Law Students Walk Out on All Classes Today

For First Time in U History College Skips En Masse

Take Place of Holiday Formerly Given For Jubilee

By RUSSELL WILSON

Shades of the Law Jubilee walked again, at a mass meeting of the Law Student's Association last night. Practically the entire student body attended the meeting, and voted to suspend classes today, and to attend a banquet this evening in memory of the holiday that would have been theirs had the annual celebration not been banned.

Take Place of Jubilee

For the first time in the history of the university the members of a college have decided to walk out of classes. Tuesday of Mecca week has always been the day the embryonic John Marshalls have dropped their weights tomes for the lighter manuscripts of the Jubilee. With no performance to insure them a holiday the students decided the next best thing was to establish another day of freedom to take its place, consequently the action taken last evening.

Decide on Entertainment

As soon as the meeting opened there was but one point to be decided, what form the entertainment was to take. That there would be no classes was a fact accepted by all present. After a short discussion it was decided that a banquet and celebration would be held at Yonkers Inn at 6 this evening. It was also decided that a parade would be held following the dinner and program.

Committees were appointed at once to take care of the various phases of the affair. Included in these was a committee to invite the dean and professors of the college. Students planning to attend the banquet should register before 10 o'clock at Iowa Supply, it was announced.

Last Rites Held

Plans for the banquet and parade include the last and rites over what remains of the ill fated Jubilee. The coffin containing the corpse will form a pleasing and decorative centerpiece at the dinner. After its conclusion the coffin will be borne by honorary pall bearers, whose names will be announced later, an elaborate hearse, in which it will be conveyed to the place of interment.

Jones Noncommittal

Dean Jones, when questioned in regard to his attitude on the action of the students last evening, stated that he knew nothing at all of the matter.

Houghton Report Rouses Senators to Heated Debate

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 22 — The senate got itself into an inquisitive frame of mind today on the European situation.

Houghton's reported observations to newspaper correspondents painting a rather gloomy picture of conditions overseas, formed the basis of more than an hour's debate with Chairman Borah, of the foreign relations committee, and Senator Harrison, democrat, as the central figures.

Half a dozen other senators participated and there was both plainly spoken criticism and vigorous defense of the American ambassador to the court of St. James.

Charges Agreed

At one point Senator Glass, democrat, lightened the weighty discussion by demanding that there be "no secret agreements," among senators. He referred to a brief whispered conference between Senator Moses republican, and Senator Borah, during a colloquy between the Idaho and Virginia senators.

Senator Borah had made a point of "secret agreements" among the European powers at the time of the Locarno public agreement, and declared that these were responsible in large measure for present conditions in Europe.

Germany Supported

The chairman of the foreign relations committee gave it as his opinion that when Brazil "duped" Germany, she was duped. Germany's entry into the council of the League of Nations she had silent support from the great powers.

Senator Glass said Senator Borah was "getting into the field of conjecture" and the latter retorted that it was "not the field of conjecture, but the field of common sense."

Lowan Staff to Edit Des Moines Paper

26 Students Will Put Out April 3 Issue of Register

Following the practice of the past four years, members of The Daily Iowan editorial staff will go to Des Moines during the vacation period to put out the April 3 issue of The Des Moines Register. Approximately twenty-six young journalists will compose the group who will endeavor to make up a first class metropolitan newspaper.

Velma Critz, J. P. of Iowa City, managing editor of The Daily Iowan will be in charge of the five editions of this one issue of The Register, as news editor. She will be aided by the various desk editors of the Iowan, who will take over the society, city, sports, state, editorial and wire departments of the Des Moines paper. The Iowan reporters will be sent out over the capital city to gather the news of the day.

Donald MacMillan, Explorer of Arctic, Lectures April 6

First Successful Flyer in Frozen North Comes Here

"No Eskimo is ever drowned, yet not one of them can swim."

"Polar expeditions suffer more from the mosquitoes than the cold. The best is the curse of the North as far as eleven degrees of the North Pole."

"Exploration of the frozen northland by plane is not feasible."

Donald MacMillan, first explorer to keep in daily touch with Washington and the first to make successful flights in the Arctic will come to the natural sciences auditorium the night of April 6 to tell university students some more of his experiences than those above.

Wandering icebergs, polar bears, shifting ice, and the futile hunt for the hidden continent dreamed of by all explorers will enter into his description of the land at the top of the world. Usually he depicts the Eskimos and the life of the frozen north with pictures.

Brings Back Specimens

The famous explorer invaded the north with aeroplanes and ships in the summer of 1925 and now he is back to show that polar exploration by plane is not feasible until the craft is greatly improved. He attributes his failure to a lack of landing places.

Unsuccessful in reaching the north pole, he nevertheless did not return without accomplishing something. He returned to the United States with marvelous specimens of flora and fauna—1,500 birds being one of the cargoes brought back from the Arctic. Besides the seventy species of birds, the specimens include more than 1,000 fishes, representing twenty-five species and 250 collections of plants comprising more than a thousand specimens.

Born in Arctic

The lecturer will bring with him a background of long flights and cold battles. As a young school teacher, son of a halibut fisher of the Arctic, he always yearned for a chance to make explorations in the north.

MacMillan about that time resorted to ten people from drowning, seven from a sail boat capsized by a gale of wind, and three from an overturned canoe. It was through this act, accomplished single-handed that he heard of MacMillan and invited him to accompany him on one of his trips.

Romeo and Juliet Set for March 29

Shakespeare Tragedy to Play Here for Three Nights

"Romeo and Juliet," Shakespeare's great tragedy of errors, will be given by the university players in the natural science auditorium, March 29, 30, and 31, under the direction of E. C. Mable, director of the department of speech.

Philip Foster, A. P. of Mason City, as Romeo, and Mrs. Vivian McCarty, A. P. of Iowa City, as his innamorata, the fair Juliet, create the famous balcony scene in a way which will surprise and delight Iowa City theatre-goers.

From the rise of the curtain upon the memorable feud between the Montagues and Capulets, to Romeo's last farewell to the world and Juliet, the play throbs with action, pathos, and tragedy.

Stage settings and costumes are being made by members of the stagecraft shop under the direction of Mrs. Lucille McMurry. A great deal of effort is being expended by the class to give the settings a professional appearance, and some unusual and attractive scenery is forecast.

On April 2, the cast will go to Ottumwa where they will repeat the production.

Day in Washington

The supreme court overruled a motion to dismiss the Chicago water diversion proceedings.

Ambassador Houghton's reported observations on the European situation were discussed in the senate.

The treasury announced that March income tax returns probably would exceed estimates by $20,000,000.

Farm Delegation Hears First Kind Remarks for Bill

Rubey and Purnell Defend Measure; Desire Changes

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 22 — The middlewestern farm relief delegation, beginning today the third week of testimony before the house agriculture committee, heard kinder words for its surplus crop bill than at any time since the hearings started.

Battered by onslaughts on the floor of the house and in the committee room last week, the measure was defended today by Representative Rubey democrat, and Purnell, republican.

Desire Amendments

They indicated, however, that a number of amendments would be desirable.

Mr. Rubey, terming it "a pretty good bill," said he was inclined to support it, but suggested that it might be possible to eliminate one of its central features, the fee on agricultural commodities to be levied to stabilize the market and handle the surplus.

F. W. Murphy, of the American Council of Agriculture, undergoing his fourth day of cross examination, insisted that the fee was essential but added that the farmers want relief and would welcome it in any form.

Tariff Not a Yard Stick

Mr. Purnell wanted to know why the tariff had been ignored in the bill and Mr. Murphy said the farm leaders who framed it had not considered it necessary to provide for higher import duties on food products or to make the tariff the yard stick for stabilizing the price.

Representative Fulmer, democrat, suggested an alliance between cotton growers of the south and wheat, corn and cattle producers of the west, in the interest of a national agricultural policy. The witness agreed that this was desirable.

Tax Returns for March Exceeds Original Estimate

Tilson Tells House of Treasury Deficit Since July 1

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22 — The treasury announced today that income tax returns for March, the first to be collected under the new revenue law, probably would exceed by $20,000,000 the original estimate of Secretary Mellon.

Coincident with this announcement, Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the republican floor leader, warned the house of a treasury deficit for the fiscal year beginning July 1 because of too many appropriation bills.

Include First Quarter

The tax collections for March, which include only those for the first quarter of the tax year from individuals and corporations, totalled $380,000,000 at the close of business Saturday, but officials expect them to reach $420,000,000 or about $21,000,000 less than was collected for the same quarter a year ago when the tax rates were higher.

Secretary Mellon interpreted the

Reports on Algae Occupy Botanists

Species Found Near Iowa City Shown at Meeting

Statistics of considerable local interest and of scientific importance were revealed in the research reports on fresh water and marine algae before the botany club yesterday afternoon by Grace Winters and G. W. Prescott of the graduate college.

Mr. Prescott, who has given several years to the study of these small plants about Iowa City, with a year's previous study of the algae of the west coast, said that a preliminary survey of the fresh-water algae in the vicinity of Iowa City indicates that there is a abundant flora of this group of plants.

Species Found Here

Over 200 species have been identified in the past year, while several plants are apparently entirely new to science and others have for the first time been collected in North America.

The importance of the relationship of algae to water supplies and to soils encourages more research upon the physiological and biological aspects of these plants.

Miss Winters reports on "The Iowa Species of the Genus Russula," before that botany club yesterday stated that Russula is a large and striking genus of the gill fungi. Many of the forms are among the commonest and most conspicuous mushrooms occurring in the state. They always grow under trees and are at their best in open woods. None of the species are poisonous and many are edible, yet in spite of this fact, no systematic treatment of the forms occurring in Iowa has heretofore been attempted.

Stresemann Explains Germany's Foreign Policy to Reichstag

BERLIN, Mar. 22 (AP)—In the same temperature attitude as he carried on at Geneva, in the turmoil of the League disensions Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the German foreign minister appeared before the Reichstag today and sketched the drift of Germany's foreign policies from Locarno to the breakup of the Geneva conference. He alluded to the grave crisis caused by the failure of the negotiations for Germany's election to the League, criticized the obstructionist tactics of certain powers and explained the reason for Germany's remaining to the end so that she would not lose prestige in the eyes of the world.

And in this, he declared, Germany was justified, for when the delegation left Geneva it was agreed that she was in no way to blame for the unsatisfactory outcome of the conference.

Dr. Stresemann's defense of the German delegates procedure at Geneva was sufficiently impressive to disarm even the nationalists' criticism and the mild manner in which Count Westarp, leader of the nationalists, sought to discredit the delegation indicated that the government's present opposition in the chamber is of a wholly negative quality.

Senator Means Will Preside; 12 Days for Discussion

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 22 — The prohibition issue, which has agitated both houses of congress at this session as has no other question, is to be given a public airing before a senate committee during the two weeks beginning April 5.

This was determined upon today by the senate judiciary committee, which approved with but a single dissenting vote the program recommended by its sub-committee of five for hearings on the pending measures for modification of the dry laws.

Means in Charge

Senator Means, republican, will have charge of the hearings and he will attempt to hold both the wets and drys strictly to the subject of the bills at issue. Each side will have six days for the presentation of its case with the wets taking the stand first.

Besides approving the program for the hearings, the committee endorsed the action of the sub-committee in indefinitely postponing consideration of a bill by Senator Edwards, democrat, for repeal of the Volstead act. This measure was pigeon-holed, it was explained, because its passage would leave the government without authority to enforce the dry constitutional amendment.

To Change Amendment

The first measure that will be considered will be that by Senator Bruce, democrat, proposing to change the eighteenth amendment so that those states and communities which were wet when the dry law went into effect again would be wet, but would have to depend upon the federal government for their limited supplies of intoxicants.

Then the beer bills and the Edge measure to remove the restrictions on prescription whiskey will have their hearings. There are three beer bills proposing four per cent, two and seventy-five hundredths per cent, and beer "non-intoxicating in fact." Senator Edwards, democrat, is author of the first, and Senator Edge, republican, sponsors the other two.

Wets Despondent

Wet leaders have no hope that the committee will report any of the bills favorably. They ask for the hearings, they explain, so congress can elicit officially the opinions of enforcement officers, educators, ministers, and others as to how the dry laws should be amended so as to make the enforcement less difficult.

Senator Walsh, democrat, who voted against the hearings based his opposition on the grounds that they were requested merely for the purpose of spreading wet propaganda. Prohibition was touched upon briefly today in the senate, Senator Bruce interrupting a debate on the European situation to say he wanted to bring the senate back to a consideration of a "serious domestic situation." He then read a newspaper poll showing 2,715,579 votes against prohibition to 520,457 in favor of it.

Research Chemist From Minnesota to Lecture Tonight

Prof. R. A. Gortner to Talk in Chemistry Auditorium

Prof. R. A. Gortner, of the University of Minnesota will speak this evening at 7:30 in the chemistry auditorium on the subject of "Adsorption and Vital Phenomena." Professor Gortner, who comes here under the auspices of the graduate college and the Mayo Foundation, has done much research work in the field of formation and chemistry of animal pigments and soil analysis.

Besides writing articles for numerous scientific magazines Professor Gortner spends some of his time lecturing. His articles that have been published deal largely with the results of his research work. Professor Gortner has studied the physico-chemical property of vegetable saps or the study of the properties of plant life. Perhaps the most important of his research work concerns the field of proteins in food and the changes that the proteins undergo when they are in the process of digestion and assimilation by the body.

Some of the articles written by Professor Gortner that have been published are, "Flour and Bread as Colloid Systems," "Application of Colloid Chemistry to Agricultural Problems," and "Colloidal Properties of Winter Wheat Plants in Relationship to Frost Resistance."

Professor Gortner graduated from Nebraska Wesleyan in 1907 and from Toronto and Columbia universities. He was at one time the resident investigator in the biological chemistry station for experimental evolution of the Carnegie Institute of Washington from 1909 to 1914. He has since been an instructor in the University of Minnesota.

He is a member of many scientific honorary societies being a fellow of the Chemical Society of London, a member of the Societe Chimique, Sigma Xi and the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Wally Roach, A. P. of Iowa City, has been selected to superintend this all-important detail, background, trappings and all. Wally is carrying on a hurried correspondence with Florenz Ziegfield and Houdini, and you know what might happen when those three fellows get together. It is safe to say that there will be a presentation that will make the British court's social season look like Tub Griffen's skylit gardens. Special photographers will be on hand to obtain a permanent record of the beauties as wreathed in smiles they appear on the specially built platform that is being constructed for the event.

Lounging Made a Fine Art by Banded "Trou"

If milady loves to revel in beautiful clothes fashioned of luxurious fabrics, her idle hours — the ones she gives to the necessary relaxation that spells continued youth and beauty — may be among her happiest. For while gowns for every hour of the day may be sumptuous, the modern negligee — whether it take the form of robe or pajama suit — is the most exotic of all.

One of the simpler but very intriguing interpretations of the pajama is pictured (left) and worn by lovely Mary Astor, a young cinema player. She is said to be very domestic in her tastes and built the pictured suit with her own fair hands. A Japanese design of flowers and birds is embroidered on the jacket, which is of dark material and has elbow length sleeves. The wide trousers are banded about the bottom with the jacket material.

A much more elaborate version of the pajama lounging suit (right) is built of such materials as silver cloth — of which the unique trousers are fashioned, velvet and fur. The trousers are caught close about the ankle with silver buttons and a loose cuff falls over the instep.

The loose coat is of vivid orange velvet beaded with rhinestones. The sleeves carry out the same idea as the trousers, being buttoned with silver buttons below the elbow with the same loose cuff falling over the hand. A scarf of the velvet lined with silver cloth is worn about the neck, and it and the jacket are edged with lemon colored fur.

The negligee robe is illustrated (center). It, too, utilizes silver cloth and is edged with chinchilla, with tassels of silver bullion and beads and pipings of different colors, Bebe Daniels, movie picture actress, posed for the picture.

Another exquisite pajama suit seen recently was fashioned of white brocade satin in an iris pattern with three-quarter length coat bordered and cuffed in wide, peach-colored marabout and lined with peach crepe silk. The peach satin also bordered the side tie pajamas and made luxedo revers on the coat.

These negligees are extreme types that would be of no especial value to the woman of moderate means. There is no reason, however, why they should not be copied in inexpensive materials, and they would make lovely gifts to a friend who is going away or who is to be married.

Pres. Coolidge Enjoys Cigars But Not Pipe or Cigarette

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — President Coolidge enjoys a good cigar. But, unlike Vice President Daves, he does not care for a pipe, and, differing from his predecessor in office, President Harding, he rarely, if ever, smokes cigarettes.

Although there is a widespread impression that Mr. Coolidge is partial to cheap cigars—stogies, cheroots or the five centers that former Vice-President Marshall extolled, he really confines his smoking almost entirely to a rather expensive brand—a perfect that retails for at least a quarter and has a wide sale in exclusive men's clubs.

The President smokes several cigars a day. He uses an ivory holder which at quick glance looks like a cigarette and has given rise to reports that at times he tries a cigarette for a change.

As for pipes—Mr. Coolidge has received a number of them as gifts, but he never uses them.

Sophomores Nab Cup; Class Tournaments End

Second Place Falls to Junior Team After Final Games

The sophomore team defeated the freshman team in the final games of the class basketball tournament yesterday afternoon, 28-12, taking first place and the cup for coming through the tournament, the only unbeaten team.

The junior team defeated the strong senior team in the finals yesterday by the narrow margin of four points the score being, 19-15 to take second place by virtue of two wins and one loss, that one being to the sophomores in the opening games of the tournament last Thursday night.

The senior team placed third with one victory and two losses while the freshman, in spite of a fine team go to the bottom of the list with three defeats.

Easily the Best

The sophomore bunch have easily proved themselves the best team of the four by decisive victories over each of the other class teams, the opponents at no time after the first few minutes of play being with in scoring distance. The game with the freshman was a repetition of previous contests with the other two classes, Sayne, sure-shot for the sophomores sinking counters with ease. Sayne stands high scorer for the tournament with at least ten more baskets to her credit than any other forward.

The first half of yesterday's game with the freshman team went smoothly the freshman getting in some nice team work and holding the "champs" to a count of 12-6 at the end of the first half. Sayne went on a scoring rampage during the second period while the freshman covered by the strong sophomore guards were only able to raise the count to 12.

19-15 Junior Victory

The senior-junior game resulting in second place for the Juniors with 19-15 victory was uncertain at all points. The seniors started off with a quartet of baskets making the score 8-2 for several minutes, however the junior forward, Bruechert found the hoop for two pretty counters while Meyers made a lucky shot from the side, followed by another from both Abel, senior and Bruechert, junior which closed the first half 10-10.

It was anybody's game throughout the second half the teams alternately taking the lead in a most exciting fashion.

Do Wonderful Guarding

Springer and Wynne, junior guards did some wonderful guarding, holding back the senior forwards in expert fashion. Shot after shot proved a trifle off aim and the junior guards sent the ball toward home. Bruechert shot wild during the third quarter but came back for two perfect baskets in the final period while Meyers added a pair of free throws.

As the tournament closes the basketball season for this year a banquet will be held next Wednesday night at the Memorial union at which the mythical team will be announced and the cup awarded to the sophomore team.

"Bobbed" Teachers Refused Position at Grundy Center

GRUNDY CENTER, Iowa, March 22 (AP) — Peter Bloxam, farmer and school director in a rural district two miles from Grundy Center is "set" in his opinion about bob-haired school teachers and will not agree to engaging any in his district who had shorn her locks. In addition Mr. Bloxam insists that teachers who are engaged in his district must insert in their contract a clause guaranteeing that their hair is long and genuine.

Since there is a vacancy soon to be declared in the school district, residents of the territory affected are watching with interest the fate of the applicants who may seek to succeed Mrs. Jane Barnes, a teacher, who has resigned to continue her college work. Mrs. Barnes agreed in her teaching contract not to cut her hair during the term of the contract.

Mr. Bloxam carries his dislike for shorn heads into his home. None of the feminine members of his household has bobbed her hair, and one of his two daughters wears her hair in long braids wound around her head.

Supreme Court to Decide Legality of Navy Oil Lease

Defendants Say Only Highest Court Can Interpret Act

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Mar. 22—The legality of the navy oil leases will be decided by the supreme court.

The controversy which started when a senate committee investigated Teapot Dome which was injected into a presidential campaign and which is now the subject of criminal proceedings in the federal courts here against Edward L. Doheny, Harry F. Sinclair, and Albert B. Fall, was given a place before the highest court today on petition of the Doheny-Pan-American petroleum and Transport and the Pan-American petroleum companies.

Explain Operations
These two companies had leases under which they obtained oil from the Elk Hills naval reserve in California, and had contracts for the creation of storage tanks for the navy at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. The federal district court and the circuit court of appeals both held that the leases and contracts were invalid because obtained by fraud and corruption.

Incidentally the lower courts challenged the right of Fall as secretary of the interior to make them. The circuit court also held that the Doheny companies were not entitled to compensation for the storage tanks which had cost about $10,000,000.

Contend Similarity
In asking the review which the supreme court today granted, the Doheny interests contended that the questions presented were broadly similar to those in proceedings against Sinclair in Wyoming, in which the federal court had refused to cancel the contracts and leases made by fall with the Sinclair Mammoth oil company and his pipe line company affecting the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve.

Pointing out what they contended was the conflict of construction given the naval oil reserve leases and contracts by the federal courts in California and Wyoming, Doheny's counsel insisted that the supreme court should interpret the act of congress under which the leases and contracts had been made.

Youth Movement Discussion Topic of Group Meeting

Youth movements, what they are and mean, and how they work, was the outstanding topic at the meeting of the discussion group Sunday afternoon. Youth movements were defined as movements of young people who have banded themselves together with a definite purpose and a goal to work for.

The so called youth movements in America can not begin to compare with the movements in Europe, which are so much older, and where they can be definitely recognized, because young people take a more active part in affairs of government.

The work of the student council was also considered at the meeting. Some thought that there was a necessity of a student council, while others were of the opinion that there were definite tasks for this governing body. The recent application of the Junior Prom committee to raise the price of the tickets and the time of the dance was cited as one example of work for the council. A few people were of the feeling that the council is at present too large a body to do effective work.

The majority of Iowa students seem to be well satisfied with conditions on the campus as they exist.

Ice Gorge Holds Menacing Flood Waters at Oil City

Telephone Girls Stay at Posts as Other Business Stops

(By The Associated Press)
OIL CITY, Pa., March 22—The flood threat to Oil City, Franklin, and other towns in the upper Allegheny river valley approached a crisis tonight. The great ice gorge, that has menaced the district for weeks, continued to hold fast as flood waters, backing up behind the pack, crept beyond the low lands and into districts heretofore untouched.

While practically all business houses were closed, the telephone exchange remained in operation. The telephone girls were carried to their work in boats. The city was without a newspaper.

Rain to Add Menace
The threat of a more disastrous flood came in the form of the weather bureau prediction of "rain tonight and tomorrow." A heavy rain at the headwaters might bring rain at the headwaters this huge mass of ice would jam against the Brandon barrier.

Late today the very heart of Oil City's business district was invaded. The flood waters rising at an unprecedented rate, rushed into the center of the town, forcing scores of workers to flee. Many were carried from business buildings by firemen and policemen.

Many sections of the city were under from three to five feet of water. Business was at a standstill. Boats formed the only means of transportation on the two main thoroughfares. All power lines were prostrated and the railroads were threatened.

Some Ice Moves
The warm sunshine of the day caused much local ice to move out. During the afternoon a foe passed Oil City and jammed against the main gorges near Franklin. The ice piled up and within ten minutes caused Oil Creek, running through the city to rise six feet. It was this unprecedented rise that flooded streets.

To add to the seriousness of the situation tonight, the city faced the prospect of being without light and power indefinitely. The first flood weeks ago, caused officials to hook up with the Clarion river power lines. These lines were carried away this afternoon and officials said it would be impossible to restore them at once. The power plant was put out of commission last night.

increase over the estimate as due to stimulation of business in anticipation of tax reduction. With the reduction in sight, several months ago, he said, business generally had made investments in a direction which would prove helpful in revenue collections.

Old Law Brings More
On the face of the March returns, the treasury estimates the total income tax collections for the fiscal year ending June 30 will amount to $1,701,000,000 as against $1,780,000,000 a year ago and $1,880,000,000 which it had been estimated would have been collected this year under the old rates. These figures do not include collections of miscellaneous

University Band Concert Sunday Pleases Audience

From the opening strains of Reisinger's "Mill on the Cliff" until the final bugle call of Rollinson's "Grand Military Fantasia" a rapt audience forgot that it was warm outside and that the canoe blades were cutting Iowa river. They who nearly filled the men's gymnasium Sunday were conscious only of Van Doren's university band and the liquid notes from the cornet of Clarence J. Andrews, A2 of New London.

The "Dance Macabre" a symphonic poem by Saint-Saens was perhaps the most difficult selection rendered by the seventy piece, gold and black garbed band. Death was described as a fiddler summoning the skeletons from their graves for a dance. Clanking of bones, sombre strains of ghastly merriment, and strains symbolical of the night and the loneliness of the grave carried through until the oboe instrumented the crowing of a cock that recalled the revellers to their graves.

Three other pieces were especially effective in bringing forth applause. Wernell's "Parting Song" played as an encore by Mr. Andrews, "Collegiate," and Van Doren's "Pentacrest."

Anne Pierce, A4 of Iowa City sang "Elsa's Dream" and was encored twice and responded with "I Bacio." Her sweet and clear soprano voice rose clear and strong above the accompanying undertone of the band.

Bell to Speak at Press Convention

Many other men of journalistic fame will address the conference. Among them are Harvey Ingham, editor of the Des Moines Register, Harold N. Swanson, editor of College Humor, Donald H. Clark, national president of Sigma Delta Chi, and John F. D. Aue, president of the Iowa Daily Press association.

Chief Pleads for Support of Music

Latent Iowan Talents Sought by Meeting at Capitol

(By The Associated Press)
DES MOINES, March 22—Support and cooperation of all individuals and organizations interested in music was asked here today for the "singing biennial" of the National Federation of Music Clubs at Chicago next year, by Mrs. George Judisch, Ames, president of the Iowa Federation of Music Clubs, in a meeting of the board of directors.

Mrs. Judisch urged that an effort be made by all musically inclined persons to bring out Iowa talent for competition in ensuing state contests, so that Iowa may have able representation in the contests to be staged by the National federation.

In order to carry on the contest and elimination work, funds are needed, she stated, in asserting that the federation would welcome contributions.

The meeting which starts today is in conjunction with the Iowa Association of Music Teachers, as a first step in cooperation urged by Mrs. Judisch.

Delegates from each of the organizations affiliating in the conference here this week, are here in large numbers and plans are being made to bring about a firm union of all such musical organizations in Iowa for the purpose mentioned.

Earns Spending Coin From Chick Hatchery

Few men and women escape the conviction some time in their lives that they could make a huge success of chicken raising. Most of them never have a chance to see what they can do; many try it and fail.

A 19-year-old girl, Miss Freda Bliss, of Mansfield, Mass., however, has demonstrated that chicken raising can be made a very profitable occupation. She runs the largest chicken hatchery in New England. Over 3,000,000 chicks are hatched at her hatchery each year, the capacity of her incubators being 340,000 eggs at one setting.

"Countryless" Ship Plies Oil Trade in California Harbors

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Mar. 22 (AP)—A ship without a country plies in the oil service out of this port and provokes a puzzle to harbors of the world.

It is the tanker Niobe, which carries gasoline from San Pedro to Hamburg, Germany. The Niobe was built in Germany during the war and afterward allotted to the United States. While the United States did not accept ownership of the vessel, the shipping board controls it and allotted the tanker to the Standard Oil company. An American crew is carried although the ship has no American papers.

For a flag, the Niobe carries that of the Inter-allied Maritime council.

A dignified business

Any retail business that has grown to a volume of more than $100,000,000 a year must be founded upon sound business principles.

Kresge's is a dignified business. It meets the everyday human needs—of folks everywhere.

The S. S. Kresge Company has developed the art of retail store-keeping to the point where it may well be termed a science. Merchandise of standard grade is sold in Kresge stores—but in such quantities that prices are consistently lower than in stores that lack the organization and resources of a great national institution.

There are already more than three hundred stores in the Kresge chain—and new ones are being added constantly. For these new stores we shall need managers—competent men, thoroughly experienced—and Kresge-trained.

A limited number of young men—college men of good character and promise—will be given the opportunity to train for these positions. Write at once and arrangements will be made for you to meet a man from your own college who is now a Kresge representative. He will give you complete information.

When a boy, Mr. Reppert attended school in Reading, Pa., where he sold the Saturday Evening Post to earn spending money.

Later he attended Wharton School of Accounting and Finance, University of Pennsylvania. Mr. Reppert has this to say of his business career: "I became acquainted with a Kresge store manager and heard the story of the Kresge plan of intensive training on a practical scale. After a week's deliberation, started in training."

"Remember this: I held a good position in a retail store, I was a letter head, desk, stenographer, etc.) and was reputed to be the future superintendent of the department in which I was working."

"My friends and business associates counselled me to enter the Kresge store business. They actually laughed at my change from a comfortable position to stockman in overalls. But today, thanks to my own judgment and the Kresge Company, I have reached the point where I am managing a store of my own (Dunkirk, New York), have increased my earning power considerably and best of all, I have a future that is worth while ahead of me."

Fraternity Boxers Meet in Finals of Mitt Tournney Tonight

Greeks Expected to Furnish Much Action

Hard Training, Scientific Boxing Unheard of in Most Fraternity Battles

By RUSSELL WILSON
A goldfish dumped among a school of sharks would have no more excitement than is promised this evening when rival Greek mitt slingers will meet in the finals of the interfraternity boxing tournament in the men's gym at 7:30.

While there will be but little science displayed, it is a certainty that there will be enough action to satisfy the most rabid follower of Flistania. It's just a question of the man, who can sock the hardest, take the most, and keep the Camels down the longest, winning the bout. That is with the exception of the finalists who have trained many months in preparation for these deciding bouts. The trouble is there are none such entered.

As a consequence the bouts should be quite evenly matched. Leather pushers from the rival camps are all confident of winning their matches, and unless there are a number of tickets to dreamland via the kayo route issued, it looks if the referee—none other than Jimmy Flanagan—should have a fairly tough evening.

Good 135-Pounders
The 135 pound set to should prove the best spine tickler on the evening's program. Both men entered in this are clever ring men and neither is afraid of "taking one to land one." Collins was university lightweight champ last year and is hoped to repeat in the frat league. Sharp will cause him some trouble for, though has not been born with a pair of padded mitts on his hands, he knows the difference between a left cross and right hook.

Running up the scales to 145-pound class we find Hearst, also university champ of his weight last season, and Smith matched to the death, a count of ten, or a decision. Hearst appears to have a slight advantage with his previous experience aiding him.

Heavies Tough Eggs
Sibbert and Lambert up in the heavy section should reimburse the spectators for part of their twilit admission charge at least. Sibbert was the Dempsey of the tournament last year; when he entered the ring the other contestants were out like a tramp's toes. However he shouldn't have it all over Lambert in their three sessions, Lambert is an ex-tar, that is he attended Annapolis for two years and it is whispered that the plebes of that institution have the spirit of "take" instilled into them one way or another before they get to their second year. By that time they have also learned to give a little. All of which augurs a good match.

This morning the horses, the boxers rather, are nervously stamping

440 Men Run Off Time Trials For Texas-Rice Meet

Expect Heavy Going With Georgetown U. Quartet

Another round of time trials are necessary before the five quarter milers who will travel into the southwest for the Texas and Rice relays are selected. The final tests will take place this afternoon in the armory.

Ten Good Men
All of the ten quarter milers on the squad raced through trials under the supervision of Charles R. Brooks. Cuhel, Swenson, and Phelps made the best time followed by Milner, Boies, and Beatty. Everingham was close up and may figure in the final trials.

The races of Tuesday will be the final hard drill of the week for the men who will go to Texas. The runners will work out in Kansas City enroute and will be able to try out the track at the University of Texas late Thursday afternoon.

Will Meet Georgetown
The chances of the Iowa team for going unbeaten are not especially rosy since the Georgetown University quartet from Washington D. C. is entered. This team recently set a new world's indoor 1600-meter relay mark and has been running together in big indoor eastern meets all year. Ascher, former Illinois runner and Jimmy Burgess, member of the 1924 Olympic team and former National A. A. U. quarter mile champion are mainstays of the Georgetown team. This pair ran on the quartet which shattered Iowa's record at the Illinois Relays last winter.

Wallie Schang, Good Luck Catcher

By NORMAN E. BROWN
TARPOON SPRINGS, Fla., March 22—One's first impression of Wallie Schang, as you watch the well known catcher in action here, is that there is nothing new to write about him. Why should there be? He's been in the game 16 years, has worked out that many springs, and has gone through the motions so often that it's an old story to him and everybody else.

But then you notice that he is wearing a different uniform, one with the words "St. Louis" on, of course.

Which is the vital point when it is pointed out that—

When he joined the Athletics as a rookie and donned their uniform they won two pennants. That was in 1913-1914.

Four years later, 1918, he changed to a Red Sox uniform and they won a pennant. Then, in 1921 he moved over to New York and that team proceeded to win three pennants in a row.

Now, of course, this might have been a coincidence in the first case. It might be ranked as a bit unusual in the second instance. But explain the third one.

Now we have him wearing the dandy new "monkey suit" of the St. Louis Browns.

But seriously, as I size up the Browns, Schang may be the man to make the team.

He Replaces Old Hank

Consider a few things.

Hank Severed, late of the Browns and now with Washington, has long been rated as a good catcher, a man capable of handling a big league hurling staff. Ever since George Sleser took charge of the Brown team his main problem has been his pitching staff. This, despite the fact that his list of hurlers have appeared formidable, have been given credit by critics for having the combined ability, and have had Severed to handle their offerings.

Sleser will start the 1926 campaign with virtually the same strength on the mound, as far as it can be estimated now. He has let the veteran Joe Bush depart as everyone knows and has added the southpaw, Zachary, and a young right-hander, Ballou, to his staff. These changes make very little tangible difference.

But Severed has departed and Wallie Schang has come to take up the catching burden.

Supposing—just supposing—that the Browns plunge their way to the pennant on the strength of their usual batting power and BETTER PITCHING. Where must the credit fall logically?

Schang sees Rosy Days regarding the Browns' chances.

"Zachary alone may make up the difference in the number of victories between what they won last year and what they needed to beat out Washington," says Walter. He does not discuss his own part in the plans, however. But Sleser does.

"Schang is the man to handle such pitchers as Vangilder, Davis and young Gaston and the others," says George. They're good men in the box when they have someone to steady them.

While Wallie is laboring to help the Browns bridge the gap that has existed between their machine and the pennant pike the last few years, Pat Collins is trying to win Wallie's job in New York. This after laboring in vain for a couple of years to oust the veteran Severed at St. Louis, which is interesting though not momentous.

Bill Hargrave, obtained from the Senators last season, will share the catching burden with Wallie if the pace sets too hot and Leo Dixon and the diminutive Tony Rego are also on deck to work behind the plate if need be. Sleser has hung onto Rego for two years believing that the little fellow will some day fit into the Brown machinery.

Major League Ball Teams Begin Trip North This Week

TAMPA, Fla., Mar. 22 (AP)—Baseball teams start their exodus from Florida this week.

The New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers complete training Thursday and leave on an exhibition tour which will take them north for the beginning of the season.

The Boston Braves and Washington Senators break camp April 3. The Braves will play the third game of a series with the Providence Internationals Friday and meet the St. Louis Browns Saturday.

The Yankees meet the Cincinnati Reds tomorrow and Thursday at St. Petersburg.

The Yankees and the Dodgers are billed for fourteen exhibition games as they swing northward. Two games at the Yankee stadium in New York will end the trip.

Starting northward April 1, the Braves are to play Providence in Jersey City April 4 and before the season opens will meet the Baltimore Orioles twice at Boston. They will end the pre-season schedule at Providence April 11.

St. Pat's Basket Ball Team Returns Home

St. Patrick's cage squad arrived back in Iowa City yesterday morning after a five days' sojourn in Chicago during the national Catholic prep school tournament. The Irish had little luck in the tourney, meeting defeat at the hands of Calvert Hall of Baltimore in the opening round.

The tourney, which opened last Thursday morning, was filled with upsets. Three Chicago teams who were doped to place high in the list, were eliminated in the opening rounds. Spaulding Institute of Peoria, Marquette Academy, St. Louis University High and many other strong fives were also eliminated. In the final Sunday night, St. Xavier's of Louisville, Ky., won the national championship by defeating Aquinas high of Rochester, N. Y. They will probably enter in the national high school tourney to be held at the University of Chicago this week end.

Ingwersen Sees No Harm in Rule Shift

Recent Changes Made to Speed up Game for Spectator's Benefit

By "PUD" LOGAN
The new changes in the football code as adopted by the rules committee in its annual meeting in New York Saturday will not detract from the thrill of the sport but will necessitate a somewhat different type of field generalship, according to Coach Burton A. Ingwersen.

The new rules, dealing with passing, fumbles, safeties, and players running out of bounds, are on the whole designed to speed up the game and make it more interesting for the spectator. The regulation of passing is the only rule that will vitally affect the game.

The amendment provides for a penalty of five yards to be levied against the team that attempts a forward pass on the second or third down and fails. Such a ruling will undoubtedly do away with a lot of wild passing in the early stages of the game. On the other hand it will not kill the famous last minute come-backs, for a team desperate in the last few minutes will not hesitate for fear of a five yard penalty.

No Intentional Safeties

Another regulation is designed to eliminate stalling by purposely permitting safeties. With only a few minutes to go some teams, with their backs against their own goal line, throw the ball back of their own lines and recover it there. This is ruled a safety and the offending team puts the ball in play on the thirty yard line and two points is given to the opponents.

The new rule provides that in case of a safety the ball shall not be put in play from the thirty-five yard line, but shall be placed on the twenty-yard line and must be kicked on the first down. The opposing team is restricted to the thirty yard line on this first play.

Another law provides that the ball is dead as soon as it crosses the side lines. This prevents the piling of players into the spectators and band. The ball is given to the hand. The ball is given to the went out of bounds.

Ineligible Out of Bounds
If a player runs out of bounds, he automatically becomes ineligible to receive the ball on a kick-off or to recover a fumble. He is free to make a tackle, however. This new ruling is designed to keep players from running out of bounds in order to avoid being blocked.

The tendency of the new rules is to do away with stalling and the "what I can get by with is all right" attitude. It will mean a faster game for time is taken out as soon as the ball crosses the side lines, or the end lines for a safety, and the watches are not started again until the ball is in play.

Arrest Two for Intoxication

William Yarek and Michael Hogan were arrested last night by Night Captain Gus Mahnke and Don McComas, at Chick Nichols' residence, 825 South Capitol street, on the charge of disturbing the peace by intoxication. They were lodged in the city jail waiting their trial before Mayor J. J. Carroll this morning.

Seven Inning Game Ends in 5 to 5 Tie

Hurlers Hold Batters Helpless During Most of Contest; Three Hits Made

Rain greeted the initial appearance of the varsity baseball squad on Iowa Field yesterday afternoon, but Coach Otto Vogel sent his men through a light practice that ended with a seven inning tie game between the two picked nines.

Captain Flynn and a number of veterans were pitted against a second string team and managed to gain a five to five tie after having trailed by a five to nothing count until the seventh inning. Towne started on the mound for the regulars and Adams worked for the seconds.

Adams was later relieved by Corbin and Towne gave way to Stegman. The hurlers were bothered considerably by the cool weather, but had little difficulty in holding the batters hitless, only three safe singles being made during the game.

took time after the practice to tell them that it is their development in the hitting department of the game that will decide their chances of going on the southern trip.

The two teams lined up as follows: Regulars—Hoben lb, Gamble 2b, Smith ss, Terry 3b, W. Miller lf, Captain Flynn cf, Wilds rf, S. Miller c, Towne p; Seconds—Kutsch lb, Hutchinson 2b, Heiserman ss, Gibbs 3b, Stancato lf, Aults cf, Sals rf, Beardsley c, Adams p. Broders, Bolsinger, Corbin, Stegman, Grau, and Burman also got into action later in the game.

Ernie Nevers in New Role

By NORMAN E. BROWN
TARPON SPRINGS, Fla., Mar. 22—George Sisler, laboring to tune his Browns into pennant winning shape here and confident that his year is at hand, has two interesting young men with his club who did not receive an introduction last spring for the simple reason they weren't seen.

One is Oscar Melillo, the second baseman who set a world's fielding record in the American Association last year.

And the other is Ernie Nevers, who was to the Pacific coast in football what Red Grange was to the territory east of the Mississippi. This Leland Stanford star is conceded to be the greatest fullback the west has ever produced—if not the best the country has developed.

Between gridiron seasons at school Nevers played baseball and proved himself a good college player as a pitcher and a hitter.

Nevers' baseball showing was not, however, what prompted the big league teams to angle for his services (the Browns had to pay him cold cash to sign a contract). It was the chance that, being an all around athlete, he might be developed into a big league ball player.

Perfect co-ordination of brain and muscles form the basis for the star athlete, whether he be a football, baseball or track star. It is in the hope that they can combine this perfect co-ordination with the technical part of baseball and become stars that big league teams try out some of these sensational college boys.

Thorpe Was Failure
John McGraw signed Jim Thorpe for that reason. Here was a man who had perfect physique, absolute control of himself physically, keen perception (judging by his ring, elusive running on the football field), and the apparent natural ability "to pick up" any sport. He had played some baseball in college.

But he was a total failure as a big league ball player because, though he labored hours a day at the batting cage, he could not learn to locate curve balls when they came over the plate.

Whether or not Nevers will find himself faced with such an unsurmountable obstacle remains to be seen.

He looks to me like a natural hitter—against spring pitching. Flow he will fare as the hurlers hook the ball more and more remains to be seen. He handles himself well in the outfield and would therefore find an opening in the lineup were he to develop into a good hitter.

He is a stewart, rugged type—the kind who, having the bugbear of to much weight, carry their baseball burden lightly. And the big thing about him is that he is of the present generation of college athletes who realize early the value of maintaining perfect condition.

Nevers will remain with the Browns this season, regardless of whether or not he wins a berth as a second defense man. Sisler likes the big fellow, and so does Coach Jimmy Austin. And the big league fans will want to see the grid hero in a big league baseball uniform.

Ingwersen Drives Men Through Drill

Thirty-Five Prospects Take Part in Stiff Scrimmage

Despite the best efforts of the rain, Coach "Burt" Ingwersen pushed his squad of some thirty-five football candidates through a stiff scrimmage, last night on Iowa field.

After warming up drills, in which the linemen devoted their time to charging, blocking, and offensive stance; and the backfield candidates gathered in passes; three complete teams snatched through a brief signal practice.

Scrimmage Lineup
The tentative line up for scrimmage was: Wilson and Armstrong at the ends; Oliver and Keel at tackles; Van Voorst and Ohlemacher at guards; and Chatterton over the ball. Coach Ingwersen alternated two complete backfields, composed of Skelley, O'Neal, Grimm, Smith, Arml, Miller and McLain. These two combinations worked the ball through the defense for numerous gains.

After ripping the opposing line and running the ends, the seconds were given the ball, but the stubborn resistance of the first string, stopped them from gaining consistently. Wilson at end was a power on the defense, and it was largely through his stellar work that the opposing rushes were stopped.

Wants More Men
Coach Ingwersen is anxious that all men in the university with previous football experience report to him immediately, and get into uniform, that he may see them in action and get some sort of a line on their ability.

Vaulters, Jumpers Hold Own Meet at Armory Tomorrow

Jumpers and vaulters to strengthen the Iowa track team will be sought for when a big meet is held in the armory starting tomorrow. The event, a four day affair has been instituted by C. R. Brookins, assistant in track.

The high jump, broad jump and pole vault are the events included. The dates of the affair are March 24, 27, 31, and April 3. Any man in the university is eligible.

Two sections of the meet will be held. In the first will be all upper classmen and in the second freshmen. Prizes, consisting of jerseys will be given to the winners of the first three places in each event of each section.

De Molays Prepare for State Tourney

Have Another Week to Get Ready for Chariton Meet

The DeMolay basket ball quintet is looking forward to a strenuous week of practice, which Coach Carroll believes will put his chargers in first class shape for the state tourney at Chariton on April 1, 2, and 3.

The lodge boys showed a lot of stuff in their game Friday night against the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity quintet. Their offense is molded around Strickler, Wallen, and Koser, who are excellent shots and fine floor men. As yet there is too much individualism in their attack, but this fault is eradicating itself more and more with each practice session, and by the time they leave for the state meet it should be entirely eliminated. The defense however presents more of a problem to Coach Carroll as his guards are not first class defensive men. In the Alpha Sig game time and again the defense would get out of position and enable a man to dribble in for an easy shot.

From all advance indications the Iowa City quintet ranks high in the big tourney. Practically every team entered is made up of high school players. Boone ran away with the honors last year and will again be on hand. Jack North of the Des Moines Evening Tribune will referee all the games. The tournament is to be conducted under the rules of the Iowa High School Athletic Association and will be a purely amateur affair.

Court Has Busy Day; Takes Four Cases Under Advisement

"Lady Luck" Plays Trick on Four Men

State May Confiscate Wager on Brookhart-Steck Election Contest

After a quiet day at the court house Saturday, things opened yesterday with a rush. Harold Harmon, recently convicted on a lewdness charge, was fined $200 and costs; a man wanted in Michigan on a forgery charge where he jumped parole, was apprehended after cashing two worthless checks; Bernard T. Heptle, who has confessed to stealing a Chevrolet coupe in Oxford, March 3, was arraigned and the case of the State vs. $153.00 wager money was taken under advisement.

Apprehend Forger

Charles Talor, known by several aliases, was caught by the police as he was trying to cash his third worthless check in Iowa City at the Weicher Hardware Co. Previous to this he had cashed a check for $10 at the Henry Louis drug store and one for $17.50 at Dvorak and O'Hara jewelry shop, neither of which was good. Shortly after he was caught word was received from Michigan that a man answering Talor's description was wanted for forgery and finger prints and pictures of the suspect were sent into the bureau of identification at Washington, D. C. by sheriff Martin where positive identification was made. The prisoner violated parole at Milwaukee, several months ago and has nine years of a fourteen year reformatory sentence still to serve. He will be sent to Michigan and the charges here will be dropped.

Steck-Brookhart Wager

The case of the State vs. $153.00 Wager money previously mentioned, was taken under advisement by Judge R. G. Popham yesterday morning after the arguments of County Attorney Ed. O'Connor and Attorney H. G. Walker were heard. This is a case growing out of a wager made on the recent Steck-Brookhart election contest.

At the time of the Senatorial election Frank Spratt and Jerry Plumm put up $25.00 each and Jerry Plumm put up one dollar on Steck; Joseph Kennard accepted the wager and met it by placing twice as much as their combined bets or $120.00 on Brookhart. D. W. Collins was made stakeholder and the State has taken default against him.

Argument Arises

On election night a false report that Steck had won was received in Iowa City and the Steck boosters demanded their money from Collins who refused to turn it over until the official count came in. When it did Brookhart was declared the winner. Before the money was paid to Kennard, however, notice of a contest was filed by Steck and the money still remained in Collins' possession. An argument arose as to who should have the money and Joseph B. Scannell, a newspaper reporter was called in. He decided the stake holder should keep the money till the contest was decided. Kennard expressed his opinions by beating up Scannell who filed suit against him for assault and battery.

Miss Anna Robinson, 76 years old, a long time resident of Iowa City was found dead in bed early yesterday morning by the nurse attending her at the home of her sister, Mrs. Caroline Fickes, 110 N. Clinton street. She had been under the doctor's care for a long time suffering with heart trouble.

Born in Ohio, Miss Robinson had made her home with her sister here for several years.

Besides her sister here, she is survived by a sister, Mrs. Frank Wertz, Forreston, Ill., and a nephew, Dr. J. B. Fickes, Omaha, Neb., who was expected to arrive in Iowa City late last night.

No funeral arrangements have been made yet.

C. of C. Fails to Hear Sen. Haskell

Legislator Ill; Mumma Lauds Community Chest Drive

Chamber of Commerce members were disappointed yesterday in not hearing Sen. W. G. Haskell of Cedar Rapids who was to have talked at the noon luncheon but who was confined to his bed Saturday night with an attack of influenza.

Senator Haskell was to have spoken among other things, on the efforts he and other Iowa legislators are making to have the Governor of Iowa call a special session of the legislature to provide for a better state road system.

Mumma Pushes Drive

In the absence of Mr. Haskell the program was filled by local speakers preceded by several piano selections by Miss Sara Weiner of the school of music.

Col. Morton C. Mumma, general chairman of the community chest for which a campaign for funds is now in progress, outlined briefly the community service by the organizations supported by the community chest fund and emphasized the necessity of filling it during the days of soliciting on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week.

Weatherly Speaks

The Rev. A. F. Weatherly, of the Unitarian church, spoke on "Community Service in General." He endorsed the work of all the community service organizations especially praising the social service league and Miss Powell's work in its interest. He expressed a doubt of whether there was as much general intelligence today as is supposed when he discovered that so many were reluctant to contribute to community service. He intimated that millions were spent foolishly while worthwhile causes lacked adequate support.

Over in the orthopedic department of the children's hospital a slightly crippled, gray haired woman bends daily to her task of rolling bandages. For the past eight years more of her working hours have been spent in front of a table there doing the same work in the east room. The result of years of pain and toll are stamped on her patient face but there is always a smile for everyone she meets. Events of the past week have made her smile unusually happy.

"As mayor of Iowa City, the quiet efficiency of the Social Service League, the public spirit and good conduct of the Boy Scouts, the home service training of the Girl Scouts, and the courteous attention to visitors by the Rest Room are all frequently brought to my attention. "Every worth-while city supports these and similar organizations. Such support must always come through voluntary contributions. I therefore urge the citizens of Iowa City to contribute liberally to the Community Chest to the end that this good work may continue with an enlarged program."
