"Buzz"

ALLOW us to present Ralph Harold Hogan, otherwise known as "Buzz." Note carefully the broad smile (which does not show in our picture). The reason? No, another guess: he was elected captain of the 1927 basket ball team Tuesday night.

"Buzz" was the flash of lightning in the Hawkeye battle line which brought Iowa up from the Great Unknown at the bottom of the Big Ten heap to the top. Hogan, who distinguished himself as leader of the Osage high school aggregation which won state championship and went into the national semi-finals, comes well-recommended for the job. The national high school tournament conferred all-American honors upon him. And now the man who made Osage stand for something besides a tribe of Indians is the Sachem of the Iowas.

The captain-elect was far more a victor than a victim of circumstance when Raffensperger, rangy Iowa guard, was injured early in the past season. Throughout the remainder of the year "Buzz" did all together creditable floor work and was the moving spirit behind many Iowa baskets. Hogan should make a good leader, for he can give fatherly or technical advice to his men.

His selection marks the third time recently that the captain of a major sport has been a married man, and in this respect "Buzz" is one with Captains Glenn Miller and Charley Brookins.

Clairvoyant sports writers see in his selection a distinguished season in 1927; that's why "Buzz" is smiling. So are we all.

Skinning the Songsters

A RECENT decision by Solicitor Donnelly of the U. S. Post Office department recommends the issuance of a fraud order against a prominent "music corporation" upon evidence showing that the concern used the mails for obtaining money by false pretense.

The advertisements inserted by the alleged violators in the "Gentle Woman" type of magazine announced a prize contest for the best second verse to a popular song. Applicants for the prize would then be sent letters stimulating the sale of musical settings for their verse "in view of their apparent interest in song writing." The applicant would be induced, after being convinced that his talent was lying dormant, to part with his hard-earned savings and embark upon the ship of fame. The evidence shows that the company employed music writers who turned out melodies for less than two dollars each for which the talented verse writer was charged about fifty dollars. In the end, the song failed to sell for some unexplainable reason.

Perhaps one word might explain why such frauds can be worked. That word is "vanity." Nothing can fool individuals more easily, and sometimes it is the easiest way to get along though the method is not a lasting one. Admire a woman's hat and she will have a congenial attitude toward you. Tell a man that you love to hear him talk and he will tell you everything. Even the most modest are susceptible to this back-patting plague.

A little more analysis and less tendency to swallow flattery and the "con" men would not find so much gullible material.

America First—Hearst

MR. WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST, in a signed editorial in one of his newspapers, pleads for a hands-off policy for the United States in affairs of the world. The tone of the article, which refers to the Monroe Doctrine, the prosperity of our country in lieu of non-intervention, the middle in Europe, etc., might be boiled down to this: Deliver us from evil; let us stay in our own back yard.

It is quite true, as Mr. Hearst declares, that America is a prosperous country and that she has become prosperous "minding her own business." Of course! Nations cannot fight and prosper at the same time. In that, fortune has smiled on our shores. But Mr. Hearst infers that our prosperity is due to our non-participation in the affairs of other nations.

Would any well-informed European give such an explanation of our wealth? Hardly. He would cite the great resources of our states; our mines, our forests, our farm lands, our rivers and lakes, our climatic conditions, all the elements conducive to unending growth contained ideally in one remarkably situated area. And this is certainly the reason for our rapid strides.

And who has developed these great resources? Certainly not the Indians, who are the only "native" Americans. But rather the British, the French, the Germans, the Dutch, the Russians, the Scandinavians, the Bohemians, and all the other races and nationalities who have struggled through pioneer hardships and made our present situation possible.

Then the sons and grandsons of these pioneers crossed the seas to the birthplaces of their fathers and grandfathers and thousands of them gave their health and their lives in "a war to end war." Instead, the wholesale slaughter has proved to be just one of those wars that savages might engage in, in which the strongest proves victorious.

And now are we to sit back here in our cozy Morris chairs while nations make a sincere attempt to arbitrate future troubles. Isn't it about time we were out of date? Isn't it about time America woke up to her place in modern civilization and exercised her courage and ability in a movement that will profit her as much as the rest of the world?

Why British Crime is Less

IN England, a British lawyer states in a recent news dispatch, "criminals get speedy justice. All the jazz is taken out of the trials. The jury is picked in some fifteen minutes. The atmosphere of the court is solemn and impressive; the judge robed and wigged. Nothing funny ever happens. The average murderer is arrested, tried and hanged—after an appeal—within ten weeks, no matter how rich he is." It seems that English judges are appointed for life on a good salary. They have no other interest than dispensing justice. The judge and not the lawyer always dominates. Another thing, an alleged insane criminal is examined by official government alienists. Their testimony is the only one permitted and their decision stands.

One's first visit to an American courtroom might make him wonder if a bit of the English system might not be helpful here. The long list of objections, the play of wit and satire, sometimes seem a trifle out of place before a court of justice. The frequent appeals, the all too successful pleas of insanity, the increase of crime, seem almost to verify the present day saying that a conviction cannot be secured in an important case before the average American courts. The British are stubborn. They have their own ideas of law and legal procedure but perhaps, after all, they are right. Mayhap we have been carrying this idea of personal liberty a bit too far.

What Price News?

IN a new book on the newspaper written by Harper Leech, the "Scurator" of the Chicago Tribune, and John C. Carroll of the Medill School of Journalism, the authors declare that a newspaper can no more afford to poison its news than a dairyman can afford to poison his milk.

"The newspaper which poisons its product poisons itself. Suppression of important or pertinent facts in the interest of popularity, class, gang, clique or self-interest is the equivalent of a death warrant if persisted in. Of this toll of dead newspapers is sufficient testimony."

Somehow there still exists the fallacy among skeptics that the newspaper purposely edits its news for malicious motives. Black headlines are often interpreted as the newspaper's expression of its policy when in reality they are usually nothing more than an indication of the importance of the news. Seldom does a newspaper emphasize an issue unless the issue is related to a policy the newspaper deems constructive and in most cases the newspaper is the community's greatest asset.

Sensational and poisonous newspapers may come, flare up for a while as a novelty, and then fade away to the morgue of bad journalism.

Good journalism has paid its promoters well. Bad journalism has paid the price.

Poems That Live

Spring

To what purpose, April, do you return again? Beauty is not enough. You can no longer quiet me with the redness of little leaves opening stickily. I know what I know. The sun is hot on my neck as I observe The spikes of the crocus. The smell of the earth is good. It is apparent that there is no death. But what does that signify? Not only under ground are the brains of men Eaten by maggots. Life is itself— Is nothing— An empty cup, a flight of uncarpeted stairs. It is not enough that yearly, down this hill, April Comes like an idiot, babbling and strewing flowers! —Edna St. Vincent Millay.

CHILLS AND FEVER

PERSONAL INTERVIEWS

(With F. R. E.)

The cub reporter climbed to the heights and pounded on the door of the lighthouse.

He trembled as he waited for someone to open the door; surely the appearance of F. R. E. at nine in the morning would be enough to worry anyone.

The printer's devil opened the door and admitted the cub to the sanctum of the genius.

F. R. E. lounged at ease on a crooked chair, eating cream puffs and damning the weather man.

After some preliminary remarks, concerned with the time of the day, the interview started with a bang.

F. R. E. had dropped his typewriter on the floor.

"What do I think of the university?" mused the column conductor, thoughtlessly stroking his chin. "Well, perhaps we had better take up some subject with which I am better acquainted."

The reporter hesitated and then asked, "But what about journalism as a life profession?"

The great man smiled enigmatically at this remark and wisely replied that he didn't care for apples, at least not today.

The cub marveled at the self control of the man and tried another tack.

"What do you think about Dreiser?" But to no avail, for F. R. E. remarked that a statement from him on this topic might be taken as a reflection on the university library.

The conversation gradually drifted into a monologue, the immortal asking questions and then answering them.

"Do I think Babe Ruth will come back? No, not so long as there are snow balls on the Blue Goose floor. As a matter of fact, I promised Ken McDonald that I wouldn't say anything about it."

He reflected for a moment and then continued, "Am I satisfied with life? Well, to be perfectly frank, I am very well satisfied with everything. It seems to me that a young man can, through hard work and ambition, achieve anything he wants, whether it be a date at the D. G. house or membership in the Y. M. C. A."

"Personally, my tastes are very simple, as you may judge by my associates. I mildly approve of Ann Pennington, the movies, Irving Berlin, the Mercury, Iowa, The Daily Iowan, and Tim Murphy. I cordially detest Saturday night bars, early hours and shredded wheat biscuits."

"What do I think of marriage? Here, here; let's not speak of the A. T. O. chapter until we dispose of other things."

The cub was busy taking notes, admiring the easy grace with which his host disposed of things.

"My aragraph, certainly; may I was the cause of the... He endorsed the check and returned it to the cub, pocketing the pen nonchalantly.

"And now, my good friend, if you'll excuse me, I'll return to my studies and prepare a lengthy treatise on Desertes for a class in spokesmanship."

The curtain slowly descended on the scene, leaving our hero in peace. —R. A. P.

THE HONOR MAN AT COLLEGE

RESEARCH at the University of Chicago indicates that the diligent student after he leaves college is by no means always an unequalled success. He often fills some job where specific information is required but not one calling for the higher order of brains. Why? Probably because of a profound difference between the kind of student who learns his lessons unquestioningly and the kind who learns them the least bit grudgingly. The one is a born believer; he believes both book and professor, and believes that if he works hard enough industry will be rewarded. The other is a born sceptic; he doubts the book, he doubts the professor, he doubts whether what the book says is worth much after you have learned it. What is immensely more important, he doubts whether the world, in its infinite goodness, rewards industry any more than it has to. As a result he does not make a brilliant record in college, for in college a brilliant record too often simply means well-learned lessons. But how his acumen tests once he gets out! It soon dawns on him that industry alone is seldom highly paid, so he begins to furnish what the world is willing to pay for, which is intelligence. And, curiously enough, by the time he has been out of college ten years he is usually better educated than the student who out-riced him in the class-room. It has occurred to him to wonder why Washington chopped down the cherry-tree, and he has found out that Washington didn't.

Letter to the Editor

Writers should limit themselves to 200 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts returned.

EDITOR'S NOTE—The policy of The Daily Iowan for the past year toward University Theatre and other productions has been to treat the performance in each case as a news story, not in a critical review. For this purpose it has relied upon its own staff members in order to present an account of a play the following morning rather than a formal criticism several days later. At times when the judgment of a news-writer has not been comprehensive enough to summarize a production the advice of faculty members has been requested. Such was the case of the Shakespearean play this week. Ten members of the English department selected for personal observations but only Mr. Ashton of this group planned to attend the play Tuesday night. The article, based upon his comments, was not meant as a formal criticism but simply as an individual's signed observations.

To the Editor: Your paper Wednesday morning gave so much prominence by its two column head to the comments of John W. Ashton regarding "Romeo and Juliet" that in justice to the players I believe certain statements are necessary. Mr. Ashton selected for adverse comment one of the most skillful bits of voice work done by a student player this year, that done by Mrs. Vivian McCarty as Juliet. Her handling of her voice throughout the entire performance showed a development of control of breathing and of resonance, and a distinctness of speech which I personally wish might be realized by every one of the players.

Of course readers of The Daily Iowan and University Theatre patrons will not call upon me to apologize for omitting the snappy and coarse passages and characterizations. In reply to the adverse comments regarding the waits between scenes, I wish to submit the stage manager's time report upon the second performance and say that I am willing it should be compared with the time report of the stage manager of any other company, professional or amateur. The time report shows that the prologue opened at seven minutes after 8 o'clock and the last curtain was down at forty-eight minutes after 10, making the aggregate time for playing and changes of scenes two hours and forty-one minutes. The play was divided by two intermissions. The first series of twelve scenes was played in one hour and sixteen minutes. The second series of four scenes was played in thirty-two minutes. The third series of five scenes was played in thirty-nine minutes. Both intermissions were seven minutes long. Changes of stage setting made at times other than during the two larger intermissions occupied on one occasion three minutes, on three occasions two minutes, and all other scene changes were made in less than one minute. The report indicates the simple fact that Mr. Ashton did not make his observation accurately.

The question as to whether Romeo should actually use the crow on the gates of the tomb and the question whether Mercutio was hysterical are matters of opinion and of course Mr. Ashton is entitled to his. I do not agree with his comment regarding Mercutio. The business of breaking open the gates of the tomb by striking the lock with the iron bar was definitely set as a part of the action and met the approval of directors and others who were consulted. The extent to which an amateur player's interpretation is inspired and the extent to which an amateur player realizes the depth and variety of emotions involved in a characterization varies, in my experience, from scene to scene and from performance to performance. I do not agree with the criticism that the entire production lacked inspiration, nor am I ready to list the Romeo and Juliet performances as perfect performances in these respects, but it seemed to me that the players did realize both the inspirational and emotional interpretation sufficiently to make the undertaking genuinely worth while and a pleasure to the majority of those in the audience. That the performances have their flaws as well as their good points no one realizes better than a director, but I must in justice to the players object to some of the comments made by this gentleman, whom the announcement on the first page of The Iowan the day before led us to assume was a competent critic. —E. C. Mabie.

GETTING IN ON YOUR FACE

IN the revision of Harvard admission regulations which will be effective for freshmen this September the existing limitation of 1,000 will continue but the method of selection will emphasize the individual character and personality. A photograph of the applicant must accompany his papers and testimonials. It is not precisely indicated what standard is to be maintained by the photography and considerable there depends. If Mr. Horween, the new football coach, is to have a look at the picture gallery before the committee makes its selection, a bulge in the thorax may have an edge over a bulge in the dome. Or it may be a Harvard idea to produce a type of Greek beauty for the collar ads or it may be the desire to run fifty-fifty as between the Samsons and the sheiks.

There has been a surmise that Harvard was interested in preserving the Nordic type and would allow only a 20 per cent variation from it in the freshman class. We are not sure that the intellectual antics of the Nordics in this land deserve such consideration, and among important personages at Harvard who are not Nordic are Mr. Horween himself and Isador Zarakor, who now has four major H's. The 20 per cent variation from the Nordic may be designed to provide Harvard's football.

St. Louis Fray Postponed but Hawk Baseball Team Heads South

Snows in Billiken Camp Block Plans of Hawk Mentor

Game to Be Played on Return Trip From Dixie

Jokes will be in order on April first, but "old man winter" went the world one better when he slipped down to St. Louis and covered the Billiken baseball field with a thick blanket of snow as a prank on the Iowa baseball squad, which departed over the Rock Island line last night. This necessitated the postponement of the game scheduled with St. Louis University this afternoon, but the Hawkeye leader received a telegram from Coach Savage just before leaving last night to the effect that a game will be played with the returning Iowans on next Thursday afternoon, April 8.

Light Workout Today

Coach Vogel attempted to rearrange train connections upon learning that the game with the Billikens could not be played but all efforts were in vain. This will compel the Hawks to remain in St. Louis this afternoon as was scheduled and so the fifteen journeying eskimo ball tossers will be taken to the west side gym of the Billikens for a light workout. Hungry for something besides ice and snow the eskimos will be tucked away in their pullman beds and be carried through the night into the sunny south to realize that their dreams have come true.

Friday noon will find the team in Oxford, Mississippi, the scenes of the first battle. Due to the shake-up in the schedule the port-siders will probably not work in these games but turn over the responsibility of coping two victories to the right hands, Towne and Adams. The veteran stands the better chance of getting the call in the initial engagement and should turn in a comfortable win, the cotton pickers not being rated as strong as the Billikens. Towne undoubtedly will go the route for the Hawkeyes in the second game and if he is able to squeeze through with a win the Iowans will be in position to make a cleanup on the southerners.

Victories Expected

Sunday the team will rest at Starkville and on Monday afternoon they will cross hats with the Mississippi A. and M. nine. Corbine is expected to pitch the first game and Jake Stegman will try to make it four straight in the contest on Tuesday afternoon. The A. & M. boys have the respect of any baseball club and if the southpaws turn the trick in the pair of battles with them the Vogelmen will have all

Captain Eddie Flinn will send back stories to The Daily Iowan of the games as the baseball team wades its way through southern snows and winds on its second annual practice trip. After each game The Iowan will receive a box score and a story of the contest from the Hawkeye leader.

Hawk Gridironmen Work Out Indoors

Coach Ingwersen Will Drill Men During Easter Holidays

With Old Man Winter is at large in Iowa City, "Burt" Ingwersen and his football squad were forced to remain under cover. However, despite the inclemency of the elements, some thirty members of his squad assembled in the small crack-box gym at the north end of the second floor at men's gymnasium, where the coach gave them a brief chalk-talk, and drilled them on formations given them thus far this spring.

With Iowa field buried under a heavy blanket of snow, "Burt" and his cohorts are forced to discontinue outdoor practice and scrimmages, but no time will be lost because of this, and chalk-talks and signal drills will be served the men as long as things remain in the present state.

According to Ingwersen, "Weather permitting, practices will be held throughout the Easter holidays, for those men who remain in Iowa City."

Consultation with the calendar, and our friends the M. D.'s, who have pronounced spring fever as prevalent among the student body, shows conclusively that Old Man Winter should be gathering up his unruly offspring—the snow, ice, and chilly breezes—and leave for parts unknown.

It is the opinion of Coach G. T. Breesman that his quarter-milers of 1926 are as promising as those which set the American record in 1923. The Iowans time at the Rice Relays last Saturday, their second outdoor appearance was 3:21 9-10, just five seconds slower than the record of 3:16 9-10 hung up by the 1923 team at the height of its form. By the time of the Drake Relays, the Hawkeyes should top seconds off their mark.

The present team is being set to win the event at the Kansas and Drake Relays. Travelling trophies, won twice by Iowa teams will become permanent possessions if victories are recorded this year.

Here are the figures on Iowa mile relay performances, 1922 to 1926.

Year	Time
1922	3:16 9-10
1923	3:16 9-10

Hawk Mile Relay Teams Do Well in Last Five Years

Win Twenty-five races Out of Thirty-nine Starts

One mile relay teams, built from fourteen Iowa quarter-milers of the past five years have won twenty-five of the thirty-nine races on tracks in various parts of the country. The present combination, winners of five of six races is carrying on the work started in 1922 when the Hawkeye quartet first flashed into nationwide prominence.

Win A. A. U. Race

Recorded among the twenty-five triumphs which were tallied in spite of the off season of 1925 when no firsts were won, are brilliant victories at the Illinois, Drake, Kansas and Texas Relays and at the indoor and outdoor Western Conference meets and the National A. A. U. affair. Four times have the Hawkeyes taken the mile relay at the Illinois carnival, three times at the indoor Big Ten meet and twice each at the Drake and Kansas Relays. In twelve of the fourteen races which the Iowans did not win, the runner-up position was secured.

When the team of 1923, which ran intact with Morrow, Noll, Brookins and Wilson won eleven of twelve starts and set an American intercollegiate and national A. A. U. mark, it established itself as the greatest Iowa four. No university team was able to win from it and the sole loss was to a picked all-eastern combination.

Cubel Fast

Six men of the fourteen who have raced quarters on the teams since 1922 have gone under the fifty second mark with regularity. Morrow Noll, Brookins, Wilson, Coulter and Cubel are the fastest of the lot.

It is the opinion of Coach G. T. Breesman that his quarter-milers of 1926 are as promising as those which set the American record in 1923. The Iowans time at the Rice Relays last Saturday, their second outdoor appearance was 3:21 9-10, just five seconds slower than the record of 3:16 9-10 hung up by the 1923 team at the height of its form. CHICAGO, Ill., March 31— Iowa lost all chance at this year's national interscholastic basketball crown when Newton High, winner of the state tournament, took the second worst drubbing yet handed out in the national basketball tournament tonight at the hands of El Reno, Okla., runners up in last year's tourney. The score was 45 to 12 in favor of the Oklahomaans.

Slow Work Costly

Inapt in passing and fatally slow in reforming its defense, the second Iowa team to go down to defeat in the first round of the tourney was totally unable to meet the speed of El Reno. After the Newton five had shown itself unable to hold the Oklahoma regulars, they were given a chance at five substitutes in the final period, but their morale had evidently been so weakened by the point total rolled up against them that they were unable to hold even the second team.

Newton's fatal weakness was an inability to cover up directly under the basket and time and again the Oklahoma regulars, they were given down to receive a short pass and score on a pop shot. Holloway sank two long shots for Newton which drew a round of applause from the onlookers.

DeMolays Leave for Cage Tourney

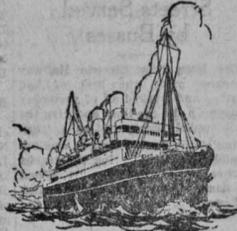

Meet Sac City Friday Morning in Opening Round

Coach Carroll and his DeMolay basketball squad left this morning at 4:30 via the Rock Island for Chariton and the state DeMolay cage tourney.

The opening game for the locals is scheduled to take place on Friday morning at eleven o'clock when they will meet Sac City. Although little is known concerning the boys of northwestern Iowa they are not considered one of the strong quintets in the tournament and the Iowa City lads should win their opening encounter. If they win they will be pitted against the winner of the Chariton-Albia game which will present a real stumbling block.

Carroll announced that the men who would form the starting lineup are, forwards, Captain Strickland and Koser, guards, Wallen and Watkins, while Geiger will care for the pivot position. The three reserves to make the trip are Lorack, Brown, and Dennis.

This is the first time that the Iowa City chapter has been represented in the basketball tournament which is an unusual affair.

When the runners are bunched on the track—and suddenly Chuck, your own superman half-miler, spurts ahead on the finish and wins—have a Camel!

WHEN the lithe half-milers are fighting for the lead. And your own dauntless champion suddenly soars ahead and wins—have a Camel!

For you'll never find another friend so attuned to your triumphs as Camel. Camels are made of the choicest tobaccos grown—they never disappoint your taste. Camels annihilated cigarette after-taste. Regardless of price, you'll never buy better tobaccos, or blending, or flavor than you get in Camels.

So this year when the old school's men go through for victory after victory—taste then the smoke that's choice of the world's victors.

Have a Camel!

Our highest wish, if you do not yet know Camel quality, is that you try them. Inevitably you will compare Camels with any cigarette made at any price.

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company

Into the making of this one cigarette goes all of the ability of the world's largest organization of expert tobacco men. Nothing is too good for Camels. The choicest Turkish and domestic tobaccos. The most skillful blending. The most scientific package. No other cigarette made like Camels. No better cigarette can be made. Camels are the overwhelming choice of experienced smokers.

Eleventh Hour Rush Stampedes Treasurer

Yesterday Deadline for County Tax Payments

Last minute tax-payers flocked to the county treasurer's office yesterday from all parts of the county to settle the first half of their tax accounts, thus enabling them to escape the penalty levied on all persons whose taxes are not paid by the last day of the month of March.

According to County Treasurer Charles L. Berry all persons who have not made payment of half of the amount of their taxes by the last day of March will be subject to the penalty of paying not only the entire amount of their taxes after that date but they will also be assessed at the rate of one per cent interest per month for every month after that date that they remain delinquent.

Regardless of the throngs of county taxpayers that visited the treasurer's office yesterday it is believed that a great number were held up by the snow drifted, impassable roads of the county.

County auto owners who have neglected to pay the taxes on cars during the month of March are to be reminded that after yesterday one dollar will be added to the tax on automobiles. Since the first of the year an extra dollar per month has been added to the motor car tax of every delinquent car tax payer in the county.

Scouts to Meet at Armory Today for Spring Jamboree

Indians Will Bite the Dust in Feature Stunt of Rally

Jingling cowbells, tooting horns, clattering hand klaxons, rattling tin cans filled the band room with their frenzied sounds last night, when seventy-five Boy Scouts met for a pep meeting preparatory to the spring jamboree to be held this afternoon.

Col. M. C. Mumma, who was in charge of the pep fest, gave a short talk to the boys and introduced Coach Charles Kennet, of the university golf team. Kennet spoke mainly on physical fitness, and said that physical education brings about physical fitness was the foundation of the Boy Scout organization. He illustrated his talk with many constructive examples.

Burton E. Ingwersen, football coach, was received with applause by the boys. He spoke also on the necessity of physical fitness and stressed the fact that every Boy Scout should live such a life that all people living with or coming in contact with him would know what Boy Scout training stands for.

Urges Sportsmanship

The football mentor also spoke about competition in games, and urged every boy to determine for himself to win, but if he lost to congratulate the winner.

Ralph H. Heeren, instructor in hygiene and preventative medicine, showed some slides portraying the life of the fly. Breeding places, and how the boys can find these places, were illustrated, and also the method of carrying disease. The Boy Scouts will start a campaign for fly prevention as soon as the weather permits. This campaign is sponsored by the Women's club, and has been approved by Mayor Carroll.

The Jamboree this afternoon will begin at 2 o'clock, and will be held at the armory. At this scout rally, to which the public is invited, 100 boy scouts will participate in tent pitching, fire building, throwing of life lines, bugling contests, and various other events. Some comedy events including the covered wagon, and an attack by an Indian, who kills the pioneer, and later sets fire to the wagon are also included on the program.

Colonel Mumma will be in charge of the jamboree. Judges for contests include Prof. B. J. Lambert, of the college of applied science, W. E. Beck, principal of the Iowa City high school, and Chas. E. Beckama, local business man.

Clear Car Lines by Day's Labor

Rundell and Center Streets Served by Busses

The Iowa City Electric Railway company made the best of bad weather and worked all of yesterday to open up the car lines and give the much-needed transportation service.

Due to the strong wind, it was impossible to start clearing the tracks until early yesterday morning. When the wind had abated somewhat men and cars were sent out to clear the tracks.

The N. Dodge street line was in operation from 8 o'clock on, but the Rundell and Center street lines were not opened until later. Bus service was installed until the lines were opened. The Park-Manville line was not opened until late yesterday afternoon but a bus was also installed on this line until the regular service started.

J. O. Schulze, general manager, states that it is difficult to keep the tracks clear as automobiles keep filling them up with packed snow until they are almost impassable.

"How to keep the tracks clear where the auto traffic is heavy is one of the big problems of city railway companies," Mr. Schulze said.

She was arrested here by Detective O. E. Carroll and Police Chief W. C. Benesh, of Cedar Rapids, at the instructions of a Parlor City shoe merchant who claimed she forged a check for $15 in payment of a $1 purchase. The check was drawn on an Iowa City bank and signed "Frank Gibson."
