Cheering Rooters Welcome Hawks After Big Battle

Crowd Packs Station Platform; Blocks Train's Path

Coach Ingwersen Gets Bouquet as Mark Of Gratitude

Five thousand rooters with cowbells, placards, and the old Iowa spirit leading the cheering, gathered at the Rock Island station Sunday afternoon to meet the train which returned Burt Ingwersen and his victorious Hawkeyes to Iowa City.

Surround Train

The immense crowd overflowed the station platform and stretched for two blocks along the track, so that the train was required to steam slowly into Iowa City amid the cheers of rooters who were eagerly searching the car windows for a glimpse of the team.

Many classes of the professional colleges, scattered through the throng, carried placards bearing the inscriptions, "They Got Michigan", "Yost Was a Ghost", and "11 Men in Every Play".

Cheer leaders were there to lead the yelling and when the team climbed off the train each man received an ovation. Coach Burt Ingwersen was presented with a bouquet of large chrysanthemums as a token of appreciation.

Pep Meet in Oval

The crowd followed the band, after the train had departed, from the station to the oval between the natural science and physics buildings, where Don Rhynsberger, Cm4 of Oskaloosa, led the yelling, and the singing of "Old Gold".

Later the rooters paraded through the business district where they disbanded after the dents had medics had waged a miniature battle over a sign carried by the senior medics.

Antelopes Soon to Enter Mammal Hall

New Group Planned To Represent Habits of Specimens

A new antelope group will soon be installed in the University museum. Plans for this originated with the Wyoming expedition of 1921. Preparation is going on in the laboratories of the natural science hall.

Included among the members making up the Wyoming expedition party were Prof. Homer R. Dill of the University zoological department, Mr. Theodore Wanerus, M.A. '12, whose idea the expedition was, and Mr. C. H. Fishburn, LL.B. '15, who supplied the capital.

The party operated from the ranch of Mr. Wanerus. The specimens secured by the activities of the party will make up the habitat group which is now being made ready to assemble.

The preparation of such a group involves a great amount of earnest, painstaking effort. When the specimens have been secured and the skins prepared, the work has just begun. Forms of the animals must then be made on which to mount the skins, the animals natural environment reproduced with as nearly perfect exactitude of detail as possible, and the whole assembled in such a manner as to make an instant appeal to the museum visitor.

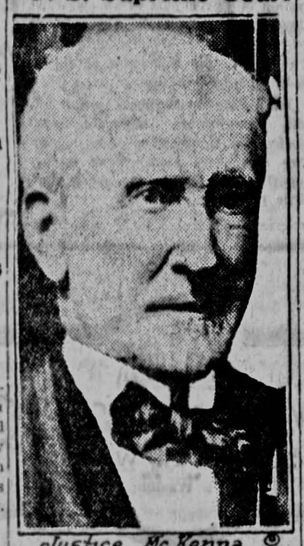
A small model of the contemplated groump has been made by one of Prof. Dill's students. This model, made to scale, shows five antelope, two bucks, two females, and a calf, in characteristic attitudes. Two prairie dogs, and two prairie dog mounds, in addition to several clumps of cactus and sagebrush and a small dried up stream bed, all of which are characteristic to the natural ranging ground of the antelope, are also shown. This model will supply the working pattern for the larger group.

Iowan Comes Thanksgiving; No Paper Published Friday

The Daily Iowan will appear as usual on Thanksgiving morning but no edition will be printed on the day following Thanksgiving.

This is in accordance with the usual custom of The Daily Iowan, as it does not appear on any day following a vacation.

McKenna May Quit U. S. Supreme Court



Justice McKenna

After having been associate justice of the supreme cuort since 1898, Joseph McKenna is expected soon to tender his resignation, according to reports from Washington. Justice McKenna was attorney general in President McKinley's cabinet.

Coleman Praises Museum Training

National Officer Says Dill Is Doing Great Work

"The University of Iowa is the only one in the country offering a course in museum exhibition training," said Laurence Vail Coleman, secretary of the American Association of Museums, in a personal interview given out yesterday.

"I am very favorably impressed with the work of Professor Dill. He has visions far beyond the present capacity department," said Mr. Coleman in speaking of the work of the museum training department of the University.

Mr. Coleman is secretary of the National Association of Museums whose purpose is to guide the work in new museums as they spring up in all parts of the country. There are so many new enterprises in this work that the Association, in order to better function in its capacity, has sent out Mr. Coleman to tour the country in an inspection of the work now being done in the various museums.

In speaking of his impressions of the University, Mr. Coleman said: "Your University? Why, I think it is great. Your Old Capitol is unsurpassed as a piece of college architecture."

The University of Iowa is the only school of its kind in the country offering a course in museum exhibition training. This work under Professor Dill, trains in the building of museums. One of the purposes of the training is to remove the results as far as possible from the stuffed moth-eaten horrors of a few decades ago.

Candidates File Campaign Reports

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (AP)—Reports of expenditures in their campaigns for election to the national house of representatives were filed today by the following Iowa candidates (all republicans):

Representative Kopp $962.74; Letts (successor to Rep. Hull) $1,500; Robinson $883.74; Haugen $989.08; Ramseyer $277.57.

Warren Withdraws Name for "Whip" In Curtis's Favor

Wadsworth and Watson May Take Similar Step

All Party Factions Willing to Accept Kansan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—Senator Curtis, of Kansas, virtually was agreed upon today by major majority leaders of the senate to succeed Senator Lodge as republican floor leader. The key to the whole leadership situation has been held by Senator Warren of Wyoming, who was in line for the leadership under the seniority rule which never has been violated by the republican party. He withdrew his name from the list of candidates today, however, although all factions of his party were willing to accept him as a leader.

In withdrawing, Senator Warren took occasion to endorse Senator Curtis for the post. It also was reported in senate circles that Senator Wadsworth of New York and Senator Watson of Indiana, whose names had been mentioned as candidates, were prepared to withdraw in favor of the Kansas senator which would leave the field clear for his selection at the republican conference next Friday.

The Kansas senator has borne the brunt of many republican battles as party whip and assistant floor leader and he is regarded by his friends as well qualified and deserving of the honor. His ascension to the leadership would mean the passing of another important senate position to the West as several important committee chairmanships which had been held for years by senaaors from New England and the East will be assumed by westerners.

Senator Warren said the only reason he had given any consideration to the leadership was for the sake of party harmony. The chairmanship of the powerful senate appropriations committee and the demands made upon him by his constituents, he said, prevented his taking on additional burdens.

He pointed out that the duties of a senator from Wyoming were unusually heavy since the state has only one representative in the house.

Indiana Takes Up Chlorine Method Of Curing Colds

Students of Indiana university may now have their colds cured by by chlorine gas. Equipment for treatment by the new method has been installed in the university physician's office.

One room, in which six students may be patients at one time, is devoted to the treatment. Chlorine gas is admitted into this room through a rubber tube about an inch in diameter. The gas settles to the floor and is raised to the level of the respiration of the patients by a slow moving fan which keeps the gas in motion. The student sits in this room for an hour during which he may read a book or study a lesson.

The university physician, Dr. J. E. P. Holland, states that the treatment is used for other ills including diseases of the skin.

Axe Holds Threat For Students and Turk Thanksgiving

If you don't want to get the axe that the Thanksgiving turkey will get, don't cut any classes on Wednesday or Friday of this week, is the news passed out at the registrar's office.

Thanksgiving vacation is a regular recess on the schedule of University events and the rule in regard to cutting classes just before and after vacations will be enforced. The ruling states that one hour's credit will be deducted from the total amount earned in any course for each absence at the last meeting of the class prior to a recess and the first meeting after a recess, regardless of when the meetings occur.

Koretz, Master Swindler, Exposed By Two Bankers

Large Deposits But No Income Looked Suspicious

Will Be Tried on Two Different Charges

CHICAGO, Nov. 24. (AP)—A skeptical bank clerk and detective work on the part of Abel Davis, vice president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, proved the undoing of Leo Koretz, master swindler, it was revealed tonight

The clerk in the bank of Halifax where Lou Keyte, had opened an account, noted that Keyte's deposits were unusually large, but that he had no definie income. He thought it strange that an extremely wealthy man should have no earnings whatsoever, and communicated his supicions to a Chicago client who in turn, through his attorneys informed General Davis. Then Davis as trustee for the Koretz estate turned detective and definitely established, by an exchange of photographs and hand writing specimens, that Lou Keyte was Leo Koretz.

At the same time he began proceedings in Halifax in the name of the Chicago Title and Trust company, laying claim to Koretz's newly acquired estate, his yacht, his cars and his library.

The trustee had the state authorities make the arrest as Koretz could not be extradited for the federal offense of using the mails to defraud, but could be returned to this country on the state charge of embezzlement.

Owns Book Store

A list of assets had been telegraphed by Assistant State's Attorney John Scarbaro to prosecutor Robert E. Crowe here. This list showed that Koretz had a one hundred acre estate valued at $34,048 in Nova Scotia, deposits of $48,000 in the eastern National Bank in New York City, stocks and bonds amounting to $69,000 deposited in the bank of Nova Scotia. Deposits of $2,000 in a branch of the same bank in Liverpool England.

He was also listed as the owner of a book store at 922 Madison Avenue, New York, the manager of which is Temple Scott. All these assets appeared under the name of Lou Keyte.

No Bail for Him

When Koretz is returned to Chicago a capias will be served on him and he will be placed in jail without being admitted to bail, it was said at Mr. Crowe's office.

Trial on the state charge of operating a confidence game and embezzlement will be started at once. The penalty for conviction on this charge is ten years imprisonment.

Then Koretz will be turned over to the federal authorities to face trial on an indictment for using the mail for fraud. This carries a fine of $1,000 or imprisonment for five years or both.

Girl Scouts Plan Christmas Partty

At a recent call meeting of the Iowa City girl scout council, tentative plans were made for the annual daughter and mother Christmas party.

The event will be held some time during the middle of December as it was last year. The former party was a dinner at Youde's Inn, followed by a girl scout program and the awarding of the golden eaglet, the highest honor to be attained, to scout Genelve Kirk. Since then this same honor has been been conferred on scout Edna Durst.

Judge Instructs Fahy Jury After 2 Hour Argument

Attorneys Attack Former Inspector Vigorously

Defense Attorneys Return Charges Against Glasscock

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—A federal jury at 8:30 o'clock tonight received the case of Wm. J. Fahy, former postal inspector, James Murray, Chicago politician, and Walter McComb, accused in connection with the $2,000,000 train robbery at Rondout, Illinois, last June, and retired to deliberate its verdict.

Federal Judge Ram C. Cliffe, instructed the jury after several hours of argument by opposing counsel.

Government attorneys made their most vigorous attack on Fahy.

"Fahy has gone a step further than the ordinary grafting public official," John Elliot Byrne, government prosecutor told the jury. "The evidence shows that he plotted and planned with other men to commit the very crime he had sworn to prevent, the very crime he was drawing salary from the United States government to prevent."

Defense attorneys just as vigorously attacked the government's principal witness, Brent Glasscock, alleged leader of the robbers, Herbert Holliday, and the four Newton brothers, who pleaded guilty.

The confessed robbers were termed "thieves and murderers" and the jury was asked to take into consideration their character.

Col. John C. Clinnin, McComb's attorney, maintained the government had not connected him with the robbery at all. It was in McComb's apartment that several of the confessed robbers were arrested and his attorney maintained that McComb's greatest offense was in harboring one of the Newton brothers who was wounded and whom McComb believed to have been shot in a highjacking expedition which failed.

Murray was the last witness of any importance to testify today for the defense. He admitted he had planned to appraciate in a whiskey smuggling expedition from East St. Louis to Chicago via Ottawa. He He admitted he rented a garage at Ottawa where government witnesses said the mail robbery loot was kept for a time, but said that the garage was not rented for that purpose. He admitted meeting Glasscock and Fahy at various times but denied that the meetngs were to discuss the robbery of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul mail train at Rondout.

Mrs. Harding Laid To Rest in Marion

Hundreds Pay Tribute To Widow of Late President

(By the Associated Press)

MARION, Ohio, Nov. 24.—Under a leaden November sky, Florence Kling Harding was laid to rest in Marion cemetery today beside the mortal remains of her husband whom she helped rise from country editor to the presidency of the United States

Grouped around the gray vault with heads bared to the chill wind that carried a flurry of snowflakes, hundreds paid a last tribute to the widow of Warren G. Harding, twenty ninty chief executive of the nation.

Inside the vault, the few relatives and the friends who were with her in her last days listened to the brief services that preceded the final committment of her body to its last resting place.

The casket, a veritable mass of flowers, was carried into the narrow room. The Rev. Jesse Swank, pastor of Epworth Methodist Episcopal church, read the regular burial service of his church The Rev. George M. Lndis, who had been President Harding's pastor, pronounced the benediction, and hardly had his words ceased when softly on the air swelled the refrain of "The End of a Perfect Day," from two score male throats

The brazen tones of bugles sounding taps ran through the cemetery and as the final notes ended, the vault doors were gently closed and the silent crowd turned away.

Whites to Absorb Negroes Says Hart

No Basis for Belief in Superiority of White Race

"The white race will probably entirely absorb the American negro, after many generations," predicted Prof. Clyde W. Hart, of the department of sociology, in an address bebore the Cosmopolitan Club Saturday evening.

While Prof Hart believes that assimilation will be the eventual solution of our present race problem, he insisted that we can not simply leave the problem to solve itself. Meanwhile, a solution will be facilitated by breaking down race prejudice, and by seeking ways and means whereby two or more groups may get along peaceably and progressively

Professor Hart pointed out a number of common fallacies in dealing with the race question. He stated that there is no evidence to prove that the "culurally" backward are biologically inferior, as is commonly believed, but suggested different opportunities and race standards as causes.

Free intermarriage with immigrant groups would not lower the fertility or mental capacity of the American race, and any harm which might result would be social rather than bilogical, according to Professor Hart. The so-called purity of the American race is also fallacy rather than fact, he stateded.

Geology Program Features Several Interesting Papers

"Notes on the Gold Quartz Veins of the Southern States" was the title of a paper read by A. S. Furcron, graduate assistant in the geology department, Monday. Mr. Furcron discussed the geographical location of the gold quartz veins, their distribution, economic value, and methods of mining.

The speaker explained the geology and structure of the associated rocks and listed criteria for determining the age of the veins. The size of the veins, outcrops, composition of veins and a classification of the gold quartz bearing rocks were discussed.

Official Report on Election Gives Smith Brookhart 755 Lead

Charles Smith, Iowa Grad, In London With Delegation

Charles S. Smith, a graduate of the University of Iowa in 1897, accompanied Chancellor Marx and the other members of the German delegation to London, recently, when they conferred with representatives of the allied governments regarding the Dawes plan. Mr. Smith is chief of the Berlin bureau of the Associated Press.

Wolverines Nip 5 Hawkeyes in Fight

Hancock, "Park", Romey, Smith, Otte Injured

Five Hawkeye warriors appear on the casualy list as the result of the fray last Saturday afternoon in which the Iowa huskies thoroughly trounced the Michigan aggregation at Ann Arbar.

Otte dislocated his left knee, which has been placed in a cast.

Smith, who substituted for Otte in the last three quarters sprained his right ankle.

Parkin and Romey are both in the same class as far as injuries are concerned. Each will carry a limp for the next two or three weeks on account of sprained ligaments in their right knee.

Hancock, who suffered a dislocation of the left shoulder, is now all right except for a little stiffness, according to Watler R. Fieseler, medical supervisor.

40 Witnesses for Hough Case Called

Alleged Slayer's Trial Opens at Bedford Tuesday

BEDFORD, Iowa, Nov. 24 (AP)—Forty witnesses have been summoned by the state in the trial of Carl Hough, for the alleged murder of Miss Lillian McKenney, of Herrick, South Dakota, which opens here tomorrow.

County Attorney James R. Locke will be assisted by attorney J. J. Hess of Council Bluffs. The body of the young woman was found near here August 12, four days after she had eloped from Herrick with Hough. The prosecution declares it has evidence that will convict Hough and which will show the murder was premediated and that a curious alibi was worked out by Hough when the girl was slain.

Hough's defense, it is understood will be that the girl, whom he claims to have married in Nebraska, disapeared with two strangers andthat he knows nothing of the manner of her death.

PREDICTS METAL PLANES.

LONDON, Nov. 24 (AP)—All-metal seaplanes with masts and sails to fly are possibilities of the near future, according to Dr. Wilhelm Rohrbach, who lectured recently before the Royal Society of Arts in London. He emphasized the safety and utility of seaplanes carrying sails, and said this fact might open a new era for naval seaplanes, as it meant they could sail at sea without using gasoline.

Ramsay Notifies Senator Yesterday

"Dirt Farmer" Leaves For Washington Thursday

(By the Associated Press)

DES MOINES, Nov. 24—United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart tonight was in possession of the official certificate provided by the state executive council following the finding of that body today that the senator received 755 more votes in the November 4 elections than did his democratic opponent, Daniel F. Steck.

The election certificate, which entitles the senator to the seat in the United States senate, was issued by Secretary W. C. Ramsay late today. Senator Brookhart received it personally, having spent the day at the state capitol building where the council made its check of the county canvasses.

The official figures in the senatorial contest as given out by the executive council were:

Brookhart, 447,706.

Steck, 446,951.

The council's check recorded five more votes for Brookhart than the unofficial figures compiled by The Associated Press. Representatives of both Brookhart and Steck were admitted to the room where the council checked the figures.

The senator does not expect to bring out any new legislation during the short session, he told friends, but would support any measure designed to "relieve agriculture," whether it was proposed by the president's farm commission or any legislator.

The senator leaves for Washington, D. C., on Thursday.

Fort Dodge Man Is Champ, By Shucks

Iowan Beats Huskers From Nebraska And Illinois

(By the Associated Press)

DES MOINES, Nov. 24. — Fred Stanek of Fort Dodge, this afternoon won the midwest corn husking championship, defeating five other entries from Nebraska, Illinois, and Iowa.

Virgil Archer, Benedict, Nebr., was second; Perie Mansfield, Nokomis, Ill., third; Ben Grimmius, Grundy Center, Iowa, fourth; Henry Neihaus, Nokomis, Ill., fifth, and Louis Dinklage, Wisner, Nebr., sixth.

Stanek had a net total of 1,704.8 pounds, after deductions of 41.8 for left over and 98.8 for unclean husking, were made. The huskers worked in two periods, totalling an hour and thirty minutes and were penalized when more than 75 per cent of their ears bore parts of the husks after they were "skinned."

Net totals of the other entries were: Archer 1,548.6 pounds; Mansfield, 1,471; Grimmius 1,451.4; Neihaus 1,402.4; Dinklage 1,275.

Neihus, a 53 year old farmer, went through the contest using an old fashioned wooden peg such as was in general use years ago.

Stanek received $100, prize money. Grimmius, who ended fourth today, won the Iowa championship Saturday, defeating Stanek, who took the midwest championship today.

PARISIAN TYPIST CHAMPS.

PARIS, Nov. 24 (AP)—Miss Odette Plau, of this city, is the champion typist of Europe. She won her title in an open competition in which French, Belgian, Swiss and English champion key tappers of both sexes met in this city. She struck the keys 10,943 times in 30 minutes, with only 21 mistakes.

FIND PASSPORT FORGERS

BERLIN, Nov. 24 (AP)—The Berlin police, raiding recently the rooms of two Communists in a suburb, discovered a passport forging plant with great efficiency and evidently run, not to make money, but to facilitate the movements of German Communist workers.

Our Profs Don't Rush the Movies, But They Back the Team to a Man

Maybe they don't howl wildly at the pep meetings—maybe they don't parade after the band and "rush" the movies—maybe they don't swing their cowbells as justly as other football crazed fans do—but nevertheless, the faculty of the University feels the same loyalty and interest in the team as do the most enthusiastic cheer leaders. They only express their energy in other ways.

All for Ingwersen

If the consensus of opinon should be taken, it would result in a landslide for Coach Ingwersen, Dean Robert Rienow, dean of men, waxed eloquent when the football team was even mentioned. "I am very, very much pleased with the season as a whole," he affirms," and especially with the work of Coach Ingwersen. Coming here as a new man, for his first year, he has certainly made a record to be proud of. His strong hold on the men of the team is nothing short of remarkable."

"I am for Ingwerson, first, last and all the time," said Dean F. Kay, of the college of liberal arts, "I have been tremendously interested in the spirit which he has ben able to dvelop on the part of the team, the student body, and the general public, in the short time he has been with us."

Victory Brings Enthusiasm

Dr. N. G. Alcock, always a staunch supporter of the Iowa teams, showed his spirit in his talk at the pep meeting last Wednesday night, and he is still full of enthusiasm for the victory. "The whole season was a whale of a success. Ingwerson has done the impossible," he said "As for the part taken by the students in the victory, their spirit was fine once it was started."

Prof. John J. Lambert, of the college of medicine also emphasises the good fortune of the University in securing Mr. Ingwerson as athletic director. "The University of Iowa is to be congratulated on having Coach Ingwerson in charge of football. He has a keen knwledge of the game which coupled with his zeal and enthusiasm, inspires his men to give their best for him and the University."

Wall Street Replaces Cross Word Puzzle! To Get In or Get Out?

Hurry, hurry, hurry, stock speculators and would-be "money-multipliers," for the stocks are rising rapidly upward, and no one seems to know just when they will take a tumble. At least none of the economic instructors had figured on this Wall street puzzle, or were willing to commit themselves as to the reason or outcome of the present market siutation.

It is indeed difficult to determine the underlying cause for this sudden ascension of stock prices. However, it may be attributed to the republicans having successfully downed the democrats by the election of "Cal" Coolidge; and all important business out of the way, they have chosen bidding on Wall street as a recreation from politics and crossword puzzles.

The current opinion is that no one foresaw this sudden rise or believed in their conviction that this would take place after the past depression, or the money now resting safely in the bank would have been invested and a multi-millionaire would have been the result. If they had only foreseen the certain rise in the market the stately Lincoln mgiht hvae replaced its lowly relative, the Ford.

Perhaps a deeper insight into the inner workings of the "Risk and Risk Bearing" course offered here would be an advisable class in which to register, because by some hook or crook someone might have figured this out and if not possessing the necessary "nest egg" might have informed Babson of the coming rise and thus secured the position of head statistician on Babson's reports.

A God Called Industry

THE Christmas season is upon us. Press and poster have begun the "shopping and mailing early" campaign with all the vigor of former years. Far sighted postal officials began last summer to organize a publicity compaign which would cut down the annual strangling of the mails during the holiday season. The great American Christmas spirit would seem to be some giant of phlegmatic temper whose icy heart once aroused breaks all bounds and crushes the poor shop girls and postal clerks in the pursuit of its magnanimity. Hence it must be cajoled in various subtle fashions, such as the daily "Twenty..... days until Christmas" slogan, in order that it may manifest itself in more humanitarian forms. But to consider quantity buying and giving symbolical of Christmas spirit is a misconception.

The current issue of the Atlantic Monthly carries an article by Samuel Strauss called "Things are in the Saddle," in which the author illustrates the extent to which industry creates the demand which is expedient for its supply. He traces three instances of the circular process of the great economic law, and he might have used the annual orgy of holiday buying as a fourth instance. The origin of Christmas giving is authentic, and a certain per cent is still sincere. But its huge bulk to-day represents a commercial institution which we must submit to whether we will or not. "This human will which we brag about, this power of choice with which we fancy ourselves invested, is nonexistant," according to Mr. Strauss. "Men do not move but are moved only; they are only cogs in the great machine."

By weeping and gnashing of teeth for the poor shop girl and postal clerk the public will not be induced to "shop and mail early" while it is so busy sympathizing with itself. And it must sympathize with itself so long as industry-made convention forces it to undergo several weeks strain of buying and giving inaugurated by obligation rather than sentiment. Most of the late shopping and mailing is that per cent which people do not want to do. To ease the postal service would be to urge more Christmas spirit and less tissue-wrapped, holly-tied symbols of it. But what amounts the loss of a Christmas eve or a Christmas day to 300,000 postal clerks in the cause of a god called Industry?

Human Motors

A LAW of the United States is causing husbands to be separated from wives, children from parents. If the immigration question were viewed from this standpoint, many voters, who themselves are from happy homes, would have a very different opinion of its treatment. The whole plan of civilization is built on the institution of the family, and yet our laws will allow America to be a destructive element against its preservation.

Our immigration laws have not always been so cruel. Starting with a liberal policy, each year they have become more strict, according to our lessening need of an additional population. Up until 1868 we favored the admission of all the foreigners we could get. Contract labor, however, was no longer encouraged after this date. Criminals were bared in 1875. Chinese in 1882, contract labor in 1885, the mentally unsound in 1891, professed anarchists in 1903, and illiterate persons in 1917. The law in 1921 limited immigration to 3 per cent of the number of each nation here according to the census of 1910. In 1923 the number to be admitted was fixed at 2 per cent of the census of 1890.

Each year one more barrier has been placed between the foreigners and his mystical land of promise. American people as they pass these laws are not thinking of individuals who desire their slice of happiness, who claim their right to freedom of living, but as negative masses, differing from machinery only in that they possess the human motor and human form. When we can use them we let them in; when we no longer feel an actual need, we refuse to find a place for those who often need us.

Mr. Davis, secretary of the department of labor, has seen the unfairness of the present law and has asked that it be changed. It is up to our congressmen to determine whether or not the ideal of restriction is so high that they will refuse to come to the aid of those who are suffering because of the present law.

A county bankers' federation in Illinois is offering 1,000 for every robber, dead, or alive, who is caught in the county. Step up boys, here's an easy way to make a year's college expenses.

"Bigger and Better Baby Bandits" seems to be the slogan in certain sections of the great city of Chicago.

Dear Em Quad:

The imminence of Turkey Day brings to our mind a problem which, for the welfare of the University, should be solved at once. Knowing you to be benevolent and influential, we are appealing to your philanthropy to save our school from the disgrace of permitting an institution fostering the privileged few to continue in existence here.

It has come to our attention that our mutual friend, P. B. Kappa, has worked out a system to save his scholastic neck by employing to his advantage the rule against skipping classes before and after vacations. When P. B. perceives that he is flunking in a two hour course, he immediately proceeds to skip two classes proximate a vacation, thus losing his two hours credit, and registering "fd" in 0 hours of work. If he should drop the course, or continue and get credit, he would have "fd" in two hours of work, which would detract somewhat from his 3.2 average.

Can you not do something to stop this evil before the Thanksgiving recess permits a further resort to this foul means of maintaining a studious reputation?

Emeraldus VII .500—

Goodness! Goodness! Emeraldus, how did you guess that we are benevolent? Of course we are, but we didn't know that the information had becomme current. We rather like that expression "become current"—and yet it leaped spontaneously and palpitatingly from our consciousness. We are quoting Velma, who is the office's official scintillator. We know that "office's official" is monstrous, but we are feeling monstrous. We are a little in doubt about signifying possession by the office. We realize that possession by inanimate things should be indicated by a prepositional phrase rather than by an apostrophe—but this office is nothing if not animate.

But we must get on, else you will think we are just stalling around trying to fill the column. That is the very thing we are doing, and you must not guess it.

You are right about our being benevolent, but not about the influential. We have been trying since the first of October to get a raise from the business office. We get a rise, but not a raise. So you see we have no influence. Consequently we cannot be said to be influential. We cannot be influential unless we have influence. O, what a paucity of ideas we are suffering under! We feel like a primer.

Well, to get on. We are benevolent but not influential. We do this to get our bearings.

We cannot make any statement on "philanthropy" until we find out what it means. Our amanuensis is looking for it now. Are you sure you spelled it correctly? She says she can't find it.

We wish that you would bring Mr. Kappa around to our lair sometime. We want to look at that scholastic neck. We've been told that our neck looks kinda funny, and if it should turn out to be a scholastic neck, we would no longer be under the necessity of summoning a maidenly blush to our cheeks twice a day when someone comments on the peculiar appearance of the portion between our head and shoulders.

Now we come to the less important part of this letter—the request for action to make further abuse of the absence-before-and-after-vacation rule by prospective P. B. Kappa impossible. Of course we could stop this pernicious practice. And of course we do not intend to do anything of the kind.

That's the way we got our watch charm.

Box Car Furnished Octave Thanet With Inspiration for Pseudonym

"My first literary admirations," writes Alice French (Octave Thanet) to the members of the Octave Thanet literary society in response to a request to know something of her work, "were excited away back in the last century by Walter Scott and the New ork Ledger. You don't remember the reign of Robert Bonner and the New York Ledger; but your mothers or your grandmothers may . . .My brothers and I were devoted to the Ledger and thrilled beyond words by the vast serials of the many initialed Mrs. Southworth and her humbler but just as exciting compeers.

"Once a week did the Enchanter appear. By common consent the first captor of the Ledger had the first right to its perusal. The postman brought it about noon. We used to race home that day to get in. It was annoying to have meals interrupt; but while we were an honorable bunch we were also shrewd;; and our continued possession was ensured by the simple device of sitting on the paper.

"I believe I began at ten years of age to write humble imitations of the Gunmaker of Moscow and the adventures of Capitola—I think that was her name. I used to illustrate them myself. The hero's name was Conrad. He was a conspirator. I don't remember what he conspired. He was always in danger but always escaped. Personally he was beautiful except that his eyes were never quite the same size. But any of you who are in the art course drawing from life will undestand how very difficult it is to get eyes of the same size and of course you can't have people always in profile like an Egyptian frieze.

"Well, the Ledger passed. I grew up and went away to school east and was captured by new gods. . . . I had few gods and I fear my omniverous studies in English, French, Spanish, Italian, and German literatures were mere browsings in rich pastures, aimless to a degree; and that your professors of literature would tell you they bore about the same relation to real knowledge that a candy shop bears to real nourishment. But in some directions they were more or less thorough; and generally they were honest; and I might say to myself as the lady said to her husband, "you might have done better but then you you might have done worse."

"In the midst of this desultory but ardent study I began to write a little myself, very humbly; and I was able to place a story in Godey's Magazine. You don't remember Godey's; I doubt you never heard the name; but it had its vogue. I don't remember anything about the story except that it was sad—sad. . . . . When I began to write I wallowed in woe. Also I felt obliged to be cynical. Therefore inevitably the Godey story was sad.

So was the story accepted later by Lippincott's Magazine and my first story in Scribner's. By the time my first book was out I had lived deeply enough to be cheerful again. Youth is always secretly fascinated by gloom. After one has really suffered the image of suffering no longer attracts.

Your president has asked me to tell you how I chose my pen name. Very simply and casually. I was on my way home from the Atlantic Coast. I had decided to try to write in earnest, and I was thinking of a name. I wanted one which might belong either to a man or woman. My room-mate at school whom I admired and loved was named Octave. Here you see was a Christian name that might be either an English woman's or a French man's. And as I sat in my car, idly watching trains shunt on the tracks at the station, I kept fishing about in my mind for a surname to fit Octave.

Just then a baggage car lumbered into sight and stopped. On its bright red side was written in gleaming white chalk 'Thanet'. Voila tout! I took it. Why it was there I haven't the least idea. I have told you all I know. . . . .

What do I try to do in my writing? To tell the truth in the best English I can muster. To give an honest picture of our multitudinous American life, to look beneath its garish, clamorous exterior to its honest subconscious yearning for beauty and for better things of the spirit as well as of the body."

Genius Triumphs Over Haughtiness Of Editors in Scribbler's Contest

Although magazine editors are presumed to be profoundly wise and all-knowing in the public eye, every young author knows that these editors often fail to see the merits of certain literary masterpieces. It has even been breezed around that the editor of the Iowa Literary Magazine has failed to recognize the breath of genius and the approaching fame of a number of student writers, by refusing to print their works in her magazine.

But this wicked editor is about to be caught at her own game. The Iowa Scribblers' Conest, now being sponsored by the Daily Iowan and the Literary Magazine, will be her undoing for she has promised to print the winning essay, poem, and short story in the January issue of the Iowa Literary Magazine.

With the nonchalance of Baudelaire but with the artistry of Cabell, it will be your part to produce a work of art which the judges of the contest will acclaim as a possible winner of the Pulitzer prize for 1925. After having taken the first prize in this paltry contest, you can afford to pass this cringing magazine editor on the street without even bothering to look at her. It will no longer be necessary for you to smile at her with a patronizing air, for she will have to print your masterpiece, whether she likes it or not.

Beware! Terrible Light Incubates Diptheria Germ

A new invention for a lighthouse, or the flickering torch of a safe-breaker? Every night, pedestrians on Dubuque and Jefferson streets look up at the top floor of the medical building, and seek some explanation for those blinking lights that flash on and off there all night long.

A little gleam of light shines on the windows for a moment, then all is dark again. Soon another glimmer—followed by utter darkness.

Studious frosh who have remained at the library until the chanted hour of ten look up at the twinkling lights, and remember Paul Revere's "glimmer and then a gleam of light," and feel quite poetical themselves. Little boys recall the hair-raising mystery stories they've read, and think this might be a chance to become master boy detectives.

Then, recollecting the tales of dead bodies and mad dogs on the same floor of the same building, scurry home to pull the covers over their heads.

But in reality, the weird illumination is only a part of an electrical device to regulate the temperature of an incubator—not for a brood of chicks, but for a culture of detestable diphtheria germs.

Each time the light goes on or off, the temperature has fluctuated perhaps a thousandth of a degree, two tiny steel points have drawn together or apart, and caused that little flash of light.

165 Co-Eds Seek Initiation Into W. A. A. Tonight

Groups to Give Stunts After Ceremony Is Performed

Required Points Are Earned in Eight Sports

The first W. A. A. initiation of the year will be held this evening at 7:30 in the women's gym, under the supervision of Thelma Whimpey, A4 of Albia, vice-president. Monday afternoon, the women met in the gym and were divided into groups of twenty-five to prepare for a stunt to be presented after initiation tonight, and to take a quiz over the constitution of the association. The stunt leaders who were appointed for each group were: Aileen Carpenter, A1 of Iowa City; Maxine Glover, A1 of Oak Park, Ill.; Mary Kraft, A1 of Oelwein; and Helen Meinhard, A3 of Storm Lake.

Those initiates to the number of 165 include point winners in all the branches of W. A. A. work, hiking, swimming, canoeing, riding, golf, and hockey, volley-ball, and field-ball teams.

The women whose names are now ready to be proposed for initiation are: H. Andrews, G. Auman, K. Bowman, G. Bartz, M. Cromer, H. Christiansen, N. Cullison, C. Cox, H. Chatterson, R. Carter, F. Powder Horns and 1620 Grins Are Ready for Thanksgiving Varsity

"Wilt thou dance with yon handsome swain?" queried the hostess.

"Why don't you speak for yourself, John," peeved Priscilla over the hostess' shoulder at the bashful Tarzan, who was nervously chewing the end of his tie.

"Thou wretch, 'tis not according to Emily to speak thus to strangers," huffed the hostess at Priscilla. Then with sucrose voice she turned on her pointex heel and spoke, "May I present M. Alden?" and they were off to the rollicking rolls of the Virginia Reel.

For John and Priscilla will be there Thursday, and with all the other afternoon varsity devotees, to joggle down the turkey and meet the other pilgrims who have had enough ambition to climb those Varsity stairs.

The muskets will be stacked at the door, but the powder horns will be retained. Even a Pilgrim's nose shines.

The orchestra will rant through jibberring minuets while thee's and thou's float up to the green and red chandeliers and perch there with a 1620 grin.

Hamburgers Will Feature Hep-Zet Literary Mixer

The Hesperian and Zetagathian literary societies will entertain this evening at 5:45 in the Hep-Zet hall. All members of the two societies and their guests are invited. Refreshments consisting of hamburger sandwiches, pickles, pumpkin pie, and cider will be served, followed by a program and dancing.

Arrangements have been made to allow those to leave early who wish to attend the W. A. A. initiation.

Alice Hagedorn, A4 of Luverne, Minn., and Wesley A. Hughes, A4 of Des Moines, are in charge of the party.

Y. W. to Recruit Summer Workers

Camp Secretary Will Interview All Applicants

Miss Hazel K. Allen, national camp secretary of the Y. W. C. A., will be in Iowa City December 5 and 6 to recruit workers for the coming summer in Camp Okoboji. Miss Allen has charge of the plans for all Y. W. C. A. summer camps in the United States, and her work includes major arrangements for the summer conferences held in all sections of the country each summer.

During her visit here she will interview those interested in qualifying for the following kinds of work during the summer months: an office force, including stenographers, book-keepers and general workers; a post mistress; a staff of councilors; a head for the store and book shop and ten or fifteen women to help with the serving and preparation of the meals.

Miss Nelle Summers, secretary of the Y. W. C. A., has asked that all who are interested in the work offered see her in the Y. W. C. A. office before the end of this week and to arrange for an interview with Miss Allen.

Announcements

Announcements, to be printed in this column, should be received at the Daily Iowan office before 6 p. m. and should be typewritten.

Glee Clubs Choose Opera, "Pinafore", For Spring Number

Glee Club Membership Not Required for Tryout

Organizations Present Gounod's "Faust" In January

Professor Walter Leon, director of the men's and women's glee clubs, announces that the clubs will present for light open "Pinafore" next spring.

Last year the glee clubs presented only one opera, "The Mikado," but this year they will present two. At the present time, they are working on Gounod's opera "Faust," which will be given some time in January. Membership in a glee club is not a requirement for "Pinafore." Tryouts for the comic opera will be held every Tuesday and Thursday between 1 and 2 o'clock.

The two-act comic opera is written by Gilbert and Sullivan. The theme concerns the captain of the H. M. S. Pinafore who wants his daughter, Josephine, to marry Sir Joseph Porter, First Lord of the Admiralty. But she is in love with Ralph, a sailor. They agree to elope, but their plan is betrayed by Dick Deadeye, the villain. A bumboat woman, Little Buttercup, who is in love with the captain, informs the First Lord that the Captain and Ralph had accidentally been exchanged as infants.

Public Opinion Alone Can End War: Weatherly

"War will be outlawed and will only come as public opinion demands it,' said Arthur L. Weatherly, pastor of Unitarian church, yesterday afternoon before the meeting of the league of women voters.

"There is no sane person today believes that war is a good thing but many people believe that the way to stop war is by preparation of military forces and by the force of public opinion."

The talk "The Outlawery of War" was opened by a summary of the idea of the League of Nations, its purpose, nations belonging, and how this reorganization plans to do away with war if possible.

Then the proposed plan of Senator Borah was taken up and explained, stating the origin and the proposal itself. Last the idea of International Court was brought in and the possible problems with it.

In conclusion Mr. Weatherly stated that everyone is interested in this question but its solution will come only as public opinion demands it. He added that the supreme court has not power to enforce decrees but everybody expects the executive power to do it, and thus they obey a law. It will be the same way with the outlawing of war.

Meetings of the League will take place every first and third Thursday of the month.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon Wins Tournament and Travelling Cup in Golf Finals Sunday

"Turk's" Chances Slim After Today's Big Race

"They're all out after a turkey." This statement of Coach Tom Martin best describes the reason for which the freshman cross country crew hasn't been taking holidays from workouts lately. The turkey is to be the first prize for the annual Hawkeye run held at noon today.

The Hawkeye event will be held over three laps of the Quadrangle course for a distance of 2.1 miles. The contest will start and finish on the hill nearest the Quadrangle.

Coach Martin's proteges will probably stage one of the hottest contests of the year to obtain a basis for a substantial turkey day feed. In addition to the Hawkeye traveling cup being given for first place, there will be poultry prizes for the next four finishing positions. All the competitors seem to lack in the struggle is an ax. Plenty of speed and dash will be shown if the spirit appearing in workouts is an indicator and the contest should be an interesting one.

The yearlings will not only be compelled to carry on the fight against the members of their own class but must buck outside competition as well. The varsity reserves are reported to be out in full strength and to say that the turkey has a chance to escape would be on a par with an utterance reporting that submarines would be equipped with sails in the future.

Davenport-Clinton Clash to Have University Officials

THE clash between Davenport and Clinton Thanksgiving day will be regulated by an all-Iowa bunch of officials, according to an announcement made by Manager Newton Bornholdt of the Davenport high school. Burt Ingwersen, head coach of the Hawkeye institution, will referee; Gordon Locke, former all-American fullback and now assistant coach, will umpire; and Dr. Walter Fieseler, medical supervisor of athletics, will act as head linesman.

The officials were selected by Manager Bornholdt.

Irish "Horsemen" Matched Against Stanford New Year

PASADENA, Calif., Nov. 24: (AP)—The Stanford University football team has been chosen to meet the eleven of Notre Dame here on New Year's Day, according to well authenticated reports in tournament of roses circles here today.

Overtime Period Good to Sig Alphs

The Sig Alphs emerged on top, barely on top, from their first game in the inter-fraternity water basketball series yesterday afternoon, sinking the Phi Epsilon Pi splashers by a one-goal margin.

For the full period of time the two teams fought without either side scoring, although both teams had many chances. In the overtime period, Vanderveer came through with a lone tally for the Sig Alphs.

Vanderveer at froward and Krumviede at guard played good ball for the winners, while Alswang was the mainstay of the Phi Eps.

The teams: Sig Alphs—Krumviede, Thomas, Sheehan, Vanderveer, Seashore, Hammill; Phi Epsilon Pi—Alswang, Urdangen, Taxman, Goldstein, Garfield, Krigstein, Hcohenburg.

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 24: (AP)—Lewis E. Sands, missing world bean king, was arrested here tonight with his sister by the Hillsborough county sheriff just as the two were boarding a train levaing Tampa.

Post-office to Observe Thanksgiving Holiday

Turkey day is a legal holiday in the postal department and Iowa City postal authoritfes state that only special deliveries and packages containing perishable goods will be delivered on Thursday, November 27. The general delivery and stamp windows will be open in the morning, on that day, from 9:30 to 10:30 o'clock for the convenience of patrons desiring money orders and stamps.

Canned Heat

iDd you know that Iowa won as many Big Ten games as Ohio State, Wisconsin, Purdue, Indiana and Minnesota combined.

Iowa could'uv won the conference championship if it had scheduled Purdue, Indiana, Northwestern, and Chicago.

And by the way of comparative scores Iowa had a much stronger team than Chicago. Here they are:

Iowa 13 Minnesota 0.
Minnesota 20 Ilinois 7.
Illinois 21 Chicago 21.
Michigan 27 Northwestern 0.
Northwestern 0 Chicago 3.
Iowa 9 Michigan 2.
Iowa 21 Wisconsin 7.
Wisconsin 0 Chicago 0.

That Illinois defeat can be easily explained now that the season is over. In a season of inconsistency and of upsets, can you even expect as strong a team as Iowa to go through the season undefeated?

All the other noted sports writers will begin to pick their all-conference teams soon. But this column will wait a few days. We have it picked now and refuse to be influenced or bought off. But just wait for it, it will be good.

The Chicago Cubs are looking for a loud-mouthed coach. Some of those rooters who were out Saturday night ought to make good if that is the only qualification.

Water Basketball Men Get Ready for Opening Games

The water basketball candidates are working out regularly under the tutelage of Coach Dave Armbruster. Under the leadership of Captain Sorenson, the men are showing steady improvement and should be in good form for the opening contests in January.

Conference coaches have not definitely decided whether water basketball or water polo will be played this year as a chaser for the swimming contests. This point will be decided at a meeting in Chicago early in December, which Coach Armbruster will attend.

Delta Tau Delta Defeated 12 to 0 In Final Contest

In the final match of the interfraternity golf tournament, played Sunday, the Sig Alphs won from the Tau Delts, 12 to 0. With a lead of four to nothing by virtue of a win in the first half of the match, the Sig Alphs kept on going and won the first nine of the second half, thereby cinching the match.

With only defeat ahead of them, the Delts forfeited the rest of the match and conceded the victory to the S. A. E. team.

The winners played consistent golf throughout the tournament and eliminated some of the teams rated as the possible contenders for the trophy in an exceptionally easy manner.

The Sig Alphs will have possession of the travelling cup for the following year, but they must defend their honors next fall, since the tournament is an annual affair.

Ask Iowa Gridders For Intersectional

An aftermath to a most successful all around grid season will be brought about at Cleveland, Ohio, Saturday December 6 when a picked team from the west will meet a picked team of the east in a great inter-sectional contest.

Iowa has been honored by having three of its grid warriors invited to play with the western squad. Parkin, and Otte have been invited but because of injuries last Saturday to Otto and Parkin, Hancock will be the only Hawkeye representative.

This game is being sponsored by the Big Ten athletic council under the name of "Grid-Grads". Representative seniors from various prominent universities who have proven their worth during the last season will make up the two elevens.

The proceeds will be donated to a fund to build a large municipal stadium similar to the one at Chicago. The players will receive all expenses, but no pay for their actual participation in the game, and therefore the question of their future standings as amateurs will not be arise.

Who the other members of the squads will be has not been announced as yet.

Burt Will Call Football Eligibles Out in February

Coach Burt Ingwersen announced last night that spring grid practice will begin probably about the middle of February. At that time all of the men who will be eligible for competition next fall will be called out for lights workouts.

Listen, Iowa

You have to give it the White Sox. They play half their games outside Chicago anayway. And they will go to Europe if they think there is money enough in it.

But Henry Ford and John D. Rockefeller couldn't get Stagg's Maroons outside the city limits more than once a year if both were pulling in one direction.

This year Chicago did play one game away from home. It surely won't be many years now until the snow will get too deep for the basketball team to leave town.

And even the lowly White Sox might win a championship if they could pick their own opponents.

Some poor man with seven children and the Iowa spirit must have lost his job in the Chicago Tribune force as soon as last Sunday's papers were discovered.

Surely none of the bosses intended that the list of Big Ten standings should show IOWA in caps along with a bunch of nine lower case teams.

With the announcement that Sears, Roebuck and Co. "for the protection of the public" will discontinue the sale of all firearms, we wonder how George will protect freshman parties in the years to come.

The Michigan sports squinter has it figured out that the whitewashed headgears the Wolverines wore the other day were designed to baffle the Corn and Cowbell boys.

The scheme didn't cost much anyway.

Up in the land of Michigania the cowbell atmosphere was described as "distinctly rural." We don't know what that means, but it's all right.

As it began to drizzle before the game was over, Michigan thought Nature was weeping because the Wolverines were not getting any touchdowns.

Some of the Hawkeyes thought it was because Otte was and had to leave the game.

It's hard to tell who was right, but as Smith kept on holding down the left end in big time style in his first game, and Michigan continued not to make a touchdown, and Nature continued to weep, a chill went through her heart and the tears became snow.

And what Michigan couldn't see was where the Wolverines were when the snow flakes melted.

About fourth we'd say.

YOU'RE WELCOME,
Mizzou

24 Frosh Await Numeral Sanction

Twenty-four numeral sweaters will be given to as many freshman football candidates, sometime in the near future when the athletic board has approved of the recommendations sent in by Coach Rollie Williams.

The 1928 numerals will be much heavier in texture than usual, and will be composed of the stuff that the regular "I" sweater is made from.

The actual awards will not be made until the sanction of the athletic board has been placed upon the candidates.

Iowa City High In Good Shape For Thursday's Game

The cold snap greatly accelerated the Lowa City High grid practice last night, Coach Souchek held one of the scrappiest, though short, scrimmages of the season. The Red and White mentor is injecting his men with all the barbed wire and brimestone they can hold, for the locals will need every trick and muscle at their command to down Mason City Thanksgiving day.

The Turkey day game represents the climax in the Little Hawks' career for this season. The eleven has developed into a unified machine that has shown up better in each successive conflict. They present an array of opposition that would make any prep team quake. All men are in the pink of condition and the acme of training. Coach Souchek has severely enforced the latter throughout the grid year, even though it cost him two of his regulars.

In the half hour scrimmage last night the seconds held the first three times for downs and forced them to kick. On one of these kicks, Douglas, second guard, broke through and blocked it, but his team failed to recover the ball. In spite of the hard plugging of the seconds, the firsts made two touchdowns.

Strickler showed good place-kicking in putting a good percentage of the kicks attempted between the markers. Boyles, quarterback, has the co-operation of his interference in boxing the opponent wings for wide end runs and he adds much yardage in this way. Prentiss took his place in a part of the scrimmage. Judy, halfback, was back into the fray and seems to be stronger than ever, with the addition of a noseguard.

The line has worked out a hammering system of attack but it has taken the insistent pounding of Coach Souchek to keep them low and driving after making bodily contact. On the defensive they are secure and presented an impenetrable wall to the second tsring.

The first lineup at the start of the scrimmage placed Forwald over the ball, Lindsley and Dolezal at guards, Vestermark and Goldman at tackles, and Idema and captain Slemmons, on the wings. Boyles placed quarterback, Strickler and Judy, halves, and Adrian full.

Grid Game Gives Up Its Basketeers

Coach Rollie Williams' freshman cage squad was increased last night by the appearance of his grid men, who checked in their cleated shoes, and headgears, and cavorted about the gym in scanty raiment.

About a dozen of this year's freshman football squad reported for practice at the Men's gym.

Among the men who reported for the first time last night were William Gamble of Missouri Valley, E. Young of Cedar Rapids, Harrison of Iowa City, M. Gaffney of Mason City, E. Soesbe of Greene, J. Music of Ankeny, C. Thomsa of Marshalltown, and Leland Skelly.

Passing the ball down the floor, pivoting, and shooting were emphasized by Williams in the evening's practice.

Pittsburgh Takes Big Annual Race

NEW YORK, Nov. 24: (AP)—Pittsburgh University sprang a sensational upset today by capturing the intercollegiate varsity cross country team championship in a race in which individual honors went to "Mac" Smith of Yale.

Pittsburgh finished with a final score of 57 points while Harvard was second with 75 points and Syracuse, two-time champion and the favorite third with 82 points.

LONDON, Nov. 24 (AP)—As a result of an error on the part of Britain's food ministry during the war, a gift of $150,000 to found scholarships in certain agricultural colleges is contemplated by a number of dairy companies which benefitted by the mistake.

Phelps Supreme Among Mid-West X-Country Men

"Over hill, over dale
Through brush, through briar
Over park, over pale . . .
ILL be gone."

The quotation, although an utterance of the Bard of Avon, might well have been the sentiments of Captain Harold Phelps of Iowa as he raced in for individual honors in the conference cross country meet last Saturday at Ann Arbor, 100 yards ahead of the largest field ever entered in the event. Phelps led his team into second place for the team championship which was won by Wisconsin's well balanced aggregation. The time for the five-mile course was 25:59 7-10.

Phelps Takes Led Early

Phelps' performance was one of the greatest staged on the western conference in the last fifteen years. His time is rated as the best ever made in the Big Ten race, ther being no standard record owing to the variation in the hazards and length ofthe courses. The Hawkeye leader is the second man to win the Big Ten championship twice and is the only Iowan who ever won the conference title. Not since 1913-14 when Watson of Minnesota won the middle western title has anyone been able to gallop off with individual winners medals more than once. Phelps' double win plus his remarkable time has give nthe harriers of the future a mark to shoot at.

The Hawkeye pilot took the lead at the end of the fifth half mile and was never headed and gradually increased his margin of safety until it was hopeless for the others to overtake him. Wikoff of Ohio State, the man who was doped to give the Iowan a teriffic battle, planned to triumph by a sprint at the finish. He never had a chance and watched the Old Gold runner set the pace for the entire distanre. His downfall was complete and he finished behind the entire Iowa team in 38th place.

Wisconsin Triumphs

The race furnished numerous surprises in the struggle for individual honors. Of the favorites, only Phelps and Mieher of Illinois returned to take the same positions they ran in last year. Wikoff of Ohio and Bourke of Chicago were among the "also rans." Of the runners, Shimek of Marquette, Wendland of Notre Dame and Helma of Ohio Weslyan, furnished the greatest surprise by taking 2nd, 3rd and 5th respectively.

In the battle for team championship, the balance and general speed of the Wisconsin runners triumphed finishing their men in 7th, 8th, 9th, 12th and 15th places for 51 points. The Iowa cow path crew, who were second finished 1st, 15th, 24th, 25th and 33rd positions for a total of 98 points. The debacle of the Ohio state harriers, who were doped as favorites was one of the surprises of the meet as they finished 4th place.

Marquette Man Second

Credit is due the remainder of the Iowa team who ran good races. Bruno Marchi especially deserves credit for the improvement he has shown in the past year by finishing 15th in the event, being the second Iowan to cross the finish line. Everett Van Nss was third at 24th, Arnold Bndr wourh a 26th and Rollin Stonbrook was fifth at 33rd.

The teams finished: Wisconsin, 52; Iowa 98, Michigan 104; Ohio State 121; Illinois 136; Ames 143; Oberlin 191; Notre Dame 219; Ohio Wesylan 222; Marquette 226; Minnesota 250; Northwestern 251; Chicago 286; Michigan Aggies 288.

The first ten men finished: Phelps, Iowa; Shimek, Marquette; Wendland, Notre Dame; E. Mieher, Illinois; Helma, Ohio Weslyan; Conger, Ames; Bergstresser, Wisconsin; Piper, Wisconsin; Kubly, Wisconsin; Briggs, Michigan.

Shy Alcyonarian Prefers to Blush Unseen on Reefs

"She shrank from him and grew pale with fright."

But he was merely an interested botanist, and she was only a peculiar plant-like animal living in the clear shallows of the Makaluva coral reefs around the Fiji Islands.

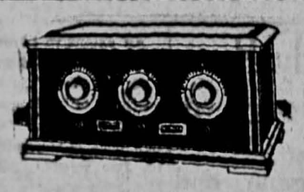
Umber-brown in color and bearing a strong resemblance to the plebian cauliflower in size and shape, this strange member of the Alcyonarian family actually does retract its branches into small knobs, exposing only a white surface to the curious gaze of the explorer.

Such plant-animals are closely related to the coral family and are often spoken of as flexible corals. There are many species of Alcyonarians, but Prof. C. C. Nutting of the department of zoology, says that he has never seen this particular form in any other spot than on the Makaluva coral reefs.

Crystalized Cactus Candy Sent Here From California

Candy made from the juice of the giant Visnage or barrel cactus of the desert was among the unusual content of a box from California received by Miss Bessie McCrea.

Crysalized cactus candy has been made for many years by the Indians and Mexicans by means of a secret process which has only recently been secured by a candy company. The box also contained specimens of fruits uncommon to this part of the country such as the green and purple avocadvos, and papaws.



Choose Wisely!

In selecting a broadcast receiver, it is well to distinguish between essential and non-essential considerations. The circuit is important, in so far as it affects performance, but the mysterious trick names now so much in vogue are not.

We have selected Superhetrodyne, Super Zenith and Crossley receivers to sell to our customers.

We believe that one of these sets will come well within the reach of all and that each in its own way combines the only three things that constitute real value—efficient performance, attractive appearance and fair price. Be sure to examine these receivers before your make your final selection.

Zoning Plans Need Constructive Criticism, Claims City Attorney

Zoning Commission Explains Details of Plans To Property Owners at City Hall Today

"WHAT we need is constructive criticism," explained Attorney C. B. Russell when discussing the preliminary report of the zoning commission which was submitted to the first public hearing in the city hall last night.

Members of the commission will answer any questions of property owners today in the city council rooms from 4:00 to 6:00 o'clock and from 7:00 o'clock until all questions are answered.

"The commission does not care for complaints made without any knowledge of the proposed draft, but any constructive criticism that can be offered by any person will be given full consideration by the commission," continued Attorney Russell.

"The commissioners themselves, in offering the proposed ordinance, understood that the ordinance as proposed would and should be changed in many respects after the public meetings and before a final report is sent to the council by the commission." The tenative draft of the ordinance was passed by a vote of eleven to one at the last meeting of the commissioners. George D. Koser, member of the Koser Bros. Realty firm, represented the opposition.

As a matter of law, explained Attorney Russell, the ordinance cannot be made retractive but the commissioners have gone a step farther by providing that if any building now exists in violation of some regulation of the ordinance, and such building is later damaged or destroyed it may be rebuilt so long as the reconstruction does not add any additional objectionable feature.

If the ordinance is finally passed by the council and if at any time later it is found defective or inequitable, it may be amended or repeled as may any other ordinance. The intent of the law is to make the ordinance elastic by providing a board of adjustment which must receive claims or complaints made by any individual and may permit such deviations from the wording of the ordinance as they may find the conditions of the particular case require.

Court Picks Jury For Patrick Case

O'Connor and Baldwin Prosecute; Negus, Maine Defend

Empanelling of a jury for the trial of Lloyd E. Patrick, charged with a statutory offense, was begun in district court yesterday before Judge Ralph Otto. It is expected that the process will be completed this forenoon.

Patrick, a young Iowa City physician, is under indictment for an alleged criminal assault on Velma Irons, 15, and said to be mentally deficient. He is represented in court by Henry Negus, and A. E. Maine. County Attorney O'Connor, assisted by W. J. Baldwin, is prosecuting the case.

The Proposed Zoning Ordinance

IN 1923 there were 252 homes built in Iowa City. A conservative estimate places the number which will be built this year at about 150. These new homes, with the more than 3,000 others in the city, represent an enormous property value, and the protcetion of these homes is perhaps the chief problem of city government.

The city council, through the work of the zoning commission, has just undertaken another advanced step for the protection of these homes. Last night, the zoning commission presented their plans at an open hearing in order to get an expression of opinion from the citizens who are so vitally affected by the proposed plan.

Those who are familiar with the working of the zoning system are confident that it is a step of which the many home-owners of the city will approve. It operates to stabilize property values. Under the new system there is no danger of a beautiful residence district being ruined by the appearance of a factory, garage, warehouse, or some other obnoxious building. It insures peace and quiet in these districts, and guarantees against offensive odors, dust, and dirt. It permits the most effective planning of paving, sewage, and water systems. It reduces the fire hazard.

The city is proud of its homes, and it should be anxious to take a step that will insure their safety, beauty, and value.

Where Rats Get Entree to Ladies' Quarters, Plus Board and Lodging

The days of hoop skirts and paisley shawls are over. Women are abandoning even the time-honored timidity of mice. In the "good old days" a girl was much admired when she could affect an artistic faint at the sight of a slim gray tail snapping around the corner. Not so in these days.

The Great Fear has so far vanquished that in Perkins hospital a select colony of black and white rats is given a private nurse (female) and a room all their own. Each day she brings them food and gives them painstaking care.

In spite of their well-ordered existence they lead a "dog's life" for they are not there by the charity of organization sponsored by rich men's daughters but as specimens for experiment.

Each day these defensless creatures are fed on varying diets, and are watched by the dieticians with eagle eyes. Different baby foods are tried out on them in an endeavor to find out what elements are necessary to make up the best artificial food for growing babies.

And so the rats give their lives that we may thrive in our infanthood. Such is modern civilization!

Parents, Teachers To Gather Monday

Schools Co-operate in Preparations for All-city Mixer

All parents and guardians of Iowa City public school children have been invited to participate in a mixer at the high school gymnasium Monday evening at 7:30 p. m.

Parents and faculty members will gather informally for one of the largest community gatherings in which the schools have taken part.

Mrs. W. F. Boller is general chairman of the mixer. Different committees have been assigned to arrange for the music, stunts, advertising, invitations, and refreshments.

Three schools will take care of the music and six others the stunts. The orchestra will furnish music for dancing the latter part of the evening.

U High Raises $106 For Athletic Fund

Mixer, Food Sales, Tag Day, and Candy Bring Money

Brain work and ingenuity, helped University high students raise one hundred six dollars for the athletic fund.

The most profitable money raiser was the all-high school mixer, sponsored by the seniors, held in the Woman's gym, Friday night. About two hundred fifty people represented all the schools of Iowa City.

Weller to Speak to High School Students Tonight on Greek Art

Prof. C. H. Weller, head of the History of Art department, will give an illustrated lecture on Greek art at the Iowa City High school today at 7:30 p. m. for the students of Miss Catherine Letts' History classes.

After the lecture Misses Esther Hay A4, Helen B. Lewis, A2 Mary Agnes Flannagan, A3, and Elizabeth B. Dickenson, A3, of the Classical Club will put on representations of famous statues.

Radio for the Week

Radio activity throughout the United States for this week is being confined to International experimentation. American and European radio authorities are cooperating by operating from 9:00 to 10:00 p. m. every night while European stations are listening in for the programs. From 10:00 to 11:00 the foreign stations will do their sending while local receivers attempt to tune in.

Station WHAA is having good success in reaching distance listeners. The engineers' station, working on a 484 wave ength and a power of 500 watts, receives regular reports from every state in the union. Aditional reports have been received from the Canadian Yukon, south as far as the Canal zone, and from ships at sea off both coasts.

A recent adition to WHAA equipment is an amplifier which permits the sending of programs which are presented anywhere in Iowa City. An interesting experiment along thig line will be performed tonight. Several musical numbers will be rendered in the Methodist church and, with the aid of the new amplifier, will be broadcast as a part of the regular evening program.

Station 9XAZ, located across the river near the Armory, is being conducted primarily as an experimental station by and for the University. Its lincense permits a wave length of from fifty to five hundred metres and any power.

A new co-station of 9XAZ is soon to be erected at a distance of about fifteen miles. The station will be somewhat similar to its parent station, although smaller. An aditional transmitter for this work has already been installed. The two stations will experiment on distance work. At present operator Mentzer is working at 9XAZ on a special receiving set for the international receiving tests.

Fifty-four children, all under twelve years of age attended the childrens hour last Saturday. This hour is becoming more popular than ever with the little folk.

Who's Cock of the Roost on Your Platter This Year? Turkey, or—

Which fowl shall it be?—turkey, chicken, duck or goose? Which of these birds will ride in on your Thanksgiving platter? This is the dilemma the cooks face this week.

According to local butchers the housewives of Iowa City favor chicken, but turkey runs a close second. "For the family of average means chicken is the wisest choice," advises local butcher. It is not only cheaper but it has more meat in proportion to its size. For a family of five or six a good chicken will cost about $1.25, at twenty-five cents a pound. The same family would have to get a seven or eight pound turkey, however, because they "simply do not come smaller." At forty-five cents a pound the turkey would amount to about $3.50 or $4.00.

But, after all the big issue will be determined this year just as it has been other years, by these two facts: the individual task of the family, and the family budget. But whatever fowl you buy, it is a safe wager that there will be just as big a boom in the medical profession Friday as there was last year and the year before that. Yes, and every other year, back to the first celebration by our Pilgrim forefathers.

An extensive library of 100 books has been installed in the psychopathic hospital. This library includes all kinds of reading material, travel, fiction, essays, histories, and if a new book is requested it is sent out for two weeks. Before the extension plan about a dozen were lent to the hospital for two weeks, now the library is a permanent affair, composed of the older material found on the city library shelves.
