Bryan Calls Trial 'Duel to the Death' at Dayton Dinner

Says Case Uncovers Old Attack on Religion

(By The Associated Press) DAYTON, Tenn., July 7.—The contest between evolution and Christianity is a "duel to the death," William Jennings Bryan declared tonight in an address at a dinner given in his honor by the Progressive Dayton club.

"It has been in the past a death grapple in the dark," said Mr. Bryan, who arrived here today in preparation for the trial of John T. Scopes, charged with violating the Tennessee statute against teaching evolution in the public schools.

"From this time on it will be a death grapple in the light," Mr. Bryan said.

Assists Prosecution Mr. Bryan, who is associated with counsel for the prosecution of the young high school instructor, was a guest of the club which two weeks ago entertained Clarence Darrow, of the defense counsel in the same dining room.

The arrival of Mr. Bryan shortly after noon followed the return of John Thomas Scopes and Dr. John R. Neal, chief defense counsel, from Cookeville, where yesterday they filed a petition for an injunction to move the case from the state to the federal courts, only to have it refused.

During the afternoon Mr. Bryan held a brief conference with H. K. Hicks, Wallace C. Haggard, Judge J. G. McKenzie, and Herbert Hicks, local members of the prosecution staff. He attended a dinner attended by John T. Scopes, members of counsel for both parties to the suits, leaders in Dayton civic life and newspaper men.

Avoid Details Mr. Bryan avoided details of the Scopes case, saying the case would not be tried in the newspapers but in court. He inquired into the causes of the widespread interest in the case and pointed out the severest punishment possible could not be more than a fine of $500.

"The secret of the world's interest in this little case is found in the fact that this trial uncovers an attack that for a generation has been made more or less secretly upon revealed religion, that is, the Christian religion," he asserted.

"We have no knowledge of it outside the Bible which Christians regard as the revealed will of God. It gives us our only conception of God and our only knowledge of Christ.

"Anything that attacks the Bible attacks revealed religion.

Would Destroy Bible "A successful attack would destroy the Bible and with it revealed religion. The contest between evolution and Christianity is a duel to the death. This trial is going to give information or be the means of bringing out the information upon which this controversy will be decided. If evolution wins Christianity goes, not suddenly, of course, but gradually, for the two cannot stand together. They are as antagonistic as light and darkness, as antagonistic as good and evil.

"Christians," he said, "believing that revealed religion offers mankind the only abiding truth, will fight evolution as their only great foe.

"If information furnished at the trial shows evolution to be unproved and therefore unworthy of acceptance, science will have to fall back upon demonstrated truth, which has no terrors for Christianity."

Mr. Bryan insisted that the basic principle of the Tennessee anti-evolution law was the theory that the people speaking through the legislature have a right to control the public schools.

Only about half of the faculty have been reached so far in the sales campaign but a large percent of the amount, totalling approximately $50,000, has already been subscribed. The plan is practically the same as that used in financing the new stadium three years ago.

One-half of the second floor and all the third floor will be occupied by the club rooms. The plans include lounging rooms, billiard rooms, library, and equipment for banquets and social affairs. The dining room, on the second floor, will have dumb waiter connections with the University kitchen on the first floor and also with the club's own kitchen on the third floor.

Czecho-Slovakia to Refund U. S. Debt

Total of $91,000 Due Now for Expenses in 1919-'20

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, July 7.—Czecho-Slovakia has joined France, Belgium, Italy, and Estonia in assuring the United States of its willingness to refund its debt.

The state department has been informally advised by the legation here that in a few days an official note would be dispatched by the Prague government announcing full acknowledgment of its post-war reconstruction obligations and its readiness to enter into immediate negotiations for settlement.

In addition to the acknowledged debt amounting to $80,000, a further amount of $11,000 is due the United States for expenses incurred by this government in the transportation of Czecho-Slovakian troops from Siberia to their country in 1919 and 1920.

Weather Slows Up Thinking Powers

"If you want to study, forget the heat," is the advice of Prof. Christian A. Ruckmick of the psychology department. "Keep your thoughts away from the temperature."

He states that mental processes are slowed up by the heat the same as the physical processes. Mental vitality is reduced in proportion to the decrease in physical vitality. When the body is fatigued the mind is usually fatigued owing to the toxic poisons in the system.

Pioneer, Whose Father Helped Build Old Capitol, Finds Campus Changed

W. S. Packard, whose father helped build Old Capitol in '39, is visiting the University. Mr. Packard is able to relate many interesting instances which occurred when he was a boy living in Iowa when the state was first settled. His father came from Ohio and settled down on a claim in this state and staked out the town which is now Windham. During these pioneer days his father operated a saw mill near what is now Clear creek between Coralville and Tiffin, just west of Iowa City. In this mill wood was sawed and then carried to be used in building Old Capitol building.

"All of the heavy hauling was done with a yoke of oxen in those days," said Mr. Packard.

Classes in Old Capitol When he was in college Mr. Packard says that classes were held in Old Capitol, which was a comparatively new building in those days. There used to be another building which stood just north of the capitol which was the other building on the campus then. The president's office was also in Old Capitol as it is today, however.

Mr. Packard was in the mercantile business for many years and until lately has been engaged in real estate affairs. He was greatly surprised at the wonderful change in the campus since he was in school. When shown a picture of the old capitol and the campus as it used to appear he remarked, "yes sir, that's just the way she used to look when I was here."

Announce Dissolution of Grain Marketing Company

Second English Conference Meets Here July 20-23

Professors Hewitt and Evans of England Will Speak

The date for the second English conference to be held at the University has been set for July 20 to 23, according to Prof. Hardin Craig, head of the English department who says that "the general subject of this conference is not method, but scholarship, literature, and personal cultivation."

"The University of Iowa wishes to do something for those who desire to improve themselves, to learn the trend of literature and scholarship, and to secure inspiration and assistance in the promotion of their own work as writers and students."

Variety in Speakers Indications are that the conference this year will offer more variety in discussion than was the case at the conference two years ago. The list of speakers this year includes Prof. Reginald M. Hewitt, University of Nottingham, England, and Prof. E. Ifor Evans, from the university at Manchester, England, both of whom are on the English staff of the University of Iowa for this summer; Prof. Nathaniel E. Griffin of the university of Pennsylvania; and Prof. George Spohn, St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minnesota, as well as a larger number of this University's English instructors.

The first conference of this kind held here in 1923, seemed to be well received and attended. Some of the speakers at that time were A. W. Reed, of Kings college, London, and Prof. A. E. Morgan of the University of Sheffield, England.

Inquiring Reporter Finds Campus Scoffs Mildly at Scopes Trial

"What is the outcome of the Scopes trial?" Only a bewildered shake of the head met the question of the inquiring reporter, as the girl student was accosted.

"The 'monkey trial,' vainly suggested the questioner. Comprehension on the immobile face was not discerned; then with a look of utter contempt the flapper turned and swept haughtily away.

"The Scopes trial," offered George Reynolds of Waterloo, "will be the greatest since the Dred Scott decision. The Scopes controversy is the culmination of all scientific learning."

Near the liberal arts building, a young fellow faced the rapid-fire questioning. "Haven't read the paper since I came. What is that 'monkey trial' anyway?"

B. L. Blue of Waterloo, when questioned thought that the decision would not affect the trend of thought in the country in relation to evolution.

Mrs. Frank Christy of Wapello, commented: "It seems like a lot of 'bunk'."

D. H. Slaughter of Shelby, halted and presented his idea on the subject: "Whatever the decision in the Scopes case may be, it is apparent to the public now, that legislation should not have anything to do with what is taught in the public schools."

Koffka to Talk on Cinema Psychology

German Author Comes to University Next Friday

Motion pictures have a psychology all their own, believes Prof. Kurt Koffka of the University of Giessen, Germany, who has made a study of them and their reaction upon the senses. Professor Koffka will explain what causes them to move, why they flicker, and other phenomena of the silent stage in his lecture, "The Psychology of the Cinematograph," next Friday at 8 o'clock in the chemistry auditorium.

Professor Koffka, who has been lecturing at Cornell university, is lecturing at the University of Chicago during the summer session. He is the author of several articles and books on psychological subjects, including a recent translation, "The Growth of the Mind." Professor Koffka received his training in the universities of Germany and at the University of Edinburgh.

A round table discussion will be conducted by Professor Koffka Saturday morning at 10 o'clock in the north chamber of Old Capitol. The topic will be "Mental Development from the Point of View of Gestalt."

It is even rumored a solemn ceremony of thanksgiving will be celebrated, this having been recommended by Pope Pius. The pope is reported to be delighted with the speedy repatriation of the violation of the sacred territory of the vatican.

The vatican officials are taking steps to provide for closer vigilance over the irreplaceable church treasures.

M. Briand Pushes Treaties With China

PARIS, July 8.—(AP)—The two treaties of the Washington conference affecting China were pushed through the chamber of deputies today by M. Briand, foreign minister, after a warm exchange of compliments with the communists.

The treaties were ratified by a show of hands and now will go to the senate. One of the treaties relates to the safeguarding of the rights and interests of China. The other deals with the Chinese customs tariff.

In the chamber today the communists criticized the way they thought capitalistic nations were exploiting Chinese and forcing children to work 18 hours a day.

Farmers' Project Will Pay Creditors and Stockholders

Company Lives But Year After Incorporation

(By The Associated Press) CHICAGO, July 7.—The $25,000,000 Grain Marketing company, the largest farmer cooperative project ever attempted, will be dissolved, banker-creditors here were notified today.

The properties, valued at $16,407,000 will be returned to the grain companies which entered into the merger, which had for its object the eventual control of the company by farmer producers.

Note of the parties concerned in the merger, either bank creditors or farmer stockholders, will lose money through the dissolution, it was announced.

Incorporated a Year Ago

The company was incorporated a year ago as a cooperative organization under the permissive provisions of recent agricultural legislation and on the basis of four old-line grain companies proposing to lease their properties to the cooperative body and participate on a temporary basis as a board of managers.

The operators were also holders of $4,000,000 worth of stock given in exchange for advance of working capital to be retired when an equivalent amount of stock was sold to farmers.

Failure of the company to persuade enough farmers to buy stock within the time allowed under the contract for retirement of the $4,000,000 of stock was held responsible for the impending dissolution.

Ends Sale of Stock

A commerce commission ruling required the company to sign an agreement with the Illinois Agricultural association that it would sell no more stock in Illinois before July 28, the date set for an accounting with the four old line grain companies.

The Indiana Securities commission also refused permission to the cooperative concern to sell stock in that state and the company withdrew its application to sell stock in Ohio. Yesterday it was announced it had virtually disbanded its promotional forces and stopped its stock promotion campaign.

Banking interests, which advanced money to the concern a year ago for operating expenses were assured today they would be fully repaid.

Ho Hum, Another Strike

DES MOINES rapidly is becoming used to the sound of the auto horn instead of the street car bell, for the street railway's trams are now serving no better purpose than a spawning ground for rust. The remarkable part of the car men's walkout in the capital Saturday morning is not the strike itself, the bandying back and forth of union and employer's arguments, the long walks to work, or the demands; rather is it the passivity with which the population of Des Moines has accepted the strike. The city government and the city's people have adopted the passive non-cooperative doctrine of Ghandi and calmly gone on with their appointed tasks.

There has been no indication that strike-breakers would be imported to attenuate the shut-down of service. Instead, the utility company has accepted the strike not as an irreparable rupture or a challenge for industrial war but a nuisance. The autos of Des Moines were mobilized by the hundreds and by Sunday morning the populace was moving from place to place with a "business as usual" and matter-of-fact air as if the street car strike were of no greater importance than the rising of the moon.

The vigorous and savage strike with its barnstorming and fire brands is dying. More and more the truth of John Galsworthy's "Strike" is being felt. The war spirit and interminable mobbing of factories has given way to a quiet, orderly procedure which gains its ends as the last weapon of labor with less violence and with greater dispatch. The public attitude toward a strike is, in the catch phrase of the French Revolution "What is all this worth?" rather than "Danger Ahead." The strike is dying.

What Price Glory?

FIRECRACKERS consumed annually in America if placed end on end, not counting balloons, torpedoes, snakes, and sparklers, would reach from here to—

Suppose that ten million children, excluding the adults, spent thirty cents each, or a total of $1,300,000 for fireworks. Then estimate the total cost of the fireworks bought by communities, park boards, carnivals, lake resorts—

The day after the last "Glorious Fourth" came the usual story, "July Fourth Takes Big Toll." From all over the nation came reports such as "Two persons are dead and about one hundred others injured as a result of a Fourth of July celebration here." Today is the fourth day after the Fourth. How many of the "injured" have swelled the death toll?

Why must reason and caution be thrown to the winds to celebrate the Fourth? Children are guarded from dangerous guns, pistols and the like during the whole year but on the Fourth we deliberately provide them with explosives which take more lives that one day than gun accidents during the year.

The Fourth of July to most Americans has come to mean first, FIRECRACKERS, second, a holiday, and third, amusement. A good old fashioned Fourth observed as the birthday of our nation and combined with a Thanksgiving day attitude would do more to inculcate a true spirit of democracy in the coming generation than all the firecrackers in the world.

When Artists Unite

THE threatened monopoly on motion picture production that has made restless the slumber of lesser film-makers and theatre-owners for many a night was dealt another blow a day or two ago, when it was announced that Samuel Goldwyn—former Goldfish—will join the United Artists company as an independent producer.

Goldwyn, whose pictures have been trademarked with the magnificent lion, has played fair with the public and presented as consistently excellent program pictures as any producer in America. The United Artists, even without him, has been an organization which promises great things for the future of the motion picture. Originating several years ago with Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, the company added D. W. Griffith and unofficially known as the Big Three. As to the artistry of any one of these it is needless to speak—every picture they have made under the United Artists banner speaks for itself.

Many other artists of unquestioned ability and box-office power have come under the United Artists standard, always following the original plan that each member is to have unhindered opportunity to display his best work, without undue restriction from the others as to stories or finance. Such pictures as "The Thief of Bagdad," "The White Rose," and now "Don Q." masterpieces all, have been the result.

Strangely enough, the theatre-owner may gain little or no profit from the increasing power of United Artists, bidding fair as it does to rival the mighty Famous Players combine headed by Jesse Lasky and Adolph Zukor. United Artists' type of pictures never can be sold to the exhibitor for a song—they are too costly to produce. It all means that instead of facing arbitrarily high rates from a company growing perilously near a monopoly, as he may have considered it, the theatre-owner now will be given free choice of two great companies, neither of which will be in a position nor of the inclination to sell pictures cheaply.

The World at Iowa

WITH registrants from thirty-five states and from many foreign countries in attendance at this summer session, the student body is truly a cosmopolitan group.

When the summer school was opened twenty-five years ago it was largely for the convenience of Iowans who were unable to attend during the regular year. The growth has been much greater than its staunchest supporters during its first days ever dreamed it would be, a growth not only in numbers but in the wisdom of its appeal.

The old custom of going east for an education has been reversed in many instances, and today many of the graduates of the best schools of that section of the country are in attendance at this University to continue their work for higher degrees. Representatives of the far west and of the south as well as many from the intervening states daily mingle with these, with each other, and with those who come from the countries of other lands.

Much can be gained from these daily contacts. A broader sympathy based upon a better understanding of the problems of each locality is only one of the outstanding advantages. To meet and know a farm-labor partisan from South Dakota, to sit daily in the same class with an ardent supporter of the policies of Brookhart and the men of the bloc he represents, to get an inkling of what the Chinese think of the present situation in their home land, to rub elbows with both the man from the city and the country districts, are but a part of the opportunities for contacts offered here today. All of these can not fail to give one a finer insight into the problems of the time.

Life is largely a series of contacts, not only these we make with people but those made with nature and her forces and with the material things of the world. The more we can make the richer and fuller will be our understanding and enjoyment of what life has to offer us.

Poems That Live

Mutability

The flower that smiles today
Tomorrow dies;
All that we wish to stay
Tempt, and then flies.
What is this world's delight?
Lightning that mocks the night,
Brief even as bright.

Virtue, how frail it is!
Friendship, how rare!
Love, how it sells poor bliss
For proud despair!
But we, tho' soon they fall,
Survive their joy, and all
Which ours we call.

Whilst skies are blue and bright,
Whilst flowers are gay,
Whilst eyes that change ere night
Make glad the day,
Whilst yet the calms hours creep,
Dream thou—and from thy sleep
Then wake to weep.
—Percy Bysshe Shelley.

Giants Creep Up On Pirates' Lead With 7 to 6 Win

Young and Frisch Hit Ball Hard in Old Rivals Battle

(By The Associated Press) NEW YORK, July 7.—The Giants and the Pirates, old enemies in baseball, today settled down to a five game test, New York taking the first combat 7 to 6 and creeping up to within one full game of the pace setting club from Pittsburgh. Successful home runs by Moore and Cuyler in the first inning threatened a troublesome day for young Greenfield, McGraw's choice for mound duty, but he steadied, and his mates delivered the victory with 13 base showers showered upon Aldridge, Sheehan, and the veteran Babe Adams. Among them was a home run by Frisch, and two doubles and a single by Young.

Maranville Leads Cubs in 10 to 5 Victory Over Brooklyn

BROOKLYN, July 7.—Rabbit Maranville, making his debut as the manager of the Chicago Cubs, led his team to a victory over Brooklyn today, 10 to 5. In the sixth inning, the Cubs broke a 2 to 2 tie when they staged a rally netting seven runs. Tiny Osborn started for the Robins but gave way to a pinch hitter in the eighth and Oeschger finished the game.

Chicago Defeats Washington In Pitchers' Duel, 2 to 1

CHICAGO, July 7.—(AP)—Chicago defeated Washington 2 to 1 in a pitchers duel here today between Ted Lyons and Dutch Reuther. Lyons allowed his opponents only five hits while Reuther was touched for eight, three of them coming in the first inning, which, behind a base on balls, gave the locals two runs.

Police Chief Tries New Method to Catch Lawbreakers in Cars

NEW ORLEANS, July 7.—(AP)—Payroll bandits and other hold-up men who use automobiles to escape after downtown robberies, are finding it harder to get away due to a system installed by Thomas Healy, new chief of police. Under the rule when a policeman discovers lawbreakers escaping in a machine he blows a long blast and four short ones on his whistle and nearby traffic officers stop all vehicles until further notice. Payroll robberies have been common here this summer, averaging almost one a week.

How Cleveland Could Use This Old Battery Pair!

By NORMAN E. BROWN. THE Cleveland Indians today are a badly shattered ball club. Latest averages show the team ranking sixth in batting strength and seventh in fielding. Your eyes grow weary before you reach the names of any Cleveland pitchers in the winning averages.

The team needs pitchers. It needs a good catcher. It needs infielders. It needs hitting strength. But most of all it needs the battery men. And right here is where the rub comes. Two years ago the club had a couple of likely looking catchers in Luke Sewell and Glenn Myatt. Neither had big league experience. Sewell, a brother of Joey, had little professional experience. The club bosses, however, decided that in one of these men they would find a star.

They forthwith used Steve O'Neill, Ray Seck's only rival for catching honors in the American league, for trading material. The club needed a first baseman. Manager Speaker, always an admirer of George Burns, decided he was the man needed. So a deal was cooked up that sent O'Neill and Bill Wambagans, second sacker, to the Red Sox for Burns and Al Walters, a fair mechanical catcher.

Wambagans was allowed to depart because he wasn't popular with the fans. He ranked as one of the best second basemen in the game—and still does, in my estimation.

Then last winter, the club wanted young pitchers. Stanley Coveleskie, one of the few remaining spitball hurlers and the man who won three games for the Indians in the world's series of 1920, seemed unable to win for the team. To the man in the stands it looked as though the team didn't give its best behind Covey. So a deal was framed with Washington whereby the champions acquired Coveleskie for Byron Speese, a young hurler, and Carl Smith, a rookie outfielder.

Smith was farmed out. Speese is still trying to find himself. Now both Coveleskie and O'Neill could help the Indians as they are today. Coveleskie has won more games for the Senators than any of the vets remaining with the Indians.

O'Neill may be lacking in hitting this season, but he still has his brains. He is doing yeoman service for Huggins, trying to make something out of the demoralized staff of the Yanks. Were O'Neill working behind the plate for Manager Speaker's youngsters the story of the Indians' efforts might read differently. Neither Myatt nor Sewell are first class catchers.

Favorites Win in State Golf Tourney

Default Gives Bartlett Win; Ingham Bests W. H. Thomas

(By The Associated Press) SIOUX CITY, July 7.—Few upsets occurred today in the opening round of the championship flight of the state tournament. All of the favorites coming through with victories. Arthur Bartlett, defending champion, was not forced to play his first round match today as Don Stearns of Fort Dodge, defaulted. The feature match of the afternoon was between William Ingham, Des Moines, and W. H. Thomas, Spencer. Thomas who was the only qualifier with a total of 162 to enter the championship fight forced Ingham to the 21st hole before the Des Moines player finally won. A 20 yard mashie shot by Ingham rolled into the cup for a birdie three to end the match.

Braves Add to String of Wins by Taking Double from Cards

BOSTON, July 7.—(AP)—The Boston Braves ran their string of victories to five by thumping the St. Louis Cardinals 7 to 4 and 8 to 2 in a double header today. Barnes held the visitors to seven hits in the opener, and Kyle Graham let them down with a like number of safeties in the second game.

MANILA, July 7.—(AP)—Major Crispula Patajo, retired, one of the first Filipinos to obtain a commission in the U. S. army, is dead. He served in the intelligence office of the U. S. army during the early days of American occupation and it was in recognition of his services that a lieutenant's commission was given him.

The late Major General J. Franklin Bell, who saw much service in the Philippines during the insurrection, recognized Patajo's value to the army and is said to have attributed in a large degree the success of several engagements in Northern Luzon to information furnished by Patajo.

Merchants Drop Exchange Agitation

Hold Last Meeting to Discuss Plan With Bankers

The check exchange is here to stay. That is the conclusion of the bankers, after a meeting yesterday afternoon with about fifty Iowa City merchants at the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

Although the merchants argued their case from every angle and vigorously opposed the tax, the bankers insisted that the fee was absolutely necessary and justified. The meeting ended with the suggestion that the banks voluntarily drop the exchange rule whenever they possibly can do so.

This decision of the banks to enforce the rule puts an end to the agitation which began when the banks first announced the establishment of the check exchange fee. Local merchants plan no more meetings regarding the fee, and have decided to accept the rule as the banks have made it, it was said last night.

Thus far the merchants have not been collecting the fee from their customers, but have been paying it to the banks from their own pockets. Where checks are given to pay for purchases the merchants are not collecting the fee, but where checks are cashed for accommodation the extra three cents is requested.

Slash in Surtax Aim of President

To Relieve Taxpayers by Legislation in Next Congress

(By The Associated Press) SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 7.—General relief for all taxpayers in legislation to be undertaken at the next session of Congress is the aim of President Coolidge. He wants particular emphasis centered, however, on a slash in the surtax rates.

Mr. Coolidge, who urged adoption of the Mellon plan proposing a maximum surtax rate of 25 per cent. in the last tax reduction fight, is prepared, if experts ask for it, to sanction a maximum surtax rate even as low as 12 per cent.

Kupka Appears at Court Yesterday; Bond Is Returned

Rodney Kupka, who forfeited a $1,000 bond by failing to appear in Justice Carter's court Monday to answer a charge of maintaining a liquor nuisance, appeared in court yesterday and explained why he was not present. Last week a notice was served on Kupka to appear Tuesday at nine o'clock to give reasons why the liquor found in his home should not be destroyed. Kupka believed this notice to be the summons to his hearing and did not come Monday, the date set for his hearing.

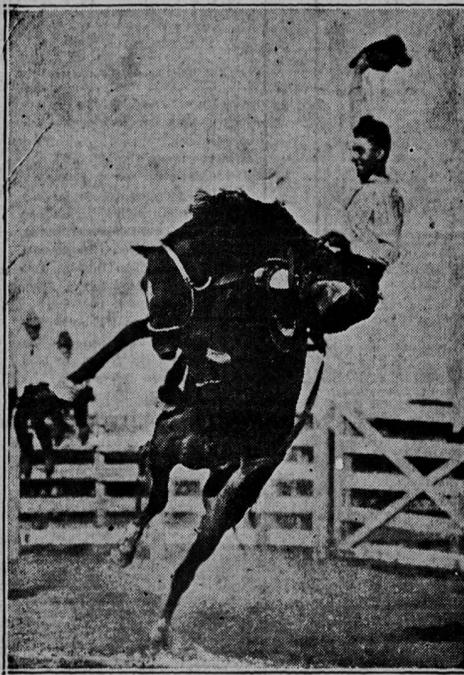

Justice Carter withdrew the court order for the forfeiture of his bond and Kupka's hearing was held today. He was bound over to the grand jury on a $1,000 bond.

Arctic Explorers Must Know How to Snag the Timid Seal

CHICAGO, July 7 (AP)—One of the necessary arts in being an Arctic explorer is an ability to use native weapons. The harpoon being the chief of these. Commander Donald B. MacMillan, now on his ninth trip to that land, excels in the art.

On one expedition which was outfitted for one year, MacMillan was obliged to be away four years. Then it was that he and his men lived on native rations consisting chiefly of seal and whale meat. They came back in better physical condition than when they departed.

Tall Corn Forces Farmers to Erect Signs for Tourists

The Pullman has a canopied dance floor atop and was built for moving picture use at a cost of $25,000, the sponsors claim.

Motorcycle policemen will escort the car to the Strand as soon as it arrives, where Mayor J. J. Carroll will welcome C. E. Holah and his assistants, who are making the tour.

Advise Modern Advertising for Ten Commandments Aid

PORTLAND, Ore., July 7.—(AP)—Modern advertising methods applied to the Ten Commandments "would soon change them from stern prohibition laws to factors contributing to true happiness," declared Clarence C.
