Iowa and Wisconsin Take Final Drills Before Game

MADISON, Nov. 12 (AP)—Iowa and Wisconsin shared camp in Randall stadium today as the two teams ended practice sessions for their Western conference clash tomorrow. Iowa went through a short drill including signal practice and kicking, while the Wisconsin team followed with a similar program.

Reports that "Cowboy" Kutsch would not be in the lineup were discounted by Hawkeye coaches.

27 to 2 victory over Indiana a few weeks ago and a defeat cannot sink them into the unfeeling depths Iowa will plunge if defeat is its lot today.

Cowboy Kutsch, Old Gold gridiron ranger who was so rudely unhorsed by the Gophers seven days ago, may or may not throw the saddle on his steed this afternoon. The man handling him received in the last roundup left him with a pulled tendon in his leg which will at least hinder his play, if it does not keep him out of the game altogether.

Strong Badger Line

The Badgers have displayed a powerful forward wall which has kept the opposition at bay all season. Minnesota, with her powerful line plungers was able to puncture it for a bare 16 to 10 victory, while the Wolverines used an aerial attack to surmount the Cardinal line.

Purdue, with its set of flashy backs, was unable to score against the Badgers and earned a scoreless tie.

But Iowa has recovered from the crushing blow received last week and is ready for more today. A rousing pep meeting Thursday assured the Hawkeye gridders of the moral support of the school and fans are hoping for a comeback rivaling the Michigan game of two years ago, which ended in a 9 to 2 triumph for Iowa.

Crofoot vs. Skelley

Crofoot, a Mason City, Iowa, boy, will be across the line at quarterback for the Badgers, while Skelley, who was a freshman at Wisconsin in 1923, may be calling signals for the Hawks.

The battle today will be decided on the effectiveness of Iowa's backfield against the Cardinal line. The Hawkeye forward will appear distinctly inferior to the Badger line, while in the backfield Iowa has a decided advantage. Wisconsin's net earnings from scrimmage against Minnesota was a negative thirty-four yards and, while Iowa did not roll up a very imposing total, they were at least out of the hole when the gun ended the Hawk-Gopher parade.

Picks Iowa to Win

The Hawks have been going strong in practice all week and, if the cowboy drags out the saddle and the rest of the boys get into action, things may begin to happen for a change. "Eleven men in every play" will be the motto to urge them on to greater football.

Iowa was admittedly in a slump last week against Minnesota and the Gophers were playing faultless football throughout the game, which helped them greatly in piling up their appreciable score. But the Hawks are expected to rally today and Iowa should be at least six points better than Wisconsin when the final gun is fired.

Minnesota Bank Closes Following Mystery Shooting

DETROIT LAKES, Minn., Nov. 12.—Mysterious shooting of two bankers in the Citizens State Bank of Callaway, Minn., was followed today by the closing of that bank and the Security state bank here because of depleted reserves.

Physicians said another twenty-four hours must elapse before they will permit authorities to question W. J. Norby, stockholder in the Callaway bank and Frank Murphy, its cashier, found suffering from bullet wounds in the bank Tuesday.

H. S. Erickson, president of the Callaway bank also is cashier of the Security bank here and both institutions were closed after runs had caused withdrawals impeding their resources, the bank's officials said.

The Security bank here had deposits of $750,000 and the Callaway bank had $1,000,000 in deposits.

The closing of the First National bank here Monday followed by the unexplained shooting of Norby and Murphy caused uneasiness among depositors of the Callaway bank and Security bank, it is claimed by authorities and led to the runs that forced their closing.

Proposal For Tax Rebate Gets Only Qualified Sanction

Green, Bacharach Wish to Use Treasury Surplus to Reduce Large Public Debt

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The administration's proposal for a rebate on 1926 taxes to be paid next year, received only qualified approval from leading Republicans of the House ways and means committee, where tax legislation must originate.

Both Chairman Green and Representative Bacharach, Republicans, New Jersey, indicated in formal statements their personal preference that the $250,000,000 treasury surplus be used to reduce the public debt, thus indirectly reducing the total of the tax burden.

"I have always considered that the time to pay off the public debt was when we were prosperous and that some opportunity should be given for the reduction of taxes when business is depressed," Representative Green said.

"The plan of making a reduction in the payments of next year, either on the personal income tax or that of corporations, is workable, but if adopted, there will be much conflict as to how a reduction is to be applied.

"I do not believe that a reduction of personal income taxes by a uniform percentage for all taxpayers can be made satisfactorily. While it has been done before, and the original proposal was my own, the circumstances now are very different both as to the small taxpayer and those having the largest incomes."

Former Hall Maid Repeats Telephone Dialogue in Trial

Mrs. Riehl's Testimony Conflicts with Statements Made Four Years Ago on Stand

[By The Associated Press] SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 12.—A telephone conversation between the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, who were slain in a double murder four years ago, was described today in the trial of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, the minister's widow, and her brothers Willie and Henry Stevens.

The testimony was given by Louise Geist Riehl, a former maid in the Hall household.

Mrs. Riehl told of answering a ring of the telephone in the late afternoon of Sept. 14, 1922. The murders were committed that night. The former maid said she recognized the voice of Mrs. Mills inquiring for Mr. Hall.

Mrs. Hall answers call. Mrs. Hall, said the witness, also started to answer the call at another telephone on the floor below but replaced the receiver and walked away when informed that the call was for Mr. Hall.

The state submitted that at a grand jury investigation, in 1922, the witness had said that she did not know whether Mrs. Hall heard the conversation.

The one-sided dialogue as repeated today quoted Mr. Hall as saying: "Yes, yes, yes. That's too bad. I was going to the church a little later. Can't we make an arrangement for about a quarter to eight?"

Mrs. Riehl said that the minister later went out with the explanation to Mrs. Hall that he was going to "see about Mrs. Mills' hospital bill," and that he would not be late returning.

Conflicting Testimony

During the examination as to possible conflict between her testimony in 1922 and that of today, Mrs. Riehl lost the calm assurance she had during her stay on the stand. She pounded her gloved hands against the side of the witness box.

She said that when she retired between 9:30 and 10 o'clock the night of Sept. 14, she left Mrs. Hall playing solitaire in the library. Early next morning she said that she saw Willie Stevens in the dining room, and that when she asked the reason for his unusually early arrival he replied:

"I would rather not tell you. I would rather Mrs. Hall told you. Something terrible has happened. Mr. Hall has not come home all night."

She quoted Mrs. Hall as saying that night, in bidding her brother, Willie Stevens, good night, that "I thought he would come last night, but he won't come tonight. I know he must be dead or he would have communicated with us."

Bandits Rob Banks in Indiana Town and Philadelphia

LA PORTE, Ind., Nov. 12 (AP)—Five young men quietly robbed the People's Trust and Savings bank of La Porte of $40,000 in cash and $100,000 in negotiable securities, today and raged out of town in an automobile and tonight no trace of them had been found.

Ten employees and five customers were in the bank shortly before noon when the men, unmasked and well dressed drove to the bank and dashed in. Only one shot was fired, and that was sent into the ceiling from a sawed-off shot gun apparently in an effort to intimidate.

Bank employees and customers were forced to lie upon the floor while the cash from the tellers' cage was scooped up.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12 (AP)—Five masked men tonight held up and robbed two messengers of the Belmont Trust Company in West Philadelphia of approximately $35,000 as they were about to enter the door of the bank.

Kansas City Trust Company is Closed

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Federal Trust Company of Kansas City, with deposits of about $2,000,000, was closed today by the Board of government who voted to place the institution in the hands of the State Finance Commissioner. A heavy run by depositors in the last two weeks caused the move. P. E. Laughlin, president, declared.

He said the board believed the depositors are amply protected.

Nagle Loses Race to S. D. Whiting in Official Recount

May Petition General Assembly to Check County Vote

Samuel D. Whiting, winner in the election for state representative by one vote, according to a check of the election record books, will receive official notice of his election this morning according to a statement made to the Daily Iowan over long distance telephone by George E. Ranshaw, North Liberty, chairman of the Johnson county board of supervisors, who had charge of the recount.

Mr. Ranshaw stated that the canvass by the board was only a count of the votes as registered in the election judges books and not a count of the original ballots.

Lee Nagle, republican candidate for the state legislature, stated last night to a Daily Iowan reporter that although he had as yet formed no definite opinion, he believed that he would insist upon a recount of the ballots cast in the recent election for state representative.

He stated that he had not yet received an official confirmation of the report of the Johnson county board of supervisors that Samuel D. Whiting, democratic candidate was the winner by one vote of the race for legislature.

Mr. Nagle stated that he believed in the recent recheck of the election judges record books by the board of supervisors, but that he wants an actual recount of the ballots, which have never been re-opened since cast at the election by the voters.

Chance for Mistakes

The canvass by the county board has only been a recheck of the books kept by the various judges of the election and allows a chance for mistakes.

The votes themselves would be counted in the state legislature Monday, when it convenes the first Monday in January.

According to the official canvass completed yesterday morning by the board of supervisors, Whiting received 4,202 votes in the election-day race for state representative, and Nagle received 4,201.

The fourth ward of the city brought the reduction of 50 votes to Nagle from his original count at the county auditor's office.

Recount Changes Totals

In the preliminary count Whiting had 508 votes in the fourth ward and Nagle 702. Upon recount Nagle's total remained the same while Whiting gained to 848.

Whiting gained to 848. He gained 2 votes over Whiting on the check of votes cast in Hardin township. In Penn township, Nagle lost 5. In the fourth ward, the big mistake in the original count occurred, the number 508 was on the outside of the sealed envelope containing the votes but when the judges election books were canvassed, it was found that according to them the number was 458.

Nagle Loses Race

If Mr. Nagle desires to contest the election he will be required to file notice within 20 days with the state general assembly and the votes will be recounted by a committee and recommendations made to the entire assembly which has the power to either adopt or reject the committee's findings or to recount the votes themselves.

Other changes in the original election results were slight as a result of the recount. The deadlock in Johnson county between Letts and Gallagher, candidates for Congress, was ended when the recount showed a reduction of 20 votes in Fremont township for Gallagher, although he added 9 in Cedar and Graham and 4 in Hardin. Letts gained 1 in Clear Creek and 2 in Hardin.

Judge Ralph Otto, although unopposed in the election, lost 100 votes in the second ward but the change had no effect. County Attorney Edward L. O'Connor lost 18 votes in Penn township and gained 3 in Hardin. C. B. Russell, winner in the county attorney race, gained 3 votes in Hardin, over the original count.

DES MOINES, Nov. 12 — Charles A. Morgan, Des Moines today was acquitted by a district court jury, of manslaughter in connection with the sudden death of his wife last June. The prosecution contended that Morgan struck and fatally injured his wife during a quarrel, but he claimed his wife was hurt when she fell from an automobile.

Authorities Deny Des Moines Firm Use of U. S. Mails

Base Order Upon Alleged False Statements; Action Revealed $10,295 Suit Pending

[By The Associated Press] DES MOINES, Nov. 12.—Use of the mails by the Trade Extension Service Inc., of Des Moines, was denied the concern today by the post office department, which based the order upon alleged false statements concerning the relations of the organization with manufacturers it claimed to represent.

News of the department's action revealed that a suit for $10,295 is pending against the extension service and that persons in half a dozen or more mid-western states are interested in its operations.

The concern is alleged to have sold "unit contracts" to persons willing to become associated with a plan to sell the products of certain manufacturers at reduced price.

The department order accuses the firm of obtaining money through the sale of false postpaid stamps.

Officers of the concern are John C. Hubbert, president, Paul S. Talbot, secretary, and C. S. Eckert, traveling representative. They could not be reached for statements tonight.

The suit against the company was filed by five men of Lancaster county, Neb., who seek to recover $3,200 they claim to have paid for "unit contracts" covering 59 counties in which they are to have the exclusive right to represent the service.

The plaintiffs are Joseph B. Gronquist, Paul B. Karnes, Warren R. Oliver, Fred D. Brittle, and Milton E. Smith.

Kellogg Discusses Mexican Problem

Ambassador Sheffield Waits Return of The President

[By The Associated Press] WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Reappearance of Ambassador Sheffield in Washington today for conference with President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg served to bring the Mexican situation sharply to the fore.

Despite the bleak silence of the state department as to matters under discussion there can be no question that unusual importance is attached to these conversations.

Mr. Sheffield was with Secretary Kellogg for a considerable time today. Presumably he will find opportunity for a talk with the president since he is staying at the White House.

He is preparing to return to Mexico City and there are indications that aspects of the situation he will face there will have to do with Mexican oil land laws.

Seek Bandits for Killing Night Watch in Bank Robbery

MINOT, N. D., Nov. 12 — Authorities in northwest North Dakota tonight sought three bandits who shot and killed Cashier H. N. Peterson in a fruitless hold-up of the citizen's state bank of Wheelock, today.

Just what occurred in the bank is a matter of conjecture. Peterson, who was 45 years old, was alone at the time. He was found by a customer, shot twice in the head. He died soon after.

Bank officials reported $100 in silver on the bank counter had not been touched. They believe Peterson was shot when he refused to open a compartment of the vault containing $3,000 in currency.

Illinois Gangsters Use Aerial Bombs in Latest Outbreak

Unidentified Aviator Fails in Attack on Roadhouse

[By The Associated Press] MARION, Ill., Nov. 12.—The airplane and aerial bomb today were added to armored cars, machine guns, and other novel weapons used in the southern Illinois gang warfare between the rival Shelton and Birger local factions, flying low over "Shady Rest," a road house operated by Charles Birger, gang leader, ten miles east of Marion, an unidentified aviator dropped a bomb which failed to explode.

Seven or eight gangsters then ran out of the place and began firing at the plane with rifles and machine guns as it circled around again and dropped two more bombs. One was a dud. The other exploded in the woods 100 yards from the road house.

The aviator did not find his mark. The gunfire flew away rapidly to the north. The attacking plane bore no marks of identification and the pilot could not be seen clearly from the ground. One witness said he believed a second man was in the cockpit.

No damage was done, but Birger, who was at his home at Harrisburg at the time, was wrought up over the new method of waging war against him.

Birger to Get Airplane

"There'll be something popping off here now," he told a newspaper correspondent. "They can't try that stuff on me. I'll get an airplane if I can, and I'll use it, too."

The air raid apparently was in reply to an early morning visit by alleged Birger gangsters at West City, 20 miles north of here where they poured a heavy machine gun and rifle fire into two houses frequented by the Sheltonites.

One of the houses is occupied by Gus Adams, brother of the 300 pound mayor of the town, Joe Adams and the other is the home of Mrs. Mary Loughran, an elderly widow.

Both houses have been described by Birger as Shelton hangouts and Mayor Adams, who lives nearby, had admitted that he some time ago enlisted the Shelton gang to protect himself from the Birger gang, who he declared, had threatened his life.

Gang Leaders Arrested

Shortly after the shooting, Carl and Bernie Shelton, gang leaders, Benton by six post office inspectors, assisted by the Sheriff of Franklin county, a deputy Sheriff and a deputy United States Marshall.

Their arrest disclosed that they and another man, whose name is withheld, had been indicted by a federal grand jury at Springfield, Ill., last Tuesday for alleged complicity in the $15,000 robbery of a 64 year old post office messenger at Collinsville, Ill., a suburb of East St. Louis, on January 27, 1925.

The Shelton gang, who have openly charged they committed the Collinsville robbery. Their bonds have been set at $60,000. They were taken by train to East St. Louis, where an order was issued for their removal to Springfield.

Lunch Club Will Hear Poet Today

Marjorie A. Seiffert, Well Known Writer, Will Speak

The Saturday lunch club will meet at the Iowa Memorial Union today at twelve o'clock instead of at Youde's Inn where the meetings are usually held. Marjorie Allen Seiffert, writer, will be the speaker.

According to Harriet Monroe, editor of Poetry magazine, Mrs. Seiffert is one of the most outstanding modern writers.

Her volume "A Woman of Thirty," which contains most of her poems, and which is opened by her famous morality play, "The Old Woman," was published in 1919 by Alfred A. Knopf.

Before writing verse, Mrs. Seiffert was interested in music and had composed several pieces, which she felt were good enough to warrant a further training in that line. Her marriage, however, interfered with her career and as an expression of her emotions she began to write poetry. Her earliest printed poem was "Portrait of a Lady in Bed," and it appeared in Ready's Mirror in 1916.

Seventy Year Old Stockman in Failing Health Instantly Kills His Neighbor

[By The Associated Press] NIOBRARA, Neb., Nov. 12.—Following a few heated words that were believed to have been the result of a neighborhood quarrel of long standing, Ray Titus, 70 years old, shot and killed A. Merritt, sixty years old, livestock dealer of this city with a shot gun here this evening.

The killing occurred in front of Titus' home on the south edge of town as Merritt, in company with Frank Ulrich, also a stockman, was riding past the house.

Titus was said by Ulrich to have stepped out on his porch and to have halted the two stockmen, who had just driven a "drove" of hogs down the street. He had the shotgun in his hand and spoke heatedly to both men Ulrich stated.

Both Merritt and Ulrich attempted to calm the aged man, Ulrich declared, but he persisted in his angry speech. When Merritt was only a few feet from him on horse back, Titus pulled the trigger of the shot gun and killed Merritt instantly.

Titus has been arrested and is being held in jail here, but no charges had been filed against him early this evening. The aged man has been in failing health for some time but was seen on the streets this afternoon apparently in good spirits.

The dead man is the father of Glen Merritt, register of deeds of Knox county, and has been a resident and successful stockman of this section for many years.

Board of Trade Member Quashes Political "Guff"

J. F. Delaney, Chicago Broker, Advises Iowa Farmers to Ship Grain There

[By The Associated Press] CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Reports that the Iowa Agricultural and Industrial commission would recommend that shippers divert their grain from the Chicago market, were characterized as "political bosh" here tonight by leaders in the grain trade.

J. Frank Delaney of the Chicago Board of Trade, in a statement, said "the Iowa politicians had deliberately started out to injure the Iowa farmer," and they could not have done a better job.

"The action of corn in the past season is evidence enough," Delaney said. "Those Iowans who live on political votes from membership assessments have week after week preached to the world that there is so much corn that corn has no value."

As a result the investment and speculative interests that aid immensely in carrying the surplus and keeping prices at sound, healthy levels were literally driven from the market by the calamity howls of the Iowa politicians.

"Of course the unsoundness of the commission's suggestion of diverting grain from Chicago, and its other bizarre claims, are apparent to the particular grain man. The result would simply be additional eight for the farmer to pay, for the grain would eventually reach Chicago, if in a roundabout way. The four hundred million bushels of grain received annually will not be reduced by the commission's suggestion."

State Men Admit Working on Case

A. E. Nugent and G. W. Atkins, state agents from Des Moines, yesterday admitted that they had been working on the case of Iowa City's chief of police for some time.

"We have been here off and on," declared Mr. Nugent, "since October 10, working on information we had received while at Des Moines."

Further than that, however, the agents would divulge nothing. At the time they were interviewed they were going over police records at the station.

Probe Finished Says City Attorney

Reputing rumors that the remainder of the police force would be "kicked off" City Attorney W. R. Hart in a statement yesterday said: "Investigation into all probabilities, stop here. There is no need for any further. Most of the other men on the force do not drink so far as I know."

According to the city attorney the chief is not "off the force" for good as Mayor Carroll has absolute power of appointments and the deposed head could be reinstated. However, Hart added, it is very improbable that he will regain his former position.

Papers Drawn Up Nov. 8

The papers for the chief's dismissal were drawn up and signed on Nov. 8, but action was not taken until yesterday because of humanitarian sentiments, Hart said. Burger was in the hospital at the time pending an operation.

Burger was the best chief of police Iowa City has had in the past twenty-three years, according to Hart, who believes that at present the force is running as well as it ever has.

Hart Personally Dialed Step

The city attorney stated that personally, he disliked to take this step, but he realized that for the good of the community it must be done. He added that Burger and his family are very well respected and liked by their many friends in the city and vicinity.

Mayor Carroll acted upon the advice of the city attorney, who, motivated by his conscience and sense of duty, decided it was the thing to do, Mr. Hart said.

Eight Years Ago Femininity Ruled Iowa's Campus With Iron Hand

Suppose the men were all transported far beyond the northern sea. Then picture the campus in a reign of femininity. Eight years ago, during the great world war, women ruled the campus. Besides telling the men what color of ties to wear, or what brand of cigarettes to smoke, they dictated campus finances, business matters, and politics. Mrs. Nellie S. Airner, dean of women during the war period, tells interesting episodes about her hoard of feminine charges.

Women Don Male Attire

Then, first, a woman strutted across the stage in masculine attire. It was the custom to have every university organization put on a stunt, in the natural science auditorium, on All People's day. Three prizes were offered for the best productions. But how can anything be good in the absence of a man? So a modest young woman from one of the literary societies donned a dress-suit and stepped out into the masculine role.

Men Were Few

Only a few timid male creatures slipped through the halls of liberal arts, for all men over eighteen had been called into military service. The men were taken to separate quarters to drill under a military regime. They came to classes ushered in by a stern army officer, rather than with a fair co-ed clinging to an arm. But such rigid control is bound to disrupt the social life of any man. Under the stress of circumstances some of the men, escaped one afternoon and entered the liberal arts drawing room, where they began to dance with the girls.

Joe Cannon Dies Following Fiery Career in Congress

Ninety Year Old Warrior Closes Life in Illinois Home; Ill for Several Months

[By The Associated Press]
 DANVILLE, Ill., Nov. 12.—The fiery spirit of Joseph Gurney Cannon, dimmed to an ember by the weight of ninety years, was quenched today by death.

In the home from which he went to congress fifty-three years ago and amid walls laden with the trophies of his public life, the patriarch died at high noon, while in a deep sleep. Weakening of the heart muscles caused his death, but the general deprivations of old age had warned his family several months ago that the end was near.

He told comrades in the national house, when he quit his halls in 1922, that he was going home to die, home to the rambling brown brick mansion which he built sixty-five years ago for the bride who preceded him to the grave.

Memory Faded
 His mind failed with his body and he could recall but dimly, after his ninetieth birthday last May, the scenes with which his long congressional service was connected. Not wanting memory, however, could keep him inactive and his last public act, four months ago, was to turn the sod for a new Methodist church.

Make Funeral Plans
 Plans for the funeral were incomplete tonight, pending the arrival from San Francisco and Washington of two granddaughters, Mrs. Wyn. Houghling and Mrs. Dorsey Richardson. Cannon's two daughters, Mrs. Mabel Lesure and Miss Helen Cannon, were with their father when he died.

Funeral services will be held here and interment will be made in the Danville cemetery. It is believed that Tuesday may be selected for the last rites.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon was born in a little Quaker settlement near Guilford, North Carolina, May 7, 1836. Early in his youth he became the main support of his family, the father having been drowned in the Washash river in Indiana where the Cannons had moved when Joe was but four years old. Near Terre Haute Mr. Cannon began work in a country store. He also began to read law in the office of a friend during his spare time.

Attended Law School
 A few years later "Uncle Joe" attended the Cincinnati Law school, where he worked part of his way through and paid the rest after he had graduated.

After finishing law school, he began practicing in Indiana, but soon moved to Tuscola, Illinois, where he opened another law office. In 1860 he ran for state's attorney, but was defeated. The next year the legislature created a new judicial district, and he ran again, and was elected, serving for eight years.

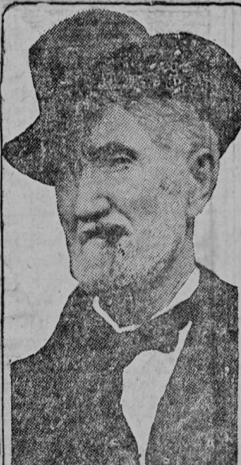

He first took his seat in congress in 1873 and immediately earned his name as a "fire-eating politician." From that time until his retirement in 1922, he was never absent from his chair in congress except twice when he was defeated at the polls on account of the deluge that fell on his party.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon was at the peak of his power in 1903 as leader of the house of representatives and when asked by his party to run as vice president on the republican

Pi Beta Phi Calls Police When Night Visitor Threatens Privacy

Time: 11 p.m. Thursday
 Place: Pi Beta Phi house
 Setting: a dark night

Characters: The Pi Beta Phi chapter, Iowa City police, a mysterious character and a "coltish boy."

The scene opens with three pledges flying down the stairs of the Pi Phi house, white with excitement. Thinking they have heard the mysterious character scuffling around in the back yard and making attempts to open windows, they have awakened the chapter in their terror.

The whole group padded down stairs in nightgowns and pajamas and aroused their house mother. Again the noises came with alarming distinctness and they were sure that a "Peeping Tom" was outside.

But Pi Phis don't allow "Peeping Toms" around their sorority house so they immediately notified the Iowa City police. All the doors and windows were securely locked and the flood light in the back yard turned on and—there he was!

Three girls were sure that they saw him dart away around the corner. There was nothing they could do but quiver with excitement and wait for the officers.

One girl pulled a shade down and it flew up with a crack like a pistol shot. She shrank back in an agony of terror.

By this time the police had arrived and were scouting around the house to locate the intruder who no success.

Just when the police were in the back yard and the chapter was huddled in the doorway a boy-friend escorted a journalistic sister up the front walk. He stuttered a hurried "Good night" in the face of the inquiring household and scampered down the terrace.

There he faced a husky policeman who had a flashlight in one hand, and the other in his pocket ready for action. Again he stuttered and took a hurried leave.

The police didn't find the "Peeping Tom" and the Pi Phi crept back into bed to exchange in stage whispers accounts of their excitement.

"At Forty" the housewife in some sections of Europe wears a black bonnet to signify the end of her youth. Heavy tasks, indoors and out, have made her old—at forty.

Of all the uses of electricity in America, the most important are those which release the woman from physical drudgery. Electricity carries water, washes clothes, clean carpets, cooks the family's food—better and quicker than could be done by hand.

Men and women who have had the benefit of college training and college life have learned to place the proper value upon rest and recreation. They appreciate the relief afforded by electricity.

Upon great generators which send out current to light the homes and carry the burdens of millions, you will find the G-E monogram. Upon industrial motors, on electric railway trains—wherever quality and un-failing performance are first essentials—the G-E monogram will be found.

A series of G-E advertisements showing what electricity is doing in many fields will be sent on request. Ask for booklet GEK-1.

Massing Iowa's Forces

SOMEbody said that trying to cheer at an Iowa football game was like trying to make love successfully with an overcoat on. The right two people just don't get close enough together. In the first case there is too much insulation of students and in the second case there is too much insulation of students.

The men and women of Iowa are behind their school, and they will do a lot of pushing if they are given an opportunity. However, they do not feel like going to the game and, seated in a sea of strangers, putting on a one-man vaudeville act every time the cheer leader calls for a "deaf and dumb."

Out of the 25,000 so-called fans there are perhaps, at the most, 5,000 students. Of the remaining 20,000, the majority come to cheer or jeer according to the throw of the dice. They have the same "thumbs up" or "thumbs down" attitude that the old Romans carried with them to the arena. One could not expect those people to stand, and with heads uncovered, sing "Old Gold" after Minnesota had just completed walloping Iowa 41-0.

However, the students would do just that thing if they were favorably situated to do so. After all, school spirit is a modified and sublimated form of mob spirit. You scatter the mob and the spirit is lost. You scatter the students at a football game and the school spirit is lost. In union there lies strength. For a commendable school spirit one must have a mob closely packed with an adept leader to make them do the right thing. With that arrangement, the result of the game will be a minor point.

Perhaps it is impossible to seat the students in the way that it would be best to seat them. Perhaps it would be impractical to do it, even if possible. Perhaps it would be better to go without a school spirit rather than go to so much trouble to keep it alive.

The whole question seems to hinge about the purpose of having a football game. Is it an advertising scheme for the university? Is it a money-making scheme to erect a new stadium, or is it a contest designed to produce school loyalty and mutual friendships?

If the latter purpose is the real reason for the game, then the students should be given first choice of seats, placed in a group, and warned to supply themselves with an ample supply of soothing tablets for sore throats.

If either of the former reasons are the real ones, then there is no need for a school spirit. Let the students go as spectators to speculate on the outcome and to leave when the game grows boring or the wind shifts the weather grows colder.

It is too late to do anything definite this year, but it is never too early to plan. As hopes for a new stadium mature there should be woven into the very dream structure of the thing the basic idea that college football games are for the colleges that play. Plans should be made to place the warm blood, the life blood, of the university in a section near its team. Then an "overcoat" will be placed about the entire student body that will keep in the heat of a new school spirit.

Introspection for America

THE United States is not at all prone to morbid introspection. In fact, we have been accused of hustling so much about our daily business that we do not think at all. But on the whole, our condition is healthy, and this criticism is unjust.

There are times, however, in the life of a nation as in that of an individual, when a little honest introspection is necessary.

Just what, honestly, is the American attitude about the peace? What are her motives and reasons for taking that attitude, and what must be its outcome? These are important questions which Americans—especially American students—should face squarely.

Is it not true that America has, figuratively, pulled aside her skirts to protect them from contamination with European politics, and from her safe, comfortable position, has said, "Thank God I am not as other nations." We are prosperous and safe, so we refuse to trouble ourselves with the sick, unhappy European countries—especially considering the fact that we are not responsible for their ill health.

This is not the reason we give for our independent attitude, of course. Laziness and indifference, the most common enemies of all advance, are seldom named in any case.

Instead we cry, "Human nature! Have you forgotten that it is human nature to fight?" No one can forget this particular part of human nature. The story of the Irishman who came racing, coatless, down the street to where an argument was growing violent and asked, "Is this a private fight or can anyone join?" is so true it is funny.

But law and order are the common condition of most countries. There are plenty of places for expressing our pugilistic instincts without falling back on murder. General education is spreading through the world, and with that spread is following democracy. A United World today is no greater a venture than a United States of 1776; but today we lack the faith of the great leaders of the Revolution.

Until the world is organized on a "respect for others" basis, civilization will be continually delayed. And for America to take an active, leading part in that delay is astonishing. Yet America is taking just that part. To judge the League of Nations a failure is thoroughly unjust, because it has functioned with the handicap of American indifference.

European politics are a dirty mess—no one can deny it. But courage and faith and intelligent assistance are what they need. Can the United States, after serious and honest introspection, do anything less than offer her aid, body and soul?

The Desecrators

AN armed guard has been placed at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National cemetery. At first thought this may seem to be an empty military formality. But it is more. It became necessary to guard the tomb from what virtually amounted to desecration by irreverent and unthinking tourists.

The tomb of the Unknown Soldier became a mere object of tourist curiosity; merely one more thing to "do" in Washington. Sightseeing "bus lines" routed their cars by the tomb; unthinking girls peered perkily upon it to have their pictures taken; and, unbelievable as it may seem, it is said that a picnic lunch was once spread upon its marble slab.

The tomb was intended as a national shrine, commemorating the supreme sacrifices made by many of our soldiers in the World War. But aside from all considerations of patriotism, a decent respect for the unknown lad whose body lies within, should be sufficient to guard his last resting place from such fickle disregard of the first principles of reverence for the dead.

What is it that comes over so many when they are traveling which changes them from normally right-minded, decent people, into giddy unthinking desecrators, devoid of all sense of reverence or respect? They seem unable to distinguish between a tomb or shrine and Coney Island's gyrating amusement devices. They are like children playing hockey from school.

Boys will be boys, and by the same sign, tourists will be bores.

Sins of Omission

IN part of the Episcopal service is a confession which admits that the sin of leaving "undone those things we ought to have done," is as great as having "done those things which we ought not to have done."

At the very end of a newspaper report of the recent investigation of the methods of punishment at Mitchellville, was the statement of three members of the state board of control that, though they had been on the board a number of years, they had never inquired what corrective methods were being used.

It may be granted that these men have the surveillance of a great many public institutions, that there are numberless details connected with each one, and that it would be impossible for them to have personal knowledge of everything which goes on at each place. But surely the disciplinary methods are as important as the sanitary conditions. Surely, whether this enforced confinement by the state will have a beneficial effect upon its unwilling guests or distinctly the opposite, is as important as the quality of the food they put into their stomachs.

Being a member of the state board of control is a big job. If there is too much work in connection with it for the number of men who hold that position, its personnel should be increased—or men chosen who are competent enough to supervise its many branches efficiently and not leave undone those things which they ought to do.

Of course you can get married on $2,000 a year. You also can get married on seven dollars if the license only costs two and the minister only charges you five.

The success of beauty shows depends upon what amount of beauty shows.

A small town is where they'll vulcanize a tube for 50 cents and thank you for your patronage.

Poems That Live

Long After

Dust-like and lovely was the way she came,
Into my heart, like evening over the earth,
Like evening into a room—with candle-flame,
Shadow and hush and all that a dream is worth.

There was a sense of twilight at the door,
Poised at the threshold, and the entering in
Of one who changed the house forever—
How should it be, again, what it had been?

Dust-like and lovely was the way she went,
Out of the door, a lonely and sorrowful spell,
And not the stars knew what her going meant,
And not my heart that never has learned to tell.

If this be memory coming late to flower,
Or dreams of dreams in this wide, haunted hour.

New York Today

By J. VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (EFS)—Why is a tea room? They're terribly depressing places. I've never yet encountered one that wasn't overlaid with the mortified, institutional atmosphere of a poor farm.

Most of the Hyson Houses in the Capital of the Commonwealth are conducted by sweet-voiced, wide-eyed, hungry-looking gentlemen afflicted with incipient hernia of the bank roll.

Something goes wrong with the family finances—probably Dad sneaks in on the wrong side of the market—and Dotted stows her college degree in the bottom of the trunk, quite collecting rejection slips from the Atlantic Monthly, draws her little wad of dough from the bank, borrows the balance from an affluent classmate, leases the ground floor of an old brown stone mansion, invests in an aggregation of comic opera tables and chairs, a waffle iron, some Gilbert and Sullivan china, a few jars of marmalade and a lavender and yellow swinging sign on which is inscribed the name of the joint: "Ye Daffydyle Tea Room."

I dropped into a dump like that one dark November afternoon. I think it was called "Willett's Waffle Iron."

Willett looked as if she had been sitting alone all day, bathed in tears. She served me some burglar-proof waffles and a cup of amber fluid that would have eaten the lining of the stomach of a copper boiler. The poor girl, through a clerical error, got the mulligan pot mixed up with the honey jar; but I made no mention of the fact. When she had served me she repaired to a little spindle-legged desk by the window, lighted a yellow candle in a Russian brass holder, sat down and made a bluff of going over her "books."

I left a dollar bill on the table and slipped out. I felt so gloomy I wished I was dead.

Next time I passed that way the "Willett's Waffle Iron" sign no longer creaked in the breeze. A To Let bill was stuck on one of the panes, through which the faint beams of the lady's yellow candle had once feebly flickered.

Mary Miles Minter, whose real name is Juliet Reilly, sailed for Italy the other day. You'd never know little Mary. She's become reticent in the four years since her retirement from the screen. In the days when she was sitting on top of the film world, her sister Maw invested the kid's dough in real estate, so that today Mary doesn't care how fat she gets. She has the comfortable well-fed look of a woman who is one thousand feet above want and who intends to remain in that position.

When newspaper men asked her if she contemplated returning to the screen she replied: "That's on the knees of the gods."
Miss Minter replied to all further questions with the one word: "Cockroach," which finally she explained by saying:
"When a person doesn't want to talk, she should use one word replying to all questions. The word I have chosen is 'cockroach.'"
With the wealth of shorter and more expressive (if less refined) syllables current in current conversation, at her command, the erstwhile fill-up queen is to be congratulated on her lady-like discrimination and winsome restraint.

With the magazine editors yipping for the services of humorists, there looms a bright and prosperous future for the blue-eyed jester who wrote the sign appearing in the window of a Broadway bank:
"Know the thrill of saying: 'MY car!'"

And beneath that line, in broad-beamed letters, appears the single word: "SAVE!"

Whenever the boys with the natty blue suits and the camel's hair caps from the automobile district feel low or depressed, they chug-chug over to Thirty-ninth street and Broadway, read that sign a couple of times and return to their gasoline-scented hair, rejuvenated and happy as kids.

Suggestion for suitable sign for bank window:
In these days, when you need twice as much as you can earn to live half as well as you'd like to—SAVE!

Economy and Extravagance

By J. VAN RAALTE

At the National Business show there was an imposing array of time-saving devices for offices. The question is, what is done with all the time that is saved by these contraptions?

Two men, in no particular hurry, were going uptown from Twenty-third street and Broadway. One was for taking the subway and the other for the more leisurely Fifth avenue bus.
"But we'll save at least 20 minutes by taking the subway," the first argued.
"Yes, but what will we do with the 20 minutes when we have saved them?" the other asked.

Women with a whole afternoon on their hands, will dodge across Fifth avenue in the heavy traffic, and then saunter along, window-shopping. The traffic direction changes every minute, but a few seconds are saved—and then never really spent.

It is a common belief among those who have never seen the great American executive in operation, that he is always under full speed, forging ahead at full speed. It's a lot of poppy-cock.

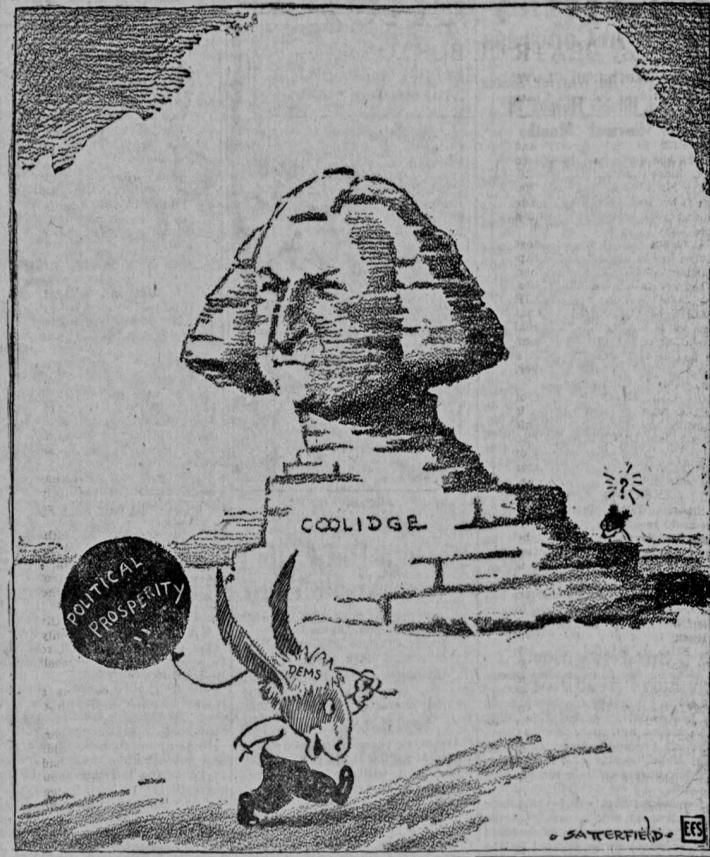

Few business men of the larger dimensions, reach their desks before 10 in the morning, and they consider that very early. By 12:30 most of them are out for lunch, which usually occupies about two hours. It is the theory that many important deals are closed at this time. The fact is that this is the period in which most of the smoking-room stories are invented and circulated, and new brands of cigars investigated.

Then on the slightest provocation the Great Executive, soon after he returns to his desk, beats it for his favorite golf club, to get in a round before dinner.

This is not an argument against, but rather for time-saving. Less work and more play for everybody is the slogan of our party.
Let's have three routing cheers for every time-saving device, but there's no reason for being hypocritical, and pretending that they are for the purpose of speeding up business. Business doesn't want to be speeded up.

CHILLS and FEVER

For a brighter, cleaner world.

Boy, that was a real pep meeting. We were at that much touted Michigan affair two years ago and it was as small beside this one as the razz demon is beside the real Iowan. We did think that physiological remarks were a little too much in evidence; but even at that we're willing and anxious to remark that our players have all the anatomical features necessary to make a real team, including as the chairman so elegantly and so continually put it, "the guts." When we arrived on the campus there was an organization now defunct known as the howling three hundred; beside the noise of last night's demonstration they would have sounded like a turnip peacefully snoring. Yours truly yelled until he had a headache and a sore throat; but those were only minor injuries compared to the woes Madison homecomers are going to suffer Saturday. There is only one thing about it to regret; and that is the fact that we are pledged to be at the station at 7:30 Sunday morning. We don't see how on earth we can do it after the celebration we are going to indulge in after our Saturday morning victory. Apparently we are destined never to be healthy, wealthy and wise.

WE WERE SOMEWHAT SURPRISED TO SEE "WHO'S WHO" APPEAR YESTERDAY WITHOUT ANSWERS FROM THE LEADING MAN; BUT THEN ON THE OTHER HAND ANYBODY AS IS ANYBODY AT IOWA KNOWS "EDDIE'S" STAND ON THINGS IN GENERAL TOO WELL FOR ANY QUESTIONNAIRE TO HAVE BEEN NECESSARY; EDDIE IS THE BOY WHO FIRST PUTS PUNCH IN THE DANCE AND THEN PUTS PUNCH IN THE DANCERS.

Frater—Say, that coat's sure a knockout. Didja get it here in town?
Soror—Yeah.
Frater—Where, if I may be so bold as to ask?
Soror—In Pledge Plunkett's room.

Some—What in hell does Dante's "Inferno" tell about?
BBody—Everything.

She—Don't you think a man clothes himself in deceit?
He—Maybe he does, but a woman sure skirts dangerous subjects.

"THIS ONE'S ON ME," SAID THE GUY WHO WAS SWATTING MOSQUITOES TO THE GOOF WHO WAS SWATTING MOSQUITOES.

"Why does Hortense make such a bad appearance in recitations?"
"Aw, she never has her mind made up."

NO PAY—NO MOVIE STRIKE!

Where east and west meet.

"NOW YOU'RE ON THE RIGHT TACK," MURMURED THE PUPILS AS THE TEACHER AROSE HASTILY FROM THE SEAT.

Bulletin—The Sultana of Maharah is contemplating a trip to the United States in the near future, so rumor says. Her husband is reported to be studying weather conditions so that he can demand her return at a reasonable moment. The Sultana is a very rich and polished ebony and is reported to favor the use of Shiloh for keeping her complexion clear. The queen recently bought two new husbands for her youngest daughters, chocolate brown and coffee colored respectively fringed with beads and feathers. Roast Airedale is reputed to be her favorite dish, and she is confident that she will feel quite at home in the United States, as she hears that the haute monde is in the habit of putting on the dog at their festive gatherings.

Louisa was a little girl
Whose mamma always said,
"Now, honey you must say your prayers
Before you go to bed."
But Lou is now a flapper bold,
To make the angels weep.
But still when boy friends make requests
She puts them all to sleep.

Moral—Fear God and take P. T. (attributed to Oliver Cromwell).

Some people surely do find un-uniform ways of wearing their monkey suits. Consider the yoked who wore oxfords and blue silk socks with about an inch of the cerulean hose showing below his putts. Pretty soon they'll be wearing earrings and tabrothes with their khaki costumes.

"ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN." "FRINSTRANCE."
"ONE OF THE BOYS OUT TO THE HOUSE ACTUALLY GAINED THREE POUNDS LAST MONTH."

The professor had just finished his age-old anecdote. The class roared hugely; all except one girl. She leaned over and whispered to her neighbor, "I'm sure I don't see the joke."

But the neighbor had got an A for her sense of humor the semester before and was not to be corrupted. "Oh, I'm sure you didn't appreciate Professor Hoolligan," she said unsympathetically.

People Are Saying:

"I am interested in America's industrial situation, like everybody in England. I want to meet people who can help me to think of it more clearly, your industrial magnates and labor leaders. America has progressed farther than the European countries in the distribution of ownership of immense corporations and in labor banking."—Ramsay Muir, distinguished British economist and editor.

"No minister can preach two sermons on Sunday and do justice to both."—Rev. George D. Ebert, pastor of Congregational church, New York, and "father" of the popular Community Sunday evening services at which motion pictures are featured.

For a long, long time faculty representatives who ostensibly control the destinies of Missouri Valley conference and Big Ten conference athletics have contended that the object of contests is not to decide championships.

They have overlooked the fact that coaches must win in order to hold their jobs for any length of time. Of course they know that everybody knows that some of the objects of the conference is to manufacture rivalries, to win games and to decide titles, perhaps not officially but unofficially.

Who's Who AT IOWA

Harry D. Breene

Harry D. Breene, president of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce, is a man of long experience in the wiles of adventure and progress. He finds great enjoyment in recalling the frontier life of old, in the days of Theodore Roosevelt, the Marquis De Moeres, and Howard Eaton, three of the colorful characters who blazed the trail of civilization in Northern America. Mr. Breene spent some time at Medora, N. D., in the frontier days, and he recounts his adventures there among the cowboys and Indians, with "yellow back novels," as influencing literature, as one which fascinates and excites a young man's spirit of adventure. "The call of the open road predominates in such surroundings," he said, "and it was here that I picked up the lust for that roaming, wild life, which is so common at some time or other in a young man's fancy."

Mr. Breene has resided in Iowa City for thirty years. He confessed to me that he had a knack for joining organizations and as a consequence he belongs to almost everything within moderate imagination. He is a Mason, a Shriner, a Woodman, and a member of the B. P. O. E., is past president of the Iowa City Rotary club, a director of the Red Cross, second vice-president of the Iowa City Country club, and is supervising agent for the Rock Island railroad.

Mr. Breene was born at Durant, Iowa, in 1863. He attended high school at Wilton, Iowa, and was a student in the classes of George Crum Cook, a famous professor of English who formerly was a member of the faculty of the University of Iowa. He began his railroad career as a telegraph operator, train despatcher, and station agent, and has been in railroad service for over forty years.

Mr. Breene is a member of Delta Tau Delta, social fraternity and makes his home there. He is a brother of Frank T. Breene, dean of the college of dentistry in the University.

The writer found Mr. Breene to be an interesting conversationalist, a genial man, a firm, pleasing gentleman.

What modern thing enters into your life daily, which you would feel somewhat isolated without? The environment and atmosphere of the University of Iowa.

East Grid Games Hit Climax Today

Unbeaten Rivals Face Stiffest Games of Season

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The conflict along the eastern football front reaches its grand climax tomorrow. Nine outstanding games will be seen by close to 400,000 people. No group of gridrons in any sector has held forth prospects of more stirring or colorful strife than that which finds Princeton fighting against Yale for the last championship of the Big Three; Army's stalwarts meeting the flashy Notre Dame eleven in a battle of unbeaten teams involving national honors; Navy and Brown fighting to keep undefeated records intact against Georgetown and Harvard; and such traditional rivals collating as Cornell and Dartmouth, Colgate and Syracuse, Pittsburgh and Washington and Jefferson and Williams and Amherst.

More than 70,000 are expected to pack the Yankee stadium for the Army-Notre Dame battle, inter-sectional classic of the year, while crowds of from 50,000 to 60,000 each likely will witness the Harvard-Brown, Princeton-Yale, Pennsylvania-Columbia and Pittsburgh-W.

& J. contests in widely scattered stadiums. These combats hold the major share of interest, but there will be no lack of enthusiasm over a host of other games, five of which will see unbeaten teams in action. Of these Boston college facing invasion of the Haskell Indians, figures to encounter the strongest opposition. The others find Maine favored to whip New Hampshire, Lafayette facing secondary opposition to Susquehanna, New York University expected to trim Davis-Elkins, and Holy Cross rated superior to Catholic University.

President's Party Leaves Kansas City After Dedication

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—President and Mrs. Coolidge and their party returned at 11:30 o'clock tonight from Kansas City, where the executive yesterday delivered the principal address at the dedication of the Liberty memorial.

The president was confident that the "take it or leave it" world court declaration which featured his address would bear fruit at an early date.

It was the opinion of the president's fellow travelers that the court pronouncement would lead without further delay to final and decisive steps toward determination of question of America's adherence to the protocol.

A Few of the Badger Gridders

Iowa's Opponents Hold Upper Hand on Dope Sheets

Both Boast Unbroken String of Wins This Year

The formation of winning cross country teams has become a tradition of the University of Wisconsin. But it will be Iowa's aim this morning to somewhat upset that tradition as far as this year is concerned, on the Wisconsin trail today when the two universities participate in a dual meet, opening homecoming festivities at Wisconsin.

It has been the Badger's boast that they have won fifty per cent of the conference meets, and seventy-five per cent of the dual clashes in which they have entered since the Big Ten adopted cross country as a competitive sport.

Jones' Team Strong
Coach T. E. Jones has so far this year, not marred their tradition, as he has formed a team mighty hard to beat, having won a victory over Minnesota and winning a quadrangular meet with Indiana, Chicago, and Northwestern, placing five Badgers before an opponent in each contest.

An analysis of past performances of the old time rivals, this year brings one to the conclusion that Wisconsin has the edge over Iowa by a narrow margin.

Bresnahan Former Badger
Coach Bresnahan was formerly a member of a Wisconsin cross-country and later hill and dale coach for the Badgers and while there started the Badgers on their winning streak that has seldom been broken. Considerable interest has been aroused among coaches because of this angle on the contest.

Nine men: Captain Speers, L. E. Hunn, W. A. Elliot, J. P. McCammon, W. C. Meyers, F. H. Brady, W. A. Wagoner, R. A. Houser, and A. N. Bender, will toe the mark for the Hawkeyes when the gun goes off this morning, while Captain Schutt, Chapman, Petaja, Grumbach, J. Zola, Payne and Bullamore will represent Wisconsin.

Two Stars Meet
A royal old race is anticipated when Chapman, conference champion for the last two years and L. E. Hunn get together today to renew the feud which was initiated last year in the dual and conference contests, in which Hunn came in a close second.

Since the Badgers have placed five men out ahead in both their dual meets first it is rather hard to make and prediction as to who will place, but Chapman may be a possible first, Hunn, second, Speers, third, and either Schutt or Elliot fourth. The other places are as sure as a flip of a coin.

Dolly Sisters Win Suit and $18,200 in Paris Award

PARIS, Nov. 12, (AP)—The hurt feelings of Roszika and Yansel Dolly, American dancers, better known as the "Dolly Sisters," are worth 550,000 francs (about $18,200) under an award granted them in the civil court today.

The Dolly sisters thus came out victorious in their suit against the Moulin Rouge theater which they claim wounded their pride by promising that they would be the big stars of a show in 1924 and the giving the "French dancer, Mistinguette, more money and just as much publicity.

Record Crowd of Fans May See Ohio Buck Michigan Today

Buckeye Stadium Ready for 80,000 Grid Followers

Northwestern Expects 47,000 in Stands of New Field

[By The Associated Press] CHICAGO, Nov. 12 — A crowd which may turn out to be the largest in American football history will watch Ohio State battle Michigan tomorrow in the most important game of the western conference season, and Northwestern's biggest crowd will watch the Wildcat-Chicago tilt, which is the other featured contest.

More than 80,000 spectators have been provided for at the Wolverine-Buckeye spectacle, and there is a possibility that the figures will show an attendance greater than the 85,000 who saw Red Grange play his farewell college game in the Ohio state stadium a year ago. That game holds the present Western conference attendance record, and perhaps the national record.

47,000 See Purple

Forty-seven thousand persons will crowd into Northwestern's unfinished stadium for Chicago's annual civil war between the Maroons and the Purple.

The Michigan-Ohio battle will eliminate one of three surviving contenders for the conference gonfalon unless it ends a tie, while Northwestern must conquer Chicago to keep its record clear. The former tilt is a toss-up, with both teams employing a strong running and passing attack capable of spectacular football. Northwestern is the heavy favorite against the much beaten Chicago team.

Large Crowd at Madison

Another big crowd will see Iowa meet Wisconsin at Madison, but the title race will not be affected by the outcome, for both teams are trailing the pack. Iowa, which has not won a conference game, must beat Wisconsin or Northwestern if it is to break into the victory column, while Wisconsin has won only the Indiana game.

Other games, though well attended, will lack the drawing power of close rivalry, for Illinois meets Washington, Minnesota plays Butler, and Purdue plays Franklin. Indiana plays Mississippi A. & M.

seems to have prevailed with mankind all down through the ages.

If the railroad is making huge profits from the high rates which they charge, why is it that some companies are on the very edge of bankruptcy?

The railroads are not making huge profits. They are barely making cost of operation. I do not consider the rates high in face of the returns the company makes on their invested capital.

Is public opinion favorable or unfavorable to the present state of prohibition?

It is exemplified by the last election that the attitude varies with localities. From judgment based on newspaper reports it seems that the east favors modification of the present law while the west favors its retention and enforcement.

The Chamber of Commerce is an asset to the community. Why?

It is for many reasons. It reflects the energy and enterprise of the inhabitants, it draws into one cohesive unit the cooperation necessary to build up a community and further its progress not only in material affairs but in civic pride.

It is rumored that a number of students were forced to leave the university because of the lack of opportunity in securing jobs here.

What can Iowa City do about this?

If Iowa City could attract more industries thereby creating a greater demand for labor it would enable such students to aid themselves to their end. The Chamber of Commerce is now trying to formulate plans whereby such opportunities can be secured.

Did you ever have the desire to hold a public office?

Never. My employment has been such all my life that it has required my entire time and energy. However, I do have a keen interest in political affairs and enjoy great satisfaction in assisting my party and friends.

Junior Girls Win Volley Ball Game

Freshmen Triumphant Over Sophs; Score 15-11, 15-10

The junior women's volleyball team triumphed over the fast and furious sophomores yesterday with the scores 15-11, 15-10. The freshmen showed their superiority to the second team sophs by squelching them 15-7, 15-10.

The junior-sophomore combat, the first game that was played showed some really first class volleyball. Dogged perseverance by the juniors when they pressed at 10-10 and some smashing drives to the back line of the opponents court gave them the game.

When the sophomores stood up to meet the juniors in the final game, it was with "Iowa spirit" and locked jaws. Six beautiful serves by Nancy Walker slipped over the net and through the hands of the juniors to the wild delight of the two sophomore teams.

They lost the ball then, and the juniors scored one point on their serve, fumbled the ball, which the sophomores again sent sailing across the net for four more points. Then Elizabeth Lohman came to serve for the juniors and duplicated the excellent play of the sophs.

Hopes and points rose higher and higher for the almost defeated juniors. They lost the ball with seven points but regained it again a second later and Nettie Steady amassed four more points for them.

The sophomores were overcome by the unexpectedness of the juniors' recovery and dazed, but still fighting, they smacked the balls wildly and watched the juniors win the game and tournament 15-10.

The freshmen had little difficulty in subduing the second team sophomores by scores of 15-10 and 15-7.

The frosh aggregation was the only one which defeated the juniors in any game in the tournament, but they fell to the first team sophomores and thus were awarded third place. Stars on the team were Doris Rowe, captain and Alma Janko.

Harriet Ketchum, captain of the first team sophs, was one of their outstanding players, and the winners are in debt to Marjorie Anderson, Elizabeth Lohman and Helen Siegel, captain, for much of their success.

The best players on the second team sophs were Lucille Bond and Maxine Humeston.

City High Mentor Gives Squad Rest

Football practice has been suspended at City high until Monday evening, giving the squad an opportunity to rest up stiffened muscles. No injuries of any consequence are recorded as a result of the Muscatine game.

The final tussle of the season will take place, Thanksgiving at Cedar Rapids when the locals take on Washington high. The struggle is far enough in the future that Coach Soucek feels that he will have ample time to get his gridsters in shape.

H. Figg, captain of the Muscatine team, who was knocked unconscious during the game and who was taken to the University hospital for examination before leaving for home, has completely recovered according to latest reports.

Phi Epsilon Pi Defeats Phi Kappa in Frat Water Polo

The game was hard fought throughout, both teams playing fairly well although it was hardly up to standard. The next game on schedule is between Chi Kappa Pi and Theta Tau, Nov. 16.

Students Escape Icy Ducking by Narrow Margin

The 3 o'clock interurban from Cedar Rapids, after sounding a shrill warning, left in its wake two badly scared students frantically clutching telephones, and a third clinging even more frantically to the iron bar extending over the icy waters below.

The boys were engaged in procuring autumn leaves for the Dad's day arch which now stands completed at the east entrance to the Old Capitol campus. They had borrowed an ax, a saw, string, and wire from the few stores open on Armistice day and had crossed the river in their search for leaves with which to decorate the arch.

It was on the return trip that the near calamity occurred. The three were walking over the trestle with their arms full of branches when suddenly without the slightest warning they heard directly behind them the warning whistle of the electric car.

Panic-stricken, the boys jumped for the nearest place of safety. Two clung to telephone posts along the side of the trestle until the car had passed, and the third remained suspended from an iron support in mid-air until rescued by his companions.

The arch, which was built entirely through spontaneous student help is fourteen feet high and bears the message "Write Dad Now" in red letters across the top.

Apoplexy Claims George L. Lumsden, 43, While at Work

Iowa City Resident Stricken Yesterday

Dies Before Medical Aid Can Be Called; Employed as Presser by Local Cleaning Company; Home Here

Stricken at his work at the Paris Dry Cleaning establishment, George L. Lumsden, 43, of 320 South Lucas street, died at 1:30 o'clock today before medical aid could be summoned, of an attack of apoplexy.

Lumsden, who was employed as a presser by the cleaning company, has lived all his life in Iowa City, making his home with his brother M. F. Lumsden.

The flag at the city hall is flying at half staff as a mark of respect to Mr. Lumsden who was a member of the old volunteer fire department.

Lumsden is survived by his son, Ralph, who is attending a boarding school at Marion, and three sisters and brothers, Mrs. Will Fryaus, Mrs. E. G. Schroeder, Mrs. Albert Dunkel, and Will, John, and Michael Lumsden.

Dr. Love Doubts That City Needs Sewage Disposal

Filth, Disease in River Due to Refuse from Other Towns, Condition of Banks

Though he believes Iowa City would benefit by the installation of a sewage disposal plant to take care of the waste of the city, Dr. Frank L. Love, local health commissioner, declared in an interview that he did not see how such a plant would benefit Iowa river or the health conditions of people residing below Iowa City on the river.

"Such a plant," stated the health commissioner, "would be a good thing for all cities. It would be a good thing for Iowa City. It would be a good thing for the state. It would be a good thing for the nation. It would be a good thing for the world. It would be a good thing for the universe. It would be a good thing for everything."

"But even if those towns above Iowa City would cease dumping their sewage into the river, Iowa City, for the sake of its own health, would have to continue to artificially purify its water with chemicals as it is now doing."

According to Dr. Love municipal drinking water is not purified because of the disease which waste from this city's own sewers and the sewers of other cities give rise to. It is the commissioner's contention that what people must look out for in the drinking water obtained from rivers is the disease and filth that comes into the streams as a result of flood conditions.

"During floods," he said, "all the filth along the banks of a stream is washed into the main channel and carried along. A sewage disposal plant would not eliminate this."

It is Dr. Love's opinion that Iowa City ranks among the foremost cities in the country as regards health conditions and purity of water supply.

New Englert Will Disclose Interior to Public Nov. 17

"We're in the Navy" To Be First Movie in Playhouse

Iowa City's new $150,000 playhouse, the new Englert, which has been under construction since last summer, will open its doors to the theater-going public Wednesday evening, Nov. 17, it was learned late yesterday from Al Davis, local manager for A. H. Blank.

The new theater will open with a straight picture program featuring Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton in "We're in the Navy Now."

Manager Davis announced that first run pictures would be offered until early December when the first of the road shows will be presented.

Seating Capacity Larger From then on the Englert's policy will be to present feature pictures with the best of road shows playing at intervals throughout the season.

Thirteen hundred seats, several hundred more than the capacity of the former structure, are in readiness for the influx of the first night crowd. The stage has been made the largest of road shows.

Theater men claim that the Englert's interior decorations are entirely different from those of any playhouse in the middle west.

The entire interior design and color scheme presents an Old English effect, with brown as the predominating shade. The design work at the crest of the pediment is done in freehand.

Very Little Work Left The installation of the lighting fixtures and the picture screen are the only factors that remain to be completed. Workmen are rapidly pushing these finishing touches to completion.

The new Englert is the realization of the plans of Mrs. Etta Hanlon of Iowa City, and the A. H. Blank Enterprises, which were formulated soon after the disastrous fire of Feb. 13, 1926.

Huntington to Speak at Monday Luncheon Arthur Huntington of Cedar Rapids, a member of the agricultural and industrial investigation committee appointed by Governor Hammill, will speak before the Chamber of Commerce at its luncheon Monday.

Because of the agricultural situation, Governor Hammill has formed this committee which reports the situation as they find it all over the nation.

This information is passed on in detail to the legislature in an effort to help them to find what is really the trouble with Iowa and how it can be remedied.

Five Hundred Students Accompany Team to Snow Clad Madison Field

At least 500 students are expected to accompany the Iowa football team to Wisconsin today by car and by train.

Rock Island officials, consulted yesterday, were unable to give the definite number of those traveling to Madison by train as no reservations had been made on the two regular trains which left last night at 7:50 and 11:58.

However, judging from the number of telephone calls which have been received at the station the past week in regard to the accommodations, approximately 400 persons were considering the trip to Madison.

Blizzard in Wisconsin Rumors of a blizzard in Wisconsin were expected to induce a number of the Iowa-Wisconsin game enthusiasts to make eleventh hour decisions to abandon their automobiles in favor of the trains.

No special train will carry the Iowa team to Wisconsin but special rates of $8.32 for the round trip were offered on the two trains that left last night. Two changes of trains will be necessary.

Roads are Good Good roads and fair weather conditions will induce a large number of students to make the trip by car. Most of them traveling in this way are allowing six hours for the drive.

While the open-air Ford and the curtainless touring car were in favor for the Illinois game, the variable weather and dropping temperature have made the enclosed sedan and the high-powered car popular this trip.

more of the crop will be of merchantable quality. The potato season in Iowa is much like 1925 in being a near crop shortage. The estimated production of 6,305,000 bushels, although larger than that of 1925, is nearly a million bushels below the average production for the past five years.

The yield of potatoes this season in Iowa is estimated as 81.9 bushels per acre, as based upon the October condition of a 76 per cent normal crop. The potato acreage in Iowa this year is approximately eight per cent smaller than last year.

Pasture Conditions Improve Pasture conditions have improved considerably since the dry spell in the summer. Excepting those pastures which were pastured to death during the summer, the general average condition for pastures during the past month was 92 per cent, or seven points better than the past ten-year average October condition. Plenty of pastures and feed have caused livestock men of Iowa to bring nearly 72 per cent more feeder sheep and lambs than they did during the month of the year previous.

Frost Does Damage In commenting on the October crop report, Leslie M. Carl, federal agricultural statistician states that about one-fourth of this season's corn crop was injured by the early frost. Although the official crop correspondents state that 72 per cent of the crop matured without damage from killing frost, the remainder of the crop will likely be subject to scouring, rotting and molding in the field. Warm November weather, with drying winds, might improve the condition and

Dismiss E. W. Roe Case Concerning Bad Check Charge

Check Written on Bank Which Never Existed; Case Up Before Justice Roup

After a complicated hearing, involving checks written on a bank that did not exist, and a strange system of collections used by a Des Moines detective agency, the case of E. W. Roe, Solon, was dismissed yesterday in Justice C. C. Roup's court.

The costs of the action were charged to the prosecuting witness, J. G. Wehrle, Solon.

Roe was charged with having given a worthless check for $10.00 to the Wehrle Auto company of Solon, Ia. The check was written on the Farmers' Savings bank of Solon but such a bank does not, and never has existed there.

When the case was brought before Justice Roup, it was found that the first information sworn out in the case was faulty, due to a technical irregularity, and the case was dismissed and a new information on the same charge sworn out.

After the hearing of the evidence and the arguments of the attorneys, a motion was made by E. A. Baldwin, attorney for the defendant, that the case be dismissed. The motion was upheld by the court.

Evidence in the trial showed that Roe had given a promissory note for $50.00 to J. G. Wehrle, proprietor of the Wehrle Auto company of Solon, in payment for auto supplies. Roe was unable to meet the note when due and the collection of the note was given to the Des Moines detective agency by Wehrle.

Roe is alleged to have signed and delivered five checks to C. M. Bellenger, collector for the detective agency, all written on the non-existent Solon Farmers' Savings bank and payable to Wehrle.

Charges were preferred against one $10.00 check only.

Fugitive Ex-Convict Arrested as Robber

"Buck" McLaughlin Captured by Detective Carroll and Deputy Sheriff Jones While Boarding Interurban Car

William "Buck" McLaughlin, 36, formerly an inmate of the Kansas state prison at Lansing, Kansas, and wanted in Galesburg, Illinois, on charges of burglary, was arrested late yesterday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Arthur Jones and Detective O. E. Carroll, as he endeavored to escape from Iowa City on an interurban bound for Cedar Rapids.

McLaughlin, according to information obtained from Mr. Jones, has been for some time under treatment at the University hospital. He was recently removed to the Isolation hospital because of the disease he was affected with. The tip came to the deputy sheriff's notice yesterday afternoon and he, together with Detective Carroll, started out to arrest McLaughlin.

When the two arrived at the hospital, however, McLaughlin had fled. Knowing that the man hung out in Cedar Rapids both officers hastily made their way to the interurban station, arriving just as McLaughlin, ticket in hand, was boarding the outbound car.

He was placed under arrest and taken to the county jail. A thorough search failed to reveal any weapons though the man, long-sought for in connection with the Galesburg robbery, is reputed by State Agent A. E. Nugent, who had known the fugitive in former times, to be of a most dangerous type.

According to the agent McLaughlin has a criminal record reaching back to the time he was ten years old. He was born near Kewanee, Ill., and was brought up there. At various times during his childhood and youth he was arraigned before authorities on minor charges but was usually released.

In November of 1923 he was investigated in connection with the murder of the Brownsfield family at Lowmore, Iowa. Though charges in connection with this case were dropped, he was later arrested in Cedar Rapids for manufacturing liquor and spent a number of months in the Linn county jail at Marion.

After his release, he was arrested on a minor charge of stealing chickens but was not convicted as the prosecution was unable to identify the chickens.

Early in 1923 he was arrested in Kansas and sent to the Kansas state penitentiary at Lansing for a term of three years. The charge on which he was convicted was that of being in possession of burglary tools.

After his release early this year he returned to his home in Kewanee. Soon after, however, the authorities at Galesburg, Ill., sought him in connection with a robbery there. For four months the hunt has continued and culminated, -

At How Much Do You Value Your Health?

Dry Air is Dangerous

Dr. W. A. Evans, former Chief, Dept. of Health, Chicago, Ill., Says: "Dry air causes baldness, colds, flu, pneumonia, the drying out of tonsils causing enlarged glands and evaporate moisture from the skin so fast as to make us feel cold even when the temperature of the home is around 70."

Dr. M. J. Rosenau, Professor of Preventive Medicine and Hygiene, says: "If a room at 68 degrees Fahrenheit is not warm enough for a healthy person it is because the humidity is too low."

The human body consists of 58.5% water. A small percentage of loss is serious. When the percentage of water reaches 21 death results.

Dr. Ellsworth Huntington, of Yale University, says: "Twenty percent of the lives lost after hospital operations may be saved by simply moistening the air of buildings."

Dr. Rosenau further states: "Healthy people have a high resisting power against disease, but this resistance is quickly diminished by continued inhalations of impure air."

"Children, even more than adults, require fresh air as they have less vital energy and are more quickly and seriously affected on that account."
