Country Club Gives Dinner Tuesday

Seventy-five members of the country club entertained at a dinner-dance at the club house at 6:30 p. m. yesterday.

Music for the dancing was furnished by Guy Ogilvie's orchestra.

The committee in charge was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Ben P. Wallace as chairmen, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Parsons, Dr. and Mrs. Lillian D. Sharpe, Miss Florence Musson, and Mrs. F. H. Moore. The next meeting will be the first Tuesday in December.

Mrs. Gnuse Joins Husband in India

A cablegram was received yesterday by Rev. J. A. Friedrich, pastor of the St. Paul's Lutheran University church, saying that his daughter who sailed from New York on Oct. 1, arrived safely at Bombay, India, where she will take up missionary work with her husband.

Rev. Gnuse is from Fremont, Neb., but was called to India for missionary work and is now taking up his duties at Tamils in Nagercoil, Travencore, South India.

Phi Beta Delta

Phi Beta Delta announces the initiation of Prof. A. P. Nasatir, department of history, Joseph Bernstein, S2 of Des Moines, Joyce President, A3 of Council Bluffs, Herbert Greenhouse, A2 of Hoboken, N. J.,

Benjamin Steinberg, A2 of Hoboken, N. J., and Maurice Wagiser, M4 of Brooklyn, New York.

A toast program was given at the banquet which was held at the chapter house Monday night in honor of the initiates.

Chaperons' Club Met Yesterday

Twenty-nine house mothers were present at the Chaperons' club meeting yesterday afternoon at the Memorial Union. The chaperons of the nurses homes have been included in the roster of the club, making the full membership about thirty-two.

The afternoon was spent socially and refreshments concluded the meeting. The hostesses were Mrs. Lillian D. Sharpe, Miss Florence Musson, and Mrs. F. H. Moore. The next meeting will be the first Tuesday in December.

Eastern Stars Meet Tonight

The regular meeting of the Jessamine chapter of Eastern Star will be held tonight at the Masonic temple at 7:30. The short business meeting will be followed by initiation. A report of the Grand Chapter meeting at Waterloo, which took place last week, will be given by delegates. All visiting Stars are invited to attend.

Mrs. Ned Knowles is Guest of Honor

Mrs. Ned Knowles of Pasadena, Cal., was the guest of honor at a bridge party given by Dr. and Mrs. Frank B. Whitney at their home on Kirkwood avenue. Mrs. Knowles was formerly Eugenia Ballard of Iowa City. The Whitney home was charmingly decorated with pink roses. Mrs. Lester A. Royal of West Liberty and Mr. Robert McCollister were the highest scorers at the bridge game. An attractive supper was served to the guests at eleven o'clock.

Mrs. H. C. Dorcas Entertains Club

Mrs. Herbert C. Dorcas will be hostess to the members of the Garden section of the Iowa City Woman's club at her home, 1603 East Court street, November 4. "Children's Gardens" will be discussed by Mrs. F. C. Sigler of Indianola.

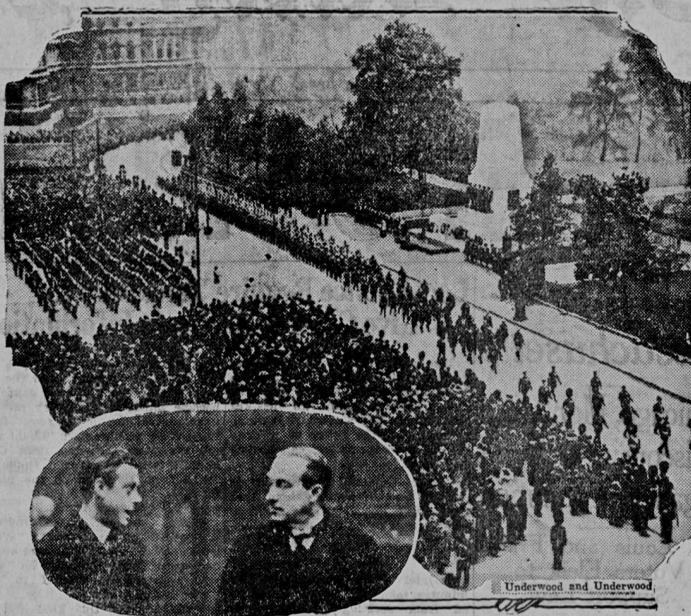

Woman's Club Meets Thursday

Members of the Iowa Woman's club will meet at the home of Mrs. A. E. Chesley, 121 East Fairchild street, at two-thirty o'clock Thursday, November 4. Roll call will be answered with "What's on your mind." Hostesses will be Mrs. A. E. Chesley, Mrs. Florence Barker, Mrs. E. J. Beardsley and Mrs. A. C. Holloway.

Spencers Entertain Monday Evening

A dinner bridge was given by Mr. and Mrs. Allen Spencer Monday evening at their home in the country. The event was given in honor of Mrs. Spencer's birthday. At 6:30 the sixteen guests sat down to a delicious dinner and afterwards played bridge. Mrs. George R. Gay and Mr. George Spencer were the highest scorers at the game.

London Unveils Another War Memorial

London is glorying in possession of another magnificent war memorial. It honors famed Horse Guards. Photos show guardsmen marching past monument, and (inset) Prince of Wales and Premier Baldwin, among thousands who attended ceremony.

Women's Tennis Teams Prepare for Finals

Final contestants for the women's tennis singles and doubles title are now ready for the biggest test of the tournament. Alice Rose, A4 of Iowa City, will meet Ruth Kenefick, A1 of Eagle Grove, in the singles.

In doubles Rose and Rosemary Royce, A1 of Iowa City, will cross racquets with Kenefick and her partner, Mary Lingenfelter, A1 of Des Moines.

Rose, the defending title holder, has played in two state tournaments at Des Moines in 1923 and 1924, and has held the university singles crown for the last two successive years.

Kenefick is a young Eagle Grove state ranking player. She has played in the Iowa State and Missouri Valley tournaments where she lost to Lingenfelter, her doubles partner.

Royce, Rose's doubles partner, is one of the best of the city high school graduate players, but this is her first tournament experience. She is a left-hander.

With Kenefick playing a heady game and Lingenfelter using her height to advantage, Royce and Rose will have to serve hard and cover the court with speed for a win. Singles results between Kenefick and Rose are about even.

A definite time for the finals match play has not yet been set.

University to Get Aid from Memorial Rockefeller Memorial Donates Millions to Research

The annual report of the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial for 1925, which includes several appropriations made for work in the University of Iowa, has just been made public. During the year 1925, the amount of appropriations made reached a total of $7,822,800, the largest proportions of which were given for the study of social science, child study, and for social work and public welfare in general.

The committee, which votes and reports the various appropriations, each year, is composed of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., president; Arthur Woods, acting president; W. S. Richardson, secretary; Charles H. Brent; Cleveland E. Dodge; Raymond B. Fosdick; Ernest M. Hopkins; and George Welwood Murray.

School of Religion Gets $30,000

The Memorial's appropriations in 1925 in the field of social sciences includes funds for research assistance, for books and periodicals, and for international traveling fellowships, $30,000 was given to the University of Iowa school of religion. Contributions were made to the following other institutions: Columbia University, University of Chicago, University of Denver, Northwestern University, University of North Carolina, Brown University, and also to many Law Institute, and also to many colleges outside the United States, including the London School of Economics and Political Science, Hamburg Institute of International Affairs, University of Stockholm, The National Institute of Industrial Psychology, and the Royal Anthropological Institute.

Rietz Will Attend Chicago Session

Rietz, Reilly, Woods to Go to Des Moines Math Meeting

H. L. Rietz, head of the mathematics department, leaves today for Chicago where he will attend the American Institute of Actuaries at the Edgewater Beach hotel Thursday. Professor Rietz will present a paper at the meeting, and Prof. J. P. Reilly of the mathematics department, although present in person, will be represented by a paper.

Professor Rietz will return Friday for the Iowa State teachers association which is in session Nov. 4-5-6 at Des Moines. Professors Reilly and Roscoe Woods of the department will also attend the Des Moines meetings.

The American Institute of Actuaries is an organization of experts in life insurance mathematics, and facilitates the study of scientific problems of life insurance. Specialization in this phase of mathematics is a feature of the department in the University of Iowa.

The institute of actuaries is made up almost wholly of business men. Professors Rietz and Reilly being two of the four college men in the organization.

A mathematics round table will be conducted at the Iowa State teachers association in Des Moines under the auspices of the Iowa association of mathematics teachers, of which Professor Rietz is president, and the Iowa section of the mathematical association of America, of which Professor Reilly is secretary.

Professor Reilly will talk on "Certain Conventions in Elementary Algebra" at the round table session. "On the Algebra of the Arabic Notation" will be discussed by Bernice R. Pfarr of Tipton, who took her master's degree at the University of Iowa last spring. Professor Rietz will preside.

Iowa Gets $118,500 for Child Study

In the field of child study $118,500 was appropriated. The committee has felt that research on the growth and development of children; and experiments and demonstrations in the practical instruction of parents and others who deal with children, should be assisted.

Following this plan an appropriation was made to the University of Iowa Child Welfare research station amounting to $118,500. Similar contributions were made to the University of Minnesota, and to the McGill University and the University of Toronto, for the carrying on of this work.

The Memorial has added a number of organizations, which are active in the field of social work and public welfare. The Y. W. C. A., the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, Federated Societies, League of Red Cross societies, Travellers Aid society, the Russian Student Relief fund, Near East Relief fund, and Student Friendship fund, have received assistance from the Memorial.

State Supreme Court Candidate Bankrupt

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1 (AP)—Bankruptcy of D. L. Thornbury, California candidate, who was financing his own race for associate justice of the state supreme court today furnished an impromptu sidelight on the subject of campaign expenses on the Pacific coast, where senatorial slush fund investigations last week rolled the political waters of Washington and Oregon before storming on into Arizona. His liabilities were placed at $35,000 in an involuntary petition in bankruptcy.

Baconian Club Series to Be Given Every Friday Night

President Walter A. Jessup will give the first of the series of newly instituted Baconian lectures on Nov. 26, in the chemistry lecture room. The subject of President Jessup's lecture is to be announced soon. The tentative plan for these lectures, which are being given under the auspices of the graduate college, is to have them begin at 7:30 p.m. every Friday evening and conclude at 8 p.m. They will continue during the school year up until the first part of April.

State Conference of Child Welfare Meets in Iowa City

A state conference was held here on November 1 and 2 under the auspices of the child welfare research station. The purpose was to discuss methods and materials for conducting courses in child development at the three state institutions and outline training courses for leaders of child study groups in the institutions. The institutions are Des Moines and Council Bluffs, and the state at large. Committees were organized to carry on further study. Luncheon was served at the Memorial Union on both days. Mr. Lawrence K. Frank from the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial in New York was here for the conference which included representatives from the various institutions as follows: From the University of Iowa, Dr. Bled T. Baldwin, Dr. E. H. Lauer, May Parden, Youtz, Ruth Haefner, Ethel B. Warren, and Ella J. Day; from the Iowa State college of agriculture and mechanic arts at Ames, Neale S. Knowles, Lulu B. Lancaster, and Levisa C. Wagoner; from the Iowa State teachers college at Cedar Falls, Eva May Luse, I. H. Hart, Ise Forest and Ruth Kennedy; from Des Moines, Esther N. Body of Houdini, Famous Magician, on Way to New York

DETROIT, Nov. 2 (AP)—The body of Harry Houdini, celebrated magician, who died Sunday, left here tonight on a special car for New York City for burial in accordance with Houdini's will. Houdini's death came after a six day battle with peritonitis following an operation for appendicitis. The magician had been stricken in Montreal, arriving here one day later, where, despite a temperature of 104, he carried out his opening performance at a local theater.

Greeks to Parade Stunts and Floats

Over twenty-five fraternities and societies on the campus have signified their intention of entering a stunt or float in the homecoming parade, according to Dean Adams, chairman of the committee, in a report to Pi Epsilon Pi, honorary fraternity at a special meeting at the Memorial Union last evening.

The parade will form on North Capitol street in front of the chemistry building instead of in front of the University hospital, as stated in the letter sent out by the fraternity to fraternal organizations on the campus. Two cups will be given in the parade. Pi Epsilon Pi will present the sorority which has the best float in the parade with a cup and the Gyro club will give another cup to the fraternity giving the best stunt. Judges will be members of the Gyro club who will be at different points in the line of march. It is not definite, but probable that some kind of a band will lead the parade which is to reflect the spirit of Iowa.

Funeral Services for Mrs. E. P. Adler Held at Davenport

The funeral services for Mrs. E. P. Adler of Davenport, who died Saturday at 4:30 p. m. in the Kenilworth sanitarium, north of Chicago, were held yesterday at 10:30 at the family home, 2104 Main St., Davenport. Rabbi Joseph L. Baron, formerly of Davenport, who is now associate rabbi of Temple Emanu-El, Milwaukee, officiated. The body was interred in Mt. Nebo cemetery.

Chemistry Professor to Speak at Wisconsin Convention

"Is Knowledge Necessary," will be the topic upon which Prof. Jacob Cornog of the department of chemistry here, will speak at the Wisconsin state teachers' meeting to be held in Milwaukee on Friday and Saturday of this week. Much of the material which Professor Cornog will present to the assembled chemistry teachers will be drawn from results manifested in placement tests which have been used at the University of Iowa and other educational institutions throughout the United States.

Scientific Society to Hear Report

Five Research Students in Biology, Medicine to Read Papers

The Society of Experimental Biology and Medicine is composed of mental research in those two fields. It was organized for the purpose of giving research workers an opportunity to derive a stimulus from the work of their fellow investigators and to receive constructive criticism on their own experiments. It also affords the opportunity for men who are working on experiments which they believe will result in new discoveries, to present an abstract of their work, outlining the methods they intend to employ and the results they hope to obtain. These abstracts are recorded in the proceedings of the meetings and are later printed in the official publication of the society. Investigators are in this way enabled to establish priority on their experiments, in case discoveries should later be announced by other scientists. The discussions are of a technical nature, although members who present papers are required to present them in such a manner that they will be intelligible to workers in the other sciences concerned.

Iowa Branch Organized in 1925

The Iowa branch of the Society for Experimental Biology and Medicine was organized in April, 1925. At present, its membership is confined to the University of Iowa. The present members are: Dr. Phillip Charles Jeans, Dr. Amy Louise Daniels, and Dr. Julian Delph Boyd of the children's hospital; Dr. Fred M. Smith, Dr. Robert Banks Gibson, and Dr. George Henry Miller of the general hospital; Dr. Victor C. Myers, Dr. Elbert Rockwood, and Dr. Oliver H. Gaebler of the department of chemistry; Dr. John Thomas McClintock, and Dr. Harry Matlock Hines of the department of physiology; and Dr. W. W. Swingle of the department of biology. Provision has been made to admit to membership investigators from other colleges in the state. Meetings may also be held at places other than Iowa City. Besides the Iowa branch the parent society in New York has branches in Pekin (China), Minnesota, Massachusetts, Illinois, Missouri, and western New York.

Interest in Aimee's Baggage Dwindles Before Elections

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2 (AP)—The Aimee-Semple-McPherson case, relegated to the background by elections, simmered down to a study in baggage today. Tomorrow final arguments will be heard in the preliminary hearing of Mrs. McPherson, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, and Mrs. Lorraine Wisemann-Sklaff, the latter a state witness as well as defendant.

Facists Prepare Defense Against Further Attacks

Believe Attack on Life of Duce Involves Gigantic Plot

[By The Associated Press] ROME, Nov. 2.—Facist Italy, always stirred to delirious enthusiasm by the utterances of its leader, Benito Mussolini, is now seeking with deadly determination to suppress all opposition to Facism. The most stringent measures are being prepared to discourage any further attack against the life of the duce or criticisms against his policy. The intense feeling engendered throughout Italy by the attempt of the boy, Zamboni, to kill Mussolini at Bologna, has been accentuated by the latest word from that city confirming the suspicions that it involved a far reaching plot, instead of being merely an isolated gesture by a deranged youth.

2,000 Under Surveillance

The police on the eve of the demonstration at Bologna put two thousand suspected persons under strict surveillance and seized a large number of manifestos reading, "The Duce will not leave Bologna alive." In the last twenty-four hours scores of individuals have been arrested. Some of them were released under heavy guard after questioning. It is asserted the authorities consider they have found the real source of the crime, but the strictest secrecy is being maintained. An alleged communist plot against the government is said to have been discovered, ten of those implicated being taken by the police. Seventeen communists have been arrested at Sienna.

Violent Demonstrations Throughout Italy Against Anti-Facists Have Led to Death and Injury of Many Persons

Greater bloodshed was prevented only by the heroic efforts of heavily reinforced patrols of militiamen, not a few of whom were bruised and beaten while fighting back infuriated mobs which attempted to wreck the offices of opposition newspapers and the homes of known opponents of Facism. Disorders of a serious nature have occurred at Genoa. Two parties of Facists last night stormed the house of a socialist lawyer, Rossi by name, the house being under guard of customs officers and militiamen at the time. The customs officers fired on the Facists killing two of them. One carabinieri also was killed in the fray. Twelve opposition newspapers and two magazines were suspended from publication today and the licenses of three others were revoked by prefectural decree. A "nifty" young man hardly ever is a thrifty young man.

Seals Club Holds First Try-outs of Year on Thursday

Seals club, the only women's swimming organization on the campus, will hold the first try-outs of the year tomorrow at 5 p. m. Seals club corresponds to the Tarpon club at University of Chicago and the Terrapin club at the University of Illinois. The latter club was responsible for the development of such swimmers as Ethel Luckey and Sybil Bauer. Practically all of the larger universities have a women's swimming organization. Northwestern's club has furnished a number of Olympic swimmers. Margaret Lea, a graduate of Ohio State university, is coaching member of Seals club.

Two Students to Attend Convention

Iowa Home Economics Association to Meet with Teachers

The Iowa home economics association will meet with the State teachers association Thursday and Friday of this week in Des Moines. Miss Francis Zull, head of the home economics department of the University, is chairman of the program committee for the convention and has prepared an excellent program. One of the most interesting numbers on the program will be an address by Miss Anne Richardson of Washington, D. C., president of the American home economics association, who was formerly dean of the home economics college at Ames.

Three Former Iowa Students Receive Guggenheim Gift

Appointments recently made to the John Simon Guggenheim memorial foundation include Coleman H. They Aren't Kind to Kynel

PETER B. KYNE, a Hearst author, has written a new novel for the Hearst magazine, Cosmopolitan, and by a strange coincidence, just before publication of the first installment a Hearst reporter interviewed him for a Hearst newspaper, the New York American.

In this interview, Mr. Kyne took the public into his confidence with a frankness that is extremely refreshing in one so reticent about himself and his methods.

"Do you receive any help from the criticisms and comments of your millions of readers?" Mr. Hearst's young man asked.

"Criticisms and suggestions I do not find helpful," Mr. Kyne replied, "except from my editor. His always are. The criticisms from practically every other person are irritating."

Oh, come, come, Mr. Kyne! Surely this is just modesty. There must be an occasional letter from one of your millions of readers praising your books. Of course, between ourselves, your stories hardly rank as world classics, but there must be a few readers here and there who like them. Such self-deprecation is unbecoming in so successful an author.

"If it were not for the urging of Ray Long, my editor," Mr. Kyne says, "I would wait months after finishing one novel before beginning another."

The scene is touching, if one may be permitted to imagine it.

"Pete," says "my editor," Ray Long, "let's have another novel next week."

"No, my editor," Mr. Kyne replies, "I haven't the heart for it. I've just received some irritating letters from several of my millions of readers."

"What do you care about your readers?" "my editor" replies. "I like your stuff. It's even better than Harold Bell Wright's."

"But I don't think I can endure this irritation for the same figure you paid for the last novel," Peter B. retorts. "If I'm to be irritated by these letters from my millions of readers, I must have at least five cents a word more."

So Mr. Kyne's editor persuades Mr. Long's author to write another novel. Then mark what happens.

"I write quite rapidly. At times I have written more than 13,000 words in twelve hours. At that rate, you see, I could finish an average length novel in about a week, and have time for a little loafing."

Recently the opinion was erupted, in this volcano of comment, that altogether too many books were being printed. It is probable that not many of our literary machine guns are popping novels out at the rate of one a week, but even one man capable of doing so is terrible to contemplate.

But with all his speed, there is one thing Mr. Kyne should not forget. No matter how fast he writes his novels, the public can forget them even faster.

Iowa Loyalty

AMAN inclined to wager would hardly bet that Iowa students would stand or even be feased by the playing of the national anthem, when they refuse to remain in the stands long enough after a football game to allow the band to play "Old Gold."

Saturday the band asked every student to remain in his place until after "Old Gold" had been played. Approximately one-third of them remained. The others were either making a mad rush for the gates or scrambling pell-mell over the stands. Carroll fans were treated with a sad aspect of Iowa spirit.

The band is to be congratulated on the tradition which it has attempted to establish. Its success would create a better spirit in the school. There is nothing in the institution which is more conducive to a real feeling of unity than to sing "Old Gold." Yet how is it possible for the band or any other group on the campus to instill an iota of loyalty in a crowd of yokels and tea hounds who hold a "dave" above all else on the campus? When individual desires are gratified at the expense of all else it is extremely difficult to accomplish a thing for the betterment of the school.

Many an Iowa student lacks something very vital in the makeup of every man. Just what that something is each will have to diagnose for himself. From appearances it seems to be backbone. Until the attitude on the part of many students changes Iowa spirit will remain at a standstill. It is impossible for the administration to further the spiritual burgeoning of the school without some action from the student body.

The Great American Game

THIS being election week, citizens supposedly are giving a little special thought and consideration to the great American game of politics. If they are seriously interested, they may question a little if the game is being played fairly. Can this, after all, be a democratic and representative form of government when we are called upon to choose between the two or three men whom the parties have selected?

The problem of nominations is one which baffles political scientists and which offers a broad-side to the blows of critics. Never before in the history of the world has a nation attempted to pick out its leaders from a hundred and ten million men. It is an almost impossible task, and no doubt the parties do it as well as anyone could.

But when we consider the list of nominees, we are inclined to cry devoutly with J. G. Holland, "God, give us men."

It is a generally admitted fact that the strongest, ablest men are seldom nominated for office. Since 1840 when Henry Clay was defeated for the National Republican nomination, political parties have fought shy of the superior leaders. It is the business of the party to get its men into office, and a superman finds it almost impossible to make the grade of actual election.

The main cause for this is obvious—great men will make enemies, and enemies are always more active than friends. Besides, the spectacular candidate, the candidate who appeals to men's loyalties, will generally outdistance a man of plain capability in any race for popularity.

This is no doubt an unfortunate state of affairs. But it will probably not drive the country onto the rocks as some alarmists predict. The great men are really "the power behind the throne." Officeholders depend on them in a crisis, and their influence is always powerful, although it must work in a cumbersome and clumsy manner.

An office-holder must necessarily be hampered by details, foolish customs, and the hard glare of publicity. An Elihu Root and a Charles Hughes might falter and fail in such a position. Perhaps if Woodrow Wilson had not been burdened with the details of his office and its necessary publicity, he might have been more successful with his political plans.

Be that as it may, there seems to be no remedy for the situation. It is simply part of the price we must pay for our democratic form of government.

Our Sardines

INTEREST in university aquatic sports has intensified in the last few years. Iowa's new swimming pool, the best of its kind in the world, will serve as a new spur to the men who are to use it.

Iowa women also are devoting more time and enthusiasm to swimming. Lack of competition with other colleges, makes the fact relatively insignificant to everyone except the women.

The women's pool, twenty yards in length, which a number of years ago was ample to accommodate all who wished to swim, is now cramped. Swimming classes are crowded and recreational swimming brings out more than fifty girls at the same time. A line of divers continually stands at the one low board that must accommodate everyone. If each girl has her turn at the board and does not take more than half a minute to a dive, there is just time enough during the recreational hour for every girl to have one spring.

Swimming records at the women's gymnasium have been slashed in the last three years. This season an unofficial time for the free-style establishes a pool record. Women have taken over the life-guard work, replacing men.

If Iowa women cannot enter intercollegiate meets, if they cannot have more room in which to exercise their ambitious limbs, if they cannot have high diving boards—then at least they should be praised for the progress they have made in spite of handicaps.

There are seven hundred Burg-a-lars, All kinds of Burg-a-lars, Waiting in the doorway; Burg-a-lars from Africa, Oregon, Siberia, Newfoundland and Norway— All kinds of Burg-a-lars, Waiting in the doorway.

But I let them look and linger; And the door, I do not lock it; Haven't I a ready finger On the Pistol in my pocket?

There are seven hundred Indians, All kinds of Indians, At the window pane; Indians from India, Idaho and Florida, Mexico and Maine— All kinds of Indians, At the window pane.

But I chuckle rather boldly, With my Pistol in my hand; And I look at them quite coldly, And I guess they understand.

There are seven hundred Animals, Woof! what Animals, Hiding in the closet; Animals from Austria, Switzerland, Arabia, And from—now-where-was-it? Woof! what animals! Hiding in the closet!

But I don't care how they bellow; Be they big or be they bigger, I'm a fine and fearless fellow With my finger on the Trigger.

Higher Education

By J. VAN RAALTE

Some day an enterprising scientific man will take a college professor apart and find out what makes him as he is. And if anyone has such research in mind, he might begin on Professor Dana C. Munro of Princeton. He's a perfect specimen.

Professor Munro is a distinguished gent. He is president of the American Historical Association. And the other day he went into violent eruption because, he said, mere common school teachers were getting so greedy that they were flocking to universities and taking Ph. D. degrees, for the sordid purpose of getting their salaries increased.

"The professor is so agitated about it that his association is going to take a survey and see if something can't be done.

What is this Ph. D. thing, anyhow? As far as it is possible to discover it's a title that you get something like this: First you are graduated from the college, and then you go back and ask for more. You spend a lot of time around the old alma mater and then write a long screed, called a thesis, explaining the religious significance of the fact that the Choctaw Indians never cut their toenails, or something of the sort.

The faculty looks the thesis over, and if it finds that all the words are correctly spelled and that the applicant has had his toenails removed, it says, "You're a Ph. D.", and right away he is.

Now, according to Professor Munro, it is immediately the duty of the owner of this title to engage in "productive scholarship," whatever in Yale that may be.

To the ordinary forked redfish, who isn't up in higher education, it might appear that teaching the young idea how to shoot, is a fairly good brand of "productive scholarship," but it seems not.

For some reason, school boards set great store by teachers who can hang this "Ph. D." thing after their names, and pay them vast amounts of money—perhaps as much as $2,500 a year. In other words, they believe that a teacher is worth more to the children he teaches, if he has got himself this added knowledge.

But Professor Munro is so anxious that this sacred title should be kept out of common circulation, that he doesn't want the little ones of America to get the benefit of sitting at the feet of those who have gone out and earned it.

Even if getting this degree is the only way a school teacher can improve his condition and earn more money, it doesn't make any difference to Professor Munro.

CHILLS and FEVER

Most stenographers are reputed to be fast enough.

We have had to cut "Ignorance is Bliss" from a novel to a short novelette with only two installments. Here is the last issue of this thrilling portrayal of human character.

IGNORANCE IS BLISS
Eventually of course Ross recovered so that he was able to sit down on a stack of nice soft cushions. Meanwhile life went on as usual in his old home at Hell's Crossroads. All the other young fellows who had not been considered nearly as domesticated as he married and settled down; his old flame, the banker's daughter was the last to get married but at last she found a courageous man at a reasonable price.

The banker, stern man that he was, had to brush away a tear at the thought of the gallant Ross who had in the old days been so much with his daughter on his veranda, off and on. Besides the young man had lost a sizable pot one night in a game of blackjack for which the graybeard had only his memories and some old-I. O. U.'s to show. But to return to our hero, Ross had worked hard selling oil stock and finally was not only ready but anxious to retire from the habit of the Irish cop. He packed up his pony, his medal given by the Good-year company and the most consistent consumer and six doughnuts and a cup of coffee in his suitcase and started for home.

When he arrived the hometown folks were all surprised to find him looking so happy and to find his digestion so unimpaired. Suspicion began to enter their minds.

Finally one old gossip sought to find out about his past. "I supposed," she said, "that by this time you'd be married and father of half a dozen children."

"No, ma'am," he answered, court-cously, "I never married!"

"Midland" receives Highest Ranking for Last Twelve Years

"The Midland," literary magazine edited and published by Prof. John T. Frederick and Prof. Frank L. Mott, of the department of English, has received the highest consistent ranking for the last twelve years of any other literary magazine published in the United States.

Edward J. O'Brien, leading short story critic of England and America, says: "It has been my constant wonder and delight to find in these stories the most vital interpretation in fiction of our national life that many years have been able to show. MERRY LOCKE, pretty and gay as her nickname, is a born flirt. Since the time she was 16, Merry has always had men galore at her feet. She has no ambition beyond love-making and a good time.

At 20, she falls in her business course, to the disgust and disappointment of MOMS, her mother. When her father suddenly dies, she takes a job in LILLIE DALE'S beauty shop. At that time she is having the first real love affair of her life. The man in the case is TONY GAINES, a serious-minded young lawyer, who wants to marry her.

One night Merry, in a fit of jealous rage because Tony is spending the evening with his mother, lets DERRICK JONES make love to her, just by way of "getting even" with Tony. Later she goes out with a new man, BILL ERSKINE, a wealthy bachelor. When Tony hears about it, he stops seeing her, and later Merry hears that he has gone to Montana. A letter comes to her from him, but is lost in the house before she has a chance to see it. However, she returns his ring and tries to forget him.

Helen, her oldest sister, marries BILL HEPWORTH. CASIE marries MORLEY KAUFMAN, a rich broker with whom she quarrels constantly, and JINNY, the youngest sister, annexes DERRICK JONES.

Merry is engaged to Bill Erskine, and is to be married in September. Bill comes to town on Labor Day and leaves three days later without saying a word about the wedding.

At a house party at Morley's lodge in the woods, Merry meets CABBY MARSH. He and Merry have a flirtation and Cabby kisses her one afternoon while they are dancing. Morley's sister, MURIEL, sees it, and after that she snubs Merry unmercifully. Merry is glad when Cabby is over and she can go back to the shop.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV

"Nonsense!" Merry answered snappishly. "I look all right." She took Merry firmly by the arm and marched her along the crowded sidewalk.

Jinny giggled. "I'm glad you think so," she trilled. "But anyway, there's a man trying to flirt with you—My stars! He's coming back! He's going to speak to you!"

As Merry half turned, she saw a familiar face in the crowd that was pressed around her. Cabby Marsh was coming toward her, his hand outstretched and a broad grin on his dark handsome face.

the window "doing" her nails. Her simple system was to cut them straight across the top, and then let Nature take its course. Jinny was almost without personal vanity.

As Merry opened the door, she glanced up and her pointed little face sparkled with anger. "Sweet trick you played on me this noon, wasn't it?" she asked. "Leaving me flat in the middle of the street, without a cent for a bit of lunch—Just to go racing off with that man! I declare, Merry, you seem to go out of your head whenever there's a man in sight!"

Merry was in no mood for a quarrel. She was far too happy to do anything but smile and shrug her shoulders. She had had a beautiful afternoon. After she and Cabby had lunch, they had gone for a long drive out toward Westmoreland. Then they had come back to town, and Cabby had bought her the violets and some tea at Paula's bright little shop.

Not only that, but he had made "dates" with her for next Wednesday night! And life was beginning to open its petals and bloom for her again, like a flower slowly opening on a motion-picture screen.

For life, to interest Merry Locke, had to have a man and a thrill in it, somewhere. She was what less alluring women would call "a man's woman."

"I've had such a wonderful time!" she sighed happily, taking off her new hat and unpinning the violets. "Didn't you think Cabby Marsh was wonderful looking?" "I didn't have time to look at him, before you snatched him away," answered the outraged Jinny, who secretly thought him extremely handsome and would like to see more of him.

"Cassie's here," she added, as an after-thought. "She and Moms have been closed up in the kitchen for an hour, and they wouldn't let me in—I suppose Cassie's singing some more grief about Morley."

Ten minutes afterward when Merry went down to the kitchen the door was standing open, however, Moms was moving around, getting supper. Cassie, with a handkerchief pressed to her eyes, was sitting at the table.

"Married life isn't what it was 30 years ago—I know that!" Moms was saying, apparently in answer to something Cassie had just said. "Women used to stay at home and mind their business and have their babies, those days. They didn't have time to go around making eyes at other women's husbands!"

"This Mrs. Pell has two children," Cassie retorted in a muffled voice. "Well, what about you?" her mother asked briskly. "You haven't! And that's where you make your biggest mistake, my girl!—What's marriage between a man and a woman who won't have children? It isn't marriage at all, but something very, very different."

She tapped her foot energetically on the floor as she cut paper-thin slices of rye bread.

Cassie shook her head beautifully waved head.

"Women have different ideas than they used to have, Moms," she replied, in a choked voice, "They're not content to stand around in calico aprons with a baby tucked under each arm any more—no the only chance I have with Morley is to keep myself young and fresh and full of snap."

"Full of nonsense, you mean," Moms answered, out of patience. "There are always going to be pretty, young, 'snappy' women, as you call them, around Morley. But only one woman can be a man's wife and the mother of his children. . . . and where would you be today, if I'd lived my life the way you're living yours? You'd never have been born that's what!"

"Sometimes I wish I never had been!" Cassie sobbed out, and that ended the argument.

For as she put her head down on the table and cried, Moms dropped her breadknife and came to her. She put her big arms around Cassie's slender, shaking figure and held her tight.

Special Prosecutor Appears Confident

Newest photo of Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor in the Hall-Mills murder case, hows him entering the court house in New Brunswick, where the trial opens.

"Don't take it so hard, my lamb," Merry heard her whisper. . . . That was Moms for you! Hard as nails, because life had been unkind and made her so. But sweet and comforting as a guardian angel, when anyone needed sweetness and comforting.

Merry did not know that she had seen her come in and stand by the door. But she had, for she turned now and beckoned silently to her.

"Here's Merry, Cassie," she said quietly. "She'll stay here and get supper for Jinny and Lillie Dale—and I'll go home with you to Morley. It's time somebody said a thing or two to that gentleman!"

But Cassie looked up in alarm and shook her head.

"Oh, no, I won't let you say a word to him!" she cried. "I'll not let him know I care about this whole thing! Let him have all of Bill Pell that he wants to—I'm going to leave him!"

She got up and wadded her damp handkerchief into the pocket of her smart sport dress.

"No, indeed!" she said firmly. "I wouldn't let Morley Kaufman know that I care that much for him! I don't even ask him where he's been, when he comes home at 10 or 11 o'clock every night of his life. The first complaint he'll get from me will be from my lawyer—I'm going away for a couple of weeks, and when I get back—watch the fireworks!"

She marched into the hall, put on her hat and coat and went out to the car that was parked in the driveway.

"Come over tomorrow morning, and help me pack!" she called to Merry, who stood watching her from the doorway.

When she had vanished into the gray darkness, Merry went slowly back to the kitchen.

"What I can't figure out," she said to her mother, "is whether Cassie minds losing Morley or his money. What do you think about it?"

"I don't know," Moms answered, lifting a pan from the stove. "But let me give you a piece of advice. . . . Don't ever marry a man for his money. Don't ever get married until it seems to be the only thing that's worthwhile in the world. That's the only safe rule that I know."

"Did you care for Dad that way?" Her mother raised her heavy eyebrows.

"Did I?" she repeated. "Did I? Why, of course I did! Did you suppose I could have ever stood the work and worry and the poverty, and all the rest of it if I hadn't—your father was enough to drive any woman crazy, with his shiftlessness. It was his only fault, but it was a terrible one." Her face seemed to lighten. "If I ever marry again," she remarked, without meeting her daughter's eyes, "I shall pick out a man who's a good provider."

Merry giggled to herself. . . . It was impossible to think of Moms ever marrying again. She couldn't imagine Moms attracting any man, much less falling in love, herself. There was about as much romance in Moms as there was in a steam shovel. . . . In Merry's opinion at least.

"You'll never marry again," she said aloud, and went on to tell Moms about her brand-new love affair.

"I met this Marsh man through Morley's sister, Muriel," she said. "He was just frantic about me from the minute he shook hands with me. But, of course, Muriel wouldn't let him get within a mile of me—"

She did not mention the kiss he had given her at the Crow's Nest. It never would do to let Moms know that she had let a man kiss her the first time she saw him—or the last time, either, as far as that went!

"Well, anyway, Jinny and I bumped into him downtown today. Her light voice went on like a brook. "And didn't he ask me to lunch with him, very first thing?"

"HE DID NOT!" Jinny fairly boomed from the doorway. "You asked him to take you and you ditched me to go with him! You're a fine sister, you are!"

Moms held up a warning hand. "Hush, girls!" she said, looking from one face to the other. "I will not have this continual fussing—" She shook her head.

As a matter of fact, Merry and Jinny did very little quarrelling. And when they did, their spats were soon over and forgotten.

Tonight, before the dishes were done, they were the best friends in the world again.

"Saturday night! Let's break loose and go to the movies. What do you say?" Merry asked, as she rinsed the last of the pots and pans, "I'll treat."

Merry drew her salary on Saturday, and she always had plenty of money until Tuesday—or possibly Wednesday.

"Wednesday! Oh, joy!" sang Jinny. She hung up her dish towel and Charlestown out of the kitchen, whistling. "It Had to Be You," as she vanished. . . .

It was ten o'clock when they got home. The house was in darkness except for a dim light in the lower hall.

"That's funny," Merry observed, as they came up the front walk. "Do you suppose Moms went over to Cassie's, after all? It certainly doesn't look as if she's home, does it?"

They went into the house. Moms was not in it, but there was a note pinned to the kitchen table.

Jinny picked it up and glanced at it. "Holy cow!" she cried, her brown eyes like saucers. "Where do you suppose she's gone? To the movies with Mr. Hefflinger!"

Star Witness in Hall-Mills Murder Case Disappears

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 1 (AP)—Disappearance of Mrs. Jane Gibson, the state's star witness in its case against Mrs. Frances Steven Hall and three of her male relatives who will be placed on trial Wednesday for the slaying of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, today added to the confusion of the last minute preparations.

Pastor-Murderer's First Site Moved to Capital City

[By The Associated Press]

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 2.—Austin, the capital city of Texas, late today was designated as the scene for the trial of Dr. J. Frank Norris, Baptist minister and fundamentalist leader, on a charge of murder, for the slaying of D. E. Chipps, wealthy lumberman, here last July.

District Judge George Hosey, after hearing a score of witnesses testify that Dr. Norris could not obtain a fair and impartial trial in the defendant's home city, decided to grant the pastor a change of venue and transferred the case to Austin.

Date Must Be Set The date of the trial at Austin is unknown as the case must be set by the criminal court there. District Attorney Hanger said he thought it would be set for the January term. The only step now is to transfer the papers to the Austin court and certify that the change of venue has been placed in that court.

Dr. Norris was elated at the turn of the case, characterizing his application for a change of venue as "a bomb shell" to the prosecution and declaring the state "now has not a leg to stand on; the case is all over."

Many Formed Opinions One of the weighty considerations in Judge Hosey's decision was believed to have been the response of the courtroom full of prospective jurors to the court's questions as to how many of them had formed opinions. About 30 per cent of the veniremen held up their hands, and when the judge asked how many did not have a fixed opinion only a few put up their hands.

Some of the witnesses called by the defense said they had heard men express the belief that Norris' neck should be broken, that he should be shot, and that he should be hanged.

The testimony of the Mayor of Fort Worth, H. C. Meacham, that he had hired special prosecutors at $15,000 fee to prosecute Norris for killing his friend Chipps, also was stressed by the defense.

No Evidence of "Combustion" No evidence was heard on Norris' allegation that "a combination of politics and religions, of the city administration and Roman Catholics, had been formed to prosecute him, all of the questions going to the alleged widespread fixed opinions in the case.

The judge, after noon recess, said that the defense had established its case on the change of venue and that he did not want to hear any more evidence on the question.

Prosecuting attorneys vigorously protested that they should be heard and intimated that they wished to defend Mayor Meacham and the citizenship of Tarrant county, as they stated the impression had been left that the citizenship was not fair-minded.

Judge Hosey declined to reverse his stand. The question of where the case should be sent then became a knotty problem. The attorneys announced at one time that they had agreed on Austin, but when it developed that District Attorney Hanger had not been a party to this agreement and that he wanted a more populous

Major General Bell Interred in Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 2 (AP)—In one of the most impressive military funerals ever held in this city the body of Major General George J. Bell Jr., surrounded by many of the high officials in military and civil life, and flanked by 1,500 members of 33rd division of the Illinois National Guard whom he had led in France, was borne to its resting place today.

The funeral cortege, preceded by a squad of mounted police, wound its way from the hotel Residence of the late officer who died Thursday, through Lincoln Park to St. James church where funeral services were held, and thence to Rose Hill cemetery where taps was sounded.

Lomas, University of Iowa Graduate, Writes Prize Story

Willis A. Lomas of Villisca, who was graduated from the University of Iowa last June, is the winner of first prize of $100 in the Sunday Register's short story contest with his story "Jim Hale's Maples," which appeared in Sunday's issue of that paper.

Lomas, who is 22 years old, was graduated from Iowa in liberal arts and majored in the English department. Commenting on the story, the Sunday Register says: "In construction and style 'Jim Hale's Maples' is an unusual story. The author has taken a common situation, two old men squabbling over land, and set it against the background of the deep-rooted love of both of them for a row of maple trees. He has worked out a story rich in subtle characterization and atmosphere."

Army and Navy Prime Guns for Annual Classic of Gridiron

Ohio Team Takes Day Off to See Rivals Do Stuff

Yost Thinks Navy Did His Cocky Boys Good Turn

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Nov. 2 — Half a hundred extremely critical spectators will watch Michigan and Wisconsin battle on the football field of Ann Arbor Saturday.

The contingent will be the Ohio State football squad, which is taking advantage of an open date to watch the Wolverine team that it will try to wreck a week from Saturday at Columbus. Michigan, its quest for national honors sidetracked by the Navy, is anything but a confident bunch this week, though a favorite to beat Wisconsin.

Yost regards the Navy's victory a good antidote for his squad's exaggerated ego, and believes it will help the outfit come through the Big Ten with a clean slate. Ohio State thinks it will win the conference crown when it meets Michigan, and more than 80,000 seats will be available at the Columbus stadium for the banner battle.

The Wolverines have won nine of twelve games with Wisconsin. Little, himself a Michigan star of yore, has little hope of making the score somewhat even Saturday, for he watched his defense crumble before Minnesota last Saturday after he had come to regard it as the strongest department of Badger play.

Maroons Underdogs
Chicago's beleaguered Maroons, trampled by the Big Ten horde, prepared tonight with spirit for Illinois, but drilled again on defense, scarcely hoping for more than a "good showing" against the Illini. Stagg's

Ushers for Homecoming Game Meet Tomorrow

Ushers for the Homecoming game Saturday will hold a meeting at the men's gymnasium tomorrow night at 7:30. Over 250 men have signed up to help care for the great crowd expected to attend the Hawk-Gopher battle.

The job of handling the big crowd and keeping it moving while going to and from the game has always been a big one in the past. The security of entrances to the field causes congestion which can only be eliminated by getting the "mobs" away from the gates.

team has looked better each week, but Zuppke's squad is improving even more rapidly.

A Big Ten title aspirant should be eliminated when Purdue meets Northwestern, and in no previous year has the battle meant so much to both teams, for in other years both have been kicked about in the lower stories of the conference structure. Purdue is unbeaten but tied by Wisconsin in the conference, while Northwestern has two victories.

Minnesota Comes Here
Minnesota will go to Iowa a favorite, although it has not won a game since 1914 on Iowa field. Peplaw, hurt against Wisconsin, is expected to be back in the Gopher back field and Iowa is concentrating on defense, with some attention to new forward passing plays.

Indiana, which appears to have established the earliest claim to cellar honors in the conference, meets Notre Dame, and like Chicago, finds the week another one of defensive drill.

Saturday will be homecoming day at Michigan, Iowa, Northwestern and Notre Dame.

Frosh Scrimmage Varsity Gridders

Hawks Take Offensive in Long Practice with Yearlings

Coach Ingwersen sent his varsity men up against some stiff competition last night when they scrimmaged the freshman huskies. Coach Parkin had four teams ready to show how Minnesota will play Saturday. At the first of the scrimmage the frosh were on the defense, using two full teams in an effort to show the varsity their mistakes. Time after time the varsity backs would tear through the yearling line for good gains, but at times they were stopped in their tracks. The whole scrimmage was devoted to offense as far as the varsity was concerned.

While the coaches Barron and Schirmer were conducting the scrimmage, Parkin and Vogel were drilling two other squads on offense. Tonight the varsity will be on the defense and the yearlings will take the ball.

The men showed real spirit and fight last night, and Parkin believes that they will do their stuff when they come up against the varsity again.

Army, Syracuse University Suspend Gridiron Relations

SYRACUSE, Nov. 1 (AP)—Athletic relations between the United States Military academy and Syracuse university were temporarily suspended today as an outgrowth of the Syracuse-Army football game at West Point Oct. 16. Several players on each side were injured in the hard fought contest.

Aces on Wolverine Grid Eleven

Here are a few of the boys who are keeping Michigan at the top of the heap in the conference scramble. Left (top to bottom) "Battering Bo" Molenda and Bennie Oosterbaan. Center, Captain Bennie Friedman. Right (top to bottom) Jack Lovette and Bill Flora. Oosterbaan and Flora are ends, Lovette at tackle, and Friedman and Molenda are the big guns in the backfield.

Ritola Wins A.A.U. Ten Mile Run for Fourth Time

YONKERS, N. Y., Nov. 2 (AP)—Willie Ritola of the Finnish American A. C. today won the championship for the fourth time equalling the feat of his countryman, Hannes Kolehmainen. The fleet-footed Finn came from behind to save the race in the last mile and a half after a cramp had forced him to yield the pace-making position to Gonzalez Moreno, an army runner, in the seventh mile. Ritola, who won the event in 1922, 1923, and 1925 was clocked in 53 minutes, 30 1-5 seconds.

Moulton Winner in Quad Harrier Meet

Council Bluffs Runner Noses Out Rival by Seven Yards

James A. Moulton, A1 of Council Bluffs, won first place in the second annual quadrangle cross country run last night on Finkbine field. He was followed closely by B. Gunderson and had a lead of about seven yards when he breasted the tape. The winner's time was 5:51.

Section D of the quad was the winner in the team section with 13 points, followed by section C with 19 points. B. Gunderson, N. J. Waffle, and E. Madden, who placed second, fifth, and sixth, respectively, composed the winning team. Section A finished third with 21 points followed by section B with 41.

Four medals were given to the first four men to finish, while the next ten were awarded ribbons. The men placed as follows: First, James A. Moulton; second, B. Gunderson; third, D. Lamond; fourth, B. Godlove; fifth, N. J. Waffle; sixth, E. Madden; seventh, Hodge; eighth, L. Palmer; ninth, L. Evans; tenth, H. A. Meyers; eleventh, Moore; twelfth, R. Rex; thirteenth, A. Thompson; fourteenth, H. Williams; fifteenth, P. Amle and sixteenth, R. Dico.

Twenty men were entered in the run, but four of these failed to finish. This run was open to all residents of the quad, unless they were previous winners of the L or if they were members of this year's cross country squad.

Bruno Marchi, head of the intramural athletic department acted as head starter of the race. He was assisted by "Dad" Schroeder, director of the men's gym.

Harriers as Well as Gridders Meet Gophers Saturday

Iowa will not only have the opportunity to show the Minnesota fans how to play football but also give them a little instruction in bill and date strategy, when the two Gopher harriers visit Iowa City Saturday.

Although the Wisconsin aggregation handed the Minnesota team a handsome lacing Saturday it must be realized that the team was not in true form and the course was foreign to Coach Iverson's men. Nevertheless, Coach George Bresnahan is giving the team some real workouts realizing that Captain Wexner and a couple of the other boys are not slouches by a means.

Rocknemen Test Army Machinery Before Big Game

Georgetown Will Give Midshipmen Trial Game Saturday

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 —Army and Navy football eleven will plunge into the last half of the gridiron drive next Saturday with prospects of grappling on November 27 for the mythical championship of the east.

Battles of Nov. 13 will measure the significance of the annual service team struggle. On that day, the powerful Army eleven, which so easily brushed aside Yale, will face Knickerbocker's unbeaten Notre Dame machine while the Middles will tackle Georgetown. Both will have preparatory games this week for the two struggles, with the cadets opposing Franklin, Marshall, and the future admirals meeting West Virginia Wesleyan.

May Be Battle of Century
Should the Navy add Georgetown to a string of victories which already include Princeton, Colgate, Michigan, Drake and Purdue, and should the West Point team bowl over Notre Dame, football critics feel that the Chicago game would bring together the two most formidable service teams in the history of their gridiron rivalry.

Of five other unbeaten teams which enter the race with Army and Navy for honors in the east, only one candidate appears reasonably certain of keeping its string of triumphs intact.

Lafayette Still in Race
Lafayette apparently hurled the last tall barrier in its path by coming from behind to upset Washington and Jefferson last week. With Rutgers, Susquehanna and Lehigh still to come, the schedule of Pennsylvania university held serious threats of disaster for all three teams frequently have been defeated this season. Lehigh, traditional foe of Lafayette has not yet won a single game.

But there were titanic struggles ahead of New York university, Boston college, Brown and Holy Cross as well as before Army and Navy.

New York vs. Carnegie
Carnegie Tech, coming here to battle New York university on Saturday will be the first of three rugged foes for the metropolitan contenders. Pointing for its annual grapple with Harvard on Nov. 13, Brown will have the advantage of taking on comparatively light opposition in Norwich, while the Crimson is opening the "Big Three" fight against Princeton. Two weeks later the Bruins will lock with Colgate.

The husky Haskell Indian team looks ahead of Boston college, Holy Cross also says storm clouds for the Worcester team on Saturday will be offered by Fordham.

Irish Jordan, Welterweight Wins From Tandler on Foul

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Irish Tommy Jordan, Brooklyn welterweight, won from Lew Tandler, of Philadelphia on a foul in the fourth round of a ten round match at the New Broadway Arena here last night. Jordan weighed 149, Tandler 148 1-2. Tandler was winning handily until a heavy left hand smash to the stomach dropped Jordan to the canvas in the fourth. The Brooklyn boy's claim of foul was sustained by the referee. Jordan took a count of four in the first round.

Fourteen Gunners From 1925 Crack Squad to Return Outlook Bright to Win Conference Rifle Crown Again

The first call for the varsity rifle team was issued this morning by Coach James J. Gihney. All candidates for this year's team must report this week to Coach Gihney at the armory for assignment of hours for practice. Rifle practice will start next week.

The freshmen will do their shooting on the main floor as part of their first year basic work. Their scores will probably determine their candidacy for the freshmen squad.

Fourteen gunners from last year's crack outfit, which won the Big Ten championship last year, are back in school, and will furnish the bulk of the material out of which Coach Gihney hopes to shape another first place aggregation. The men who are back from last year are: Walter J. Amason, Couter; Alfred H. Brauer, Rock Rapids; Frank P. Brock, Solon; Marshall F. Camp, Arispe; Floyd Della Vedova, Ottumwa; Warren W. Drum, Burlington; William T. Hargrove, Lake Park; Robert K. Hemphill, Coralville; Ernest E. Huffman, Iowa; Raymond N. Welly, Iowa City; Wilbur H. Wickham, Iowa City; Floyd B. Dean, Waterloo; Floyd A. Poetzinger, Cedar Rapids; and Frank B. Carson, North English.

Matches will start some time during the latter part of January.

Rockne Opposed to Notre Dame Joining Big Ten

Irish Institution on Friendly Terms with Nine Conference Schools Now, Says Knute

By The Associated Press
SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 2.—Knute Rockne, was apathetic today to reports from Chicago that Notre Dame was to be invited to join the Big Ten.

"I have not heard any Big Ten talk around here for eight or nine years," said Rockne. "What's the point in our joining the Big Ten anyway?"

Notre Dame fans opine that Rockne has all the Big Ten games, with the exception of Michigan, that he wants, regardless of membership and figures that a membership might or might not bring the Wolverines to amicable relationships with the local school.

As matters stand now the Notre Dame schedule usually calls for two or three Big Ten games each year, ordinarily with the strongest contenders. Michigan always has refused to play Notre Dame, but the other nine members are on friendly relations with the South Bend school.

ETTA KETT

I LOVE ETTA AND WANT HER TO MARRY ME—BUT EVERY TIME I ASK HER TO SET A DATE SHE JUST LAUGHS AND SAYS "WHY HURRY?"

WHEN YOU'VE BEEN MARRIED AS LONG AS I HAVE YOU'LL KNOW HOW TO HANDLE WOMEN THEY ALWAYS DO JUST THE OPPOSITE OF WHAT YOU ASK THEM—LEAVE IT TO ME—I'LL SHOW YOU!

LISTEN HERE ETTA—YOU HAVE TO GIVE HARCORT UP! I DEMAND THAT YOU RETURN HIS RING AND NEVER SEE HIM AGAIN—I FORBID YOU TO HAVE ANYTHING MORE TO DO WITH HIM!

YOU'RE AWFULLY CRUEL TO MAKE ME GIVE HIM UP DAD—BUT I'LL GIVE YOU MY WORD NEVER TO SEE HIM AGAIN!

HAVE YOU SEEN MR. KETT AROUND?

HE DONE WENT OUT DE BACK DOAH—DIDN'T SAY WHAR HE INUZ GOIN' BUT HE MUST HAB KNOWN CAUZ' HE DONE ACT IN A BIG HURRY!

Dear Diary—
I gave Harcourt back his ring tonight. He didn't want to take it—poor, boy he's such a nice chap & I hated to turn him down, but I promised dad—E.

Five Sororities Enter Teams in Swimming Meet

Five teams have already entered the women's intramural swimming tournament of the university. Kappa Delta, Alpha Delta Pi, Gamma Phi Beta, Chi Omega, and Phi Mu are the first entrants. Entries will be accepted for two more weeks, according to the Student Intramural Committee chairman, Percie Van Alstine.

The tournaments will be divided into two sections, novice and advanced class. A team will consist of two advanced and two novice swimmers. The highest scoring team of four persons will be awarded a silver trophy cup, as in intramural basketball and baseball.

A preliminary meet will be held the last week in November. One representative from each team will enter each event, no one person entering more than four events, and the best four from each event will be selected to fight it out in the final tournament the first week in December.

A review of Seals, honorary swimming organization membership, shows some excellent swimmers from many of the sororities: Pi Phi, Kappa, Kappa Delta, Tri Delta, Alpha Delta, Chi O, Delta, Gamma, Delta Zeta, and Alpha Xi Delta. Spirited rivalry is expected when these representatives compete against each other in the intramural tournament.

Junior Roll
The Junior honor roll includes Alice Carlson, Vivian Eaton, Allaire Fleming, Grace Greenfield, Edna Hotka, Harriett James, Martha McDowell, Gwendolyn Nagle, Eloise Walker, Agnetta Christensen (revised), and Oliver Brown.

On the Sophomore honor roll are: Ida Akers, Metta Ballard, Phoebe Benson, Virginia Cone, Gertrude Dempster, Grace Donovan, Anna Fisher, Florence Glassman, Martha Isaacs, Leone Neider, Genevieve Neuzil, Grace Sipple, Louise Ann (revised) all "E's"; and Walter Imman.

Freshmen Roll

Boy Scouts Give Tenderfoot Degree

Initiate Four; Nearby Camps Attend Game Last Saturday

Boy Scout troop fourteen of the Methodist church initiated four candidates in the Tenderfoot degree last night at their regular meeting in the church. Billy Yetter, Paul Reed, Howard Walker and Paul Hurd were the new Scouts. The candle ceremony in which the boys were invested with the degree was conducted by P. W. Hubbard, S4 of Des Moines, assistant Scoutmaster of the troop, Chas. A. Beckman, deputy commissioner, and E. G. Stowell, scout executive. The troop leaders, in addition to Mr. Hubbard, are Edwin C. Thomas and J. C. Carran.

Approximately 300 Scouts and leaders were the guests of the University athletic council at the Iowa-Carroll game last Saturday, through the courtesy and efforts of Dr. P. E. Belting and Colonel Morton C. Mumma, scout commissioner. Led by their own cheerleaders, the Scouts out-cheered the Carroll contingent, with whom they were seated. Troops from the entire Iowa City area Scout council were represented in the group. Wilton Johnson, Lone Tree, Riverside, West Liberty, Tipton and West Branch joining with the local boys, in addition to the Sea Scouts and Lone Scouts of Iowa City.

Issue Four Licenses Here Over Week-end

Four marriage licenses were issued by the county clerk over the week-end. The names of one couple are forbidden publication. The other three couples are as follows: Edward Straus, 21 years old, of Cedar Rapids, and Mabel Miller, 19 years old, of Cedar Rapids; William M. Krotz, 28 years old, of Iowa City, and Martha Bettag, 25 years old, of Louisville, Kentucky; and Harold J. Christen, 21 years old, of Roscoe, South Dakota, and Dorothy E. Taylor, 20 years old, of Ipswich, South Dakota.

Anxious Voters Wait for Places at Polls Regardless of Closing Time

Voting facilities in the fifth ward proved hopelessly inadequate yesterday afternoon and evening. From 4:30 p. m. there was a steady stream of voters of all legal ages and both sexes waiting to get inside the office of the Shrader Drug company where the election was held. In the evening several children were mingled with the throng, shivering in the wind, waiting for their turn to climb the cement steps and get inside the building where it was warmer.

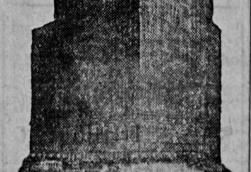

"Mothers in the fifth ward don't take much stock in Wiggam lectures on birth control, anyhow," said a man with gray hair parted in the middle and an aristocratic Vandyke, white beard. "Such lectures are enjoyed by communities where there is one child to three families."

"The fifth ward ought to be divided. It has been this way since we first began to vote here," said a man wearing a taxi cap. "He hadn't been home to supper," he said and was hungry.

The hands of the cracked-faced clock moved to the inevitable hour of 7. But for once the hour wasn't inevitable. "What's the 7 o'clock closing hour between friends," said a wide-faced man with a smile as he reached up and put the hands of the clock back ten minutes.

"That's how they do it in congress," he remarked. Again the hands moved to 7, to 7:15, to 7:30, but no further attention was paid to the clock. The voters were still outside, and the air grew colder.

It was 8:45 when all had voted. But no one seemed to care.

Merchants to Close Places of Business Saturday for Game

Merchant's Bureau Favors Half Holiday for Homecoming; 100 Signs to Decorate

Merchants will close their places of business Saturday from 1:00 p. m. until after the game. They will also be closed until noon on Armistice Day. This was decided at the meeting of the Merchant's Bureau Monday evening, where Mr. Krueger, Lee K. Breece, and E. M. Dewey acted as hosts.

R. H. White was elected president and T. Dell Kelley, vice-president, at this meeting. One hundred have already signed to decorate their store fronts for homecoming. Some of them are already putting up the colors of the home and visiting teams. Old gold, black and maroon streamers will be run from the stores to meet those of the street decorations which will be put up on nine blocks by the Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Mills Will Preside at Iowa Speech Meeting

Mrs. Alice MacLeod Mills, of the department of speech, will preside over the conferences of Iowa teachers of speech to be held at the meeting of the Iowa State Teachers' association in Des Moines, Nov. 4 and 5.

Prof. C. H. Woolbert will address the delegates on speech problems in high school. "First Aid to Correct Utterance," will be discussed at this conference by Sarah T. Borrow, associate professor in speech. Prof. A. Craig Baird, as chairman of the committee on a syllabus of speech training, and Mrs. Mills, as chairman of the committee on declamatory contests, will take active parts in the program.

Mrs. Mills said that so much interest was evinced last year at the conferences, that the program for this year has been enlarged to meet the needs and problems of the speech teachers throughout Iowa.

Former Medical Professor Dead

Dr. C. Robertson Dies After Acute Attack of Appendicitis

Dr. Charles Moore Robertson, 60 years old, former member of the medical department at the University of Iowa, died at his home in Chicago, Sunday, Oct. 31, following an acute attack of appendicitis.

Dr. Robertson was born in 1865. He graduated from the college of liberal arts at the University of Iowa in 1885. He received his M. D. degree from the college of medicine in 1888, and his degree of master of science in the same year. From 1896 until 1901, Dr. Robertson was professor of otology, rhinology and laryngology at Iowa.

After his resignation from the University of Iowa, he was professor of otology and laryngology at the Illinois post graduate school, and had a private practice in Chicago, where he made his home.

Dr. Robertson was a member of the American academy of ophthalmology and otolaryngology; American laryngological, rhinological, and otological society; American otological society; Chicago laryngological society; Chicago ophthalmological society, and the American college of surgeons.

His father, Dr. W. S. Robertson, was head of the department of theory and practice at Iowa from the founding of the college of medicine in 1870 until his death in 1887. Dr. Robertson will be buried at Muscatine. The funeral services will be held today.

Two Fords Meet: Both Demolished But No Injuries

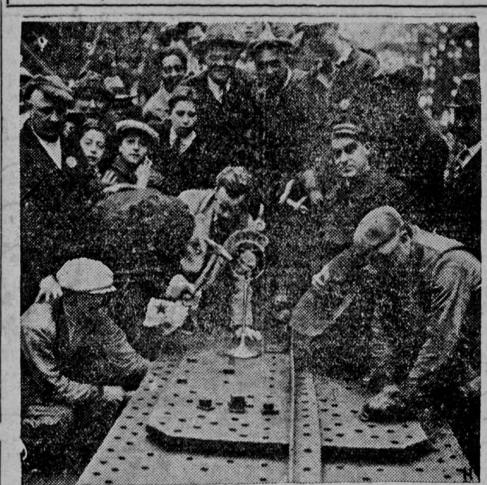

Splintered wheels, broken glass, flat tires, two badly demolished cars; none injured. In short, a collision.

They happen every day according to police reports and they happen at every hour of the day. This one, which happened early yesterday, was nothing unusual except for the fact that both cars were the same—Ford sedans of nearly the same model. They met at the intersection of Church and Gilbert streets, according to the meagre information obtainable, but no blame had been placed at a late hour last night.

The two drivers were John Helmer, nephew of Joseph Helmer, 1032 N. Summit, who is an Illinois visitor, and C. J. Smith, of Cedar Rapids. Apparently both automobiles were traveling at a normal rate of speed.

Hammill Asserts That Legislation Will Enforce Cleaning of Streams

Gov. John Hammill, in an interview with an Iowan reporter yesterday, made a statement, the substance of which was that "Iowa's streams must, and will, be cleaned up."

He asserted that the people and industries of the state would require not only education but legislation strictly enforced to accomplish this. "And we are going to have that legislation," the governor affirmed. "Though at present, there is no law drawn up, a number of legislators are at work and the reports that these men make will be ready for the public in a very short time."

The question was asked as to whether legislation restricting cities and industries from dumping their sewage waste in rivers would seriously curb manufacturing activities.

"We can't allow it to interfere with industries in the state," Governor Hammill answered. "We must work along a line of cooperation so that neither the industry nor the city will be handicapped by any legislation which the state makes."

For a long time agitation has been working over the state, especially in the Rock creek and Lime creek regions in the direction of cleaning up those rivers. "We're going to act now!"

Governor Hammill was under the impression that the next step taken by the municipalities of the state, after sewage disposal legislation is passed, will take the form of building sewage disposal plants. Industries probably will also take this step though there will be no friction in this matter between the state government and the state's industries.

Governor Hammill was in Iowa City for only a few hours to speak before the Chamber of Commerce.

Extension Division Will Display Work

Historical Society to Exhibit Series of Publications

An exhibit by the extension division of the University of Iowa will be arranged for the State Teachers meeting in Des Moines, November 4-6, according to Dr. H. A. Greene, director of the bureau of education research.

The exhibit will be the third of its kind at the Iowa educators' meeting, and will have a new feature in the display to be made of publications of the State Historical society.

Featured in the bureau of education research section of the exhibit will be education bulletins and tests which have been published by the extension division, samples and lists of standardized education and mental tests published at the university, and samples and lists of similar tests distributed by other publishers.

A similar exhibit will be maintained by the extension division at the annual meeting of the department of Superintendents of the National Educational Association at Dallas, Texas in February.

A. N. Jorgensen and C. O. Higbee, of the bureau of education research, will have charge of the exhibit.

The publications of the State Historical society requires shelf space of thirty feet, and according to Bruce E. Mahan, associate editor of the society, covers the whole field of history.

The publications are to be grouped in the following series: "The Quarterly," now published under the name, "Iowa Journal of History and Politics," "The Monthly," known as the "Palimpsest," the "Public Archives," the Iowa Biographical Series," the "Iowa Economic History Series," the "Iowa Social History Series," the "Iowa and War Series," the "Iowa Chronicles of the World War," and forty-three volumes of miscellaneous subjects.

The display of the State Historical society will be in the charge of Bruce E. Mahan, and Dr. D. W. Knepper, graduate student in the department of political science.

Advise Students to Buy Iowa Licenses at Once

An official warning was issued yesterday from local police authorities to the effect that all students from out of the state, who are driving automobiles but have not obtained their Iowa licenses, must procure them at once.

According to authorities, there seems to be a slight misunderstanding in this matter. Many students are under the impression that they are given ninety days in which to get these licenses. This is not so, the ninety day law applies to visitors not to students.

Eleven Miles of Pavement on Road 32 Open to Travel

Unfinished Work Includes Seven Miles Between Tiffin and Johnson County Line

Homecoming alumni will welcome the news that eleven miles of pavement on U. S. road No. 32, formerly known as Iowa primary road No. 7, the Whiteway, was opened to traffic by the county engineers yesterday.

There remains only seven miles of dirt road between Iowa City and the west county line, including a 4-mile detour. The pavement extends from Coralville west through Tiffin to within 2 miles of Oxford.

The work is being done by the Wright Construction company, of Des Moines, and the three miles of unpaved road is rapidly nearing completion, as the work has been favored by the good weather of the past few weeks.
