Flood Waters Destroy Levees

Science Departments Add General Courses

Instruction Heads Unanimous in Approval of New General Science Major Given Official Sanction Last Spring

By BETTY GAY One of the greatest cultural and practical strides ever taken by the science departments of the university is being announced to students of science this semester in the installation of a new major in general science, including courses from five scientific branches of the university.

To satisfy the need for general science in higher education, the faculty of the college of liberal arts enacted legislation last spring to provide for the lack of such a major in the university, not announcing or completing its plans before the commencement of courses for the coming year had come to press. The legislation is as follows:

The course in general science shall include not less than forty credit hours of work in the sciences, so distributed that one fundamental college course of not less than four credit hours be taken in each of the following sciences: Botany, chemistry, geology, physics and zoology, and not less than sixteen credit hours in one of them. (For those who are preparing to teach general science in the high schools a course in physiology and hygiene is recommended.)

Lapp Recommends This new major is entirely unique and is duplicated in no other similar institution in the country. Prof. Claude J. Clapp, of the physics department has been appointed special advisor to students interested in this new plan of study.

"This is one of the most far-reaching steps in modern education taken in recent years," said Professor Lapp in reference to the new combination of courses.

As listed in the special announcement for autumn registration, majors in the new department include complete forty hours in the various science courses offered. The forty semester hours necessary for the major will include the eight hours of freshman work in any science, making it easy for the student to complete his work for the general science degree.

Science Departments A general science major is recommended highly by the heads of all the science departments who consider it not only valuable culturally, but also a good preparation for the teaching of this subject in Iowa high schools, where the demand for teachers of a single course dealing with several sciences has not been adequately met.

Iowa Philosopher Conducts Ethics Course Via Radio

Prof. Carl F. Taeschel to Give Twelve Lectures Over WSUI

A practical philosopher's view of professional ethics and morality will be broadcast by Carl F. Taeschel of the department of philosophy via station WSUI. The twelve lectures constitute one of the courses by radio for which university credit is offered.

Professor Taeschel will be on the air each Wednesday evening from 8:10 to 8:30 beginning Oct. 6 and ending Jan. 5. Registration for the university "college of the air" now in its third semester is going forward at the extension division and the opening lectures are scheduled for Oct. 4.

Ethics of the lawyer, doctor, teacher and engineer will be discussed by the Iowa philosopher. Middle western farmers will hear a lecture on farmers' cooperation. The talks are designed to carry popular appeal to listeners in varied professions.

These are the titles announced by Professor Taeschel: Oct. 6—Group Loyalty and Morality; Oct. 13—Professional Faith and Confessions; Oct. 20—Ethics of the Lawyer; Oct. 27—Morality and Law; Nov. 3—Ethics of the Doctor; Nov. 10—Ethics of the Teacher; Nov. 17—Ethics of the Engineer; Nov. 24—Fees and Charges and Index of Professionalism; Dec. 1—Standards of Business Conduct; Dec. 8—Farmers' Cooperation; Dec. 15 and Jan. 1—Social Philosophy and Ethics.

opened up to him," said Prof. A. O. Thomas of the geology department, "he learns the interrelations of these sciences and sees the whole natural and physical world in a new light. The need today, is for people who know the general facts of as many sciences as is possible."

Check on Specializing In addition to its pedagogical value, Professor Thomas sees it as a check on those students who are too highly specialized in one branch, and prevents a specialist in one field from being ignorant of the fundamental facts of another equally important science. He deprecates the fact that many confine themselves to one branch, and are not interested in other branches.

Paging Madame X HOQIAM, Wash.—A bellboy at a local summer hotel afforded fobbing amusement when he filled the place with his calls for "Madame X." "Paging Madame X," "Telegram for Madame X." Plainly, they thought, he was a joker's victim. A clerk halted him, delivered a reprimand. The bellboy insisted he was paging a Madame X, and presented a slip of paper bearing her name: Mrs. Eckes.

Mexican Bandits Kill American in Fight With Troops

Jacob Rosenthal, Aged Captive, Stabbed as Criminals Flee

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 16.—Jacob Rosenthal, an aged American, was stabbed to death by his bandit captors, Wednesday night when the troops closed on them. Having failed to receive the $10,000 ransom demanded and being hampered in their flight by their aged captive, the criminals killed him rather than let him be rescued alive by the federal troops with whom they engaged in a running fight after a ruse to trap the outlaws failed. The tragedy occurred in wild country less than forty miles from Mexico City. The federal troops had tracked down the bandit gang and killed two of them when the pursuit was halted by the recovery of Rosenthal's body. Later the pursuit was resumed.

Officials admitted in Mexico City after news of the murder had reached here that ransom had been demanded and that it was planned to trap the bandits by pretending to send the money. Soldiers were posted to capture the bandits when they appeared but the ruse failed. Rosenthal's body bore many stab wounds. It was taken to Guernevaca by his son-in-law, Joseph Ruff, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack J. Seabler. It will be brought to Mexico City to await the arrival of his wife.

The troops have been ordered to redouble their efforts to exterminate the bandits. American officials are convinced the Mexican government made every effort possible to rescue Rosenthal and capture the outlaws.

Jacob Rosenthal of Woodmere, Long Island, N. Y., a retired business man who was in Mexico on a pleasure trip, was captured by a bandit gang on Sunday. His party was returning from Guernevaca after a week-end holiday when stopped by the outlaws. In the party were Jack J. Zahler, an American resident of Mexico City, his wife and Joseph Ruff, Mr. Rosenthal's son-in-law, also a resident of the capital. All were robbed and the outlaws disappeared into the brush with Rosenthal captive. He was an old man and weak from a recent illness.

The Freshman Handbook for 1926-1927, the first handbook published since the 1924-1925 edition, made its appearance yesterday morning at the women's gymnasium, registration station No. 4, for the horde of this year's frosh. All "knights of the green bonnet" were presented with an old gold and black handbook and at the same time briefly interviewed by a member of the Y. M. C. A. or the Y. W. C. A.

This year's handbook contains one hundred twenty pages and is bound in heavy black paper. The front cover is embossed with an etching of old capitol, while the university seal occupies the center of the back cover. The first seventy-six pages contain information for the orientation of this year's crop of freshmen men and women. Athletics, forensics, dramatics, fraternities, musical organizations, student publications and religious organizations are all presented briefly to the newcomers. The remaining forty-three pages comprise a daily memorandum and space for class schedules and addresses. Tucked behind the back cover is one of the latest maps of the university grounds and buildings. The new field house, the new medical building, the memorial union, and Finkbine field are all listed and indexed. The material for the 1926-27 handbook was compiled and published by a staff composed of members of the Y. M. C. A. and other campus organizations. Editor-in-chief Marvin Logan and his staff, consisting of Pier D. Aldershot, A. J. marmagay editor, Don Wieder and Esther Fuller, organizations, Berchard Ashenfelter and Katherine Meyers, athletics, William T. Hageboeck, business manager, and Paul White, circulation manager, collected the copy for the handbook last May. The printing was done during the month of August.

Freshmen to Take I. Q. Exams Today

Four Tests to Occupy Frosh at Memorial Union Pow-Wow

Qualifying examinations for freshmen will be given in the Memorial Union from 8 a. m. to 10 a. m., and 1 p. m. to 3 p. m. today. Freshmen entering the university this fall in the colleges of liberal arts, pharmacy, and applied science will take regular qualifying examinations, commonly known as intelligence tests. No previous preparation is required. All students should be equipped with two or three pencils to take this examination, which has been given for a number of years to incoming students.

This examination is prepared under the direction of the department of psychology. Two of the tests will cover the field of English, another will measure the reading comprehension, and the fourth takes the measure of student knowledge in the main branches of high school work.

The results of the tests are used in classifying students, and to a certain extent, in arranging courses and sections. The best attitude for the student is one of honest effort and cooperation. Failure to do one's best might lead to annoyance later on.

During the past few years, the University of Iowa has become a great distributing center for college tests. At the present time, the university publishes thirteen examinations which are used by many universities throughout the country. Thus far, about 150 universities have used these tests during freshman week and at other times during the year.

Tilden, Johnston Both Fall Before French Net Aces

Vincent Richards Remains Lone U. S. Star in Tourney by Victory Over Brugnon

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 16.—The downfall of "Big Bill" Tilden, six times champion, today at the hands of Henri Cochet of France in the quarter finals of the National Tennis title tournament was followed by the defeat of "Little Bill" Johnston by Jean Borotra, another French star.

Both of America's famous Davis Cup stars were victims of sensational five set reverses. Tilden was put out of the running for his seventh straight time by scores of 6-3, 6-1, 6-3, 1-5, 8-6 while Johnston lost to a startling comeback by the "Bouncing Basque" at 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

These smashing upsets left Vincent Richards as the lone American in tomorrow's semi-finals as a result of his straight set victory over Jacques Brugnon, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2. Richards will meet Borotra while Cochet will face Lacoste, a third French ace, who advanced today at the expense of Richard N. Williams, 6-0, 6-3, 8-6.

Neophytes Register in Wee Small Hours

Freshmen Rise Early To Pick Studies for Year

Endless streams of high school graduates were ground through the mills of the registrars and emerged from University Hall full-fledged freshmen in the University of Iowa yesterday. As early as 3 a. m. the line began forming at the north door of the Natural Science building. At 5 a. m. a double line extended to Iowa Avenue and at 6 a. m. the overflow was creeping up to Whetstone's doors.

Numbers were distributed from the first station at 6 a. m. and actual registration began at 8 a. m. Late last night H. C. Dorcas, registrar, estimated that 75 to 80 per cent of the freshmen had completed registration. Statistics were lacking as to the number which had registered in the professional colleges. However, the influx handled during the first day was regarded by the registrars as an indication of an increased registration this year.

Throughout the summer an unprecedented amount of correspondence has been received and a record number of admission cards sent out from the registrar's office. The system of having the registration of freshmen precede that of upper classes is a new innovation this year but is believed to be another step in the increased efficiency in registration here.

Angry Waters Gnaw at Weak Levee Walls

Six Thousand Acres of Rich Corn and Grain Land Doomed as Farmers are Defeated in Fight to Keep Levees Intact

BURLINGTON, Sept. 16.—The crest of a great flood, pouring from three gashes in the levee protecting the Green Bay district, south of here, is rushing into the heart of one of Iowa's richest farm areas tonight.

Defeated in their fight to keep the levee of the Skunk river intact, farmers of the Wever community have concentrated their forces on the second line of defense, the old levee. Six thousand acres of rich grain and corn land is doomed and the live stock, house furnishings and personal effects of the farmers in the lowest sections have been moved before the approaching flood.

Individual farmers were bolstering the old levee that had done good service before the building of the new and larger levee, the Mississippi power project. Unless the river continues to rise, it is believed the old embankment will protect 6,000 acres of lands and crops in the Wever community.

Illness Cancels Doctor Weller's Art Courses

Due to his poor health, Prof. C. H. Weller is cancelling his course in history of architecture, given both under history of art and journalism for this semester. If his health becomes more stabilized he will go on with the work in sculpture the second semester.

Professor Weller was also scheduled to teach the arts of printing and engraving in the journalism school, and this course will not be discontinued, but carried on by Prof. Frederick J. Lazell, also of the school of journalism, and Professor Weller jointly. Owing to a conflict, the hour for the printing and engraving course has been changed to Tuesday and Thursday at 10.

Wassam Smiles at Anarchism Charge of Attorney Adams

President Jessup Smiles at Accusation of Popular Professor Here

Clarence W. Wassam, professor in the commerce school, took time off this morning from his duties as advisor to freshmen, who were registering to comment on the attack by H. L. Adams, Des Moines attorney noted in this morning's Iowan. Attorney Adams accused Professor Wassam of teaching anarchism to his university classes.

"I am sure that Mr. Adams has been misinformed" said Professor Wassam. "In my twenty-five years of teaching at the University of Iowa I have never so much as commented on socialism. I am a properly owner, and my political ideals are not in accord with socialism to the least extent."

Professor Wassam suggested that a University of Iowa student who had taken a course under him might have mentioned Wassam's name in conversing with Attorney Adams. In unrelated further conversation the student might have exhibited socialistic tendencies, and thus have given Adams the impression that he had been taught socialism in Professor Wassam's class.

Professor Wassam is one of the most popular professors on the Iowa campus. He is affectionately known as "Bunny" and his fame as a platform lecturer is widespread. President Walter A. Jessup, in a spirit of levity told Professor Wassam that he would give him until noon today to turn in his resignation, which is an indication that the president accepts the report in the same light that Professor Wassam's friends do.

Farmers Abandon Hope for Crops

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—Continuation in Indiana, Illinois and other middle western states last night and today of the rainfall which has been a daily phenomenon in many localities since Sept. 1, brought the Mississippi more than ten feet above flood stage at Quincy, took one of its tributaries on an excursion over hundreds of acres of lowlands near Burlington, Iowa, and threatened Beardstown, Ill., with inundation by the Illinois river.

Crops in a ten thousand acre area south of Burlington, Iowa, known as the Green Bay district, were imperiled by the rampaging water of Skunk creek which today defied efforts of farmers to keep its waters within levees. The workers gave up their task of barricading the stream after a gap in the dike widened from 4 to 25 feet today despite all efforts to stack sand bags in the breach. Stock has been moved to higher ground and lowland residents have moved many household goods to the hill tops.

The waters of the Illinois river churned toward the top of the levee at Beardstown, Ill., tonight and threatened the town, while a hundred men labored to reinforce the levee with sand bags. The river had risen six inches since last night and its present height of approximately 22 feet is the highest since 1844 with a single exception.

At Quincy, Ill., where the flood stage of the Mississippi river is four feet, the gauge tonight registered almost fifteen feet. In Indiana and inland Iowa which have been intermittently sufferers by flood in the last fortnight, waters were receding after general showers last night in the former state and scattered rainfall in southern Iowa.

In the lower White river bottoms of Elke county, Indiana, farmers have abandoned hope for their crop. Sweeping away of levees has inundated broad acreages of corn, clover and alfalfa.

The flood is expected to continue for several days, and, as all efforts to close the breaks have been given up as waste of time, only natural recession of the flood tide can prevent a total loss exceeding $1,500,000.

Damage, according to farmers of the community had reached $100,000 by 8 o'clock tonight with the great part of the Green Bay district lying unprotected with the flood advancing after filling sloughs, lakes and drain ditches, constructed to carry off flood waters. Fields prepared for fall grain, fields of standing corn, pasture land, hay meadows over an area of eight square miles are inundated while the Skunk river several miles wide in places, has reached (but above the levee on either side and flooded) many sections of farm land, many other sections of farm land, not in the Green Bay area, to the flood toll.

Iowans Patronize Parks Liberally in State During Year

AMES, Sept. 16 (AP)—State parks have been liberally patronized by tourists during the past season. Prof. L. H. Pammet, chairman of the state conservation commission reports. During the first three years of park attendance 1918 to 1921, less than 250,000 persons patronized them. The attendance figures for 1926, however, show the following attendance:

Creek State Park, 150,000; Backbone Park, 125,000. Attendance at Ledges and Dolliver parks was greater than that of Yellowstone park, or the Yosemite National Park, Prof. Pammet says.

The total attendance for Dolliver, Ledges, and Pine Creek parks, was 425,000, representing 1,375,000 recreational hours spent, having a value in recreation of $318,750.

This, says Prof. Pammet, shows that Iowa is giving its citizens a fine service in park work.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., — O. E. Flint won a divorce from his wife, 79, on the grounds that she refused to kiss him.

Pharmacy Addition and Heating Plant Join Campus Group

Dean Teeters Praises New Equipment of His Department

"The University of Iowa will have the best equipped college of pharmacy in the middle west," said Dean Wilbur J. Teeters of the college of pharmacy, when questioned concerning the new pharmacy building, one of the group of new university buildings progressing this year. The new structure is a five story building, resembling in appearance the chemistry group which it joins.

The building will house both the college of pharmacy and the department of botany. On the ground floor is found the manufacturing laboratories, in which the many preparations used in the university hospital are made. The main freshman laboratories are also located on this floor. The offices of the college of pharmacy, the research laboratories and the senior laboratories are on the second floor.

Library Chanced
The library of the college of pharmacy, which has been combined with those of the chemistry and botany departments will be found on the third floor of the old chemistry building.

On the entrance floor are the administrative offices and main lecture rooms of the department of botany. The botany department was formerly located in the old science building, but this has now been turned over to the geology department.

President Emeritus Thomas H. Macbride will have a large east room, in which, he will continue to do research work. The fourth and fifth floors are arranged as botanical laboratories. A club room and class rooms for the advance botany classes are on the fourth floor, while the herbarium collection is housed on the fifth.

New Heat Plant
Twenty-five thousand dollars worth of equipment will be placed in the building; all the storage and shelving equipment will be of steel.

Rising two-hundred and ten feet above the ground at the eastern terminal of the Burlington street bridge is the stack of the first unit of the university's new heating plant. Last March a $250,000 contract was let to A. A. Alexander, of Des Moines, for the first unit of the university heating plant.

When all four units of the plant are completed the cost of the it will approach $700,000. Mr. Alexander, the contractor is an alumnus of the university, graduating from the college of applied science in 1912.

Building Dimensions
In commenting on the new plant, President Jessup said that it would result in a "great reduction of cost of heat, light and power for the university."

Although the contract was let late last spring the first unit will be completed in time to be used this fall. The first unit will be used to heat all the buildings on the west side of the river.

The building of the hydro-electric plant which formerly occupied the site, was raised one story and will serve as a switch-room in the new concern. The major portion of the new building will be but one story high. Underneath the plant is a large reservoir capable of holding 44,800 cubic feet of water with which the university will fight fire. Large pumps will force the water across the river to the west side.

Automatic conveyors, stokers and ash carriers, coupled with the most modern boilers will effect a great saving in coal and will reduce the smoke evil to a minimum. But one large stack will be used on the first unit. The stack raises above the ground two hundred and ten feet, but measures two hundred and seventy-five feet all. At the base the mammoth structure has a diameter of sixteen feet, five inches, which tapers to ten feet, four inches at the top. The walls are fifteen inches thick and contain 1319 1/2 sacks of cement and 110 cubic yards of crushed rock. The structure was built at the rate of seven and a half feet a day, it taking forty working days to complete the tower.

Old Science Change
When the $700,000 plant is completed, it will contain three more units which will rival the present one or size, and will furnish all the heat and power for the university.

A corps of brick layers are engaged laying the brick for the new $17,000 addition to old science hall. The botany department has been transferred to the new pharmacy building, leaving the geology department as the solitary occupant of old science. With the great increase of floor space, the department will be able to display many rare specimens, which it owns, but has been unable to exhibit in the past.

Aspiring Musicians Tryout Today for Orchestra Places

Daily Iowan to Record Position Winners Tuesday

Try-outs for membership in the University orchestra will be continued from 9:00 a. m. until 4:00 p. m. today and tomorrow, in the office of Frank E. Kendrie, professor of violin music and director of the orchestra.

The University Symphony orchestra is a combined student and faculty organization. It enables many of the faculty members who played musical instruments during their college careers to maintain their interest in music, and at the same time, offers the student an opportunity to discover his music ability and improve it.

Tuition for Violinist
To the best violinist on the campus is accorded the honor and coveted position of concert master of the orchestra. The incumbent of this position receives a scholarship of $120.00 to defray the entire expense involved by his tuition for the year. Applicants for this position should see Professor Kendrie as soon as possible, as the selection should be made by Monday evening.

The orchestra is a self-governing body, to a certain extent. At the last rehearsal in the spring of each year, a manager is elected for the coming season. An assistant manager, librarian, and monitors are appointed in recognition of service performed by the conductor and manager. A slight stipend is paid to these officers to compensate them for the time and work necessary in these positions.

Loan Instruments
Various instruments are owned by the orchestra, such as bass violas, violas, oboes, and French horns, and are loaned without fee to the members of the orchestra.

At the Christmas and Easter vesper services each year, the orchestra plays in conjunction with the chorus. In addition to this, the orchestra gives two concerts of its own, one in January and the second in April. Last year, a concert was given in Waterloo, and it is possible that other out-of-town appearances may be made during the coming season.

Play for Vespers
The string section of the orchestra plays for the nine vesper services held during the year. The first vesper service this year will be held in the natural science auditorium, Sunday afternoon, Sept. 26, and this section of the orchestra will make its first appearance of the season at that time.

A smaller group, known as the Theatre Orchestra, is chosen to play at all performances given by the University Theatre, under the direction of Prof. E. C. Mable, head of the speech department.

Ninety Places Open
Last year, the University Orchestra was composed of ninety pieces, an increase of five members over the previous year. The number this year will be limited to ninety, as Professor Kendrie believes a larger membership would tend to lower the standard of the music. Many of the old members of the orchestra have returned and will resume their positions immediately. Announcements will be made in Tuesday morning's Daily Iowan of the successful aspirants for membership in the University Symphony orchestra.

Full rehearsals are held every Tuesday evening at 7:10 in the band room, and the string section rehearses on Wednesday afternoons. Orchestra membership is considered as a course in the liberal arts school and one credit each semester is given.

Foolish Doctrine

MAJ. GEN. JAMES G. HARBORD, retired, U. S. army, is quoted as making the following statement to the Kansas state convention of the American Legion:

"Foch, Pershing, Haig and Petain, with Hindenburg and Ludendorff and a dozen stenographers, a few maps and a minimum of the so-called 'experts,' in a month's time would have made a more enduring peace for the world than was accomplished by the conference of statesmen which sat in Paris for two years and played and plotted with the possibilities which were created by the valor of armies."

And then, according to our information, the general went on to predict that fifteen years will find a majority in congress and in the cabinet veterans of the World war, with the president himself a war veteran. This is a reasonable enough prediction, considering how large a part of the country's manhood, including most of the flower thereof, were in the army eight years ago.

But it is unfortunate that the distinguished general should have expressed himself as in the statement quoted above; for that statement is purest bunkum. The picture presented is one to thrill a convention (in all conventions the thought-processes are completely in suspense), but not one to commend itself to the cool processes of reason. The remaking of the map of Europe was the proper business of statesmanship. In that remaking military considerations were only one of several groups of considerations. The proper role of military men in that connection was that of "experts." To be sure, a military man may also be a statesman, in which case he might properly be employed in the role of treaty maker; but as a statesman, mind, not as a military man.

The happy combination of statesman and professional soldier is exceedingly rare; Napoleon being the grand rarity. Do not cite Caesar; he was primarily a statesman and soldiering with him a side issue. Most professional soldiers who have essayed the role of statesman have made a botch of it. Grant, for example, was almost our poorest president. Wellington was a fifth-rate statesman. The military chiefs mentioned by General Harbord might have tossed you off after a few sittings a better Treaty of Versailles than the one painfully evolved after two years' labor by the professional statesmen, but it is extremely unlikely. It is quite too much the fashion contemptuously to decry the Treaty of Versailles, and to impute to its framers unworthy motives. It is, of course, far from a perfect instrument, but it has many merits and it is too little borne in mind that its framers magnanimously provided for its revision as developments might indicate.

No, General Harbord talks foolish and dangerous doctrine. We hope and expect to see more than one veteran of the great war in the presidential chair. Some experience of war is admirable training for the general service of the state. But, considering the world's experience of professional soldiers as statesmen, best, in the general case, leave the business of statesmanship to professional statesmen; though a good war record will rightly enhance the estimation of one in the latter category.

Some Light on China

AT LAST, after months of "darkness visible," we have some flickering light on developments in China.

Last April the two most powerful men in the country, namely, Marshals Wu Pei-fu and Chang Tso-lin, each at the head of a powerful group of provinces, cooperated in expelling the Kuominchun (National People's army) forces from Peking. The Kuominchun is the instrument of the northern radical extremists. The two heroes above mentioned ousted the central provisional government, which since the fall of 1924 had led a precarious, celestial, preposterous and shadowy existence at Peking, and substituted for it a still more shadowy government under their joint auspices; but, utterly distrustful of each other, they took no steps toward concerting a national program or establishing a genuine national government. While they glowered on each other, the Kuominchun dug in at a mountain pass northwest of Peking, their base being at Kalgan, seventy miles farther northwest. But at last, about the first of July, Chang and Wu agreed that this menace must be "liquidated" and Chang consented that Wu should undertake the operation. It is not improbable that Chang hoped that Wu and the Kuominchun would "liquidate" each other and leave him sole cock of the walk.

If that was Chang's idea, Wu failed to oblige. He dislodged the Kuominchun forces from the Nankow pass and carried his pursuit to Kalgan, their base, the which famous town he captured about mid-August. He now felt that he might safely entrust to a subordinate further dealing with the remnant of the Kuominchun and so on August 20 he rushed to the southern military front.

It was high time. It seems that at Canton there had emerged a new celestial figure of note in the new commander-in-chief of the South China republic. Starting from Canton about July 1, he had pushed north through the great province of Ho-nan against opposition, and when in late August Wu arrived in the Yangtze he found his southern army, much demoralized, with its back against the stoned walls of Wuchang, making a last desperate stand against General Chang Kai-sek and his Red southern cohorts. Wu desperately, and with his usual skill, addressed himself to retrieve the situation. As we write, the result is doubtful. A few days ago defeat for Wu seemed certain. Now, if it is true, as reported, that Marshal Sun Chuan-feng, super-tuchum of the five lower Yangtze provinces, has at last abandoned his neutrality and sent reinforcements to Wu, it would seem that the latter has at least an even chance to snatch victory from the jaws of defeat.

A notable fellow, that Wu Pe-fu; a gentleman and a profound scholar, as well as a soldier of no mean skill. A decisive victory on the Yangtze should immensely enhance his prestige, perhaps enable him, a moderate liberal, to dominate the national situation as against that old toady, Chang Tso-lin, on the one part, and the red Cantonese, on the other. We wish him well.

Undermining a Principle

"THE truth is no defense." This is the ruling that has been handed down by the Indiana supreme court in the case of the editor of a small Indiana weekly which was charged with contempt of court.

Almost two hundred years ago the first victory for the freedom of the press was won. It was the culmination of the trial of one Peter Zenger who was arrested on a charge of libel. He was acquitted, not because of the law, but because the feeling of the community that the law which made criticism of law libel was wrong.

Thus started a series of suits which ultimately resulted in the complete liberation of the press from the whims and wishes of the government. In fact, the history of the independence of the United States has been one long story of gradual rise from a press which was ruled by the will of the governor to that of a press justly protected because of the truth of that which it prints. It was a press which frankly and truthfully revealed the opinions of the public.

This has been the condition until recently when an Indiana judge attempts to rule that the "truth is no defense." The editor, who has lost his entire fortune in an attempt to prove the rightness of his position, contends that he has been the victim of a plot laid by a community entirely under the rule of the Ku-Klux klan.

No institution is for the public good which attempts to counteract the principles of liberty upon which our country rests. If the Ku-Klux klan is responsible for the verdict given by the judge, then it is directly opposing one of the principles which it contends to be the basis of its organization, the reverence of liberty, 100 per cent Americanism.

Mussolini, the Italian dictator, has attempted to establish a press absolutely under the jurisdiction of the government. The Mexican government has passed a resolution that anything pertaining to the Catholic religion shall be barred from Mexican papers.

No country, accustomed as the world now is to absolute freedom, will long continue under such a pressure as this. Neither will the freedom-loving United States allow the verdict of the Indiana judge to be established in this country. If such a one were to stand, the whole constitutional history of the press would be undermined and every newspaper in the country would be affected.

But there is little danger, should the case be taken before the supreme court of the United States, that the decision will be affirmed. For the newspapers' great popularity is based upon the fact that truth is a defense, that which is truth, is not libel and can therefore be printed.

Poems That Live

Wealth

Before the rich man's palace, day by day,
I saw strong guards move up and down—
band,
Watching the marble entrance and the grand,
Majestic gardens filled with hawthorn spray.
Silent, they paced the sidewalk. In dismay
I pictured one within, whose feeble hand
Fingered his treasures from an alien land,
Afraid to whisper, to his fears a prey.

Then I remembered kings who on their thrones
Shuddered from hour to hour, and in the night
Wakened from dreadful dreams of shots and stones,
Crying in terror and a dazed affright;
And I rejoiced for my life's monotones,
My simple hearth, and simpler candle-light.

—CHARLES HANSON TOWNE,
in Scribner's.

Nowhere in Sight

CHILLS and FEVER

A big meal in sight.

Well, here we are all set for another year of it. We have with us the same old crowd—the slightly withered and wilted flowers of yesterday and that more interesting crew—the unquenchable freshmen. We see the students who take Spanish as a pre-requisite to store-keeping in Morning Sun, the students who give an anticipatory shudder whenever the word "padding" is mentioned, the ones who wear their high school basketball insignia proudly in a cold, cruel world. We have the freshmen who refuse to wear green caps and consequently cannot be distinguished from university high pupils; the fair maidens who remember that they have only one head but two legs and put their trust in numbers. In short, we have the same old gang that we have had ever since our freshmanhood; they make the grass seem colorless.

She wasn't the Chi O type.

Proc Maynard, the president of student council, recently found occasion to be in Cornell at the time of their freshman week. As he strolled along the streets, gazing upon the sights and curiosities, animate and inanimate of the place, a couple of faculty members passed him and he heard one murmur to the other in sympathetic tones: "Those freshmen surely are crude when they first come here, aren't they?"

Which reminds us that the optimistic cap salesman at the east door of the gym tried to persuade us to cover our dignified brow with some of the "traditional" headgear; our three years would seem to have been spent in vain.

We wish herein to announce our policy. We aim primarily to be a scandal sheet; we wish to exalt the ridiculous. If we find something worthy of the deep-hued razzberry upon your house, neither praise nor pistols can deflect our course. We shall combine in due proportions the qualities of Sherlock Holmes and Al Jolson; we would be a periodical Pooch Pooch Hooy. The only real safeguard will be contribution and not always that; if anybody anywhere ever thought you were funny for any other reason than that your two front teeth were missing, show some university spirit and communicate that wit to the waiting eyes of S. U. I.

That freshmanest feeling.

Science Courses Extend Program

ested in any others, thus not having a whole and unified knowledge of their field of study.

Prof. W. W. Swingle, the new head of the zoology department, is highly in favor of this correlation of the sciences. There will be no smothering of scientific talent in hyperspecialized knowledge, if this new course is followed.

"At Yale," said the former Yale professor, "there has been an insistent demand for this sort of education, but their plans have never gone through. A somewhat similar course called evolution is offered at Dartmouth, but it is only a course and does not constitute a major."

General Idea
 Prof. R. E. Wylie, head of the botany department, stresses the importance of this new line of work as a broad foundation for graduate work in the sciences.

"Again," he says, "a course of this type gives useful information in the fields of various sciences. While there can be no mastery of one of them, the plan familiarizes the student with the general subject matter and terminology of the several sciences. This informational side of science study is developing so rapidly that it is now necessary to understand the average magazine articles."

"Chemistry is glad to cooperate in carrying forward the type of work which appears to be a distinct forward step in cultural education," is the statement made by Prof. Perry A. Bond of the chemistry department.

Kirby Comments
 Prof. Thomas J. Kirby of the education department says, "General science has made rapid strides in the high school program of studies. Fifteen years ago it was not known—now more high school students are pursuing general science than any other science offered there."

"No field is more promising from the standpoint of the prospective teacher than this new field. The demands are persistent for teachers in this field. Students preparing for teaching positions would do well to investigate the new course which is being offered this year under the title of "General Science."

History of Ancient Iowa Seal Shows Interesting Past

Van Ek Tells of Early Blunders in Making Original Seal in Current Palimpsest

By The Associated Press
 DES MOINES, Sept. 16.—The original die of the great seal of the Territory of Iowa, occupies an imposing place in the archives of the Iowa State Historical Society. It is one and five-eighths inches in diameter and shows the imprint of an eagle carrying in its mouth an arrow, while its talons clutch a bow. On the outer circle is the wording "Seal of The Territory of Iowa."

"Great" Omitted
 This wording is not in accord with the instructions of the territorial secretary, William B. Conway or the resolution of the territorial legislature. It was stipulated that the wording should be "The Great Seal of the Territory of Iowa." Who was responsible for leaving the word "great" off the seal has not been determined, but the next seal used by Iowa, that of 1847 to 1856 carried the wording "The Great Seal of the State of Iowa" surrounding an emblem showing a wheatfield, a steamboat, a factory, a plow and a soldier carrying a flag. Aloft is an eagle bearing a streamer with the words "Our Liberties We Prize and Our Rights We Will Maintain."

University Model
 It is interesting to note, says Jacob Van Ek, writing in the Palimpsest, that the general design for the first territorial seal and motto has served as the model for the seal of the Iowa State Historical Society and the seal of the University of Iowa. The device, he says, has also been used extensively on maps and as a coat of arms. In 1864, an issue of Iowa national bank notes, printed by the federal government, bore the "great" seal of the Territory.

In February 1847, Governor Ansel Briggs approved a legislative resolution directing the secretary of state to procure a great seal of the state of Iowa, two inches in diameter, with the inscription as above stated, set forth upon it.

Again somebody blundered, and the die came from the engraver two and three-sixteenths inches in diameter instead of two as specified by the legislature.

Eight Seals Since 1838
 Since then the engravers of new dies have made many minor changes in the device, although the description in the law has been substantially followed.

State official documents in public archives bear the impression of eight different seals, the last of which has been in use at the state-house since 1838.

The present state seal which bears all the earmarks of pioneer industry is not descriptive of the state as it now is; many persons have complained and from time to time there has been movements to provide a new seal, all of which have died "aborning."

 SAN FRANCISCO.—James Brown couldn't run away with a circus when he was a boy, and he resolved to own one. The other day there the chance for him to realize his ambition. He paid $2,225 to a stranger, possibly Mr. Barnum or Mr. Bailey, and went in search of his property. The circus was supposed to be playing at Garneyville, Neb., only it wasn't. After searching for it a week, Brown decided he had been made a circus by the smooth stranger.

The Parker Pen Company, Gentlemen:

At 4:10 P. M. yesterday I took off in my Yackey plane from Checkerboard field. When I reached an altitude of 3000 feet I leaned over the side and dropped a Parker Over-size Duofold Pen. A few minutes later I made a landing near my starting point, and a crowd was examining the same Parker Duofold pen, which had landed on hard ground. To my great surprise, the pen had not been damaged in the slightest by its 3000 feet drop.

YES, the Parker Duofold Pen was tossed from an aeroplane at dizzy altitude to test our new Non-Breakable material "Permanite," and landed 3000 feet below—unharmful.

Tests such as this are the best guarantees that a pen will last practically forever.

For a year we kept secret the fact that Parker Duofold Pens and Pencils have barrels of this new lustrous, beautiful, light-weight Permanite until a whole series of heroic demonstrations proved that it does not break.

This black-tipped lacquer-red beauty is not only the smartest, shapeliest pen, but the greatest writing instrument the world has ever seen. Its yielding, super-smooth point is guaranteed 25 years not only for mechanical perfection but for wear.

Declaration of Kutsch's Eligibility Strengthens Grid Prospects

Scrimmage Winds Up Second Day's Practice Session

Punters and Passers Get Good Workout Under Fire

Definite announcement that Nick Kutsch will be eligible to play, and a short, but snappy scrimmage between the first team and the second and third squads were the important events on the Iowa football practice program yesterday.

It was something of a surprise to the fans when Coach Ingwersen called for a scrimmage on the second day of practice, but the performances of the men were encouraging. It was called to give the punters and passers a chance to work out under fire, with Kutsch and Arml doing the booting for the first string and Byers sending them back for the seconds.

Lines Weak
The lines appeared weak and did not give the punters sufficient time to get their boots under way with the result that many kicks were blocked. Voltmer, Yegge, and Sowers went through the opposing lines on many occasions to smear the punter.

"Spike" Nelson is nursing sore muscles following the first day of practice, but the rest of the squad appeared to be in good condition. Woodruff of Mason City worked in his tackle berth during the afternoon with Jessen on the other side. Harry Rice and Forrest Twogood continued to hold down the flank positions with Captain Smith on the seconds. Brown was a center and Olson and Hines were at the guard berths.

New Men on Varsity
The definite announcement of Kutsch's eligibility boosts Iowa's football stock several points and the gloom bounds are beginning to waiver before the good showings of the newer men. Several veterans still remain on the lesser squads while sophomores are filling the first team berths.

Forrest Twogood is doing well in Smith's end position and Coach Ingwersen is evidently priming him to fill the vacancy in case Smith's injuries get the better of him. Twogood is big and fast, handles himself well on forward passes, plays a good game on the defense and can be called back to punt if the need arises.

Frank Cuhel worked at fullback on the second string and punctured the first team line on several occasions for nice gains. Bunn, Skelley, Kutsch, and Arml also got away for good gains.

Cardinals Annex Two Slow Games From Lowly Phils

Umpire Puts Wilson Out of Game for Back Talk

[By The Associated Press]
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16.—The St. Louis Cardinals took two games from the Phillies today and went into a tie with Cincinnati in the hot National League pennant race.

The Cards smothered the Phillies in the first game 23 to 3, and took the second, 10 to 2. St. Louis' 23 runs is the season's record in the senior league.

The first game was poorly played and the second little better. The only pleasure the fans appeared to get out of the double header was a dispute between members of the Philadelphia team and Umpire Klem in the sixth inning of the second game. Catcher Wilson was put out of the game for making a protest to Klem and in the argument that followed Manager Fletcher was also sent from the bench.

Then a yellow sign bearing the words "Cattfish Klem" was hung from a window of the club house and Umpire Klem held up the game until it was removed. Who hung the sign there could not be learned by the umpire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds kept in the running today in the dash for the pennant by stretching their winning streak to eight in a shutout of the New York Giants, 3 to 0. The game was a brilliant pitching duel, in which Pete Donohue, Red hurler, conceded only four hits while his rascally-nicked Virgil Barnes for six.

Cincinnati's leadership in the league was shared with the St. Louis Cardinals who took two in a double header from Philadelphia. It was the Reds' second win against the Giants at the Polo grounds this year.

The game was a duel all the way through, decided by two timely clouts by Marriott, Brooklyn third sacker. The Pirates made their one and only bid for honors in the first inning when Cuyler stole second after forcing Warner, reached third on a wild throw by O'Neil and crossed on Wright's single.

City Grants Police Increase in Salary

Tooth Tax Has Fate ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—When William Riddle, former mayor, appeared before assessors to protest $958,000 valuation placed on a piece of his property, the assessors caught the gleam of his platinum teeth. Investigation showed that they were not assessed. A $1,200 valuation was placed on them, and the former mayor was ordered to pay $30 tax. The board also denied his appeal.

Kiss Traps Man as Usual NEW YORK.—A robber held up Ellmore Sweet and John Martin on a shadow-hidden street. From the boy he got 50 cents, a watch. From the girl, $4, a bracelet, a kiss. The kiss was an after thought, and it proved his undoing. He came back for it and returned the girl's valuables. A cop happened along at that moment.

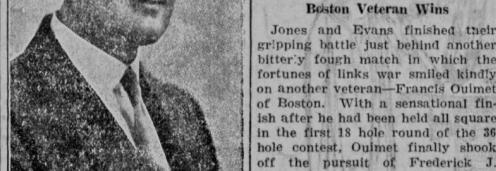

A substantial increase in the salaries of police officers was voted last night at a special session of the city council in the council chamber of the city hall. The decision came after the reading of a petition signed by 200 local business men asking a minimum salary of $125 a month to those who have served on the force one year; $135 to those who have served two years and $150 to those who have served three or more years. The present wage scale is $115 for one year men and $120 for two year men. The increase is permissible under Vote Close A heated discussion preceded the new city rating. The vote on the petition and the bill passed by a vote of 4 to 3, after which the chairman of the ordinance committee was instructed to draw up an ordinance providing for the increase. This will be submitted to the council in the near future. A raise in the pay of the city council members was also voted at the meeting. A new wage scale of $120 a year, payable monthly, will go into effect April 4, 1927 when the new city officials take office. The present salary is one dollar for each meeting at which business is transacted.
