There are seven excellent reasons why Iowa should win from the Badgers this afternoon. One of them is Capt. Harold E. Griffen, and the other six are John A. Schirmer, Wesley L. Fry, Ray G. Dabber, Richard E. Romey, Paul R. Krasinski, and Don M. Graham.

War Hatred Fanned Into Flame by Propaganda, Say Former German Soldiers

"You called us barbarians. Well, in the war we told all the bad about you and all the good about ourselves, and you told all the good about yourselves and all the bad about us. That's the way we kept hating each other enough to fight."

In those cryptic words Mr. John Ludwig and Mr. Ferdinand Thissen, local painters, and former soldiers who served in the German army from 1912 to 1918, revealed what lay behind the red horror of the torn battle-fronts—that insane fury which imbued men with a tiger's thirst for blood. Fighting in eighty-seven battles, charging side by side with the "Death's Head" Uhlands, and duelling in the slashing bayonet battles of the early war, these men tasted of un-speakable carnage first hand.

Orders are Orders
"I am very, very, sorry I had to fight against this country," said Mr. Ludwig simply, "but, you know, we couldn't say what we would do. We had to do what we were told. I am glad of one thing. I never really did fight the American soldiers. I never met them in battle."

The German officer was far worse in the newspaper than on the battle-front, avers Mr. Thissen, and tells this story to bear out his statement. It was during a bombardment at "hill 304." The regiment, with their guns on the parapet ready for action, were crouched against the slimy trench walls, dodging the shells that cracked viciously overhead.

Then suddenly blue-clad French troops sprang out of nowhere, took the men by surprise, cut them off from their guns, and, ignoring desperate calls for mercy, began to wipe out the regiment. Thissen with twenty-five others from his company got away and brought up another company and a machine gun to enfilade the French. Under the counter attack, the blue line wavered, fell back, surrendered.

Officers Stop Slaughter
Mad with an insane desire to avenge the oath of their 2700 dead comrades, the survivors of the German regiment prepared to mow the captives down. Then came the command from German officers, "Not a hair of their heads."
"And German discipline made that order stand," added

Mr. Thissen significantly.
When the grey columns of Mackenson whisked the Roumanian armies out of Roumania, Mr. Thissen says that he and the rest were jolted into Calvinistic respectability by one of the general's orders. The poignant glimpse of a firing squad before a man who had sacked Bucharest homes—that was all. But that was enough.

Fuel to Fire
Yet again, there was this. German soldiers walking along the street. Behind shuttered windows a French woman or boy feels it a patriotic duty to reduce the German army. And since every home in Belgium and France was allowed fire-arms, one of the soldiers crumbles to the pavement, pierced by a shot fired apparently out of nowhere. The result was invariably that the soldiers lost their tempers and used the killing as an excuse to plunder and murder.

Faces Czar's Guards
Mr. Thissen has also had the experience of facing the six-foot giants of the Czar's guard. But size was of no avail when the cossacks struck the iron discipline of the Prussian and the Czar's army was checked in a whirlwind drive that was tumbling the Austrian army westward.

"If the Russians had been trained as we were," Mr. Ludwig commented, "we never would have got to France. Those cossacks were good. They'd sweep down on their little ponies, hanging low on the side of the saddle and shooting under the heads of the animals."

Russians Undisciplined
The Germans were astonished to see a Russian barrage behind their own infantry, an expedient to which they resorted, as Mr. Thissen believes, to make their men advance.

"The Russians were 'dumb,'" observed Mr. Thissen. "One fifteen of us and a sergeant major captured one of their dome-shaped forts defended by 500 men. They ran around like a bunch of steers. The Russians were good soldiers but they lacked discipline."

Dobbin's Molars and Bossy's Horns Filched as Actors Seek Play Props

Not so many years ago, a sun-bronzed farmer lad strode in from the South Dakota prairies and tried out for a berth with the Playmakers of the University of South Dakota. He was assigned to a minor role and promptly fired.

That lad, Mr. Anderson, is now co-author, with Lloyd Stallings, of the famous war-drama, "What Price Glory?"

Actors Come in Fords
But Anderson is only one of the products of the Dakota Playmakers, an organization which made its debut in a made-over Shakespearean play parodying the faculty. The actors come nightly in their Fords, bumping over forty miles of prairie road to be at the rehearsals. The actors make all their own scenery and costumes from materials they have on hand. And there is no limit to their ingenuity along this line as the story of one of the players attests.

Presses Cow Into Service
An old wheat-belt farmer, with a voice like an organ, playing the lead in "The Medicine Man," whitened a pair of tusks from a piece of wood, made a golden crown from cardboard and gilt paper, fashioned a necklace of horses-teeth plucked from one of the skulls that lay in his fields, but was finally stumped when the director insisted that to complete the necessary make-up he must have a pair of horns.

Two more rehearsals and still no horns. Then at the dress rehearsal he appeared with a magnificent pair protruding from under his crown.

"I've looked all over for something but nothing would do, so I saved these off my cow," he explains.

Outdoor Theatre
Searching for a place on which to locate an outdoor theatre, they finally selected the sides of a ravine, divided by a small stream. One side was used as a stage and the other as the auditorium. Thus the audience saw two sets of figures acting—one on the stage and the other in the water. The stream also made exit and entrance by water possible.

Oil Slicks Way Toward Belated College Career

CHICAGO—"It's never too late to learn," A. G. Koenig affirms.

In his middle years, Koenig is a student in the University of Chicago. He wants the degree of master of science.

In his youth he was kept from completing his education by the necessity of earning his own living. He drifted along for a number of years.

Then fortune tumbled upon him. Overnight he became wealthy, when oil was discovered upon his property at Mexia, Tex.

Instead of building himself a pink palace, or ordering a limousine studded with pearls, or buying a yacht to take him to Europe, as other oil millionaires do, he took a train for Chicago to realize an ambition of many years.

Koenig devotes some of his spare hours at the university to instructing in a science course.

Foreigners Win Tuition
AMES, Nov. 6 (AP)—Among the scores of scholarships which are available for students who expect to attend Iowa State college here ten are for students who come from nations which were allies of the United States during the World war.

Golf in a Garden

When the knickered golfer on the Finkbine golf course drives into the rough he has no other alternative than to swallow as much profanity as he can and creep carefully after his ball in order to avoid trampling down any of the vegetation.

If he goes at it hurriedly he may break down a tender sapling of the genus ulmus americana, or one of the 100 other species of woody plants and trees which comprise the botanical garden set out last spring on the golf course under the direction of Bohumil Shimek, head of the botany department.

The garden was established for the purpose of placing different plants in the environment in which they flourish best. The golf course, a veritable geological sample-case of Iowa ground from sand hills to marshes, afforded an unequalled situation for the experiment. Fifteen varieties were already native of the grounds and others were gathered on field trips for transplanting. Some were nursery grown.

Some of the trees, mostly conifers or evergreens, served to increase the hazards and others as ornamentation, those bearing fruit or large leaves being relegated to the background. Replanting will continue until a representative of every species of plant in Iowa will have a place on the field. When the work is finished this unusual golf-course-garden will harbor 100 species of shrubs, 100 of trees and about 150 different kinds of cultivated plants.

teacher training. Teachers who have been trained in one field of instruction will be asked to teach in another field and it is difficult to know how to combine courses. The facts concerning the combinations of subjects now being taught by high school teachers are intended to help those students in planning their courses.

Superintendents sometimes expect teachers to instruct in combinations, such as art and physical education. The author hopes, that with the aid of the bulletin, these superintendents may arrange the programs of their teachers more as the teachers are trained. Upon investigation, teachers have been found who are teaching in four different fields of instruction. According to Professor Kirby, it is impossible for any person to be properly trained to teach such a wide variety of subjects.

Bulletin Presents Teaching Facts Will Aid Instructors, Future Teachers, Superintendents

A bulletin, presenting the facts about the subjects which teachers are asked to teach in high schools has been written by Thomas J. Kirby, professor of secondary education. This bulletin has been sent to all school superintendents, and distributed to juniors and seniors in the university who are preparing to teach.

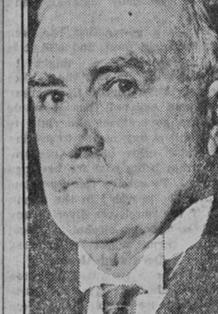

The purpose of the bulletin is to guide three groups, those preparing to teach, those employing teachers, and those instructing would-be teachers.

Selection of Courses
Students who intend to teach are often confronted with the problem of selecting courses in the university which will give them adequate

Aw, Cheer Up—Old Earth Still Spins as Per Schedule

Pendulum Five Stories Long Convincing Proof of Fact

A pendulum five stories long in the physics building has been started swinging to prove to the skeptical that the world goes around. The old, warped wooden girder on which it hung has been replaced by a metal one.

At eight o'clock in the morning the pendulum is started swinging and during the following 36 hours it appears to have swung in a complete circle. A large chart is marked off with lines extending in the direction that the pendulum will swing at certain hours. It is possible to tell the time of day by the direction the pendulum swings. Each line is marked with the hour of the day during which the pendulum will swing in that direction.

The secret of the thing is that although the pendulum appears to swing around in a circle and the earth stand still the opposite is true. The pendulum swings always in the same direction and the earth turns under it.

The department of physics invites anyone who is curious to go to the basement floor in the physics building and see the pendulum and chart in the bottom of the elevator shaft.

Merchant Attempts Super-Shylock Act

VIENNA.—An original method of collecting a debt has been invented here by a merchant named Erdos, says an article in the New York Times.

He insured the life of a bankrupt debtor for $10,000, then hypnotized him and commanded him to climb the 6,900-foot Rax Mountain near Vienna and jump down.

The debtor was on the point of carrying out the command but succeeded at the last moment in ridding himself of the hypnotic influence and reported the matter to the police.

Pasteur's Desperate Experiment Cheats Death of Rabies Victims

The story of how Pasteur's last desperate experiment for the purpose of finding a cure for that terrible disease, hydrophobia, yielded the serum that effected the cure is one of the most dramatic episodes in the history of science.

His heart torn with the haunting cries of men in the throes of the disease, Pasteur started on a wild goose chase to find a cure. Roux and Chamberland, Pasteur's assistants, fished froth from the mouths of mad dogs. They drew it up into syringes and injected it into healthy canines, but sometimes the virus did not take effect. Pasteur was disheartened, but he had discovered that the rabies virus sometimes gets lost in the body before it reaches the brain.

The Clue
Roux, acting on an impulse one day coolly chloroformed a dog, bored a tiny hole in the beast's head and exposed its palpitating brain into which he injected a syringe full of deadly rabies microbes. Less than two weeks later the dog was dead. Then Pasteur and his assistants began on their outlandish adventure.

The Quest
One day a dog, inoculated with the fatal stuff from a rabid rabbit's brain, began the characteristic weird barking and slathering . . . and then miraculously got better. Later they injected his brain again with the virus but the symptoms of hydrophobia never came. He was absolutely immune.

After painstaking work they found that a little section of the spinal cord of a rabbit dead with rabies, when dried for fourteen days and injected into the brains of healthy dogs would not kill them. Shortening the drying period from fourteen to twelve to ten and finally to one day, the gradually injected the fourteen degrees of deadliness into a healthy dog's brain.

Success
The one day virus, sure to kill a creature not previously inoculated, had no effect on the canine. So Roux again bored little holes into the skulls of two vaccinated dogs and two not vaccinated and into all four went a heavy dose of the most virulent microbes. The unvaccinated dogs died. The vaccinated lived.

Finally there dawned on Pasteur an easy way out: "How easy," he reasoned, "After a person has been bitten by a mad dog it is always weeks before the disease develops in him. The virus has to crawl all the way from the bite to the brain. While that is going on we can shoot in our fourteen doses and protect him!"

They tried it out on dogs and was rewarded with an unheard-of triumph. All of the animals lived. Then came a little boy from Alsace, gashed with fourteen wounds. He was cured. After him came seventeen Russians, torn by a mad dog and all but three of them that Pasteur's half hearted experiment had cheated death.

Program Presented by Members of Cercle Francais

At the regular meeting of the French club Thursday evening, a short program was presented by the members. Prof. C. E. Young of the Romance language department gave an address of welcome. A little French play, "Pauvre Sylvie," was put on by the following cast:

Sylvie — Mrs. Murray M. Darcourt
Millecent — Miss Cecilie Darcourt
Marie — Mrs. Hennessy Cook
Martha — Martha Kruse
George — George Steep
Traveling Salesman — D. Hanson

After the play Professor Mape gave a talk on the universities of Paris. The members sang the Marseillaise and the evening closed with a general French conversation.

Twin Cities University of Iowa Banquet on Night Before Game

The bi-annual banquet of the Twin Cities University of Iowa association will take place at the Curtis hotel, Minneapolis, Minn., on Friday evening, Nov. 13 at 6:30 p. m. which is the night before the Iowa-Minnesota game. All graduates, former graduates, and friends are welcome. Reservations may be made by writing J. H. Ravlin, secretary 164 Oeljn avenue, Minneapolis.

Give French Play at First French Club Open Meeting

"Pauvre Sylvie" with Mrs. Dorothy Murray as Sylvie, was the main event on the program of the open meeting of the French club Thursday. Mr. Mape, an instructor in the French department told of French university life. Fifty attended the meeting. Refreshments were served after the program.

Phi Beta Kappas to Pay on Initiation

At a meeting of resident members of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity, held Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock in liberal arts building, it was officially decided that all Phi Beta Kappa candidates, before their initiations will pay to the local secretary, not only their initiation dues, but also money to cover price of their pins.

"This action was taken," explained Prof. B. V. Crawford, yesterday, "to eliminate the purchase of pins through unlicensed jewelers; to insure uniformity in the pin design, and to model fraternity regulations about pins along the line common to most other national fraternities."

At a meeting of the interfraternity council held Wednesday night, the members voted unanimously to support the committee in plans for the day and when the women put the matter to their chapters, the vote was also unanimous.

Because of Armistice day the regular meeting of the women's Pan-Hellenic council has been postponed to the following Thursday. Sigma Kappa will be the hostess.

Orient Daubed Upon Velvet Adds Charm

Velvet, soft, deep-toned, and printed in glowing colors and curious designs of the orient give an exotic charm to this two-piece frock. It is one of those occasions when the material needs no embellishment as it is sufficiently decorative in itself. The blouse is made in jacket style, buttoning straight down the front with turnover collar and long, tight fitting sleeves.

Sororities Asked to Co-operate in Armistice Services

The cooperation of all the sororities to observe Armistice day was asked by Prof. Charles F. Ward and Mr. McClain, representing the American Legion, in a special meeting of women's Pan-Hellenic council last night.

"If this Armistice day isn't observed, in a few years you won't have any holiday, Armistice day will go the way of Washington's birthday and classes will not be dismissed. For this reason you should be interested in securing the cooperation of all the students on the campus," said Mr. McClain.

At a meeting of the interfraternity council held Wednesday night, the members voted unanimously to support the committee in plans for the day and when the women put the matter to their chapters, the vote was also unanimous.

Time of Occupancy of Welfare Home Later Than Plan

The home laboratory of the child welfare station will not be ready for occupancy this week as planned. The plumbing is not completed and the electric fixtures are not all in. Some of the floors are filled and shelved, but none of them are finished. At present carpenters are putting windows in the casements of the sleeping porch on the north of the laboratory.

All the papering is done. The walls in all the rooms are finished with light colored paper and the woodwork in the kitchen is painted ivory. Chairs, beds, mattresses and tables are stored in some of the rooms but none of the furniture has been put in place.

Student Problems Loom November 14

1500 Convention Delegates to Discuss College Life

Margaret Sayers, G of Jefferson, former president of the University Y. W. C. A. has been elected chairman of the annual state student conference, which will meet at Des Moines, Nov. 13, 14 and 15.

The state conference, having for its purpose a discussion of educational problems of university life, is under the joint supervision of the Y. M. and Y. W., and the Y. M. and Y. W. of Drake University will officiate as hosts to the 1500 delegates expected at the convention.

Already booked for the program are prominent men, authoritative on student problems and methods of education. Round table discussions will be led by Robert L. Kelly, former president of Earlham, and J. Stitt Wilson, lecturer and student worker, has arranged to speak upon "The Student Point of View."

R. O. T. C. Notes

While the University calendar provides a holiday on Armistice day it is my purpose to assist the men of the military department for a parade on that day, joining with the other organizations of the city. Cadets should be in uniform, but without arms. Companies will be formed under command of their cadet officers, temporarily assigned for the day and under the supervision of the officers and NCO's of the department.

This formation will take the place and will be in lieu of the Friday and Saturday basic courses. Advanced classes will meet on those days as scheduled. (Signed) MORTON C. MUMMA.

—pictures for Iowa City

In next Sunday's Des Moines Register will be printed an action picture of the Iowa-Wabash tilt. The clearness of this picture is striking and it shows the fighting Hawkeye line.

Then, too, there is a picture of the Old Gold coaching staff. This picture is one of the best that has been taken of the Iowa mentors this year.

There is also an interesting photo of Iowa City in 1852, when the pioneer city had the distinction of being the capital of the state. The picture was taken from the steps of old capitol, but is remarkable despite its age.

And there is a picture of the high school cross country run held in Iowa City. The photo shows a University High runner breaking the tape ahead of the entire field.

All these pictures will appear in the Photogravure section

An Important Game

THE team takes the road today on the last and hardest part of the trail toward a conference and national championship. The band will be out, cheer-leaders are organized, alumni from all over the country are gathered here, and the team is out to win.

Each has a duty to perform but the student body's obligation is as clear cut and pronounced as that of the Hawkeye team. Will we perform our part of the program? Will we back that team from first to last whistles, or will we leave when the final period is half over? Will we give them a hand and a cheer or two or will we sit self-consciously in the stands? Can we prove to that team in their last appearance on Iowa Field in 1925 that they are ours and we want them to win?

This game is ours, too. Let's go!

A Sixtieth Anniversary

THREE score years ago the first law school west of the Mississippi river was established at Des Moines, the beginning of the college of law whose members and graduates are guests of the university this week-end. The college of law, like the college of medicine, sprang up in the far corners of the state later to be brought to the university campus. The ground plan of the law college was first worked out in the mind of Judge George G. Wright of Des Moines, whose office following the Civil War was a training school for lawyers.

The history of the law school is the history of great jurists whose hands and whose minds formed the nucleus of the college today. There was Judge Wright and Judge Chester C. Cole who began instruction in 1865. Then came William G. Hammond and John F. Dillon, whose names stand out in high relief on the tablets of American jurisprudence.

Think of the changes which colleges of law made in the early judicial landscape. Webster, who spent an indifferent few weeks with Blackstone in the law offices of Christopher Gore in 1805, gained easy ingress to the bar. Today at least five years of study go into the making of a doctor of laws. Today the college of law maintains an unimpeachably high standard of scholarship.

It is gratifying as one scans the lists of graduates and guests for the law college's sixtieth birthday to find the names of those who have distinguished themselves in the ranks of justice. The coming of 200 or more men and women is the sublime tribute to the university which watched over them and to the college which has moulded their careers.

The Faliabie Eckersall

LAST week on the sports page of the Chicago Tribune was a story by Walter Eckersall, commenting on the Chicago-Pennsylvania football game of the previous Saturday. Mr. Eckersall, sports editor of the Tribune, erstwhile Chicago grid star, and publicity man extraordinary for his Alma Mater, comments as follows: "Pennsylvania defeated Chicago today in a game that demonstrated the supremacy of eastern football."

Such a statement proves one of two things. Either Mr. Eckersall is woefully ignorant of the facts in the western race or he deliberately twisted the facts to create a wrong impression. His effort savors of small town high school prejudice and proves that as a sports critic on a great newspaper, Mr. Eckersall is a dandy physician and surgeon.

By that one line, Mr. Eckersall intimates that Chicago is the cream of western football teams, a ridiculous supposition. In the first place Chicago played a tie game with Ohio State, won over Kentucky by a one-touchdown margin, and a 6 to 0 defeat over Northwestern to its credit. At that time Northwestern had played but one conference game, and Ohio had won a 10 to 3 victory over Ohio Wesleyan. Michigan had defeated all its opponents by top-heavy scores and Iowa had come through with four wins, two of which were over Illinois and Ohio State. Common sense can allow a novice at the game of football to see how the Maroons rated in the western standing.

How much longer are the thinking people of the west to stand by and allow a self-imposed critic of football with such views dominate the field of athletics in this part of the country?

A Statue of Hope

THE present is the time when all men and nations are all giving heed to the which pleads for peace.

Standing before the newly unveiled statue of General Jose de San Martin, Argentine hero, presented to the United States by Argentine as a token of good-will, President Calvin Coolidge thus voiced his faith and hope in an eventual "era of good feeling" among the nations of the earth.

Optimistic declarations of this sort will go far toward adding a few more strands to that cable of friendship which has bound the United States to our South American neighbor. Singularly enough, perhaps, the diplomatic relations between the two countries long have been distinctively peaceable. And again nothing could be more apropos than thus augmenting the bonds of intercourse at this time. Big business has turned its eye upon the gold that lies fallow in the rolling hills of Argentina with their unlimited possibilities for agricultural and industrial development. Big business generally gets what it wants and, if the skinny imp Avarice should suddenly prick the desires of American commercialism, complications might arise which would eventually result in the two republics finding themselves eyeing each other askance.

On the boundary line between Chile and Peru, high up on the wind-harried mountain slopes, stands a bronze figure of the Christ, a symbol of peace erected jointly by the two countries which has more than once kept the sword in its sheath. Will the statue that rears itself above the maze of traffic on Judiciary Square be a like talisman for the United States and Argentine?

Curbing the Moron

POLICE CHIEF JAMES CAVENDER of Des Moines has ordered news stand proprietors in the city to remove all salacious magazines from their shelves. This method of blockading the growing influence of these allegedly humorous magazines seems to be the only effectual means of stemming the tide. It is apparently impossible to educate the public up to the point where it will realize that these publications are tempting all limits of reason in their flagrantly deliberate attempt to arouse a furtive sex appeal among those addicted to them.

Not one of the magazines of this sort can lay any claim to popularity by merit of its cleverness. Made up chiefly of a collection of morbid, vicious salaciousness, augmented by frequent drawings of voluptuous females posturing in veils, it would seem to appeal exclusively to the moron.

But watch the average man as he steps up to the news stand. He invariably reaches for the magazine with the most lurid cover and opens it with a rather guilty look of expectation on his features. He knows he will find what satisfies a Babbit-like mind, and judging from the imbecile leer on his face he apparently is rarely disappointed. He never buys the magazine. Oh no, it wouldn't do to let the family see it. Too deep for the kids.

In the latter respect the callow youths who infest cigar stands go him one better. They buy the magazine. They read it over and over again and mouth bits of its pathetic morbidity for days afterwards.

Barring the sale of these publications at news stands is about as close to their source as authorities can get. Those who edit them complacently continue counting their weekly subscription gains. The public be damned.

Fall Winds

FORENSICS are flourishing: In bedtime forums, where unacclaimed orators hold forth from the foot of the cot— On a conversational date, when she must take his views on politics and ethics along with him—

At the crossing of Clinton street, when the sweeper gathers about him a congenial coterie and prescribes Smith W. Brookhart for the workingman's ills—

When a self-assertive student corners an instructor too well-bred not to be a good listener, —and vice versa.

And, after all, who's the wiser?

Just Now

Just now . . . O blown too faint and still,
A shudder of tone, I know not how . . .
But some one called me from a hill
Just now.

A moth beats at my hair and brow
A soft gray song that leaves me chill . . .
The moth blurs blindly on somehow.

A bird sang madly and a mill
Hummed and a wet smel edged the the plow,
And your white hand was warm . . .
until . . .

Just now.

CHILLS and FEVER

EVEN a columnist takes a day off once in a while, and so in this office he has done so, incredible as it may seem.

F. R. E. tells me that since he has been throwing the spotlight of publicity on certain female Greek organizations the rush has been materially increased and that steps are being taken to install additional telephones to care for the frantic mob.

AND besides all that, that his speaking acquaintance has increased by leaps and bounds to the place where he will soon be able to call the chapter roll of any of the various petting clubs.

Tri Delta Dinner
The Delta Delta Delta alumnae club will hold a six o'clock dinner at 7:30 o'clock at the court house. The auxiliary will also meet at that time. The Relief Corps is planning for a Bazaar to be held at Redman hall on November 10, and which is to be followed by a dance in the evening.

Sons of Veterans
There will be a regular meeting of the sons of veterans on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Clyde Hart in the Stewart apartments. The regular business meeting and program will follow the dinner.

WE wonder if it is Cal Coolidge's iron horse that is being shown at a local theater this week?

THE gals up here at the office took a little straw vote the other day regarding petting. The conclusion was that the statistics as shown by the Mercury last summer were far too low. The Mercury stating that only 85 per cent of the girls necked on the first date.

OUR good friend, Professor Hart, of the sociology department, is in Des Moines over the week-end.

A jolly collich boy sauntered down the street the other day singing softly, "A pretty girl is like a melody." Just as I saw him, his eye fell on a homely girl and he flattered terribly.

A DIRTY PICTURE

Mud. Soot. Mud and soot. Splashing, squishing, squashing. Over everything. In everything. On everything. Spotted clothes, dirty faces. Eat, drink and be dirty. Why, Nell, don't they wash the streets?

After being warned that all references to muddy shoes are barred in this column, we will forbear making reference to the condition of ours for the past week.

WALLOP WISCONSIN!

Now that the police and members of the student body have had their annual break into print, we may expect peace and quiet for the rest of the year.

If rumors are to be believed, the Phi Kappa Sig chapter at Fort Madison celebrated after a recent court decision at Marengo.

ONE week from last night, the town will once more migrate for the week-end. Expect some snappy stuff Tuesday.

THE Daily Iowan's cheer leaders will burst forth at the game today in their new blazer jackets and trousers. They do look a trifle better than the semi-transparent trousers that the boys have been sporting previously this season.

IN case you missed the reference to the "game," Iowa is playing football with Wisconsin at Iowa Field at 2 p. m. today.

WE understand that the current issue of Judge has been barred from the mails. Be sure and get your copy before the newsstand supply runs out.

Lots of Turkey Will Feed U. S. This Year

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—There will be plenty of turkeys for Thanksgiving, the department of agriculture said today, reporting the crop only four per cent smaller than last year.

Increased production was reported in all states except Texas, Illinois, Kansas, Oklahoma and California, with the crop in most sections hatched earlier than usual in a "fair to good condition."

Turkeys fared badly in Texas owing to the drought, with the crop twenty per cent less than last year. Hatching in that state also was later than usual and many of the birds are of light weight and only fair quality.

THAT GUILTIEST FEELING

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:
The attached is a summarized statement from a large roll of Chinese newspaper which I have just finished reading:

America and China.
Since all British and Japanese factories were closed in China due to the recent strike against them, American trade has grown by leaps and bounds in the Far East.

According to the customs report, American import to that country has doubled that for the same period of preceding year.

The wise suggestion of President Coolidge to call a Customs Revise Conference for China and the friendly attitude of the U. S. Federation of Labor towards the Chinese cause, have further strengthened the international business relationship between the two countries.

WSUI

E PLURIBUS UNUM
In the eyes of Shakespeare, I come not to scorn WSUI, but to praise her.

The recent ruminations and public missivings about WSUI apparently are so deeply rooted in the fertile soil of misunderstanding that it will be necessary first to review at least a few of the pages of radio history.

Lee DeForest did not design the original vacuum tube with such mathematical or physical precision as to endow it with singularly characteristic impedances that would permit the sole passage of electrons bearing jazz music and bum jokes. The broadcasting stations, like wildfire, that followed in the wake of the World war, seem to have succeeded admirably in deluging the radio-dazed public into this unfortunate state of mind. Those stations were, without exception, owned and controlled by commercial interests who sought to head financial gain from the public by flooding the ether with jazz music and laugh-laden soundtrums. Very few of our modern radio-critics have been out of their swaddling clothes long enough to recall, first hand, the humble beginnings of the present WSUI, and the traditions that the University sought to perpetuate in radio. Through struggling years, the University first spoke to the ether-world with a potent spark. Then, records speak of the advent of 3YA with a 100-watt vacuum tube continuous transmitter, the era of which was scientific, in conjunction with electrical engineering work. Incidentally, the experience of Mr. Menzer, the announcer of WSUI, has been a personal one extending from the days of the crashing gap of 3YA to the radio microphone of WSUI.

Out of the 3YA transmitter, the ghost of which is still shaking the ether at the experimental station 9XAZ, there evolved the present WSUI. In the dedication program, President Jessup set forth the mission of the station as being one advancing the arts and the sciences. And at the present, it can be said without reservation that the activities of WSUI have been in absolute conformity with its mission. The end of Iowa University radio has been and is purely educational.

But the world, in its confusion, ever cries: "The public wants continuous entertainment." No doubt when the University first opened in the Old Capitol, there was then a similar group lamenting the "deplorable" fact that they were not entertained in school as they were in the dance halls across the street.

Today—because one radio station out of five hundred does not saturate the ether with this all-consum-

Judge Returns with Sightless Eyes to Tread Familiar Paths
Not even his blindness could keep Judge Charles Jerome Traxler, '32, of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, from the sixtieth anniversary celebration of the Iowa College of law which closed last evening.

Enveloped in his long black frock coat, his slouch hat crushed down over his face, his little white goatee reminiscent of a Kentucky colonel, the judge chatted pleasantly yesterday morning with an Iowan reporter.

"Yes," he said with a triumphant note in his voice, "I've been blind for six years. That took me off the bench, but I practiced law for three years afterward. I never go in the courtroom now except when some young whippersnapper wants me to address the jury for him."

Blinded by Illness
The judge became blind after a prolonged illness and when he attended the school for the blind he recalled constantly at the directors because what they could teach him did not help him keep abreast of the times.

"I took one good thing away from that school," said the judge. "It was a small board that enabled me to write so that people could read it. My difficulty was that I'd write one line over another but with the instrument they gave me I don't have any trouble at all."

This device is the only artificial help Judge Traxler uses. It is corrugated and serves to guide his pencil or pen. "I know how to form the letters and something like this was all I needed," Judge Traxler stated.

Every day his stenographer comes in for dictation. Every day he has someone read to him for several hours. "I've lost a multitude of things by being blind," the judge said, "but I've gained something too. Had my sight remained intact I would have confined my studying entirely to law. Now I have turned to literature."

Speaking of H. L. Mencken of "American Mercury" reputation Judge Traxler said, "His filibustering and caustic attitude interests me. It is an indication that something is going on in American letters."

One of his axioms is that every day he shall write something. He does not use a typewriter, but writes out his thoughts in long hand and then has them transcribed on the typewriter by his stenographer.

Before he became blind, Judge Traxler was on the bench in district court in the southern part of Kansas. He has written several tracts on liens and one long essay on corporation law.

Publishes Poetry
Since his blindness his interest in poetry has led him to write much of it. One collection called "Familiar Sketches and Poems" has run through the second edition.

His interest in athletics is limited to football. He can get no satisfaction from going to a game and having it explained to him, by play reports over the radio furnish him much diversion. He will listen to a broadcast of the Iowa-Wisconsin game at his Mt. Pleasant home today.

Illini Band Startles East
Even though it reached there late, the Illinois band outplayed the Pennsylvania band. The easterners were amazed when the band formed a large "I" and spelled out Illini while playing.

THEY KNOW THEIR VEGE TABLES.
Wroe's Magazine.
You've got to hand it to these college boys. They know how to use printer's ink.

There's a team out in Iowa that plays pretty good football. The head-work is even better. Last week they sent in to the big dailies a nice write-up about one of their players. Sent his picture, too, showing him in football togs, as the opposing team would know him and everything.

Came the day of the big game. The whistle blew. The battle was on. The opposing team had the hero spotted. They nailed him in every play. In the meantime as other guy whose picture wasn't in the papers kept advancing the ball and won the game. You gotta hand it to those corn-huskers. They know their vegetables.

Blinded by Illness
The judge became blind after a prolonged illness and when he attended the school for the blind he recalled constantly at the directors because what they could teach him did not help him keep abreast of the times.

"I took one good thing away from that school," said the judge. "It was a small board that enabled me to write so that people could read it. My difficulty was that I'd write one line over another but with the instrument they gave me I don't have any trouble at all."

This device is the only artificial help Judge Traxler uses. It is corrugated and serves to guide his pencil or pen. "I know how to form the letters and something like this was all I needed," Judge Traxler stated.

Every day his stenographer comes in for dictation. Every day he has someone read to him for several hours. "I've lost a multitude of things by being blind," the judge said, "but I've gained something too. Had my sight remained intact I would have confined my studying entirely to law. Now I have turned to literature."

Speaking of H. L. Mencken of "American Mercury" reputation Judge Traxler said, "His filibustering and caustic attitude interests me. It is an indication that something is going on in American letters."

One of his axioms is that every day he shall write something. He does not use a typewriter, but writes out his thoughts in long hand and then has them transcribed on the typewriter by his stenographer.

Before he became blind, Judge Traxler was on the bench in district court in the southern part of Kansas. He has written several tracts on liens and one long essay on corporation law.

Strong Stuff, This 'Merry Widow,' But Excellent Picture

THE MERRY WIDOW.
Produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.
Directed by Erich von Stroheim.
Presented at the Englert theatre.

THE CAST

Danilo..... John Gilbert

Queen Milena..... Josephine Crowell
King Nikita..... George Fawcett
Baron Sadoja..... Tully Marshall

"The Merry Widow" provides unusually pleasant entertainment with that touch of sophistication which von Stroheim always manages to give his pictures. This production unfolds with beautiful precision, artful subtlety and magnificent sets.

It is strong stuff, not the thing to which you can, "bring the children," perhaps, but a picture which does not hesitate to show passion when that is required. The picture is decidedly von Stroheim. The costumes, the cut of the hair, and particularly the acting of Mr. Roy D'Arcy, as the Crown Prince, all bear the stamp of this director.

Miss Murray is enchanting. She is not only beautiful but she gives a fine, sincere performance that is not to be named in the same breath with her other film work.

With his casual love-making and devilish air Jack Gilbert created a long, long ago, Tully Marshall's performance as the aged, wealthy roue is another that must be ranked high in the list.

But two scenes in the picture seemed poor. One was where Gilbert breaks a vase on the head of his villainous cousin, the Crown Prince, with no visible effects on the latter. The other is the one where the King and Queen interfere in the struggle between the two princes. This seemed incompatible with a King or a Queen. It would have been more seemly for the King to have stepped to the door and called out the Royal Hussars (or what have you?) rather than struggle as any commoner might have done.

The closing scenes of the film, done in color, are striking. Especially the shots of the entire set, which seem to give an air of vagueness, isolation, and unconnectedness with the world.

lights on Chancellor Hammond and Judge Dillon.

Present Portraits.
Two portraits were presented to the university. The first, of Justice Wright, was unveiled by Thos. D. Wright of Des Moines, a nephew of Justice Wright. The second, of Chancellor Hammond, was unveiled by Juliet Hammond of Springfield, Ill., daughter of Chancellor Hammond. The portraits were accepted by Mrs. Pauline L. Devitt, a member of the state board of education.

Another presentation, this time a collection of abstracts and arguments, was made by Judge Joseph J. Clark of Mason City. The collection was made by Justice Beck. They were accepted by George D. Baker, president of the state board of education.

"Honored Great Men"—Long
The life and work of Chancellor Hammond was the subject of an address by James E. Markley, '78, president of the state bar association.

Expressions of opinion concerning the anniversary were unanimous in commendation for the way the program was carried out.

"The wonderful organization of the celebration reflects great credit upon Dean Jones," said Senator Long, asked his opinion of the anniversary. "Of course, the men honored were truly great. Justice Wright, Chancellor Hammond, Judge Dillon—these men not only were fundamental in the founding of the college but were great figures in American law and the progress of the state."

"The demonstration of the strength of the bar in the way of leadership and the spirit of fraternity, good-will, which was prevalent at the celebration, was most impressive," said Mr. Baldwin.

Lawyers Are Loyal
Judge Faville expressed pleasure at the loyalty of the lawyers of the state and the vision they received of the men who founded the law school.

At the afternoon session in the natural science auditorium the growth of the law school and the changes that have been made in teaching methods were told by W. W. Baldwin, '67, of Chicago, president of the C. B. and Q. railway. Mr. Baldwin commented on the opposition exhibited by the people of Iowa toward the founding of a professional school in a state university.

George G. Wright, of Pasadena, Calif., gave a reminiscent talk on his father, the founder of the college. His talk included many side-

There's a team out in Iowa that plays pretty good football. Their head-work is even better. Last week they sent in to the big dailies a nice write-up about one of their players. Sent his picture, too, showing him in football togs, so the opposing team would know him and everything.

Came the day of the big game. The whistle blew. The battle was on. The opposing team had the hero spotted. They called him in every play. In the meantime the other guy whose picture wasn't in the papers kept advancing the ball and won the game. You gotta hand it to those corn-buskers. They know their vegetables.

Cardinals Hope to "See Red" in Battle With Hawk Eleven Today

Little Shifts Line for Old Gold Game

By GEORGE R. DENNIS
(Sports Editor, Daily Cardinal)

"Every Badger get a Hawkeye" has been the keynote of Coach Little's instructions to his Cardinal clad squad of football huskies this week as the Badger mentor drove his men at top speed for the Iowa battle.

After the great comeback against the strong Minnesota team in the last ten minutes of the game Wisconsin is in a fighting mood to take on Coach Ingwersen's touted eleven.

Added to this is the incentive to throw cold water on Iowa's championship aspirations and incidentally win a second place berth in the conference rating for themselves as it is generally conceded that if Wisconsin is able to win from Nick Kutsch and his cornfed battlers, the remaining conference game with Chicago should be tucked under the Cardinal belt.

Point for Iowa

Wisconsin has been pointing for the Iowa game since the opening of the season. The Badgers are still smarting from the 21-7 Homecoming defeat that Iowa handed them last year, the first time that an Old Gold team has overcome Wisconsin, and are bent on revenge in this year's game.

Practice this week has been greatly hampered by heavy rains which have turned the Camp Randall gridiron into a good imitation of a Florida swamp land. Twice the Badgers had to hold practice sessions inside the armory. This combined with the fact that snow drove them indoors last week has slowed up the Badgers in perfecting their aerial offense, their greatest weapon.

On the whole, practice this week has been devoted to developing a defense against the rampages of Iowa's two twins Kutsch, the cowboy, and Fry, the plowboy. Coach Little is well satisfied with the defensive showing of his team against the reserves who were using Iowa plays and if the star Hawkeye backfield gains consistently against Wisconsin it will take the highest kind of football to turn the trick. Each one of these eleven men in Cardinal jerseys who will be out on Iowa field is set to put a stop to any uncalled for romps to the Badger goal that Ingwersen's men may attempt.

Shift Lineup

A shift in the Badger forward wall that puts Wilke at center and Nelson and Larson at guards has been made to strengthen the center of the line against the rushes of Fry and to hold in check Griffen, Iowa's stalwart captain and pivot man.

Barry and Williams Scout Gopher Game

Coaches Rollie Williams and Sam Barry, Iowa, football scouts, left last night for Minneapolis where they will gather to scout Iowa's next Big Ten rival. This is the last work that the Iowa dope collectors will have to do this year as no scout will be sent to watch Southern California in action.

A. Wilson, Track Star, Comes From Gotham for Game

Arlo Wilson of New York city, Iowa track captain in 1911, has made the trip from Gotham to see the Hawkeyes in action this afternoon.

Wilson is president of the University of Iowa association of New York City and also of the Association of Western Conference universities. Two thousand Big Ten alumni saw Illinois whip Pennsylvania last week, he says.

According to the former Hawkeye track star, the annual banquet of the University of Iowa association will be held on November 21 and the Iowans will receive play by play reports of the Iowa-Southern California game over a special wire.

night amid the martial strains of "On Wisconsin" and with the cheers of thousands of fans ringing in their ears. Every one of the 32 men making the trip is bent on upsetting Iowa in her ride to a conference title with Michigan.

Play Last Game on Iowa Field Today

Vets Play Last Game on Iowa Field Today

Seven veterans of Iowa football will bid farewell to Iowa field with the final whistle of the Wisconsin game this afternoon. The Hawkeye eleven still will have two games on their schedule but both will be on foreign playing fields.

After today's contest the last of Ex-Coach Howard Jones' men will have fought their last game before an Iowa crowd. It was in the fall of 1923 that these seven young giants reported to Jones for duty and since then have played a major part in keeping the football fame of the Iowans among the leaders in the middle-west and national standings.

Played Under Jones

The seven men who are donning their "Old Gold" uniforms for their last home game are: Captain Harold Griffen, center, Wesley Fry, fullback, Richard Roney, end; John Schirmer, quarterback; Ray Dauber, halfback; Donald Graham, halfback; and Paul Krasuski, tackle. With the exception of Dauber, next year's track captain, twice a winner of a track letter as well as one in football, each of the men has given all his attention to the grid game and has twice won an "I."

Graham, Best Punter

Donald Graham, Waterloo, has never been displayed as a flashy player by newspaper writers but he is known to be the longest and surest punter in the conference and probably the greatest in the west. Graham is not only a punter but a great defensive player.

John Schirmer, of Sioux Falls, S. Dak., is the only member of the group who is not a native son of Iowa. However, Schirmer has given some real exhibitions of good football and starred with Fry in the Ohio game this year. He is a great interference man and is also able to take care of the punting whenever necessary.

Griffen, "Wall of China"

Captain Harold Griffen, of Sioux City, has spent his three years at the center of the Iowa wall and during the last year was nicknamed "Wall of China," by a prominent sports writer. Tub's playing in '23 and '24 was as good as the best but with the added responsibility of being captain he has become a demon on both offense and defense and is clearly the best center in the conference this year.

Richard Roney hails from Mason City. Dick has been a dependable wingman during his three years of service for "Old Gold." Last year, paired with the great Otto, they won the reputation of being the best pair of ends in the country and so far this season his work has been even greater than that of last season.

Wesley Fry, of Manning, was one of the finds of Jones in '23 but had an off year last fall. This year the sturdy little player has found himself again and his line plunges have been the talk of the conference and won for him the title of "Plowboy." He rates as one of the best backs in the conference.

Ray Dauber, an Iowa City boy, has been a fixture on the Iowa team as a sure and deadly tackler and a wonderful interference man. This year Dauber has developed into a capable forward pass receiver and has been doing much of the blocking.

Paul Krasuski, of Davenport, has

Davenport Battles Little Hawks Today

Red and White Hope to Annex Victory in Last Home Game

By Dick Wilson.

With a light practice and a heavy chalk talk Coach Henry Soucek whipped his Iowa City high school gridlers into fine shape for their last home game on Shrader field yesterday. Davenport high will field the Red and White singing their swan song for the home grounds this morning at 10 o'clock. The rest of the Little Hawk encounters for this year will be out of town, and the Iowa City warriors are expected to make a mighty showing in their third game.

Davenport, which comes much touted as a tamer of ambitious football teams, will find a tough proposition in Koza the Iowa City flash. Koza's good work has not slackened in the practices this week, and he is expected to make some goodly gains for the Red and White.

Berger, Dolzal, and Collins will do much to halt the progress of Captain Brookhart, the terror of the Davenport aggregation.

Macy of Grinnell will referee. Parkins of Iowa will umpire and Scantlebury of Iowa will be head linesman.

Iowa City's lineup is as follows: Collins, center; Douglas and Kettle-son, guards; Dolzal and Berger, tackles; Cadwallader and Idema, ends; Koza, quarterback; Judy and McGuire, halfbacks; Stevens, fullback.

U. High Loses to Tipton in 27 to 0 Mud Battle Friday

Heavy Tipton Backs Score Touchdown in Each Quarter

By N. N. Jones

University high dropped back into its old slump and lost 27 to 0 on a muddy field at Tipton yesterday. The mud and the weight of the Tipton team may have been a disadvantage to the local prep, but the blue and white team showed none of the fight they had when they held West Branch 0 to 0 here last week.

The heavy Tipton backs pushed over a touchdown each quarter and Coach Engest's U High line failed to solve the old fashioned criss cross plays the Tipton backs used until the game was lost.

U High Threatens.

University high threatened to score several times but lacked the final punch necessary to cross their opponents goal. Gosselin at quarter and Brown at end played a fine game for the local team.

On the second kickoff in the first quarter Gosselin took the ball on his own twenty yard line and tore through to Tipton's 35 yard line, where he was finally stopped by the last man in the Tipton defense. The Blue and White backs pushed the ball another ten yards for their first down and then lost their chance for a score when Tipton tightened and held for downs.

Only Two Passes.

Tipton relied on straight line bucks and criss cross plays for all their gains, and only tried two forward passes during the game.

University high started with Brown and Lewis at ends, Roberts and Bowers at tackles, Hall and McClain guards, Whiting center, Gosselin at quarter, Kay and Ross halves and Dennis at full. Capt. Guy Myers was out of the game again with his injured knee.

St. Ambrose Falls Before Attack of Penn Grid Machine

DAVENPORT, Nov. 6 (AP)—Penn spoiled the St. Ambrose homecoming by trimming the Saints 20 to 0 in a football game here today. St. Ambrose scored first, Hippler making a drop kick from the 25 yard line. A blocked punt and two smash-ups accounted for Penn's three scores. Noahris and Rafferty scored the touchdowns. Penn had a superior team that was able to take advantage of all the breaks.

Award Letters to Old Time Grid Men

Old gold sweaters, some with service stripes and a captain's star knit in the left arm, but all with the "I" of black will be presented to twenty-five former Iowa football players before the Wisconsin-Iowa game crowd. Letters were written from twenty-eight to thirty-seven years ago by eighty-seven players but only twenty-five of them have come back for their due awards. Six states have sent representatives.

Ceremonies honoring those who fought for Old Gold in the turbulent days when football was in its infancy will be held on Iowa field at 1:45 p. m. Just before the kick-off of the latest model of game. President Walter A. Jessup will present the honor sweaters to the veterans. A special choice section of the west stand has been reserved for the favored twenty-five and their parties but they will leave this temporarily to set foot on Iowa field again after many years.

Were Mighty Men

Mighty deeds of the four captains who will wear the "I" after today are recorded in Hawkeye history. Iver Iverson of Northwood, captain in 1896, was a noted center who played every minute of every game for three years—which meant something in the days of the bone-cracking attack launched against men protected by modern safety devices. A quarterback as crafty in his play as Parkin of Iowa or Friedman of Michigan was Prince E. Sawyer of Sioux City, captain 1894 while Frank G. Pierce of Marshalltown, captain 1891 was a smashing fullback like the style of Fry. Kalita E. Leggett of Minot, S. Dak., led the 1895 team from the position of guard.

To carry out the tribute which will be paid to twenty-five former Hawkeye football stars, special official 32-page programs featuring the history of Iowa football will be sent on Saturday. Athlete salesmen will offer them on the streets in the afternoon.

March in Shape

For the Badgers, Coach Mead Burke will probably nominate Captain Kubly, Chapman, Elleson, Schutt, McKee, Reeves, Gumbreck and Jutz. Kubly and Chapman are called two of the greatest harriers in the conference.

Upon the sturdy legs of Captain Marchi, Hunn, Speers, Stonebrook, and Van Ness will rest much of the burden of passing under the finish line ahead of the Badger band. The last four named above finished in that order against Illinois last week. Captain Marchi, whose leg pulled him down to eighth place against the Illini is virtually well and should move up among the leaders.

Title Race?

The race will have a direct bearing upon the conference dual meet title and also will go far towards determining team strength which will count in the Big Ten championship run November 21. Last year the Wisconsin team faced to a triumph in the conference run while the Hawkeyes finished in second place.

Captain Kubly is the only veteran from that team. Iowa has Marchi, Van Ness and Stonebrook who placed in the team race. A battle of star sophomores will result when Hunn and Speers, Iowans, meet Chapman and Elleson, Wisconsin runners.

Pictures and record of the teams from 1889 to 1897 and the scores of Iowa games for all the remaining years are contained within the book. Much of this material has never before appeared in print. In sharp contrast to the old time players with their long hair and bulky uniforms are the pictures of Hawkeye and Badger warriors who meet in Iowa field in the modern game.

Complete information about the players, names, numbers and positions as well as much additional gridiron dope is found in the program. An especially designed cover in old gold and black depicts Nick Kutsch hurling the ball with a teammate in the background. The programs are issued under the direction of the Athletic council and were compiled and edited by Eric C. Wilson, director of publicity.

Three of the men who played on the first Iowa team trained in American rules are waiting to receive their sweaters. Preston C. Coast of Iowa City, William H. Bremner of Minneapolis, Minn., and Frank G. Pierce of Marshalltown are the former players who waited thirty-six years for recognition.

thing in the days of the bone-cracking attack launched against men protected by modern safety devices. A quarterback as crafty in his day as Parkin of Iowa or Friedman of Michigan was Prince E. Sawyer of Sioux City, captain 1894 while Frank G. Pierce of Marshalltown, captain 1891 was a smashing fullback in the style of Fry. Kalita E. Leighton of Minot, S. D., led the 1895 team from the position of guard.

To carry out the tribute which will be paid to twenty-five former Hawkeye football stars, special official 32-page programs featuring the history of Iowa football will be on Saturday. Athlete salesmen will offer them on the streets in the afternoon.

Hawk Harriers Meet Badgers Here Today

A Wisconsin cross country team, victors in dual meets over Michigan and Minnesota will race a likewise unbeaten Iowa squad today in the first dual on record between the two institutions. Eleven o'clock this morning is the time and the five mile Finkbine Field course is the scene of the struggle.

Coach G. T. Bresnahan, himself the captain of a Badger harrier squad eight years ago has announced that the following men will sport the old gold jerseys in the race: Captain Marchi, Hunn, Speers, Van Ness, Stonebrook, Montgomery, Ekstrand, Coffie, Elliott, and Crissman.

Marchi in Shape
For the Badgers, Coach Mead Burke will probably nominate Captain Kubly, Chapman, Ellison, Schutt, McKee, Reeves, Gumbreck and Butz. Kubly and Chapman are called two of the greatest harriers in the conference.

Upon the sturdy legs of Captain Marchi, Hunn, Speers, Stonebrook, and Van Ness will rest much of the burden of passing under the finish line ahead of the Badger band. The last four named above finished in that order against Illinois last week. Captain Marchi, whose bad leg pulled him down to eighth place against the Illinois is virtually well and should move up among the leaders.

Title Race?
The race will have a direct bearing upon the conference dual meet title and also will go towards determining team strength which will count in the Big Ten championship run November 21. Last year the Wisconsin team raced to a triumph in the conference run while the Hawkeyes finished in second place.

Captain Kubly is the only veteran from that team. Iowa has Marchi, Van Ness and Stonebrook who played in the team race. A battle of star sophomores will result when Hunn and Speers, Iowans, meet Chapman and Ellison, Wisconsin runners.

Varsity Cage Men Do Better Work as Drills Continue

Men Exhibit More Pep in Execution of Floor Plays

Coach Janse put his varsity basketballers through their third scrimmage of the season last night in the men's gym.

The workout was a long one and easily the best that has been held to date. The men seemed to have more snap in their play and their execution of floor plays was much better than usual. The men were used alternately and Coach Janse is giving every candidate a chance to show his worth. At the forward positions VanDeusen, Phillips, Boyesen, Gamble and Harrison were used; the guards were McConnell, Lawson and Swaney; and Swenson and Miller divided the center job between them.

The men seem to just be beginning to show the results of their three weeks of drill. With four weeks still remaining before the first game and with workouts being held daily the team should be going fairly well by the evening of December 7th.

Arrest J. McAlvin on Double Charge

Faces Trial in Polk County for Passing Bad Check

James McAlvin, of Waterloo, was arrested here last night by Deputy Constable C. A. Bryant, of Polk county, on a warrant charging issuance of a worthless check in Des Moines last December.

McAlvin also faces a charge of disturbing the peace by intoxication, preferred by Iowa City police after he had attempted to tear up the warrant for his arrest and had created a disturbance at the station.

Bail for his release was set at $75 which he provided, pending hearing before Mayor J. J. Carroll at 9 o'clock this morning.

Feminine Football Fan Addresses Verse to Team

One of Iowa City's football fans, Mrs. A. C. Harmon, anxious to see Iowa at the top of the Big Ten heap, has written a song addressed to the team. The verse which may be sung to the tune of "Keep the Home Fires Burning," follows:

Keep fighting, team, keep fighting. 'Tis thus we ever like you.

We're proud of Iowa's fighting team.

Who wear the Black and Gold.

You can be the conference champions.

By keeping faith with Iowa's slogan.

We'll cheer you on to victory.

For Iowa, and Old Gold.

Popham Winds Up September Session

Two probate cases came up before the district court yesterday morning. Final reports of William A. Schupf, administrator of the estate of Madison Allison, and of Josephine Vogt, guardian, were approved by Judge R. G. Popham, and the administrator and guardian were discharged, their bondsmen released and their bonds exonerated.

Cancellation of a special assessment lien was decreed by Judge Popham in the case of C. C. Schump vs. the city of Iowa City and Charles Benda, county clerk. The plaintiff has agreed to pay $350 of the assessment.

There was no session of the court in the afternoon, as it adjourned in courtesy to the law celebration. The September term closes today and Judge Popham will open the November term in Iowa county at Marquette, Monday.

Bradstreet's Says Trade Holds Up; Weather a Help

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say: Trade and industry remain good and active as November opens, this after a heavy month's business in October. Some lines of trade hitherto among the most active have quieted a little, but others have bristled up and are at about their best for nearly a year past.

One notable feature so far this fall has been the absence of reports of warm weather holding back retail buying. The early advent of winter weather in northern areas is largely responsible for the steady run of trade in reasonable goods which is bringing out a good deal of re-order business in these lines. Cold weather and the anthracite miners strike have pushed soft coal production above the 12,000,000 tons a week rate and caused a big expansion in coke production. A weakening of the latter product's prices has naturally resulted.

In iron and steel, buying still is brisk, pig iron and scrap are higher and prices of steel bars, plates and sheets have advanced. Pig iron is now nearly $2 per ton above the bottom.

Lumber production continues good but buying seems to have lagged a little on the Pacific coast, where prices are weaker.

Weekly bank clearings: $9,796,573,000.

City Schools Send Teachers to Capital

Ten teachers from the Iowa City schools are attending the state teachers' convention in Des Moines this week-end. They are: Mrs. Frances Davis, Mrs. C. C. Bunch, Miss Margaret Schindhelm, W. A. Pye, Robert Hannelly, Miss Hazel Chapman, W. E. Berke and Superintendent I. A. Opstad.

Complaint Against Stockyards Again Confronts Council

Breene Says Property Owners' Charges Unfounded

Old hatchets were dug up last night at the meeting of the Iowa City council when former City Attorney C. B. Russell filed another complaint against the stockyards located near the Rock Island railroad station. He recommended an action of suit and put forth the opinion that the railroad company would profit by improving the yards and making the adjacent property saleable.

Harry D. Breene, representing the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad, asserted that the yards were kept in a sanitary condition at all times and that no property owners in the vicinity had grounds for complaint. He said that his company would be willing to do anything suggested by the council to remedy the situation. The complaint was placed on file for future reference.

Thomas A. Brown and Hubert W. Smith were granted permission to hang signs, under the supervision of the city engineer.

G. A. Singleton was granted permission to cut a curbing for a gasoline station and the Iowa Drug stores petition to hang an electric sign met with approval.

A petition to change the name of Park street to Black Springs road was referred to the streets and alleys committee.

The council made a resolution allowing $15 a month for transportation for the city nurse. Instructions were made to the city engineer to prepare plans for new cement sidewalks on parts of Benton, Clinton and Florence streets.

Honor Mrs. Devitt at Professional Women's Lunch

Mrs. James A. Devitt, who with her husband is in Iowa City attending the sixtieth anniversary of the founding of the college of law, will be the guest of honor at luncheon today of the professional societies to be held at 11:45 o'clock in Vesteria Tea Room.

Her work as a member of the state board of education has caused Mrs. Devitt to travel about the state continuously and she is acquainted with professional women and the problems which their work involve.

Arrangements for the luncheon are being made under the direction of Josephine Ainsworth, L.S. of West Union, who is vice president of the Inter-Professional Sorority council. Fifty guests are expected.

The affair is the first of a series of programs planned by the sorority council which comprises Kappa Beta Pi, legal sorority; Nu Sigma Phi, medical sorority; Kappa Epsilon, pharmacy sorority; Theta Sigma Phi, journalism; and Gamma Epsilon, commerce sorority.

Report All Roads Good; Big Crowd Expected Today

Elks Open House to Guests; Other Clubs to Entertain

Once more the business district of Iowa City breaks forth in the gala colors of old gold and black, cardinal and straw to do honor to "Iowa Day" guests.

Two business blocks on Clinton street, three on Washington, two on Dubuque and two on College street again glow with banners and pennants extending a voiceless welcome to returning graduates and visitors.

The Chamber of Commerce gave out a report that all roads leading into Iowa City are being dragged and should be in good condition for the many visitors expected here today. In view of this fact, large numbers from the adjoining counties are expected to drive.

To aid in accommodating the crowds expected, the doors of the Elks club rooms will be opened as headquarters for returning alumni and guests. Various clubs and organizations in the city have made arrangements for the accommodation of the visitors. City banks will be closed for the afternoon to permit employees to attend the game.

This amount is due for merchandise purchased by the defendant from the plaintiff.

Michigan Makes Only First Down During Slushy Contest

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Northwestern University today provided the greatest upset in the Western conference by defeating Michigan in soldier's field stadium 3 to 2 in a game played on a quagmire so deep and sticky that only one first down was made and that by the losers.

Conditions Bad.

Michigan, not scored upon before this year, and victor over Indiana, Wisconsin, Illinois and the Navy, was backed to the wall in the first minute, had her goal line crossed by the air by "Tiny" Lewis, and later was given two points on a safety shot by Lewis to make defeat a certainty.

Conditions for football could scarcely have been worse. The field was a swamp and the wind blew a gale from the northeast. It was raining at the beginning of the game. The rain turned to a down-pour as the game progressed but the 40,000 spectators stuck to the finish. It was a blinding hurricane of rain and sleet as the game ended.

Under the conditions Northwestern was the better team.

Lewis Stars.

Lewis, Northwestern sophomore fullback, did all the scoring of both teams. The game was hardly two minutes old when he stepped back to the fourteen yard line and booted the ball between the posts for the first score against Michigan this year. The game was almost at the end of the three quarter period when he stepped back of the same south goal line and on a pressed punt downed the ball for two points for Michigan.

The safety was a rare display of judgment as Michigan had been pressing the kicker and the donated points gave Northwestern the chance to play from its own thirty yard line.

Rail Man Closes Service of Fifty Years; Gets Watch

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Nov. 7 (AP)—K. F. Montgomery, freight agent of the Northwestern railway in Council Bluffs, completed fifty years of service with the railroad Thursday, including thirty-two years in his present position here. Fellow employees presented him with a gold-handled umbrella.

Montgomery began his railroad career as a messenger and caller at Boomer, Iowa, Nov. 5, 1875. Following service as an operator in Council Bluffs in 1877, he was sent to Pierre, S. D., as a clerk. Severe snowstorms held up traffic for three months during the winter of 1880. Montgomery returned to Council Bluffs again and he has made his home here since.

Police Hold Two Sioux City Men for Hauling Booze

At an inquest today, witnesses testified they found 42 pints of whiskey in the Iowa automobile after the accident. The car bore license number 25-765.
