Fight 'em Iowa

IN the Homecoming game last Saturday whenever Minnesota got the ball, the cheerleaders would get the crowd to moan "Hold 'em Iowa." Iowa did hold 'em, but in spite of the cry of the crowd, not because of it. The psychology of the yell is wrong. "Hold 'em Iowa" is the yell of a defeated crowd. It is a slow cry of desperation. It implies that the goal line is in danger, that the team is digging in for the last time, that affairs are in hazardous straits. Compare it with the snappy, encouraging effect of "Touchdown Iowa." That is a cry of encouragement, of hope, and of confidence in the team. Why not put more pep into the other yell? Why not use "Push 'em back," "Fight 'em back," or "Fight 'em Iowa," —a yell with more of hope and more of confidence in it. Put snap into the yell, and the team will drop a sullen, determined resistance for slashing, aggressive, play-breaking, tactics that will hold the most powerful eleven in the conference for downs.

Your Responsibility

IT is almost incredible that not half of the voters in America went to the polls at the presidential election four years ago. Figures show that only forty-nine per cent of the voters in the United States made use of their rights as citizens. In Iowa, a state with a large native population, only sixty-five per cent polled their vote, and even in Iowa City, only seventy-five per cent performed their duty. This November, with the presidential election approaching, less than 6000 of the 7500 voters in Johnson county have registered, and with one day left, nearly two thousand must register to bring out the voters on the basis of population four years ago.

There is an astounding lack of appreciation of suffrage. Many suggestions have been made in the effort to stimulate voting. A Michigan newspaper recently offered a prize for the solution of the problem of bringing out the voting strength. The prize winning answer was, "Train the people of America to govern themselves by establishing in our schools laboratories of self-government and political knowledge." Others advocated fining those who did not vote, but none of these suggestions have gone to the root of the matter.

It is doubtful if the evil can be cured by hard and fast schemes, and still less by fines. We do not want to bribe the non-voter, but to awaken him to a sense of responsibility for his country. This letter from a Michigan contestant seems to have hit the heart of the matter—"The disease is organic; the remedy must be organic. No superficial soothing syrups will suffice in the long run." Every effort possible should be used to educate the American voter in self-government, but he must be aroused to the fact that government is truly a committee chosen by the people to carry on the people's affairs, and efficient results can be secured only when every man exercises his will to see that all his duties to his country are met in an honest and intelligent fashion. And as a part of this, it is the duty of every citizen to get out the vote at the coming election.

Lowden and Agriculture

FRANK O. Lowden, practical farmer, successful business man, and able statesman, is considered the logical successor to Henry Wallace in the post of secretary of agriculture. Lowden has had a varied and a great career. His work is of especial interest to Iowa, for he graduated from the University in 1885. He has been governor of Illinois. He is the owner and operator of one of the finest farms in Illinois—and it is a financial success, not a playground where a rich man can spend his money. Lowden is no "gentleman farmer." He is a brilliant executive who gets things done; his work in reorganizing the Illinois state departments and commissions is still remembered.

Lowden has the interest of the farmer at heart. During the summer, when he was offered the honor of being vice-presidential nominee on the republican ticket, he refused, saying that he intended to devote the remainder of his career to agriculture, and to working for the farmer,—that he was through with politics for politics sake.

Without question, Lowden, a representative of the Middle West, with his qualifications for the position, is a worthy successor to Wallace, another leader in aiding the farmer.

Discipline

A TEACHER in the Barnesville, Minn., high school, H. T. Upsahl, has been arrested on the charge of using an "electric chair" to punish one of his pupils. He constructed the chair as an experiment, but found it useful as a means of punishment. The father of the boy declares that the chair caused severe burns on the body of the fourteen year old student.

One of the things humanity must learn is obedience. Whatever may be our theories for developing folk in the world, discipline has its place. Nature does not hesitate to mete out severe punishment. Society also makes its demands upon us. However, the penalties must be judiciously applied. The teacher evidently had the welfare of the children at heart, but overstepped his bounds. It was poor judgment.

The teacher not only defeated his own purpose, but helped to create sentiment against law enforcement. Punishments thoughtlessly meted out stand in the way of real law enforcement. Administered by right methods, they will make better citizens out of our younger generation, who must feel the necessity for discipline and obedience.

Lovely Labors Lost

Let Blue Beard have his hundred wives,
And Brigham Young his harem;
And all of you can live their lives
If you've got nerve to bear 'em.
There are flappers, and one has a choice
Of painted, tinselled flirts.
But I don't care to lose my voice
In the rustling of skirts.
—Allan de Nolevar.

SORROWS OF A SUPER-SENSITIVE SOUL

Why does Otto seem to avoid me? Has he some secret sorrow that I cannot share? Today he moved his camp stool to the other side of the meadow.
At first I did not see him.
I thought he had hanged himself. But he said no. He had forgotten to get a rope.
He had tried, he said, to shoot himself. But he had missed himself.

Professor Noah Lott:
Possibly you are not aware who I am. If you are ignorant of this it is not my fault, nor the fault of the publicity department nor of my fraternity. Suffice it for me to indicate that I am a member of the Raisa Welts and of the second soccer team.

You sent me a notice for deficiency in work. Retract this, I demand. I have no time for studying and you should know this. I am here to dedicate myself to perpetuating the glory of my Alma Mater. The World must know how great we are. It is men such as me who make us Great. In the name, then, of our college and its spirit, I demand that you raise my grade.
Bill Yuss

A POSSIBLE REPLY

My dear Yuss:
I hasten to write this note in order to explain that at the time when my reader, a fellow very stupid in some respects, sent you the deficiency notice which you mention, I didn't know who you were. After all, we cannot let the lads who handle our pigskins suffer because of their ideals, can we? And so, my dear Yuss, I write with all possible speed to apologize for my mistake and to assure you that I shall be very careful in the future. Drop in some day, sir, and we shall have a jolly hour talking over campus affairs.
Yours in Real Fellowship,
Noah Lott, Ph. D.

TWO BELLS

Bad dreams. Dreamt I was shootin' pennies and tossed in my sleep. Cookie readin' puss in boots—Puss in Boots on a cat boat—Holy Cats! Long around sun-up there comes a cry "Man ahoy!" Pulled in a man, very wet, says he's a count. Put him on the deck to dry. At noon—Matey, says J, matey, go out and get the count.—Aye, aye, says he, but didn't go. I heaved a belaying pin at matey and he went out for the count.—My! My! says I.—Aye, aye, says matey.—and that's that.

And then there's the fellow who hates food because it spoils his appetite.

Ever since we read Bob's "Treasure Island," Herm's "Moby Dick" and George's "Roll on, thou etc." we have felt that the sea is our literary field. One can write such deep blue novels about it—and depth and morbidity are all that a modern novel needs to be successful.

Some girls are so hard that it takes a diamond to make an impression on them.

A Record Still Unbroken

At 5:20 P. M., March 8th, 1920, Westinghouse Turbine Established World's Record for Continuous Running.

What Engineering Owes to Good Workmanship

45,000 K. W. Westinghouse Cross-Compound Turbine Unit of the Narragansett Electric Light Company, Providence, R. I.

WHEN Westinghouse installed a 45,000 K. W. Turbine in the power house of the Narragansett Electric Light Company, Providence, R. I., early in December, 1919, there was no thought of more than the average weekly power house run. Abnormal weather conditions, however, brought so steady a demand for power, that the unit was not shut down until March 8th, 1920, after a continuous run of 84 days, 11 hours, and 36 minutes.

This was especially remarkable in that the unit consists of two turbine generator sets, each of which operates independently of the other, so that the result was the mechanical equivalent of operating a single machine continuously for 169 days.

If space permitted, many astounding figures could be cited—about the K. W. H. generated during this period, the water and coal used, the cooling system, the oiling system, etc.

For example, to keep the generators cool, over 18,000,000 cubic feet of air passed through them, which equals 2,000 times the total weight of the generators and their bed plates.

Equally impressive, oil was pumped through the self-contained lubricating system to the bearings at the rate of 600 gallons a minute. Had the oiling system failed for only 30 seconds, the bearings would have been wrecked, and other parts of the unit harmed!

There is interesting history back of the operation of Westinghouse Turbine Units of 3,000 K. W. and higher. Notable records have been made in many of the world's great power plants, performance that is a tribute to remarkable engineering and good workmanship.

Forensics Start New Era Tonight In Oxford Debate

Brake Two Precedents At International Brain Mixer

Foreign Debate System Will Be Initiated In Program

Tonight will usher in a new era in forensics at the University of Iowa. When Harry Stevenson, Phoebe Chittenden, and Edwin Cassem meet in debate the chosen three of England's Oxford University, M. C. Hollis, J. D. Woodruff, and Malcolm MacDonald, Iowa will for the first time be a participant in an international debate.

A second precedent will be broken in the presence, as a debater, of Phoebe Chittenden, making up part of the first mixed debate team yet to appear representing the University.

Miss Chittenden's home is at Waverly. During her freshman year in high school there she was a member of the debating team which won the championship of northeastern Iowa. The next year she helped win the eastern Iowa championship for Waverly.

She is a member of the Erodolphian literary society here and is president of the women's debate club. She has been active in society debates and was a member of the team which last year entered the Cedar Falls and Washington University debates.

This Oxford system of debate will also make its debut here tonight. Under this method of carrying on the meeting, there are no judges, no fixed rebuttal speeches, and no time limits upon any of the speakers.

In case a vote of the house is taken, it will be purely upon the attitude of the audience toward the question, and will indicate no decision as to the merits of the opposing teams.

"Children of the Moon"

By Martin Flavin

Reviewed by Kenneth McDonald

"Children of the Moon" has probably aroused more interest, inspired more comment, and created more speculation than any play produced by the University Theatre for some time. The technical effects added more to the atmosphere than those of any play since "Lilliom," and the acting, in some cases excellent, was in most cases good.

Ray Holcombe in the character of Judge Atherton excelled, his work rising about the amateur into the professional. Make-up, intonations, gestures, were always in perfect harmony and his pantomimes at the telescope silhouetted against the sky added more weirdness and loneliness to the play than any technical effects could ever have done.

Arthur Shepherd proved his own theory that there are no minor parts by making a finished character out of the butler who had only a few lines. Thomas stood out a distinct individual as much as any character in a so-called lead.

The neurotic, irritable, passionate Laura was handled by Margaret Blackburn, and handled well. As to whether the audience sympathized with her to the end, it is very doubtful if they did, but this is not because of any fault of Miss Blackburn's or of the directing. The play is so written that by the end the sympathy could be nowhere else but with the children. During the scene between Laura and Jane when the former tells how the years in seclusion because of the taint in the family have been almost unbearable, sympathy is with the mother but when she leads her daughter to the doors in the back and forces them to look at the moon, sympathy swings to Jane and remains there till the end. Miss Blackburn, however, has a certain poise and dignity about her acting that makes it very effective in work like this.

Aldene Parsons as the daughter in this play will be seen often in University Theatre productions of the future. Her best work was in the last two acts. It seems that her hardest scenes were done much better than her easier ones. Mrs. Jane Smith's work was very effective in spots. The finish of her scene with Laura was best.

Harvey Carter as the cockney was much better in his last scene than his first one. The part is one that seems likely to produce self-consciousness. His final appearance comes at a time when something is almost necessary to break the strained, tense scene between Major Bannister and Jane.

The portrayal of the doctor was nicely done by Donovan Rynsberger. His professional laugh interspersed with serious statements, and his facial expression during his moments of silence were outstanding characteristics of his work.

Walter Dalton was the extremely handsome young lover who sailed away in the airplane with Jane. His last scene in which he showed the sincerity of his love for Jane was his best. He seemed to create an impression that perhaps he was depending a trifle too much on his handsomeness to carry him through his part.

The technical effects were well done. The sound of the surf on the cliff outside especially when Laura was huddled in her chair relating her past life, produced a desolate gloom that added much to the atmosphere. The view from the back, particularly in the last two acts, made one feel as if looking out into limitless space.

Hallowe'en Witches and Ghosts

First Danced by Druid Fires

The old calendar pad is about to lose another one of its leaves, but before the final destruction All Hallow's Eve will have come and gone.

Hallowe'en and its formerly attendant ceremonies long anti-dated Christianity.

Long ago the Druids, members of a religious order of the ancient Celts, held their great autumnal festival about November 1, and lighted fires in honor of the Sun-god in thanksgiving for the harvest. It was also a Druidic belief that on the eve of the festival Soman, lord of death, called together the wicked souls that within the past twelve months had been condemned to inhabit the bodies of animals.

The main celebrations on Hallowe'en were purely Druidical, and this is further proved by the fact that in parts of Ireland the thirty-first of October was and even still is known as "Vigil of Soman".

The custom of lighting Hallowe'en fires survived until recent years in the highlands of Scotland and Wales. In the dying embers it was usual to place as many small stones as there were persons around, and next morning a search was made. If any of the pebbles were displaced it was regarded as certain that the person represented would die within the twelve months.

The two chief characteristics of ancient Hallowe'en were the lighting of bonfires, and the belief that of all nights in the year this was the one in which ghosts and witches are most likely to wander about.

In Roman Catholic countries, Hallowe'en is the occasion for visiting the cemeteries, and laying flowers on the graves of friends and relatives.

Afternoon Varsity Begins Saturday At Three O'clock

The spirit of Mardi Gras as well as the usual Hallowe'en ideas will be found in Gym Khana Friday night. Hallowe'en decorations will be used, and the program will include Hallowe'en specials which will be revealed at that time. Booths and confetti will carry out the carnival idea.

The usual opportunity to dance will be furnished by Sullivan's orchestra. All money will be exchanged into khans, which will form the admission into the various booths and dances.

The "roommate," the "house" and "him" are all asked to attend this party, according to the members' in charge.

Author of "Nantucket" Leaves Iowa City Today

"Nantucket," an article by Walter Prichard Eaton, nationally known writer, who leaves Iowa City this morning after a four-day stay as the guest of Prof. E. C. Mable, appears in the November issue of "The American Mercury."

The writer describes Nantucket as the most beautiful town in America, and an example of almost unchanged Puritan art. "Mecken," said Mr. Eaton, "who attributes the decadence of all art in America to the influence of Puritanism, must have chuckled when he decided to accept the article—but he bought it."

However, Mr. Eaton went on to say, architecture is perhaps the only art which is an exception to the general influence of Puritanism in America.

"Red" Grange Rests While Zuppke Puts Illini Warriors Through Severe Practice

Shively, Sans "Charley Horse," On Field Again

One More Hard Drill Faces Illinois Today

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 29: (AP)—With but one more tough practice session left before the all important conference game with Iowa Saturday, Coach Zuppke sent the Illini through one of the hardest practices here tonight.

Bernie Shively, 210-pound guard, who has been out for two weeks with a "charley horse," reappeared for practice.

"Red" Grange, Captain Rokouski, and Chuck Brown took a rest.

Iowa City Looks Strong in Drills

Soucek Is Optimistic Over Outlook for Davenport

Line drill on offensive and defensive work was the main feature of the practice for the Iowa City high grid machine last night. Coach Soucek drove his team hard in an attempt to perfect the tactics of the linemen.

The Red and White aggregation have overcome all difficulties arising from changes and now work together as a unit. Highly specialized and individual advice was given to the team by their mentor.

On the defensive the men were drilled to fight ahead and still be able to go inside or outside of their opponent. The defensive drives for the line were directly ahead.

In a scrimmage which lasted an hour, the first team succeeded in getting three touchdowns out of the seconds. The seconds started with pep and threatened to score, but later weakened and gave way to line plunges that payed ground.

Coach Soucek declared that he was optimistic about the battle with Davenport, for the team has made fine progress this week.

Booth Tarkington has written several great stories for the screen—"Monsieur Beaucaire," "The Flirt," "Penrod."—Now comes "The Turmoil" at the Strand next Friday.

28 Leave With Ingwersen for Urbana Tonight

Coach Ingwersen and twenty-eight men will leave on the Rock Island at midnight tonight for Urbana, where, on Saturday, the Hawkeyes will battle Illinois in what will probably be the hardest game of the season.

Illinois, rated as the strongest team in the country with the exception of Notre Dame, is heavily the favorite. With Grange and the speediest backfield in the conference and a line that is equal to the Iowa line in weight and holds the advantage in experience. Coach Zuppke is almost certain of a victory.

The Hawks are seriously handicapped by the loss of Fleckenstein in the line and injuries in the Minnesota game and during the week's scrimmage have left the squad in a crippled condition. The team will arrive in Urbana Friday morning at 10:40 and will work out in the Illinois stadium in the afternoon.

The following men are making the trip: Captain Parkin, Otte, Gallows, Raffensperger, McIntyre, Griffen, Olson Hancock, Romey, Schirmer, Dauber, Graham, Fish, Daniels Rice, Smith, Hogan, Brookins, Scantlebury, Lindsey, Hines, Lindell, Armstrong, Hamilton, Boydston, and Krasuski. Fleckenstein is accompanying the team.

Hawk Cagers Put Through Paces

Coach Barry Working Men Hard in Early Season Drills

Coach J. M. Barry drilled a squad of fifteen men in passing, basket shooting, and general fundamentals in last night's workout of the Old Gold cagers.

The men were sent through their paces for an hour and a half in the men's gym. Special attention was placed on the passing and dribbling of the candidates. They showed up more smoothly than at the earlier practices but still have a long way to go according to the consensus of opinion of the board floor followers.

The guards were given the ball at one end of the floor and dribbled it's length, passing to the forwards who were guarded. The passing was ragged at the beginning of the session but improved toward the end of the drill.

According to Barry his prospects for a winning team are far from bright. Besides being handicapped with a small squad, the men lack much experience. However, the coach expects the squad to be increased by the end of the football season, as a number of men now playing football are expected to report for basketball at the end of the gridiron season.

Illini Must Defeat 3 Teams to Win Big Ten

By NORMAN E. BROWN. The race for the Big Ten grid title this fall presents what is probably the most interesting and unusual situation in the history of that body.

Four teams still have a mathematical chance for the championship. The team that now looms as the one to wrest the title plays all three of the others.

And the eleven that appears ready to stage the surprise comeback of the season plays two of the "penant contenders," which means that the Wolverines may have much to say in deciding this, the hottest battle for the conference flag.

Here is the situation; Illinois, to keep a clean slate, must meet and defeat:

Iowa at Urbana Nov. 1. Chicago at Chicago Nov. 8. Ohio at Urbana Nov. 22.

Michigan, still smarting under the Illinois beating, hopes to defeat: Ohio State at Columbus Nov. 15. Iowa at Ann Arbor Nov. 22.

The games of Oct. 25 left Illinois, Ohio State, Chicago and Iowa with clean slates, i. e., no defeats. Each had won one conference game. Illinois, however, was the only one without tie scores. Ohio State has emerged from two deadlocks.

State's victory was a 7 to 0 one over little Purdue. The ties were with Iowa and Chicago, the first a scoreless one and the last a 3 to 3 affair.

Chicago defeated Indiana 23 to 0 and then came the tie with Ohio. Iowa beat Minnesota 13 to 0 and then tied with Ohio.

Of course, barring an injury to "Red" Grange, the manninging and wonder player of the Illini, Zuppke's crew ought to plow their way through all three conference elevens lurking in their path.

In Grange the Illini have a whole team in attacking power. And to work with Grange, Zuppke has molded a good defensive organization.

However, should Chicago, Iowa or Ohio hold Illinois to a tie and win their other remaining games the glory that Illinois now calls its own may be clouded.

With this possibility, however slight, to buoy them up, State and Iowa followers are fearful of the outcome of their games with the Wolverine team.

Hagen Cleared by Boy's Confession Of Court Charges

(By the Associated Press) NEW YORK, Oct. 29 — Robert Burns Boughan, the Chicago caddie, whose story that he had been kidnapped by Walter Hagen, professional golfer, resulted in the issuance of a Chicago warrant for Hagen's arrest, admitted today that he had told the story to his parents in an endeavor to cover the fact that he had run away from home, according to word received by W. G. Marvin, the golfer's attorney, over the telephone from Kansas City.

The boy confessed, Mr. Marvin was told that he had seen Hagen's name in the papers as a participant in an exhibition match in Kansas City, which made him think the tale would clear him at home.

Mr. Marvin announced tonight that he will have his associates in Chicago enter suit tomorrow against the Boughan family for defamation of Hagen's character.

Intersectional Contests Favor West This Year

(By the Associated Press) NEW YORK, Oct. 29—Eastern elevens unless they show a reversal of form in remaining games, face the prospects of losing the intersectional football laurels they held by such a decisive margin in 1923.

So far the east won nine out of 15 games with intersectional opponents, but seven of these victories have been earned at the expense of southern teams; while the middle west, the Atlantic seaboard can only show two triumphs in seven starts. Thus, while the south apparently has mastered, the crown seems likely to pass to the middle west.

Nebraska's victory over Colgate, Chicago's triumph over Brown, and the trouncing administered by Marquette to the Navy have helped to settle some of the middle west's old scores and more than offset the Army's victories hung up for the east in downing St. Louis and Detroit Universities.

There seems scant hope for the east to retrieve its prestige in the eight intersectional games of importance remaining on the schedule for the Marquette eleven figures in two of them against Boston College and Vermont while Notre Dame tackles Carnegie Tech in another.

Caseys Will Organize an Independent Cage Team

The Knights of Columbus will put an independent basketball team in the field this winter, according to present plans. Although the Caseys have a wealth of material to put out a fast aggregation, a suitable place for practice has not been found.

Many of the candidates kept in condition this summer by playing on the Casey baseball team. So far no games have been booked, but anyone desiring to get in touch with the team can communicate with Mr. Leo Linder, at the Maruth Clothing Co.

13 Fraternities Enter Favorite Sons in Relays

Annual Swim Meet To Be Held in Iowa Pool Tonight

Thirteen strong relay teams have entered the inter-fraternity meet to be held tonight, and according to Coach David Armbruster, the fraternity record is going to fall. The Sig Alphas, Kappa Sigis, Sigma Nus, and Sig Eps, who were winners in last year's relay, all look mighty good. Howard Ungles, Russel Prouty, and Johnnie McClintock, who were all-American inter-scholastic swimmers in high school, will materially strengthen the Sig Eps, Phi Deltas, and Sig Alphas.

All the entries are not in, as yet, and it is very probable that the late entries will introduce some men that will push the favorites. In all events, says Armbruster, it will be the fastest inter-fraternity relay swim that has ever been swum at Iowa.

The teams are required to report at the pool ready to swim at 7 p. m. promptly. The galleries will be open to spectators, and Armbruster invites the men down to lend moral support to their team and in every way make possible faster time.

The officials of the meet as drawn up yesterday are as follows:

Starter—Eric Wilson. Referee—Ivan Klingaman. Judges of finish—Dean Teeters, Prof. J. J. Lambert, Prof. J. R. Eyre.

Dope Favors Illinois In Cross Country Race

Phelps and Mieher Expected to Stage Nice Race

Taken as a unit, the University of Illinois cross country squad, who meet the Hawkeyes next Saturday, are probably the best balanced aggregation on the cow path in the Big Ten. With a record of eight points better than the conference marks made by Iowa in the cross country run and their win over Iowa in the dual last year, the five veterans on the Illinois squad cannot be rated otherwise than favorites in the coming contest.

The leader of the Urbana aggregation is Mieher, a man who won first in the Iowa-Illini dual last year and was fourth in the conference meet last fall. In addition to this, he was victor in the two mile run at the indoor conference meet last year. His running mate, Makeever, was first in the one mile run at the conference outdoor meet last June, fourth in the Iowa dual and eleventh in the conference hill and dale event. Marzolo, the third man in the quietest in point of achievements was third in the dual and fortieth in the conference. Robertson and Topper finished at sixth and eighth in the dual. Topper was thirty-first in the conference but Robertson did not finish.

Iowa will buck this lineup with four veterans: Phelps, who was second in the dual and first in the conference; March, who was ninth in the dual and thirty-third in the conference; Van Ness, who was eleventh in the dual and fourteenth in the conference; and Bender, who was fourteenth in the dual and forty-first in the conference.

However, the newer men on the Hawkeye squad may be of the caliber to enable their crew to win. Terbell and Stonebrook, both sophomores, showed up very well against the Gophers in last Saturday's meet. March, one of last year's men, also showed a great improvement by finishing close behind Hubbard, the Minnesota ace, for third place.

Armbruster Heralds Fraternity Water Basketball Meet

Will Award Plaques Winners of First Three Places

The division of physical education, been experiencing more or less difficulty in getting men out for the Varsity water basketball team. In order to create more interest in this sport an inter-fraternity tournament will be held. The first games will be played on November 3.

This method of creating interest has been practiced at other Big Ten universities with a great degree of success. The University of Chicago, which always makes a strong bid for conference championship, usually has fifty teams compete in the inter-fraternity meets. The University of Wisconsin conducts a tournament of this character and it is rapidly becoming one of the most popular forms of competition among the fraternities.

Coach Armbruster is quite sure that after the men have played the game or after they see it played a few times, their interest will pick up and more men will start reporting for varsity practice. Each team will play once against every other team that is entered. The winners will be determined on a percentage basis. First, second, and third places will be awarded plaques and points on the participation cup. Fraternities who have not received entry blanks for their teams may call for them at the athletic office and pay a dollar entry fee.

Men who wish to report for varsity water basketball may do so at this time. Practice will be held at the pool every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 4:30 p. m. Straight "I"s are awarded to swimmers who are on the team if they win the conference championship, and if runners-up they will receive "1-2"s. Coach Armbruster is of the opinion that there is material at Iowa from which a conference championship team can be moulded without any great difficulty.

Crime Causes Not Understood-Yoder

Sociologist Urges Study of Criminals In Radio Talk

"It is as serious for society to hang as for a bandit to shoot his victim, because hanging is such serious business that it deserves more than to be left to the red tape of judicial and executive system," said Prof. T. D. Yoder of the sociology department in an address broadcast from radio station WHAA yesterday.

Professor Yoder suggested three justifications that are put forward in favor of criminal punishment: "First, to make the criminal sorry; or, second, to prevent the same person again violating the law; and, third, to inflict punishment as a deterrent.

The whole argument to prove capital punishment justifiable depends upon individual circumstances," he continued. "States which have abolished the death penalty had during the period from 1905 to 1915 less than half as many murders proportionate to population as those states in which the institution has been continued."

Carroll Traces Checks Forged by Pickpockets

Officers Recover $170 in Travellers Checks Stolen From Homecomers Last Saturday

DETECTIVE O. E. Carroll recovered $170 in travelers checks of the some $800 taken by pickpockets Homecoming day, yesterday when he traced the checks to B. Schultz, who claimed that he found them last Sunday back of Tom Shay's Madison street property.

The tracing was made through the disguises of an offer of $80 made by one Iowa City man to another for forging the name of Harold A. Porter, whose pocket was picked last Saturday. After getting in communication with the man to whom the bribe was made, the man who offered the bribe was identified. The alleged briber was immediately arrested by Detective Carroll and Chief of Police J. J. Lorack.

When arrested, the alleged briber claimed innocence but later admitted that Schultz had the checks. The officers located Schultz, who admitted the possession of the checks but claimed that he found them. The names of the alleged briber and the man to whom the bribe was offered are being withheld.

Judge W. J. Springer recovered $50. of that taken by pickpockets when he identified the money in the possession of Charles Waeger, one of the alleged pickpockets.

"Lost Articles" Show Tendency to Weak Mentalities

"Absent-minded professor" is a joke that is in rather bad taste just now. "Absent-minded student" seems better, for a recent inventory of the array of lost articles stored in the office of the dean of women shows an appalling collection.

At the present time there are three pairs of gloves of varying shades, a handkerchief with some small coins dutifully knotted in one corner, two comb cases, a pocket knife, a copy of Beethoven's Symphony No. 7, a ring, a brown brushed wool scarf, three small coin purses, a gold pencil, a silver pencil, four fountain pens, and a silver mesh bag.

Students are capable of losing anything and everything. Umbrellas come in constantly and it is said that a young lass recently rescued her yellow slicker from the "lost" desk. During Homecoming a great variety of things were turned in, one a very valuable cameo brooch, aged some seventy-five years, which had belonged to somebody's grandmother.

Radiocast Wittke Talk from WHAA

Prof. Wittke Discusses Possible Election Dispute

Because of a possibility that none of the presidential candidates will have a majority of electoral votes on November 4 and because of "the further possibility of dispute election returns from at least two states "where La Follette electors" as such have been denied a place on the ballot, Prof. Carl Wittke of the University of Iowa history department, in an address over WHAA yesterday, declared that interest has been revived in all earlier elections in which precedents may be found "for an escape from such an extraordinary situation."

Prof. Wittke's address dealt principally with the Hayes-Tilden election controversy of 1876 which now, he said, has assumed "a new importance in the light of possible developments next month."

"The significant thing about the election controversy of 1876," said Professor Wittke, "is that a peaceful settlement was reached when a settlement seemed impossible. President Grant began to concentrate troops in Washington to prevent disorders but there was not any serious danger of Civil war. There were a few threats but the bulk of the American people and the defeated candidate submitted to the decision of the electoral commission without any serious consideration of the use of forceful means.

The result did not destroy the confidence of the people in the methods of democracy. On the contrary, it proved how firmly the habit of orderly self-government had become rooted in the American nation."

Doheny Behind Fuel Oil Storage In Pearl Harbor

(By the Associated Press) LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29—Documentary evidence signed to show that the Doheny interests endeavoring to stabilize a demoralized oil market in California were the moving forces behind the construction of additional fuel storage facilities at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, ordered by the navy department in November, 1922, was presented today by the prosecution of the government's suit here for cancellation of naval oil leases and contracts held by the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company.

Chief among the evidence was a memorandum from E. L. Doheny, head of the Pan-American, to Admiral J. K. Robison, chief of the navy engineering bureau, in which the oil magnate in outlining a plan for stabilizing the oil market suggested that his company supply the government with additional storage facilities and fuel oil in exchange for additional leases in naval reserve No. 1.

The construction of the additional storage, the oil magnate stated, would immediately arrest the downward trend of oil and would result in the resumption of production which had been halted in the Elk Hills region by the low prices.

The navy department authorized the increase of storage facilities on November 29, 1922, it was brought out through a letter from Edwin Denby, former secretary of the navy, which was presented in evidence by government counsel.

A supplement contract involving such an increase in storage facilities was entered into between the Doheny company and the government on December 11, 1922, according to previous testimony.

Uninvited Guest "Sleeps It Off" In Strange Pew

On going into one of her rooms the morning after Homecoming, the mother of a prominent Iowa City merchant was greeted by the heavy odors of "spirits fermenting." On the bed was the figure of a man all curled up in a blanket.

"Has my son been drinking?" asked the lady, as she wrapped the figure up more carefully. Then she opened the windows, and prepared to go downstairs. Just at that moment the man sat up, rubbed his eyes and calmly walked away.

He was not her son, but just a man who had had a little too much Homecoming and had decided to "sleep it off." He entered the house, climbed over a table that stood in front of the doorway, deposited his shoes at the top of the stairs, and proceeded to the land of dreams.
