Flannel Teddies No Criterion of Girls' Morals, Say Iowa Men

Does the dress of the modern co-ed furnish a criterion for judging her moral status? A jury in a Michigan court room has decided that a girl's dress has nothing to do with her morals.
"Featherweight Dress"
Girls everywhere have altered the staid, conventional attire of their Victorian grandmothers and now wearing the flimsy, featherweight dress of the ancient Greeks. The human body has come into its own and is seldom clothed in flannels or petticoats.

It is pleasing to the modern athletic girl to hear such approval of her costume. When the physical culture faddists plead with them to leave off the superfluous clothing, and the uplift societies write bitter editorials against the morals of "our young" people because of these considerations, the co-ed is between the proverbial fire and frying pan.
But when their brothers of their own generation uphold them in the selection between healthy, active lives, and days spent in quiet misery, there is room for rejoicing. "No indeed," said Edward Flynn, L2 of Dennison, member of Phi Delta Theta, and of the varsity baseball team, "a girl should not be judged by her clothes. Men do not interpret short skirts, rolled hose, and low neck gowns as signs of moral degeneracy."

many opportunities to observe co-eds in their idle moments. "Girls do go to the extreme too often" he says, "but in general the apparel that a girl wears at a dance could not be said to be reflective on her character. However, I do not approve of all the fashions as followed by some girls."
"Broad-Minded Girls"
And there are those who would go even farther than that. "Clothes are very indicative of a girl's character. Figuratively speaking, as women get more broad-minded in their dress, their sense of ethical values becomes broader," said Milton Stebbins, Cms of Oelwein, and member of Delta Tau Delta. "Perhaps the Michigan jury issued the wrong verdict."
Grandma's Dress
But some would justify the girl. It has often been said that a "girl would rather be dead than out of style" and thus Harold Miller, (otherwise Skimmer), A4 of Mt. Pleasant, Phi Delta Theta, explains the prevalence of the modern mode of fashion. "You cannot judge a girl by her clothes. Girls dress alike. Their aim it not immorality but merely the following of a style. Can you imagine any average girl wearing the conventional style of party gown worn by her grandmother because she feared that in the modern dress she might be regarded as immoral?"

Aut Advertising Aut Nullus

The columns of this paper will be open for general advertising schedules with the issue dated Monday, April 5, 1926. Correspondence regarding appearance in that and succeeding issues should be addressed to the Director of Advertising, THE UNITED STATES DAILY, Washington.

THE above announcement tucked away in an inconspicuous corner of the new United States Daily for March 10 is a vigorous testimony to the essentiality of newspaper advertising, following as it does the March 5 ultimatum of "no editorials and no advertising." Not quite one week after the first issue of the latest national newspaper devoted to governmental affairs, The United States Daily found itself unable to cope with the demand for advertising.

The maiden issues of the new government newspaper masted by the slogan "All the Facts—No Opinion" were unconditionally drab. The United States Daily without advertising looked like a banquet without a tablecloth. Readers palled at the uncharming sixteen pages of unbroken news columns. There was an unmistakable tedium of type. Sans advertising announcements to break the serried monotony of news columns, The United States Daily was no better than the Congressional Record or the still more labored Circular of Parliament.

Behind this announcement lies a compelling economic truth: that advertising is news and no publication of importance can exist without it. As to the first, the growing volume of newspaper advertising is daily evidence that the reader regards advertising as news. Unprofitable ventures are short-lived, as The United States Daily bereft of advertisements attests. To Mrs. John Housekeeper advertising is at once a shopping list, a fashion guide, a market, and above all a reminder. Men see in advertising the trend of fashions, the encomiums for this or that tobacco, the announcements of automobile superiority, the publication of new books, things which are of vital interest. Small wonder that advertising is news, for it touches one's dinner-table, pocket book, taste in dress, or personal vanity in innumerable ways.

That no great publication can turn its back to advertising is no more clearly pointed out in that none ever have. Without advertising, the forty-page New York Times would be an unassuming twelve-page paper of the size of a prosperous country weekly, and the behemoth of The Chicago Sunday Tribune would be twenty-four mild pages, if advertising was absent. The subscription price of a city newspaper would be $25 a year, each issue would sell for ten cents a copy, and a daily newspaper would be as popular as The American Mercury with the common people.

Think what lifeless hebdomadal refreshment The Saturday Evening Post would present with no advertising. The paper alone in this magazine costs twelve cents an issue, while the printing of a 240-page copy would make the Post a fifty-cent instead of a five-cent publication. Fortunately few are of the convictions of James Gordon Bennett whose New York Herald accepted only small announcements on the condition that they run but one issue, that they contain no illustrations, and that cash accompany the order.

When newspapers of the character of The Christian Science Monitor cannot endure without advertising, when newspapers like The San Francisco Chronicle and The Boston Transcript print front-page advertisements, it is plain that advertising space is an integral and inseparable part of a newspaper. After so short a struggle as five days, The United States Daily must agree to the truth of this policy.

The cry of Rome was once, "Aut Caesar aut nullus," meaning that the people would have either Caesar or nothing. Even the most orthodox of publishers today must concur that a modern newspaper must have "either advertising or nothing."

Friendly Souvenirs

WHAT do students do with their old text books? What should they do with them? Perhaps no higher respect can be shown to an education than keeping its symbols—the text books. Formerly it was the custom among gowmsmen, particularly in smaller schools, to have a grand bonfire at the end of the semester and burn all privately owned books. This was a time of rejoicing and printed offerings were made to the goddess of learning that had enabled them to pass.

Today some succeed in selling their books—to the rag man or to the bookstore. Some trade them. Some pass them on to their Greek brothers or sisters for use in the coming year. Some allow them simply to disappear and some religiously keep all for future reference and for the memories they recall.

In the professional schools it is almost necessary to have a set of volumes to properly equip an office. In other colleges, courses are taken that never will have a direct bearing upon practical life. These books may be cast aside without material reproach. But what can retain the real spirit of the classroom like books, well thumbed and noted? They will recall the idiosyncrasies of professors, the struggles to absorb knowledge, and the warm glow of midnight lamp.

Those who devote much time to outside interests may accomplish much, but hats off to the student who becomes an inseparable friend of his books. When he is fully acquainted with their mysteries, they do not fail him in the final moment of strenuous examinations. They form a background upon which to build a successful life. They represent a palpable attempt to grasp a higher culture that broadens the possibilities of living. They are a storehouse of knowledge placed at the fingertips of true followers. They may open the wonders of the intellect, or be despicable memoirs of forced effort—they can be made whatever their owner desires.

Fair Play—Both Sides

A PARTY of English workmen, transporting electrical supplies to Lhasa, Tibet, were set upon and slain and the machinery destroyed. British authorities are much incensed, according to the Boston Transcript, and plan a speedy retaliation.

The facts of the case, however, leave room for doubt. For hundreds of years, the Tibetan authorities have been satisfied with their own civilization, and disgusted with and distrustful of others, especially foreigners from western nations. They have requested that they be left alone, preferring isolation to intercourse. When the English firm planned to send the supplies to Lhasa, the Tibetans requested that they should not be sent. When the request was not heeded, they did what they no doubt honestly considered the next best thing, preventing the entrance by force.

The superb egotism of western countries is always amazing. After all, there is some good in the Orient. Its religions contain much of value, and its civilizations have at least the virtue of age to recommend them. For some reason, westerners cannot comprehend this, and continually are attempting to force their religion, dress, and customs upon the nations of the east.

Certainly they should have the right to make their own decisions. It is interesting to question just what would happen if some zealous Mohammedan should come to America and attempt to set up a mission station, teaching the beauties and glories of the religion, with its virtue of polygamy.

By attempting to introduce contraband machinery to Tibet, the English were as surely breaking a country's laws, as the follower of Allah who attempts in an English village the practice of polygamy.

The Small-Check Evil

MUCH has been said about the practice of writing checks for amounts smaller than one dollar. Only one state, North Carolina, actually has passed a law prohibiting this careless habit. In that state it has been decided unlawful to cash a check for any purpose whatever if the amount is less than one dollar.

Upon first thought this law appears absurd, but many who are aware of the present increase in this slipshod manner of transacting business believe that every state should employ some means of abolishing the habit. One may enter any bank, either country or city, when the day's balance is being taken, and observe the amounts represented on the various checks. He will find that they range from ten cents upward. The time spent in the bank's taking care of these checks for one day, often is equal to one bank clerk's labor for the entire day. And yet patrons of the bank wonder why the writing of such small checks is the bankers' pet aversion!

Not only for the reason that these checks cause a great deal of trouble should steps be taken against the practice, but also such carelessness indicates and fosters lack of business ability.

Laff That Off!

Calvin Coolidge once boasted that he could make a pun on any subject.
"Make a pun," he was asked, "on the Queen."
"The Queen," said Mr. Coolidge, "is not a subject."

Poems That Live

Dedication to a Book of Poems
O friend unseen, unborn, unknown,
Student of our sweet English tongue,
Read out my words at night alone:
I was a poet, I was young.

Since I can never see your face,
And never shake you by the hand,
I send my soul through time and space,
To greet you. You will understand.
—JAMES ELROY FLECKER.

CHILLS AND FEVER

WE don't see why Chi Kappa Pi should be quarantined when they've allowed the Chi Delta Psi's to run loose for so long.

THE journalistic doorkeepers are awarding keys for eminent journalists; wait'll we give Dick Atherton the rush act.

WE are assured that the memorial union go-getters will use no "high pressure" methods on people they solicit for funds. No, we guess not!

THE dents, attired in aprons and carrying monkey wrenches, threw their party last night. According to our reporter, there were no cases of "nerves" being pricked by the proverbial dental pick-axe; furthermore, no one was laid out with gas and, all in all, a good time was had by all.

WE have long contended that the chief of the Iowan staff should take a course in editorial writing. But perhaps it's just as well he didn't.

THE CYNIC
"I will not go," the first did swear,
"I do not like your sandy hair,
Your open mouth, and glazed eye stare;
For you I give no whoop nor care,
I hate you and your cursed air."

The second said, "What do I hear?
That I may help you guzzle beer?
If only we were out of here
I'd kiss you twice on either ear
And hug you out of breath, my dear!"

I did not go. I had to stay
And with my little sister play.
Said she, "Please tell me in this way
The beast that you will be today."
Unthinkingly, I tried to bray.
—Dilly Willy.

WHEN Men's Pan-Hell comes,
can spring be far behind?
THAT is the tenth time we've used that remark, in some form or another, this year.

PERSONALLY, we don't think the weight of a woman's clothing has a thing to do with her moral standing.

BUT then, we've never been around much.

Came the dawn, and our hero turned over and went right back to sleep.

IF these fellows don't quit asking us for cigarettes we're going to slap them on their pretty wrists and say, "No!" in an indignant tone of voice.

WE'VE cast our vote in the straw poll being taken on the prohibition question. Following long established custom we voted (ensored).

COLLEGE AMERICANA
(McGill Daily)
Wide range of intellectual diet at the University of Illinois is revealed by the distinguished Daily Illini:

"Who" is the most popular dance record on the campus, according to a survey of the fraternity and sorority houses. "Sleepy Time Gal" is next in favor, but it is distinctly second choice at most of the houses. The third most popular dance piece is "Then I'll Be Happy." Going down the line such names as "Five Foot Two," "Charleston," "Ida, I Do," and "Brown Eyes" were given as popular numbers at different houses.

Edifying notice under the picture of Martha Walker appearing in the Concord (N. C.) Times: "Martha Walker, co-ed at the University of Wisconsin, doesn't smoke, won't bob her hair, and thoroughly approves of chaperones—but has been voted queen of the annual Junior from this year. Her home is in Peking, China."

WE didn't understand the meaning of that phrase "the morning roll and coffee" until the other morning when we watched a Gamma Phi eat breakfast in a chocolate shop.

NOW we know all about it.

THE LAST LINE
The Newspaper, dear Oswald, is an institution where fools strut their little time upon the stage, fretting and stewing their younger years away.
—F. R. E.

Suspend C. B. and Q. Rate Schedules

WASHINGTON, Mar. 12 (AP)—Pending investigation, the Interstate Commerce commission Wednesday suspended until July certain rate schedules of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad which proposed to restrict transit privileges on grain and grain products at Denver, Colo.

The road planned to restrict these privileges so they would not apply on commodities received from points on other lines, and delivered to the Burlington at various junction points in Iowa, Montana, Nebraska, and on western Missouri river when such commodities had a previous transit at Missouri river cities.

Students to Edit Paper

NEWTON, Mar. 12 (AP)—The editorial and business staff of The Newtonia, Newton high school paper, will take over The Newton Daily News, April 10 and conduct the affairs of the editorial and advertising departments on that day.

FACULTY OFFICIAL NOTICES

HUMANIST SOCIETY
The Humanist society will meet Monday, March 15, at 8 p. m. in the liberal arts drawing room. Dr. Milton Mettsell will speak on "The effect of emotion on speech sounds." A. H. HEUSINKVELD, secretary.

THE THEODORE SANXAY FELLOWSHIP
By the will of the late Theodore Sanxay the University will be enabled to honor the Liberal Arts senior who graduates with highest promise for achievement in graduate study with the generous stipend of $500 a year. It is limited to students who are native or residents of Iowa and may be awarded for graduate study in any subject in which adequate facilities for graduate study are available, either in this University or in another approved university. On the basis of meritorious record the holder may be reappointed for a second year.

The Graduate Council will consider methods of administering this award and it is hoped that this may furnish one of the fine attractions in the way of competitive prizes open to seniors annually.
For the present year the award will be made in the most informal manner. Each member of the Graduate Faculty is hereby asked to consider available candidates and send to the Graduate office before March 18 the names of persons that deserve to be considered in the competition. In making recommendations members of the staff should take into account promise for achievement in a learned career, definite plans on the part of the student for graduate study, and the adequacy of facilities for the graduate work.

The undersigned will be glad to give information to competing candidates in regard to conditions of the award and the Council will seek full information in regard to the qualifications of candidates whose names have been suggested. Suggestions from students or members of the staff in regard to method of making this award will be welcomed.
(Signed) C. E. SEASHORE, dean of graduate college.

Lamoni Claims Most Parks for Iowa Town of Its Size
LAMONI, Mar. 12 (AP)—Lamoni has more parks to the square inch of territory than any other town of like size in Iowa, is the claim made here. The place is called the "city of parks" because a chain of recreation grounds that embrace a rest park equipped with playground apparatus and flowers, known as the Central ark; an athletic park where golf links, tennis courts, baseball diamond and a race track are the principal attractions; a well-drained and equipped tourist park, and a permanently platted and equipped recreation grounds.

An extensive program of improvements covering a period of years is planned by the city park board. Parks, here, are financed by taxation.

Guide Ascends McKinley
ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Mar. 12 (AP)—Alex Lieska, Alaska guide and mountain climber, believes it possible that Mt. McKinley peak may be in active volcanic eruption to find out he plans to ascend it following the route taken by the late Archdeacon Hudson Stuck, who in 1913 scaled the heights, approaching from the Northwest.

The spectacular eruptions of subterranean forces in the North in recent years, bringing into being the Valley of Ten Thousand smokes and other natural phenomena, lends interest to the undertaking.

A CALIFORNIA OXFORD

(Harvard Crimson)
The current "Time" bears news of the interesting attempt of Pomona College, Claremont, California, to emulate, in its expansion, the Oxford organization. Since its founding in 1888, Pomona has restricted its enrollment to 700, believing the maintenance of its small college character essential to proper touch between instructor and student. However, when there came that urge to expand which is now a burden on every American college, the authorities laid plans to expand by units, that is, to add to Pomona, as funds should become available, independent undergraduate school, connected with the original college only through the corporation and reign of general policy. The completed whole will be called the Claremont Colleges.

A gift from Miss E. B. Scripps for the institution of a Scripps College for Women is the first realization of the plan. The college will open next fall in a status co-ordinate with the real Pomona.

Thus another English feature is applied as an American innovation. As an educational experiment the fortunes of the Claremont Colleges ought to be of wide interest. The main issue seems to be whether these colleges can obtain a university outlook with a small college organization. The units, obviously, will not have the traditions which bequeath the Oxford colleges their intellectual heritage. The American conditions.

It seems very likely that a more varied and excellent faculty will be employed than single small colleges can afford. For as the Claremont accumulation of units grows, the benefit of a necessarily broadening and increasing staff will accrue to each college. It thus remains to be seen whether a faculty of university excellence working with scholars living under small college conditions will evolve a complete education than American institutions of either type have so far succeeded in doing.

ON CALLING PEOPLE MORONS
(The Milwaukee Journal)
"Moron" is a much used word these days. It appears to be one of those half-forming terms that catch the popular fancy and then are applied so frequently and so loosely that they cease to mean anything. Today it is good form to call anyone for whose intelligence you have not the greatest respect a moron. Thereby you speak a commentary on yourself.

The New Standard Dictionary defines moron as a "feeble-minded person of higher intelligence than an imbecile." The word comes from the Greek "moros," meaning stupid. This definition coincides fairly well with that of the mental scientists, although the scientists in actual use divide morons into two classes—high grade and low grade. But it was never contemplated that the term should be applied to everyone who doesn't happen to answer in five seconds some intelligence test you may put.

Mentality is a difficult thing to estimate. The word "moron" accurately describes one phase of it—feeble-mindedness. There is enough of that, and it is a big enough problem, to keep the term fairly busy. The great body of people who do the world's work have a good common sense that entitles them to the respect of their fellows. But if we all start to calling each other morons, what will be the end?

U. S. to Issue New "Last Longer" Bills

WASHINGTON, Mar. 12 (AP)—An issue of 2,000,000 new dollar bills guaranteed to "last longer" was authorized Thursday by the treasury.

A new paper process has been used by which it is believed, the average life of a bill will be extended from the present nine months to at least a year.

The new money is virtually the same design as that now in use.

Metfessel to Tell Why Some Sounds Express Emotion

"The Effect of Emotions on Speech Sounds" will be the subject of the lecture delivered by Dr. Milton F. Metfessel of the graduate college, to the members of the Humanistic club, Monday, March 15 in the liberal arts drawing room.

Dr. Metfessel has made an extensive study of the sounds made by the human voice under stress of emotion, using for his study the negroes of the Carolinas, as they are as near to primitive man as can be found. He will use moving pictures of these negroes to illustrate his talk.

Questions which he will answer are, which sounds are the most emotional in any language, why certain sounds are connected with certain emotions in nearly all languages, why some sounds are used to express emotions more frequently than others, and conversely, why some sounds are not used in emotional situations. Dr. Metfessel has compiled a list of emotional interjections of many languages and has classified them with respect to their natural expression and the degree of intensity, or to be specific, what sounds would be uttered in a situation of intense pain or joy.

lose faith, to whom shall we turn? Man has the power to order his future, and his scientific knowledge is a weapon with which he can commit suicide. He had better learn how to use his potentialities in moving forward and altering his conditions."

Shows Foundation
Any confusion which exists on the subject of evolution is the result of a lack of knowledge of the background of the present among scientific persons, he explained. Scientists are often so absorbed in their work that they do not pause to enlighten their fellows.

"The message of evolution is one of optimism and encouragement. Play your part on the stage of life in the seventy years you are here. Take the step forward and upward—move on and up. Feel that your life is a failure if the world is not better for your having lived. There is no conflict between evolution and Christianity."

Gives History
"Man has so developed from the early man with his primitive apparatus that he now stands looking beyond the telescope—micro-telescope is his vision. The scientist now has faith in the invisible. With all his facilities it is surprising that he has interpreted nature differently from those who went before him."

"As there are diverging theories as to the course of evolution, although the facts of life remain universal and the same, there are also diverging interpretations of the fact of religion which is generally admitted to be true."

"Sun Spots" was the subject of Prof. C. C. Wylie's talk given before the engineering faculty at their weekly luncheon in the Memorial Union rooms Thursday.

Professor Wylie told of the correlation between sun spots and electrical and atmospheric disturbances on the earth. He also explained how the disturbances on the surface of the sun may affect the flow of rivers, and perhaps even have an effect upon economic conditions.

Lonel Coolidge Improves in Health President's Father Rallies After Illness From Heart Affection

[By The Associated Press] PLYMOUTH, Vt., Mar. 12—Colonel John C. Coolidge, father of the president, rallied today after a sickness of many months had developed critical symptoms. Tonight his physician, Dr. Albert M. Cram of Bridgewater, announced that the Colonel's condition showed definite improvement.

As the physician later in the afternoon left the Coolidge home after paying his second visit of the day, he gave a reassuring bulletin to a group of neighbors and newspaper men.

"While there is no doubt that the condition of Colonel Coolidge is grave," he added, "and that he can never regain his full health, I believe he has successfully passed the present crisis."

President Coolidge, who has followed developments here closely since his father lost the use of his limbs some months ago as an aftermath of a heart affection, was kept informed of Colonel Coolidge's condition over special telephone.

The chief topic of conversation in the general store, Plymouth's place of assembly and social center, was whether developments in his father's condition would be grave enough to bring the president here from Washington.

If the president should come here, he would have to cover the thirteen miles from Ludlow by sleigh or snowmobile, because heavy snow falls of February and March have closed the highway to automobiles. Last night a big tractor snowplow which had been set to work on the Ludlow end of the road, broke down. With its collapse went all immediate hope of a ploughed out highway.

Flannel Teddies No Criterion of Girl's Morals, Say Iowa Men

But some men assume a nonchalant attitude of disinterest. Why worry, they say, they will dress as they please, anyway. One such man is Gerald Gibbs, A3 of Alton, president of Beta Theta Pi, who remarked, "It doesn't make any difference to me how much or how little they wear."

The average man, however, will express himself in the negative. Tyrell Ingersoll, L1 of Algona, member of Alpha Sigma Phi and Phi Beta Kappa and former fencing instructor, says, "From my personal observation I should say that there is no correlation between morality and dress; if anything, the dress of a girl is an index to her economic status, the more money the less clothing, and vice versa. And so, to appear one of the 400 or 4000, whichever it may be, the less clothing she wears, the better social prestige she possesses."

And Kenneth T. Gardiner, A. F. I. and Phi Gamma Delta, insists the dress is no basis for judging a girl's moral standards. "I see no reason why the moral standing of a girl should be evaluated on the basis of her dress, regardless of its weight or the number of pieces."

And so the men of this campus have justified the girls in their choice of pleasantly comfortable dress, which is morally acceptable to men of Iowa.

Coolidge Adopts Hands Off Policy on Plan for Canal

[By The Associated Press] WASHINGTON, March 12—Despite appeals to him by both sides, President Coolidge does not intend to take sides in the dispute over a route for a Great Lakes-Atlantic canal until he has investigated.

The White House announced today that he was remaining neutral in the midst of the barrage of arguments showered down about him.

To this barrage Secretary Wilbur today added an open letter denying indirectly a charge that he was playing politics when he recently pointed out the benefits of the all-American Ontario-Hudson route. This route has been declared impracticable by army engineers, but Chairman Dempsey of the house rivers and harbors committee favors it.

"The navy department," said Mr. Wilbur, in a letter to Mr. Dempsey, "has expressed no opinion whatever upon the feasibility of this canal or the desirability of its construction, other than the opinion that if such a canal is constructed it would be of incidental value to the national defense."

Songs Intermixed in Zez Confrey Program

The three entertainers with Zez Confrey, America's great novelty pianist, and his victrol recording orchestra, will sing four of their own compositions tonight at Blue Goose. There will be two pianos one of which will be played by the regular pianist and the other one at which will be Zez Confrey playing at intervals throughout the evening. From 11:15 to 11:45 Zez will render a number of his own compositions among which the most famous is "Kitten on the Keys."

This orchestra played for the Men's Pan-Hellenic formal last evening and was secured for Blue Goose patrons tonight by "Tub" Griffen, its manager. Tonight's dance will begin promptly at 8:45 and will continue until the customary hour.

At the Theatres

IRENE

A First National picture. Directed by Al Green. Presented at the Garden theater. THE CAST: Irene O'Dare . . . Colleen Moore Donald Marshall . . . Lloyd Hughes "Madame Lucy" . . . George K. Arthur Pa O'Dare . . . Charles Murray Ma O'Dare . . . Kate Price Mrs. Warren Marshall, Ida Darling Eleanor Hadley . . . Eva Novak Larry Hadley . . . Edward Earle Bob Harrison . . . Lawrence Wheat

Alfred Green as director and Colleen Moore as principal actress make of "Irene" just about the kind of film that one would expect to derive from that one popular musical comedy. Briefly, it is amusing in a light and inconsequential way.

It is amusing, partly because of the comic material provided by the story and more because of the impudence of Miss Moore. She has undoubtedly promise as a pranksish ingenue. Burlesque or clowning are too vigorous words to describe her style of acting at its best. Genuine comedy is a little more flavored with the sense of reality than the result she achieves. Somewhere in between these stages of fun-making is the mark she aims at. When she misses the target the effect is apt to be—and at times in the past has been—appalling. But when she is good, like the little girl with the curl in the middle of her forehead, she is "very, very, good," and in "Irene" she is good.

As for the story, it is familiar stuff, whether or not one ever saw the stage version. It is one of those Cinderella types of yarn, in which the ambitious little lily of the tenements climbs to fortune, happiness, and the married state through the assistance of good luck, a handsome young millionaire, and her own sterling character.

In the picture opens and the display of wealth in which it is laid to rest, the story, as such, is developed. A goodly part of this is devoted to a lavish fashion show taken in technicolor and which, to me seemed the best part of the film. I do not know who is responsible for the sets of this sequence but whoever he may be they do him credit.

The style show is presented in four divisions: spring, summer, autumn, and winter; models wearing the various creations intended for that particular season appear to the optician walking down a graceful, semi-circular flight of white stairs with a background that is changed with the appropriate time of year.

Perhaps the most brilliant display of all comes near the end of the winter display when all the mannequins form a group on the steps with the Aureau Borealis shooting its many colored rays over the background.

The cleverness of that young Englishman, George K. Arthur, was never better demonstrated than in his presentation of the role of "Madame Lucy," the effeminate gown designer. He registers one of the best performances in the entire opus. The acting of Charles Murray as

Sphinx Loses Hair, Ghosts Forfeit Powers in Struggle With Civilization

Although the present era of mechanical genius may save labor and increase comfort, it cannot replace the charm of those more primitive days when, legends, traditions, and superstitions held a place of honor. Modern dances will never be as alluring as the stately minuet nor will the boyish flapper of today equal her hoop-skirted ancestors in attractiveness.

One of the greatest monuments to the very ancient days when pagan beliefs held sway is the Egyptian Sphinx. Through the ages she has stood as the most puzzling enigma, a woman who never talks. But the rumble of progressing civilization has shaken her and now there comes word that her great image is cracking. The back of her famous head-dress which provided the original idea for shingle bobs has broken off and fallen among the sands of the Sahara.

Ghosts Lose Throne

With the passing of the Sphinx there passes also that time-honored personage, the ghost. The place of ghosts in history and literature is almost too important to be calculated. Shakespeare has several famous ghosts and apparitions in his plays. One of our first American writers of note, Washington Irving, introduced the Sleepy Hollow ghost.

Irene's bibulous tad of a father, and Kate Price as her mother, "Irish, and proud of it, begonia," brighten the roles, lustily; but what of that? Since the whole piece is mahine-made, if one stops to analyze it, a little honest horseplay is to be applauded rather than frowned down when two such seasoned workers as Miss Price and Mr. Murray are the protagonists.

As for the rest of the cast: it is filled well enough by the chosen players.

Without doubt the short subject presented at the Garden ranks as one of the most unusual and stirring adventures that has ever passed before the lens of a motion picture camera. For the first time in history man attempted to reach the North Pole by way of the air when Capt. Roald Amundsen and his crew of five took off from King's bay, Spitzbergen, last fall; for the first time, too, a motion picture camera was carried on an arctic expedition. The results of this are shown in "Amundsen's Polar Flight," the film log of the expedition in which these men nearly lost their lives.

In its unfolding it shows the progress of the men from the time of leaving until they were forced to abandon their camera as excess weight, in that last desperate attempt to regain civilization in one plane faster the other, in landing, was rendered useless. Under the beautiful expanses of arctic lands one can realize, to some small degree, the cruelness of the barren stretches, and, perhaps, can imagine to some small degree the sufferings these men had to go through because they harkened to the call of adventure.

Proprietors of Kitty Mayme's Philosophize on Varied Careers

"Don't be a snob." Say Bill and Bob. Whose wives are named Kitty and Mayme. "Jack of all trades and master of none," may apply to some people, but not to Bill Banek and Bob Busch of the Kitty Mayme Chocolate Showpe. Before Bill and Bob started pulling together in Iowa City they tried a little bit of every thing worth muddling with.

Both are of German parentage with Jewish instincts when it comes to business, but when any athletic contest looms in sight the pleasure comes first. Bob is a "has been" baseball player, having played five years with the American association league. He said the only reason he wasn't invited into the major league was because of his .600 batting average which was about .300 too fast for those boys. He also majored in the light fantastic. For several years he was a dancing instructor, teaching every thing from the waltz to the hula-hula, but he can't charleston, according to inside dope from Kitty.

Kitty denies having pulled Bob's hair out, he has been bald for the last fifteen years, she says. He is offering a $1,000 reward to anyone who can cure him of his baldness. He says: "It's pretty hard to grow grass on a stony field."

Before coming to Iowa City, Bob worked in Minneapolis and Duluth in Rayland's candy stores. He has made candy since he was seventeen years old, starting out at St. Louis. When I asked him why he quit he pointed to Mille, the taxi boys' queen and said, "I worked with fifteen such candy girls as Mildred, then I got married; that's my only reason. Then, too, Duluth is the coldest spot on earth or any place else."

Bill, Bob's side kick, is a great erican tragedy:

Illinois Professors Inform Bartow of Chemical Discovery

Confirmation of the Associated Press reports that a new element has been isolated by chemists at Illinois university has been received by Prof. Edward Bartow in a communication from Dr. B. S. Hopkins who, with L. F. Yntema and J. A. Harris made the discovery. This is the sixty-first element to be discovered and until recently it has been known simply as number sixty-one. The name illinium has been given it in honor of the university whose research workers discovered it.

Illinium is the first of five elements known to exist, but as yet undiscovered, to be isolated. For twenty years scientists have been working to discover these five, and illinium may prove to be the only element to be isolated in the United States. All others have been discovered by continental scientists.

Whether or not the new element is of metallic character will be of great importance. 400 pounds of rare earth material were used to obtain one ounce of illinium.

Filipinos Entertained

Members of the Filipino club were entertained by the Student Volunteer club at its regular bi-weekly meeting Thursday evening. The early part of the evening was given over to games and stunts. Later a short discussion on the Philippine Islands followed. At the close of the evening's program refreshments were served.

Oooh Say Can You SEE Draw?

We want more drawings or sketches that we may use in our advertising. This is our Sixth Annual Contest for such drawings—but lest you have forgotten how we conduct these contests let us explain:

We will pay $5.00 apiece for the first four drawings and $1.00 apiece for the next four. The pictures are to in some way depict our stores, or the merchandise we sell. Try to make them unusual. They need not be elaborate but must tell the story. Be sure your name and address is on the back. Hand them in early to any Racine store. In case of ties the first pictures submitted will be taken. No drawings will be returned and we reserve the right to publish any drawing submitted.

Dope Gophers to Win Tank Struggle, Iowa to Get Track Meet

Hawks Selected as Third Place Winners

Michigan Speedsters Expected to Come in Poor Third

By MONTE STEWART
The semi-finals in the Big Ten conference swimming meet were held last night at Ann Arbor and according to the dope jug it's about time somebody had enough Phi Psi about them to hand out a string of copy that would in some way or other lead the general public to believe that the Gopher institution had at least a chance like a Kappa to land on top.

With the Hill brothers in the Minnesota lineup the rest of the tanksters in the conference have as much chance as a Sigma Nu in the semi-finals of the Iowa interfraternity heavy weight boxing bouts to make a fair showing. There is little doubt but that the rest of the collegians in the Michigan water carnival will raise Sam Hill, if he doesn't come through like Pi Phi in a pair of outside boxers.

Quarter in Breast Stroke
The breast stroke is conceded to Carter, the Iowa entry, who was handed his only defeat of the present tank season when he mistook the howls of the attendants at the Wisconsin meet a week ago for a sign that he had jumped the starter's gun and consequently he stopped, suffocatingly to lose enough distance to suffer a defeat at the hands of Kratz, the Badger visitor.

(By The Associated Press)
STILLWATER, Okla., Mar. 12.—The Oklahoma Aggies went into the final rounds of the Missouri Valley conference wrestling tournament here tonight, a heavy favorite to win. Of the fourteen wrestlers in the seven events the Aggies have placed six, Iowa State, Kansas and Nebraska two each and Kansas Aggies and Missouri one each.

There is no weak link in the Kresge chain

The tremendous success now enjoyed by the S. S. Kresge Company is the result of efficient operation. Every link in the great Kresge chain of stores is made strong through the selection of men of integrity and ability.

The men who manage the Kresge stores were chosen because of their desire to establish for themselves worthwhile futures. They were willing to start at the bottom, for training in the Kresge stores, and work their way forward. And because they had faith in themselves and the Kresge Company they reached their goal.

The Kresge Company is constantly adding new stores to its long chain, and for these stores new managers are needed.

If you are the type of man who believes that success awaits him who works, here is an opportunity well worth investigating.

Harmon Jury Still Out After Thirteen Hours Deliberation

Attorneys End Case; Deadlock Imminent

Penalty for Conviction Heavy; Case Lasts Five Days

At four o'clock this morning, the jury in the Harmon case was still out, after deliberating the case for over thirteen hours. Officials familiar with the situation seemed to believe that the affair would result in a deadlock. Driving home their closing arguments in the case of State of Iowa vs. Harmon, Attorney Henry E. Walker and County Attorney Ed. L. O'Connor for the defense and prosecution respectively, rested their case yesterday afternoon.

Prosecution Rests Case
Mr. Walker, opening the morning session, outlined his side of the case in an hour and a half of brilliant argument. Then Mr. O'Connor summed up the case presented by the prosecution until interrupted by the noon recess. At 2 p. m. the trial was resumed with Mr. O'Connor taking up his line of reasoning.

At 2:38 the prosecution rested its case. Judge R. G. Popham read his instructions to the jury and just nine minutes later the jurors filed out.

The case has lasted five days and has attracted a great deal of local interest because of the prominence of the parties concerned.

Carries Heavy Penalty
A conviction on the indictment, that of indecent exposure, carries a maximum penalty of six months imprisonment or $200 fine. The crime for which the case was tried, was alleged to have been committed in the Harmon mortuary Dec. 3 last. Harmon was indicted by the grand jury Feb. 12.

The jury that is trying the case is composed of ten men and two women. R. L. Leamer is foreman. The jury includes Albert Jones, C. E. Burnett, W. A. DeFrance, Carl C. Gatlouner, Ivan S. Bott, John Michel, Wilber Wieder, William Long, Thomas Verry, Elizabeth Fryder and Emma Vier.

City Water Company Offers Big Discount on Payments

Recently the Iowa City Water company has offered a discount of two cents per hundred cubic feet of water, if payment is made before or on the twelfth of each month. The company has never before offered such a discount in the past, according to George J. Keller, general manager of the company.

"The bills are payable monthly and the public appears to be very well pleased with the new arrangement and is taking advantage of it," said Mr. Keller yesterday.

C. R. Couple Weds Here
Walter F. Everett and Mrs. Rose Baker, both of Cedar Rapids, were married here Thursday by justice of the Peace C. C. Roup. The witnesses for the couple were Mrs. G. A. Jirouck and George Jirouck also of Cedar Rapids.

Carroll Objects to West Side Trunk Line Sewer Plan

Koser Asks Council to Incorporate New Sub-Division

Mayor J. J. Carroll vetoed the resolution overruling objections to the west side trunk line sewer, at a meeting of the city council last night. Mr. Carroll stated in his report that with the names of Thomas Roach and Mrs. Leenbaugh withdrawn from the petition for sewer, "there is not, in my opinion, the majority required by the statutes."

"If the procedure is again gone through, and if the five members of the council who voted favorably on the resolution again voted for it, and if Councilman Anderson has returned and votes favorably on the resolution, it will be properly and unquestionably passed."

This report was received and placed on file.

Refer Koser Project
George Koser appeared before the council with a plat of University Heights, third subdivision, asking that the city council incorporate this subdivision into the city. This lies just west of the C. R. I. & P. viaduct on Melrose avenue. This matter was referred to the streets and alleys committee and the city engineer who are to report back to the council at the next meeting.

Councilman Gallagher's report on the Koser Bros. permit to connect with the city sewer at Benton and Orchard streets or at a point one half block north, contingent on the city getting the Benton street sewer, for a consideration of $600 or $300 at the north point, subject to the provision that at any time the city of Iowa City installs a sewage disposal plant, was accepted and placed on file. If the city installs a sewage plant this contract will become void.

The ordinance committee was instructed to meet with Koser Bros. to draw up a contract and frame a resolution providing for the permission to connect with the Franklin street sewer.

Petition for Sewer
A petition for sewer on Davenport street from the end of the present sewer to the east side of Lot 1, Pleasant place addition, was referred to the sewer committee.

The letter from the Cedar Rapids and Iowa City railway company relative to the repairing of their tracks on Washington, Clinton and Capitol streets was read, received and placed on file.

The proposed construction of a bathroom for the firemen was referred to the fire and water committee.

A letter from Baldwin and Fairchild, relative to the living conditions of Mike Novak, who is living on the Joe Kohl property, was read and referred to the Social Service league and the city solicitor.

The city clerk was instructed to advertise the forty-eight acres of the cemetery pasture for a period of time to be determined by the city clerk.

Omit Clapp, Jefferson
The city engineer was instructed to eliminate Clapp and Jefferson streets from the paving program, because of the objections filed by the property owners. The Davenport street paving east of Center street was also ordered eliminated.

The intersections at Governor and Bloomington streets and Center and Fairchild streets were ordered included in the paving program.

The spouting on the house at the city scales was ordered repaired.

The council adjourned until Thursday, March 25.

Zone Committee Compromises on Dr. Titzell Permit

Agreement Result of Objection to Legal Clearance

Compromising on a distance of ten feet between an apartment house to be erected on the corner of Burlington and Summit streets, and the lot line of Burlington street, the city zoning commission and Dr. Frank C. Titzell, who sought a building permit, have settled the difficulties arising from the objections voiced by nearby property owners.

The zoning commission, composed of S. W. Mercer, fifth ward, chairman, F. J. Belger, first ward, Robert McCollister, second ward, Charles Slavata, third ward, Henry Negus, fourth ward, met with Dr. Titzell, O. A. Carpenter, his architect, and Fred L. Stevens, and Dr. C. S. Grant, representing the property owners, at the city hall, last night.

Seven Foot Legal
Previous building plans had placed clearance on Burlington street, which is provided by law for a three story structure, and a twentythree foot front on Summit street. The property owners of the neighborhood maintained that a building situated thus would lower the evaluation of their property. They had sought to have the building set back sixteen feet from Burlington street, and the zoning commission has denied the permit to Dr. Titzell. The ten foot compromise resulted.

Cost $70,000
The structure will cost approximately $70,000 and will be started within the month. It will be necessary to draw up new plans, according to O. A. Carpenter, architect, and change has been agreed upon. The new apartment house will be adjacent to the Summit apartment which is also owned by Dr. Titzell, who has been in Iowa City this week during the settlement of the permit.

Crum Incident, Test Move for H. Harmon

In order to test the visibility through the doors of the Harmon mortuary, the defense in the case of State of Iowa vs. Harmon, asked D. W. Crum and Lee D. Koser to investigate, March 5. The Iowan's report of the case yesterday, mentioned that Mr. Koser testified that the above incident took place Dec. 3 of last year. The correct date was March 5 and the incident was merely a test move on the part of the defense.

Lawyers Pick Jury for Brennon Case

Impaneling of the jury to decide the case of the state of Iowa vs. Geo. L. Brennon was started yesterday afternoon at the completion of the Harmon case.

Brennon was indicted in February on a charge of maintaining a liquor nuisance. Attorney Ed O'Connor is prosecuting. Attorney Edwin A. Baldwin is defending Brennon.

Girl Reserves Hear Talk by Iowa Chinese Student

The Girl Reserves of the Iowa City high school held a world fellowship meeting yesterday afternoon. Mr. Ting, a Chinese student in the university, spoke on the work of the Y. W. C. A. in China. "East is east, west is west but the twain shall never meet," he said, "is no longer true, for they have met." He spoke of the great spiritual, educational, and physical good that had been done for China through the assistance of the Y. W. C. A. In closing he said that it was through such organizations as the Girl Reserves and the Y. W. C. A. that world fellowship may be strengthened.

High School Wins Two Debates; Can Enter State Finals

Affirmative Team Beats Oskaloosa; Negative Defeats Grinnell

Both the affirmative and the negative debate teams of the Iowa City high school won last night in the Iowa Nine district debate, entitling them to enter the finals which will be held March 27.

The Iowa City negative team composed of Robert Koser, Donald Harter, and Donald Howell, defeated the Grinnell affirmative here with a 3 to 0 decision on the question: "Resolved: That the Japanese Exclusion Act Should be Repealed in Favor of the Gentleman's Agreement."

At Oskaloosa the Iowa City affirmative team composed of Robert Prentiss, Edward Davis, and Max Cadwallader overcame the Oskaloosa negative team with a 2 to 1 victory.

High School Picks Cast for Operetta; Presented in April

Natural Science Auditorium to be Scene of Production

Cast for the Iowa City high school operetta, "Pickles," to be presented in the natural science auditorium the latter part of April, has been announced. The following high school students will take part:

Ellen Ford, Iona, a gypsy girl; Maurice Tanner, J. Jenison Jones, advertising expert; Ruth Davis, June Pennington, an American heiress; Sidney Bailey, Arthur Crofont, an American artist; Howard Rossler, Jonas H. Pennington, proprietor of "Peter Piper Pickles"; Ceola Meyers or Mary Machovec, Lady Vivian Delancy, an English widow; Don Howell and Don Harter, Burns, Rumski, Kinski's faithful sleuths; Mary Plum, Louisa, waitress; Edwin Davis, Hans Mader, proprietor of the Wurtelpraeator Inn; Walter Potter, Jigo, a Hungarian gypsy.

The plot involves Pennington, a pickle manufacturer, who has introduced his article into the city and flooded the markets of Vienna with pickles. His advertising agent, Jones, becomes acquainted with Iona, a beautiful gypsy girl, and a romance ensues.

The speaking parts for the production will be coached by William Fulton and the general supervision and musical parts by Miss Frances Cronin.

A. H. Blank Denies Reports of Giant Theatre Combine

DES MOINES, Mar. 12 (AP)—Recent reports that the A. H. Blank theatre interests would be merged with an ally of the Famous Players-Lasky and Balaban and Katz organization were denied here today by A. H. Blank. Mr. Blank, in Chicago, wired a Des Moines paper that published the merger rumors that the rumor was without foundation. Balaban and Katz, a Chicago organization also stated that they had no knowledge of the reported merger.

AGRIPPA WEB Boston Garter

How Did Your Garters Look This Morning?

No More Skidding Garters!
AGRIPPA-WEB makes garters act in an entirely new way—and only in Boston can this web be had. Even when worn very loose it will not slip. It cannot curl and yet it is remarkably soft and light. Here in fact is a practical, comfortable, ventilated-web garter. In many pleasing colors, 50c the pair.
