Strategy Fails; Mitchell Faces Trial

French Premier Forms Cabinet, Drops Caillaux

Finances Control French Politics
Painleve Will Conduct Finance Portfolio Without Aid

(By The Associated Press) PARIS, Oct. 29.—Premier Painleve has succeeded in reconstituting the cabinet which will proceed to grapple with France's problems, financial, military, and political, without the aid of M. Caillaux and several other members of the previous ministry. M. Painleve has taken over the portfolio of the finance ministry himself. Aristide Briand remains as minister of foreign affairs, and Charles Chaumet, who formerly was minister of commerce, has been appointed governor of the bank of France. With his cabinet, M. Painleve called today on President Doumergue who ratified the selection. Financial Troubles The new ministry was scarcely on its feet when pressure was put upon it from groups of the coalition for radical measures to solve the financial problems. Opposition groups served notice that the government can rely upon their support only if it follows a policy of national concord and rejects the demands of the extremists for the carrying out of policies decided on outside of parliament. The socialists propose to wait upon the premier and ascertain just how far he is going to satisfy their demands. In spite of the good impression the ministry has made in radical circles, the reopening of parliament next week promises to bring a period of serious difficulties for the cabinet.

Cold Wave Will Pass Today—Weather Man

CHICAGO, Oct. 29 (AP)—Moderation of the cold wave over the middle west and its movement eastward was promised for tonight and tomorrow. While the record breaking low temperatures for October are due to rise, the rise probably will be accompanied by snow so that the passing of October is likely to present a Christmas scene as far east as the Ohio river. The rise will be very gradual, weather officials indicated tonight, adding that the temperatures may be under the season's normal for several days.

League Dispels Gloom in Balkans
Greeks-Bulgars Rush Smoothing Process on Firing Line

(By The Associated Press) PARIS, Oct. 29.—Hastening to the scene of the Macedonian fighting on special trains provided by the Jugo-Slavian and Greek governments, the allied military attaches at Belgrade and Athens so succeeded in smoothing out the Greco-Bulgarian conflict that the council of the League of Nations was vastly aided tonight in its work of clearing up the Balkan crisis. Evacuation Continues Although another session will be held tomorrow morning to receive final reports from the attaches that evacuation has been completed, the council unanimously adopted Austen Chamberlain's resolution that the council was satisfied hostilities had ceased and that the troops were withdrawing. The council formally appointed a commission of inquiry headed by Sir Horace Rumbold, the British ambassador to Spain, to proceed to the spot and report its findings to the December session of the council. Both Greek and Bulgarian representatives assured the council their countries would accept the commission's findings without qualification and give it every assistance both at the frontier and in Athens and Sofia.

Pledges for Union Coming in Slowly
Fitzgerald Disappointed by Maturing Collections

Rufus H. Fitzgerald, director of the Memorial Union, reports falling off in the collections of the Memorial Union pledges. From the first of the year until two months ago the collections were good, he reports, but since September they have decreased to the extent that plans for future buildings are hindered. "The extent of delay in the collection of overdue pledges will determine whether we can go on with the second unit," Mr. Fitzgerald says. "The entire amount of overdue pledges will put up the second unit and in addition there will be some left over to commence the third building. We can assure the completion of the first unit but unless the students, faculty, townspeople, and the alumni realize the importance of paying these pledges we are powerless to advance further." There is a total of 9,000 pledges, of which ten per cent become due Nov. 1, 1925.

Resume Work on Assembler Soon
Decide to Increase Size of Paper This Year

Publication of the "Assembler," a monthly paper published by religious organizations on the campus last year, will be resumed as soon as possible. This was the decision of a committee for the organization of the paper which discussed the project at a meeting held this week. The "Assembler" was published five times last year, appearing the last five months of the school year and from now on, the paper will appear each month. The various young people's societies of the Baptist, Christian, Congregational, Episcopal, Methodist, Presbyterian, Lutheran, and Jewish churches have subscribed for a certain number of copies of each issue of the paper. The Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. have also promised their support. It was also decided at the meeting that there should be elected a board of control, consisting of the student pastor or other representative from each organization. The plan is to make the paper a four column edition this year. This will not only enable the staff to publish more news, but will also provide room for advertising and an editorial page.

American Debt M. Painleve is disposed to allow the American debt to rest where it is for the present. He has not made any declaration concerning it but his attitude is described as regarding the question less pressing than other financial problems confronting the government. Smaller sums than embodied in M. Caillaux's rejected proposals would not be acceptable to the United States, the premier feels. The prevailing view among the ministerial supporters is that public opinion in France would not tolerate the proffer of larger sums. M. Caillaux was quite determined to proceed further in the matter and for that purpose cabled on Monday to M. Lacour-Gayet the French financial agent in New York to come immediately to Paris. The fall of Caillaux, however, is likely to cause the postponement of his sailing. Caillaux Speaks M. Caillaux believed he could rearrange the French schedule of payments and render it more nearly acceptable to Washington. French public finances are in such confusion that the new government, it is understood, would rather let the American debt question drift indefinitely than make itself responsible for increased burdens at a time when the treasury was having difficulties in finding money to meet current needs. The ministerial declaration probably will refer to the question and express the hope that an adequate settlement soon will be reached, but it is regarded as extremely unlikely that it will recommend immediate action or action in the near future.

Davis of Harvard Delivers Geology Lectures Today

Prof. W. D. Davis of Harvard university addressed students of geology yesterday afternoon on the "Structure of the Great Basin." He explained the structure and formation of the basin between Utah and the Sierras, illustrating his talk with chalk sketches. He will speak on "Coral Reefs," under the auspices of the class in geology 105, in room 5 of old science hall at 9 a. m. today. A luncheon will be given in his honor this noon in the same room. He will give a popular lecture entitled, "The Lessons of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado," at 7:30 tonight in the chemistry auditorium. The public is invited to this lecture which will be illustrated and based on Prof. Davis's own observations of that region.

Daughter to Unveil Father's Portrait

Miss Juliet Hammond will unveil the portrait of her father at the law school anniversary celebration, for Chancellor William G. Hammond, dean of the law school here from 1868 to 1881, is one of the two men whose portraits have been painted in oils by Prof. Charles Cumming for presentation Nov. 6. The second portrait is of Judge George G. Wright. The two are a gift to the law school from 250 graduates. Miss Hammond will arrive in Iowa City November 5.

Australian Comments on American Football, Literature, and Schools

Our world, and its vari-colored phases, from Mencken to college athletics, were discussed at length by Prof. Ernest H. Oliphant of Melbourne, Australia, who will talk here today, in an interview yesterday. Professor Oliphant, who is characterized by Harold Craig as a "noted scholar" of Elizabethan England and its literature, is interested in many sides of American life. "Mencken," he remarked with a quizzical air, "is one of the most interesting writers of the day. I can hardly criticize him, for I haven't read all his work, but, needless to say, I don't agree with him on many things."

Lower Schools Inadequate When asked about our present system of popular education Professor Oliphant took time to enlarge upon his own theory of what our schools should be doing. He said that the general level of intelligence today is probably no higher than in sixteenth century England; it may possibly be lower. "I suspect that our preparatory schools should ground their students more thoroughly in history and geography, in order that they may approach the classics with some cultural background," he states. Popularity of Shakespeare Regarding the literature of Elizabethan England, the field in which he has specialized, Professor Oliphant suggested that we are all too prone to forget the contemporaries of Shakespeare, "the pioneers such as Marlowe who made possible the work of Shakespeare."

Professor Oliphant is the author of a series of papers on "An Inquiry into the Authorship of the Beaumont-Fletcher Plays," to be published in book form this spring. He spoke of Shakespeare as "a writer for the masses" whose plays, despite their obvious merit, were popular with all classes of theatre goers. Discusses Athletics Professor Oliphant is interested in American football, which is unknown, he says, outside the United States. He deplored the tendency toward commercialization of athletics, now so common in American colleges. In Australia the college contests, chiefly cricket and Rugby, are without admission fees, in order that no money will be made from them. Only friendly rivalry and sportsmanship characterize athletic contests abroad. Aside from his interest in literature Professor Oliphant has done considerable work in musical criticism. He is a consistent contributor to the New York Musical Quarterly. Although a native of Australia, he claims no land as a residence, being a globe trotter by inclination.

Frosh Pry Open Lid on Class Functions

New Safety Device Checks Locomotive DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 29 (AP)—A radio operated safety device that checks speeding locomotives automatically when danger looms ahead has been given a successful demonstration over a ten mile stretch of Pere Marquette railroad tracks. The test was in the presence of officials of the Pere Marquette and the Michigan Central and Thomas E. Clark, of Detroit, inventor of the device. By means of a system of radio controlled signal lights in the engine cab it was demonstrated that the engineer can be forewarned of danger many minutes in advance. Should the engineer be disabled, the system of control checks the engine's speed and brings it to a halt at any danger point at any time.

Promise Good Time at First of Season's Social Parties What would a freshman party be without its frosh? What would a frosh be without his green? So, it is not amiss that tonight's frosh in the men's gym, the first all-university party, should favor many verdant hangings, to shadow the "students" who dance below. The freshman party, under the guidance of the following committee: Don Parral, Delta Chi; John Falvey, Phi Kappa; August Kruskop, Phi Kappa Rho; Mable Martin, Sigma Kappa; Odette Allen, Chi Omega; Bert Boehm, Chi Kappa; Phi; Stewart Jorgenson, Quadrangle, opens the year's social season tonight in a blaze of Halloween pumpkins. The chaperons will be: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Volmer, Mr. and Mrs. George Potter, Mary Goodkyantz, and Richard Atherton, student council representatives. Invitations have been extended to President and Mrs. Walter A. Jessup, Dean Adelaide L. Burge and Dean Robert E. Reinow. During the intermissions this evening, when "Chuck" Sullivan mingles his orchestra, punch will be served. Don Parral, chairman of the party committee, sanguinely has expressed his hope that "this will be the best freshman party ever given on this campus."

Iowa W. C. T. U. Re-elects All Officers for Next Year SIOUX CITY, Oct. 29 (AP)—All state officers of the Iowa W. C. T. U. were re-elected at the Thursday morning session of the annual convention here. Mrs. Ida B. Wise-Smith, Des Moines, one of the outstanding figures in the prohibition movement in Iowa and president for the past 12 years was re-elected as president of the state organization.

Concerted Singing Adds Zest to Cheering at Games, Leaders Think Here is "Old Gold." It is hoped that every loyal student on the campus will learn it if he doesn't already know it. Cheer leaders have stated that such a small number of the rooters at the Iowa football games are familiar with the loyalty songs that it is impossible to sing them. Believing that concerted singing with several thousand throats contributing is one of the best forms of cheering for the Old Gold teams, The Daily Iowan is reprinting them completely for the benefit of those who are not familiar with the words. Clip out "Old Gold" and hang it on your wall. Sing it at meal times or when the gang gets together around the piano after dinner. The tune is "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms."

Iowa Towns to See Big Gun Next Week WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 (AP)—The corrected schedule for the movement of the army's fourteen inch railroad gun over the Chicago and Northwestern railway, which starts November 2, shows the following stops between Chicago and Council Bluffs, Iowa: Dixon, two hours; Dekalb two hours; Sterling one hour; Clinton, half day; Cedar Rapids, one day; Marshalltown, two hours; Ames, one day; Boone, one day; Carroll, two hours; and Council Bluffs, half day.

Speakers of Four States Here for Speech Conclave

Delegates Attend Minick as Theatre Guests Last Evening

Lecturers, authors and teachers who are to attend the speech conference today were guests of the University theatre at the second production of "Minick" last night. The conference will open this morning and conclude Saturday noon, during which time many leaders in speech work will appear on the program. Luncheons will be held Friday noon and evening in Youde's Inn when informal subjects relative to the conference will be discussed. Every Move Results in Loss for Colonel Bags Hang in Tree Top After Seizure by Preps PUEBLO, Colo., Oct. 29 (AP)—Dale Sechrist, a high school student, appeared at classes yesterday wearing a pair of thirty inch oxford bags. Half an hour later he was lying on the school grounds unconscious and his "super balloons" were floating from the top of a nearby tree. Fellow students declared it might be all right for the cowboys to wear flowing chaps, but that Sechrist's trousers were a bit too wide. School authorities are conducting an investigation of the incident.

Prosecution Sweeps Forward Rapidly; Pleas Useless (By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Every move to escape trial on an army court martial on charges of conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline resulted in failure today for Colonel William Mitchell. The prosecution proceedings, started yesterday by a court martial convened by direction of President Coolidge and based upon the Colonel's charges in public statements relating to the army and navy air service administrations, swept forward rapidly today with plain indications that the court would close for findings probably this week. Reid Gains Nothing Numerous pleas entered on behalf of the air officer by representative Frank R. Reid of Illinois, his civilian legal advisor, availed nothing. The court left the chamber several times to vote in secret on contentions advanced by the defense counsel. The members remained seated behind the bench just as often, however, accepting the opinions of the court law officer, Col. Blanton Winship, without objection. Whether in or out of the court chamber, the deliberations ended always in quick decisions against the motions of the defense. Overrule Mitchell's Plea Colonel Mitchell's plea, that he had communicated no offense triable by court, when he issued the statements at San Antonio during the war and navy departments with incompetency, criminal negligence, and almost treasonable administration of the national defense—the act for which he is charged with violation of the 96th article of war—was overruled by the court almost at the beginning of today's session. The decisions on this point established the legal competency of the court. Reject Free Speech Plea A plea that he had been within constitutional rights, exercising only the privilege of free speech when he issued this statement also was quickly rejected. Successive pleas were filed and voted down. One contending that all the charges and specifications against Colonel Mitchell should be dismissed because they had not been prepared in accordance with court martial regulations provoked the most prolonged arguments between the defense and the trial judge advocates. Court Martial Not Asked The defense placed special emphasis on the fact that Major-General Ernest Hinds, commanding the eighth corps area, on whose staff Colonel Mitchell was serving at the time he made his attack on the war and navy departments, had not recommended a court martial. It called attention, as well, to the failure of Brigadier General Rokenbach commanding the district of Washington, to prefer charges, contending that if any crime had been committed, it was the duty of these officers to take action and that the war department officials who ordered the investigation and finally brought the charges had no authority under the manual's provisions to do so.

Bombarding Stirs U. S. and France (By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Failure of French authorities in Damascus to give warning to American residents prior to the punitive bombardment of certain sections of the city last week has prompted the Washington government to make representations through Ambassador Herrick to the foreign officials. No Americans Hurt No American lives were lost nor was any American injured so far as official advices has reported, but some damage was caused to property owned by Americans and suitable claims will be filed with the French government when the necessary data is available. The more serious aspect of the situation lies in the fact that the reports received from the American consul show that, while French families were withdrawn to places of safety to the bombardment, no warning was given to the consul or to Americans or other residents. Want Equal Protection Officials here today would not go beyond confirming that such representations had been made by the Ambassador on instructions from Washington. The Washington government feels in common with other governments, it has the right to expect the Paris government to take definite steps to establish responsibility for the failure to warn American nationals and to bring about disciplinary action.

Wassam to Talk in Several Iowa Towns This Week Prof. W. C. Wassam, of the department of commerce, spoke in Davenport Tuesday night at the fall get-together of the A. K. Bible class of the First Presbyterian church. His subject was "Living With Yourself." This is a reduction of fifty cents from the cost last year. A refund will be given by the photographer if a half dozen pictures are ordered.

Hawkeye Manager Names Nov. 7 as Picture Deadline Most of the juniors has signed up for their Hawkeye pictures, reports Walter L. Hanson, A3 of Davenport, business manager of the yearbook. The deadline for sittings has been placed at Nov. 7, and arrangements must be made before that time. The new system of arrangements was inaugurated this year so that the Hawkeye could keep accurate account of the juniors who are signing for space. Instead of paying the photographer for both the picture and the engraving, the junior this year calls at the business office of the Hawkeye and pays a two dollar fee, to be used in paying for the cut. A sitting is arranged for him with his photographer, to whom he pays another two dollars for the picture. This is a reduction of fifty cents from the cost last year. A refund will be given by the photographer if a half dozen pictures are ordered.

Denman Promises Sale of Literary Magazine Nov. 4 The Iowa Literary Magazine will make its first appearance of the year Wednesday, November 4. This periodical is published under the auspices of the men's and women's literary societies. John F. Denman, A4 of Iowa City, is editor-in-chief, Frank R. Eyerly, A3 of Newton, assistant editor, and Marjorie Sensor, A2 of Independence, business manager. Although the magazine is comparatively new it has already attracted attention in national literary circles. It will be given a place in O'Brien's Collection of Best Short Stories of 1925.

Wilbur J. Teeters Calls Social Committee Meeting Dean Wilbur J. Teeters, chairman of the social committee, has called a meeting of the committee for this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the office of the dean of men. Important matters will be discussed.

Old Gold O, Iowa, calm and serene on the hill, Looking down on the river below, With a dignity born of the dominant will Of the men that have lived long ago: O, herald of the glory of pioneer days, Let thy spirit be proud as of old, For thou shalt find blessing and praise In the daughters and sons of Old Gold. We shall sing and be glad with the days as they fly In the time that we spend in thy halls, And in sadness we'll part when the days have gone by And our path turns away from thy walls. Till the waters no more in thy river shall run, Till the stars in the heavens grow cold, We shall sing of the glory and fame thou hast won And the love that we bear for Old Gold.

Zoological Museum Secures Rare Woodpecker Specimens Prof. Charles C. Nutting, curator of the zoological museum, has secured a pair of ivory-billed woodpeckers from the museum of comparative zoology at Cambridge, Mass. The ivory-billed woodpecker is classed with the recently extinct American birds. These prizes, with two other birds of the same species which represent one group of a series which represents the birds that have passed away in America.

River Uncovers Tragic Episode in Life Story of Mighty Buffalo Race

The dramatic life of thousands of pre-historic buffalo has just been disclosed by an investigation of their remains on the bank of the Little Sioux river, where great herds lived and played and fought many thousands of years ago.

Fairyland Hidden Beyond Microscope of Physicist

"The smallest germ is billions and billions of times as large as an electron," said Prof. J. A. Eldridge, of the physics department, recently in discussing the comparative size of an electron.

Relics in Bows
These relics of a once powerful race of animals were found in the mud and dirt of the left bank of the stream—four or five miles south of Cherokee by Dr. F. J. Cable. The deposit extends 100 feet or more along the river bank, is some twenty feet deep and extends back into the bank.

"We found evidence of thousands of more or less perfect skeletons of pre-historic buffalo," said Professor Thomas. "The river apparently served as their watering place many ages ago, as the bones are thousands of years old."

Trampled Into Mire
"The heads of animals, crowding each other on the bank of the stream, forced one another down into the muck—their successors trampling the bodies farther down as time went on. Then, thousands of years after this great race of mammals had disappeared from the face of the earth, the river which used to provide their water has eaten back into the mud and dirt in which their bones are buried, and has laid bare this episode of pre-historic life."

The bones, although perfect in many cases and well preserved, are very brittle and too fragile to be removed at this time of year. Doctor Mathew and Professor Thomas expect to recover them next summer, when weather conditions are favorable.

Banker Leaves $20,000 to College; Not an Alumnus

SPENCER, Oct. 29 (AP)—Marion E. Griffen, a banker here, who died recently, left a sum of $20,000 to Morningside college at Sioux City. Although Mr. Griffen was not an alumnus of the college and had no official connection with it, he always showed interest in its growth and development and gave $2,000 in 1915 and $10,000 in 1919 toward an endowment fund.

Hero Has Little Regard for Medals

Receives Thanks from Only One of Forty He Rescued

(By Central Press)
NEW YORK, Oct. 24—"I don't pay much attention to them frills," says Buck McNeil of his medals and honors.

McNeil, dock master, has saved more than forty persons.

"Buck" explains all his actions to the use of one phrase "it's my nature." "I've saved more than 40 persons, and once I saved two men at a time from going under the wheel of a boat," he said.

"Only one of 'em ever thanked me and he promised me the ocean."

"I have nine children and, earning $21 a week, I've never been able to put a dollar in the bank. Some people say to me, 'Why do you jump in to save people? It isn't your job. You've got children, you shouldn't take the chance. Well, I always say, 'It's just my nature.' 'I work much longer than I have to,' Buck said. "I don't love the sea. I've never been further than the Statue of Liberty. I never swim except to save a life."

Hello Girls Trill "Number Please" in German, French, or What Have You?

Consider the hello-girl. When she sweetly trills "number please" into the black tube before her lips, she must trust to luck that the voice at the other end of the wire will not respond in a voluble jargon which might be anything from Spanish to Bohemian.

Answers in Kind
And if the voice does so—well, the girl at the switch-board, without batting a plucked eyelash, simply answers in kind. This is the case in

ONE OUT OF THREE

One out of every three—only thirty-five percent of those annually admitted to college—ever achieve the goal of a degree.

Why?
"Too little sleep, too much play, not enough study, too much leisure, fast eating and diversified thinking are factors that devitalize students," concludes Professor Howard of Northwestern, "they are responsible for the delinquent groups in every university."

Ten percent of all freshmen, says another professor, should never enter the classroom.

"Formerly," he charges, "only bright-minded pupils came to college; now forty percent of the high school graduates enter. Too many come not to grasp knowledge, but because a college education is a social necessity."

Will Iowa Prairies Turn Deserts? Fate Looms, Predicts Wild-Life Head

Iowa. A rolling desert of sagebrush and cacti, of greasewood and leopards, of sandstorms and poisonous reptiles—a veritable hell of intolerable heat in summer and a wind-swept, frozen tundra in winter; in short, a real Sahara in place of the figurative one it is at present.

Impossible? Perhaps. Yet that is the picture drawn by the Rev. George Bennet, founder and director of one of the most unique institutions in the state, the American School of Wild Life Protection, and lecturer of the state fish and game department, in an interview concerning the conservation of wild life in Iowa.

Conditions Probable
Unless Iowans "wake up," asserts Reverend Bennet, such a condition in the future is not unlikely. The ground-water level in Iowa has fallen nine feet in the past fifty years the local exchange, although the calls then are mostly from residences.

240 Calls per Hour
There are fifty-one telephone operators in the local office, each one of whom handles approximately 240 calls per hour, and during rush hours, upwards of 350 calls per hour.

About 5,400 telephones are installed in Iowa City, and calls from all of these phones come in on 3,300 lines. Due to the grouping together of several parties on one line, this result is obtainable.

Subscribers Reasonable
Subscribers do not ask nearly as many foolish questions as are attributed to them by glib fiction writers. On occasions, they call in for the location of a fire, the time, or the result of a game, but such questions are few and far between.

Even university students, anxious as they are to obtain connections at all times, remain reasonable though disappointed.

Plant Laboratory Meets Urgent Call for Valuable Seed

An urgent letter from Johannesburg, Africa, to the National Geographic society, asking for the mysterious "shoo-fly seed," recently led that organization to come to the Iowa medical plant research laboratory to supply the demand.

The seed wanted comes from a plant called "pyrethrum cinerariae foliae," which is used to make Dalmatian insect powder. This powder, up to the present time, has been imported into the United States at the cost of about $3,000,000 per year.

The plant was grown at the laboratory under the direction of Dr. David Root in conjunction with experiments which are being made throughout the country in order to ascertain whether or not this plant can be successfully grown in this country. Its original habitat is in the northeastern Mediterranean region.

Land-owners to Blame
"Land-owners in the country have grubbed out most of the wild fruit-bearing plants which the birds really like better than the tame fruits. They have removed the thickets and shrubbery in which the useful birds like to nest and in this way forced the birds from the country to the orchards and yards of our towns and farms."

"The people of Iowa should look on the Paris green and arsenate of lead they buy to fight the insects which threaten the ruination of their orchards and gardens as the price they are now paying for their misuse of the insectivorous birds."

The Wild Life School
The Reverend Bennet, while diffident about speaking of himself, talked readily about his hobby, conservation, and of the wild-life school which he founded. This school, probably the only one of its kind in the world was founded in 1919 at McGregor, Iowa, and meets there two weeks every summer.

Everything pertaining to nature and the out-of-doors is studied in this unusual school. Classes are held every morning in a large tent and in the afternoon hikes to the woods are organized and nature studied first hand. Students meet again in the evening for illustrated lectures. Last year the enrollment numbered three-hundred.

Faculty
The faculty includes George F. Kay, dean of the college of liberal arts; L. H. Pennell, head of the department of botany at Ames; Prof. Bohumil Shimek of the botany department; T. C. Stephens, head of the department of biology at Morningside college; and C. R. Keyes, Indian Archeologist at Cornell College, Mt. Vernon. This faculty is augmented by the government bureaus of biological survey and fisheries.

Octogenarian Makes Living As Instructor in Swimming
TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 29 (AP). T. Richards, 80, has a reputation of being able to teach swimming to any one old enough to get in the water. "Dad," as he is known, has been swimming whenever he desired for seventy years. He is now instructor at the municipal salt-water natatorium. He makes a specialty of teaching children. Girls make the best swimmers, he says.

Engineers Chisel Mark on Building

Graduates Cut Symbol Into Stone for Memorial

Students of the college of engineering, not content with reminding the campus of their presence by building the Homecoming arch and the sign on the physics building, chisel their marks into the sides of the engineering building to jog the memory of posterity occasionally.

And therefore the row of carved bridges, telephones, electric lights and mallets between the second and third stories of the building.

Each graduating class chisels out one block into a replica of some object symbolizing the advancement of engineering. There are twenty-one in all, set aside for classes from '06, the date of the completion of the building, to the class of '26. The blocks for the classes of '06 and '07 are blank because plans for the inscription did not get under way until the next year.

Emblems of the classes from 1908 to 1920, excluding those of the classes graduating during the war, are the railway rail, electric light, steam-engine governor, mallet and adze, piece of chemical apparatus, bridge, telephone, cog, and block, lettered 1920. The blocks for '21, '22, and '23 are not yet filled. The class of '23 has an arch for its emblem and '25 a radio antenna. Funds are now being raised for inscriptions in the blocks reserved for war-time classes.

The symbols alternate to represent the four main phases of engineering: civil, represented by the arch and bridge; electrical by the electric light, telephone and radio; mechanical by the rail, governor and cog; and chemical by the chemical apparatus.

Roosevelts Scale World's Roof for Rare Ram Species

CHICAGO, Oct. 30 (AP)—Theodore and Kermit Roosevelt have at last brought down "the head of heads," their quest for the rare ovls poll, mountain sheep with the biggest horns known, was deferred during the moulting season, but the Roosevelts have bagged four of the striking fellows, according to a cablegram received here tonight by D. C. Davies, director of the Field museum.

The Roosevelts head one wing of the James Simpson-Roosevelt expedition for the museum in central Asia. The cable, signed "Roosevelts," was sent Oct. 23, just thirty days after the time the sons of the late president, traveling light and fast, began their dash into the extremely high altitudes of the frozen Pamir plateau, difficult to penetrate and termed by Kipling "the world's white roof tree."

Need for Foresight
"We have checked the massacre of our birds to some extent through the education of our school children," went on Reverend Bennet, "but there are still too many people who will shoot a bird if they see it eat two cherries regardless of the number of worms and insects they know it must eat. If some birds have become a nuisance in the orchards it is largely the fault of the people themselves."

Land-owners to Blame
"Land-owners in the country have grubbed out most of the wild fruit-bearing plants which the birds really like better than the tame fruits. They have removed the thickets and shrubbery in which the useful birds like to nest and in this way forced the birds from the country to the orchards and yards of our towns and farms."

The People of Iowa should look on the Paris green and arsenate of lead they buy to fight the insects which threaten the ruination of their orchards and gardens as the price they are now paying for their misuse of the insectivorous birds.

The Wild Life School
The Reverend Bennet, while diffident about speaking of himself, talked readily about his hobby, conservation, and of the wild-life school which he founded. This school, probably the only one of its kind in the world was founded in 1919 at McGregor, Iowa, and meets there two weeks every summer.

Everything pertaining to nature and the out-of-doors is studied in this unusual school. Classes are held every morning in a large tent and in the afternoon hikes to the woods are organized and nature studied first hand. Students meet again in the evening for illustrated lectures. Last year the enrollment numbered three-hundred.

Faculty
The faculty includes George F. Kay, dean of the college of liberal arts; L. H. Pennell, head of the department of botany at Ames; Prof. Bohumil Shimek of the botany department; T. C. Stephens, head of the department of biology at Morningside college; and C. R. Keyes, Indian Archeologist at Cornell College, Mt. Vernon. This faculty is augmented by the government bureaus of biological survey and fisheries.

Octogenarian Makes Living As Instructor in Swimming
TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 29 (AP). T. Richards, 80, has a reputation of being able to teach swimming to any one old enough to get in the water. "Dad," as he is known, has been swimming whenever he desired for seventy years. He is now instructor at the municipal salt-water natatorium. He makes a specialty of teaching children. Girls make the best swimmers, he says.

Artist Gets It All Wrong. Indian Summer State of Mind, Says Reilly

By DON SAUNDERS
"Yah, soony, when that there field is swimmin' in the moonlight and everything is kind of hazy, them shocks will be Injuns' tepees and when some old chief gets tired, he'll go up and sit on a leaf and the weight will make it fall. And the color on the leaf is rubbed often an Injun's face."

The old man in McCutcheon's famous cartoon who so patiently explains the mysteries of Indian summer to his wondering grandson is all wrong! It is nothing short of cruel to blast the sentiments of years but the old gentleman must be corrected. There is no such a thing as Indian summer.

Simply State of Mind
According to Prof. John F. Reilly, government weather bureau expert here, Indian summer is simply a state of mind. A mild spell always follows a cold snap, sooner or later, and just as soon as Dad begins to drain the old Ford at night we believe that autumn is here, and so it is. But when the mild period comes we go out into a moonlit night and gaze at the low-hung stars and say, "Isn't Indian summer wonderful!" We are just kidding ourselves.

Professor Reilly said that to his knowledge there is no such thing as Indian summer. Invariably warm weather follows cold and a cold snap

Contrary to general belief, the weather has nothing to do with the changing colors. So next year McCutcheon will have to modify his cartoon—the wording at least, to read somewhat as follows:

"Yet, my noble progeny, when you field is flooded with gentle rains rays an exceedingly interesting process of replacement is under way. The atoms of green coloring matter are being replaced by atoms of a reddish tinge, and eventually the entire body of the leaf is changed to a gorgeous, virile, crimson, etc."

Engineers Chisel Mark on Building

Graduates Cut Symbol Into Stone for Memorial

Students of the college of engineering, not content with reminding the campus of their presence by building the Homecoming arch and the sign on the physics building, chisel their marks into the sides of the engineering building to jog the memory of posterity occasionally.

And therefore the row of carved bridges, telephones, electric lights and mallets between the second and third stories of the building.

Each graduating class chisels out one block into a replica of some object symbolizing the advancement of engineering. There are twenty-one in all, set aside for classes from '06, the date of the completion of the building, to the class of '26. The blocks for the classes of '06 and '07 are blank because plans for the inscription did not get under way until the next year.

Emblems of the classes from 1908 to 1920, excluding those of the classes graduating during the war, are the railway rail, electric light, steam-engine governor, mallet and adze, piece of chemical apparatus, bridge, telephone, cog, and block, lettered 1920. Pigments Color Leaves

In explanation of the turning colors of leaves in autumn Prof. Herbert B. Wylie, of the botany department, stated that certain pigments are present in leaves which turn yellow, and process of changing color is simply that of ripening. As the leaf reaches maturity its color turns from green to yellow.

An entirely different process takes place in leaves which turn to a reddish color. In this case the leaf takes on pigment from constituents in the atmosphere and the green gradually disappears as the leaf dries and the red pigment increases.

McCutcheon Must Revise

Contrary to general belief, the weather has nothing to do with the changing colors. So next year McCutcheon will have to modify his cartoon—the wording at least, to read somewhat as follows:

Elementary School Gives Week to Tests

The formal test program for pupils in the university elementary school is being conducted this week under the supervision of Prof. F. C. Knight, of the department of education and Miss Maude McBroom, supervisor of the elementary school.

Although the tests are given over every subject in the curriculum, they are apart from the regular work of the pupils. This week has been set aside for the testing program in order that conflicts will not occur with classes for a longer period.

Cambridge Boasts Three Politicians on Debating Team

When the Hawkeye debating team meets the University of Cambridge here Nov. 19, it will have to cope with three men who have taken an active part in practical politics.

Michael Ramsey, the son of the tutor of Magdalen college, has been connected with Cambridge as his home and birthplace as well as his university. He was elected to office in the Cambridge union last March, having spoken regularly at debates since coming to the University on questions of modern democracy, imperialism, and liberalism. He has been active in local politics and has already declined, for the present, an invitation to stand for the house of commons.

Godfrey Lloyd was born in London and prepared at Harrow before entering Trinity college. He served as president of the Cambridge union during the last term of last year, and has also been active in politics, having contested South-East South-west in the Conservative interest in the last general election. In 1924 he was attached to Mr. Baldwin's secretariat.

Patrick Delvin was educated at Stonyhurst, after which he came to Christ's college. He has distinguished himself as a speaker both at the Union and elsewhere.

Iowa City Woman's Club

A general meeting of the Iowa City Woman's club will be held this afternoon at the chamber of commerce rooms. After the election of a new president and vice-president a report of the district convention recently held at Clinton will be read and songs and violin selections will be given by Mrs. Perry Bond, and Mrs. J. K. Soucek.

The executive board will meet at 2 o'clock in the same room.

A Bar and a Boomerang

UPON the report that the Boston athletic association barred Charlie Oswell, colored half-back of the Boston university football team, from its dining rooms, members of the most exclusive clubs in Boston, the Algonquin, and the Somerset, have risen to protest vigorously. It was revealed that none of these clubs draw any sort of "color-line," stipulating only that the individual "must be a gentleman."

This incident originating as it does in the stronghold of American traditionalism, affords a most revealing glimpse into the contemporary American attitude on the racial situation that has caught the attention of the public eye for some time. And this on the strength of the fact that it is a striking exception to the general rule. It speaks of a broad-minded racial tolerance that is all too rare in this country.

We hundred per cent Americans have been so engrossed in congratulating ourselves on our superiority over the rest of the denizens of this universe, that we have had neither the time nor the inclination to observe the merits of people whose skins are not the color of our own. We are staggering under the weight of an inflated ego. We have planted our flag on every hillside in the glorious land of the free (sic). We made the world safe for democracy. We have opened our arms to every oppressed race on the face of the earth. WE, the hundred per centers.

And in the meantime we forget those humbler yet nobler beings than most of us, the Lawrence Joneses, the Booker T. Washingtons, and others who have labored in obscurity to give their country-men a taste of the benefits of civilization that were theirs from the beginning. What right have we to dictate to men of this calibre how far they shall ascend the social scale?

And after all, as William Allen White once said, who in heaven's name are we, anyway?

Where Wars Hatch

THE old Greek City States were never able to cooperate and form one united country. Their peninsula today remains a hotbed of contentions.

The Roman Empire dates from the Battle of Actium off the Balkan coast and its fall from the time Constantine moved his Capital to the Balkans.

The key words of the death struggles of the Holy Roman Empire were: Trouble with the Slavs to the south and east.

The Turks came into the peninsula in 1453 and there has been no peace in the Balkans since.

There has been war between Greece and Turkey, Russia and Turkey, etc., until the Balkan states have quarreled among themselves.

Then, when Turkey was well-nigh killed, at least very sick, Great Britain, and France and Russia, each wanted some of the sick man's estate and the Crimean war of 1854 resulted.

Austria and Germany decided that if there was territory or power to be had that they had better take a hand, the World War followed.

Since the World War the Balkans have threatened war several times. Now it is Greece and Bulgaria.

If the League of Nations can clean up this war nest the world ought to have peace for some time.

The Chinese Bedlam

ONE HUNDRED FIFTY students have been kidnapped from the Presbyterian mission in China by bandits. Thousands of students are on a strike against foreign interference with trade. The Japanese and British are struggling for mercantile control. Missionaries are trying hard to convert the Chinese to Christianity. Confucianism and Buddhism are dying out, but their joss houses are still prominent. Millions of coolies are close to slavery. This perplexing race of old Cathay is one seething human mass of confusion.

What is the matter? If they could control and civilize themselves before the western world, why can't they do it now? No single cause can explain it, but a strong central government would never permit 150 students to be carried away by bandits. These bandits are respected as men of profession; they are accepted as an incurable evil.

China cannot have a centralized government until the country is able to support it. Many railroads, much interstate trade, and a breaking up of feudal theories are need to develop a spirit of patriotism and nationalism. Only in the larger towns in daily contact with the world has this been felt as radical outbursts. Internally, China is divided into numerous states, connected by wheelbarrow roads, and bound by no common feeling. Shut off here by mountains, there by ancestor worship, a variance of dialect worship, a variance of dialects, and a cumbersome language, each community has grown, a miniature government in itself and geographically and sympathetically far from its brotherhood of states. Insufficient education of the masses is also needed for the intelligent manipulation of a democracy.

A centralized government could protect its merchants and aid them, giving them an equal competition with foreign trade. The Chinese may resent British and Japanese interference and an evident reaping of profit, but until China herself can offer a substitute more satisfactory the condition cannot change.

Another Cornerstone

THE finance committee of the state board of education, meeting in Iowa City this week, opened bids for the $300,000 field house. This is but another unit of the greater University of Iowa that is materializing bit by bit and making Iowa an ideal place for the youth of the state to gain higher knowledge.

This letting of the loan for the field house comes as the result of a long period of work by President Jessup and other boosters of the University, to secure such a building. A building in which large crowds can be handled and in which sporting events of all kinds may be held.

Too much praise can not be given these men who are laboring to build up a great center of learning here. To such men should go the credit for the new University Hall, the Memorial Union, and the many other improvements that have come in recent years. To them must go the credit for the real University of the future, the University that shall stand out as Iowa's contribution to American education.

Rumble on, Old Coach!

"ONE of the greatest dangers which now confronts us is the increasing demand for ill-considered legislation," says Dr. Arthur Twining Hadley, President Emeritus of Yale University. He says further that today "it is from the law maker rather than the law breaker that our American traditions of self-government have most to fear."

America has felt the tyranny that can be concocted out of pure democracy many times, but only in a very modern sense has she been conscious that it is tyranny, or that it may be tyranny. It is this uncertainty that is causing so much questioning of the prohibition laws. The very worst class-ridden condition one can imagine resulting from the mixture of morals and politics can be no worse than, for instance, Tammany in New York or Thompson in Chicago, still, now that America has become conscious that it is un-American to submit to class legislation there is a sting never possessed by worse political chicanery.

If the Volstead Act should, by hook and by crook, result in the total disappearance of inebriety and at the same time thoroughly arouse the American public to the duty of mothering its legislative bodies, it would, a hundred years from now, be worthy of exhibition by the side of the Declaration of Independence.

The ideal political condition may be thought of as a line lying midway between anarchy and tyranny. How many times must the Old Coach of State rumble over that line before discovering that it would make a wonderful national highway?

Poems That Live

The Terror of Death
When I have fears that I may cease to be
Before my pen has glean'd my teeming brain,
Before high-piled books, in charact'ry
Hold like rich garners the full-ripen'd grain;

Huge cloudy symbols of a high romance,
And think that I may never live to trace
Their shadows, with the magic hand of chance
And when I feel, fair Creature of an hour!
That I shall never look upon thee more,
Never have relish in the fairy power
Of unreflecting love—then on the shore
Of wide world I stand alone, and think
Till Love and Fame to nothingness do sink.

CHILLS and FEVER

A girl writes and asks: "Did you ever hear of a meaner man than the blonde graduate student who attended a Baptist party; and while there, bet a girl six cents that she could not drink six cups of the church's hot chocolate? After she became sick on the fifth cup, he let her walk home."
Yes!

"Well," remarked Tommy to his aunt, as they were seated at the breakfast table. "what are we going to talk about today?"

Aunt Polly was busy putting away buckwheat cakes, but at Tommy's question she paused to light a cigarette and thoughtfully propounded a reply.

"As a matter of fact, Tommy, I think I should give you the low-down on some of our Iowa fraternities and sororities. Now, take Delt for example. Your grandfather was a Delt. Do you remember what he said about that great order?"

"Sure," returned Tommy, "he said, once a Delt you'll never get over it!"

Aunt Polly said tut-tut loudly and tried to think up a reply.

"Well, anyway, your Uncle Fred was an Aecia."

"Yeh, but I thought you said we were going to talk about fraternities."

"So we were," conceded Aunt Polly, "and what fraternity do you want to join when you grow up?"

"I think I'd like to live on North Dubuque street, where boys are boys, and where they can get (censored) and raise (censored) and go down to (censored) and stay out all (censored) and—"

"Hush, hush, Tommy, you mustn't say so many things Chills and Fever will have to censor. But enough of this, I must tell you about our sororities. There's Delta Gamma, for example. Many a nice girl are Delta Gamma's."

Tommy turned up his nose and made a wise crack about "nice" girls being wealthy and homely, at which Aunt Polly fainted three times in a row. Aunt Polly had once been a D. G. pledge before she got caught—well, no matter, she pledged Tri Delt a little later.

"Another good sorority is Kappa; many great women have been Kappa's. In fact, Tommy, look at the Kappa's on Iowa campus; Doris Green was a Kappa. And—"

"Say," interrupted Tommy rudely, "I've looked at enough Kappa's, and you can just go ahead with the story. What do you think I am, Alack Johnstone, or something?"

"Just a moment, Tommy, don't be hasty. Now let me see, are there any other good sororities on the campus, we can't spend time on P. O. P., or Alpha Chi, or Phi Phi, or Phi Mu. Oh, yes, there's Gamma Phi. Your Aunt Martha, a very intelligent woman, was a Gamma Phi."

"Huh, I thought you said she was intelligent," balled out Tommy, carelessly flicking ashes in the fireplace.

"Or we might say a word about Alpha Xi Delt and Delta Upsilon. Now, what great people do you know who belong to these groups?"

Tommy's answer was unprintable and so, dear readers, we must say goodby. GOODBY!

Current Comment

ON FRESHMEN (London Times)

During the last few days a number of young gentlemen, some of them accompanied by what used irreverently to be called "Early fathers," have been arriving at Oxford or Cambridge to begin their first year. There is one of the few steps in life which it is agreeable rather than alarming to take. Even if we had not the warning of poor Mr. Bultitude, there is scarcely one of us who, if provided with the necessary talisman, would wish himself once more a new boy setting out for his first half at school. The embarking on a grown-up career, whatever it may be, is likewise fraught with more discomforts than delights. But the beginning of that intermediate stage between boyhood and manhood, which converts a schoolboy into a freshman, is almost wholly pleasant.

The freshman at an American university, if we may believe the stories we read of college life, is still kept in his proper place, and is not allowed to be too "fresh." He is subject to certain laws, such as those which forbid the obscure schoolboy to roll up his umbrella or turn down the collar of his greatcoat. But unless memory, like a sundial, has only counted the sunny hours, the English freshman, whether he goes to Boniface with Arthur Pennicott or Brazefiance with Verdant Green, can do what he pleases. He can enjoy all the misty glories of being a young man at his own disposal with a cheque-book in his pocket, subject to no compensating disadvantages save those produced by his own shyness.

This is an enviable state of being, and the freshman perhaps to be envied is he who at school has suffered from a sense of inferiority, who was always doomed to clumsiness because of things he liked and could do were merely thought of and could bring no glory. Now he can make a new start, with hopes of being somebody even if in a comparatively restricted world. If his taste be for no more than merris dancing, for which there is as yet no blue, he will at least find people enough to admire one another's dancing. If he be an amateur conjurer, there is a conjuring club complete with a tie of many colours. The fact that, should he choose one university, he cannot now possess a motorcar during his first year may appear an injustice, but it is not one over which parents need shed many tears, and the tricycling old ladies of Cambridge will shed none at all.

To aged persons looking backward through sentimental spectacles it seems that there is only one possible unhappiness. A boy going from a small school to a big college may, unless he have the knack of making acquaintances, be for a while very lonely, for just as it is nobody's business to snub him, so it is nobody's business to befriend him. Cambridge men, while protesting that Oxford has nothing so beautiful as the Backs, will generally concede to it one advantage—namely, the system which sends the freshman into college and not into lodgings. It appears that Oxford in this term so overflowing that this excellent rule has had in some cases to be broken. That is a pity, though clearly it cannot be helped.

Lodgings can be the loneliest of places, wherein it is easy to imagine ourselves exclaiming with David Copperfield, "Oh! Mrs. Crupp, never mind the broken meats, I am very miserable." In college there are at least the other

This comedy is of a pretty light texture as regards plot, even for a comedy where thin stories are usually tolerated generously. An adaptation of one of Cosmo Hamilton's plays, the piling down process, supposed to be necessary for the screen, has reduced the narrative to a harmlessly amusing film, with some bright spots.

From an artistic standpoint this feature ranks high. There are many handsome interiors with elaborate settings and the photography is good. The action moves rather swiftly throughout and the continuity links up smoothly.

Next door neighbors, two couples, John and Margaret Rathburn, and Victor and Elise Moran, have become incompatic, after a year's marriage. Elise flirts strenuously with John, while Victor finds consolation in the sympathy and excellent cooking of Margaret.
The situation becomes intolerable and they resolve to test matters by going to camp, with each woman cooking for the other's husband. Several amusing and near-tragic complications ensue, but finally the happy end arrives.

Renee Adoree is extremely captivating and saucily alluring as the coquettish Elise; Eleanor Boardman gives a fine performance as Margaret; while Lew Cody and Creighton Hale are effective in their respective roles.

An unusual novelty is being shown with the feature. It is an Ives-Leventhal Stereoscopic film. In this, by a new process of colored photography, the third dimension is obtained and unusual is no name for the results. For example, you see a player throwing a baseball which seems almost to strike you in the face. Experts claim that a new era in motion picture art may be brought on by this method, and at the present time a company is engaged in shooting a story which will be shown in three dimensions.

Governors Talk About State Relations on Many Subjects

(By The Associated Press)
SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Oct. 29.—The Midwest governors' conference which closed here today will have far reaching effects, in the opinion of Governor Carl Gunderson of South Dakota, who called the meeting.

The governors tonight were returning to their desks after having organized and adopted a set of resolutions revealing their attitude on agriculture, waterways, irrigation, and reduction of state expenses.

Six States Unite
North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Nebraska, Missouri, and Iowa will form the nucleus of the new organization. Invitations to join will be extended the governors of every state from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico and from Illinois to Wyoming.

The results of the conference in brief were as follows:
A resolution expressing the opinion that if the American protective tariff is to be retained legislation must be enacted which will give agriculture "equality with industry and labor in the American protective system."

Will Curb Expenses
Favorable action on a suggestion from Governor Christianson of Minnesota that legislation be advocated to give governors increased powers with which they can curb station expenses.

Immediate consideration for the great lakes-St. Lawrence project because of its "general and pressing importance."

A resolution urging Secretary of Agriculture Jardine to adjust the machinery of his department so that those farmers who desire may sell their grain on the basis of its protein content.
Utilization of flood waters of the Missouri river for supplementing rainfall in dry seasons and use of the Missouri for developing hydro-electric power.

Song Causes Memories of "Way Back When" in University Life

The tender strains of "When You and I Were Seventeen," which we hear so frequently on the campus these days, bring back the time when the older generation was seventeen and the collegiate life they enjoyed.

Judging from the account given by a co-ed of 1898, the life was not wildly exciting. Imagine the young lady as she descended from the train laden with a ponderous telescope while her tin trunk was already being hoisted into the school omnibus. She was clad in a long full skirt, high buttoned shoes, a short-waisted jacket with nuttong sleeves, and on her head she wore a mortar-board hat securely anchored by two regimental hatpins, reminiscent of the Spanish-American war.

Once settled in the dormitory, her "beau" came to call on Saturday night when he was entertained principally by the chaperon until ten o'clock closing hour. If the young man wanted to be sure of his engagement in advance, he came to the school some week-day and timidly entering the sacred portals of the matron's office, he shouted his message up to the girl friend through the agency of a speaking tube.

What a picture she made as she came down to meet him on the one legal date night of the week. She wore a corset skirt, a high-necked shirtwaist, and she had a massive gold watch pinned to her belt. He hastily rose and twirled the corners of his trained moustache before he made his formal bow. Her chaperon sat rigidly upright on the hair-cloth sofa, with her stiff bombazine creaking at every move.

There were the glorious afternoons when he came darning up in a polished buggy drawn by two temperamental ponies. All the school was aroar with excitement and her dearest friends carefully lifted the corner of the curtain to enjoy the little drama. He drove to the carriage block, dismounted, and went in for his girl friend with a swaggar appropriate to his enviable position. Those were the good old days that no flivver can ever replace.

At this juncture the collegiate children of 1925 would probably ask, "What did they do when they had a date?" These modern young people do not know about the Shakespearean plays, innumerable lectures, renditions of Uncle Tom's Cabin, and inspiring revivals which thronged the country in those days and furnished entertainment.
Out of this environment there emerged a race of Emily Posts with all the social graces and a thin veneer of higher education. But if these co-eds seem ludicrous to 1925, they will be avenged when 1952 takes out its wit on the flappers of our day.

Radio Men Flock at Hoover's Call

Secretary Declares Federal Control May Result

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The importance which radio interests attach to the fourth national radio conference called by Secretary Hoover to meet here Nov. 9, with the prospect that its conclusions will go far in determining whether the new art is to be brought under federal regulation somewhat as a public utility, is shown in the large number of representatives of the various interests who have arranged to attend. The commerce department has been notified by 250 of such representatives that they will be on hand.

Enough Stations Now

All the experimental work and testing of the last two years has shown definitely, in the opinion of Secretary Hoover's advisers, that a limit already has been reached in the number of first class broadcasting stations that can be permitted to operate. The number must decrease in the future, they believe, and the listener-in must exercise the final say as to who is to have the coveted space on the air. Protracted debate on the question is considered a certainty when the conference settles down to the issue.

Low Farm Bureau to Oppose Repeal of Inheritance Tax

DES MOINES, Oct. 29 (AP)—The Iowa Farm Bureau federation has gone on record as opposing the repeal of the federal inheritance tax which is almost sure to be considered by congress in its December session.

To Formulate Program

Secretary Hoover has declared that the principal problem before the conference this year will be that of formulating, in some form, a program for the radio world which will best serve the general interest. His opening address to the gathering will disclose how far he is prepared to go in urging federal legislation, and members of the house and senate committees which will shape such enactment, if it is found desirable, have been invited to come before the conference.

Adams Proposes New Tax Reform to House Board

Yale Professor Tells House Committee as Adviser

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Reduction of the maximum surtax rate from 40% to 20% in the new revenue law, retention of the estate or inheritance tax with greatly modified rates, and removal of the $10,000 limitation in the provision allowing deductions for earned incomes, were recommended to the house ways and means committee today by Professor Thomas S. Adams, of Yale.

Former Adviser

Mr. Adams served with the treasury in an advisory capacity when taxation of income was initiated and for more than two hours today the committee, which will start work on a new tax bill next week, consulted with him on all of the main points in dispute. His views were solicited by republican and democratic members, and the full committee of twenty-five members listened attentively to his responses.

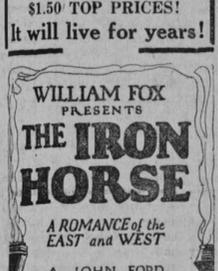

He appeared before the committee primarily to recommend repeal of the limitation on the amount to which the 25 per cent reduction allowed for earned income may be applied and to urge that the statute of limitations applying in tax settlements, now four years, be reduced and that salaries for internal revenue officials be increased and their terms of office lengthened.

Mail May Bring Cigars From Cuba

Post Convention Plans Greater Weights for Parcel Post

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—American smokers may be able to get their cigars from Cuba by mail if a provision of a parcel post convention to be signed here Saturday between the United States and Cuba is carried into effect.

Increase Weight Limit

The convention provides merely for increasing the weight limit of parcels exchanged between the two countries from four pounds to eleven, but it contains a stipulation that if the present American law prohibiting imports of cigars in lots of less than 3,000 has not been modified within eighteen months after the pact goes into effect, it may be abrogated by Cuba.

Tobacco Big Import

The convention is to go into effect January 1, and an effort will be made to have congress lift the ban on small shipments of cigars before July 1, 1927. Tobacco products are virtually the only product of Cuba which can be shipped to the United States by parcel post. It is contended, while American manufacturers can send great quantities of goods into Cuba by mail, and these interests are counted on by the Cubans to aid in the attempt to have small cigar shipments permitted.

Recorder Claims Signature Forged

Murphy Trial Reveals McCabe's Name Falsely Used

(By The Associated Press)
CRENSCO, Oct. 29.—That the signature of Thomas H. McCabe, on a mortgage certificate for $3,000 is a forgery committed by Dennis J. Murphy, Waukon lawyer, and financier, was the testimony given this afternoon in Murphy's trial by D. D. Roggensack, Allamakee county recorder, and by McCabe.

Murphy Filed Document

Roggensack declared that the names of McCabe and his wife were written in Murphy's handwriting and that the forged document had been filed in the recorder's office by Murphy. McCabe testified that he had not signed the document and on cross examination said he had secured a loan for $8,000 through Murphy, which he had repaid. He testified that he believed Murphy used the signatures on the original mortgage as models when the alleged forgery was committed.
John E. Kelly, a Milwaukee insurance company official, testified that his company accepted the paper from Murphy as security for a loan.

Insanity Plea Ousted
Taking of testimony in the trial was started this morning. A jury was completed within an hour after Judge J. D. Cooney had overruled a defense motion for dismissal on ground that prosecution was illegal because Murphy was insane.

Iowa Ready for Wabash; Many Seconds Expected to See Action

Long Workout Given Hawk '11' Yesterday

The longest work-out of the week was the bill of fare dished out to the Hawkeye football team last evening. Being hampered all week by the bad weather Coach Ingwersen sent his teams through a short passing drill and scrimmage against the freshmen using Wabash plays. The practice closed after a long and snappy signal drill; both teams showing up well.

Although the game Saturday against the Little Giants is a non-conference affair no chances are being taken for a surprise and in all probability Coach Ingwersen will send his strongest eleven on the field.

Kutseh May Not Play
Nick Kutseh the "Flying Dutchman" will not be in the lineup Saturday. At least he has not been able to take part in the practice the past week and continues to use a cane. He is, however, expected to be back in the fray when the Badgers invade the Hawkeye stronghold Nov. 7. Smith, end, who has been out for the last two games, is rapidly improving but will not be in the game Saturday. The other regular, Raffensperger, is carrying his leg in a cast and it is impossible to make a prediction as to when he will be back in the line.

Expect to Use Seconds
Consequently, there is going to be several of the second string men used in the game Saturday if they will be able to hold the Wabash eleven. During the practices the past week Cuhel, fullback, Smith and Hogan, quarter, and O'Neil and Hickerson, fullback, have been receiving attention and will probably receive the call.

Cuhel continues to improve in his running game and is rapidly showing up in good form. Smith and Hogan, quarters, have been alternating in this position and seem to have about an even break. Both men will no doubt get a chance to show their generalship Saturday. O'Neil showed up well in the St. Louis game and played with a cool head.

Hickerson, fullback, has not been seen in action as yet and it is hard to predict how he will show up. He has been out for a couple of weeks on account of injury but will be in shape for the game against the Little Giants.

The Probable Lineup
Although the Hawkeyes are hoped to win the game by a substantial score, which they should, it is certain that the Wabash eleven will put up a stiff scrap.

The lineup for the battle will probably be the same that started the Ohio game last week with the exception of Kutseh. Schirmer is expected to take his place and Dauber play half. Fry and Graham will play their usual positions. The line will probably be: Griffen, center; Hines and Rodawig, guards; Krauski and Nelson, tackles; and Rice and Romey, ends.

University High Gym Gets

Complete Set of Lockers
The locker rooms in connection with the new University high school gym have just been finished.

There are two rooms, one for boys, the other for girls. Both rooms are furnished with new up-to-date steel lockers. Checking and towel service is being maintained by the school and will be run in a manner similar to that of the men's gym at the university. Now that these rooms and the gym have been completed the local prep work will no longer be dependent upon the university gyms as they have been in the past.

Williams' Yearling Cagers Take Second Workout of Season

Coach Rollie Williams put his freshmen basketball candidates through their second drill of the season last night.

There were about eighty men out, some of whom show that they have plenty of ability. Coach Williams stated that his material is much better this year than last, that his forward and center material was unusually good and that if they come through the way he expects them to, they will be able to give the varsity plenty of opposition when they meet in scrimmage later in the year.

Last night the squad was put through a long drill in shooting, dribbling, and passing. The men were first given group instruction and later were instructed individually as far as possible. Some of the men who handled the ball well and looked good in this drill were Twogood, a forward from Sioux City; Wilcox, a center from Oskaloosa; Kinnas, forward, from Clinton; and Hettis, a guard who played on the championship Waterloo team last year.

Next Tuesday evening Coach Williams plans to group the men off into teams and put them through a series of scrimmages. It is from these scrimmages that the coach will get a line on his men and thus determine who will survive when he cuts the squad.

There are several men who boast excellent prep records, but because of football have not as yet reported for cage work.

Gopher Grid Game Tickets on Sale

283 Pasteboards Now Available at Men's Gymnasium

Tickets to the Minnesota-Iowa football game at Minneapolis on November 14—283 of them—have arrived and have been placed on sale at the department of athletics, according to K. E. Griffin, manager of ticket sales today. The price is $2.00 and the tickets call for seats starting on the fifty-yard line in the new Memorial Stadium on the Iowa side.

No person will be allowed to purchase more than six of the pasteboards. Every effort will be made to sell the tickets only to bona-fide Iowans in order that there may be no outsiders in the Hawkeye section. Inasmuch as the Iowa game will furnish the attraction at the Gopher Homecoming, a vast crowd is expected to attend. If demand warrants, a special train will probably make the trip.

U. High Faces Real Foe in West Branch

Locals Go Back to Old Method of Calling Signals

The University high gridiron men will have a hard battle to win on Upper Iowa Field Saturday morning at 10:30 when they tangle with the West Branch eleven.

Coach Engesth has abolished the huddle system of signals and returned to the old style of play. The quarterback will call the signals audibly in this game. The coach thinks that his men have an even break against the visiting team, "but it will be a hard fought battle," he added.

"The whole team will be a new team Saturday against the out-of-town boys," Coach Engesth stated. The team has had time to rest and recuperate. Those who have been injured are in swape again as well.

The line-up Saturday will be: Lewis and Brown at the ends; Bowers and Roberts at tackles; McGinnis and Hall as guards; Van Epps at center; Goosselin, quarterback; Means, right half back; Captain Myers, fullback; Dennis, left halfback.

O. R. Williams will be the referee. He was assistant freshman grid coach for two years.

Another Old Grid Star Gets Letter at Iowa Day Game

Another former Iowa football player has indicated that he will return on November 7 to receive his "I" sweater for his work many years ago. The old-time star is no other than William H. Bremner, '95 who is now president of the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railway company and whose present home is in Minneapolis.

Mr. Bremner, known at Iowa as "Billy" and as one of the most ardent supporters of Hawkeye athletics was a quarterback on the Old Gold teams of 1889, 1890 and 1894. He had the honor of being a member of the first Hawkeye team to play under Rugby rules, that of 1889. The acceptance of Mr. Bremner brings the list of those former players who will return next week to twenty-five.

'Where, Oh Where Are My Bouts,' Cry of Boxing Mentor

Roscoe Hall Finds He Is Booked for Pair of Contests

Roscoe Hall, university boxing coach and state lightweight champion, is a busy fighter. In fact he gets more battles than he can keep track of sometimes.

Yesterday Roscoe happened to be glancing over the sport sheet of a newspaper and much to his surprise found he was going to box "Rusty" Evans, a clever lightweight scrapper from York, Nebraska, in Atlantic, Iowa, on Nov. 17.

Winner Once
"Fine! Its news to me but the more fights the better," Hall said. Then a short time later he received a telegram saying he had been matched with another "Rusty," this time Rusty Jones, for a return battle in St. Paul, Minnesota, on Nov. 6.

Two weeks ago Hall gave Jones a neat lacing in a ten round fight in Sioux City. The Twin Cities lightweight wanted another chance at the University of Iowa boxing mentor however and Hall was willing, so Jack Reddy, Twin Cities matchmaker, commenced negotiations which brought about this return scrap. The fight will be held in St. Paul, which is Jones' home town, on Nov. 6. It is to be a six round semi-windup for a big fight show, probably the Jack Delaney-Jack Malone scrap.

Evans, Now Opponent
The local boxing mentor has never met the other Evans, but says the Nebraska boxer is a clever boy. Negotiations for this show which was to have been held in Atlantic as the main event of an Elk's club program there on Nov. 9 were spoiled due to conflicting dates in the Nebraska fighter's schedule. So it was that Roscoe Hall, thinking the fight was off, did not know he had a battle coming up until he read it in a newspaper yesterday.

Preliminaries for Greek Tank Relay Run Off Tonight

The preliminaries of the interfraternity relays will be run off tonight in the pool at the men's gym at 4:30 p. m.

Coach David A. Armbruster states that the entries this year surpass those of any other year since the relays were started.

Eighteen fraternities have entered against the thirteen of last year. The teams entered are: Phi Kappa Sigma, Phi Kappa Psi, Chi Kappa Sigma, Phi Gamma Delta, Alpha Tau Omega, Kappa Sigma, Sigma Nu, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Delta Tau Delta, Kappa Beta Psi, Beta Theta Pi, Phi Delta Theta, Alpha Sigma Phi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Pi, Sigma Chi, Phi Epsilon Pi, Delta Chi.

Last year the Sigma Alpha Epsilon won the 160 yard relay, with Kappa Sigma as runner up. Any record made in preliminaries will stand, although it will not count as winning the race. The team winning the medley relay will set a record, as this is the first year for this race. Three men will swim 60 yards, one back stroke, one breast stroke and one crawl.

The date of the finals will be announced later, but in all probability they will be on Tuesday, Nov. 3, according to Coach Armbruster. Four teams will compete in the finals of each event.

PLACE STRAW ON FIELD

In order that Iowa Field will be in the best of playing condition for the battle Saturday with the Wabash eleven, straw is being distributed over all of the field several inches deep to keep the ground from freezing and to absorb the moisture. The snow was removed Wednesday.

Review of Hawk Grid History Shows Iowa Ahead of the Game

Thirty-eight University of Iowa football teams, from 1889 to 1925 inclusive have won a total of 157 games, lost ninety and tied nine for an all-time percentage of .631. Such are the disclosures of the official records at the department of athletics. Iowa has scored 4,706 points while holding opponents to 2,780 markers.

Eighty-five games, more than half of the total number of victories, have been shut-outs for the Hawkeyes but only on 47 occasions have the Iowans been forced to leave the field with nothing on the scoreboard.

Over the span of years there have been some victories by overwhelming scores and some defeats by similar count. The largest score record for Iowa is the 65-0 victory over Iowa Normal in 1914. Other high scores are: Iowa 88, Cornell in 1904; Iowa 78, Northwestern in 1913; Iowa 81, Washington, D. C. in 1902; Iowa 60, Indiana 0, in 1912; and Iowa 56, Purdue 0, in 1922.

Hawkeyes are not proud of the Michigan-Iowa score of 1922 when the Wolverines were the victors 107 to 0, for the record high score against an Iowa eleven.

The Illinois team which will arrive at 3:31 today, is unique in that it has no captain. At the close of the season last year no one was eligible to receive the distinction, and so far this fall no one has been elected.

Last year the battle at Urbana was a dual between Capt. Phelps of Iowa and Capt. Mieber of Illinois. These two had been rivals throughout their years of college competition and the matter was settled beyond a doubt when Capt. Phelps best his adversary to the tape with a lead of over three hundred yards.

The outcome of this year's encounter promises to be a battle between three sophomores, White of Illinois and Hum and Speers of Iowa. The members of the Hawkeye squad are in the best of shape and are confident that they can take the Illinois into camp.

Frigid atmosphere, more characteristic of December than October, led the proper environment for basketball practice last night and the result was that the men went through their work-out with more than the usual amount of snap. Although the men show marked improvement over their work of the first few nights they are still very ragged in most of the departments of play. The handling of the ball and the passing are both factors that can stand a great deal of improvement and will come only after weeks of drill.

Last night, after a long period of passing and shooting, Coach Jansz divided the men into groups to work floor-plays. The men were used in team formation with the center, two forwards, and two guards working the ball down the floor. There were times when the plays were executed properly, with Grid Moguls Alter Football Rules at Next Annual Meet?

Agitation Develops Against Tie Game and Extra Point

(By The Associated Press) NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—When the football rules committee holds its next annual session two major issues dealing with the scoring system in football will be up for renovation. One deals with the indecisive tie game and the other with the extra point after touchdown.

Agitation against both issues has developed in all sections of the country as a result of a wholesale number of tie games and the great number of contests decided by the point after touchdown which, it is claimed by many critics, puts too great a penalty on a team matching one touchdown with another.

Football's scoring rules are unique in that they provide no relief for the tie game. No other major American college sport outside of track and field, fails to supply a means of breaking deadlocks.

Cold Weather Adds to Wrestling Squad

Many First Class Men Report to Howard Recently

Since Jack Frost has stopped up the tennis courts and golf links, several new wrestlers have joined Coach Mike Howard's grappling squad that will sweep into action in less than six weeks.

Although the freshman classes in wrestling will not begin until the first of December, about ten first year men are out working with the varsity. Several of the yearlings have already made a name for themselves in prep circles. Lloyd Stuart, a 145 pounder, won the state championship of Indiana last year, but cracked a rib while wrestling with Coach Howard in one of the first work-outs of the year.

He was back in uniform again last night, however, and will probably be in tip-top shape for the freshman meets in the spring.

The Seals used four pitchers and the Colons three. No date has been set for the next general meeting of the delegates, and it is understood that the gathering will adopt the methods of the Washington conference with the committees reporting to plenary sessions only when their work is virtually completed.

Four Miners in Virginia

Traps Twenty; Rescue Workers Can Make Little Progress

(By The Associated Press) WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 30—Four men are reported to have been trapped to death and upwards of twenty trapped in a fire which was sweeping through the workings of the Constance coal company's mine at Warwood, near here tonight.

An official of the company said no checkup yet had been made on the number of men supposed to be working in the pit. Some are reported to have reached the surface. Rescue workers have been unable to make much headway because of the fire. Its cause has not been determined.

Geology Students Give Luncheon to Honor W. M. Davis

The students of geology gave a luncheon in honor of Prof. W. M. Davis of Harvard in the basement of old science building yesterday.

Professor Davis is here on a lecture tour of the United States and has given a series of lectures at this university.

He spoke on "Coral Reefs" yesterday morning.

The luncheon was followed by a short speech from Professor Davis in which he pointed out the advisability of general courses to be given to the beginner in science, instead of technical and uninteresting ones. He called attention to the beauty of natural science and the fundamental goodness in even the lowest forms of life.
