Amundsen, Famed As Explorer, Talks Thursday Evening

Best Known for South Pole Discovery In 1911

Tried to Drift Across Arctic Pole, but Failed

Captain Roald Amundsen, acclaimed as the greatest living explorer, will deliver a lecture in the natural science auditorium on Thursday evening, December 4. His lecture will be illustrated with colored stereoptican slides.

Captain Amundsen is best known for his discovery of the South Pole in 1911. He spent nearly a year in the desolate region beyond the great ice barrier before he finally reached the pole. During this memorable journey he and his band of five picked men faced terrific blizzard, and crossed snow-clad mountains which rose over 5000 feet above vast glaciers. For five months the thermometer registered 60 degrees below zero and sometimes as low as 73 degrees below.

In 1914 he returned to the Arctic, sailing from San Francisco to the Bering Straits, and then proceeding northward with the intention of allowing his vessel to be frozen in the ice, and thus to drift across the Arctic Ocean to Greenland. He thought that in this way there would be some possibility of crossing the North Pole, and estimated that the venture would take at least four years. He started on this trip in Nansen's famous boat, the Fram, but it was crushed in the ice some months later and the members of the expedition abandoned the ship and returned to America.

Captain Amundsen then had a ship of his own design constructed in Norway. This ship was egg-shaped and presented a convex surface at every point with the object of enabling it to ride the ice jam without injury and settle safely when the time came. He set out in this vessel in the summer of 1918 but 18 months later an injury to the propellers compelled him to take the ship to Seattle for repairs.

At the end of 1922 when his ship was held up for repairs, Captain Amundsen again tried to cross the North Pole, this time in an airplane, but this trip was also unsuccessful.

Hamlin Garland's Cheer Kiddies With Christmas Program

Hamlin Garland literary society will endeavor to bring the spirit of Christmas into the boys' and girls' wards of the Perkins hospital as the Yuletide season approaches.

On Tuesday evening, December 9, members of the society will give a Christmas program, consisting of a play, the telling of Christmas stories, and the singing of carols.

A series of social service projects have been planned by the society of which this program is the first.

Fahy Gets Twenty-five Years For Robbery of Mail Train

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—William J. Fahy, once rated as an ace among postal inspectors and James Murray, minor political boss of Chicago's westside were today sentenced to 25 years in Atlanta penitentiary for their part in the $2,600,000 mail train robbery at Rondout, Ill., last June. Herbert Holliday, Brent Glasscock, Joe, Jesse, Willie and Wylie Newton, the actual robbers, all of whom pleaded guilty, will be sentenced Monday, federal Judge Adam C. Cliffe announced.

Journal of Business Comes Out Dec. 10

Making its initial bow of the year, the Journal of Business will appear December 10. The Journal, a tri-yearly magazine, is the official student publication of the college of commerce. Frank L. McCormick, Cm4 of Oskaloosa, is the editor-in-chief. "The staff this year hopes to make the Journal of Business a valuable periodical for all students and faculty members interested in commerce," says Mr. McCormick.

Among the articles appearing in the December issue will be: "Income Tax Publicity," by Prof. Elmer Hills; "At the Wembly Fair," by Prof. Clarence W. Wassam; and "Life Insurance," by Vance Shephard, A4 of Olds. The writers of the first two articles are connected with the college of commere.

Brookhart Starts Court Action to Preserve Records

Bases Defense on Same Grounds as Steck

Says Straight Tickets Not Counted in Same Places

DES MOINES, Nov. 29. (AP)—Senator Smith W. Brookhart plans to defend his claim to his seat in the United States senate on the same grounds upon which Daniel F. Steck, his democratic opponent in the general election plans to base his contest of the election.

This was disclosed today when the senator, through court action in nearly a score of Iowa counties, set out to preserve for the probable senate recount of the ballots, all records of the election, some of which might be destroyed under the law on December 4, when the county auditors are permitted to dismantle machines and retain only the total vote recorded for each candidate.

Senator Brookhart, in filing petitions for injunctions against 19 county auditors, asked that special masters in chancery be appointed to open voting machines and preserve the ballots which may not have been counted, as well as those which were recorded.

In numerous instances, he alleged in the petition filed here "jjudges of election disregarded their duties an failed to make true and accurate returns" on the senatorial race.

clare they have evidence that inTA

Attorneys for the senator daclare they have evidence that in numerous counties, straight republican balots were not counted. As a result, they declare, the Brookhart lead over his democratic opponent was reduced "by hundreds of votes" and Senator Brookhart won by only 755 votes, while the loss of these votes to other republican canidates who received overwhelming majorities in all cases was not important.

Likewise, Steck's attorneys have announced his contest for the Brookhart election will be based upon the votes which were not counted through a misunderstanding on the part of some election judges of the tabulation of election machine ballots, and upon the throwing out of ballots marked with arrows to indicate a "scratch" for the democrat. Ballots in the latter group are invalid under the state law but Steck hopes to be able to have them counted by the senate committee.

Action on the petition is expected not later than Monday.

Political supporters of Senator Brookhart said here tonight there was little dubt that the injunctions would be granted in all cases.

The petitions were virtually identical in each county, it was understood.

The list of counties where injunctions were asked included Johnson county.

"Prayin' Colonels" Trim Georgia, 14-7

DANVILLE, Ky., Nov. 29 (AP)—Centre College defeated Georgia University 14 to 7, here today and won the southern football championship in a thrilling game. The Colonels scored two touchdowns in rapid succession in the second period and Georgia retaiat retaliated with plunges a pass and an end run which gave the visitors their touchdown.

Coast to Coast And Back Again Goal of Four Frisco Newsboys

Frmo Frisco to New York and back again is the goal set by four San Francisco newsboys who were in Iowa City last night. Doc Seigle at the Blue Goose was very much surprised last night when these four boys came up to the door and requested permission to go in and sing to the dancers. They explained to "Doc" what they were up to and in they went.

Louie Goldstein, Harry Carpenter, Mike Harris, and Clyde Cozad were the boys who mapped out this trip as a method of having fun and seeing the country. All of them possess fine voices and their selections were received with much applause by those who heard them. Following their offering, contributions were given to them by the dancers to help defray their expenses to the next town.

They intend to visit every school in the Big Ten before they leave the middle west, according to "Doc" Seigle, who is taking care of them during their stay in Iowa City. Last week they were in Lincoln, Omaha, and Des Moines. From here they will probably go to Minneapolis, then Madison, and Chicago, but they are not sure as to what their plans will be from there on.

Cozad, who is apparently in charge of the expedition, is very confident as to their future success.

He says, "so far we have had a lot of luck and every town we have been in they have treated us fine. If our lungs will only hold out we ought to be in New York within the next two months and have a lot of fun meantime."

"No Cross-Words, Radio," Says N. Y. Police Chief

"New York policemen are spending too much time looking up two-toed sloths and three-lettered Australian birds or trying to tune in on Honolulu," police commissioner Enright told his officers when he ordered that these fads be shelved.

"I want them from now on to spend all their spare time in target practice. I am tired of hearing about half a dozen policemen and detectives emptying their guns at a crook with no damage done on either side except that the crook invariably escapes," he declared.

Ten Testify in Trial of Hough

State Expects to Rest Tuesday; May Close Thursday

(By the Associated Press)

BEDFORD, Iowa, Nov. 29.—Ten witnesses have now testified to having seen Carl Hough, on trial here for the slaying of Lillian McKenney of Herrick, S. D., on the afternoon and night of August 11, preceeding the finding of the girl's body on the morning of Anugust 13.

Bertha Thomas testified today she saw Hough and a girl in a car in Bedford late on the night of August 11. Four other witnesses, all women have sworn to such statements.

W. E. Fitch, a farmer, continuing his testimony concerning the visit of a man believed to be Hough at his home at 1:30 o'clock on the morning of August 12, said that the man was very nervous and walked back and forth. Fitch told of seeing Hough near his farm about 5 o'clock in the morning. It is the theory of the state that Hough and the girl, after they were seen in Bedford, went to a by-way near the Fitch home where the crime was committed, that Hough then haulde the body to the bridge, threw the body over and then returned to the Fitch home to complete his alibi.

Attorneys are expecting the trial to close by Thursday. The state expects to rest Tuesday.

Puccini, Noted Composer, Dies

Heart Fails Italy's Premier Operatic Writer

BRUSSELS, Nov. 29 (AP)—Italy's premier operatic composer Giocomo Puccini died here today. He came to Brussels a short time ago to undergo radium treatment for a malignant growth in the throat, but his strength gradually gave out and his heart was unable to bear the burdens put upon it by the infections.

While the attending physicians had spoken hopefully, it was known to them Friady that his recovery was impossible. At the time of his death his son and his daughter were at the bedside, but his wife had been compelled to remain at Milan according to illness.

Local Radio Fans Tune In On Russia

Attempts by local radio bugs to tune in on foreign stations during the last two nights of the inernational tests met wih varied success.

A program from Leede, England was received by Elmer Roeder of the I. C. Battery and Electrical Co., and by Paul Brabec, Burkley hotel, who used a neutrodyne set of his own construction.

From St. Petersburgh, Russia, a violin solo was picked up by Bill Williams and Emmett Hauth on head phone sets, and by Jack Kennedy using a loud speaker. These sets were all located on farms outside of the city.

Considerable difficulty was experienced from the numerous code stations which operated during the evening. Several othr programs were heard, but not distinctly enough for their location to be understood.

Modern Industries Call for Chemical Engineers--Parr

Illinois Authority Defines Profession of Chemistry Grad

Lectures Before Student Organizations Last Night

"Practically every modern industry needs chemical engineers, and their field of work is steadily growing", stated Professor S. W. Parr, of the University of Illinios ,last night.

Professor Parr, a noted authority on fuels and alloys, and inventor of the Parr calorimeter, spoke in non-technical terms on "What is a Chemical Engineer?" before the chemistry club and the students' bbranch of the American institute of chemical engineers.

"Thirty or forty years ago", explained Professor Parr the chemistry graduate was expected merely to assist other professions and to have no definite calling of his own. Scarcely an industry exists today, however, without a function that can be performed only by men trained to visualize, plan in detail and carry through a piece of work that deals with crystals and atoms and molecules."

"The field of chemical engineering is relatively very new, and is often confused with that of the mechanical engineer."

"The work of the mechanical engineer deals with the laws of motion and thermo-dynamics, but atomic action and surface condensation are rather the stock in trade of the chemist.

"Many great industries are only beginning to realize that their problems of decreasing waste or of conserving the sourve of supplies are chemical problems, and therefore a tremendously important field is opening for the chemical engineer."

Bexley Probers Await Reports

Nothing Definite as Yet Learned from Investigations

COLUMBUS Nov. 29 (AP)—Probe of the Bexley furnace mystery was at a standstill today while County Prosecutor John R. King and his aides awaited the report of scientific experts expected Monday or Tuesday.

In a statement today the prosecutor declared that he and his aides have run down every clew that has been given them and that their investigation has been as complete as posible with no result.

Nothing can be done now he said until the scientific report of Dr. H. M. Brundage, a pathologist and chemist C. F. Long, has been given to him. The experts by an experiment conducted with guinea pigs in the furnace expect to establish definitely whether Mrs. Sheatsley was dead when she entered the furnace.

Dean Teeters Back From Bedford Trial

Dean Wilbur J. Teeters of the college of pharmacy returned yesterday morning from Bedford, Iowa, where he testified at the Hough murder trial. The stomach of Lillian McKenney was sent to Iowa City for examination August 17 and Dean Teeters was called to present an analysis.

This is the second trial in the last two weeks at which Dean Teeters has been called to testify. The other was the Flory murder case, being tried in Montezuma, Iowa.

Black Cap's Progeny Carry Off Honors in 14 States

CHICAGO, Nov. 29 (AP)— The international champion Aberdeen-Angus bull, Black Cap Revolution won new laurels in the twenty fifth international live stock exposition today when the records of his more prominent progeny were posted beneath his own pedigree in the alley of steam heated stalls housing the crowned heads of the bovine kingdom.

Sons and daughters of Black Cap, the record shows, carried off first honors in fourteen state and provincial fairs throughout the United States and Canada during 1924, and won a total of more than sixty tion.

Arrives to Build Biggest Zeppelin

Construction of the greatest zeppelin ever built will be begun in Dayton, Ohio, shortly. Dr. Carl Arnstein, designer of the ZR-3 (now U. S. S. Los Angeles), and director of the zeppelin works in Germany, has arrived to take charge of building the air monster.

Three Iowans on All-Star Elevens

Parkin Captains First '11'; Hancock and Otte Place

Four Iowa gridmen are honored with berths on the all-conference teams in the choices made by Walter Eckersall and announced by him today. Parkin and Otte on the first team, Hancock on the second, and Galloway on the third team, are the four picked as the stellar Iowa men.

The choosing of Parkin, as captain of the first conference team is an added distinction to which Iowa fans look with pride and which, according to Eckersall was not a certainty until after the Michigan game when he outplayed his nearest rival Rockwell, Michigan's star quarterback.

Otte for the second year in succesion is selected as left end on the first mythical eleven. He shares honors with Grange of Illinois of being the only man on this year's team who was also a member of last year's team.

The first team chosen by Johnson for the Chicago American contains three Iowa Gridmen: Hancock, Parkin and Otte. Iowa was the only school having three of its members selected. On this mythical team Minnesota gets two places. Illinois two, Michigan one, Purdue one and Chicago one, and Northwestern one.

On Johnson's second team Romey is placed at left end. This gives Iowa four places on the first two teams.

Grid Men Given Dinner Monday

University high school football teams, coaches, and members of the athletic council will be guests at the Chamber of Commerce at the regular noon luncheon Monday.

Every year the Chamber of Commerce entertains the members of the football teams at a luuncheon at the club rooms. Harry D. Breene, president of the Chamber, will act as toastmaster. The program is as follows:

"Athletics and the University," by Burton E. Ingwersen, head coach of University football; "The Faculty Fan," by Louis R. Pelzer, member of the athletic council; "The High School in Football," by W. E. Beck, Iowa City high school principal; "The Big Ten," by R. A. Kuever, member of the athletic council; and "Crossing the Goal Line," by Captain Leland Parkin.

Ousting of Senators May Cause Trouble

Cooper Searching City Atmosphere For Jubilee Ideas

Robert Cooper, L2 of Newton, production manager for the law jubilee, left Friday night for Chicago, where he will get some new ideas for the law show.

Cooper has not as yet formulated any definiate plans as to what the jubilee will contain. It will probably be a musical comedy.

Cooper intends to see several of the leading shows in the city and then draw up plans for his production.

Jury Finds Patrick Guilty of Charges

Negus Says Defendant Will Make Motion For New Trial

A verdict of guilty was returned at 4:25 a. m. yesterday by the jury in the case of Dr. Lloyd E. Patrick, who was charged with a statutory offense. Henry Negus, one of the defendant's attorneys, said last night that a motion for a new trial would be made in a fewdays.

The defendant was given until Dec. 15 by Judge Ralph Otto, who heard the case, to file a motion for a new trial. His bail bond of $3,000, which was fixed at an earlier hearing, was ordered by the judge to remain in effect until further notice.

The case began in district court last Monday. The defendant was representd in court by Henry Negus and A. E. Maine. County Attorney O'Connor, assisted by J. Baldwin, prosecuted Patrick for the state.

The pleadings of the attorneys were completed Friday afternoon and the case was given to the jury at 6 p. m., at which time Judge Otto instructed them in writing.

Editors Attend Wayzgoose Soon

Iowan Aids Printers' Banquet; To Be Big Party

Daily Iowan lords and laborers will let up on the grind one night next month for a real feed, the old Wayzgoose Banquet.

No longer will the dear little cubs fear the "elect" behind the office railing, for 'tis said that at this time all the secrets and even the darkest past of all the members of the staff are revealed.

Graham Dean, city editor of the Iowan, will have charge of the arrangements for the banquet, and Francis Starzl, managing editor of Press Citizen, will arrange for the program.

The Wayzgoose banquet of last year was held about this time at the Jefferson hotel. At that time Prof. J. T. Frederick of the English department, spoke on journalism experiences and several impersonations of members of the staff were made.

GETS EIGHT YEARS

SIDNEY, Iowa, Nov. 29 (AP)—S. C. Reynolds recently found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the killing of Al Weber in Reynolds' home at Hamburg, August 11, was sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary today. He was tried for first degree murder. He will appeal.

Congressmen Fear "Ugly Situation" In Next Session

La Follette Bloc Still Holds Balance of Power

Bob and Supporters Mum on Future Course

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29—Action of the senate republican conference in reading out of the party at this time Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, and his three chief supporters, Brookhart, Frazier, and Ladd, will result in further complicating a complex congressional situation in the opinion of most observers at the capital.

The action has created what several senators described today as an "ugly situation" and since the La Follette bloc will continue to hold the balance of power at the final session of this congress, beginning next Monday, leaders generally anticipate little legislative action before March 4 beyond the passage of appropriation bills.

Senator La Follette and his supporters have as yet held no conference with respect to their course at the coming session but attention was called today to situations under which they could if they desired to do so endanger any legislative program agreed upon by administration leaders by enforcing certain rules of the senate.

Take up Supply Bills

Without anticipating that there will be a disposition by the insurgents to adopt such a course, some senators expressed doubt that even all of the supply measures can be put through before the end of the short session on March 4.

Their belief is that the situation resulting from the conference action is one increasing the necessity for an extra session of the new congress elected this month.

Many legislative matters came over from the last session and some of these may receive early attention in the senate.

Meantime the house will be devoting the major portion of its time and energy in putting the supply bills on their way. These must have first consideration in the house and it is not the purpose of the leaders to have the senate marking time, while the house is acting on the appropriation measures. Without making direct reference to the conference action, the republican and democratic leaders in the senate declared today they looked for little affirmative action other than the

Print Christmas Frivol's Covers; Out December 15

The covers for the December number of Frivol, with a color scheme of red, green, and black are now being printed. An attractive co-ed enveloped in furs appears in the center of a large red bell. She wears a becoming hat of black and white with a spray of poinsetta petals attached to one side. The cover was designed by Polly Palmer, A4 of Burlington.

The third edition of Frivol will be ready for sale December 15. It will consist of forty pages as did the Homecoming number.

Hawk-Guys Decree Toques Replace Green Caps for Frosh This Winter

Fresmen have but a single week to sport their caps of green. A new type of headgear awaits them with the advent of Monday, December 8. Contributing to the reasons for the change is the weather, no longer mild but cold and zippy, and tending to chill the ears of those who expose them. The new top-pieces, toques of an old gold hue are warmer and can be drawn over the auditory projections.

The change is sponsored by the Hawk-Guys, and as in the case of their predecessors, the wearing of the toques is obligatory to all male members of the freshman class. The old gold sky piece retails at a nominal sum, and Hawk-Guys can see no reason for granting exemptions for financial reasons. They go on sale next Thursday at Bremer's, Eppel's, Maruth's, and Coast's.

Last year saw the inauguration of the custom of wearing the golden toques. Previously no especial type of cap was worn during the winter months by the yearlings. The initiation of the new headgear was enthusiastically greeted by the freshmen as well as the upper classes.

Clothiers state that the toques are warm and snappy, and harmonize with the cold weather attire better than the green caps.

The Arts of Peace

If we would see what liberty, independence, self- government, a popular constitution can do we must look to times of tranquillity.

In peace a self-governing nation is prosperous in itself and influential in the wide world.

Its special works, the sciences, the useful arts, literature, the interest of knowledge generally, material comfort, the means and appliances of a happy life, thrive especially in peace.

This fine sentiment of Cardinal Newman is especially appropriate at this time when the world is at peace. All nations have declared their intention of disarmament, and as conditions swing back to normal, they are turning their attention to advancement in lines other than that of war.

With the welfare of their people once more foremost in the thoughts of the nations, the prospects are bright for an age in which art, literature, education, prosperity, and happiness shall pre-dominate.

Personal Charity

THERE was a Thanksgiving day. One of the many things we had to be thankful for is the progress of modern medical science in curbing diseases, and prominent among them tuberculosis. Now there is a drive. It is an annual drive to finance the fight against this special disease. It is one of dozens of drives, some justified and some not, but there is no drive more appropriate to the Christmas season than the Christmas seal drive.

There are plenty of things to do with the meagre pile of pennies that is left for the holiday shopping. Perhaps there is a dress to be bought or a tux to be rented for the big party. And truly enough these eternal drives are a bore and a nuisance. There is no denying the pauperizing effect of begging, whether it is a blind man on the street corner or a beautiful girl collecting for the Home for Friendless Children. Whether he sells pencils or she sells tickets for amateur theatricals in lieu of asking for a donation the situation is materially the same. There are entirely too many drives and too much philanthrophy and too much hypocrisy as a result. But the Christmas Seal drive belongs not in the category of philanthrophy but in that of self-protection.

Fighting tuberculosis is a charity which begins at home. Statistics show that a very high per cent of the world's population are infected with the t. b. germ. The amount of individual vitality and resistance determines whether the germ wins or you win. If the work of experimentation in improving means of coping with the germ is not hastened, it is likely to get you before you have had an opportunity to realize your ambition in life. Even though you are regular in your habits, eat three wholesome meals and get eight hours of sleep, there are geniuses in the world to whose temperament such a life is impossible. And it is to these that the world looks for its inventions bringing comforts and progress. For these the world must be made safe for life. The benefit may be direct or indirect but in the end it is personal.

But if it were wholly charity can anyone suggest a more fitting charity for the Christmas season?

Criticism

IT is not that praise in any harder; it is only that criticism is naturally so much easier. Adam began it. He blamed Eve because he ate the apple. Everyone is at best an Adam; so he succumbs to the artificies of the most wily forms of speech, destructive criticism. It lurks everywhere, at cigar and drug store corners, wherever a parade of students, of people, is passing. It tears through their masks, and exposes the skeletons which a doting family have been hard put to conceal. There is no immunity from the scandal-mongers. There are no crueler shafts than those of ridicule, unless it is those of thoughless criticism.

Every theatrical presentation is met by a rain of anaethema. After the casts of a play have sweated through rehearsals, driven only by a restless desire which is in their souls, the curtain is run up and the play begins. The curtain is run down, and the characterizations are greeted by a bitter hum of criticism. Hints of failure ripple through the aisles. The audience doesn't see back scenes. They cannot feel the damning sense of failure which is the sixth sense of every artist. The audiences should be more kind. They should measure things by a yardstick, "How would I do it." But they don't. It is so with every cultural production,—works of art, literature, sculpture, are subjected to the fire of a school of critics. A dismal sense of having "flunked" a task is enough sack cloth and ashes. If something is to be criticised, let the criticism be kindly and constructive, not vitriolic and destructive in its nature.

We saw an up-to-date man the other evening. He had radio receivers clamped over his ears, was smoking a corn cob pipe, and mumbling something about a Russian name for hendiadys ending in "tch."

You can't always get the right color ties, the right size hose, or the right kind of cigars, but a cross word puzzle book will never go amiss.

The holiday spirit will soon be upon us, but the prohibition forces are determined that the holiday spirits will be ruled out this year.

Lovely Labors Lost

THINKS

If you're thinking about what I'm thinking about
I'll never speak to you no more.
My mother said I mustn't and so did sister Sue;
But oh, oh, oh, I'll do anything for
I'll let you kiss me, I'll let you hold me,
And I'll love you, love you, love you more each day.
But if you're thinking about what I'm thinking about
I'll never speak to you no mo.

—Clara Voyant

We have just returned from another trip to our hometown. As usual, we had many adventures.

Thursday we perambled to Newton to see the high school of that city bow to our own to the tune of 45 to 6, as they say in the sport section. Some day we shall write a book on metaphors of the sport section. It will be a good book, just like all the other books we are going to write.

While we were home this time we experienced our first contact with the feminist movement in politics. We have been in contact with feminist movements in other fields, but never before did we encounter difficulty in the political (or perhaps we should say, judicial) field.

It came about this way: Our sister, who not infrequently prepares the little sustenance we can be prevailed upon to take, was drawn on a jury.

We don't know how she would be on a jury, but we do know as a preparer of sustenance she is the acme and the ne plus ultra. After our experience Friday we would almost add the title of sine qua non.

You see we had to prepare a meal all by ourself. Now you understand that, being a bachelor, we are no novice in the culinary art. However incongruous we may look in the cuisine, we are rather adept, if we do furnish the information ourself.

On the occasion in question we evolved an omelet. Now if you have ever tried it, you now that an omelet is no mean achievement. Ours was not only an omelet, but a good omelet. We ate it all ourself, but that was only because we were alone. We are going to invite our readers to share it with us, but Al says that there are now three instead of two, and we couldn't find another egg.

But it was a good omelet. We forgot to tell you that besides being a good omelet it was a cheese omelet.

Well, we must get on with our Spoon Shivering Doxology.

We must admit that we were not entirely successful. No, girls, we don't want to get married. We didn't fail that dismally—and we doubt whether you could have done so well as we.

We failed in our punishment of the heavy lacteal fluid. We did want some whipped cream, and the jurywoman had intimated that there was some cream in the ice chest which was supposed to be amenable to such castigation. We brought it out and administered a mild rebuke, which had no perceptible effect. Then we tried a severe reprimand—without result. Then we expleted a mouth-filling expletive—to no avail. At last we were driven to drastic flagellation—even that was fruitless. And worse yet—our fruit was creamless.

Piper Writes on Ellesmere Chaucer; Copy of Original in Ranney Library

Reposing in the Ranney Memorial Library of the liberal arts building are two massive, heavy volumes —exact replicas of Chaucer's Prologue and Canterbury Tales.

Their frayed, soiled cover leaves enclose pages of manuscript which were no doubt copied with painstaking care by monks. They breathe an air of a certain somberness of life, yet a certain touch of romance; a crudity of perspective, yet a delightful characterization in rich, illuminating colors.

These facsimiles of Ellesmere's Chaucer were prepared in 1911 by a London firm with the consent of the present owner. Only one hundred copies were printed.

The original is in the Huntington Library at San Gabriel, Cal., near Leland Stanford University. It is the supposition that the manuscript was included in "the conventual treasures" granted by James I to Baron Ellesmere in recognition of his faithful services to the Crown. Baron Ellesmere also received certain of the lands of the dissolved monastery at Ashbridge. The only surviving son was created Earl of Bridgewater after his father's death, and it is in this family that the manuscript was held. There is no doubt but that the manuscript was appreciated and cherished by them for they were a very literary family.

No less a person than Roger Bacon testifies to Lord Ellesmere's encouragement of letters, "Not only an excellent chancellor and counselor but also an exceeding favorer and fosterer of all good learnyng and vertue."

The original Ellesmere's Chaucer is written on thin membranes of vellum in folio form.

Prof. Edwin Ford Piper describes in the October issue of the Philological Quarterly the Minatures of The Ellesmere's Chaucer. In this article he pictures each of the characterizations of Chaucer's pilgrims as they are found in the Ellesmere's Chaucer. He explains that although many of the figures, by reason of their cramped space are distorted and out of all proportion, yet the artists have displayed a very appreciative power of interpretation.

The priest radiates ruddy cheerfulness; the pardoner stares from under thin, yellow tresses; the sergeant's "medlee cote" is a splash of parti-colors, half-red, half-blue with red and white barring. The reader of the Ellesmere finds in these miniatures the human realism of Chaucer.

Frederick to Go On Lecture Tour

Will Speak in Kansas, Nebraska and New Mexico

Professor John T. Frederick will leave tomorrow on a lecture trip which will take him into New Mexico. He is scheduled to speak on the University Lecture Course at Omaha, Nebraska; at the Kansas State Agricultural College at Manhattan, Kansas; and at Santa Fe, New Mexico. His subject will be "The Regional Idea in Literature."

He expects to visit the Writers' Colony at Santa Fe during his stay there. This is a group of people whose interests center in artistic pursuits, and who have been drawn together by this common interest.

Professor Frederick recently returned from a short lecture trip which included Ames and Mason City.

Sheiks And Shebas Shiver While Wiring Fond Father For Woolens

Dear Father:

I am freezing to death. Please send me ten more blankets.

With love,

SONNY BOY.

Poets say, "Snow like a blanket now covers the earth with its pure whiteness." That is lovely sentiment, but snow blankets aren't half so successful as the good old woolen kind when it comes to keeping warm these arctic nights. At least, that seems to be the general sentiment of students here, according to local dealers.

"Students and landladies have bought pairs and pairs of blankets in the last two or three days," said one salesman. "They always sell like hot cakes as soon as the cold season begins. We sold three pairs in almost as many minutes during the big snow Thursday."

The sale of blankets brings up this question: Can you tell what sort a person is from the kind of blanket he buys?

"Sure you can," said one salesman scornfully, "I can always size up people and decide what kind they are going to buy before they ever say a word.

"Take these fluffy little co-eds, for instance. Think I'd try to sell them big Indian blankets? I guess not. They fall for the lavendar or pink ones with the big flowers or squares every time.

"Then the college boys come to ask sheepishly for some sort of plain heavy woolen blanket. They end by getting the loudest Indian or plaid blankets that we carry. Landladies are very particular about the quality of the ones they get—they look over every one we have in stock, then take the old stand-bys, gray cotton and wool at $3.95."

Not only a person's tastes but his pocketbook determine his kind of blanket. The prices range from $2.65 for cotton ones up to $23.00 for the best grades of wool.

Get Your Shovels Out Early or City Will Do It for You

A ten hour deadline!

That is the amount of time Iowa City residents are allowed to clean their walks after a snowstorm according to the Mayor's office. If this edict is not complied with the city will oblige the owner of the property by cleaning the walk for him but with this joker, the bill for the work is sent to the resident.

The city also sweeps the street crossings after a storm and trys to keep them as free from snow as possible.

Merill	Adolphe Menjou
Penelope Stevens	Eleanor Boardman
Brock Farley	Conrad Nagle
Dr. Eustace	Jean Hersholt
Mrs. Stevens	Hedda Hopper
Sir Donald Ramsey	Frank Elliott

The story is that of a man broken in health and past middle age who returns to America after an absence of twenty years. On shipboard he meets an attractive young lady. He is travelling with a distinguished physician, a disciple of Dr. Steinach, the Vinnese specialist, who tempts him to undergo a rejuvenitation treatment which will restore his youth.

Merrill yields to the temptation, undergoes the treatment and twenty years are lifted from his life. He immediately enters the gayest set of young people and sponsors a succession of "wild parties." After a series of intrigues Merrill all but succeeds in taking the girl he met on ship board, the one girl he really desires, away from the young man who truly loves her.

But in the end he steps aside in the other's favor and resumes his former, milder ways of life. He had found that there is no free love; that one must always pay for love, sometimes with sacrifice, sometimes with self respect; sometimes even with one's heart blood.

It also develops that the young man he wished to cheat of the girl is his own son, whom he had not seen since early childhood, when he deserted the boy's mother. The young fellow has a letter for Merrill from his mother in which it is stated that if the father thinks himself worthy, he is to acknowledge his son. This is what makes him give up the unnatural life of gaiety.

At the Garden Tuesday.

Zane Grey's story, "The Border Legion" with Antonio Moreno and Helen Chadwick will continue at the Garden through Monday. Jim Cleve (Moreno) is rebuked during a lover's quarrel by his sweetheart who tells him that he is too lazy tobe even bad. Resolved to show her how bad he can be Cleve rides off and joins "The Border Legion" a band of the most notorious bandits of the West.

Joan, his sweetheart, repents and rides after Jim but is captured by Kells, the leader of the legion. After varied experiences and adventures including a gold rush, stagecoach wreck, and variou sscrapes all ends in the manner which most fans wish.

"A Sainted Devil"

Don Alonzo Castro	Rudolph Valentino
Carlotta	Nita Naldi
Julietta	Helen D'Algy
Dona Florencia	Dagmar Godowsky
El Tigre	George Siegman
Casimiro	Jean Del Val

When "Monsieur Beaucaire" was released as Valention's "come back" vehicle for Paramount, it was the belief of many that this was the best effort the 'shiek" had or ever could make. Since seeing "A Sainted Devil" however the majority of critics claim that this picture is one of Valention's best since "The Four Horsemen."

The picture at the Englert Thursday, is taken from Rex Beach's novel, "Rope's End" and is distinctly South American in locale. It tells the story of Don Alonzo Castro, a man of the world, whose marriage has been arranged with Julietta. They have never met. On the night of the wedding El Tigre, the bandit of the Pampas, raids Alonzo's hacienda and steals, among other things, the bride. Don Alonzo is knocked out by a blow on the head but follows the bandit to his camp. There he sees a woman in the bridal veil in the bandit's arms. The Don is discovered but manages to escape, swearing veangance on the Tiger and all women.

After an unsuccessful two years search for the bandit. Don Alonzo frequents a dive in Buenos Aires, where he is known as the mysterious stranger.

Alonzo arrives at the dive anl finds Carlotta who refuses to tell him where the Tiger is until she sees him come from a room with another woman. Then she cries to Alonzo to "kill the traitor." The Don springs toward the bandit and Carlotta, seing the Tiger will be killed, tries to stop Alonzo by telling him that El Tigre knows Julietta's where-a-bouts. The warning comes to late. Carmelita, however, tells Alonzo that Julietta is at the convent. He goes to her and a happy reunion is effected.

This picture is Valentino's last for Paramount as he has signed a contract with Ritz-Carlton for several pictures.

William De Mille's Famous Forty production, "The Fast Set," adapted from the stage success, "Spring Clearning," will begin a four day run today. Betty Compson, Adolphe Menjou, and Elliot Dexter are the featured players in this story of smart, high society, life.

The story asks and answers the question, is there a limit beyond which a husband should not go to hold alovely wife who is fascinated by a philanderer? The picture presents a new way of handling an old theme revolving about the enternal triangle. It is a comedy-drama and the action is motivated by a fine man who resorts to a clever but astonishing method of saving his wife from undersirable friends and of curing the infatuation for a notorious "great lover."

Classmates

Duncan Irving, Sr.	Claude Brooks
Duncan Irving, Jr.	Richard Barthelmess
Bert Stafford	Reginald Sheffield
Mrs. Stafford	Charlotte Walker
Sylvia Randolph	Madge Evans
Captain Lane	Major Henry B. Lewis

Richard Barthelmess' new First National Production, "Classmates" starts a five day run at the Pastime Thursday.

The story is based on a play at the United States military academy. To film the production permission was obtained from the U. S. Government officials to "shoot" the necessary scenes at West Point. This is the first time that such permission has been pranted.

The picture concerns the adventures of Duncan, the son of the keeper of the post office and the general store in a small North Carolina town. He wins a long desired appointment to West Point and resolves to force himself to a plane equal to that of Sylvia, the girl he loves. Bert Stafford also is in love with Sylvia and resents Duncan's advances.

Sylvia and Mrs. Stafford, her aunt, come to the Academy for the big event of the summer camp, and Bert finds himself entirely cut by Duncan with whom Sylvia is in love. Duncan and Sylvia become engaged and she makes him promise to look out for Stafford.

On returing to camp after the dance Stafford, insults Duncan who strikes him. Bert falls to the ground and cries out that he has been blinded. Duncan is dismissed from the Academy.

Months pass during which Duncan has become an engineer but he has never redeemed himself in the eyes of Sylvia,

In New York Duncan learns that Bert is lost in the South American jungles. Believing that the only way he can square himself in the eyes of Sylvia is to find Bert and bring him back safely, he starts for South America.

After weeks of hardships and suffering they find Bert and Duncan has his commission restored to him and the story ends with the wedding at West Point.

The picture in which the romance of Bert Lytell and Claire Windsor began, "Born Rich," will be at the Pastime through Wednesday. The story, which is based on Hughes Cornell's novel of New York life, portdays the social ambitions of one set in the metropolis. Being "born rich" the younger generation take up the life of their elders and fail to discern in time that this mode of living, is fatal to happiness. The advent of the stork is regarded as calamity the attempts of a mother to hide the fast involves her in a series of complications bringing several lives to near wreckages. In the end the couple who were "born rich" wind up in a humble bungalow, poor but happy.

"Dante's Inferno"

One of the really big pictures of the year is being shown at the Strand theater beginning Wednesday of this week. It is taken from the poet Dante's story of a symbolic journey through hell and shows the sufferings of the condemned.

"In picturing 'Dante's Ingerno', the William Fox Company has brought to the screen some of the most arresting views of a poet's dream which I have seen," says Quinn Martin of the New York World. He continues, "The hell and horror through Dante and Virgil, passed are shown in striking fashion. Beautifully worked out reproductions of the circles of brimstone and molten pitch have been made and I imagine, little as we are given to consideration of any definite form of punishment coming to us in that world beyond, there is a symbolism here which is likely to set a great many thinking.

Picked by Laurence Reid of Photoplay Magazine as the best melodrama of the month, "The Man Who Came Back" will continue its run at the Strnad through Tuesday. The picture was a great "legitimate" and contains much picture material. It is a story founded on a youth's dremtion and contains fast moving, graphic action.

Henry Potter, is so spoiled by his wealthy father that he becomes a perfect hellion doing nothing but drinking and carousing. Disowned, the boy goes to 'Frisco where he keeps on. At last when he is caught for forgery his father aids him for the last time on the condition that he leave the country. A cabaret dancer in San Francisco, Marcelle, falls in love with Henry but he will have nothing to do with her although he really likes her.

Potter goes to Shanghi where he sinks to the level of a gin-soaked wharf rat. In an opium den and liquor hole he finds Marcelle who has followed him to China in an effort to locate him. She has become an opium addict. After a fierce emotional scene the two make a bargain to stick to one another after Marcello tells Potter she has taken dope because she didn't care what became of her with him out of her life. The bargain is that neither will touch the thing each craves, opium and gin, and that when one drops back the other will fall back too.

The plan works wonders and after a year the couple are married. Henry receives a message from his father that he wants to see his erring son back home. His wife promises that she will follow him to New York. On arriving in New York he finds his wife awaitng him in his father's house. The old man has known about them all the while an ddid not wish to see them separated.

Fast Semi-Pros In Action Today

What is probably the last football game to be played in this section of the country will occur this afternoon when the strong Kalona Independtn and Columbus Junction Legion teams meet at League park, Muscatine. The game is called for 2 o'clock.

Both of these teams are among the strongest of the semi-pro class in this state. Neither has been defeated or tied so far this year and each has played some of the state's best contenders.

Among those who will appear in the Columbus Junction lineup is Jack Pence, world's champion distance drop kicker.

THE GOOD BAD MAN IS BACK AGAIN

"RUDIE" is himself again, the good bad man. With all the lure of the romance of JULO in "THE FOUR HORSEMEN" and the wickedness of JUAN GALLARDO in "BLOOD AND SAND" he comes back as DON ALONSO in "A SAINTED DEVIL," a story of wild loves and adventure in the Argentine. Slouched hat, high boots, striped shirt, gay neckerchief draped serafe, wide trousers, knife and loaded riding whip. And he makes love to all the girls, the final fortunate one being HELENE D'ALGY, beautiful in her Spanish costume.

Rockne's Seconds Fail But Horsemen Gallop to 40 to 19 Win Over Carnegie Tech

Notre Dame "11" Carries Ball for 30 First Downs

(By the Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 29—The powerful Notre Dame football team trampled the Tartans of Carnegie Tech on Forbes field today winning in a walkaway 40 to 19. A perfect aerial assault and ability to gain at will through the line gave Notre Dame the victory but Carnegie fought every inch of the way and early in the game threatened to upset the opinion of experts that he visitors would win.

Coach Knute Rockne sent in his entire second string to open the game. Carnegie was too strong for this outfit, blocking kicks and running the ends time and again. After Kristoff blocked a kick recovered the ball, and raced 35 yards for Carnegie's first score, Rockne decided that it was time to send in his regulars. And when the stars got going, the home team found itself swamped at every turn.

Notre Dame Going Good

D. Miller, Livergood and Crowley bore the brunt of the Notre Dame attack. Taking the kick in the second period the stellar backs advanced to midfield from which Stuhldreher tossed a forward pass to Miller who raced 40 yards for a touchdown. Crowley kicked the goal. Then came two touchdowns, one for each team in quick succession.

The beginning of the third period found Notre Dame going at full speed. After Livergood scored a touchdown on a series of forward passes, Crowley and Miller went into action, striking through the line for long gains.

In the final period Miller and Crowley advanced the pigskin to the Carnegie five yard line, from which point Livergood plunged it over. Then came another Notre Dame drive, Connell and Crowe forming the business end of a battering ram which placed the ball in position for Stuhldreher to score. The final minutes of play found the Notre Dame second team back on the field. Carnegie found the going a bit easier and after recovering a fumble Beede executed a puzzling riple pass Before the Notre Dame linesmen knew what had happened the Carnegie full back had wiggled through for his second touchdown.

This ended the scoring. Notre Dame registered thirty first downs during the struggle against four for Tech. The South Bend boys completed 15 out of 18 forward passes.

Garbisch's Toe Kicks Navy Goat Into 12-0 Defeat

BALTIMORE, Nov. 29—A barrage of drop kicks fired from the magic toe of Captain Edward W. Garbisch broke down the Navy's fighting defense today and gave the Army a spectacular victory over her ancient service foe.

Rising to super heights in the climax to his long and brilliant gridiron career, Garbisch kicked four field goals that represented the entire margin of Army's 12 to 0 triumph in a thrilling, desperately fought struggle before President Coolidge and a vast throng of 78,000 in Baltimore Stadium.

Before this colorful and notable outpouring, the greatest that has ever marked the annual service game Garbisch covered himself with immortal gridiron glory with an exhibition of individual skill and dynamic leadership seldom if ever equalled in the classic of gridiron classics.

Garbisch by kicking four field goals not only performed a feat that has no parallel in Army-Navy history but throughout the game was an outstanding figure both on attack and defense, in a triumph that broke a two year deadlock in the service rivalry and gave the cadets the lead in the series that was inaugurated in 1890. As a result Army now has 13 victories to her credit and Navy 12 while two battles resulted in ties.

Carter Smashes 220 Record as Varsity Paddlers Sink Frosh

The University record on the 220 yeard breast stroke was shattered in the freshman-varsity swimming meet held at the pool in the mens gym yesterday afternoon, with the varsity scoring 46, and the freshmen 22.

The old University record of 2:58:3 held by M. E. Griffen was broken by M. L. Carter who paddled the distance for a new record of 2:56:3. Carter also placed second in the 150 yard back stroke.

The varsity relay team made up of Killebrew, Lambert, Graaff, Hoffman, and Obert distanced the freshman team consisting of Daugherty, Ungles, Miller, and Krohn in the fast time of 1:21:5.

Trager placed first in fancy diving, Killebrew second, Bowen third, and Ungles (freshman) fourth.

Ungles, of the freshman squad, won the 40 yard dash in good time, 19:17. Hoffman second, Graaff third, and Daugherty fourth. Armbruster was very well pleased with this time, saying it is just a question of time before he has a 40 yard squad that will make the conference wake up.

Murphy, another freshman, followed his colleague Carter in the record breaking 200 yard breast event with Marble swimming third and Alswang fourth.

The varsity pulled down first and second place in the 200 yard free style, Lambert winning, trailed by Obert. Miller placed third and Clearman fourth. Time, 2:42:2.

Morse Lake won the plunge, going the length of the pool in 18:8. Brose, a freshman find, was not far behind Lake finishing second, Alswang third, and Babcock fourth.

Ashton took the 150 yard back stroke from a fast field swimming the distance in 2:08. Carter, the speedy freshman, finished second and Murphy, another freshman, won third.

Hoffman won the hundred yard dash, barely nosing out Killebrew and Daugherty whofinished second and third. Time, :63:8.

Hoffman by virtue of winning the 100, placing second in 40, and swimming on the winning relay team earned nine and a quarter points which netted him individual high point honors. Carter, the freshman, scored second individual honors with eight points by setting the new record and taking first place in the 200 breast and placing second the 150 yard back stroke.

Meets of this character will be held every Saturday until the holidays with the exception of December 13.

64 Sign Up for Quad Cage League

Sixty-four men have signed up to play on the eight teams representing the quadrangle basketball league. The men's dormitory was divided into four sections and two teams selected from each division. Games will begin soon after the teams are given a place to play in.

Changes In Basketball Rules

William H. Ball, chairman of the joint basketball committee, in a statement made in New York yesterday, told of the outstanding changes made in the basketball rules for 1924-25. The chief alteration, which nearly all coaches believe will better the game, is as follows:

"A substitute entering the game shall participate in the game before he may be withdrawn."

Before the passage of this rule it was the practice of coaches, when they believed their team was in a hole, to send in a substitute for a player merely to allow the coach to tell the player what he wanted done. Then before the expiration of time out the regular was sent back into the game and the substitute did not participate in a single play. As far as the rule was concerned the coach would have saved time by merely calling his man to the sidelines and telling him what he wanted done.

Section 11 of last year's rules has been rewritten to enlarge the duties of the umpire and this official may now be called upon by the referee to assist more energetically in the handling of a game.

Section 1 of rule 8 has also been revised as to the length of the intermission for high school games played by younger boys. The revision provides for a three minute extra period, where necessary, instead of the five minute period used by the older boys.

Section 3 of rule 9 provides for a one minute intermission before each extra period of play in a tie game.

Rule 7, section 9, was also changed to provide three ways of disposing the ball, each depending upon the following play. The first is:

"If a player has to start a dribble, the ball must leave his hands before the pivot foot leaves the floor."

This is directly contrary to last year's rules.

The second is:

"If a player has to pass or throw for goal, he may lift the pivot foot, or jump from both feet, but the ball must leave his hands before his feet again touch the floor."

The third change in this section is:

"In disposing of the ball by a player who was running when the ball was caught, he (the player) may take one or two steps, if, in the judgment of the referee, he stops as soon as possible or gets rid of the ball as soon as he can."

Varsity Water Basketball Team Beats Freshman, 8-0

Following the freshman-varsity swimming meet yesterday afternoon the varsity won a water basketball game from the frosh. Sorenson, Lake, Hogan, Wylie, Marble, Lambert, Killebrew, Krumviede, Obert, and Fairgrave played for the varsity.

Military Basket Ball Tournament Begins Soon

The company basketball tournament, embracing teams from every company in the military department, will begin in the next few days, according to E. G. Schroeder, director of athletics.

The games will not be played in elimination style, but each team will play one game with every other division and the winner decided on a percentage basis.

Thirteen Years Make a Lot of Difference!

Thirteen years ago Lefty Russell was one of the aces of Dunn's Baltimore team. Connie Mack wanted Lefty. Dunn was loathe to let him go until he got his price. That price was $11,000. Connie finally paid it, however.

Now he is gambling just $89,600 more than that price on another offside flinger.

The sale of Russell to the Mackmen was about the first startling one made by the Baltimore mogul to the big show. It is a coincidence, therefore, that the price paid Groves was the highest Dunn has ever received for one of his stars—the sale of whom has netted him a huge fortune in a few years.

Dunn sold Jack Bentley to the Giants for a sum now said to have been $72,500. He sold Max Bishop, infielder, to Connie Mack for a wad said to be $50,000.

The Bentley and Bishop deals weren't David Harum affairs, either. Bentley made good with the Giants, first as a slugger and then as a pitcher and slugger. Bishop, while not a scintillating star last season, is destined to become one of the game's best infielders.

Tryouts for Philo Octave Play Held Monday at 4 p. m.

Societies to Present Enchanted Cottage Of January

Play First Produced At Duke of York By Pinero

The first tryout for the "Enchanted Cottage," a play which is being produced by the members of the Octave Thanet and Philomathean literary societies, will be held Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the natural science auditorium. According to Miss Helen Langworthy, director of University plays, every member of the two societies, who is interested in dramatic work, is to try out, regardless of previous dramatic training. No doubt many of the members of the cast, which will be selected for the play will not have been on the University stage before.

Copies of the play may be found on reserve at the central desk in the general library in the natural science auditorium. All those entering the tryouts should be more or less familiar with the play.

The Enchanted Cottage which is to be given on January 14 and 15, is one of the most successful of plays written by the English dramatist Arthur Wing Pinero. The first professional production took place at the Duke of York's theatre in London, March 1, 1922. Since then the play has been enthusiastically accepted by the American audience.

The motion picture version is one of this year's releases with Richard Barthelmess as the shell-shocked hero, and May McAvoy as the heroine—a miracle of plainess.

The theme of the story deals with the "gift of sight" which is granted to people who are in love. In the words of Mrs. Minett, "As long as two people keep their love burning they will never be anything to each other but fair and happy."

The people in the play are Oliver Bashforth, late lieutenant of the English Royal Regiment; Mrs. Smallwood, his mother; Rupert Smallwood, his stepfather; Major Hillgrove, D. S. C., M. C.; the Rev. Charles Corsellis, rector of Fittlehurst; Mrs. Corsellis, his wife; Laura Pennington, who becomes Oliver Bashforth's "dream girl"; Mrs. Minett, the housekeeper who has certain supernatural characteristics; and Rigg, Major Hillgrove's man.

The scene of the play is in an enchanted cottage on the edge of Fittlehurst Park, Lord Wishorough's seat in Sussex.

Committee Reports On Year's Program

Classical Club Will Study Roman and Greek Art

The program committee of the Classical club has the year's program planned.

The general subject of chief interest that the organization will take up is that of Greek and Roman art. Subjects included are: a report of the classical investigation, which deals with the socialized aspects of classical studies especially what lessons in civics the high school teacher can find for his pupils in the Latin courses; the Latin element in modern plays; Latin epigraphy; palaeography; Roman religion, including auguries; ancient philosophies; mediaval hymns; the prose writers in later and medieval Latin; and the revival of learning both in Greek and Latin.

The main idea of the club is to acquire and learn Greaco-Roman civilization and the Roman language. For a lighter vein however the committee plans that some little play, card games, and motion pictures be presented, some of which outsiders will be permitted to attend. It has also been suggested that prof. Franklin H. Potter be requested to form a Latin circle for questions and answers.

The Mid-West Classical Association will meet here next spring. The local Classical club will contribute some form of entertainment for the guests.

To Discuss Oregon At Botany Lecture

Prescott Will Talk on Lumber Industry of Western State

"Plants and Forests of Oregon" is the subject to be discussed by Mr. C. W. Prescott at the meeting of the Botany club in room 206 of old science hall on Monday December 1 at 4:10 p. m. The talk will be illustrated by a series of lantern slides secured from the department of botany at the University of Oregon. Mr. Prescott, who is now a graduate assistant in the botany department here, has recently spent three years in botanical work in Oregon.

The lumber industry, with particular attention to the trees used, will be emphasized as well as a general survey of the principal flowering plants of the state.

KNOWING NIGHT

The night was nearly clouded and but one star shone.
I watched it from the low porch step, lonesome and alone.
I saw how from an orange fleck its opal fire had grown
Until it glimmered, till it glowered like a ghost about to groan,
And it winked a wan and knowing blink, an innuendo of its own.
It gleamed again. I wondered if the foxy thing had known
That just before it rose to view, I had not been alone.

Is Artistic Talent Inborn? Seek Answer By Research

By Karl Kohrs

Fritz Kreisler steps before the footlights. There is a roar of applause and then a vast, tense silence. And out of that silence, comes the soft, velvet melody of "Midnight Bells."

Of the thousands that lean forward to catch the slightest echo of harmony, perhaps not one gives a thought to the years of grinding toil and disappointment in the life of the artist that stands beween this moment and the beginning of his career. This thought is dismissed with the general comment, "Well, he is a born artist." Skeptical science, however, has challenged this very statement, and, with characteristic curiosity, has attempted to settle this question by definite research. Such research is being done in the psychology laboratory at the present time. This need for investigation into the latent talent in musicians has occupied the attention of psychologists for some time. They are working from two fundamental principles the ability of the musician from the "motor", or physical standpoint, and his ability from the mental standpoint. This physical ability is determined by tests which measure the co-ordination between the hand and the thought, a factor which plays a vital part in the success of the musician. Anyone who has ever aspired to fame as a pianist, for instance, has experienced this lack of co-ordination, particularly when playing the first simple exercises. The first time the movement is played rapidly, the fingers may respond without hesitation; but the next time both regularity and precision seem to be lacking. Whether or not there is a definite correlation between this regularity and precision is a fact that this present research is attempting to ascertain.

The apparatus used in this work is the "chronograph," an instrument built by Prof. Carl E. Seashore. This machine, which operates in connection with a phonograph, records a graphic representation of the regularity of a certain number of taps made with a telegraph key. It is possible, by this method, to record the slightest variation in precision and co-ordination of the person tested. The tests which have been made, both for trained and untrained musicians, seem to bear out the theory that there is a greater degree of co-ordination in the former, and that this trait is inborn. This fact, however, is mainly characteristic of the instrumental artist and does not seem to apply particularly to the singer. In the latter pitch discrimination and voice quality practically take the place of physical co-ordination.

Research work in the psychology of music is comparatively new, and was begun this year by A. H. Lauer, research student in psychology. Mr. Lauer's work in this field is concerned with determining how much of musical talent is actually inborn an dto what extent this can be measured in terms of physical ability.

Ousting of Senators May Cause Trouble

disposition of the supply bills.

Democrats to Cooperate

Senator Curtis of Kansas, the newly elected majority leader, said he hoped to have the senate take up general bills now on the calendar in such order as the steering committee may decide.

"I hope we can take up the cooperative marketing bills advocated by farm organizations and which have been introduced," Senator Curtis said, "but I judge Congress will want to wait until it gets the report from the farm commission before determining upon any specific measure."

Asserting the democratic organization would cooperate in the passage of appropriation bills, Senator Robinson, Arkansas, the minority leader, said there was no disposition to obscruct action "on any measure of general importance which can be fairly considered."

He said that among the subjects which will receive attention are farm legislation, including cooperative marketing; the transportation act as it relates to the adjustment of labor disputes, rate making and freight schedules.

Senator Robinson said no doubt an effort would be made to dispose of the Muscle Shoals project and added that tax reduction would be discussed. He expressed the opinion, however, that there could be no further reductions at this session because of the condition of the revenues.

Nutting Will Talk to Women Debaters

Rhodes Scholar Speaks On Oxford System Of Education

The Rev. Willis D. Nutting, of Iowa City, and a recent graduate of the University of Oxford, England, will address the members of the women's literary society debate teams Thursday at 4 p. m. in the Philo-Octave hall.

As a Rhodes scholar fromthe Unithe Rev. Mr. Nutting has spent three years at Oxford and is especially qualified to discuss the system of education in the American university as compared with that in the English university. The question of the debate is "Resolved: that the University of Iowa should adopt the Oxford system of education."

The Women's Forensic council will entertain the debaters at a tea following the talk. Questions raised by members of the various teams will then be discussed.

The date for the final debate has been postponed until Wednesday, December 16. On that evening the teams will debate in the following manner: the Athena affirmative vs. the Erodelphian negative and the Athena negative vs. the Octave Thanet affirmative; the Erodelphian affirmative vs. Octave Thanet negative, and Erodelphian negative vs. Athena affirmative; Hamlin Garland affirmative vs. Hesperian negative, and Hamlin Garland negative vs. Whitby affirmative; Hesperian affirmative vs. Whitby negative, and Hesperia negative vs. Hamlin Garland affirmative; Octave Thanet affirmative vs. Athena negative, and Octave Thanet negative vs. Erodelphian affirmative; Whitby affirmative vs. Hamlin Garland negative, and Whitby negative vs. Hesperia affirmative.

Police Still Hunting Midnight Prowler; No Clues

Is the Delta Sigma Delta latch string out?

No more! Not since Friday when one of the brothers, arriving home in the wee hours of the morning discovered an unwelcome visitor just taking his departure via the tin roof and water spout over the porch of the chapter house, 325 N. Clinton.

Thinking of his slumbering comrades, blissfully recovering from a turkey dinner, he reserved his story until morning under the impression that nothing had been disturbed. Later it was discovered that R. E. Alters and Stewart M. Sawdey were poorer by the amount of one gold watch and forty dollars.

The thief's footprints were found in soggy ground. Detectives have been notified but no trace of the prowler has been found. Other fraternities on the campus have been warned to put the cat out and then, in all events, to lock the doors.

Ungles to Head Frosh Swimmers

Howard Ungles, A1 of Des Moines, was elected captain of the yearling swimming team at a meeting held by them following the freshman-varsity swimming meet yesterday afternoon.

Ungles was chosen last year as a member of the all-American interscholastic swimming team. In yesterday's meet he further distinguished himself by winning the forty yard dash, placing fourth in the dives, swimming in the hundred and on the freshman relay team.

Coach Announces Iowa's Lineup For I-M-I Debate

Harry T. Wood, University debate coach, announces the lineup of Iowa's men in the Iowa-Minnesota Illinois debate, as follows: Affirmative—Noel T. Adams, A4 of Iowa City; Allin W. Dakin, A4 of Mason City; and Floyd O. Racker, A4 of Waverly. Negative — Frank E. Horack, Jr., A3 of Iowa City; Philip C. Walker, Cm3 of Algona; and Charles M. Burns, A2 of Okoboji.

The debates will be held the evening of January 9, Minnesota sending a team to debate the negative side of the question here, and Iowa's negative team appearing at Urbana against Illinois. The third debate that evening will be at Minneapolis between Illinois negative and Minnesota affirmative.

The debate topic is, "Resolved, that the federal constitution be amended, granting congress exclusive power to enact uniform marriage and divorce laws in the United States."

Mrs. Marian Clark One of 29 Widows Of 1812 War Vets

One of the twenty-nine living widows of veterans of the war of 1812 is Mrs. Marian A. Clark, a resident of Iowa City. She was the wife of John R. Clark, who served in the McClellagans Company of Massachusetts. There are now no surviving soldiers of the 1812 campaign.

Mrs. Clark is a diminutive lady, of Scotch birth, with snowy hair and a sweet voice. Sitting opposite the reporter in a big chair she quietly told the story of her life. The senility of old age has not overtaken her, despite the eighty-eight years she has seen. She is still lively, and refuses to admit any ailment more serious than a bad cold.

Mrs. Clark, who was born in Glasgow, Scotland, came to this country when she was eighteen years old. In 1865 she married John Clark, a man many years her senior. The first eleven years of her married life were spent in New Portland, Maine, but in 1875 she came to Iowa City where she has resided ever since.

Philadelphia Deaf School Wants Cedar Rapids Game

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29 (AP)—The Pensylvania Institute for the Deaf, scholastic champions of the Philadelphia district, today accepted the open challenge of the Cedar Rapids, Iowa, high school team to meet for the scholastic championship of the east. A telegram sent today to Pittsburgh where the Iowa players witnessed the Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech game, suggested a meeting in Philadelphia on December 3.

Cold Wave Has Little Effect on Corn Crop According to Co. Agent

Believes 75 Per Cent Of Corn Crop Has Been Picked

Little damage was done to the crops throughout the state by the present cold wave according to Harley Hunt, county agent. Although the snow that accompanied this cold wave will make the corn picking a little more difficult, he believes that about 75 percent of the corn crop has already been put away.

Nevertheless the yield is disappointing according to Mr. Hunt who estimated that the crop this year would amount to about half of last years crop, which was only an average yield. As a result many Johnson County farmers are shipping their hogs light.

The scarcity of corn to feed the hogs and the low market for the underfed hogs are both working to make the financial condition of the farmer in this region worse than it has been for many years, he added.

Scouts Trained in Patrol Leadership

Troop 10 Tries for Higher Rank Advancement

A patrol leaders training course is being conducted for an hour every Saturday.

At the meeting held yesterday scoutmaster G. L. Kent gave an interesting and instructive talk on the "history and origin of the Boy Scout movement."

Troop 10 is conducting a contest between its patrols for advancement in rank with a "feed" as prize. At present the Flying Eagles rank highest with a percentage of 33 1-3 and the Blackbears are second with a percentage of 25.

The next court of honor will be held Thursday at 7:30 at scout headquarters. Wednesday at 7:30 will be held the regular monthly meeting of the executive committee. Plans for the scout banquet which will be held in Washington on December 9 as part of the Area Council program, will be made at at this meeting.

DUTCH REVISE VISE CHARGES

THE HAGUE, Nov. 28 (AP)—On complaints from tourist agencies that American visitors to Europe were keeping away from Holland owing to high vise charges, the Dutch foreign office has announced a new schedule of rates. An eight days vise will cost $1, while for a vise valid for one year the charge will be $10.

Girl Scouts Qualify in Query That Baffles Scores of Women

"Can she cook? Can she sew? Can she save money out of a picayune income?" They are the questions which the average man would ask about girl scouts, the majority of whom will be wives and mothers.

According to the Literary Digest for November 29 these are the questions a score of women of prominence, from Mrs. Coolidge and Mrs. Herbert Hoover down, have set themselves to answer between November and December 10.

The girl scouts are now making their drive to enroll thousands of new members, and to build big central organization buildings.

Mary Roberts Rinehart, who is chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the girl scouts, points out that the introduction of the feminine bicycle was one of the first factors in releasing the American girl from social restriction placed on her by society.

People are beginning to realize that the birthright of free bodies and the outdoors belongs to the girls as well as he boys.
