Labor Backs Smith's Candidacy

"To Paris in 1927" Vote American Legionnaires

Labor Will Back Governor Smith For Presidency

American Legion Will Convene at Paris Next Year

"Second A. E. F." to Employ Twenty-Eight Ships

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—"To Paris in 1927," was the decision made by the American Legion today. Reaffirming the action taken at the Omaha convention last year, the legionnaires voted to hold the 1927 convention in the French city from Sept. 19 to Sept. 23, inclusive, and to reconvene in New York on Oct. 18, 1927, to take action on all business brought before it.

A motion by the Montana delegation to delay the vote on the Paris question 24 hours was overwhelmingly defeated and the convention adopted the report of the committee without debate.

Some "No's" were heard when the question of adoption was put, but they were few and feeble compared with the mighty roar of "Yes" that preceded the negative vote.

McQuigg Praises Decision

Nation Commander John R. McQuigg immediately took the floor and addressed the delegates.

"By your vote," he said, "you have committed the Legion to one of the most spectacular, one of the most beneficial events in its history, a pilgrimage to Paris to visit the graves of fallen heroes."

"It behooves us to do everything possible to make it one of the most gigantic successes the world has ever seen. No event in recent times has the significance this event will have internationally and for the Legion."

The pilgrimage will be known as the second "A. E. F." Twenty-eight ships with the Giant Leviathan as the flagship are expected to be needed. The sailing ports are Montreal, Boston, New York, Hampton Roads, Charleston, Jacksonville and Galveston or Houston with New Orleans a port of call.

Celebrities Attend Convention

Among those who addressed the convention today were Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, Rear-Admiral Coontz of the navy, and K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner.

Sir Walter H. Cowan, second in command of the British fleet, who is in port on the cruiser, Calcutta, was welcomed by the delegates when he and his staff appeared.

Senator Reed, a member of the Legion, in his talk, referred to the gas treaty. "My hat is off to the American Legion for the firm position that it has taken in opposition to that treaty," he said, "and so far as I know, there is not an ex-service man in the senate who will not fight that treaty to the very last ditch."

Advocates Law Enforcement

The senator spoke for law enforcement. "If we legionnaires will only demand that the policing of our towns and states shall be in the hands of such men as were company commanders and first sergeants in our army in France," he said, "and not in the jobs of elderly rattlemen who hold the jobs only for the pay they get, we are going to get decent enforcement of the laws against the crimes of violence."

"The present disorder throughout the United States is a disgrace to our nation and our legion can, if it will, make itself the greatest vigilance committee that the world has ever seen."

Nineteen Indicted by Federal Court as Big Rum Ring

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(A.P.)—Nineteen men have been indicted in the federal court as members of a rum smuggling ring rivaling that headed by Wm. V. Dwyer now under sentence to serve a term in Atlanta prison.

Two men from Chicago described as prominent club men, a third from New Jersey and a fourth from Rhode Island, were among those indicted.

The indictments, charging conspiracy to violate the prohibition act, grew out of the capture in the Hudson river last April of the steamship Eker aboard which prohibition agents found the biggest cargo of liquor ever seized at this port. The liquor was valued at $1,200,000.

Federal officers say they discovered evidence that bribes totalling $43,000 had been paid to enable the Eker to enter New York harbor with its huge cargo.

Grid-Graph to Play Illinois-Iowa Game

Play by play reports of the Iowa-Illinois football game at Urbana this week end will be presented to local grid fans at the grid-graph in the men's gymnasium, Saturday afternoon. A direct wire to the field, connected with the operator of the board will provide those less fortunate individuals who must stay in Iowa City with the nearest approach to the "real thing" available.

Reports are scheduled to get under way at 2 p. m. An admission will be charged and receipts from the reports will be used to send the band to Illinois.

Former Klan Head Refuses to Testify in Superior Court

Named as Source of Proof for Alleged Political Corruption of Indiana Officials

[By The Associated Press] INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 13.—D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan, who has been named as a source from which proof of recent charges of alleged political corruption in the state might be obtained, was brought here today from the Indiana State prison, where he is serving a life term for murder, and appeared for an hour before the Marion county grand jury. He later refused to testify in a civil suit in superior court and was whisked back to the prison at Michigan City before nightfall.

Said Little

In the absence of information as to what happened in the grand jury room, the brief duration of Stephenson's stay there is regarded by persons following the case, as indicative that he volunteered little, if any, confirmation of allegations of misconduct by public officials which have been made by Thomas H. Adams, publisher of the Vincennes, Ind. Commercial.

Coincided with Stephenson's return to the prison, Adams issued a statement in which he quoted Floyd Christian, an attorney who was a member of defense counsel in Stephenson's murder trial, as saying that he had seen in Stephenson's cell a check which was "payable to Ed. Jackson for $5,000."

Christian himself verified the quotations attributed to him regarding Stephenson's check to Governor Jackson. He added that Stephenson had told him he had spent something over $200,000 in Jackson's campaign for governor in 1924. Governor Jackson was out of the city and could not be reached for comment on Christian's quotation. In addition to the $5,000 check, Christian said there also was another check payable to Jackson, the amount of which he did not remember.

Society Expects Hamlin Garland Here Next Spring

It was announced at a meeting of the Hamlin Garland Literary society Tues. night that Hamlin Garland, who takes a special interest in the society bearing his name, writes that he will be present at the society's banquet in the spring.

"BEAT ILLINOIS"

An Editorial

THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS publicity staff is working overtime these days to convince the public that the "Fighting Illini" are an unbeatable football aggregation. Much of this chatter is swallowed whole by gullible readers, and gloom-sisters here and there are already hanging crepe for the Hawkeyes, although the Homecoming game at Champaign is still several days distant.

Not that Illinois hasn't a powerful eleven. Coach Bob Zuppke is credited with the remark that his line is one of the best ever, and headlines shout the prowess of "Frosty" Peters and his companion "Four Mules." But Coach Burton A. Ingwersen has a green team, composed for the most part of sophomores, who are determined to win. They are not dismayed by the stories which emanate from Champaign. They are going to Champaign to defeat the Illini, if fight and courage mean victory.

What the team needs is the united support of the students. Two years ago Iowa beat Michigan and the victory was due in a large measure to the spirit which a huge pep demonstration inspired in the members of the squad the night they left for Ann Arbor.

The team is going to Champaign to win. If there are eleven Hawkeyes in that game, fighting from the first kickoff, Iowa will win! Get back of the team! Give them a pep demonstration which will surpass the Yale victory celebration. Not eleven men in every play, but 6,000 students—and we'll beat Illinois!

Movie Stars Hear Evangelist's Trial

Star Witness Tells of Faked Evidence of Kidnapping

[By The Associated Press] LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13.—Guarded by a squad of private detectives and starting on the stand before a group of movie celebrities, Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sielaff continued today her testimony that Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, conspired to manufacture evidence supporting her kidnapping story.

The detectives were on hand as the result of several letters threatening Mrs. Wiseman, co-defendant with Mrs. McPherson and the principal witness for the prosecution.

The film luminaries, so often the objects of stares, were interested spectators at the hearing.

Exposes Abduction Plan

Mrs. Wiseman resumed her narrative of the "coaching" she said she had received at Angelus Temple, Mrs. McPherson's headquarters, to play the role of the woman in a cottage at Carmel last May and thus refute charges that the evangelist lived there several days with her former radio operator, Kenneth G. Ormiston, now a fugitive from justice. She testified that on Aug. 9 Mrs. McPherson called attention to the similarity in appearance between herself and Mrs. Wiseman. She told her if she would put her hair up high on her head, people would mistake her for the evangelist.

At district attorney Keyes' request Mrs. Wiseman removed her hat and exposed her hair, which was light brown with a reddish tinge.

Examines Lawyer's Secretary

Mrs. Wiseman said she met Bernice Morris, secretary to the late R. A. McKinley, blind long beach attorney, also an accused of the evangelist, on Sept. 10. At that time, the evangelist and her mother were present.

Earthquakes Shown on Seismograph

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Three earthquakes, two described as "severe" and all estimated at distance of 4,800 miles from the capital, were recorded today on the Georgetown University seismograph. Director Tondorf said the first which occurred at 1:13 a. m. had been approximately located in the Alutian Islands and the other two in the same territory. The second quake started at 9:28 a. m. and lasted three hours, while the third the most severe, began at 2:16 p. m. and continued for four hours.

Talented Musicians Elected to Continuo

Sixteen Are Honored by Initiation into Music Society

Continuo, honorary music society, announces the election to membership and initiation of the following students: Clarence J. Andrews, A3 of Iowa City; Jessie Archerd, A4 of Clarion; Clarence F. Boess, A4 of Hawkeye; Alice L. Burr, A3 of Muscatine; Olive DeLay, A3 of Rockwell; Beatrice L. Denton, A3 of Iowa City; Elizabeth K. Dunn, A3 of Rockwell; Helen Payne, G of Indianapolis, Indiana; Ruth R. Ritter, A4 of Wayland; Grace Watkins, G of Fargo, N. D.; Miriam Fox Withrow, G of Mount Pleasant.

Helen H. Coppage, A4 of Stanton; Ruth M. Edson, A4 of Storm Lake; Alton O. Groth, G of St. Ansgar; Miss Anne Pierce, of Iowa City, associate in public school music; and A. Dwight Brown, of Bloomfield, assistant in violin, are newly elected associate members.

Initiation was held last night in Professor Walter Leon's studio. The new members were formally welcomed and told of the ideals and aims of Continuo by Helen Cole.

A musical program consisted of solos by Kenneth Forbes, vocal selections by Alice Ingham, and selections from two pianos by Harry Thatcher and Helen Cole. Dr. Philip Greeley Clapp entertained with musical numbers and a talk on the Bohemian Grove of California. Impromptu stunts and an organized impromptu stunt by the new members concluded the program, following which refreshments were served during the informal social part of the meeting.

The officers for Continuo for the school year 1926-27 are Helen Cole, president; Ruth Kelley, secretary, and Harry Thatcher, treasurer.

Sioux City Sweeps to Musical Victory

Y.; and fifth, Garrett Cochran post, Williamsport, Pa.

First place carried a prize of $1,000; second $500; third $250; fourth $150 and fifth $100. Fifteen bands competed.

Delaware Prisoners Mutiny When Freed

Trusted Inmates Go Mad When Given Cell Release

[By The Associated Press] MEDIA, Del., Oct. 13.—Released from their cells in the Delaware county jail by seven "trusties," nearly 200 prisoners, men and women, today drove out the guards, wrecked the interior of the jail and tried to set it afire.

They were subdued by special deputy sheriffs, recruited from citizens of the town and police after a fight in which blackjacks, shotguns and leadpipe were brought into action. Six of the mutinous prisoners were shot, one in the head and the others in the legs with bird shot. None were seriously wounded. An hour after the mutiny began all the prisoners had been forced back into their cells but the prison was damaged so badly by the maddened inmates that few of the cell doors could be locked. Tonight twenty-five guards, armed with shot guns, patrolled the corridors or stood sentry over the broken doors.

The outbreak, authorities said, followed a night of wild disorder precipitated by the shouts and taunts hurled at other prisoners by 24 young negro women recently brought to the jail from the Sleighton farm for incorrigibles. Many complaints of over-crowding and a reduction in their food ration recently had been made by the prisoners.

Homecoming Pins Go on Sale Soon; Design by Roach

The captain Paul Smith homecoming badges will go on sale one week from Tuesday morning. Sororities will use one hundred-twenty-five girls in the sale. They will take responsibility for all selling.

The badge, this year was designed by Walter Roach, A4 of Iowa City. The emblem is of the traditional size and bears the profile of Captain Smith, done in delicately toned shades of black. The profile stands against a solid background of black, lightened by two narrow golden arcs bearing the inscription, "Iowa Homecoming." High lights are in old gold.

This is the third year that Iowa has used the homecoming badge. Before the celebration became of such general interest, the funds were raised by subscriptions among the faculty and townspeople. The cost has now exceeded the amount which can be raised in this manner.

Sacramental View of Marriage Can Preserve Family

MILWAUKEE—Oct. 13.—(A.P.)—A solution to the divorce problem, requiring a civil ceremony for all persons, but limiting the religious service to those with Christian ideals, was presented before the annual Anglo-Catholic convener today by Wm. Grant, Jr., Denver attorney, as the means of preserving the "integrity of the family."

Among those whose religious views are beyond reproach, the jurisdiction of the church over marriage is clear, he said, but concerning those who know nothing of the church or its doctrines, the jurisdiction is doubtful.

"Two heathens, knowing nothing of the church, who are married by a justice of the peace should have no objections if they wish to secure a divorce," he declared.

"Regarding the status of the religious people who find marriage not suitable, everyone knows that all marriages are not ideal and even the church recognizes separation. However, only through the sacramental view of marriage can the American family be saved from disintegration."

Junior Journalists Convene Tomorrow

Henry Justin Smith to Address Scribes Meeting Here

Over three hundred high school journalists, members of the Institute of Iowa high school journalists and the national high school journalism society, Quill and Scroll, will convene tomorrow morning in the Senate Hall of old capitol for their first meeting. During the session, which will last for two days, every phase of editing newspapers, magazines, and annuals, and the business management of each will be considered.

The convention will open with an address of welcome by President Walter A. Jessup, in the morning. Introduction of speakers and announcements will be followed by a talk on "The Field of Journalism" by Prof. Charles H. Weller, director of the School of Journalism. At 11 a. m., the first section meetings for supervisors, editorial staffs, and business staffs will be held.

Henry Justin Smith to Speak

One of the outstanding speakers of the convention will be Henry Justin Smith, managing editor of the Chicago Daily News, who will talk on "Writing and Journalism," Friday in the Memorial Union at 7:30 p. m.

Other first day speakers will be Mrs. Nina Holland Covington, supervisor of journalism at the Hugh Morson high school, Raleigh, N. C., and Rowena Harvey, supervisor of publications at the South Side high school, Fort Wayne, Ind. Both are recognized as being among the leading women journalists in the United States for high school publications.

Delegates will receive some practical pointers on Saturday when they will have complete charge of the Sunday edition of The Daily Iowan.

The Associated Students of Journalism, and Sigma Delta Chi, and Sigma Theta Phi, journalistic fraternities, will provide entertainment for the visiting scribes during their short visit. Among the entertainments upon the program are dinners and a convention ball.

Housing Committee Seeks Aid

Some difficulty is being experienced in finding rooms for the delegates during their two day stay, so the housing committee asks students having friends attending the convention to house them if possible. The fraternities, sororities, and Currier Hall are to house the largest part of the visiting journalists.

All delegates will wear an old gold ribbon to mark them as visitors. Most of the out-of-state delegates are expected to arrive today. Iowa will have the largest attendance.

Other states to be represented are Illinois, Nebraska, Michigan, Minnesota, South Dakota, and Oklahoma.

Reprieve Granted Again to Scott by Illinois Court Act

Supreme Court Orders Review of Second Sanity Hearing Scott's Fourth Stay

[By The Associated Press] CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Forty-eight hours before the time set for his execution, and for the third time in 15 months, the hanging of Russell Scott for the murder of Joseph Maurer in a drug store holdup, was averted today.

The state supreme court at Springfield ordered a stay until it can review the proceedings in his last sanity hearing, in which he was found sane after he had spent a year in the state asylum.

Varied Career

The man who was a "vaudeville actor" at 20; a corporation head at 30 and a hold-up-man at 33, seemed little moved at the news of his new lease on life. So many times he had been jerked from the gallows back to temporary safety that the methods by which his execution has been four times postponed have become largely incomprehensible to him.

Saved Several Times

He was sentenced to hang at his first trial but won a new trial only to draw the same sentence again. Fifteen months ago he was reprieved by the governor a few hours before his death march on the basis of a telegram purported to be a confession from his brother Robert to the crime. The message was found to be a hoax. Minutes before the new time fixed for execution Scott won a sanity hearing. He was found insane and sent to an asylum whence he was returned last summer for a new sanity trial, found sane, and again condemned to the gallows.

If a review of the second sanity proceedings by the supreme court establishes that the lower court proceeded properly, a new date will be set for the hanging. If it is reversed, a new sanity hearing must follow.

Authorized Assessment

The convention's plan to resist "roads into the ranks of federation through the local plant unions" authorized a special assessment of all affiliated organizations for the conduct of the campaign.

Under the constitution, the executive council may by the authority of the convention raise as much as $200,000 by special assessments in its fiscal year.

The resolutions committee's report deploring abuse of the injunction powers in certain localities, which were not specifically named, developed debate on the entire question of the powers of the federal courts.

German Co-Eds and Football Differ From American Brand, Says Metzger

Wolfgang Metzger, who won one of the Seashore fellowships given at Berlin university and who is now attending the University of Iowa on that scholarship, was surprised at the way Iowa co-eds use rouge and lip-stick, and also that they do not smoke much. Like the Lord Bishop of London, Metzger thought our football games very slow in action.

"In our country they have football which is very different from the game here," said Metzger. "The game is more exciting and the ball is in motion more of the time. There are no stops and piling up of the players, such as I saw at the game last Saturday."

The game which is popular at the University of Berlin is played more like American soccer than anything else. The players wear jersey sweaters and trunks, similar to those our track men wear.

"The games are played on either Saturday or Sunday," Metzger said, "for Sunday is not observed so strictly there."

The more popular pastime for Berlin students is to take a trail out into the country and wander about the hills or around the lakes.

Wear Skirts Longer
The girls of Germany don't show chapped knees on the campus, according to Metzger. They wear their dresses from six to ten inches longer than they do in America.

It has been only in the past year that the German girls have bobbed their hair in American style, and at the present time only about three-fourths of them have their hair cut. Just about five per cent of the girls use cosmetics, and those that do, use them sparingly. He didn't understand "necking" and "petting."

Knickerbockers, more like the trousers of the American boy scout, are worn commonly by the German students and the university professors. Hose, minus the flashy patterns, are worn and extend up just below the knee over the laced knickers, and are held up by hidden rubber bands.

"Beer Parties" Common
"Nearly all the college boys of Germany smoke and drink beer, and at least two-thirds of the girls smoke," Metzger answered when asked about the comparison of habit and modes. "We have fraternal organizations which are called, 'Ver-bindung.' The two strongest organizations on the University of Berlin campus are the 'Corps' and the 'Burschenschaften.' They do not have pins such as are worn by Iowa men, but instead show their identity by colored caps and a small banner worn as a streamer from the left shoulder to the waistline. The German fraternal organizations do not live at houses, but have their clubs. Here they meet after school or in the evening and talk, sing, smoke, and drink German beer," said Metzger.

Metzger left Berlin for the University of Iowa Sept. 9 and arrived Sept. 25. He will spend one year here at the university studying psychology with the scholarship offered by Dean Seashore. He already has a doctor's degree from the University of Berlin. He studied English in Germany and speaks and reads it well.

Discuss Problems of Woman Students at Y.W.C.A. Tea

The Y. W. C. A. entertained at a tea yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the L. A. drawing room. Florence Jeurgens, A4 of Glidden, played a selection on the violin, accompanied by Alice Mulrone, A3 of Malard. Maurine Mather, A4 of Tipton, presided at the tea table. She was assisted by Harriet Montgomery, A3 of Fort Dodge, Barbara Therne, A3 of Keosauqua, Betty Baxter, A1 of Iowa City, Helen Omer, A1 of Heron, Ill., Ruth Bywater, A1 of Iowa City, Pauline Kidd, A1 of Ottumwa, Helen Stribe, A1 of Clinton, Marion Ketchum, A3 of Iowa City, La Vaughn Lee, A3 of Cambridge, and Janette Schaffer, A3 of Davenport.

Marjory Long, A1 of Ames, announced the eight dominant interests of the women of the university, as shown by the questionnaire given last week. They are money, vocations, social relations, philosophy of religion, marriage, sororities, international interests, and community problems. The women were given an opportunity to sign with the group in which they were interested and the meetings in the future, will be built around these interests. Evelyn Field, A4 of Tipton, had charge of the tea.

Chemical Society Will Have Dinner at Memorial Union

AMES, Oct. 13 (AP) — John Van Luar, a laborer of near Crocker, was instantly killed and his companion, Ole Strand, Des Moines, was fatally injured today when their automobile was struck on a grade crossing north of Crocker by a Chicago and Northwestern passenger train. Strand, whose chest was crushed, died here late today.

Van Luar was a married man but had no children.

Plan Program for W.A.A. Carnival Hallowe'en Night

Gruesome skeletons, ghosts, and slinking black cats will prowls and screech through the women's gymnasium on the night of Oct. 31 at the annual Gym Khana Carnival given by the women's athletic association.

Gym Khana Carnival is a Hallowe'en party for all students and the public. Carnival dancing, novelty booths, cider, and doughnuts are always attractions.

Five committees of W. A. A. girls with Thelma M. Shomler, A2 of Cedar Rapids, vice president of the association, in charge, will provide for the entertainment.

Helen E. Springer, A4, of Leona, music chairman, has obtained Geo. Jones' seven piece orchestra to play. Theo Clifton, A2, of Webster City, head of the decoration committee, has Marjorie Anderson, A3, of Correctionville, and Fern Sidwell assisting her. All booths will be managed by Aileen Carpenter, A3, of Iowa City, and Perle E. Van Alstine, A3, of Gilmore City, assisted by Amber L. Brush, A3, of Chelsea, Dorothy Denkmann, A3, of Durant, Bernice M. Lane, A3, of LeMars, Elsie L. Molyneux, A4, of What Cheer, Dorothy E. Wilson, A4, of Greene, and Katherine M. Thielens, A4, of Grundy Center. Jane J. Dandland, A3, Moline, Ill., is publicity chairman working with Maxine E. Humeston, A2, of Union, and Mildred C. Cotton, A2, of Belle Plaine.

Mrs. Grace E. Chaffee, assistant professor of sociology, will leave tomorrow for Des Moines, where she will deliver a series of lectures before the state meeting of the Y. W. C. A. Oct. 19-20. The subject of her lectures will be "Community Organization."

Hornsby Present at His Mother's Burial

Expresses Desire for Son to Stay With Team Mates

(By The Associated Press) AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 13.—In a tiny graveyard tucked away in the bend of the Colorado river, tender hands laid to rest Mrs. M. D. Hornsby, mother of Rogers Hornsby, manager of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, late today.

She died here Sept. 29, her last wish being that "her baby," Rogers, should stay with the Cardinals and lead them against the New York Yankees in the World's series. He consented to this only after relatives had agreed to defer the funeral until the conclusion of the diamond classic.

At the brief services at the grave, Hornsby gave way to his grief. Tears streamed down his face, and the hands, which for six years swung the most feared bat in the National League trembled. With the Cardinal manager, were his older brother, Everett, of Tulsa, Okla., and his sister, Mrs. Miggie Melton of Fort Worth. The cemetery, 3 miles east of Austin, is the resting place of four generations of the family.

Cholera Specialist Explains Hog Loss

CEDAR RAPIDS, Oct. 13 (AP)—Lack of vaccinating serum is causing the loss of thousands of hogs in Iowa from cholera, the eastern Iowa veterinarian association was told at its convention here today by Dr. T. P. White, cholera specialist of the United States Animal Industry bureau, who had just completed a survey on the disease in the state. He estimated that twenty million cubic centimeters of serum will be needed in the next few days as a result of the decision to turn it out with an eleven instead of a twenty day test.

Hammill and Steck Make Homecoming Reservations

Reservations for Homecoming have been received at the office of President Walter A. Jessup from John Hammill, Governor of Iowa, and from Dan F. Steck, United States congressman from Iowa.

Among the other prominent guests of the university will be Judge F. P. Faville, member of the State Supreme Court, Mr. A. P. Corey, secretary of the Iowa state fair board, M. G. Thornburg, state secretary of agriculture, and W. H. Bremner, president of the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad. Mr. Bremner graduated in applied science from Iowa in 1891, and from law in 1895.

It is expected that all the members of the state board of education will be Iowa's guests during Homecoming, Nov. 6.

Alumni Horde to Return to Iowa for Homecoming

By rail and highway, University of Iowa alumni will journey back to the scene of undergraduate days, Nov. 5 and 6. Advance inquiries and the ticket sale for the Minnesota-Iowa football game indicate that a record crowd will celebrate the fiftieth annual Hawkeye homecoming.

Rates on all railroads of the state, lower than ever before, have been granted by the Western Passenger association. One way fare on a round trip ticket will be charged and there will be special train service from Omaha, Des Moines, Davenport, and Chicago. Tickets are good until Saturday night, Nov. 7.

Improved weather conditions are hastening the completion of paving west of Iowa City on the White Way road, No. 7 (now, under the new markers, No. 32). The ribbon of cement will hearten the motorist from the Iowa county line into Iowa City, and gravel surface much of the way west will facilitate travel from the center of the state.

A more colorful homecoming than ever before is in prospect as fraternities, sororities, and civic organizations develop plans for elaborate decorating.

Glee Clubs Train for Gilbert and Sullivan's Opera

The glee clubs have started work on Gilbert and Sullivan's famous opera, "Patience."

A chorus of a hundred voices is being trained, and Prof. Walter Leon is holding try-outs for the leading roles, which will be announced in a week.

Holt Publishers to Issue Mott's Book

"Rewards of Reading" Title of Book to Aid Readers

An advance notice of the publishing of the book "Rewards of Reading" by Professor Frank Luther Mott, editor of "The Midland," has been received from Henry Holt and company, publishers.

The object of the book is to present five major thoughts in reading. These are: read books for your own personal enjoyment, think of them in terms of personality, rely on your own honest judgment, read aloud, when possible to get the full emotional flavor, and cultivate a true catholicity in literature.

In this writing, Mott brings out the thought that "literature is to be enjoyed, not studied; that it is to give the reader pleasure, not instruction."

The publishers of "Rewards of Reading" state that "this book is an invaluable guide to students of literature. Its informal and sincere tone will certainly help to befriended the experienced reader, and the teacher will find it valuable for textbook purposes. An especially ample index increases the book's usefulness."

Iowa Real Estate Association Elects Officers for 1927

OTTUMWA, Oct. 13.—(A. P.)—George Haw, president of the Ottumwa Real Estate Board, today was elected president of the Iowa Association of Real Estate Boards, which decided to hold next year's convention at Council Bluffs.

Other new officers include: Arthur S. Kirk, Des Moines, secretary, and L. W. Barker, Clinton; J. R. Levrett, Council Bluffs; H. J. Schroder, Fort Madison and Gross E. Kruger, Sioux City, vice presidents.

Brookhart Scored

New directors are C. C. Bell of Okaloosa; Joe Wagner, Davenport; C. Ferguson, Des Moines; and George Scully, Waterloo.

W. W. Baldwin, vice president of the Burlington Railway, advised the convention banquet tonight scoring Col. Smith W. Brookhart for what he termed "misrepresentation of conditions in Iowa." He offered statistics to refute what he called detrimental statements made by Brookhart.

Congressman W. R. Green of Council Bluffs, chairman of the house ways and means committee, scored the present system of state property taxation, declaring it an "economic crime." Mr. Green praised the present federal income tax law and voiced opposition to repeal to the federal estate tax.

"It would surprise you," he said, "to know with what amazing bounds and leaps great estates are growing in the country. I know of one family estate that is increasing at the rate of $150,000,000 a year. One man in this country has property in the total of one billion dollars and I believe there are others."

Sydney Debaters Attain Oratorical Ability Through Informal Practice

The debaters from the University of Sydney, Australia, are required, through the number of questions that they debate, to have a knowledge that is astounding to the average American citizen. The most important phase of their debating life is the Union, where they gain not only a vast amount of knowledge, but an informal and interesting way of debating.

The Union, an institution rarely found in America, is used in Australian and English university life as a training for students in public address and in crystallization of ideas concerning international and social relations and government. Many of the outstanding political leaders of England and Australia received their early parliamentary training in the Union.

Hawkeyes Muster Basket Ball Squad for First Drills

Janse, Assistant Coach, Calls Varsity Men Three Months Before Big Ten Games

Three months from today, Sam Barry and his University of Iowa basketball team forge into the Western conference basketball race. With two title shares in four years, the Hawkeye coach, now busy with football, entertains hopes of more honors, so his right hand man, Hector Janse, will call out varsity candidates Monday afternoon.

Janse, one of Barry's stars on the title-sharing team of 1923 and an all-conference forward that year, will be greeted by four "I" men of the squad which tied Michigan, Indiana, and Purdue for the championship last winter. These veterans, now at liberty to report for fall drill, are Captain McConnell, the all-western guard; Gordon Phillips, reserve forward, whose long shots won several games; Lawrence (Pop) Harrison, forward; and George Van Deusen, starting his third year as a forward. Graduation took only Harold Miller, center.

Cent. Ralph Hogan is now on the football squad and cannot report until after Nov. 20. Neither can two of the three minor letter men, P. E. Smith, guard, and C. C. Keel, center. F. W. Lawson, reserve guard, will be available now.

The assistant coach, who was also Barry's aide last fall when the head coach was busy with football, will conduct practices in the men's gym each afternoon at 5 o'clock. All university men who have talent in basketball are expected to report for the varsity squad.

The Hawkeye schedule includes non-conference games with St. Louis, Wabash, Notre Dame, Marquette, and Butler, and two Big Ten battles each with Chicago, Illinois, Purdue, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Ohio State.

Diamondmen Play Practice Contest

Baseball candidates played a seven inning practice game Wednesday night. Two teams were chosen from the men that reported. One was made up of Thompson, catcher; Corbin, pitcher; Beardsley, first base; McNabb, second base; Blackford, shortstop; Gibbs, third base; Henn, right field; Walsh, centerfield; Rouse, left field. The other team was composed of Keyes and Hathaway, catchers; Towne, pitcher; Sahr, first base; Aalfs, second base; Gamble, short stop; Gleisow, third base; Faber, center field; Watson, left field and Sweeney, right field. The first named team won 4 to 3.

The fielding of both teams was the feature of the contest, each in field giving their pitcher perfect support. Their was considerable hitting, with Aalfs and Henn winning the honors of doing the most clouting.

Argentine Wheat Surplus Result of Low Grade Crop

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP)—The Argentine wheat crop has an exportable surplus of approximately 41,000,000 bushels as against 30,000,000 at this time a year ago. The agriculture department was advised today that this condition was brought about by a slackening in demand because of poor quality of that country's crop.

Iowa Produces Washing Machines for Country

Washing machines, and more washing machines—1250 of these Monday time-savers pour out of Newton daily, establishing Iowa as the center of the washing machine industry in the last two months.

No longer will the housewives of California and the northwest rub their washing on old-fashioned boards, for on Sept. 25, two solid trainloads of Maytag washers left the city westward bound. And the east has not been forgotten, for five trainloads left yesterday, taking 11,500 machines to the homes of easterners. This shipment is the largest individual one in the world and is valued at $2,000,000, causing Newton to rank second to Des Moines for receiving and forwarding railroad freight shipments, totaling $65,000,000.

Although the present rate is one on a half solid trainloads monthly, added factory buildings promise to raise the daily output to 1600 instead of 1250, and will make Newton the home of one of the largest aluminum factories in the world.

Lawyers Choose Girl for Position in Last Elections

Helen E. Ross, 12 of Rockwell City, was unanimously elected secretary-treasurer of the junior law class yesterday. This election completes the selection of junior law officers. William H. Chamberlain, 12 of Anamosa, who was elected secretary-treasurer, Tuesday, was recalled from the office after a dispute as to the validity of ballots.

Railroads Show Increase in Freight Revenue Traffic

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The American Railway association announced tonight that for the nineteenth week this year the revenue freight loadings exceeded 1,000,000 cars in the period ending Oct. 2.

The week's total was 1,185,524 cars. This number is only 1,487 below the record set during the week ending Sept. 18, and 72,241 greater than the loadings in last week. It was also greater by 2,584 than the preceding week.

Field Seats 30,000

Iowa field, scene of fourteen other historic homecoming football games, will accommodate 30,000 people. Sale of tickets from the department of athletics is progressing fast, but Manager K. E. Griffin makes assurance that there are still good seats available. Last year a record crowd of 25,721 people saw Iowa beat Illinois.

Queen Sent Columbus West from Religious Motive Lenihan Explains

It was the religious motive, not the desire for treasure, that moved Queen Isabella to send Columbus overseas, according to Father D. J. Lenihan, speaking at the landing day celebration of the Knights of Columbus, Tuesday evening.

Father Lenihan, who is state chaplain of the Knights of Columbus, is pastor in St. Patrick's church, Cedar Rapids. He has been state chaplain for six years. During the war he was stationed as chaplain at the largest arsenal in the world.

In his talk, "The Religious Significance of Landing Day," Father Lenihan pointed out the religious spirit that has been prevalent from the time of Columbus to the present. Columbus, himself, was a very religious man. Travel in his day was in crude ships. But generally those ships played a active part in spreading the gospel. Now there is the automobile, which has rapidly facilitated transportation. But instead of furthering religion, it has broken down the home, he said.

Wieglespeaks to Commerce Majors on Qualifications

Mr. Dan Wieglespeaks, president of the Community Welfare Inc. of St. Paul, gave a talk to a group of students of the college of commerce yesterday afternoon on the opportunities and qualifications of the Chamber of Commerce secretary.

"The secretary must be primarily a booster and an enthusiast," he said. "He must have the vision to see at least a third more than the average man and be able to visualize concretely future projects. In fact he must be two, three, or five years ahead of his community in ideas and thought. He must have the ability to make the other man see things as he sees them, and to talk to men in other walks of life in their own vernacular."

Mr. Wieglespeaks stressed the fact that the secretary must develop a genuine loyalty to the community in which he is located.

In commenting on the opportunities for employment, Mr. Wieglespeaks said that there are more openings at present for college trained men than before. He stressed the fact that the Chamber of Commerce is one field in which the man is paid according to the service he renders, and that there are several positions now open at salaries ranging as high as $15,000 per annum with no applicants in sight.

Opportunity Knocks

OPPORTUNITIES to do fine and gracious things do not present themselves every day. Such a time has come to everyone connected with the university.

By special invitation from the school of journalism, young people are coming here today from all over the country to attend the Quill and Scroll convention.

Nationally known speakers have been secured and an interesting program prepared for them. So far it is assured that their visit here will be all that they expect of it. But more than that is necessary. Lodging for Friday night has been promised them, and only good will and eager cooperation from everyone can make this possible.

It is the duty of everyone to make them feel welcome and it is for everyone—fraternities, sororities, private homes, everyone—to offer hospitality to as many of these boys and girls as they can possibly accommodate.

Call 732 or 2173 and make known the number you can care for.

These students have come not only to the convention; they have come to see the university. They can visualize games in Iowa field; they can admire our fine buildings, but unless they are gripped by the spirit of the place, unless they are made to feel that Iowa likes them as much as they like Iowa, they will go home unsatisfied.

It is a rare opportunity for everyone to so entertain them that they will go home hoping that this university will be their alma mater when their high school days are done.

Again, the Soot!

EACH year at this time an old problem confronts the people of Iowa City and they ask themselves, "Are we again obliged to face the soot and smoke?"

Before the University installed its new heating plant the city council was able to wash its hands of the matter. The smoke evil was attributed to the "state." Now that the new plant is nearing completion the citizens are hearing another alibi. The council and mayor are laying the blame at the door of the householder. They maintain that the smoke, of which Iowa City is over abundantly supplied, comes from the residence districts.

It may be due to some peculiarity in air currents, or it may be only physicists know much, but it is strange that this residential smoke does not make itself apparent in the residential section of the town. People of Iowa City are likely to smile at such excuses.

The black smudge which descends upon Iowa City twice each day, if not often, comes from business houses, cafes, laundries and the like. The chimneys on these places are not tall enough to give the necessary suction to carry the residue away. The heavy air forces large black cakes of fresh soot to the ground. The streets are covered with it and it is only the most agile who are able to dodge it.

How long Iowa City people will stand for this nuisance it is difficult to determine. Iowa City is a beautiful town but would be a hundredfold more so were it given a thorough cleansing and then kept in a state of cleanliness by an ordinance eliminating the smoke evil.

Cheap Capitalists

THE capitalists who run this land of ours have done queer things from time to time but the queerest of all is their present inclination toward personal cheapness. It is to be deplored that "big" men like Henry Ford and Thomas A. Edison resort to petty means and foul to get around an advertising expenditure. One wonders whether he should call them "big" after all.

Mr. Edison recently made what he hoped would be a detrimental remark about the radio in which he said that for musical purposes the radio is an absolute failure. Shortly before making that statement the great inventor had brought out a new type of his famous phonograph. It does not take so much reasoning to see Mr. Edison's motive, but it would take a lot of imagination to believe that it can hurt the radio. Simply a way of getting publicity that he did not need.

On the heels of Edison's statement comes Henry

Ford starting a revolution in the working week, reducing it to five days. At first thought this sounds very well, and Mr. Ford is again heralded as a benefactor of mankind. More publicity! Ford's sales take another jump. But is it really a beneficent act? Little has been said about the fact that the laborers in the Ford's factories will be paid for five days instead of six. Two days out of every week thousands of men will lie idle, literally wasting one of them. Would it not be a much more charitable act on the part of Mr. Ford if he would let his men work six days but cut their hours and pay them for the full week?

Touring Through College

A SINGLE night in a tourists' camp will disclose that there are two distinct types of tourists in this country.

There are those who ride with their attention divided between the speedometer, the clock, and the sign-posts; who bring back to their friends only a report of mileage, with perhaps some warnings and recommendations about roads and the price of gasoline. Sometimes they speak tragically of having missed the trail or of losing two hours on a detour.

Then there is the type which travels more slowly and who brings home stories about conditions of life and descriptions of the surrounding country. These people are likely to have gay stories about times they lost the trail and spent hours wandering around the countryside. Detours for them were the most exciting and charming part of the journey.

Friends gather that the first tourist received from his trip the excitement of the chase, some rather dull statistics, and the right to say he had been in California. But the second tourist has from his trip some jolly reminiscences and a broader viewpoint.

Too many students have adopted the first method of traveling through their college course. They look neither to the right nor the left, but keep their mind steadily on their grades and their text books. Now, text books are merely sign posts indicating the path which other minds have taken. The student who does not look beyond these to find a philosophy of life has missed the whole purpose of the course.

"Get wisdom, ye with all thy getting, get understanding," said King Solomon.

If you make a reputation for braininess and high grades at the sacrifice of human understanding, you will have nothing but statistics and a diploma to show for your four-year tour.

The Old Home Town

WHAT kind of a town is your home town? Is it the best town in the state? If it is not, are you interested in making it better?

From the representation of the Iowa student body present at the Civic week program Sunday afternoon, we judge that all Iowa students save about a dozen are from the best town in the state or they are not interested in civic betterment. If we, as students and would be leaders of tomorrow, are not interested in finding the soul of a city, in learning how to improve a community and to make it a more wholesome place in which to live, then who should be interested in such activities?

When we go out from school to hang up our shingle, if we should happen to strike the liveliest and most prosperous town in the state, we will be fortunate. But all of us will not strike that town. The majority of us will drop into one of those ordinary towns as our place of business or teaching—a place that offers not nearly all the pleasures of university life. Then will be the time when it will be valuable to have a knowledge of civic improvement for our own direct benefit as well as the community as a whole. Right now during the Civic improvement campaign is the time to get interested and learn.

Civic Week, after all, is not so much for the men of today who are along in years. They will soon pass on. But those who are to be the men and women entrusted with many a tomorrow should be enthusiastic over civic improvement for they are the ones who will reap the greatest benefit both now and in the future. Prepare yourself to make your town a live town and a good town.

Know Your Own Cook

IN far-off Tokio, there lives a young American wife who has a Japanese cook, far surpassing the common run of chefs in this country. Not so long ago, a baby was added to this household. The cook was delighted and exceedingly curious about the care given to the child by its American mother. The young mother was also curious. Why should a Japanese cook express so much intelligent interest over the care of the American child? In due time she questioned the cook who innocently replied that such information would make wonderful 'copy.' Further investigation brought out the fact that this most extraordinary cook was writing a series of articles for a woman's magazine in Japan on "How the Foreigner Lives in Tokio."

Not many American servants, regardless of their cooking ability, are also talented authors, artists, or musicians. During the last fifty years, Japan has insisted that every girl, however poor her family, must attend school for six years. This has opened a new vista of enjoyment to the formerly uneducated Japanese woman, and she is taking advantage of it.

The hardest work many able executives seem to do is planning how to get somebody else to do their work.

A cheap wit nearly always is expensive to its possessor's reputation.

Many an employe is willing to earn who isn't willing to learn.

Poems That Live

New Kittens

Each with his hard round head
And trembling flanks
I felt and laid back in his bed,
Squeaking his thanks.

The squeaks died out. I heard
The mother singing then.
"Cats will go on," she purred,
"Cats without end. Amen."

One Screwdriver Is Enough

Look in your geography, study the desert regions in northern Africa, then let your eyes range east and southeast of the Red sea. Here you are in the home of the Arabs. For untold centuries these tribal peoples, following their warlike leaders, have wandered up and down the vast sand-dunes, seeking grass and water for the cattle, sheep, goats and horses. Hunger always stares these nomads in the face. And in our own country the prodigious area of 3,000,000 square miles scarcely sufficed to feed the 300,000 Indians that history tells us once were monarchs of all they surveyed. Tribal life is always burdened by sad stories of famines, starvation and death. Though in the richest lands under the sun, the Indians had a hard time making their living. Knowing practically nothing of the way in which the soil can be made to produce food for the multitude, the Indians ranged near and far, hunting game and depending on wild fruits. The only Red Men that developed any practices that approximated what men of today would call agriculture were the wise and able Iroquois, who not only had the first real Republic in America, political speaking, but in addition cultivated rich crops to supply the needs of the tribal Confederacy living in the "Long House," from Mohawk to Niagara Falls. But how times change. Today a mere screwdriver, used diligently eight hours a day in the hands of an alert American mechanic, provides a thousand more necessities and luxuries than the Indians were able to find, ranging over our entire Continent. Other Americans today, living like kings, find no use longer for the bow and arrow, but instead have before them a simple bottle of ink, pen, paper, account books. A desk, a chair, a fixed corner, representing only a few square feet, is enough. The practice of roaming an entire continent to find an occasional dinner of wild celery, roots, acorns, Araks. For untold centuries these individual men of today is concerned. Or, applying an idea of Shakespeare, the world has shrunk so small that it is now—"In shape no bigger than an agate-stone On the forefinger of an alderman, Drawn with a team of little atoms Athwart men's noses as they lie asleep."

Infant Found Dead by Mother at Ames

AMTS, Oct. 13.—(A.P.)—Chestnut Holmes, two and one-half months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Holmes, north of Ames, was drowned late yesterday when he fell into a large jar of water which was standing in the farm yard. His mother found him standing on his head in the partially filled jar. It is believed he was looking in and lost his balance.

CHILLS and FEVER

The fathers do it at home but the brothers do it at school.

In a letter from his mother a college man heard the following news: "Lemuel Card was working in one of the railroad shops when by an accident he had his nose cut off by a file."

To which the boy made the following reply, "I am sorry about Lemuel losing his nose as it was one of the outstanding features of his face."

LOTS OF BUSINESS MEN ARE.

The Real Hall of Fame
It is the foolish practice of men to set up a grand marble building, call it "Hall of Fame," place stone images there and talk much of names.

Time answers for us all in this way, that of hundreds of supposed famous men of the hour, scarcely one will be known in 20 years. But this in itself means little.

There is a larger question than a name that lasts for awhile. The vital fact turns on the work the man did or tried to do—and the man that works is the only man worth considering.

To find out what you can do best and go ahead and do it, whether it be mending shoes, or plowing, or sweeping the street, or caring for your family by the sweat of your brow, is to make your life a success.

The man who pays his debts and earns his living in an honorable way is a success, no matter how small the field he plows.

The immigrant on the land, the woman who to feed her children sews shirts in a sweat-shop, the day laborer in the ditch, the fisherman hauling his nets far out at sea, the tolling, half-mad stoker deep down in the hold of the ship, the switchman at the lonesome crossing—are some of the world's real heroes, because they struggle with no thought of applause, no listening senates, no warlike music to make the blood tingle, no medals or prizes of office to spur them on.

These unnumbered millions would require a hall of fame as large as this earth itself.

The wife's smile, the caress of the orphan child, the beggar's blessing, a world of little things like these, take the place of "success" as the word is ordinarily used; and although the careless earth passes by its workers in the trenches, mines, farms and factories, and on the sea, these men are proving their right to live by earning bread from day to day.

A jack that can be operated by one man and that can lift 100 tons has been invented. Now what is needed is a jack that can lift an auto mobile and that can be operated by one man.

Our tendency in these days is to fight corruption and ignorance as the natural privileges of elected persons, and we smile at any proposal to alter this patriotic tradition.—Will Durant, author of "The Story of Philosophy."

If Shakespeare were alive he might revise it to read: "All the world's a screen and the men and women are merely payers."

People Are Saying:

"We are still on the firing line, like soldiers in a great battle. No force in the world can cause me to swerve from my path. I am looking for a fight. I shall not shun obstacles. Opposition makes me harsher and more irreconcilable."

"This is a real democracy and history never knew one like it"—Mussolini, dictator of Italy, in a speech on Fascism.

"His abolition is impossible... Christianity is a stern creed. Religion without fear is not Christianity nor is it the religion of any part of the New Testament. The real objection to the traditional hell is not the duration but the character of punishment."—Very Rev. W. R. Inge, famed "Gloomy Dean" of St. Paul's, London.

"The one country in the world that has succeeded in turning mass production into a fine art is the United States."—Bernhard Demmer, German industrial magnate, in United States.

"About $60,000,000 of the nation's wealth is invested in agricultural lands and equipment, while $33,000,000,000 in manufacturing industries exclusive of the hand trades. Out of the national income the farmers get about 20 per cent, while the manufacturers get about 27 per cent."—John E. Edgerton, president of National Association of Manufacturers.

"It must be recognized that the American people have not the same respect for laws that the people of England have. The main reason for this is that England has fewer 'nuisance' laws and very few laws which the people consider foolish. In America we denounce a thing as a crime upon the slightest provocation. We are legislating against sin rather than against crime."—John T. Barker, retiring president Missouri Bar association.

"I am prepared for the evitable."—Elbert H. Gary, steelmaster, at 80.

"I think I am too old for that sort of duty. I am 47 now. My heart is still in the flying game and I love it, but that is a game for young men."—Captain G. W. Steele, in leaving naval air service to take sea command.

"The standards of goodness which are generally recognized by public opinion are not those which are calculated to make the world a happier place. This is due to a variety of causes, of which the chief is tradition, and the next most powerful is the unjust power of dominant classes."—Bertrand Russell, famed mathematician and philosopher.

"More and more the teacher and psychologist are learning the importance of early training. Fibs are formed when the child is young; these are easily fixed and hard to change. All statistics, if carefully gathered and thoroughly studied, lead to this conclusion, and logic and experience likewise show that this is true. To believe any other theory is to deny the efficacy of moral and religious teaching and the effect of education and habit in the formation of character."—Clarence Arrow, eminent lawyer and sociologist.

"Our tendency in these days is to fight corruption and ignorance as the natural privileges of elected persons, and we smile at any proposal to alter this patriotic tradition."—Will Durant, author of "The Story of Philosophy."

"The Petter"

By BEATRICE BURTON
Author of "Love Bound," "Her Man."

READ THIS FIRST:
MERRY LOCKE, twenty, falls in love with ANTHONY GAINES, a young lawyer, the first time she sees him. To be in love is nothing new to Merry, however. She's been in love scores of times with scores of men, ever since she was sixteen.

She confesses this to Tony one day when he wants her to run away and be married at once. Then almost at once, she regrets her frankness because Tony insists that they wait six months before they decide to marry. He explains that he wants her to be sure of herself.

But Merry doesn't want to wait. She has failed in her course at business college, and she wants to be married at once, so that she won't have to tell MOMS, her strong-minded mother about her failure.

Her father has a stroke and dies suddenly, leaving the whole family dependent for support on CASSIE, the second sister, who is secretary to MORLEY KAUFMAN, and secretly yearns to marry him.

HELEN, the oldest of the sisters, marries BILL HEPWORTH, a clerk in his father's wholesale grocery. Jinny, the youngest sister, stays at home to help MOMS with the housework.

Merry finds work in Madame Dale's beauty shop, and begins to use make-up on her face, although Tony dislikes to see it.

One night when his mother returns from an out-of-town visit with his Cousin Louise, he doesn't come to see Merry as usual. Cassie warns her that he is treating her casually, as Morley Kaufman treats herself—keeping her in the background, and not introducing her to his family.

"He's just having a good time with you," says Cassie, "he's never even given you an engagement ring."

Merry thinks things over, and for the first time doubts of Tony creeping into her mind. That night she lets BERRICK JONES, who lives next door, kiss her as he has many times before. The following night, when Tony comes to see her, she greets him with veiled ill-humor and resentment. Tony asks her to wash the make-up from her face.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XV
They went into the house where the twilight was gathering in the corners like dusky curtains.

Through the half darkness, Merry's face gleamed like a porcelain mask under its coating of rouge and powder. The soft mouth was bedaubed with scarlet. The eyes gleamed like bits of blue-green ice between their blackened lashes.

All the fresh, sunny charm that was her greatest beauty was quite gone.

"I'm sorry you don't like my face," she said as she went around the shabby comfortable room, lighting the lamps. Her voice might have belonged to Cassie, as she spoke. It twinkled like ice in a pitcher—cold and hard.

"But I do like your face. I'm particularly crazy about your face," Tony answered, standing before her, his hands in his pockets. "What I don't like is this stuff you've smeared all over it. Please go upstairs and wash it off."

Merry gazed at him in pretended surprise. "Why should I wash it off? I'd like to know," she said.

"For me, dear," Tony explained. "Please take it off, Merry."

She only shook her sun-bright head in answer, and opened a magazine that lay on the table beside her. She turned the leaves lazily and smothered a yawn.

"It's part of my new job to make up my face," she said, after a minute or two. "I've taken a place in a beauty shop."

"A beauty shop?" Tony repeated. Suddenly he laughed as he might have laughed at a child. "Why, what are you doing in a beauty shop? You trained to be a stenographer, didn't you?"

Merry didn't bother to answer him. She went on looking through her magazine, quite as if she were alone in the room.

It came to him, all at once, that she was angry about something. The change in her was more than skin-deep.

His face sobered and he sat down on the arm of the chair and took the book out of her hands.

"Merry, what's the matter?" he asked. "You're peeved, aren't you? Is it because of anything that I've done?"

"You haven't done anything! It's what you haven't done!" she answered cuttingly. She raised her face and gave him a narrow, resentful look from her eyes.

"Well, what haven't I done, then?" he asked patiently. "Don't get sore like this over nothing. Just tell me what's wrong?"

"I'll tell you one thing!" she blazed at him, suddenly. "I'll never twiddle my thumbs alone at home for you again, the way I did last night! I've never had to sit around like a blooming wall-flower before in my life, and I don't propose to start it now!"

He stared at her blankly.

"But, Merry, I was with my mother," he said, helpless as a man always is in the face of a woman's unreasoning anger. "You surely aren't jealous of my mother, are you?"

"No—nor of your wonderful cousin Louise, either!" she flung at him bitterly.

"Tony saw through her fury, then, and he gave a low chuckle.

"Gadzooks, Merry, you're jealous of Cousin Louise!" he laughed. "I wish you could see her. She's almost as old as my mother. Why Merry, Merry, you little jealous thing—" And his arms went around her, and he held her close, murmuring broken words to her, his lips against her scented hair.

Southerner Makes New Shoals Plan

C. Pascom Sloop, Virginia politician, former secretary of president, has plans afoot for organization of company to take over and operate Muscle Shoals. Newest photo shows him leaving White House.

was going to bring her along tonight to see you, but she was awfully tired. I thought perhaps we'd drive over home," he grinned suddenly. "and then you can see for yourself what a siren Cousin Louise is."

He turned to her and kissed her again, gently and tenderly, as if he were sorry for her. "You mustn't be jealous like this," he said. "I care more for one of the little freckles on your nose than I do for all the women on earth. And old Cousin Louise, of all people! Now, dash upstairs and wash your face."

Merry flashed him an April smile. "And then we'll go over to see your mother," she said, and ran upstairs. She laughed at herself as she scrubbed the sticky make-up from her face, and brushed her hair before the bathroom mirror.

The door of Cassie's bedroom was open, and Cassie, herself, sat at her dressing table giving her face its nightly bath of cold cream.

The sleeves of her white breakfast coat were turned back, and her metallic hair was gathered back into a white band. Her fingers worked expertly, rubbing out the tiny lines around the eyes and mouth.

"To keep herself young and attractive was a serious business with Cassie.

She touched the floor with her fingertips a hundred times every night and morning. She drank nothing but a glass of buttermilk for lunch every day, lest she grow fat. She went to bed at night with a band tied under her chin to keep it from sagging.

Her whole life was one constant effort to make herself asuring in the eyes of Morley Kaufman.

Merry, who had never seen Morley, wondered sometimes whether he was worth the energy and the worry that Cassie wasted on him.

As Merry passed her door, she swung around from the mirror and beckoned her into the room with a crooked forefinger.

"Shut the door," she whispered, and Merry closed it.

"Well, how did things come out with your friend, Gaines?" she asked, all curiosity.

Merry smiled. "Wonderfully," she answered. "I'm going over to his house now, to meet his mother." Cassie's face grew hard under its film of cold cream.

"You realize, of course, that she ought to come to call on you, don't you?" she asked sourly. "A girl never goes to meet the family of the man she's going to marry. It's always the other way around."

Her eyes met Merry's in the glass and they were filled with a dull anger. Could it be that Cassie was jealous of her because she was going to marry Tony Gaines, Merry wondered. Poor Cassie.

"I should worry about that," she said aloud, her face dimpling and flashing with happiness. "Tony's mother was tired tonight, and he thought it would be nice if we went over there, so—we're going."

She ran lightly down the stairs, humming as she went.

Tony was standing beside the piano lamp, looking closely at something in his hand. He started as she came into the room and thrust both hands into his pockets.

"What was that you were looking at?" asked Merry, going up to him.

All her hardness against him had melted, and she was filled once more with the utter pleasure of being with him. It was like the warmth of sunshine in her heart, to know that they were friends again.

"Do you know I'm crazy about you, Tony?" she asked him when they were in the big blue car. Her voice was filled with wistfulness.

"If you loved me the way I do you, you wouldn't let me go back to work in that old beauty shop," she went on. "You'd marry me right away."

Tony didn't answer her at once. She could see the outline of his face against the darkness, as he peered ahead of him at the lamplit road.

"At last he spoke.

"All right," he said slowly and deliberately. "we will get married—right away. If you're sure you care about me—"

"Oh, I am sure!" Merry cut in, and suddenly she couldn't go on. Her chin was quivering, her lips working with the foolish wish to cry because she was so happy and relieved.

The car swung into Cabot street and stopped under some shadowy trees. Beyond the sidewalk was a wide smooth lawn, and beyond that the long low white house, where Tony lived.

"Wait a minute," Merry said. "I can't go in for a minute." She took her handkerchief out of the pocket of her coat, and then began to wipe her eyes. Her voice shook.

"Why, Merry, you're crying!" Tony's arms were around her again, and his shoulder under her head. "What's the matter now? Isn't everything all right?"

His left hand fumbled in his pocket, and drew out something that gleamed in the dim light on the dash of the car.

"Look here," he said, and Merry felt the coolness of a metal ring slipping down the third finger of the hand he held in his.

She looked. The ring was a heavy, old-fashioned one of gold. In its claws it held a big pearl. It was too big for her little finger.

"This was the ring my father gave my mother when they were engaged," Tony explained in his low deep voice, "and this afternoon when I told her about you and me, she gave it to me—for you." He tilted up her face and kissed her.

"Would you rather have a new one—a diamond?" he asked, stroking her hand with its softly-gleaming jewel.

Ingwersen Drives Men in Last Hard Drill for Illinois

Arc Lights Used as Shadows Flit Over Iowa Field

Team Entrain Tonight for Trip Into Foe's Gridiron Camp

Illinois proxies, in the form of freshman grid warriors, were the objects of vicious assaults by Coach Ingwersen's husky eleven in their last hard practice before the Illinois game. Under the coach's verbal lashing, the team drove through the opposing forward wall to throw the yearling ball carriers for losses. And as the lengthening shadows cast a pall of gloom across Iowa Field, arc lights were called into play that the drills might be continued.

No rest, no delay, but steady driving was the medicine as the Hawkeye mentor keyed his charges for the final assault Saturday. The linemen, slow at first in blocking and charging, were shifted and substituted until every man set himself to the grim task of downing the "Illini."

Team Leaves Tonight
Tonight will be the final home drill for the Hawkeyes, and at midnight they will entrain for Urbana for the conflict. It will be a fighting, tearing eleven, doing its best to uphold the Old Gold and to provide as much disappointment for the Illinois homecomers as possible.

The varsity had the ball during the first part of the scrimmage last night and, with Kutsch, Skelley, and Schmidt carrying the ball, they pushed over two touchdowns. Poor work by the interference and the failure of the varsity to take out opposing backs kept most of the runs down to short distances.

Work on Passes
With Captain Paul Smith and Harry Rice, two able pass receivers, as the nucleus for an aerial game, Coach Ingwersen has spent much of the time the past week perfecting that department. Kutsch, Skelley, and Don Smith have been doing the throwing.

Don Hines seems definitely shifted to his old tackle position and Jensen and Chatterton are left to fight it out for the guard berth with Holman and Voltmer. Olson is getting the call at the other guard, with Brown over the ball and "Spike" Nelson at tackle.

In the backfield, the Hawk coach shifts his men every few plays. Arml is giving Grimm a hard run for one halfback berth, and Dunn, Byers and Schmidt are fighting it out at fullback. Kutsch, Hogan, Skelley, Don Smith, and Cuhel are all in the running for the other positions.

Zupke Tries Reserve Backs for Iowa Game

URBANA, Ills., Oct. 13 (P)—Coach Zupke has again turned his attention to the backfield, with an eye toward possibly making some changes before the opening of the conference season here Saturday with Iowa. French and Gallivan, two substitute backs, who crushed into the scoring column with a touchdown each against Butler last Saturday, are gaining Zupke's attention and are being worked in the first string backfield.

French is light, but shows speed and unusual skill in blocking during practice sessions. Stewart and Daugherty are still working in the first string backfield which Zupke is sending against Iowa plays in scrimmage. Indications are that more than 50,000 persons will witness the game.

Zupke Sends Illinois Through Strenuous Scrimmage

[By The Associated Press] CHICAGO, Oct. 13 — The last grueling scrimmages of the week equipped Western conference football squads today for the first titanic battles of the season Saturday.

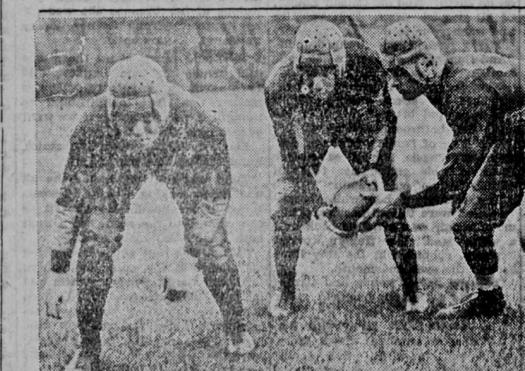

Particularly strenuous was the workout of the house of Zupke at the University of Illinois. The Illini filled most of the two hour practice period with scrimmage against Iowa plays maneuvered by the frosh and in testing their aerial attack, which will be launched against the Hawkeyes at Saturday's homecoming ruckus.

Hawks May Surprise
From the Iowa camp came stories of a surprise attack being launched by the Hawkeyes in the hope of overturning the Illinois conference aspirations. Always a colorful battle, this year's tilt promises to be the same thriller that returning alumni have seen in years gone by.

Wisconsin locked the doors to Randall Field while Coach George Little put the final touches on his team for a Purdue invasion. The team has a passing attack it will try if it is needed but hopes to win from the once lowly Bollermakers without uncovering all its tricks.

Maroons Meet Penn
While A. A. Stag continued to instill in his Chicago Maroons the confidence that they are a good enough team to beat the Pennsylvanians, who will be favorites in Saturday's intersectional battle, Doc Wice pushed his Ohio State squad through its last practice prior to

Four Reasons Why —

Iowa fears Illinois. Coach Ingwersen is driving his men hard to teach them to stop the Illini. Here are four of Zupke's hopes. Left to right: "Pur" Daugherty, "Frosty" Peters, "Jake" Lanum, and "ud" Timm. Timm was injured early in the season and may not be able to play, but the rest are raring and tearing for the Hawkeyes.

Iowa Band to Make Illinois Hegera With Football Team

The Hawkeye football team will be accompanied by the Iowa band when it journeys to Urbana this week-end. It was officially announced late yesterday through Dr. Paul E. Beling, director of the department of athletics. All barriers, which had hitherto made the probabilities of making the trip unfavorable for the band, were lifted with the announcement, which also stated that the trip would be financed by the athletic department from the proceeds of the grid-graph which is to be operated Saturday and during other out-of-town games.

A special ruling of the Big Ten conference prohibits the financing of such projects directly from the school's athletic fund, and it was because of this provision together with the lack of contributions from other sources that bandmen were doubtful of the outcome.

Varsity cross country runners finished in a group last night in the first time trials of the year. Captain Speers, Hunn, and Elliott were the leaders and turned in a time of seventeen minutes for the course. Although the time is not exceptional, Coach Bresnahan was pleased with it for the first trial of the year.

Quadrangle Boys Race Over New Course November 2

The annual quadrangle cross country run will be held Nov. 2 this year, it was announced last night by Bruno Marchi, director of intramural sports. A new course has been selected for the runs, which was formerly held on the road running in front of the quad down to the corner of the Iowa avenue bridge, south to the Burlington street bridge and then north past the quad to the original starting point. This year the run will be held on the regular cross country course back of the armory. The run will cover a mile and will start and finish directly back of the armory.

Quadrangle men only are eligible to run and three medals and ten ribbons will be given as prizes. The entry blanks will probably be posted in the quad bulletin board soon.

The date for the inter-fraternity cross country run has not yet been announced, but it will probably be settled today. A committee composed of men appointed by the inter-fraternity council, Bruno Marchi and E. G. Schroeder, will set the date.

Brookins Holds Time Trials for Frosh Sprinters

Freshmen sprinters went through some of the time trials last night and the broad and high jumpers jumped for distances. Although no exceptional times were recorded, Coach Charles R. Brookins was very well pleased with the result. It is too early in the year to expect any mid-season times to be turned in.

Winners are as follows: 100 yard dash—H. B. Brinker, first; W. V. Stevenson, second; and W. B. Jordan, third.

250 yard dash—W. B. Jordan, first; H. B. Brinker, second; and W. E. Whitney, third.

Broad jump—A. M. Locke, first; R. I. Stamats, second; D. W. Faulkner, third; and J. A. Griffiths, fourth.

High jump—W. F. Gould, C. S. Buis and H. D. Curry tied for first. The rest of the trials will be run off Saturday night. These will include the 440 yard run, the 880, the mile and the two mile.

Harry Wills Quits Boxing With Half Million Earnings

Sharkey Now Logical Contender for Gene's Title

[By The Associated Press] NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Jack Sharkey of Boston tonight sat on the doorstep of his fame as Harry Wills passed into the background of the heavyweight picture with ring earnings estimated at nearly half a million dollars.

"I guess I'm through," the big stevedore said, blaming his unexpected defeat last night by Sharkey on a strained back, coupled with his long absence from the ring.

His friends, however, pointed to the fact that he would be able to retire as the second richest man in American pugilism, yielding only to Jack Dempsey in the matter of accumulated wealth.

For what was probably his last big bout the Senegambian received $50,000, slightly more than twice the purse of his conqueror, Sharkey. Total receipts were announced today as $133,514.70. Wills' biggest came from his match with Luis Firpo of Argentina. He was estimated to have received more than $150,000 for his bout with the "Wild Bull of the Pampas." He also fattened his purse generously by outstanding battles with Charley Weinst last year and with Bartley Madden two years ago.

The defeat of Wills elevated Sharkey to a place alongside Jack Dempsey, the dethroned champion, who says he still entertains hopes of regaining the sceptre, and Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., the new light heavyweight title holder.

At least, Humbert I. Fugazy, who promoted the Sharkey-Wills bout, today so viewed the situation, announcing he would bend efforts toward bringing Delaney and Sharkey together in his next big fight.

City High Grid Team Primes for Davenport Eleven

Old River Rivals to Oppose Red and White Saturday; Sheley Injures Ankle

Old man Hard-Luck, like his notorious brother, the Old Man of the Sea, seems to have planted himself firmly on the backs of Coach Henry Spuehke and his proteges, and also like his illustrious name-sake, he is just as hard to shake off.

Sheley's flashy reserve end brought more gloom Tuesday night to Shradler field, by severely spraining his ankle. This was the first scrimmage since the squad returned from Grinnell.

Souchek Optimistic
In spite of the latest discouragement, Souchek is quite optimistic. He reports that the squad showed exceptionally fine form, tearing through the seconds for five touchdowns in less than an hour.

The smaller school offers some fair competition. What the men lack in experience, they make up in weight and speed. Coach Klein has a pair of tackles that can take credit for 190 pounds of beef. Lewis, who holds down an end position, is fast and brainy, and Denison, one of the fastest halves in the city, manages to keep the Red and White guessing every minute he plays against them.

Davenport will offer a real test this Saturday when the Little Hawks arrive to do them battle royal. They tied their first game against Fairfield 3-3, but the game was played on a muddy field and the heavy Davenport backs could not get started. They swamped Lyons with a top heavy score Oct. 4 and last week they dragged the fair colors of Galesburg in the fertile, Illinois dirt.

If the weather remains fair, many local high school students will drive down to witness the game.

Hurled 25 Stories to Cement—Picked Up Unbroken!

Chicago, Ill., June 15, 1925. The Parker Pen Company, Janesville, Wisconsin, Gentlemen: Steel work on the new Stevens Hotel was stopped this afternoon while I went to the top-most girder, 25 stories above Eighth St. and Michigan Ave., and dropped two Parker Duofold pens to the street, 260 feet below.

One pen—a Parker Over-size Duofold—slighted on the cement sidewalk. The other—a Parker Duofold Jr.—slighted on the pavement.

Both pens were immediately picked up by my associates and an examination was found to be unharmed. I have signed this letter with one of these identical pens and it works to perfection.

TRAFFIC stopped as big Frank Ketcheson, Supt. of Steel Construction for the George A. Fuller Co., hurled two Parker Duofold Pens from his perilous foothold on a slender steel girder atop of the new Stevens Hotel, Chicago.

One pen struck on asphalt, the other on cement—away they bounded into the air, then landed in the street—unbroken! We wanted to give the public proof more convincing than any guarantee. # George Burns Named Most Valuable American League Player

Cleveland First Baseman Almost Unanimous Choice

Tops Brilliant 1926 Playing With New Double Record

(By The Associated Press) CHICAGO, Oct. 13 — George H. Burns, first baseman on the Cleveland team of the American League, was designated today as the most valuable player in the league in the season of 1926.

A veteran of thirteen years of service in major league baseball, Burns was practically the unanimous choice of the committee of eight baseball writers who made the award. He obtained sixty-three points in the balloting out of possible sixty-four for inclusion on the American League honor roll where stand already the names of Cobb, Speaker, Collins, Sisler, Ruth, Johnson and Peckinpaugh.

Mostly Second
Second, but with scarcely half as many votes as Burns, the award committee placed Johnny Mostil, center fielder of the Chicago White Sox, with thirty-three votes, while only one vote behind him ran Herb Penneck, pitcher for the New York team.

Burns capped his brilliant 1926 performance for the Indians with a major league record for two-base hits, knocking out sixty-four two-play hits to break the mark formerly held by Tris Speaker, his team's manager.

He batted .358 in 151 games, and had three triples and four home runs among 216 hits for a total of 288 bases. He batted in 114 runs, ranking second to Ruth in this class took part in 122 double plays, had 149 put-outs, 39 assists, and but 19 errors. He scored 97 runs himself.

First With Detroit
The Cleveland first sacker broke into the American league with Detroit in 1913, served two years with Philadelphia and went to Cleveland which sent him to Boston but got him back in 1924. For six years he has batted well over .300, his best mark being .361 in 1921.

Burns' name was placed first for the honor by seven of the eight baseball writers who selected the most valuable player, and was ranked second on the other list. Peckinpaugh won the honor last year with forty-five points. The only player ever to be the unanimous choice for the honor was Ruth, chosen in 1923. Twenty-six players were named in the balloting, in which playing managers and players already chosen for the "Hall of Fame" are not eligible for consideration. Result of the voting:

New Men Report for Tank Squad

More men are out for swimming this year than have shown up any year before. Every night new men present themselves at the pool for practice. Prospects for a good all round point winning swimming team look better each evening.

Among the new men who are out are: N. B. Turner, crawl; J. M. B. Kellogg, back stroke; M. O. Craft, diver and crawl stroke; C. M. Grippen, crawl stroke; W. H. Krause, breast stroke; R. J. McDonald, diver; L. T. Osgood, crawl, back, and polo; J. W. Fattie, crawl and back; R. Choate, crawl and diving; L. H. Riley, diving; A. E. Rumble, crawl; P. F. Sheehan, crawl; C. M. Wylie, crawl and polo and R. Goldman breast stroke.

Cramped quarters greatly hamper coaches, Armbruster and Klingaman in their work. It is hard to get a line on the men in so small a pool. When the whole variety and freshman squads are out there are 105 men in the pool and until they move into the new tank the men cannot get the proper workouts. As it is some of the candidates practice in the mornings.

George Burns, first base, Cleveland, 63; John Mostil, center fielder, Chicago, 33; Herb Penneck, pitcher, New York, 32; E. C. Rice, center fielder, Washington, 18; Harry Hellmann, centerfield, Detroit, 16; Henry Manus, outfield, Detroit, 16; Al Simmons outfield, Philadelphia, 16; Robert Grove, pitcher, Philadelphia, 12; Leon Goslin, outfield, Washington, 9; Henry (Lou) Gehrig, first base, New York, 7; Tony Lazzeri, second base, New York, 7; Bib Falk, outfield, Chicago, 6; Robert Fothergill, outfield, Detroit, 6; Oscar Meilillo, second base, St. Louis, 6; Henry Rice, outfield, St. Louis, 6; Oswald Bluege, third base, Washington, 5; Phillip Todd, first base, Boston, 5; Gordon Cochran, catcher, Philadelphia, 4; Joseph Judge, first base, Washington, 4; Martin McManus, second base, St. Louis, 4; Robert Mense, outfield, New York, 3; Emory Rigney, shortstop, Boston, 3; Ira Flagstead, outfield, Boston, 2; Walter Gerber, shortstop, St. Louis, 2; John Zachary, pitcher, St. Louis, 2; Wm. Jacobson, outfield, Boston, 1.

Burns capped his brilliant 1926 performance for the Indians with a major league record for two-base hits, knocking out sixty-four two-play hits to break the mark formerly held by Tris Speaker, his team's manager.

He batted .358 in 151 games, and had three triples and four home runs among 216 hits for a total of 288 bases. He batted in 114 runs, ranking second to Ruth in this class took part in 122 double plays, had 149 put-outs, 39 assists, and but 19 errors. He scored 97 runs himself.

The Cleveland first sacker broke into the American league with Detroit in 1913, served two years with Philadelphia and went to Cleveland which sent him to Boston but got him back in 1924. For six years he has batted well over .300, his best mark being .361 in 1921.

Burns' name was placed first for the honor by seven of the eight baseball writers who selected the most valuable player, and was ranked second on the other list. Peckinpaugh won the honor last year with forty-five points. The only player ever to be the unanimous choice for the honor was Ruth, chosen in 1923. Twenty-six players were named in the balloting, in which playing managers and players already chosen for the "Hall of Fame" are not eligible for consideration. Result of the voting:

Second Round in Tennis Tournament Slated for Today

Second round matches in the women's 1926 tennis tournament are slated to begin today. A fair grade of tennis has been shown in the first round, which finished yesterday.

The two women seeded players came through their matches easily. Roosevelt defeated Millot 6-0, 6-0; Kenefick defeated Jepsen 6-1, 6-1. They both appear as finalists.

Other match results were: Lang won by default from Murphy; Kingman beat Darland 6-2, 6-2; Peterson upset Carpenter 6-1, 6-1; Beard won from Neff 6-1, 6-1; Smith defaulted to Bruechert; Kofenback fell 6-0, 6-1 to Lingenfelter; Stanton finally beat Meyers 9-7, 6-3; Travis won from Stock 6-1, 6-1; other matches played have not yet been recorded.

Progress is slower in the doubles section. Only one match has been played. Peterson and Wester defeated Beard and Jepsen, 9-7, 6-1. The result of the first round doubles must be played immediately, according to the managing head of tennis.

Best matches for the second round promise to be the Travis-Kenefick affair, Lingenfelter-Stanton duel, and the Peterson-Beard sets. All second round engagements are due by Saturday. If not played by then a forfeit is required.

Weigle Discusses Need of Modern Sewage Disposal

Says Iowa City Should Set Example for Other Cities

That Iowa City, as well as all other river cities, should provide for modern methods of disposing of its sewage, was the high light in an interview given to The Daily Iowan yesterday afternoon by Dan Weigle, St. Paul chamber of commerce specialist, who is speaking in this city in connection with the Civic Week campaign.

"As soon as a community can afford a decent and sanitary method of sewage disposal," declared Mr. Weigle, "it should not hesitate in installing the most scientific and modern means of such disposal. Practically every city of considerable size in the country is forging ahead with the more sanitary methods of ridding itself of its own waste, and in many of these communities where disposal plants are in use they no doubt pay for their own maintenance."

Mr. Weigle did not express the opinion that such a plant would pay for its own maintenance in Iowa City, saying that that was for the technical experts to report on. He emphasized, however, the striking need for a university city, such as Iowa City, to work toward a model community goal.

"Iowa City," he continued, "should build here a model community. It is here that the students of Iowa get their inspiration for progress when they return to the home. In everything and in every way Iowa City should surpass the others. It should be the ideal community, sending out its students as stimuli to other cities in the state."

Mr. Weigle, however, made a point of the expense of any disposal system. Being a stranger, he did not comment on the present methods that Iowa City is employing with its sewage. But that more modern and more sanitary sewage methods are bound to be installed by every city in the country as time goes on, Mr. Weigle is certain.

Mayor Issues Warning to Collectors of Guest Cards

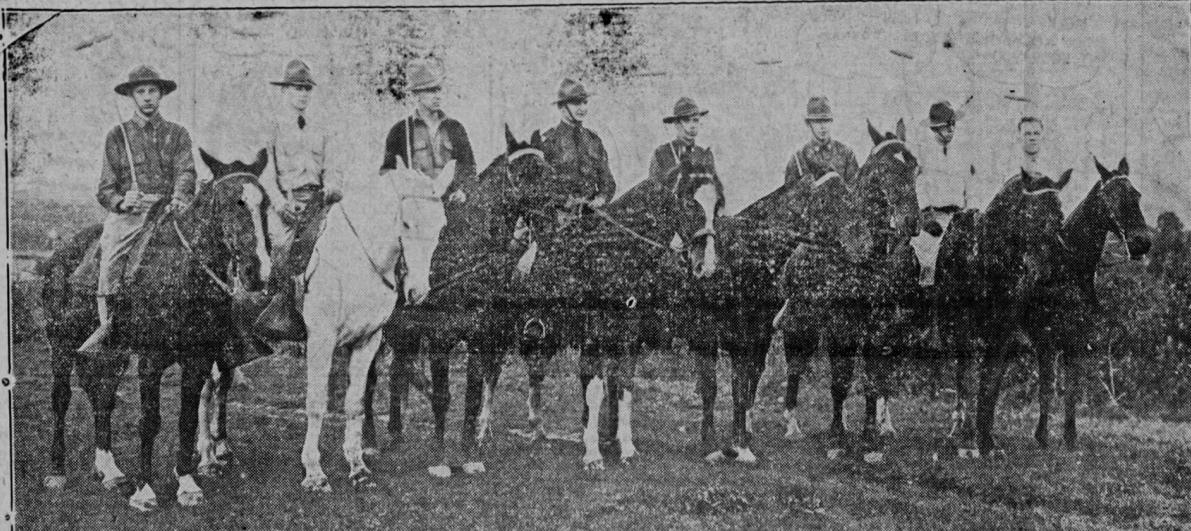

A statement issued yesterday from the office of Mayor John J. Carroll warns all persons from molesting the guest cards which are placed on the vehicles of out-of-town drivers.

This warning follows a wave of petty theft of such cards which has swept over the downtown district during the past week. The mayor wishes to make it plain that anyone arrested on such a charge will be treated the same as though he had entered the automobile and stolen some more expensive accessory. The offender will be meted out the full punishment of the law.

"Not Guilty" Pleads McCook to Popham

Ray McCook appeared before Judge R. G. Popham yesterday and pleaded "not guilty" to a charge of larceny for which he was indicted by the last grand jury. William F. Murphy appeared as McCook's lawyer. The charge was that of "State vs. George Lawrence and Roy McCook." The case will be considered by the judge and will come up for trial in the next term of court.

Iowa City Polo Teams Battle at Cedar Rapids Sunday

Pictured above are the Troop A 113th Cavalry, Iowa National Guard, and the Iowa City Moose Lodge Polo teams which will compete against each other Sunday, October 17, at the Frontier park at Cedar Rapids. The game will be made up of six periods of five minutes each with five minutes rest between periods. Each team is composed of eight men and eight horses but the game is played with four men and four horses on each team, the extra horses and men interchanging throughout the game. In the upper picture of the cavalry team, from left to right, are Ray Hempstead, James Hanke, Glen Bell, Captain Will J. Hayek, Rich-

Schintler, and Clarence Barnes. C. Kennett, University of Iowa golf coach, will referee the game.

Paving Bids To Be Acted Upon Tonight

Special Session of City Council Will Pass on Bids for Dodge Street Paving and South-End Sewage Construction

Keeping to its recent record of one special session a week, the city council will hold a meeting this evening to pass on the Dodge street paving bids. Besides minor matters which were left over from the last two meetings, action is also expected on bids received for the sewage construction contract. This award may be let tonight.

The Dodge street paving project has been a matter of considerable discussion for some weeks. The city clerk was recently authorized to advertise for bids and a number of requests for application forms have been received. Those bids which have been presented by two o'clock today will be opened and read. Action will undoubtedly be taken on them tonight.

The new sewage construction follows on the heels of work now being completed in the south part of the city on and near Davenport street. This work, contracted by W. A. Edgar of Cedar Rapids, is rapidly drawing to a close. It is expected that the last of next week will see the completion of the laying of the sewer proper, though the constructing of manholes will not be finished for some days after.

Injured Girl Sues Automobile Owner After Accident

Judge Turns Case Over to Jury; Render Sealed Verdict on Ragan Damage Suit

After a trial lasting two days, the case of Kloos vs. James Ragan was turned over to the jury by Judge R. G. Popham, about 4:30 p.m. Wednesday. The jury was instructed to return a sealed verdict, and was still out late last night. The plaintiff was suing for damages which amounted to $5655.

The case resulted from an automobile accident which occurred the night of June 10, 1925, at the intersection of Washington and Madison streets near the university heating plant. An Oldsmobile automobile belonging to James Ragan, of this city, driven by his daughter, Margaret, who was accompanied by her mother and Mrs. Jack Tinley, now in Council Bluffs, struck down Florence Kloos and Rieta M. Seydel.

Taken to Hospital
The two injured girls were taken to a hospital where their condition was found to be somewhat serious. Miss Kloos had both jaws broken, the right leg and nose broken, was badly cut on the face, and had several teeth injured. She was in the university hospital for six months and was confined in her home until recently.

Separate Suits
The two injured girls are suing for costs and damages in separate cases. The lawyers pleading the Kloos case were Joseph M. Otto and Walter M. Davis for the plaintiff and Edwin A. Baldwin for the defendants.

Marriage licenses were granted to the following couples by the county clerk since last Tuesday: Hoyt R. Watts, 31 years old, of Detroit, Mich., and Miss Esma M. Kiser, 26 years old, of Iowa City; Lee W.

Business Matters Settled by School Board at Meeting

Numerous business matters were settled at the regular monthly meeting of the Iowa City school board which was held last evening. All the members of the board were present.

Bills were read and allowed for improvements made during the summer and some final bills on the Lincoln school, one of which included the premium on a $20,000 insurance policy on the building.

At the request of the building committee, permission was granted to finish sodding and grading the grounds at the Lincoln school as well as to remove some of the large trees near the building.

Receive Sewer Bids
It was announced that bids for the sewer at the west side school would be received tomorrow.

Under the head of new business, it was voted to reimburse Newport township $540.00, which, through an error, had been paid twice.

LeRoy Hoffman was appointed fireman for the high school at a salary of $80 a month.

The financial report of the board was read, in which were embodied the following items:
Financial statement for 1926.
Balance Sept. 1.
Receipts for Sept.
Total on hand $74,329.92.
Disbursements for Sept. $8,809.94.
Balance in general fund Oct. 1, $65,519.98.

Will Enforce Tuition Rule
A resolution was passed that the rule regarding the payment of tuition by certain pupils be enforced and that the pupils be requested to bring a receipt from the secretary of the school board or a temporary permit from the probation officer by Monday, Oct. 25 or be refused permission to attend classes.

The school calendar for the year of 1926-27 will be made to approximate the calendar for 1925-26, according to the board.
Permission was granted the teachers of the Senior high school to attend the teachers' convention at Des Moines Nov. 4, 5, and 6.

At the Hospitals

Miss Helen Olin, West Side, Iowa City, is a patient at Mercy hospital. Miss Lillian Woodward, 523 Lucas street, was admitted to Mercy hospital yesterday.

Otto Linder, route 5, Iowa City, was taken to the university hospital Wednesday.

Miss Helen Menges, Waterloo, is at the university hospital.

Shenandoah Invites Alexander
Grover Cleveland Alexander, hero of the 1926 baseball world series, will be invited to the annual Iowa-Nebraska district convention of Klwanis, here, Oct. 20-22. Alexander will return to his home in St. Paul, Neb., early next week, before starting on a two week's hunting trip. Local Kiwanians are confident he will attend the convention.
