No Law Jubilee, Decision of College Faculty

Ground Broken for Second Union Unit

Triangle Club, Lounge for Women, Y., to Locate Here

In the same week of the inauguration of Iowa's Memorial Union, Theo. Stark and Company of Cedar Rapids, builders of the first unit, have begun construction on the second building. A gang of men and a steam shovel arrived yesterday on the grounds and broke ground for a $225,000 classical structure. It will have white stone columns and a granite base contrasted by red brick insets.

Comfortable quarters of the Triangle club, a faculty organization will be located in this unit, for which privilege they have pledged fifty thousand dollars.

Poarches Connect Units

This unit will be three stories high topped by a stone balustrade and rising above the first unit, to which it will be joined, by twenty-six feet. The building will face Madison avenue and serve as an entrance to the recently completed unit.

One of the features of the building will be copper porches built off the third floor of the building and supported from the roof of the first unit. The porches, which will face the Iowa river, will be glassed in and heated.

Plan Women's Lounge

The entrance of the building will be of carved stone and will lead into a large lobby. Off the lobby permanent quarters of the Y. M. C. A. will be placed.

A women's lounge of considerable size is being planned for and also space for the literary organizations of the university.

[illegible] of the specifications in the contract is a musicians' balcony that will be built off the second floor of the proposed unit and pierce the east wall of the first unit, facing the lounge room from a raised height. To retain the tone of the lounge room, the balcony will be made of wrought iron and finished in polychrome.

The purpose for which a great deal of space in this building will be used has been left opened for future consideration.

It will be completed in approximately one year.

Max Coffey, formerly a linotype operator, sports editor, and assistant telegraph editor of The Iowan, has taken a position as sports editor on The Mason City Globe-Gazette. Coffey has been writing for the sports desk of the Press Citizen during the last semester in addition to his work as linotype operator on that paper.

He is a member of Delta Upsilon, Sigma Delta Chi professional journalistic fraternity. He will be associated in his new position with W. O. Hall, who is the editor of the Globe-Gazette and a former editor of The Iowan.

Oil Magnate Loses Fight; Cancel Lease

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 1 (AP)—Edward L. Doheny, oil magnate, today lost his fight in the United States circuit court of appeals to prevent cancellation of the Doheny leases in the naval oil reserve in California.

A petition seeking reversal of the court's recent decision in the case was overruled. Counsel for Doheny was given a stay of execution to enable him to prepare an appeal to the United States supreme court.

The circuit court decision stripped the oil magnate of all his rights to naval oil lands in California under the leases and also cancelled $11,000,000 in allowances granted by the trial court for work done at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and in the California fields under the leases.

Ferguson Denies He May Run for Office

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 1 (AP)—James E. Ferguson, husband of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, would not indicate today whether he would be a candidate for governor in 1926, as reported in the Dallas News Sunday, and that he had selected Ben Critz of Dallas to manage his campaign.

"It appears to be a growing opinion among Texas politicians, however, that either Mr. Ferguson or I will run.

Soviet Orders Military Drill in Russian Schools

MOSCOW, Feb. 1 (AP)—Compulsory military training in colleges is the latest means adopted by the Soviet Government for the development of its national defense machinery.

The Commissariat of Education has issued a decree requiring students in the higher classes to take two hours' instruction weekly in the science of war and to spend a part of each summer in military camps. The system in many ways resembles the ones in the United States.

Economy makes it impossible for the Soviet to maintain a standing army of more than 600,000 men, and so the Government has adopted these supplementary measures.

The cost of maintaining a soldier in the regular army is about $200 a year.

Additional Day for Enrollment Proves Boon to Students

Conditions and Flunk Notices to Reach Students Today

Taking advantage of the additional day for registration granted by a vote of the liberal arts college faculty, nearly two thousand liberal arts students threaded through university hall yesterday afternoon to complete registration for the second semester.

Contrary to widely spread rumor that regular registration would be continued through today Charles H. Maruth, assistant registrar, announced last night that the specified two dollar fee would be assessed against those who postponed registration until today.

Many May Pay Fee

According to a letter sent to members of the university faculty, students with slips permitting deferred registration are advised to attend classes which they are continuing through the second semester as if they were regularly registered for the course. Although no official recognition will be made of their presence those with deferred registration will not be at the disadvantage of having missed a part of the prescribed work.

Students in general found little difficulty in enrolling in the university this semester although a check-up may disclose a great number subject to the newly instituted change fee.

Send Course Books

The extra day for registration awarded to both students and faculty in the liberal arts college has proved of great assistance in unravelling the red tape of registration.

Registrar's office officials urged last night that students be prompt in mailing course books in to that office for final grades. Notices of incomplete work, conditional work, or failed work will reach students sometime today.

Senate Robs Iowa of Debate Subject

World Court Settled; Postpone Missouri, Kansas Contest

Because the United States senate last week settled the World Court proposition which Iowa was to use for the Missouri-Kansas triangular debates, scheduled for Feb. 12, that series of debates has been postponed. These debates with mixed teams from each university will probably be held in March.

A substitute question has been agreed upon, resolved, that this house views with alarm the tendency of the American colleges and universities to stress intercollegiate athletics.

Josephine Wortman, A3 of Iowa City, Charles Nutting, A2 of Iowa City, and Henry Neuman, A2 of Davenport, were selected for the World Court discussion and will represent Iowa in the postponed debates.

"No Belief That Production in '26 an Offensive One"

Action Taken Thursday Banned Performance of Barristers

By RUSSELL WILSON

There will be no Law Jubilee this year!

This decision, which was reached Thursday afternoon by the faculty of the college, was confirmed and repeated yesterday in a three hour meeting between the faculty and the Law Student's Association in the office of Henry Craig Jones, dean of the college.

Faculty's Ultimatum

On Thursday the law faculty took the following action respecting the Law Jubilee:

"ORDERED that it is the sense of the law faculty that the Law Jubilee has ceased to justify itself and should be discontinued."

At yesterday's meeting the first notice of this action was given to the representatives of the student body and as this action was taken by the faculty it was final and irrevocable; it spelled the doom of the annual celebration.

What took place at the meeting is unknown; Dean Jones barred reporters from its session. However the length of time consumed seems to point out that there was more than a little discussion.

Hougen's Statement

Jeffrey C. Hougen, L3 of McCallsburg and president of the Law Student's Association, gave the following statement to The Daily Iowan last night:

"I'm glad a decision has been made and that the affair is over. The matter of a Jubilee for this year was badly handled and much misinterpreted since the beginning. I trust that matters will adjust themselves to the benefit of all concerned."

Presidents of the various classes in the college were all unanimous in their statements; they had none to make.

Dean Jones brought the following

Mitchell on Air for Short Attack

Barnstorming Starts Feb. 10 With Talk in New York

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1—William Mitchell renewed his attack on the war and navy department aviation policies late today, asserting in a public statement that the bureaucracy they maintain "pass the limit of our national conscience and must be thoroughly overhauled at once".

The statement was issued soon after he received official notification that his resignation from the army had been accepted. It announced the former air officer intended to tour the country, bringing "realization of the true condition of our national defense straight to the people" in a more forcible way than he could have done if he had remained "muzzled in the army."

Mitchell's program of lectures will start with an address in New York February 10 and will take him into New England, the middle and far west for a three months' trip.

On the west coast he will visit Los Angeles April 1 and then work his way north to Seattle.

"I am going through the country," he said, "north, south, east, and west, and believe I shall accomplish more good for the national defense working from outside the service than I have been working from within."

Local Chapter of Omega Beta Pi Loses Charter; Fails to Keep Up Membership

The national charter of Beta chapter of Omega Beta Pi, pre-medic fraternity, was revoked tonight by the National Executive council of the fraternity.

The Beta chapter was organized from the pre-medic club, Medui, in 1921. In 1923, the chapter moved into a house at 304 South Summit street and later moved to 503 South Clinton street.

The action taken tonight was the result of the inability of Beta chapter to maintain the minimum membership requirement of the national organization, due to the short pre-medic course at the University of Iowa. Other schools, where chapters of Omega Beta Pi are located, have longer pre-medic courses, making it less difficult to meet the national requirements.

The local organization will not be disbanded but will continue under another name, which as yet has not been chosen. In case the pre-medic course at Iowa is brought up to standard, the chapter will probably be reinstated.

Test Government Radio Authority

Zenith Corporation Pleads Not Guilty to Violation

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Feb. 1—The first test of the power of the federal department of commerce to control radio broadcasting was set today for Feb. 15 when the Zenith Radio corporation pleaded not guilty to violating the wireless law of 1912 in their operation of station WJAZ.

The corporation and Eugene F. McDonald Jr., its president, were cited before federal Judge James H. Wilkerson on a bill of criminal information filed by J. Elliott Bryne, assistant district attorney. It alleged four violations of the law.

"The defendant contends there is no authorization to limit under the Wireless Act of 1912," Mr. Hart said. He admitted the authority of the deportment of commerce to allocate wave lengths, but denied the department had power to regulate broadcasting once a wave was assigned.

Hart said the Zenith corporation had determined to test the law when the department of commerce permitted one company to obtain license for five different stations, and attempted to restrict WJAZ to two hours a week.

Court Writ Puts Forbes Case in Supreme Court

CHICAGO, Feb. 1 (AP) — A writ of supersedeas to stay the mandate of imprisonment for Col. Charles Forbes and former director of the United States Veterans bureau and John W. Thompson, St. Louis contractor, was granted by the United States circuit court of appeals today, provided the defendants place their case before the supreme court within five days.

Kaiser Meets Son at Doorn Chateau

DOORN, Holland, Feb. 1 (AP)—Profiting by the first day of the abolition of the visa between Germany and Holland, former Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany, arrived here this morning and passed through the village unobserved to his father's chateau.

The meeting between the former emperor and his son was very touching, for it was the first time in more than two years that they had seen each other. William embraced his son and was unable to master his emotion, but the former Crown Prince displayed his usual gaiety.

Plan for Speeding Tax Bill Halted

Couzens and Norris Block Attempt to Hurry Voting

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 — The program of senate leaders for speeding up consideration of the tax reduction bill was jolted today as opponents launched attacks on several provisions.

At the conclusion of a session devoted entirely to debate, during which less than twenty five members were on the floor, most of the time, a proposal to meet an hour earlier tomorrow was blocked by Senators Couzens of Michigan and Norris of Nebraska, republicans.

Norris Warned Leaders

Reiterating that he desired to discuss freely some items of the bill, Senator Norris warned leaders "you aren't going to make any progress if you start the steam roller."

Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, in charge of the bill, then declared he would hold the senate in session tomorrow until six o'clock. Senator Simmons of North Carolina, ranking democrat on the committee, asserted that if tax reduction by March 15, was to be assured, consideration of the bill must be hastened.

Attack Mellon

The assult on the bill today twice centered on Secretary Mellon. Senator Norris charged that banking firms in which the secretary had been interested were allowed liberties under the consolidate provisions of the law despite contrary findings by the treasury invesigator.

Senator Couzens, who engaged in a dispute two years ago with Mr. Mellon on whether high surtaxes drove capital into tax exempt securities, told the senate today that figures collected by the special committee which investigated the internal revenue bureau under his chairmanship definitely "dispel the fallacy of that argument."

Successor to Scopes Suits Teaching Job

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Feb. 1 (AP)—Raleigh Reece, who succeeded John Thomas Scopes as science teacher in Rhea county high school, when Scopes violated the state anti-evolution teaching law, has resigned his position. No explanation of his action could be obtained today although it was reported to result from a difference with the school board over an entertainment at the school.

John L. Griffith Defends Growth of Yank Athletics

Big Ten Chief Says Jealousy Back of Criticism

BOONEVILLE, Mo., Feb. 1—The "destructive minded" critics who are fearful of the results of the tremendous growth in athletics in American since the world war, were taken to task tonight by Major John L. Griffith, Big Ten commissioner in a speech at the dedication of Kemper Military Academy's new gymnasium. "Many who decry athletic over-emphasis are jealous," he said, "because there is not like over-emphasis for certain other things dear to the hearts of those who lament.

"If we consider the question of whether the American people have given too much time to training their bodies and conserving their health, a study of the draft statistics which revealed one half our young men as physically defective, should answer this negatively and conclusively."

The estimated receipts at American football games last fall was about $10,000,000 to $20,000,000, Major Griffith said, while the American spend $800,000,000 a year on cigarettes and $50,000,000 a year for chewing gum.

The boys of today, said Major Griffith, devour the sports page of newspapers, and aspire to become Red Granges or Bob Simpsons instead of Jesse Jameses or Diamond Dicks as in his own boyhood days.

Daring Career of Elder Garibaldi Lends Brilliant Background for Next Lecturer

Representing one of the most famous names in Italian history the grandson of the great liberator, Giuseppe Garibaldi, General Peppino Garibaldi, who will speak here Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock in the natural science auditorium, has spent more than half of his life in countless wars. He probably has been in more wars than any other living man. In this respect he is like Giuseppe Garibaldi, who spent a great share of his life fighting.

Giuseppe Garibaldi, the creator of United Italy and the grandfather of General Garibaldi, by persistent fighting established a United Italy. His life was most eventful with its story of escape from countless arrests and death at the hands of his enemies.

At an early age Giuseppe Garibaldi, born in 1807, became involved in the "Young Italy" movement of Mazzini and was condemned to death for taking part in an attempt to seize Genoa.

Defends Italy

In 1835 he became engaged in a rebellion of Rio Grande against Brazil and distinguished himself as a warrior and a privateer. He was later captured and imprisoned, but escaped and shortly afterwards married a beautiful creole girl named Anita Riveria.

He joined the Montevideans in 1842, in a war with Buenos Ayres, and gained renown as a naval commander and organizer of the Italian Legion. A few years later, Garibaldi joined the revolutionary movement in Rome and voted for a republic. In the meantime Mazzini had been inveigled into accepting an armistice. At this time the French reorganized and laid seige to Rome and so the Italians recalled Garibaldi, who made a brilliant defense but was forced to retreat. It was during this flight that his wife died.

Garibaldi Represents Italy

He was again arrested by the Sardinian government and told to leave Italy. He came to America, where he lived for eighteen months in New York, working as a candlemaker. In 1854 he returned to Italy and settled down as a farmer on the island of Caprera.

He once more commanded the "Red Spirits" in the war of 1866 in the Tyrol. The following year Garibaldi made his last attempt on the Holy City. He was again arrested by the Italian government and he fled to Caprera. He was by this time beginning to be old and an invalid and could no longer engage in warfare.

General Peppino Garibaldi, his grandson, has maintained the ideals of his grandfather and it is said that even though the Garibaldi hymn is the national hymn of Italy, so the best ideals of the Italian people are represented by the younger Garibaldi.

February 1 was a sad but eventful day for the Univeristy of Iowa. The Hawkeye basket ball team lo[st] to Indiana 30 to 20; four leadi[ng] bootleggers were brought to just[ice] and the Law Jubilee was abolis[hed] by action of the authorities.

According to rumors not yet [veri]fied, seven husky basketeers; [seven] teen angry law students; and [two] campus lights—assume the [role] held crepehanging sessions [during] the night.

Minnesota Next

But to return to sport [which] thereby hang another blac[k] tion on the Iowa funeral. Holding eighth place in [the] circuit is about as pleasant as trying to register after dropping a few year courses. The next session is with Minnesota and it is safe to predict that there will be some angry words before closing.

The box score of last evening's disaster proves the report circulated after Indiana's recent defeat upon our armory floor, namely; that each of the visitors vowed personal revenge when entertaining Iowa. Seven out of their eight participants poured in points, Winston, the wavy-armed guard, being the only opponent to stay away from the basket.

Barry Inspires Team

Coach Barry inspired his boys to take the lead during the opening play of the second period, but Sibley and Beckner sensed danger and fired away with great success. It will be remembered that both of these boys played around to find nothing, but bad luck before an Iowa audience. Possibly the approaching exam period, the cheering of the reserved seat section; or Claire Schapp's dancing bothered them.

From now on it won't be necessary to take excuses over the wire, we can find out for ourselves. Five straight curtains before local admirers is the program, and, as they say in Indiana, "revenge is sweet."

Program of New York Club Lists Three Iowa Men

That Iowa isn't such a backward state as H. L. Mencken would have us think might be indicated upon noting the program of the American Economic society at its recent meeting in New York.

Of the four men on the program three were Iowans, two of them graduates of this university. Former Governor Frank Lowden of Illinois; Representative Dickinson of this state, and E. T. Meredith of Des Moines were the three speakers who addressed the economists. Governor Lowden and Representative Dickinson are the Iowa graduates. All of these men are taking a prominent part in the agricultural relief plans.

The meeting was given by the New York City Economists' club and was attended by President Walter A. Jessup on his recent eastern trip. Between three and four hundred were present, the affair taking place at the Hotel Astor.

Fun From the Press

MORE and more, wit is playing a considerable part in the newspaper story. With two exceptions, the New York Times and the Christian Science Monitor, practically every magazine or newspaper in the United States is incorporating humor in the material it gives to its reading public.

The most recent and noticeable change of policy in this direction was taken some time ago by the Nation Magazine. Formerly a publication serious in the extreme, almost acidly so in fact, it employed a cartoonist whose sole duty is to provide one full page of humorous drawings for each issue. One pictured President Dumurge of France standing on the Arch de Triomphe in Paris, reviewing the long line of French premiers who have held office during his administration. Another displayed a coal dealer selling anthracite coal at thirty dollars a ton and headed by the caption, "The East Keeps Cool With Coolidge."

... it goes, each publication constantly seeking a more interesting way of placing the news before its readers and finding the solution to the problem in humorous articles and cartoons. A great deal has been written and much said decrying the low level to which the press has dropped. But it is hard to say that the press has fallen down on its job by using wit and sarcasm in an interesting way. The American public possesses a real appreciation of fun. That is natural, and it is better to satisfy that desire by incorporating humor in news stories, thus to make the press an organ of interest and enjoyment, than to have newspaper perusal considered a solmn, painful duty.

"Speaking about the movies, a lot of us," writes J. B., "would like to see more coal screened."

Four Million Quarts

DESPITE prohibition, the American people are still a hard drinking race, although the nature of their beverages has become considerably softened. Thirsty citizens of our arid land now consume 4,000,000 quarts of what are termed soft drinks each year, it was revealed at the second annual convention of the New Jersey State Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages last week. But even 4,000,000 quarts is not a great figure when compared to the number guzzled before the Volstead act was passed, it was shown. Probably this will be a surprise to the layman, who naturally would assume that the abolition of the hard drinks would create at least some increased demand for the non-alcoholic beverages.

"Immediately following enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment our business dropped 42 per cent," a speaker told the bottlers. "It has only been by hard labor in the distribution of soft drinks to every small store in every town and hamlet that we have regained that loss. Previous to prohibition a great many bought soft drinks over the bars. When the saloons were closed this business was lost."

Judging from the number of "cokes" and "malteds" consumed before the local soda fountains, a good many of the quarts mentioned above are put away by college students. While a harmless form of enjoyment, the drinking of sweet flavored quaffs, especially in summer time, is greatly overdone. This is chiefly the result of habit. Passing a drug store the inevitable remark is "Let's have a drink." And regardless of the desire or lack of desire, the drinks are procured.

Evidently the producers of these drinks expect that the demand will continue, for they confidently predict a doubling of their business next year.

Fighting for Peace

SHOULD the ten commandments be read in the public schools? A hearing before a board of education committee in New York to make such a reading compulsory in the public schools once a week ended in a violent religious argument between atheists and members of all denominations. In fact, it was necessary for the janitors to disperse the 250 disputants before the committee had reached a decision.

There is no commandment in the decalogue which declares literally that "thou shalt not lose thy temper," but one does not usually expect a discussion on such a matter to end up in a free for all. It is one of the oddities of life that people who maintain a tranquility of soul on all other matters are unable to discuss religion without becoming heated and occasionally violating the spirit that they are endeavoring to uphold. The committee will vote on the question of reading the commandments in the schools at the next meeting, but in the meantime it might be well for the advocate of such a policy themselves to review the commandments.

Ninety-nine times out of a hundred the train will beat you to it, or at least meet you on the spot.—Charleston Daily Mail.

The Dollar Expands

THE employer's dollar, when spent for labor, has undergone a greater shrinkage in the last ten years than has the purchasing power of the consumer's dollar, according to figures compiled by the National Industrial conference board. In October, 1925, a dollar would buy on the average of 43.7 per cent of the amount of labor it would have commanded in 1914, the study reveals. They estimate that the consumer's dollar will buy about 60 per cent of its 1914 quota.

The fact that while the employer's dollar, spent for general living expenses, has decreased only forty per cent since 1914, the employer's dollar, spent for wages, has declined nearly 60 per cent and is worth considerably less than half of what it was in pre-war days, indicates that the general condition of the wage earner must be greatly improved. Roughly estimated, the wage earner should be able to turn his labor into about one and one-fifth more groceries, clothing, and the like than he could a decade ago.

This is a healthy sign. While the employer's association naturally is not overly enthused about it, the figures practically indicate a marked increase in wages, and a corresponding raising of the living standards of the people. The truth of the facts can be easily seen by looking into the average home. Luxuries of yesterday have become the necessities of today.

Man is still an optimist by nature: He never refers to them as get-poor-quick schemes.—Detroit News.

Five Cents a Year

MARSHAL FOCH, hero of the World war, has had his salary raised, along with the other marshals of France. Foch now receives $3,000 a year. This princely sum is nearly equal to the amount the proprietor of a small grocery store in this country would realize in the course of the same period of time. A good general in the French army will receive an annual compensation of $1,500 under the new wage scale, a colonel something less than $1,000, while a lieutenant will be paid $235 every twelve months. Thus France rewards its fighting men. A French private, after serving voluntarily for a year, will receive one franc, or less than five cents, and if he remains enrolled for more than ten years his salary will be doubled.

These figures seem laughable to us. But in France the army occupies a different position than it does in this country. There is a certain honor that accompanies the commissioned officers that compensates, in their mind, for the paucity of financial reward. There is still a tendency for men of fighting families, who have some good outside income, to follow the military profession. This aristocracy of arms is distinctly a product of the old world. The American prefers to uphold the aristocracy of financial success.

Sympathy is what one woman offers another in exchange for the details.—Detroit News.

What Happened to Jones

DURING the last few decades Americans have refrained as much as possible from meddling in European politics. Now a group of letters recently uncovered in the Russian archives at Moscow prove that at least one early American hero suffered from just those politics.

It is revealed that John Paul Jones, after building up something of a reputation in the American revolution, accepted a place with the Russian navy in the Black Sea, as Rear Admiral. His position there was characterized by several highly successful attacks on the Turkish fleet. The Prince of Nassau Siegen, however, a Russian officer of equal rank with Jones, fled from battle but returned when the affair was won, and turned in a glowing report with his own performance the chief factor in the victory. Jones' modest report failed to satisfy the demand of the Russian people for brilliant victories. A treacherous intrigue by the officers under Jones and an angry message from Jones to Catherine's chief minister, Potemkin, added to Jones' disrepute in the Russian court. A short while later he was forced to give up his command, a victim of Russian political intrigue. No wonder Americans to this day are a bit chary of European political tangles.

Poems That Live

Portrait

There is a living peace within these woods,
A darkness and a quiet; and there seems
A presence brooding over all its streams,
A presence that above its cedars broods.
And sound is in the silence—the long sound
Of sweeping cedar-boughs! a sudden fall
Of unseen waters; or a bird's sharp call;
While secret rivers murmur underground.

And toward the lake fed by the forest springs,
Singly at nightfall shy, wild creatures go;
Over the fern, across the rocky weir,
Seeking again deep waters that they know,
Swiftly they pass, the furred and winged things;
Eagle and osprey, panther and spotted deer.

CONSIDERATION

Love me long and love me often,
For we'll both be in our coffin
Pretty soon.
The time's too nice to last,
The die will soon be cast—
Then we'll live all in our past,
Pretty soon.

In the smooth pink-tinted face
Wrinkles then will take their place
Pretty soon.
And the fun we may have had
Tho' it oft has made us sad,
God will not consider bad
Pretty soon.

So you've got to pick your man,
And the best man that you can
Pretty soon.
And if you will but now choose me,
Lonesome, long we two shan't be,
For we'll change to say "we three"
Pretty soon.

Then we'll understand love's passion,
Whatever be its fashion,
For to spoon.
So let us be together
As tho' bound with thongs of leather—
Through any kind of weather,
Night or noon.

Then be it hell or be it heaven
(Damn that clock—'twill strike eleven
Pretty soon).
You will love me long and often
And our bodies in the coffin
Still in love, will begin to soften
Pretty soon.

HORRID LAUGHTER

Just as the first of the three men started to read the precious manuscript an airplane soared overhead. The trio looked up, startled, and beheld a bomb bearing down on them!

"Jump for your lives!"

But alas, they were too late and the muffled explosion of the bomb furnished color for a scene that included divers arms, legs, knees and torsoes being tossed through spoce.

Prissy slipped out of bed, in another part of the city, doffed her pajamas and yawned prettily as she admired her own supple beauty. Then she hurriedly dressed, for this was the day of days. Today she planned on eloping with Tom, going to nearby West Liberty, tying the knot, and then perchance to heaven.

Tom's car was now outside and she made haste, humming snatches of Bromo's new song hit as she dressed. She trotted down the stairs.

Tom helped her in the car and then, hesitating, got out of the machine to see if he had plenty of gas.

Too late, too late!

The landlady had come to the door and was calling.

"Prissy, darling, here's a long distance phone call for you."

Prissy returned to the house, was gone a minute, and then called from the door.

"Tom, it's all off I can't go."

She was highly excited, tears streamed down her rosy cheeks, and she trembled.

Slamming the door, without a word of explanation, she darted upstairs, where she fell on the bed, her young body shaking as she sobbed.

Tom stood beside his car, hat in hand, deeply perplexed.

Pathologist Brings New Charge Against "Petting"

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 1, (AP) — A new charge against "petting parties" has been brought by Dr. Allan J. Smith, professor of pathology at the University of Pennsylvania.

These occasions, he contends, probably are one of the important methods of spreading pyorrhea, particularly the type known as "trench mouth", introduced during the war and becoming an increasing cause of infection.

Dr. Smith's statements were based upon research conducted by his associate, Dr. M. T. Barrett, instructor in oral pathology, at the university. Dr. Barrett said that while before the war bacterial infection caused not more than 3 or 4 per cent of the pyorrheal infections, at present at least 25 per cent is due to the germ causing "trench mouth."

A small percentage of pyorrhea also is caused by another type of bacteria, known as streptococcus vincente, but the majority of it still is caused by a kind of amoeba, he said.

Dr. Smith and Dr. Barrett agreed that pyorrheal conditions of the mouth could be removed through proper treatment.

Probe Religious Feeling

In an attempt to ascertain the attitude of students at the University of Colorado on religious questions, the University Committee on Religious Education is sending two hundred and fifty questionnares to representative men and women on the campus.

As many different approaches as possible are used to reach those students who, although not interested in religion as such, are interested in the broader phases of religion. The survey is being conducted among only a limited number of students, and for that reason is more significant than one carried out among all the students at random.

Minnesota on the Air

The University of Minnesota spoke to the world in eight different languages last Saturday night.

From 10:15 to 11:30, the time allotted to the University by the Gold Medal studio in the international radio tests which were conducted from Jan. 24 to 30, eight members of the faculty spoke to nations all over the world with one-minute greetings over the radio.

"Pull" Sigma Nu Pledge

A burly policeman from the Hyde Park district picked up what he termed "a very interesting specimen" early last Saturday morning. He professed to be a Freshman at Chicago and a pledge of Sigma Nu fraternitf but failed to convince the husky Irishman that he was such.

He was found behind the Cocanut Grove cabaret picking up cigaret butts and insisted that he had to find three gallons of them before daybreak. Not having shaved for a week and dressed very unconventionally the copper called a "paddy wagon" and took Charles VanPelt to the Woodlawn police station.

Front Row "A"s

That students who elect to sit in the front rows of a classroom are on the average better students than those who sit in the rear rows, is shown by statistics compiled after the first examination in the beginning course in geography at Minnesota. Of those sitting in the four front rows, 25 per cent received grades of A and B, 50 per cent received C, and 25 per cent D and F. In the four rear rows, only 16 per cent received A and B, while 39 per cent got D's and F's.

4500 at Kansas

The total enrollment for Kansas Friday stood at 4484, according to George O. Foster, registrar. Three hundred and two new students have entered the University this semester.

Mr. Foster said that he expected the enrollment to reach 4500 by Monday. With the 1000 students that usually attend the summer session, the enrollment for the year will be about 5500. At the same time last year the enrollment stood at 4156. The enrollment this year has increased by a total of 328 over that of last year. Late registration and enrollment fees of $5 are now in effect, according to Mr. Foster. Late enrollments and changes in enrollment in the college were made in Robinson gymnasium Saturday moring, Jan. 30, from 9 to 12.

Farm by Correspondence

A correspondence course in farm accounts and farm management is now being directed from the Minnesota University farm by W. L. Cavert, a specialist with the agricultural extension division.

Five hundred men and women on farms, most of them living on farms in Minnesota, but others from states as remote as Kansas and Montana, have enrolled in the courses.

The course is being given particularly for actual farmers and consists of six lessons so planned that the student can learn to keep satisfactory records of his farm business.

Current Comment

A CHAMPION ARISES
(San Francisco Chronicle)

In Philadelphia the other day a woman was arraigned in the police court charged by another of her sex with having said that anyone who would wear such short skirts and bobbed hair would leave the supper dishes unwashed to hurry to a cabaret.

This attack upon two valuable contributions to civilization shocked the Judge. He denounced the ancient fashion of skirts that trailed in the dust and expressed regret that he could not send the defendant to the ducking stool or sentence her to wear a hoopskirt until she appreciated the advantages of the present mode. Unable to do either, he held her under $500 bonds to keep the peace and speak no more evil against those who follow up-to-date styles.

From which we may draw the conclusion that Philadelphia is not so slow as we have been led to believe.

DE PROFUNDIS
(The Annual Exam Edit., in the Columbia Spectator)

This is a very melancholy occasion. The Campus wears an air of desolation. The squirrels on the Green have suspended their animation and are belatedly scurrying from the deluge. Mournful ejaculation of "welladay and "alack" ascend from the midnight cloister. It is all rather sad.

The proctors have exhumed their traditional cere-cloths, and swathed in mortuary folds, are softly pacing the unburied ranks in the Gymnasium. The mysterious tutelary spirit (gaunt spectre of the undergraduate nightmare) has emerged from his hibernation and once more tolls the bell and gloomily makes unintelligible annoucements. With a curious unanimity, all the sparrows of the city have abandoned the great open spaces and are now chirping and wrangling in their peculiar manner over the brooding aisles. It is significant that none of these sparrows has ever been found in the Gym except during the periods of inquisition. They are doubtless imported for the occasion by the sprightly overseers to tantalize the troubled multitude with a bright version of liberty. It is all rather sad.

The Columbia undergraduate i[s] strangely perturbed. A cup of coffee in hand and a library in hi[s] wake, he trundles dismally alon[g] his appointed orbit. And as h[e] passes, the foul Eumenides twea[k] his dank locks. When he falls b[y] the wayside they smear his gau[nt] frame with thick and slab sepulchral ointments, gleefully telling h[is] ribs as they ply their fiendish tas[k]. Let us shudder and shamble o[n]wards.

At such an hour the curious arc[h]itecture of University Hall a[s]sumes a terrible significance; [its] resemblance to a ferry-boat [has] now a gruesome appropriateness. [We] feel certain that it was intende[d to] symbolize the barge of Ch[aron] carrying its freight to the Sty[gian] shore. We are too dejected eve[n to] mutter malediction on the hea[d of] the architect possessed of [a] ghastly sense of humor. It is rather sad.

We will go forth and buy [a] derby and cane so that we too [may] look like an undertaker. The d[ays] await us. Pathetic elegies persis[t] recurring to us:

"He sobbed and he sighed and [a] gurgle he gave,
Then he threw himself into [the] billowy wave,
And an echo arose from [the] suicide's grave—
'Oh willow, titwillow, ti[twil]low!'"

It is all rather sad.

House Votes on Agricultural Bill

Magee Wants Record Vote on Jones' Amendment

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 — After spending the better part of last week in general debate on the annual agricultural appropriation bill, the house in five hours today completed its consideration and will vote on it tomorrow.

Before the final vote, however, Representative Magee, republican, N. Y., who headed the appropriations subcommittee that drafted the bill is expected to demand a record vote on an amendment by Representative Jones, democrat, Texas, which as adopted today placed in the bill an item of $200,000 for distribution of books on diseases of horses and cattle. Mr. Magee opposed the amendment, contending that there were already 140,000 such books piled up in a government folding room accumulating dust.

The amendment was adopted ninety-four to seventy-seven with democrats voting for it virtually solidly and a number of Republicans joining in. Many republicans were absent, however, and for this reason, a new vote is expected.

The only other amendment accepted today was one brought in by the appropriations committee to increase from $1,741,000 to $1,773,723 the amount for expenses of the weather bureau in collecting and disseminating information.

Congress Begins Trust Investigation

Ward Food Products Threatens as New Combination

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1—Moves looking to broad investigations of combination and trusts were made today in both the Senate and House as a result of the announcement of the formation of a huge Ward Food Products corporation to deal in bread and bakery products.

In asking for action by the judiciary committee on his resolution propsing a sweeping inquiry, Senator King, (dem., Utah), assailed President Coolidge and the investigating agencies of the administration in a vigorous speech in the Senate.

The Senator declared that while combinations which "must destroy the economic and industrial life of the country" are being formed, the department of justice is "sleeping"; the Federal Trade Commission is "impotent" and President Coolidge has pronounced "his benediction."

Another result of the Ward announcement was to delay Senate action on the renomination of Charles W. Hunt, of Iowa, as a member of the Federal Trade commission. At the request of Senator King, the nomination went over until two days after the passage of the tax bill.

Vespers to Answer Problem of Future

Mrs. R. H. Volland Will Discuss Niche for College Women

The niche that college-educated woman will fill when she leaves school and enters the community she has chosen will be the subject presented by Mrs. R. H. Volland at the regular Wednesday afternoon vesper service, Feb. 3.

One of a series of talks answering the college girl's question of "After College—What?" from the viewpoints of graduates who are particularly noted in their own fields of work, this subject will cover the case of almost any girl in almost any community. It is more general than the other talks which deal more with particular cases and occupations.

Mrs. Volland is a prominent clubwoman of Iowa City.

Woman Disguises Self as Man for Thirty Years

MASON CITY, Feb. 1 (AP) — Dr. M. V. Mayfield, of Mena, Ark., was disguised successfully as a man for more than thirty years, only to have her ruse broken when she became ill and required the attention of a nurse, is believed to have conducted a sanitarium here, claiming to have a cure for cancer in a secret paste she used.

Pioneer residents of the city recall her eccentricities, especially the oddness of her dress. Much of the time she wore a tall hat of the "stovepipe" variety, a frock coat and carried a cane.

"It was not generally known that the doctor was a woman," one of those who remembered her said, "until it was learned that at times she had hysterical attacks during which she displayed womanly characteristics, unmistakably.

"Her success here for several years was marked, for patients came long distances to be treated. At one time a local woman of some wealth was in partnership with her."

None seemed to remember just why the doctor left here but it is thought she went directly to Mena, when she left here in 1894.

Police Attempt to Trace Pistol Used in Double Murder

KENOSHA, Wis., Feb. 1 (AP)—An attempt to trace a pistol which Ewald Miller, who is held by the police in connection with the death of James Sears, and Madlynne Latimer, is said to have been sold two days before the bodies were found on the morning of Oct. 14, occoupied the attention of the police tonight.

Miller was picked up and detained early today on the strength of a story told city and county police officials by Mrs. Miller regarding her husband's actions about the time Sears and the Latimer girl were killed.

Mrs. Miller told the authorities that her husband knew of the slaying before the two bodies had been found. The earliest record the police have of notification that some one had been killed was 10 a. m. on Oct. 15. Mrs. Miller declared today that her husband had related the facts of the killing to her before 8:30 a. m. on Oct. 15.

Iowa Joins Fight on Rate Increase

Five Per Cent Hike on Freight Arouses Farmer's Ire

(By The Associated Press)

DES MOINES, Feb. 1 — Iowa will submit a joint brief with other western states, in the action of western carriers to obtain a five per cent increase in freight rates, now pending before the Interstate Commerce commission.

This was learned Saturday, thru Neil Garrett, assistant attorney general, who with Judge Henderson, commerce counsel, represented the state at the Interstate Commerce hearings concluded last week at Kansas City.

Oral arguments will follow the submission of briefs, but this phase of the case, in which Iowa will also have a part, will not open until May or June at the earliest, Mr. Garrett indicated. Fixing of March 8 as the time limit for filing of briefs by the carriers, April 3 for the reply by the twenty-six states opposing the rate boost and April 24 as the date when the carriers' reply must be in precludes possibility of an earlier argument.

The assistant attorney does not expect a decision from the Interstate Commerce Commission before next fall, in view of the extent of evidence developed by hearings in the investigation and the mass of Kansas City, St. Paul, San Francisco, Chicago, Dallas, and Denver.

Another Rescue on Rough Atlantic

Crew on Dutch Ship Saved; 15th Call for Help

(By The Associated Press)

NESW YORK, Feb. 1—The wireless raised its voice today above its week-long chorus of distress to tell of another rescue from the Atlantic's unleased gale.

It sputtered a brief dozen words into the Hamburg-American offices from Capt. Carl Graalfs, of the liner Wesphalia, saying he had saved the officers and crew of the Dutch freighter, Alkaid.

"Crew of Alkaid taken aboard," he said. "All well. To proceed to New York."

15th Call for Help

The now familiar refrain of distress was immediately resumed, telling today of one more ship floundering and another sixteen days overdue and lost. It was he fifteenth repetition of that refrain since the gale began eight days ago.

The Westphalia came alongside the distressed Alkaid this morning about 1,000 miles off the coast of Newfoundland. The freighter had about twenty men aboard, as far as could be learned here. She was bound from Rotterdam to Philadelphia.

The Westphalia, carrying 248 passengers, was due today, but is not expected now until Thursday or Friday.

Ryburn Lost

The missing ship which figured in today's messages is the British freighter Ryburn, which left Rotterdam.

An appeal was broadcast to ships at sea, asking if they had sighted her during the storm. She had thirty-two officers and men aboard. In response to another message the liner West Inskp, had put about and was hurrying to the aid of the Johanne Dybwaid, but was 117 miles away and fighting heavy seas.

The Johanna Dybwaid called for help from mid Atlantic, where she said she had been "badly smashed" by the storm. She was bound from Barry England to Boston.

Japs Taught Etiquette by Motion Pictures

TOKYO, Feb. 1 (AP)—The Japanese are to be taught etiquette by means of moving pictures. Officials of the department of education are planning to launch a cinema campaign of instruction next Spring.

A committee composed of twenty leading educators will adopt standards of social etiquette which they believe should be taught the public and which they consider has been somewhat neglected in Japan because the emphasis of education has been placed on family rank rather than upon social contacts.

Miss Estella Zimmerman and Miss Elizabeth Cotton of the Band Box hat shop have just returned from a week's visit in the eastern markets.

Mr. Hylan Will Receive $4,215 Annual Pension

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (AP)—The board of estimates today voted an annual pension of $4,215 to former mayor John F. Hylan, to be paid during the remainder of his or Mrs. Hylan's life. The award was made in accordance with the city regulations covering pensions to its employes.

Mr. Hylan resigned the mayoralty on December 31, a few hours before his term expired, thus making his retirement voluntary. This entitles him to a pension.

Mother Poisons Candy Sent to Daughter's Suitor

CHICAGO, Feb. 1 (AP)—A mother's dread of losing her only daughter by marriage was attributed today as a motive that nearly caused the deaths of five persons by poisoned candy. Postal inspectors asked district Attorney Olson to issued warrants for the arrest of Mrs. Fannie Weldon, 44 whose daughter, Thelma, is engaged to wed Edwin L. Briggs.

A box of candy covered with a silk handkerchief and accompanied by a card, inscribed "To Ed" was received by Briggs Dec. 28. Briggs and several girls in his office tasted the candy and were ill for several days.

Analysis showed the candy contained poison and ground glass. Mrs. Weldon denied knowledge of the matter. Reports of handwriting experts who examined the card convinced the postal inspectors who then took their case to the district attorney.

Bachelor Girls Enjoy Happiness and Comfort in Their New Life

The nineteenth century witnessed the emancipation of the slaves but the twentieth century has marked an even greater step toward liberty by freeing the old maid. All through history these unfortunate damsels overlooked by the crass youth of the community, were relegated to the homes of their more fortunate sisters where they led the cheerful existence of household drudges, targets for the family wit, and despised chaperons for the younger generation.

Now the spinsters have even cast off that deplorable title "old maid", and have taken their places n the business world as "bachelor girls". The very name makes a world of difference. It implies a cynical indifference to marriage rather than a wistful envy of those who have attained the beatific state of matrimony. It gives single girls the privilege of "living at the club", holding office positions, and enjoying life in the same way that the "bachelor boys" do.

Increasing independence and the ability to earn a comfortable living are making the young woman of today less interested in matrimony. She no longer feels the necessity of securing a husband as a refuge and a guarantee of life protection. The "bachelor girl" can very well take care of herself. In spite of the sentimental stories where a business woman envies her married sister with ten children and a bad-tempered husband, such characters exist only in books. In real life, the spinster appreciates her luck.

The critical males who stand off watching sister try her wings and expecting a tumble, might be surprised if they apreciated that women thus far have made better use of their freedom than men. They use their independance to organize public service societies such as the Red Cross. They better the conditions of the poor and the sick who were entirely ignored by lordly man in his despotic rule. As yet they have engaged in no wars nor have they made any efforts toward territorial conquest which the men so enjoyed.

Married people console themselves for their own lack of judgment generally by lingering with pathos of lonliness of spinsters. But single people are no longer lonely. They belong to clubs, entertain in their apartments and attend the best shows. They prefer to spend their money for real entertainment rather than to spend it on the upkeep of a household whose entertainment may be of an uncertain quality.

Another fallacy which has been disproved recently is the one that old maids shrivel and "crabby" looking with age. The modern bachelor girl has found the fountain of youth in the beauty shop. She is not wrinkled or tight-lipped, for she has had her face lifted. It is her married sister who has sagging lips and a furrowed brow. It might as well be admitted that many so-called happy wives who run down the state of single blessedness are only suffering from the "sour grapes" hallucination.

Report Shows Low Iowa Coal Out-Put

Industrial Commission Produces Facts on Coal Situation

(By The Associated Press)

AMES, Feb. 1 — Less than one third of the coal consumed in Iowa at the present time is produced in Iowa mines, it was revealed here Saturday at a meeting of the state industrial and agricultural commission.

The commission heard a report of a subcommittee appointed several weeks ago to investigate coal conditions here.

Cross hauling, high freight rates, and other industrial evils in connection with the coal problem and industry were discussed. A solution ot these problems was sought at Saturday's meeting.

"The committee believes that at least 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 more tons of Iowa coal should be consumed each year by Iowa industry," J. G. Mitchell, secretary, of Des Moines, said. "Many furnaces are using foreign coal, shipped in from other states, when Iowa coal is easily adapted to their needs, cheaper and more available."

Iowa State college professors were criticized with regard to many of the mechanical and engineering difficulties encountered in the committee's investigation.

Price of Gasoline Starts Climbing Higher Than Ever

Sinclair Refining Announces New Price Raise

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 1—The pendulum of gasoline prices which swung downward from August to November of last year, and then started upward again, started to climb higher today, when the Sinclair Refining company announced an increase of one half a cent a gallon in railroad tank car lots at New York, Philadelphia and Atlantic coast terminals. The new tank car price as twelve cents a gallon.

The announcement of higher gasoline prices by Sinclair Refining came within a few hours of an advance of twenty-five cents a barrel in midcontinental crude by the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company, in which several other companies joined later in the day. Higher crude oil prices were regarded inevitable because of the premiums being paid in the midcontinental field by purchasers in need of oil, and the steady increase in crude production during the last few months.

The American Petroleum Institute reported a decrease of 162,200 barrels in the daily average of gross crude oil production in the week ended Jan. 16, bringing the total to 1,947,600 barrels, the lowest since last April.

Green Lights Used in Movies Because Shadows Aren't Black

Why the ghastly green lights?

The question has been asked by every woman and many of the men who have visited motion picture studios. Lips seem black, rouge makes the cheeks look dirty, skin blemishes are exaggerated, vanity vanishes.

The Reason Why

Here's the reason! It is because shadows are not black.

Sounds complicated, doesn't it? Further details may be helpful. They date back to the early days of the industry when artificial lights were first used and motion picture directors thought the light should come from one direction like sunlight. The shadows were inky. The pictures were blotched with black. It was some time later that they discovered sunlight doesn't come from one direction. It is everywhere. It reflects out of the air, making shadows gray. So the films went in for gray shadows.

Imitate Sunlight

The problem was to fill the air with light similar to sunlight. Experiments showed that in the spectrum, deep red photographed black, and that as the shades progressed from orange, yellow, yellow green, green and blue green the photographic tints became lighter until blue photographed almost white. Violet photographed somewhat darker. Then they tried violet lights. They are nothing but Cooper-Hewitt mercury tubes. They flood a setting with a light that will photograph gray, with no shadows. To make a picture interesting they point white hard lights into this gray picture making gray shadows where they want them, emphasizing whatever they think should be emphasized to make the picture dramatically or pictorially interesting.

Study Combinations

X-ray experimenters have made this process possible. They have proved that beyond a certain depth violet rays are invisible to the eye. The camera will record them, however. Cameramen are constantly studying the effect of light combinations. Colored filters are put in front of some lights and in front of camera lenses to secure new effects. Tints are being used in the finished film.

One of the foremost experimenters along this line is Harry Fishbeck, who lighted "Monsieur Beaucaire," Rudolph Valentino's picture for Paramount, and is soon to do the lighting for D. W. Griffith's production, "The Sorrows of Satan." In this picture fifteen lighting effects that have never before been attempted will be introduced. The preliminary experiments have been underway for more than two months at the Long Island studio.

Asia Now Leading in Importing to U.S.

Great Britain Still Best Customer of America

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 — Asia has sprung to the front as a contributor to the import trade of the United States, it was shown today in the commerce department final accounting for 1925.

The explanation is the effective working of the rubber monopoly, although a contributing factor is the raw silk trade originating in Japan.

Asia Replaces Europe

In the past, normal trade figures have disclosed Europe as the greatest single source of imports to the United States, but last year's return gave Asia's figures as $1,319,771,147 out of a total of imports into the United States from all the world of $4,227,995,091.

Among the nations great Britain held its usual place as the leading customer of the United States taking $1,031,876,748 in exports while Canada was in second place with $650,762,508.

Russia Advances

Russia showed a sharp advance in its proportionate consumption of exports from the United States, the value being $68,195,686 against $41,314,355 in 1924.

Among the individual countries furnishing imports to the United States, Canada ranked first with a 1925 total of $454,762,560, and Great Britain second with $412,315,859. Fourth place went to the straits settlements, the great rubber exporting point where the figures were $313,940,948 against $147,633,725. in 1924.

Farm Difficulties 5,000 Years Old — Knappe

"Bias is the only obstacle in the way of race amalgamation. When the time and conditions are right, strong racial lines will disappear," said Prof. William J. Knappe, president of Wartburg college, at a Lutheran rally Sunday evening.

In his address "The Problems of Modern Syncretism" he traced architecture and music and said that the modern tendencies are only a mixture of those of history. He declared that the difficulties of the farmer are 5,000 years old, the difference being that now the farmers deal in corn and hogs; then, they dealt in wheat and dates.

No Law Jubilee, Decision of Faculty statement to the Iowan office last night. It embodies the sentiment of the faculty and explains their reasons for barring the annual production.

Dean Jones' Statement

"This action taken by the law faculty has no punitive basis or purpose. No one on the law faculty believes that the Law Jubilee, if given in 1926, would be offensive or in bad taste. There is no higher-minded or more studious group on the campus than the law students.

"My own opinion is that a production demanding the time, thought and effort, necessarily expended on a public performance like the Law Jubilee is undesirable in a professional college having the standards and ideals of the college of law. The college of law is in the main a graduate school. Its students average twenty-four years of age. No one is admitted to the school who has not completed two years of college work and the large majority of those now enrolled have spent either three or four years in the College of Liberal Arts of the University of Iowa or in some other institution before commencing law study. They are as able and efficient a law student body as that found in any State university in America.

"In my opinion the Law Jubilee is not compatible in the long run, with the best interests of the law school."

Bebe Daniels, Not Seriously Injured, Back on the Lot

Bebe Daniels is back on the set at the Lasky studio, Hollywood, following a minor injury, while making a scene for "Miss Brewster's Millions." First reports that the star had been seriously hurt and was suffering from a concussion of the brain were incorrect.

It was a lion's tail which proved to be Miss Daniels' nemesis. During the making on one scene the star was riding a bicycle. She had grabbed hold of the tail of a lion, which was riding on a truck ahead, to provide motive power. The speed of the truck caused her to catapult over the handle bars and in the tumble she split one finger. She was unconscious for three minutes, and while the injury was painful it was not serious. No report could be had on the lion.

Luncheon Draws 40 Women; Plan Regular Meetings

More than forty women representing both town and gown met at Youde's Inn yesterday for the first League of Women Voters luncheon. After introductory speeches by Mrs. J. J. Van der Zee and Dr. Zella White Stewart on the purposes of the luncheon club, Mrs. Mabel Evans, County probation officer, led a discussion on some problems of law enforcement.

So much interest was evinced at the meeting that it was decided to make the luncheon a monthly event, the membership being limited to fifty. In the forum following the luncheon March 1, another problem of interest to voters will be brought up for discussion.

Munyon Attacks Forced Military Training Classes

Prejudices Individual for War, Asserts Minister

"Military training should at least be made elective if it is to be in harmony with Christianity and world peace," said the Rev. LeRoy Munyon as he delivered a sermon from the pulpit of the Christian church Sunday night.

"Consciously or unconsciously, military training insinuates into the mind of the individual a prejudice to rthe institution of war. Psychology teaches us that he is bound to absorb some of the spirit of the thing."

As Others See Us

The Rev. Mr. Munyon pictured the United States as it looked through the eyes of other nations—the biggest and most powerful country of the world refusing even to join discussions aimed toward world peace; a nation that trained its youth for war as did Germany not so long ago.

The sermon, dedicated to the interests of a world peace, was based on the topic, "He that taketh the sword shall perish by the sword." It was pointed out that every nation that had gained greatness through the use of the sword had perished by the same medium.

"Since the beginning of Christianity there have been men, like the Friends, who dreamed of a world peace. Conditions are now the best they have ever been for ushering in the era of perpetual peace and good will. If it is necessary for war to be, then all progress of the past amounts to nothing."

Fear Brings Preparedness

"Preparedness is based on the psychology of fear—pacifism is founded on good will."

"The time will come when, as Woodrow Wilson said, nations will be too proud to fight. When the church takes Jesus Christ at His word, when the scientist brings his contributions and places them before the altar of peace, when education cuts away from the past and builds for peace, then a universal peace will be made possible."

Troop A Schedules Mail Rifle Matches

The local men are practicing every day now in preparation for the coming matches, under Lieut. Sam Wilson.

Unite in Approval of County Road Surfacing Project

Symposium Brings Out Stand on Improvement

Farmers, lawyers, business men, women, all are expressing their approval of the good roads proposition to be voted on in Johnson county on Feb. 9.

Sam Hunter, a farmer living a mile and a half east of Iowa City on Primary 7, is for it. He owns 206 acres of land, all of which will come under the special paving assessment if the good roads proposition is accepted by the people of the county. He says, "I'm for it, first, last, and always. When are you going to get in this mud, and where are you going to get when it freezes up?"

Present Roads a Boost

John Dwyer, another farmer living on Primary 7 who will be assessed on 320 acres of land, says, "I know of no better boost for good roads than to see all the cars stuck in the mud these days. They all say they are for good roads. Even the ducks are wearing rubber boots." Mr. Dwyer will pay twenty cents per acre per year for ten years on his 320-acre farm. He said he believed that the present bad condition of the roads was the biggest boost the good roads proposition could possibly get.

Walter M. Davis, an Iowa City attorney says, "I'm for this proposition they have up now because it looks like a feasible plan for improving our present road conditions without imposing any serious burden upon the taxpayers."

Women Approve

Mrs. George W. Ball, who, with Mrs. C. E. Seashore has charge of campaigning in the second ward, says, "The women of this city are doing all they can for it. They are organizing wards, making a house-to-house canvass, taking care of sick and absent voters, and doing everything possible to help put over the program."

Judge O. A. Byington, attorney and president of the Citizens Savings and Trust company, says, "I'm for it wholeheartedly. I think it is a good policy and we'll get the roads at a very slight increase in expense and very slight increase in taxation. Altogether, it is a very good proposition. I hope it will be supported by the people generally."

Asset to Community

Ed Koser, groceryman and mayor of Coralville, says, "The paving of Primary 7 west from Iowa City to Coralville and West Lucas has been an asset to this community where the people can use their cars 365 days of each year without the use of chains at any time, and also at a saving of one-third cost on gasoline and wear and tear on machine and tires.

"I would say that no person along this improvement would want it removed from in front of their property and have their twelve and a half per cent returned to them. One of the best investments that property owners have ever made was when they paid their assessment.

Up for Speeding

William Adrian will appear before Mayor J. J. Carroll today on a charge of driving thirty-eight miles an hour on Dubuque street last night. Adrian posted an appearance bond of $8.

Attorney-General Rules on Status After '25 Census

Effective With Filing of Certificates of Population

(By The Associated Press)

DES MOINES, Feb. 1—Iowa City today officially becomes a city of the first class in Iowa, according to a ruling made by Attorney General Ben J. Gibson in an opinion which states that the change in status takes place from the time of filing the certificates and abstracts of the recent census with the secretary of state.

To make the change in status of the places mentioned effective, Lou Morgans, director of census, immediately field all certificates and abstracts of the census with C. Ramsey, secretary of state.

Lists filed by Mr. Morgans include the new census figures for all cities, town and villages in Iowa. Although census figures on all these were made public several weeks ago, the change in status did not become effective until a ruling was forthcoming from the attorney general as to the time, as provided by the statutes. Mr. Gibson held that the act of filing should be a simultaneous event for all of the places named in the census.

Increase in the number of councilmen and school directors this year in the places given new status will, by the filing of the certificates today, become effective this year.

Firemen Answer 2 Calls to Small Fires

Beginning the first day of February with two fires, the local fire department went to the Carl Gaulocker residence, 904 Dodge street, at 8 a. m. yesterday where they extinguished a small blaze that had been started from clothing left on a chair against the stove.

At 8 p. m. they answered another call at the Phi Kappa Rho fraternity house 200 S. Summit street, where sparks from the chimney caused a small blaze, but little or no damage. This is the second fire at that fraternity within three weeks.

Autoist Runs Down Man Riding Bicycle

Russell Srahme reported to the police station yesterday that he ran down with his car a man on a bicycle at the corner of Iowa avenue and Linn street yesterday afternoon. The cyclist, whose identity was not learned, was not thought to be seriously injured, though he went home on crutches.

Victims of Raids Get Continuances; 4 Fined on Disturbance Charge

Caught in booze raids Saturday night, Urban Jacqult, Laird Plummer, Anthony and Thomas Carney, were arraigned before Mayor J. J. Carroll, ex-officio justice of the peace yesterday, on charges of violation of the liquor laws, and their cases continued to Saturday. It is expected they will be held for the grand jury at that time.

Plummer was charged with bootlegging, the Carney brothers with illegal transportation of liquor, and Jacqult with maintaining a liquor nuisance. They were held under bonds of $1,000 and went to the county jail until the bail can be raised.

Plummer was the first man arrested, shortly before 10 p. m. Saturday. He paid a fine of $3.95 on a charge of disturbance of the peace at a hearing before Mayor Carroll Sunday morning. Thomas Carney was also fined on a peace disturbance charge. He paid $17.95 and his brother Anthony paid $12.95 for reckless driving. Jacqult was not fined.

Others arrested Saturday night and tried yesterday morning were George Verchaticky, disturbing the peace, fined $9.95; Al Manard, disturbing the peace, fined $17.95; Charles W. Crowe, driving without a muffler on his car, fined $3.95.

G. C. Jones, C. J. Hartmen, and G. W. Anderson, who were also picked up Saturday night and held for disturbing the peace, did not appear for hearing and forfeited $15 bonds.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Herrick left yesterday for Chicago where they will attend the annual spring style show. They will also visit in Cleveland, O.

Ingwersen Issues First Call for Spring Football Practice

Expect Large Squad for Opening Drills

Letters Sent to 500 Former High School Grid Stars Urging Them to Come Out

Five hundred freshmen and sophomore Iowa men who have had experience in high school football, have received letters from Coach B. A. Ingwersen, asking them to report for the first meeting of the year which will be held at 4:15 p. m. this afternoon in the men's gym. All varsity players of last fall have been asked to be on hand then, also.

Registration cards, showing participation in high school athletes, were carefully culled and the men who indicated that high school football experience was among their achievements were listed.

At the meeting this afternoon, it will be decided when further gatherings will be held. It is likely that three meetings a week will be the rule, said Coach Ingwersen.

An opportunity to learn the fundamentals of the game, as well as to win a numeral this spring, is offered to the freshmen and sophomores. Spring drills will go forward with more vigor than has ever been the case before at the University and the response of the men, who wish to keep Iowa football on a par with that of other conference universities must to more wide-spread that it has been in the past.

This is the letter which Coach Ingwersen sent out:

"Your University registration card shows that you have played football in high school. Any student with such experience in athletics should at least try to play football in the University.

Spring practice affords an opportunity for learning the fundamentals of the game. Moreover, the numeral is to be awarded at the close of this period just as is done in the fall. The date of Feb. 2, 4:15 p. m. Men's Gymnasium has been set for the first meeting. Will you be there as one of the available candidates for varsity football?

(Signed) B. A. Ingwersen.

Interfraternity Basket Ball Tournament Re-opens

Games will be resmued in the interfraternity basket ball tournament tonight at 7:30 in the men's gym.

The games to be played are: Theta Xi vs. Chi Delta Psi at 7:30 o'clock; Acacia vs. Xi Psi Phi at 8:00 o'clock.

College Football Professional, Says Tennis Champion

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 1 (AP)—College football is a professional sport and the players might as well be paid, in the opinion of William T. Tilden, II, tennis champion, is expressed today in an interview on the Harvard Crimson. Tilden deplored what he termed over-emphasis of technicalities in maintaining amateur standing. Football, the tennis champion is quoted as saying, "commercializes the collective ability of players, although not the individual. Of course this money does not go to the player but it might just as well, for commercialism presents all the evils of professionalism. The same situation holds in the realm of tennis.

May Cancel High School Tank Meet

Small List of Entries Causes University Action

The state high school championship swimming meet scheduled for Friday and Saturday of this week in the University of Iowa pool will probably be cancelled.

Entries for the meet closed on Jan. 27 and the entry lists forwarded to the university authorities yesterday by George Brown, secretary of the state high school athletic association at Des Moines, contained only four team entries: Iowa City high, University high, Davenport high and East high of Des Moines.

Because of the small number of entries the university athletic officials immediately notified the secretary of the state association yesterday of their desire to cancel the meet and requested that he notify the schools entered of their action.

What action the state association will take is not known. It is possible that the meet may be held in Des Moines or perhaps postponed to be held at a later date here. This is the first meet of the kind sponsored by the state association, those in the past having been invitation meets held by the association or sponsored by the colleges in the state.

Initial Call for Fielders Answered by Small Turnout

Five Veterans Report; Eight New Men Also Answer Summons

After-effects of examination week and registration days are undoubtedly still in order as it was a small delegation of baseball material that sauntered intermittently into the large open space of the new armory during the course of a few hours yesterday afternoon.

Out of the group of thirteen men that reported to Coach Vogel, four were "I" men and one an "I-2" man. No plans were discussed by the coach at the initial turn-out because of the small number of men reporting. This afternoon the new candidates will spend their time at the men's gymnasium securing equipment, but will journey back to the armory Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock to join forces with the fifteen battery men that are now making bids for berths on the new team.

The majority of the pitchers who have reported were out yesterday and took a light workout, but the receivers have been neglecting the practice sessions and but one of the group showed up for duty at Monday's matinee. With the remainder of the squad reporting for practice on Wednesday afternoon the coach will expect the battery men to be regular in their workouts.

The present personnel of the squad is as follows:

Outfielders—Captain Flynn, McNabb, Sahs, Soeshe, and Seilhamer.

Infielders—Hoben, Smith, Gamble, Terry, Aahls, Burnam, Gibbs, and Hunter.

Pitchers—Adams, Peterson, Corbin Stegman, Palmer, Yepsen, McCord, Towne, Hollister, Maurer, and Murphy.

Catchers—Beardsley, Bolsinger, Keen, and Broders.

Cornhusker Quintet Trounces Ames 27-12

AMES, Feb. 1 (AP)—Scoring twelve points before the Iowa State scoring machine got into action and showing a better basket eye through out the game, Nebraska university defeated the Cyclones here 27 to 12 tonight, Ames was only able to muster eight points to the Cornhusker's 14 at the close of the first half. Smaha, Nebraska forward, contributed greatly to the "Husker" win, with five field goals. Miller, Ames guard, was the outstanding local player.

Swimmers Prepare for Chicago Meet

Maroons Bring Strong Aggregation to Iowa City

With the Chicago dual schedule for the local tank on Saturday afternoon of this week, Coach David A. Armbruster is driving his swimmers hard in preparation for the coming of the Maroons. The Chicagoans have exhibited much power in their previous meets this season and are expected to give the Hawkeyes plenty of opposition.

Tryouts for the Iowa team will take place Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock. The work this week will be devoted mostly to the improvement of sprinting form. The Hawkeye team has a promising layout of men in this event, and should be able to put forth a strong relay quartet.

In the dives Britton appears to be the most likely new prospect to aid Lutz. Both men need more drill, but will develop into a strong combination. Wilder, one of the Maroon springboard artists, was a freshman performer at Iowa two years ago.

The water pole team also seems to be rounding into form, but will get some powerful opposition from the visitors on Saturday. Water polo is a popular pastime on the Midway, and some classp performerse are turned out.

Bergstrom Reports for Track Drills

Stonebrook, Distance Man, Lost to Squad

With the addition of A. C. Bergstrom, half miler, to the squad and the declaration of the faculty of the reports concerning "Bab" Cuhel's eligibility, the stock of the Iowa track team took a considerable jump during the last few days. He was clocked under two minutes several times last year. Phil Taxman, who injured his leg last week, and Maurice Speers, who has been on the sick list, have also made their return to the squad.

One bit of gloom was cast over the situation, however, when it became known that Rollin K. Stonebrook, distance man, has left school. Stonebrook was a consistent performer in 1924, but illness kept him back last year. He also performed on the cross country teams for two years.

Coach Bresnahan will put his men through a week of strenuous drill with special emphasis on the pole vault and the jumps. The broad jump will be abolished in the Badger meet, there Feb. 13.

St. Mary's Triumph in Loose Contest

Defeat St. Joseph's of Waterloo in Slow Game, 25 to 12

St. Mary's high defeated the St. Joseph Academy team of Waterloo last night in the High school gym, 25 to 12 in a rather loosely played game.

Minus the services of the two veterans, Helmer and Bauer, Father Wagner's boys played a good brand of basket ball and had little difficulty in taking the visiting aggregation into camp.

With the first quarter ending 5 to 4 in favor of the locals, the game started out to be a nip and tuck battle. Shortly after the beginning of the second period, the locals offense swung into play and sank counter after counter for a 13 to 9 lead at half time.

In the third frame the St. Mary's defense tightened and held the visiting five scoreless, while Chudacek and Belger took turns in adding six more points giving the Blue and White team a 19 to 9 advantage. The final frame was slowed up somewhat by frequent substitutions, but Breman the star St. Joe forward managed to pierce the local defense for three points. For the Blue and White team, Chudacek and Belger each counted a field goal which completed the scoring for the evening.

Besides playing a brilliant game Chudacek and Belger divided the scoring honors of the evening with eleven points apiece. Bock's clever floor work and dribbling did much to help the locals in carrying the ball down the floor. For the visitors, Breman played a star game and accounted for seven of his team's twelve points.

Line-up and summary:

St. Mary's		Waterloo
Chudacek	R.F.	Breman (c)
Murray	L.F.	Dwyer
Belger (c)	C	Horan
Moravec	L.G.	Sims
Bock	R.G.	Henderson

Field goals—Chudacek 4, Belger 4, Breman 3, Sims 1, Horan 1.

Free throws—Chudacek 3, Belger 3, Murray 1, Sims 1, Breman 1.

Substitutions—Wical for Murray, Scherer for Moravec, Ulrich for Dwyer, Dwyer for Ulrich, Ulrich for Breman, Breman for Horan.

Referee—O. W. Lawrence of Cornell.

Final Tryouts for Hawk-Husker Mat Meet Held Today

Wrestling fans were disappointed last night when they went to the gym to see the preliminaries of the tryouts for the Iowa-Nebraska meet. There were only two men entered in each class for the tryouts so the finals will be held this afternoon at 4:15. None of the men were declared ineligible, the first time in many years, according to Coach Howard.

The men who will wrestle in the finals are: Logan vs. Strubbe in the 125-pound class; Lentsmeier vs. Reis in the 145, and Beers vs. Grattan in the 158.

Fans may expect a treat in the 125 and 145-pound matches. In the tryouts for the Wisconsin match Logan crowded Strubbe all through the match. Whenever Beers and Grattan mix they stage a wonderful wrestling exhibition.

Weir, Montgomery, Voltmer and Yegge have no competition in their classes.

Catsup Consumption Falls 40 Per Cent

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 1 (AP) — Removing the catsup bottle from the restaurant table and placing it on the sideboard, to be produced only when it is asked for, has reduced the annual consumption of the viand approximately 40 per cent. This has been ascertained by the National Restaurant Association for presentation to its members at regional conferences which are held in various parts of the country about every two months.

The Hawk gym team resumed practice last night in preparation for the match with Minnesota Friday night. The meet will be here. Iowa's team may be weakened by ineligibility.

Minnesota has no fencing team so the Iowa swordsmen will not be able to display their skill.

St. Pat's Five Plays at Rapids Tomorrow

St. Patrick's cage stars returned to the basket ball court yesterday and were sent through a short scrimmage in preparation for their game with Immaculate Conception high school at Cedar Rapids tomorrow night. The forthcoming contest promises to force the Irish to the limit in order for them to keep their record free from defeat. Although the Cedar Rapids aggregation fell before them at Iowa City a few weeks ago, the score did not show that the Irish had any decided advantage over the parlor city boys, and with the game on a foreign floor, the teams will be evenly matched.

Kelleher and Glasgow were responsible for most of the baskets in last night's scrimmage and the guarding of the entire five continued to hold down the opposition.

New mats have been secured for the gymnasium and were placed behind the baskets to protect the players from the brick walls when the play is under the basket.

Helen Wills Annexes Gallia Tourney Final

CANNES, France, Feb. 1 (AP) — Helen Wills, American woman tennis chamion, emerged victorious today from her second Riviera tournament by defeating Mlle. Contoslavos, one of France's ranking stars, in the final round of the Gallia tourney, 6-3, 6-2.

Thus the California girl has met and defeated within the last two weeks, the best women players on the Riviera with the single exception of the great Suzanne Lenglen.

Pick a pipe and pack it with good old P. A.

TALK about "alliteration's artful aid" . . . the printer certainly raided the "p" box that trip. But let that go! The advice is just as serious and sound as though it were couched in the careful diction of an English prof.

Just get yourself a jimmy-pipe and fill the bowl to the brim with Prince Albert. Light up, and let the first fragrant whiff tell you that no other tobacco is like P. A.—or can be! Cool and sweet and fragrant, P. A. has everything a fellow ever wished for in a smoke.

P. A. can't bite your tongue or parch your throat. The Prince Albert process settled that in P. A.'s freshman year. Get yourself a tidy red tin of Prince Albert today. The first load-up will tell you why pipes are so fashionable among young men today.

PRINCE ALBERT
—no other tobacco is like it!

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.
