slams Federal Reserve And Sugar Tariff

Serious Tone Pervades Rally at North Liberty

"Republicans don't want to hear that a cabinet officer sold out for $100,000 and don't want to hear that Andy Mellon was in the whiskey business for forty years and is today the uncrowned king of bootleggers," said Sam D. Whiting, democratic candidate for state representative in a thrust at the G. O. P. party at a North Liberty mass meeting last night.

A serious tone pervaded the meeting last night and speakers attempted to bring their listeners to a realization of the gravity of the situation. Ralph U. Thompson of Muscatine, democrat candidate for national representative, was the principal speaker.

Terms Situation Serious "The country is facing an election in which questions of great importance are to be decided," Mr. Thompson said.

He declared private interests were trying to obtain control of water power sites as shown by the fact that Henry Ford offered a "paltry five million dollars for the Muscle Shoals plant which cost the taxpayers 200 millions to erect and maintain."

Mr. Thompson next turned his guns on the republican administration by stating that the present tariff on sugar alone costs every individual in this country two dollars in excess toll.

"Tariff has been used to hoodwink the people for ages," he declared. His next thrust into republican armor was a charge that the Federal Reserve system had been used to deflate farm products of the west and used to further interests of the banking class on Wall street.

He declared the deflation had been purposeful and definite ever since the meeting of the reserve board directors in 1920.

"Men on Wall street understand each other," he added meaningly.

W. A. A. Introduces Acrobatic Course In Tumbling Art

Perhaps real classes in training for circus performances may be introduced if this class in tumbling shows a real need for such a department. Anyone who wishes to enter the class may sign up on the bulletin board in the women's gymnasium.
