Des Moines Today

Thirty Students Will Put Out Saturday's
Five Editions

The news room of The Des Moines Register will throw wide life this afternoon at 2 o'clock when thirty members of The Daily Iowan's news and editorial staff begin work on tomorrow morning's five editions. It will be the fifth time in as many years that Iowan staff members have edited The Des Moines Register.

The first contingent of twelve desk editors, copyreaders, and reporters left for Des Moines Tuesday to have four days to acquaint themselves with the copy system, style requirements, and central desk news mill of The Register. A second group of eighteen journalists left for the capital Wednesday.

Tomorrow's Des Moines Register will be entirely written, edited, and assembled by journalism students. It has been a custom for The Des Moines Register news and editorial staff to turn the management of the paper completely over to the university students. Iowan staff members will cover Des Moines city beats, write the day's editorials, select editorial page material, edit and write headlines for telegraph copy, outline the makeup, make assignments, and secure photographs.

Velma Critz Editor

Velma Critz, J4 of Iowa City and managing editor of The Daily Iowan will be in charge of Saturday's editions of The Des Moines Register as editor-in-chief. She will be assisted by desk editors of The Iowan, who will take over control of the society, city, wire, state, editorial, and sports departments of the capital newspaper.

Those who have been selected as desk editors are: Marjorie Green, J4 of Corydon, and Rachael Hawthorne, J3 of Mason City, society editors; Elvin Tilton, J3 of Iowa City and Jack Levy, A2 of Scranton, Pennsylvania; Leonard McGuire, J2 of Iowa City and Lawrence J. Evans, J4 of Davenport, sport editors.

Jack Bladine, A3 of Cedar Falls; Hazel Swanson, A3 of Des Moines; Katherine Macy, A3 of Adel; Eleanor Bardwell, A3 of Clinton; Russell Kolker, A2 of Ames; Harold Stearns, and Craig Miller, A4 of Newton will be wire editors. Maurice Collins, A4 of Fort Dodge, will be news editor; Karl Kohrs, J4 of Burlington, editor-page manager; and Russell Wilson, A3 of Des Moines, in charge of the state desks.

Many in Reporter's Squad

Reporters for this morning's Des Moines Register are Richard Wilson, A3 of Newton; Hazel Warren, A2 of West Liberty; Helen Salisbury, A3 of Independence; Esther Fuller, A2 of Mount Ayr; Dwight Bannister, A2 of Ottumwa; Joe A. Stewart, A2 of Des Moines; A. F. Ewers, A3 of Iowa City; Katherine Meyers, A3 of Lisbon; Thomas Ellinson, A2 of Des Moines; Kermel McFarland, Cm2 of Gowrie; Frances Winkelman, A3 of Lohrville; Newell N. Jones, A3 of Griswold; and Alice Reidy, A2 of Rockwell City.

The first edition of The Register goes to press at 7:50 o'clock this evening, and the last edition is off the press at 2 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Prof. F. J. Lazell of the school of journalism left yesterday for Des Moines to assist the students.

The Daily Iowan group will return to their homes Saturday morning.

Nutting Host to Class of '96 at a Picnic June 5

A noonday picnic at the home of Prof. C. C. Nutting has been planned for the reunion of the class of 1896, June 5. Each year, at the close of school in June, a reunion of all classes divisible by five with respect to that year is held. The group this year will be from the classes of 1921-16-11-6 and on back as far as any living graduates may remain. A loving cup is awarded to the class having the largest per cent of living graduates present.

There are six members of the class of '96 now living in Iowa City. They are Attorney S. D. Whiting, who is secretary of the class; Attorney Edward Wilson; Mrs. C. C. Nutting; Miss Maud Butler; Miss Lucy Cavanaugh and Miss Clementine Otto.

The names of the graduates of the class have been divided among the six members residing in Iowa City and each one will be written a personal letter besides the card which is sent out from the university.

Chicago Poet Next
Lunch Club Guest

Sandburg's "Lincoln"
Called Epic by Drinkwater

Next in the group of the literary elite to be strung on the line of distinguished lunch club guests will be Carl Sandburg, "the poet of Chicago," as he is sometimes called. The exact date of his visit here is not present known, but it is expected to be within the coming two or three weeks.

Sandburg is not only a writer of verse but of prose as well. In the March 27 issue of "The Saturday Review of Literature" there is a review of his latest book, "Abraham Lincoln," written by the noted playright, John Drinkwater. As Mr. Drinkwater has read dozens of books on Lincoln, he is perhaps much more competent to judge such a volume than anyone else. Thus he is paying Mr. Sandburg distinct homage when he writes, "It is not too much to say that Mr. Sandburg's book is an honor no less to the American people than to himself; it is, indeed, not unlikely that he will be found to have given the world the first great American epic."

Worked Long on Lincoln

Sandburg has been at his work for half a lifetime, and it runs to nearly a thousand large and closely written pages, a hundred and sixty-eight chapters in all.

For a time Carl Sandburg produced a book a year, that is, of poetry, "Cornhuskers" appeared in 1917, "Smoke and Steel" in 1918, "Slabs of the Sunburnt West" in 1922, and later "Rutabaga Stories" and "Rutabaga Pictures" which are children's books.

He is concerned with violent, strange phenomena of American life, and in his poems, he wants to interpret it. He is definitely American in spirit and his art has not degenerated.

Here Before

Carl Sandburg lectured in Iowa City and read his poems several years ago. He was the guest of Edwin Ford Piper, professor of English, in his first visit.

Sandburg will also deliver talk at Cornell college at Mt. Vernon either preceding or following his Iowa City visit.

Historical Society to Do Research in Cities' Government

The State Historical society at the University of Iowa is about to start an extensive research of the municipal governments and administrations of Iowa. The work is expected to cover several years time as it will be necessary to visit many of the cities and different parts of Iowa to make personal observations. The findings will be printed in one or two volumes and will form a part of the "Iowa Applied History Series."

The research will cover every phase of government interest and activity in all classes of towns and cities in Iowa. Every officer and function of the municipal government will be thoroughly studied as the research work will be confined to statutes, ordinances, decisions, and reports. The usual study of printed matter will be supplemented by field study.

In 1925 the same society under the direction of Benjamin F. Shambaugh, head of the political science department issued a similar book after having made a thorough study of county governments. According to Professor Shambaugh the book has been received with highest favor especially by county officials who praise the suggestions for improvements which the volume contains.

Hawkeye Baseball Team Awaits Call
to Initial Battle

Adams Expected to Pitch in Opening
Encounter

By EDDIE FLINN
Captain, Iowa Baseball Team
Special Correspondent
for The Daily Iowan

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 1—Weather conditions have caused the postponement of the game with the Billikens and we are leaving for Oxford, Mississippi, tonight. We will arrive at our southern destination tomorrow noon and will play the first game of the trip with the Mississippi University team in the afternoon.

The probable lineup for the game will be: Terry, left field; Captain Flinn, center field; Wayne Miller, right field; McNabb, third base; M. Smith, short stop; Gamble, second base; Hoben, first base; H. Miller, catcher; and Merl Adams on the mound.

The name of the players will be:

Terry, left field; Captain Flinn, center field; Wayne Miller, right field; McNabb, third base; M. Smith, short stop; Gamble, second base; Hoben, first base; H. Miller, catcher; and Merl Adams on the mound.

Wayne Miller will be Coach Vogel's selection as lead off man and "Herr" Terry and "Red" Hoben hitting in the clean-up positions, fourth and fifth. Smith and Flinn will take their turns at the plate after Miller. McNabb, Gamble, H. Miller, and Adams will swing the bat in the respective order at the bottom of the hitting list. "Butch" Broders and John Beardwill will be in reserve as pinch hitters in case the team has difficulty in solving the slants of the Mississippi hurlers.

If pre-season form can be relied upon for one to dope the result, it is probable that Adams will hold the "cotton pickers" to a few safe blows while it is doubtful how many his mates will collect.

Hawkeye on Press

Border, Cover, and Section Pages in
Antique Motif

Work on the Hawkeye, annual book published by the Junior class, is progressing rapidly. Merrill S. Gaffney, A3 of Mason City, editor of the annual, is at present working on the last photographs to be sent to the engravers.

Junior panels, sixty-eight in number, giving a photograph and record of the activities of the 680 juniors, are being printed now, and as soon as this section of the book is taken up, work will be begun on the college life section.

The cover this year will be distinctly different from that of last years annual. Instead of a grey and gold, it will be of black and bronze, or Old Gold, representing the colors of the university. In the center of the cover, a panel with an embossing of a covered wagon will appear. The cover will be treated by a special process, so that an antique effect will be made possible.

Borah Sees Move

The circular was viewed by Chairman Borah of the Senate foreign relations committee, as an attempt to draw the United States into direct negotiations with the League and he saw in the move a logical sequence to the action taken by the senate when it voted adhesion to the court as well as new evidence of controlling ties between the court and the League.

An abundance of pictures will be found in the athletic section. Seventy individual pictures of athletes in the four major sports, and ninety pictures of various sports events will grace the pages of this section.

All sports will find a place in the book, and pictures of various important sports and related events have been taken by F. W. Kent, University photographer, and three staff photographers.

Russell Westmeyer, Cm3 of Davenport, has snapped photographs of the military students at Fort Sheridan last year; Thomas Cox, A2 of Iowa City has secured many flash-light pictures of pledge stunts of nearly all fraternities and sororities on the campus; and Esther K. Edwards, A3 of Sylvia, Kan., has taken pictures of various scenes depicting the life of the students and faculty.

Use Double Tone Ink

All the scenes will be printed in green double-tone ink. The new Iowa Queen's section will be printed in the same color, and will be a part of the university women's section. All sports will find a place in the book, and pictures of various important sports and related events have been taken by F. W. Kent, University photographer, and three staff photographers.

Regardless of the League's invitation, the correspondence between Washington and the protocol capitals will be continued to determine whether the reservations are acceptable.

The Canto sailed at daylight and so raided her at midnight when only twenty thousand rounds had been taken aboard. They said today that if they had known the Canto was not scheduled to sail until afternoon they might have seized many times as much ammunition by delaying their raid a few hours and giving the smugglers time to load their entire cargo of contraband.

Another Blizzard

Will Sweep Iowa,
Says Forecaster

DES MOINES, April 1 (AP)—The local weather man tonight held a meeting of another blizzard over the head of Iowa. Repetition of the snow and cold that has gripped the state for the past two days may come tomorrow morning, the weather bureau announced. There is a rare possibility that the storm center will pass to the south of Iowa, the bureau announced.

Temperature ranging from 18 to 25 degrees above zero were predicted for the state tonight and early tomorrow. The bureau said that the cold weather would continue over the greater section of the country that was visited by March end storms but that extreme temperatures are not likely.

What is Success?

WHAT is that priceless and intangible object termed success for which men surrender all else to attain? Webster's dictionary broadly maintains that "Success is the favorable termination of anything attempted or the attainment of a proposed object."

To each individual in the universe, perhaps, success holds a slightly different shade of meaning. It is the hope of success which lures men on through unexplored regions to the point where they may realize an ambition or attain an ideal and so blaze the trail of progress for future generations.

Business men often think of success in concrete terms of the accumulation of physical wealth. Success might be explained by the scientist in the discovery of a new element or the new application of a known force. A minister would perhaps explain success in terms of spiritual attainment. A highly intellectual type of individual might think of success in the abstract terms of amassing knowledge or acquiring fame.

Henry Ford is the stock example of success in the world of finance. His object was to amass a great fortune through the sale of an automobile, whose sale price would be less than any other and within the financial reach of every family.

Thomas A. Edison, hailed as everything from a freak to a wizard through the invention of the Edison phonograph, the moving picture machine, and numerous chemical compounds and electrical appliances, has attained success and earned an endearing niche as an eminently successful inventor.

In Kaiser Wilhelm, we have a striking example of the attainment of success in powers military. His supreme military power in Germany for a time at least was undisputed, but in his greater ideal of world-wide power he utterly failed.

William J. and Charles H. Mayo, world renowned surgeons, had as their ideal the alleviation of pain and suffering among mankind and in the realization of that ideal have attained success, fame, and fortune.

Abraham Lincoln should receive a place near the head of the list of morally successful men. He firmly believed that slavery was morally wrong and vowed that he would do all in his power to secure its abolition. The freedom of the slave from bondage was the realization of his dream and spelled for him a unique and immortal success.

The Evolution of Courtship

NOW and again someone uncovers a collection of ancient love letters. They are always interesting. A group of dusty missives from an old-time swain demonstrate better than anything else the contrast between past and present day methods of love making.

The stately phrases, the extreme respect displayed, the dignified tone, all seem strange and unnatural to the modernist. The race against time seems to have invaded Cupid's holy temple at last. No longer does the suitor spend hours penning a suitable manuscript to his love. Instead he rushes to his office and dictates to his stenographer. Auto jaunts of dizzy speed have replaced the buggy ride. The rhythmic whirl of the dance suffices for the long, quiet walks down "lover's lane." The old type of courtship is gone. In its place is a matter-of-fact realism.

Chet Johnson was little off the track when he charted the evolution of etiquette as follows:

- 1895. "Will You Be Mine?"
- 1905. "Let's Get Married."
- 1915. "Well, We Might as Well Get Married."
- 1925. "All Right! All Right! I'll Marry You."

Drunken Motorists

THE most serious problem confronting the second national safety council which has been meeting in Washington, is that of the drunken driver.

The object of the council, which is under the direction of Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, is to cut down the yearly death rate due to automobile accidents.

A report at the council read that more than thirty per cent of drunken automobile drivers

EDITORIAL

The Daily Iowan, Iowa City

arrested throughout the country go unpunished. Twenty-one per cent arrested for driving while intoxicated were sent to jail and forty-six per cent were fined.

The situation is not short of alarming. Thousands of innocent men, women and children are sent to their death each year through auto accidents that are nearly all preventable. Where the driver is functioning at a normal rate, the problem is serious enough, but where he is actuated by the unreasonable carelessness bred of alcohol, it is absolutely inexcusable.

State statutes for the most part provide a heavy penalty for those driving while intoxicated. Prison sentences are provided in many commonwealths. But all the laws in existence are useless if the judicial system cannot make them effective. It seems a bit out of place to continually upbraid our courts, but the country certainly needs drastic punishment for those who endanger the lives of pedestrians by driving while under the influence of liquor.

The Return of Big Tim

THERE is much rejoicing in Chicago's gas house district. "Big Tim" Murphy is getting out of the federal prison at Fort Leavenworth, where he has spent the past three years because he failed to give a satisfactory explanation of his connection with a $385,000 mail robbery at the Dearborn street station.

The gashouse workers, street-sweepers, garbage-gatherers, and bootblacks are planning to welcome their hero home. The band will be out and there will be a big celebration to celebrate the return of the king. He "hooked some coin," but didn't he take it from "those damned rich," who starve the poor man to death, cheat him out of his money, and put him in prison? To them Tim Murphy did nothing wrong.

He speaks to them and calls them brother. He talks to their children and pinches the baby's cheek. Even when he goes by in his big car, he waves at them. He spends part of the time from his "business" looking after their interests and planning their strikes, when they want more out of their "crooked bosses."

Nearly every human being is born into the world with some gift. Some are skilled in art, others in business, others in physical prowess and still others in that genteel art of "getting by." "Big Tim" Murphy is a genius in the possession of the latter faculty. He was naturally endowed to know men and understand mob psychology as few psychologists will ever know. He knows the troubles of the poor and sympathizes with them. Sometimes he helps them. Whether his motives are good or bad, they fail to see his faults.

Governments may come and governments go, but in the gas house district of Chicago, Tim Murphy reigns supreme.

A Mere Murder

MUSSOLINI has shocked the world again. This time it is not an offense of political nature, but one which violates the fundamental principles of justice and liberty.

A short time ago Deputy Matteotti of the Italian chamber disappeared under mysterious circumstances. Known as the most formidable enemy of Mussolini and a figure capable of exposing fascism in its worst phases, the public at once connected the disappearance with the premier and his officers. Two months later the body of the deputy was found in a grave outside of Rome. The officers of the government admitted the killing, but explained it as an accident, as Matteotti was unable to withstand the beating received when he was arrested. It was true Matteotti could not stand the beating . . . the same would have been true of any other human being.

The murderers were brought before the court. No attempt was made to deny that even Mussolini himself might have possessed knowledge of the crime. The trial was held and three of five defendants were convicted. The sentence amounted to something over five years of which four were taken off through executive amnesty.

Further than that the time spent in jail awaiting trial will also be deducted and the convicted men will be out in June.

Premier Mussolini seems to have a great deal of power and he indicates that he will stop at nothing to preserve it. He has taken away the freedom of the press and free speech and now he is doing away with political enemies by foul means and in all cases he has shattered ideals and liberties for which men have fought and died.

Besides this, his arrogant stand on several international problems has antagonized the other nations of the world against him. On the whole he is conducting himself as a Caesar, a Napoleon, a Cromwell or a Kaiser Wilhelm.

Soon or late, aspiring to position of a despot, he will fail.

Mussolini has gone far. But the world has fought too long and has suffered too much to allow any selfish and unjust individual to tear out and cast to the winds those fundamental rights and ideals which lie nearest to the heart of humanity.

Poems That Live

Only of Thee and Me

Only of thee and me the night wind sings,
Only of us the sailors speak at sea,
The earth is filled with wondered whisperings
Only of thee and me.

Only of thee and me the breakers chant,
Only of us the stir in bush and tree;
The rain and sunshine tell the eager plant
Only of thee and me.

Only of thee and me, till all shall fade;
Only of us the whole world's thoughts can be;
For we are Love, and God Himself is made
Only of thee and me.

—Louis Untermeyer.

CHILLS AND FEVER

When the spring floods break and the snow melts on the Iowa river we expect to see the Phi Delt house washed down to the dam, where it will perch like a scarecrow on the Pan-Hell symbol.

WE never had a grudge against Oskaloosa until we heard that Jim Devitt, attired in flannels and corduroy, let out a whoop of "Osky-wow-wow, no trumps," when he entered the interfraternity bridge tournament.

THE height of imbecility, we think, is the painting of raw Easter eggs.

Spring is really here and the grass is no longer than it was last month.

THE difference between the wise man and the college graduate is a membership card in the Elks club.

Kenneth Gardner will spend his vacation with Ruth Harrison of Clarinda.

YES, dear readers, after much persuasion and argument we have been convinced that Iowa City will be a dead town without the column and so we have written it for the next three days REGARDLESS of vacation.

TO SALLY
(The Daily Illini)

Sally dear you are lucky
If you live in old Kentucky
And I'd like to have a little girl like you.

You should have a college chappie
Who will make you glad and happy
I just wonder if a boy like me would do.

You could have your cokes and candy
(Sunday walks are awful dandy)
We might even see a picture show or two.

If you don't mind taking chances
We could also make some dances
For my love is down in old Kentucky too.

If all we've heard about the dance is true we'll never hang a pin.

Came the dawn and our hero dashed right down to catch an interurban so he could get home in time for breakfast.

P. S.: He lived in Cedar Rapids.

A lady we have heard of once recommended "Manhattan Transfer" to a women's club for their reading list of superlative books. She doesn't belong anymore.

THE ONLY difference in the value of higher education opposed to vacation periods is that classes don't meet during vacation.

Subpoena Chosen for Sigma Delta Chi Grid Dinner

GRINNELL, April 1 (AP) — The lions of sarcasm are to be burned at an annual gridiron banquet to be given by the Grinnell chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity, to be attended by many prominent editors and publishers of the state, here, April 10. The shafts of humorous comment will be directed against many of those invited to be present, according to early forecasts of the meeting.

Preceding the banquet, J. A. Rawlings, Des Moines correspondent of the Associated Press; W. C. Jarnigan, editor of the Storm Lake Pilot-Tribune, and James Rhodes, publisher of the Newton Daily News, will be initiated into the Grinnell chapter of the fraternity.

A portion of the program consists of awarding the Brown Derby, the Lily, the Leather Medal, and the Green Gloves. The general trend of the meeting is intended to bring to light many choice bits of newspaper "scandal" concerning those present.

The guests in clude Donald H. Clark, national president of Sigma Delta Chi and editor of the Mid-continent Banker of St. Louis; Gardner Cowles, publisher of the Des Moines Register and Des Moines Tribune-News; Charles Rawson, Des Moines; John F. D. Aue, president of the Iowa Daily Press association and publisher of the Burlington Hawkeye; Clifford DePuy, publisher of several banking and trade journals, Des Moines; Harvey Ingman, editor of The Des Moines Register; W. E. Battenfield, former Des Moines newspaperman and member of a Des Moines advertising firm, and Clyde McFarland, Des Moines.

Invitations to the banquet have taken the form of "burial and removal" permits printed on yellow paper and delivered in black edged envelopes with skull and crossbones.

Storm Cuts Market

CHICAGO, April 1 (AP) — Storm bound conditions prevailing, all over the shipping area tributary to the Chicago market cut receipts to the minimum. Cattle numbered only 5,000, hogs 6,000 and sheep 9,000. Around 8,000 head over hogs were also available.

Orphan Adopted, Waits 11 Years to Meet Mother

After a separation of eleven years from his mother, Mrs. Charles Hart, 521 S. Capitol street, Francis Cox arrived in Iowa City Wednesday morning from Glidden.

His mother was forced to give up her family of four children, one boy and three girls, eleven years ago and put them in an orphan's home in Des Moines. Since then, the son was adopted by a Quaker family in Glidden and was told of his mother's whereabouts when he became of age March 1.

Two daughters are dead. The youngest who is sixteen years old now, will be sought when she becomes of age. The mother has been paving at Independence.

employed in the Orthopedic department of the children's hospital here for the past eight years rolling bandages in the cast room.

Celebrate Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Parmes and family, of Eagle Grove, arrived in Iowa City last evening for an over Easter visit with the latter parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Morford, Bloomington street.

Easter Sunday is the 71 birthday anniversary of Mr. Morford and will be celebrated by a family reunion. Mr. Parmes is editor of the Eagle Grove Eagle and also the Goldfield Chronicle. He motored as far as Cedar Rapids, where he left his car until his return. He reported the going fine until he left the paving at Independence.
