Sixty Hurry From Hankow Trouble on Merchant Ship

Follow Example of British Women; Still Tense Situation

SHANGHAI, Jan. 8.—Dispatches from Hankow, mob-ridden since Monday, state that sixty American women and children embarked on a British merchant ship for Shanghai Thursday night following the example of the British women and children who departed Wednesday.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 8.—Rioting by Chinese against the British concession at Kiangkiang, 450 miles west of Shanghai, has been followed by looting, mostly by Chinese soldiers a dispatch from that city to Shanghai Saturday said.

The position of foreigners was described in the message as absolutely intolerable and local authorities were declared to be utterly unable to control the situation.

The British concession has been evacuated. On Thursday 258 British women and children and a few men were placed aboard gun boats and sailed for Shanghai.

Women and children of other foreign nationalities were advised to leave, leading foreign men declaring they had no confidence in the promises of the Cantonese government official that they would preserve order.

The dispatches, filed as late at 1 a. m. Saturday, reported that the situation was still most tense as a result of anti-foreign speeches and propaganda, which caused the attacks on the British concession district Monday and Tuesday by thousands of madmen and coolies.

Business Steps
Control of the foreign concessions was in the hands of officials of the nationalist government, whose troops replaced foreign sailors and despite Chinese government assurances that law and order would be kept.

The flag was not flying from the British consulate, the premises being watched by Chinese troops, said Japanese dispatches. Consul General Gotte remained within. Those other British residents who still remained in Hankow took refuge in the Hong Kong bank and the Asiatic Petroleum company's buildings, about which were Chinese troops and pickets.

Five members of the local Kungmintang, the political organization supporting the Cantonese government, took over the administration of the British concession.

Chen Meets Americans
Eugene Chen, foreign minister of the nationalist government, said another dispatch, met leading Americans Friday afternoon to discuss their position. He assured them there was no reason for panic. Later the majority of the American community decided to leave Hankow.

There were several American and British warships in the Yangtze opposite Hankow but sailors and marines were kept aboard. Chinese officials said that their presence might incite the mobs. Chinese troops continued to patrol the streets and the populace continued hostile to foreigners.

Farbman Arrives From Notre Dame For Violin Concert

Harry Farbman, concert violinist, will arrive in Iowa City today from South Bend, Indiana, where he played an engagement at Notre Dame. He will present a program to an Iowa City audience at 8:15 tonight in the natural science auditorium.

Farbman, since his debut with the Chicago Symphony about a year ago, has been making a concert tour of America. He is at the present time one of the youngest musicians on the concert platform. He is a pupil of Leopold Auer, the teacher of Heifetz, Morini, and others. Margaret Engler will accompany him. Single admission tickets may be procured at the school of music.

Members of the American Chemical society will give a 6 p. m. dinner at the Alpha Chi Sigma house.

Neither King Nor Czar— Ah! Must Be Democrats

SIoux CITY, Jan. 7 (AP)—Among the candidates appearing before Judge C. C. Hamilton in district court to take an examination for citizenship was one man who had difficulty in remembering what form of government he was living under.

Desiring to help him out, United States Examiner R. E. Griffin of Omaha asked the man if he had a king in this country.

"No," said the candidate. "Well, have we a czar?" "No."

"Have we a kaiser?" "No."

"Well what have we got?" There was a long pause and then the would-be citizen's face lightened up.

"We have democrats," he announced triumphantly.

Trans-Atlantic Radio Operates for First Time

Forty Conversations, Business to Extent of $6,000,000 Transacted in Hour

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The English accent and the voice of New York passed each other in mid-air and mid-ocean today in more than forty different conversations, marking the successful inauguration of the first trans-Atlantic radio telephone service on a commercial basis.

In less than an hour, flying on waves with the speed of light, business to the extent of more than $6,000,000 had been transacted by bankers, a new agency had received the first commercial radio telephone news dispatch sent from London, and business men and others were waiting for the wire.

Thereafter, from before noon until 6:30 p. m. in New York and 11 p. m. in London, the line was busy with business, comment on the times and the weather, and occasional outbursts of static.

The line was officially opened at 3:44 a. m. when President Walter S. Gifford of the American Telephone and Telegraph company took down the receiver and asked to be connected with Sir G. Evelyn P. Murray, of the British general post office.

Half a minute later, the two were talking, sitting some 3,500 miles apart, with high seas, western England, New England, and 6,300 miles of "circuit route" between them.

It was the least suspicious conversation of the day. For despite its ceremonial significance, static crashed and split as the waves of talk from London came through the air across the Atlantic, to near (TURN TO PAGE 3)

Thompson Talks on Old Manuscripts

Discusses Interesting Facts Unearthed by Scholars

A discussion of the work that scholars have been doing recently in the study of English literature, and manuscripts written during the fifty years from 1502 to 1643 was given last evening by Prof. Elbert N. S. Thompson of the English department.

Prof. Thompson told of the sort of manuscript studies which are being made, mentioning the suggested authorities of a number of old works.

Interesting facts have been unearthed by scholars who have made studies of these written during the 16th and 17th centuries. Professor Thompson discussed a collected edition of ten of Shakespeare's plays that was to have been published in 1619, but was prevented by the authorities at that time.

Previously unknown biographical facts have been learned by this study, such as those in Adams' "Life of Shakespeare."

House Sustains Recommendation of Pres. Coolidge

Leaders Both Parties Favor Immediate Appropriation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—First by a narrow and then by a wider margin the house today sustained President Coolidge's recommendation to delay construction of three new light cruisers for the navy pending a possible second arms limitation conference.

After a day of impassioned debate, which found leaders of both parties including Speaker Longworth favoring an immediate appropriation for preliminary work on the cruisers, the house rejected 137 to 135 an amendment to the naval supply bill by Representative Tilson, republican leader, to make available $450,000 for the purpose.

The vote by tellers, reversed a standing vote of 123 to 117 in favor of the amendment.

Defeat of the Tilson proposal. An hour later on a roll call the house defeated 185 to 161, a motion by Representative Britten, republican, Illinois, to put the Tilson proposal in the measure.

The $314,000,000 bill was finally passed after the house had refused 185 to 105 to recede from its stand of yesterday when it overrode the president and the budget by appropriating $200,000 toward a dirigible to replace the lost Shenandoah.

After the Tilson amendment, which the whole debate was waged, had been disposed of, the house quickly voted down two other amendments both by Representative Black, democrat, New York, which would have exceeded the budget estimates. They would have provided $3,000,000 for the three cruisers and $4,500,000 for three additional submarines.

Fight Tilson Amendment
The fight began with presentation of the Tilson amendment which its authors declared was in "general accord" with the views of the president except the technical difference concerning the appropriation of $450,000.

He pointed out that in the president's budget measure he urged appropriation for the three cruisers authorized in 1924 but had recommended extension of the authorization, which without an appropriation will expire next July 1.

The debate produced heated expressions concerning the propriety of over-riding the president and the budget and also the charge that the merely approving without changing the administration program congress was serving as a rubber stamp.

Garrett Backs Tilson
Garrett described the amendment as an indication of "breach between the white house and the republican floor leader," but declared he believed Tilson was "doing the right thing."

Having relinquished the chair during the debate, Speaker Longworth warned the house that it was as much the duty of congress to see that the navy did not fall below treaty strength as it was to see that it did not exceed the treaty.

Annual Jamboree of Pep Fraternity To Be February 4

PI Epsilon Pi university pep fraternity will hold its annual Pep Jamboree, dancing party, Saturday, Feb. 15 at varsity, where stunts and features will take place.

This is the only stunt outside of the gridiron or the basketball floor that the pep club stages, according to the party chairman Ralph Heninger, A2 of Sigourney. Other members of the party committee appointed by the president of the pep fraternity, William A. Boies, M2 of Washington, are Donald Farel, A2 of Cherokee, Roy Porter, A2 of Waterloo and Ralph Young, A2 of Springville.

William Mauley, professor in the school of journalism, who leaves the university second semester to take a position as head of the school of journalism at Pittsburg university, with Mrs. Mauley and Mr. and Mrs. Dale Yoder, adviser for the fraternity, will be chaperons for the Pep Jamboree.

Van Doren Confined Home Because of Back Sprain

Dr. O. E. Van Doren, director of the university band, and instructor in the department of music, has been confined to his home for several days because of a back sprain which he received during the vacation period while endeavoring to lift a heavy basket.

His condition has not been pronounced as being serious but it has prevented his serving in his regular capacity. Clarence J. Andrews, A3 of New London, is acting as director of the band during Doctor Van Doren's absence.

Jury in Leopold, Loeb Trial Fails to Get Decision

Charles Ream, the driver, asked $100,000 damages from the sons of wealthy parents, and the jury stood eight to four in favor of a judgment against the two, but could get no further.

Leopold and Loeb were returned to prison yesterday following the closing of the case, and were not permitted to return to hear the verdict.

They are serving life sentences for the murder of little Robert Franks. Ream also was absent when the jury reported.

Day in Washington

An open split between the administration and Senator Borah developed on Nicaragua.

After rejecting a three cruiser construction proposal, the house passed the naval supply bill.

Senator Gouge of Maine denied bribery charges against him before a senate investigating commission.

Pepper Dodges Conduct Search for Des Moines Youth

Carl Stutzman, A1 of Des Moines, has been missing since Monday night, it became known yesterday. A search for him has been conducted during the week.

Stutzman, who is a pledge of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity, left his home at Des Moines Monday night to return to Iowa City, following Christmas vacation. When he did not arrive here, members of the Kappa Psi chapter instituted a search both in Des Moines and Iowa City.

An alumnus of the fraternity has been in charge of the investigation. Members of Stutzman's family have been unable to assign a reason for his disappearance.

Receive Millions From Gasoline Tax

DES MOINES, Jan. 7.—Gasoline license fees collected by Treas. v. State R. E. Johnson since the law went into effect April 16, 1925 amount to $2,249,297.85. It was announced today. The amount is divided $3,215,400.88 for 1925 and $5,082,892.97 for 1926.

There now is undistributed in the fund $35,118.95. The remainder of the account has been paid out to the state primary road fund, and in county allotments, disbursements, refunds, administration expenses and salaries as follows:

Primary road—In 1925, the sum of $1,041,144.40; in 1926, the sum of $1,612,000; total, $2,653,144.40.

County allotments—In 1925, $2,082,288.80; in 1926, $3,224,000; total $5,306,288.80.

Students Dance in Martial Setting at Military Ball

Fletcher Receives Traditional Saber; Notables Present as Guests of Honor

Amid a colorful martial setting, the vari-colored gowns of the girls set off by the severe khaki uniforms of the men, 600 couples danced last night at the Military Ball, the second university formal of the year.

The ball room lent itself admirably to the appropriate military decorations. Lighting effects were gained by red lights placed at intervals around the wall. The band stand was decorated with red, white and blue bunting, the regimental colors at one end of the stand and the stars and stripes at the other.

On one side was placed a small machine gun, at the other a trench mortar. At the back of the stand were arrayed the company flags.

During intermission Howard B. Fletcher, LI of Aberdeen, South Dakota, was presented with the saber traditionally given to the cadet colonel of the regiment. Harold Boyd, LI of Columbus Junction, president of Scabbard and Blade made the presentation, and Fletcher acknowledged it with a short talk.

Little Adrian Waneous of Wellman presented a feature song and dance clog-Charleston number.

Among the guests of honor were Major General and Mrs. Benjamin A. Poore, of Omaha, Neb., Brigadier General and Mrs. Louis G. Lasher of Des Moines, President and Mrs. Walter A. Jessup, and many R. O. T. C. officers and their wives from Omaha, Des Moines, Ames, and Cedar Rapids.

Music was furnished by Dexter's Milwaukee orchestra.

The programs were of heavy metal about three inches by one and a half in size. On the front appears the figure of Fletcher.

Col. and Mrs. John Flammill were unable to attend the Military Ball because of arrangements for opening the state legislature Monday, which kept the governor in Des Moines.

Will Eliminate Delays in Court

Gibson Recommends Plan to Speed Up Law Workers

DES MOINES, Iowa, Jan. 7.—Appointment of a commission by the legislators to draft a plan for the elimination of technicalities and unnecessary delays in criminal procedure is one of a half dozen recommendations to be made to the forty-second Iowa general assembly by Former Attorney General Ben J. Gibson.

In his report to the governor, Mr. Gibson, who retired as attorney general on Dec. 31, not only urges the appointment of the commission referred to, but adoption by the legislature of the proposed uniform concealed weapons law drafted by the American Bar association and the Commission on Uniform Laws of the United States; retention of the grand jury system; establishment of a "short course" for sheriffs, and elimination of the state law which requires the attorney general to file a $10,000 bond.

Mr. Gibson asserts that Iowa laws on criminal procedure are unduly technical and cumbersome. Commenting on some phases of this, Mr. Gibson said:

"We do not see why the laws in this state should not be such as to prevent the release of criminals because of technical errors either on the part of the county attorney or of the trial court. We do not see why there should be any delay in the presentation of cases in the trial court or in the supreme court. It is our firm belief that a commission should be appointed by the legislature to go into this matter in detail to the end that the next general assembly may have before it a clear, simple plan for the elimination of technicalities and unnecessary delays in criminal procedure. If such a commission is successful, as we believe it will be, its work will be of inestimable value to the state not only from the standpoint of law enforcement but from the standpoint of economy."

Nicaraguan Policy of Administration Attacked by Borah

Senator Contends That Intervention is Unnecessary

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The Coolidge administration and Charles Borah of the senate foreign relations committee came to an outspoken disagreement today over the policy of the United States in Nicaragua.

In two public pronouncements, one by the white house spokesman and one by Secretary Kellogg, the handling of American forces in the war-torn little Central American country was described as nothing more than a consistent effort to protect American life and property.

From this statement, Senator Borah dissented vigorously. He declared that despite a conference this morning with President Coolidge he had learned of no peril to American interests which would warrant "intervention" and he gave it as his studied opinion that the United States was in fact upholding by armed force a Nicaraguan president who holds office without constitutional sanction.

Touch on Mexico
The day's official utterances touched momentarily on Mexico's attitude toward the tangled situation, the spokesman for President Coolidge declaring that while the chief executive had no doubt arms had been sent from Mexico to the enemies of the American-recognized Nicaraguan regime, he did not know whether the source of the shipments was the Mexican government itself.

Little was said in any quarter about the actual developments of the past few days at the scene of action. Secretary Kellogg refused to comment on news reports from Managua that the American naval commander had been authorized to stop arms shipments, to "unauthorized persons" and the navy declared itself without information why the American cruiser Galveston sud.

Liquor Case Goes to Supreme Court on Writ of Error

CEDAR RAPIDS, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Ben and Sam Japone, contractors of Springfield, Ill., sentenced here last summer to serve a year in jail and pay a fine of $1,000 each on charges of legal possession of liquor, have appealed to the United States supreme court on a writ of error. Carl J. Jordan, their attorney, said today.

This is believed to be the first liquor case appealed to the high tribunal from Iowa.

A new hearing was denied by the state supreme court last fall.

The Japanese pleaded guilty after a large quantity of alcohol was found in their automobile but denied being responsible for the liquor being in their car.

State Institutions' Coal Bill Nearly Hits Million Mark

DES MOINES, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Approximately 231,785 tons of coal, valued at $928,071.25 were purchased by the state board of control for use at state institutions in the last two years, a report of the board filed with Governor Hammill, showed.

Of these amounts, the source of purchase in tons, and value, is shown as follows:

Iowa coal, 191,927 tons, $784,498.16; Illinois coal, 37,130 tons, $129,831.84; Kentucky coal, 2,426 tons, $12,536.41; miscellaneous, 200 tons, $1,207.04.

Coal royalties collected by the state amounted to $11,971.72 in the last two years. Total amount of royalties since 1919, the report says, is $23,901.27.

Republican Caucus Will Decide Speakership Race Today

Candidates Outline Platforms For New Members of House

Expect Organization and Preliminaries to Take First Week

[By The Associated Press]

DES MOINES, Jan. 7.—Speakership campaigning went through its final stage tonight with hotel lobbies and the headquarters of each candidate the scene of constant drives for individual votes and with each candidate claiming new strength.

The house republican caucus which will decide the issue as between Representative L. V. Carter of Hudson county and Dr. T. L. Wolfe of Linn county is to be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The senate caucus is to be held tomorrow afternoon but Senator Frank Shane of Wapello county is unopposed for president pro tem of the upper house and little interest has been attracted to this meeting.

Candidates Platforms

Both candidates this afternoon, outlined their platforms for the benefit of the new members, who had been called into a conference by Representative Torgerson of Warh county to acquaint themselves with the speakership issues.

Representative Carter's platform statement, included a declaration that his personal attitude on any issue before the house would in no way affect a full and free discussion of the issue by the house or its consideration by an unbiased committee. His activity in the organization of the house, he said, would be guided by the same principle, fairness.

He declared he was not the candidate of any faction or group, and denied straddling any issue.

Representative Wolfe's statement dealt almost wholly with his position on various issues slated for action this winter. He favors the primary election system and a "pay as you go" road building policy. He opposes the $100,000,000 road bond issue and extension of the power of the highway commission over the primary road system. He favors bank guarantee legislation, economy in the state administration and legislation to place agriculture on a sound basis.

O. A. Ontjes of Grundy county and Lefe Hill of Floyd county were prominently mentioned today for speaker pro tem. Ontjes held this office during a previous term in the house. Both Ontjes and Hill were candidates for the speakership up to yesterday.

House to Name Employees

The house patronage committee is to meet tomorrow morning to decide upon house employees. With the naming of a chief clerk, for which office A. C. Gustafson is seeking re-election, the house will wind up its preliminary work.

Walter Beam seeks re-election as secretary of the senate and George Gallarno, formerly of the state auditor's office, is a candidate for assistant secretary.

Jane Addams to Give Talk Here

Founder of Hull House Praised by Local Persons

"In the western world Jane Addams is the one conspicuous person comparable to Gandhi in India," is the opinion of The Rev. Arthur L. Weatherly, pastor of the local Unitarian church. "She is one of the most influential personalities in the world today," Mr. Weatherly said in speaking of the world-famed authority on political and social reform, who will be the speaker at the university vesper service to be held in the Iowa union, Sunday afternoon, Dec. 9 at 4 o'clock.

"Whether people agree or disagree with her, they realize that Jane Addams is a moral and spiritual force with which they must reckon. By her life at Hull House, her devotion to high ideals, and her self-sacrificing and personally effacing work in behalf of unfortunates, she has come to be recognized by many as having those qualities of heart, mind, and soul which make her friends instinctively call her 'St. Jane.'"

World Leader

Miss Addams, who is a native of Illinois began her work which was later to make her a world leader in reform movements in conjunction with Miss Ellen Gates Starr in 1889 when the two women started Hull House of Halsted street fame in Chicago. Both had made a careful study of conditions among the poor both in America and on the continent and decided to put their new ideas into practice. Hull House is the direct result and for the past 37 years it has been a living organization for good in Chicago, and a pattern for reform methods which have followed it.

Peace Efforts

Who has the power of a real personality behind her," says Mrs. Carl E. Seashore in speaking of Miss Addams' mode of address. "It is a rare opportunity for students to be able to see and hear a woman who has made such great contributions to the world as Miss Addams has done."

"A clear cut, crystalline speaker whose life has been fairly crammed with activities which have been of benefit to thousands. She spoke here almost twenty-five years ago and this Sunday will probably be a last opportunity for students to hear this unusual speaker, who is lecturing less frequently. Miss Addams has reached the place where it is becoming necessary for her to conserve her strength and to do only the most important things which daily overload her program."

The topic for her afternoon talk will be, "Recent Governmental Efforts For World Peace." Sunday evening she will be the guest of honor at a dinner given by the University club at the club rooms.

House Will Hear Farm Relief Next

Commence Discussing McNary Haugen Bill Tuesday

[By The Associated Press]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—With hearings on farm relief already under way on the house side of the capitol, the senate agriculture committee decided today to get down to consideration of the problem next week.

Announcement of this program was made by Senator McNary, republican, of Oregon, chairman of committee and co-author of the controversial McNary-Haugen bill, which the house committee will take up Tuesday.

At its session today, the house committee considered the bill sponsored by Representative Aswell of Louisiana, ranking democrat among its members, who inferred that the administration had its own ideas on farm relief, to the extent that the Curtis-Crisp bill introduced yesterday was written in Secretary Jardine's office.

While this brought a broad smile from Representative Crisp, democrat, of Georgia, who, with Senator Curtis, the republican leader, is author of the measure, the Georgian failed to enlighten the committee.

Senator Curtis had declared the bill was not to be considered an administration measure and Crisp said after today's hearing that he could speak for neither President Coolidge nor Secretary Jardine.

Crisp, however, had an engagement with Secretary Jardine tonight and he said he hoped to obtain Jardine's approval of the proposal. He said he believed the bill would meet the president's approval if passed.

The house agricultural committee will take up the Curtis-Crisp relief proposal sponsored by Representative Jacobstein, democrat, New York.

Nicaraguan Policy of Administration Attacked by Borah

The report current in Nicaragua was that she was headed for the Bay of Fonseca, where a Mexican gun runner was supposedly seeking to make contact with the shore. The navy said its advices indicated that the cruiser was steering in another direction on an undisclosed mission.

No Word About Six Ships

Neither was any further official word obtainable about the six additional warships and the 40 marines ordered south yesterday to increase the American naval squadron under Admiral Latimer.

The ships are to report to the Admiral for such disposition as he may find necessary. If any sudden development in the situation led to their despatch, it remains clothed in official silence.

It was just outside the doorway of the white house that Senator Borah announced his disagreement with the policy of the administration. He had been summoned to the executive offices by the president who yesterday had brought into conference Senator Swanson of Virginia, ranking democrat on the foreign relations committee, an Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the democratic leader of the senate.

Leaving just as the cabinet was arriving for its regular Friday meeting, Mr. Borah told inquirers that in his belief "the United States has no business in the world in Nicaragua."

Makes Formal Statement

Later in a formal statement issued from his office, the foreign relations chairman said that "if there is anybody in Nicaragua constitutionally entitled to be president it is Sacasa, the former vice president, who is opposing by armed force the American recognized government of President Diaz."

When Secretary Kellogg left the cabinet meeting he responded to inquiries with the statement that the United States was determined to protect American lives and property and that in furtherance of that determination Admiral Latimer was expected to stop fighting in those parts of Nicaragua where it would imperil American interests. It was for this purpose and for none other, he said, that neutral zones had been created and marines thrown about certain American holdings.

Late in the day the same policy was enunciated from the white house by the president's official spokesman. The purpose of the American naval forces, it was said, was to protect American interests and to that end Admiral Latimer had full and sufficient instructions.

Trans-Atlantic Radio Operates for First Time

Newspapers and Associated Press were the first to avail themselves of the new means of communication. Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the New York Times, was called to talk to Geoffrey Dawson, editor of the London Times at 8:55 a. m., seven minutes after the inauguration call had ended and President Clifford, sitting among reporters, photographers, and officials of the company had hung up their receivers.

Editors Chat on Weather

At ten and one half minutes past nine o'clock the editors of the London Express and the New York Evening World were chatting together over the fact that the sun was shining in London as well as in this city. The call came through from London.

The Associated Press at 10:02 a. m. called its London bureau from New York and received here the first news dispatch to be transmitted to a news agency over the new commercial service.

Th dispatch today told of an expected visit to Canada and the United States of the Prince of Wales.

Spring Weather Served to Usher New Year in Here Records Show

"It was a beautiful spring day in January,"

This is not an example of faulty reasoning nor of what's wrong in this sentence, nor yet the boast of the conventional native resident of Pasadena. It is simply a mild description of the Iowa City weather, as it has been served during the week.

Reading from the records of Prof. John F. Reilly, official weather observer for Iowa City, show that Jan. 1 to 7 has been the warmest first week of the year here since 1921. The lowest temperature recorded is 23 degrees, and during the last four days the mercury has consistently ranged above the forty degree mark. Highest readings for the third up to, and including the sixth of January, are 43 degrees, 41 degrees, 44 degrees and 45 degrees successively.

A chart compiled by Professor Reilly of statistics for the month of December, shows that the last month of 1926 was comparatively normal with other years. A mean of the maximum temperatures of the month was 31.7 which is but two degrees below normal. The mean of the minimum temperatures was 16.7 degrees, which was one degree above normal. The highest temperature recorded by Professor Reilly was 46 degrees on the twelfth day of December. The lowest temperature was six degrees below zero on Dec. 14.

A normal precipitation of .27 inches was noted, and of this fell within twenty-four hours. Snowfall was below normal. One inch was recorded, and this is three inches below the normal amount for December.

Cloudiness, according to Professor Reilly, was normal. Eight over seventy percent clear days and twenty over seventy percent cloudy days were noted.

Extra-Curricular Talks Endorsed by Junior Medics

Assuming that there are problems of non-medical nature or of practical professional significance which are not covered in the present curriculum and are vital to the beginning doctor, the junior class of the college of medicine proposes to endorse a scheme whereby they will receive such information through extra-curricular lectures to be given by Dr. Norman Fritz Miller of the medical amphitheatre in the hospital, Wednesday, Jan. 12, at 6:30 o'clock. Dr. Miller will choose his own subject to be announced at that time.

If the class shows its approval of the plan by expression and attendance, future meetings will be arranged from time to time, the speakers and subjects to be chosen later.

The committee in charge was appointed by the president of the class, Ivan H. Sheeler. Members are:

Find Former Professor Guilty of Manslaughter

BOONEVILLE, Mo., Jan. 7.—Cecil Cockerill, 53, former professor of languages in Kemper Military school, today was found guilty of manslaughter for killing E. E. Turner in the latter's real estate office here last Oct. 13.

The jury left the punishment to the judge after failing to agree on this in two days' deliberation.

Cockerill, morose over loss of his life savings of $18,000 in the Nixon Farm Mortgage company in which Turner was associated with his father in law, came here from a sick bed in California and shot Turner as he pleaded for mercy.

Paschinger as correspondent, while in the other case George Paschinger is suing his wife Eunice, and names George Dillow. The couples were married on the same date and may be divorced on the same date.

Spends Two Hours in Jail on Seven Charges; Released

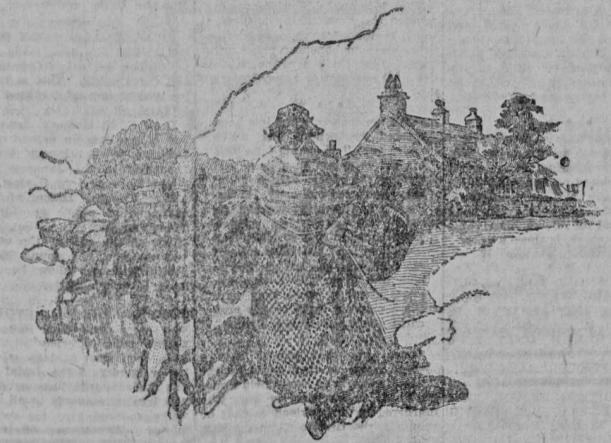

DES MOINES, Jan. 6.—(P)—Louis Adelman, local professional bondsman, spent two hours in jail today before being released in bond of $1,200 on seven charges.

He is charged with assault and battery, escaping the custody of an officer, contempt of court, disturbing the quiet by fighting in municipal court, disturbing the quiet by using obscene and profane language, soliciting bonds in the municipal building and flitting in the halls of the court building. He pleaded not guilty to all.

After the charge of soliciting bonds had been filed, Adelman accused an arraignment clerk of causing the trouble. The clerk answered by filing the obscene language charge and this culminated in Adelman striking the official and finding himself facing five more accusations.

At Forty

"At Forty" the housewife in some sections of Europe wears a black bonnet to signify the end of her youth. Heavy tasks, indoors and out, have made her old—at forty.

Of all the uses of electricity in America, the most important are those which release the woman from physical drudgery. Electricity carries water, washes clothes, clean carpets, cooks the family's food—better and quicker than could be done by hand.

Men and women who have had the benefit of college training and college life have learned to place the proper value upon rest and recreation. They appreciate the relief afforded by electricity.

Upon great generators which send out current to light the homes and carry the burdens of millions, you will find the G-E monogram. Upon industrial motors, on electric railway trains—wherever quality and un-failing performance are first essentials—the G-E monogram will be found.

A series of G-E advertisements showing what electricity is doing in many fields will be sent on request. Ask for booklet GER-1.

Hughes' Blues

THE most tangible and probably the most enduring finger that jazz has laid upon the arts is that of the American Negro. Not only in music is this apparent, but increasingly so in contemporary poetry. This is due largely to the work of a small group of Negroes, chief among whom are Langston Hughes of Lincoln Memorial University, Harrogate, Tenn., and Countee P. Cullen, associated with the magazine, Opportunity, the finest of the Negro publications in America.

At a recent entertainment given in New York by the Hall-Johnson singers of Negro spirituals, two of whom will be heard in Iowa City this spring, Hughes recited several of his poems, after which they were sung by the chorus. The program brought out the interesting fact that genuine blues are of a strict form, just as are sonnets or villanelles. The popular idea of blues music has been distorted, Hughes has found, by loose use of the term on the part of popular song writers. He has devoted much time to the study of this particular branch of poetry, and though barely out of college has composed a number of original lyrics in this form, and won for himself a major poetry prize as well as considerable literary fame.

The peculiar quality of the blues song, which vitalizes it with power almost to sing itself from the page, is well illustrated in the poem Hard Luck, which THE DAILY IOWAN reprints this morning in its "Poems That Live" column—a column which, by the way, can hardly be accused of any catholicity of taste, since in the two years of its existence it has included short poems by writers of such various technique as Dante Gabriel Rossetti and Carl Sandburg, and of such disparate intellectual pretensions as Edward Arlington Robinson and Eugene Field, drawing the line only at Bertin Braly, Eddie Guest, and their ilk.

In connection with Hughes' poem, it is interesting to note its exact confirmation in the words of another author, Burton Rascoe, who writes in his "Day-Book of a New Yorker":

"Old clothes men, of course, continue to yowl their plaintive 'Ole Close!' in court-yards and in alleys, where court-yards and alleys exist. Occasionally they will even go so far as to knock at apartment doors and plead for an opportunity to give a fair price for discarded clothing.

"Once an old fellow with a patriarchal beard and beaked nose argued with me so eloquently about the fine offer he would make me, that I took my spare suit which was in need of pressing and showed it to him just to see what he would offer for it. It was only two months old and in perfect repair. I had paid $65 for it. After telling me that it was no good to any one, that it was out of style, and that he would have a hard time disposing of it, he offered me $1.50 for it. When I refused he offered me $2. I took it away from him and he said, 'As a last price, I offer $2.50 but I lose money.' As I closed the door on him, he was still willing to risk a quarter more on the suit that was 'out of style and was no good to any one.'"

Such corroboration is amusing in its exactness, and we are inclined to believe that Hughes' out-of-luck blues singer might have laughed almost twice as hard if only he had held out a little longer.

Showers of Blisters

THE man worth while is the man that can smile while taking a shower at the men's gym—standing under ice cold water, knowing there are no clean towels available, no mirrors to look in when combing his hair, and that he has only five minutes to "make" his next class.

Surely a university should not force a student to take a bath twice a week under such conditions. Cleanliness may be next to Godliness, but the benefits of a bath at the men's gym are overcome by the swearing the bather is inspired to—either silently in Chinese or out loud in good strong United States.

Of course the water is not always ice cold. Sometimes it is of just the right temperature for a nice tender parboil. Nearly always, however, this hot water is entirely used up before 5 o'clock and the varsity wrestlers and swimmers get a cold ducking. Nearly every night before 5 o'clock all the clean towels have been used. Some students play safe by keeping their towels for a week without turning them in. This augments the evil situation, because there are fewer towels in circulation and fewer towels going through the laundry.

At the present time there are no mirrors in the locker rooms. Formerly there were two to satisfy the thousand or so who use the gym daily. The student parts his hair by guess or by gosh and thus is many a gentleman's composure ruined—along with his good looks, neat appearance, and sense of comfort.

Twenty minutes are allotted for the student to undress, take a shower, and walk to his next classroom. This is sufficient time provided the newly-cleansed one does not have his next class in the armory and with the further proviso that his instructor does not hold the class overtime.

The new field house may remedy some of these conditions, and again it may not. It may be impossible to get a larger boiler. However, it certainly is not impossible for the university to purchase more towels and retrieve the erstwhile greatly appreciated mirrors.

Jefferson and Mussolini

THOMAS JEFFERSON, father of the constitution, once said that he would rather live in a country where there were newspapers and no government than in one where there was a government, but no newspapers. He was, of course, referring to newspapers which were courageous and willing to voice the sentiments of the people in constructive criticism.

Benito Mussolini has suppressed at the present time all newspapers in Italy which dare to say one word in opposition to his regime. He believes that the people should acquiesce absolutely to the laws imposed upon them; no murmuring will be tolerated.

Jefferson's ideal of reflective public opinion, as carried on by his successors, led to a great democracy—a building of a prosperous middle class that formed the backbone of a strong nation. To him there was significant strength in the fact that people were anxious to control their government.

Newspapers always have been one medium through which democracy has been promulgated. It was this medium of which Jefferson was thinking when he made the assertion in favor of newspapers.

The fascist idealism is all that Jefferson would have abhorred. To him a regime which is autoeratic, is opposed to criticism, and is dogmatically astute would be defiant of the inherent rights of humans.

Jefferson had a dream in which he saw the people pointing to a representative government, directing it, criticizing it when necessary, but always having a check upon it. He saw everyone's ideas expressed in fighting newspapers. Orders would come from the people to the government.

Quite contrary is Mussolini's dream in which all people are gazing longingly at the Italian people, who are kneeling before the fascist regime. The fascist regime in turn is bowing towards Mussolini, the center of the universe. Orders would be disseminated to the people from the arch-duke Mussolini. Never would a voice from the lower strata reach his ear.

We have been able to judge the success of Jefferson's ideals. His common people thrived under the stimulus of power, became intelligent, and built, with their own hands, a wonderful government.

The Duce's dream still remains a dream. Love of him has been shown four times by attempted assassination. Will the government continue while the people are in servile abjection? Will his system continue to produce an intelligent and happy race as the American system has done? Will they always be subservient to their aristocratic betters?

Jefferson and Mussolini have exactly the opposite ideas of government. Will the results they germinate be also opposite?

A Nebraskan has begun raising coyotes for their pelts. He expects to make a howling success.

A girl may have dreamy eyes and still be wide awake to her matrimonial chances.

Every prize fighter wants you distinctly to understand that he is a gentleman.

Radiant Women

The Exquisite Perdita. By E. Barri npton. Dodd Mead & Co. 1926. $2.50.
Perella. By W. J. Locke. Dodd Mead & Co. 1926. $2.00.

After reading "The Exquisite Perdita" one does not wonder at the reception accorded "The Glorious Apollo." E. Barrington (formerly known for her stories of the East under the name of L. Adams Beck) recreates the scenes of a past epoch with such brilliance, and analyzes the characters of the famous men and women who made it memorable with such penetration and sympathetic understanding, that we are each page of her story as it is unfolded before us. She combines a rare degree of insight into character and sympathy for erring humanity with grace of style and expression.

This is no book for the embittered feminist. Convinced beforehand of the many injustices of man toward woman, this story of a remarkable, as well as beautiful, woman who suffered so much at the hands of men will but accentuate that bitterness.

A Royal Love Affair
The heroine of the novel is the lovely Mrs. Robinson who, under the tutelage of Sheridan and Garrick, became one of the most famous actresses of her day. It was while playing in the character of "Perdita" in "A Winter's Tale" that her beauty tired the blood of the handsome young Prince of Wales (the future George the Fourth).

All the highlights in the meteoric career of "Perdita" Robinson are chronicled in this remarkable novel. Across its stage flash the brilliant actor, playwright and politician, Richard Brinsley Sheridan and his lovely Elizabeth, one of the famous and highly gifted Linley family, herself the foremost singer of the day; lost to her adoring public, however, through her marriage to Sheridan and retirement to private life. We make the acquaintance of the gay, pleasure-loving Prince, just arriving at man's estate and striving desperately to break away from the leading strings of his anxious parents; of the sad and much tried Queen Charlotte, the unspeakable Duke of Cumberland, of infamous name and life; and of his Duchess—below him in rank, but a member of the proud house of Luttrell, Charles Fox (arch-schemer), Essex, the fair Duchess of Devonshire, scions or royal and noble house, actresses, courtiers, wits and beauties—all the kaleidoscopic brilliance of that most brilliant and reckless period—are presented with a verisimilitude that makes them live and love and suffer before our mental vision.

"Heights and Depths" into whose short heyday were crowded enough of anxiety, financial worry, marital infidelity, hard work, artistic triumph, love, fashion, beauty, exaltation, bitterness and tragedy to fill to overflowing a long life, might well have written many a homily on the text from the 146th Psalm, "Put not your trust in princess, nor in the son of man, in whom there is no help." She, the toasted, the courted and flattered of royalty, tasted the drugs of sorrows and misery while still but a few years past twenty. She staked all for love—and lost. Had she known her psalms better, or heeded their admonitions, would things have been different with her? How can we know the temptations of a woman so gifted, and placed in her position, surrounded on all sides by pitfalls, that we should pick up a stone to cast at her memory?

There may be, and doubtless is, much that is wrong with the world and morality today; but it will take much to convince some of us that things now are in quite as bad case as they were in the later years of the reign of the Third George of England. If young women have sometimes mistaken their new enfranchisement for license to gratify their least worthy impulses and caprices, at least we have the satisfaction of knowing that an honorable career is open to woman in our own age, and that she need not depend upon the doubtful allegiance and fidelity of men for "a place in the sun" unless she elects to do so.

Charm and Urbanity
Mounting the ladder of time some dozen or more decades brings us to another heroine, an imaginary one this time ("a woman like a flame," as her rival describes her), one whose beauty comes to its flowering under the sunshine of love and wealth and ease.

Any novel by W. J. Locke is certain to possess charm and urbanity.

The weary hours unrolled and still he thrashed and tossed, denied the blessed comfort—of slumber. Finally it was too much for him; putting his head in his hands, he moaned in misery, "Who the hell has been eating crackers on my bed?"

Dr. Evans in the World's Goofiest Newspaper says that women are coming to be the stronger sex, because they don't bundle themselves in too many clothes. Of course, we can see where he gets his ideas from, but even at that you know, their minds are practically barren and that doesn't mean that they're strong, does it?

One woman author was discussing a new novel she was writing with another lady inkingling.
"And when I get this done," she said, "I'm going to write a story about a pup."
"Oh, how perfectly clever," exclaimed t'other, "and to think I never dreamed of using my husband for copy."

Here follows a few songs that have been adopted at various conventions as official anthems. The National Association of Glue manufacturers announces the selection of "Horses." The Midwest Conference of University Professors Deaf in the Left Ear have chosen those notable words, "I Don't Believe You But Say It Again" as their battle hymn. And the School-Girl Complexion Educators, Inc., have picked on "Baby Face"—but that is nothing extraordinary; a saxophone player in our section of the Quad has been picking on it for several weeks.

"What do you think of Anatole France?"

The MIDNIGHT SUN

By LAURIDS BRUUN

CHAPTER XVII
Presently he stirred and impatiently rang a silver bell at his side. Mikhael, his aid, appeared at the door.

"Come here," Sergius called. "We must act quickly. A difficult task lies ahead of us. Every minute is precious. Listen to me." He outlined in brief words Olga's predicament and voiced enthusiastically his hatred against Kusmin and his determination to overpower him. He had long looked forward to an opportunity by which he could take revenge for the relentless methods of a Shylock employed by Kusmin in the extraction of a debt which was due him from Sergius.

Mikhael listened intently, and soon he and the Grand Duke had their plan of attack outlined.

While Sergius, smoking innumerable cigarettes, restlessly paced the large room, Mikhael could be seen at the telephone, establishing a connection with the Navy Department. Presently he spoke:

"Please let me talk to Admiral Bruvetski.—Is this you, Admiral? His Highness, the Grand Duke Sergius, desires the use of a fast destroyer for an enterprise, the nature of which I cannot divulge over the telephone. It is, however, of the greatest importance that he is accommodated immediately and that orders are sent along the Department to every body concerned, so that no delay is possible. No, it would mean a day's trip only. Yes, but it must be the fastest boat in the Navy Yard. What was that? Destroyer 14.—Pier 37.—Ana you will be good enough to order it ready in half an hour? Thank you, Admiral."

Mikhael handed Sergius a slip of paper. "Number 14," he repeated. "Pier 37. That was good of old Bruvetski."

"Splendid," the Grand Duke rubbed his hands in glee. "Now let us be off. I am anxious to see who has the fastest boat, we or Kusmin."

The Grand Duke's elegant automobile sped at a reckless pace through the streets, its horn continually emitting warning signals to the pedestrians, who scurried to safety in frantic jumps and looked after the disappearing car with curiosity and the shaking of fists.

Admiral Bruvetski's order had apparently been heeded by everybody in the Navy Yard. At the approach of the Grand Duke's automobile, the immense gates swung open without causing the car a minute's delay. As he descended, Sergius commanded his chauffeur to return late in the evening, to bring him back to the palace.

At Pier 37 the Grand Duke immediately noticed the graceful hull of a destroyer, bearing the figure 14 on the bow and saw with pleasure that its funnels were emitting black clouds of smoke. Closely followed by Mikhael, he hastened to the gang plank.

The Commander of the ship, who met him on deck, assured him that everything was in order and that he would proceed immediately, should Sergius so desire. The Grand Duke saluted the sailors who stood at smart attention at the rail, and gave a brief order to the commander. Soon the destroyer was plunging the waves in white cascades, with its engines throbbing under full pressure.

In the salon on nether deck, Sergius outlined briefly the object of the excursion. It was decided to steam out of the bay at full speed, keeping a close watch on any private yacht which might look like Kusmin's, and, with the identity once established, bring it to a stop at any cost.

Sergius and Mikhael joined the commander on the bridge, scanning the horizon and the passing ships through their field glasses. An hour went by with no sign of Snow-White's elegant hull. A westerly wind pressed in from the bay, and the destroyer reeled and swung, dipping and rising in the troubled sea. Foam sprayed in pearly cascades over the decks and the thick smoke from the funnels lay like a streak of soot over the waves.

Presently the commander cried out: "Your Highness, I think we've found her." He pointed at a white boat far out in the turbulent bay, and through his glasses Sergius saw a certain resemblance to Kusmin's yacht. The boats were, however, too far from each other to determine with accuracy whether the commander was right or not, but half an hour later it became apparent that they had discovered their prey. It soon became apparent that the smoke from the yacht's funnels thickened, which the commander took to be a sign of Kusmin's having detected that he was pursued. Nearer and nearer the destroyer pounded through the frothy waves as its untiring chase. But Kusmin was not willing to give up. The yacht increased its speed and soon the destroyer was forced to add steam pressure in order to gain on its enemy.

"If she won't stop," Sergius cried, "fire on her!"

The bay widened into the Baltic Sea. On each side, the shore line grew dim and the passing snips were reduced to a few travelers with rust-brown sails and an occasional steamer.

The commander of the warship was forced to add every spare ounce of power in order to drive the boat through the waves at a speed which would mean the eventual overtaking of Kusmin's yacht. The banker, Sergius thought, must have built his ship with an eventual quick getaway in view. Although the destroyer was gaining on its enemy, it was by no means an easy task, and another hour slipped by without having brought the two boats side by side.

The Grand Duke and his aid followed the chase through their powerful glasses with breathless anxiety, and finally Sergius ordered the Commander to fire a shot over the rigging of Kusmin's yacht in order to bring it to a stop. This order was relayed to the gunner in the steel turret below the bridge, and soon a fire leapt out, closely followed by a rumbling thunder. On the opposite side of the yacht, the water rose in a white fan, and after another shell had been discharged, Kusmin seemed to realize that it was best to abandon the flight. The day was now well spent, and the sea was already dipping into the sun, as the sailors lowered a steam launch which was to take the Grand Duke, his aid, and some officers over to the yacht.

CHAPTER XVIII
The two ships rolled heavily in the choppy sea, as the launch cast off. It soon reached the yacht, and the Grand Duke commanded that a ladder be lowered. The captain of Kusmin's boat, leaning over the rail and looking with mingled fear and perplexity at the officers in the launch, at first refused to grant this request, but after having been assured that any delay would mean a reply from the destroyer's guns, he complied.

The Grand Duke was the first to mount the swaying ladder, and at his heels followed Mikhael and the commander of the warship. The captain made a last attempt to prevent their boarding, but was unceremoniously pushed aside by Sergius, who swiftly ran down the deck and descended the stairway leading to the cabins.

From the salon he heard vague cries and the splashing of glasses with beating heart made the few remaining steps in a jump which brought him heavily against the door. It was not locked, and having pushed it open, he confronted Kusmin and Olga. His eyes beheld a scene of the wildest disorder. The elegant room spoke plainly of the battle which had been waged between the young girl and her captor. Chairs were overturned, glasses and bottles lay strewn in broken bits and spilled wine had formed large pools on the rug.

The banker, his face contorted in passion and anger, turned as Sergius entered, and the Grand Duke met a wild stare of bestial lust. Kusmin's hair fell in disorder over his forehead, perspiration beaded his brow and one of his hands bled from a severe gash, evidently caused by a splintered bottle. The collar was half ripped from his neck, and his tie lay crumpled on the floor.

Olga, a picture of desperate fear and anguish, huddled in a corner of the room. Her face was chalk-white, and her lips quivering and bloodless. Tears stained her cheeks. Her dress had been brutally torn, displaying her delicate throat and finely modelled shoulders.

At the sight of the Grand Duke, Kusmin uttered a hoarse curse and his fists clenched. Fury sparkled in his eyes, as he approached his enemy. But Sergius was prepared. With a swift movement of his arm, he met the blow Kusmin aimed at him, and with a well directed blow in the banker's chest he sent him reeling into the room. The struggle which followed was brief, because of Mikhael's timely arrival. His interceding separated the two combatants, and thereby focused Sergius' attention on Olga. The girl rose from her reeling position, and walked wearily towards the Grand Duke. Her steps were slow, reluctant, her head hung in exhaustion and sorrow and tears clouded her eyes. Sergius stepped swiftly up to her.

"Olga, my dear child," he said tenderly. "I thank heaven that I arrived in time to liberate you. If you are able, my dear, let me immediately take you aboard my ship." He turned to the banker. "You contemptible beast," he cried. "Badly did you plan this deed if you neglected to count on my interference."

The excitement and fear which Olga had passed through during her imprisonment by Kusmin, had left its mark upon her. In the apathy and nervous fatigue which seized her after her liberation, she did not seem to fully realize that Kusmin would have accomplished his nefarious action, were it not for Sergius' opportune arrival. She followed the Grand Duke up on deck and was helped down the ladder to the waiting launch. Her spirits failed to return, and she listened to Sergius' words in a semi-conscious state of exhaustion.

Gentle hands assisted her to the salon of the destroyer. Sergius placed her tenderly on a sofa, and, after having covered her with a blanket, forced a few drops of brandy between her lips. Her response to this treatment, cheered him. She opened her eyes, as if for the first time aware of his presence, and with tears streaming down her cheeks, she thanked him in a broken voice for his aid.

As soon as she was sufficiently revived to sit up and give an account of Kusmin's treacherous conduct, her first words were of Alexei. Her voice was filled with anxiety and compassion which made the Grand Duke evade her look. But her persistent query brought a confession from him.

For a moment she looked at him with empty eyes, unable to grasp his words. All color had left her face, and, instinctively, she clutched a hand over her heart. She rose, reeling, and with an agonizing shriek called her lover's name. Then she lost consciousness and fell heavily to the floor.

All attempts to bring her back to life seemed at first to be of no avail, until she finally opened her eyes with a heavy sigh. The comforting words Sergius whispered to her, could not stop her flow of tears. "He must be saved," she sobbed. "You cannot let them murder him. In God's name save him!"

A specimen of the rare mountain nyala, an antelope of Abyssinia, has been secured by Alfred M. Bailey, a member of the Field museum expedition in Africa.

Information received here indicates that Bailey is one of the first Americans to obtain a specimen of the animal and as far as is known there are only two museums in the world which have a mounted nyala for exhibition.

The nyala, which was trailed over the frozen slopes of a mountain some 14,000 feet above sea level, was brought down with a powerful ".375" rifle, donated by Kermit Roosevelt.

Mr. Locke's style is individual and one feels that there is a sympathetic and engaging personality behind it. Those who have read his novels in the past will welcome this one; and it should make friends for him of new readers. He has the ability to make even quite unlikely situations and events seem plausible while you are reading. He creates an atmosphere.

The greater part of the scene of this latest novel is laid in Florence, and lovers of that fair, historic place will particularly enjoy the bits of description of nooks and corners and vistas thereabout. The plot presents something rather novel in the way of Quixotism; for here we have two Quixotes, male and female. (We might be a trifle sceptical in regard to the female Quixote were the author's style less persuasive.)

The thesis might be stated thus: Those who attempt to lay the foundation of marital happiness with disparity in age for a cornerstone will erect but a lopsided structure; for youth turns to youth as naturally as water seeks its own level. Some of us old-fashioned folk cannot but be grateful to Mr. Locke for developing his thesis by means of a study of the reactions to one another of four lovable, cultured and charming characters rather than by the exposition of four selfish, sensual, up-to-date egoists, which would be the more modern way. Nor will one's pleasure end with the reading of the book. Many things in it will linger in the memory afterward.

Anne Wakely Jackson.

City High Drops Clinton Game by 20 to 17 Count

Inability to Hit Hoop Costs Little Hawks Hard Battle

The inability to hit the hoop resulted in the Little Hawks landing on the short end of a 20 to 17 score with the Scrapper Clinton five on top. The game was a rough and tumble affair with a man on each team eliminated by the foul route. Idema, Iowa City's dead eye, was taken out at the first of the second quarter and Johnson, a member of the opposing quintet was dropped soon after.

It was a close defensive game, both teams displaying keen floor work and only Haugh, the substitute taking Johnson's place being able to find the basket with any consistency. Haugh made three baskets just before the whistle blew, cutting loose and playing havoc with the Iowa City defense.

Reinhardt as usual played a brilliant floor game and at the same time made three baskets and one free throw for high scoring honors.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (AP)—Phil McGraw of Detroit defeated Tod Morgan of Seattle, junior lightweight champion, in a ten round contest at Madison Square Garden tonight.

McGraw piled up an early lead that Morgan could not overcome. No title was at stake, both fighters being over the junior lightweight limit. The bout was at catch weights with Morgan weighing 131 1/2 and McGraw 134 1/2.

Los Angeles Open Starts With Low Score of Seventy

EL CABALLERO, Country Club, Van Nuys, Cal., Jan. 7 (AP)—Seventy-two (two under par) was the lowest score today in the first eighteen holes of the thirty-six qualifying holes of the three day, seventy-two hole Los Angeles $10,000 open golf tournament. Four players turned in cards of 70, Charles Guest, Hollywood, Mike J. Brady of Mamoroneck N. Y., Bobbie Cruickshank of New York and Edward Dudley of Oklahoma City.

The field of 130 players will shoot another eighteen holes tomorrow to determine in sixty-four low who will continue in the championship thirty-six hole flight Sunday for the gross seventy-two holes of the tourney. Today's play showed that seventy-eight that twenty-eight would get in if conditions are good tomorrow.

Law Observance Committee Denies Excluding Negroes

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (AP)—Officials of the citizens' committee of 1,000 for law observance made formal denial today that four negro bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Zion church had been excluded last night from the committee's annual banquet.

"No one was refused admission to the banquet," said Carlton N. Sherwood, executive secretary of the committee.
 "Under no circumstances would we refuse admission to any one because of race, color or creed."
 The bishops themselves said they had remained away because they felt there was some objection to their sitting at the banquet table.

(By The Associated Press)
 CHICAGO, Jan. 7—Investigation of the 1917 baseball scandal ended with surprising suddenness tonight after days of hearings.

K. M. Landis, $65,000-a-year commissioner of baseball, who acted as judge, jury, and inquisitor in the dramatic trial, announced he would give his decision involving the fate of some of the greatest stars in the game at 10 o'clock next Wednesday morning.

If found guilty these players will be banished from organized baseball, as were their accusers, Swede Risberg and Chick Gandil, cast out of the game for their connection with the crooked world series of 1919.

Risberg charged, and Gandil today substantiated his story, that the White Sox pooled $45 apiece to pay the "Tigers for sloughing" the four game series to the White Sox, Sept. 2 and 3, 1917, so the White Sox could edge out Boston in the race for the American league pennant.

Players Reluctant Denial
 Branding these charges an absolute lie, thirty-four players of the past and present, members of those teams, declared the pool was a present for the Detroit victories over Boston.

In support of this Bill James, the Tiger pitcher who received the money from the Sox—Risberg and Gandil—testified they told him it was for the Tigers' good work in beating Boston.

James denied vigorously Gandil's story that they too had framed the 1917 labor day series. According to James, Gandil made him an offer of $200 for each Detroit pitcher who would beat Boston, and nothing was said about the Tigers tossing the game to the White Sox.

Hasbrook Star's Czar
 Bob Hasbrook, a former Sox infielder, started the commissioner with the testimony that the Sox pool was discussed at the Boston ball park, a point had never been mentioned by any previous witness. Landis called on each of the former Sox, and each denied it. Hasbrook was excluded from the meeting.

Landis left this apparent contradiction unsolved when he brought his inquiry to a sudden close.
 James, taking the witness chair, told a story that tallied generally with that of Risberg and Gandil about the passing of the money. He said Gandil and Risberg came to him in the Aldine hotel in Philadelphia and handed him $850. The exact amount of the Sox pool and its distribution, however, never was satisfactorily explained to the commissioner.

Accusers Differ on Pool
 Risberg testified it was around $1,100. Gandil said it was between $900 and $1,000, and James said he received $850.
 In his accounting of its distribution James fell about $50 short because he could not remember all the players he gave money to, nor all of the amounts.
 He gave Mitchell $200, he said.

Landis to Announce Decision Wednesday

Baseball Commissioner Landis has concluded his investigation of the 1917 baseball scandal and will announce the fates of thirty-four players involved next Wednesday morning.

Dauss $200; kept $200 for himself, gave Oscar Stange, Tiger catcher $75 or $100; $50 each to Cunningham and Boland, who warmed up but did not pitch, and $50 to somebody else whom he could not remember.

Men Clear Cobb
 Ty Cobb wired the commissioner to interrogate all the players present "whether anybody knew if Cobb got any of the Sox pool, and whether anybody knew if Cobb ever played a crooked ball game."

The chorus of tribute to Cobb was hearty and unanimous, led by Risberg and Gandil.
 Landis read an exchange of telegrams with Hughie Jennings, manager of the Tigers in 1917.
 Jennings said he was too sick to come, and knew nothing of the 1917 series that was questionable, nor of the Sox gift.

Gandil was the first of the thirty-seven players to present his expense account to Landis and he filed one of $278.12, including $90 for his ten day absence from his plumbing job in New Mexico.

Weismuller Gets Credit for New 100 Yard Record
 NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (AP)—Johnny Weismuller, lanky aquatic star of the Illinois athletic club, was credited today with swimming the fastest 100 yards in history. This was revealed when the amateur athletic union received telegraphic requests from Charles A. Dean, I. A. C., official, to recognize a mark of 49 4/5 seconds, made last night and bettering Weismuller's own accepted world's record by two and one-fifth seconds.

A. A. U. authorities stamped the performance as one of the most remarkable in any branch of competition in years. It has been considered "impossible" by swimming experts for human beings to "break" fifty seconds for the 100 yard dash.

According to Dean's report, Weismuller was timed by six watches, two of which snapped him in 49 3/5. The other four caught him in 49 4/5.

St. Patrick's Beat St. Mary's Five in Hard Game 30-17

Irish Victors in First Contest of City Cage Series

The Green and White boys from St. Pat's proved to be a little too fast for the Blue and White from St. Mary's last night when they came out on the long end of a 30-17 score. The game was a battle from start to finish, but the St. Pat's defense again proved insincible and St. Mary's had to content with long shots at the basket.

St. Mary's started off with a rush and sank a basket and a free throw to put them ahead 3-0. Then the Irish woke up and duplicated the performance. After this the game see-sawed back and forth during the first half which ended with the score 11-2 in favor of St. Pat's.

Glasgow Runs Wild
 Glasgow ran wild during the second half and started piling up baskets. Then the game became rough and personal fouls were called right and left. Walsh and Moravec were ejected in the fourth quarter on personals. St. Mary's made only three baskets in the second half and these were all long shots from out of the center of the floor.

St. Mary's sent in two substitutes, but they were unable to stem the avalanche of St. Pat's baskets. Very little scoring was done by either team in the last quarter. St. Pat's played on the defensive and had the ball in their possession most of man with six baskets and three free throws.

Glasgow was again high point thrower to his credit. He seemed to be able to hit the basket from every angle. Walsh played an excellent game at guard and also came in for his share of the points. Bauer of St. Mary's, though playing at guard, was the high point man of their team with six points. He is a fast floor man and has an uncanny eye for long shots, sinking two in succession in the third quarter.

This is the first game St. Mary's has lost this year and St. Pat's total is four won and one lost.
 Substitutions: St. Pat's; Roberts for Wilkinson, Wallace for Walsh, St. Mary's; Scherrer for Feldman, Faye for Moravec.

Trinity Outbattles Omaha
 SIOUX CITY, Jan. 7 (AP)—Trinity's basket ball team opened the season here tonight with a 31 to 30 victory over Omaha university in a rough and tumble game that included much hard play and gridiron tactics.

The Sioux City collegians led 18 to 14 at the half. Brown's ability to sink baskets from the middle of the floor probably saved Trinity from defeat. He was good for six goals during the evening and five of them came from far back in the court.

Parsons Beats Buena Vista
 FAIRFIELD, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Parsons college basket ball quintet trounced Buena Vista college 33 to 16 here tonight. Parsons scored at will using second string men during the entire first half. The score at the half was 14 to 7 in favor of Parsons.

Cold Forces Tunney to Cancel Exhibition Tour

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 7 (AP)—Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion, in a long distance telephone call from St. Louis today called off his exhibition bout in Milwaukee next Friday night. Tunney said he had contracted a cold in the muscles of his back and on the advice of physicians, had cancelled all theatrical engagements and is returning to New York Sunday for treatment.

Basket Ball Shorts

Oklahoma Beats Cyclones
 AMES, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Oklahoma university basket ball team opening the Missouri Valley conference season here tonight with a 32 to 29 victory over Iowa State college. The score at the half was 16 to 13. Iowa State scored first on a free throw but Oklahoma took the lead a minute later with a field goal and was never in danger.

Pioneers Nose Out Ags

GRINNELL, Jan. 7 (AP)—Grinnell college nosed out the Oklahoma Aggies 28 to 27 here tonight in the opening game of the Missouri Valley basket ball season. The Pioneers took an early lead but lost it through the work of Collins, Aggie center, and trailed 18 to 17 at the half. Long shots by Rinefort in the final minutes spelled victory for Grinnell.

Huskers Bow to K. Aggies

LINCOLN, Jan. 7 (AP)—Coming to the front with a accurate shooting attack which drew the Nebraska defense out from under its own goal, the Kansas Aggies started the basketball season here tonight by winning 34 to 23. The Huskers led 15 to 14 at the half but could not maintain the pace.

Cornell Trounces Beloit

MT. VERNON, Jan. 7 (AP)—Cornell college opened its 1927 Midwest conference basket season here tonight by defeating Beloit 40 to 15. Connie Mullenberg, center, led the Purple attack with eleven field goals. Carigan, forward, and Bonoloh, guard showed up the best for Beloit. Cornell led 20 to 5 at the half.

Veterans' Return Aid to Outlook for Tank Victory

Turner, Clearman, and Choate Report for First Time

Chances for an Iowa swimming victory over Illinois next Saturday night were greatly improved last night by the initial appearance of Ned Turner, Wilford Clearman, and Roger Choate at practice. Coach Armbruster's swimming team is now on the final lap of its conditioning workouts for the first intercollegiate competition of the season.

Tryouts to determine who will participate in the meet next Saturday will be held in the pool at the men's gymnasium this afternoon. With as many as twelve and fifteen men trying for each event, and a maximum entry list of only two men allowable in Big Ten swimming meets, competition is unusually keen for berths on the varsity.

Immediately following the race events this afternoon, the varsity polo team will engage the yearling aggregation in a polo contest.

The versatile Capt. Killbuck will be entered in several events in today's trials, while Pattison, Turner, McClintock, and Clearman are practically certain of starting in the free style area. Carter, Goldman, Marble, Krause, and Weise are the class of the breast-strokers, while King is virtually conceded a victory in the backstroke during today's heats. Britton, McDonald, and Fairgrave have clinched the diving positions.

The polo team will be at a slight handicap in that the Illinois polo artists will have already met Washington University of St. Louis before their game with the Hawkeye nators. Pattison, E. R. Marble, Anderson, Killbuck, Babcock, Capt. W. P. Marble, Wylie, Simpson and Goldman are the most promising of the polo players.

Bill: Hi Red, Good Lookin' overcoat you have, where'd you get it and how much?
 Red: At Blank's Dec. 24th for $45.00.
 Bill: We'll hop over and have a look. Gee, there's the same thing in the window now marked $34.50.

Red: Well! I'm stuck $5.75 a week which is $299.00 a year. Fine business.
 Not.
 Bill: Did you see the coat Gene got at Densmore's for $33.50?
 Red: No! Let's look.
 Bill: There's the same thing, and it's still $33.50.

Red: Must have been marked right in the first place or they'd cut the price now — oh well — we live and learn.

Hawk Basket Ball Five Meets Maroons in Chicago Tonight

Barrymen Invade Purdue Following Windy City Game

Squad Numbers Ten on First Big Ten Invasion

After a short workout last night, ten fighting Hawkeye basket ball men mounted the Rock Island "iron horse" for the Windy City to start their series of battles for Big Ten honors. The Iowans will meet the fast Maroon aggregation tonight in Bartlett gymnasium, Chicago, in their first conference encounter.

Meeting Chicago for their primary 1926 Big Ten game the Iowans took a difficult contest from the Maroons, 18 to 13. It was in this game that the defense of both teams earned high recognition, and it was only by the accurate gunning of "Hedy" Phillips, bench forward, that the Hawks were able to secure their winning lead.

Players Well Acquainted
A majority of men on each quintet played against each other last season. The Chicagoans have but one new man in their starting list, Young, at forward. The Iowa pivot, Wilcox, is also new in Big Ten circles, as is Twogood, flash Hawk forward.

The Iowans are doped for success against the Windy City basket ballers, although the two teams have been running fairly even in their pre-season contests. The Chicagoans have dropped half of their four practice games, chief of which was to Iowa State college last Monday, 23 to 18. The Hawks have two pets from their five early games, from St. Louis and from Marquette university.

Twenty-fifth Meeting
Tonight's game will be the twenty-fifth encounter between the Maroon and Hawkeye quintets. Since 1908 the Hawks have won fourteen games, while the Chicagoans have scored ten wins from the Iowans. Since 1920, Iowa has won eight contests, to the Maroon's three.

Immediately after tonight's clash, the Iowans will board the train for Lafayette, Ind., where they will meet Purdue university Monday evening. Purdue will initiate the season by meeting Ohio State tonight.

No Workout for Purdue
Coach Barry announced that last night's drill would be the last Hawkeye practice until they arrived home from Lafayette Tuesday afternoon. Although they will arrive in Lafayette early Sunday morning, they will have no workout before Monday evening's game.

Besides the five starting players, Coach Barry will carry five extra men on the Chicago, Purdue trip. Phillips and Harrison, forwards; Addy, center; and Lawson and Armstrong, guards, will make up the second quintet.

Intramural Athletics

Interfraternity Basketball
Delta Sigma Delta, winner of the 1926 interfraternity basketball championship tournament, will meet Triangle in the opening game of the 1927 tournament, next Tuesday night at 7 o'clock in the men's gymnasium. The Delta Sigs are conceded to have one of the strongest teams entered for competition this year and are hoping to get off on the right foot with a win over the Triangle five. Delta Upsilon and Chi Delta Psi complete the opening night's program.

Complete schedules have been drawn for the rest of this semester and are as follows:
Tuesday, Jan. 11—Delta Sigma Delta vs. Triangle; Delta Upsilon vs. Chi Delta Psi.
Wednesday, Jan. 12—Phi Epsilon Pi vs. Sigma Chi; Beta Psi vs. Alpha Sigma Phi.
Thursday, Jan. 13—Chi Kappa Pi vs. Beta Phi Sigma; Delta Chi vs. Phi Kappa Sigma.

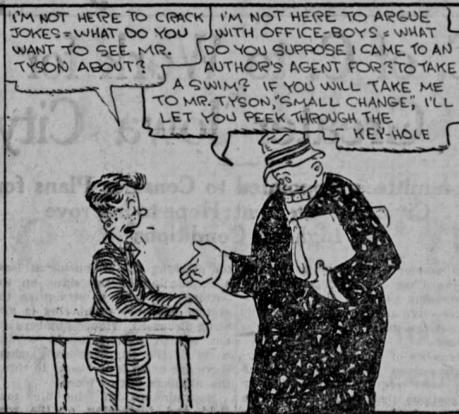

Saturday, Jan. 15—Phi Beta Delta vs. Phi Delta Chi; Delta Tau Delta vs. Phi Gamma Delta; Sigma Phi Epsilon vs. Beta Theta Pi.
Tuesday, Jan. 18—Sigma Alpha Epsilon vs. Sigma Pi; Alpha Tau Omega vs. Phi Delta Theta.
Wednesday, Jan. 19—Sigma Nu vs. Psi Omega; Alpha Chi Sigma vs. Theta Tau.
Thursday, Jan. 20—Acacia vs. Delta Sigma Pi; Delta Sigma Delta vs. Chi Kappa Pi.

Saturday, Jan. 22—Phi Kappa vs. Kappa Sigma; Delta Chi vs. A. T. O.; Delta Upsilon vs. Phi Epsilon Pi.
Quad Basket Ball
Displaying a fast breaking offense and an air-tight defense, section C of the quadrangle won both of their lightweight and heavyweight games by scores of 25 to 16 and 24 to 16 respectively, team D being the victims both games. The games were marked by accurate passing of both teams, but steadiness of the winners at a crisis was the turning point which resulted in victory.

In the first game between the lightweights, C got off to a flying start, taking the ball to the basket but failing to make good their shots. After three minutes of missing baskets, Swift broke through and dribbled in for the first points of the game. Swift seemed to like to show his dribbling ability, but failed to make any of his set-ups count. Many times he lost the ball after taking it to the basket. The quarter ended as Nason missed an easy sleeper. C's defense was airtight and D could only secure four shots during the first quarter.
Jepson and Bickley shared honors for high scorer with ten points each. The second game was similar to the first only rougher and the passing attack was ragged. Both teams had good defenses and up until the last four minutes the score was 14 to 13 in favor of C, but D's defense cracked with victory in sight and C ran the score up to safe margin. Although marred by its roughness, the game was very exciting and well played.

McKiernan kept his team in the running during the third period by making two baskets when they were needed and by some heady floor work. Kautz broke up many C plays to keep the score down. The third period ended with C holding a scant one point lead 16 to 15. The final quarter started with

Madden tying the count with his free throw, but after that D was never in the running. Its defense broke up and C scored at will, running the score to 24 to 16 as the game ended. Travis and Becker were the mainstays for the winners while Knutz and Madden starred for the losers. Travis was high point man with ten points.

Hawkeye Matmen Tryout Monday for Badger Meet

Wisconsin and Illini Doped Strongest Iowa Foes

Tryouts for the Wisconsin-Iowa wrestling meet Jan. 15, will start Monday and Tuesday afternoons at the men's gymnasium. All of the winners of the classes in the university wrestling tournament held in December with the exception of Seaman, a freshman, winner of the 135 pound class, will be on hand to try for a place on the team.

The 135 pound class will be left to Terry and Scheyel, who will fight it out for the leadership.

The Wisconsin meet and the Illinois meet will be probably the hardest on the Hawk's schedule this winter. Illinois, Big Ten champion last year, was defeated by Wisconsin in a dual meet. Iowa won from Wisconsin, but lost to Illinois. So this is the first of a sort of round robin between these three schools, the winner of which will very likely be conference champion.

Reports from the opponents' camp show indications of a strong team, but at the present their outlooks are not as bright as Iowa's, who has former champions and near champions included in the roster of her squad.

"A man blinded as I was, straight off and not by gradual disease, can develop a sort of sixth sense. It seems to be partly acute hearing, partly acute sensitiveness, to sensations of touch. My opponent must breathe and that tells me where he is and helps me to guess what he is thinking about as much as if I could watch his eye. And when it comes to infighting I am not hard disappait at all. With my superior sense of touch I believe I even have an advantage." Lowry explains. Both men are war veterans.

New Rank Gives Iowa City Primary Election, Longer Ballot

Voters to Select Attorney, Clerk, and City Engineer

Judge Will Appoint Commission to Name Jurors

By LOUISE GLACKMEYER
The political ring into which of the aspirants will toss their hats for the approaching city election will be enlarged this year. The increase in number of offices to be filled by popular election, follows Iowa City's entrance last year into the lists of cities of the first class.

Three New Offices

Under its new ranking, three new offices will be placed on the election ballot that were formerly filled by appointment by the city council. These are: city attorney, city clerk and city engineer.

Petition Used in Nomination

The names of candidates for the party nomination will be placed on the party ballot only after a petition to that effect, signed by at least ten qualified voters of Iowa City, has been filed with the city clerk. According to the code, of Iowa these petition papers must be filed not more than forty days nor less than fifteen days prior to the primary election, the last of February.

Another result of the change in administrative methods in Iowa City, is the appointment by judge of the district court of a jury commission of three persons, who are Miss Emma J. Harvat, of Iowa City, Ed. Koser, of Coralville, and F. B. Volzinger, of Iowa City.

With the advent of the jury commission for the first time in Iowa City, jurymen will be selected from among the qualified voters of the county who are in good standing in their communities, rather than drawn at random as formerly.

Appoint Jury Commission

The jury commission has already begun its duties and has selected a list of 1500 names of Johnson county voters from which the juries for the next two years will be drawn. These names were taken from lists recorded in the poll books and directories, a certain number being drawn from each ward and precinct.

One half of the 1500 selected by the jury commission will probably be drawn for petit jury service.

The statutes under which Iowa City is now governed as a first class city entitle it to an unlimited number of wards where under the second class classification, the limited number was five.

Council to Reorganize Government
The city council is directed by the code to pass such ordinances as will be necessary to reorganize the city government under the changed ranking. The offices which are now left to the mayor to fill by appointment are the police officers, the health physician, and the street commissioners. City elections will be held every two years as before.

The notice of Iowa City's change in classification was published in Des Moines and Iowa City papers shortly after publication of the 1925 state census but the election this spring will be the first noticeable change from the old order.

Population Increases

The census of 1925 showed Iowa City to have a population of 15,289, just 289 over the prescribed number to entitle her under the new classification, with an increase of 3,256 over the last census, taken five years before.

With scarcely a month left before the final day on which candidates may file their names with the city clerk for entrance in the city election race, conjectures are afloat as to who will be the candidates of the various parties in the mayoralty and other contests.

Harvat May Run

Reports as yet unverified are to the effect that Emma J. Harvat and Mayor J. J. Carroll will oppose each other in the contest for mayor this spring.

Miss Harvat, when questioned declined to make any statement as to whether or not she would be a candidate for the mayoralty, indicated that she was undecided, but might make a statement at some later date.

Low Rates Blamed in Railroad Failure

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Low rates in the Northwest region were blamed for failure of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway, in a letter filed today with the Interstate Commerce commission. It was filed on behalf of the Northwestern Security holders' fair return committee by Charles Osborn of New York, its counsel.

On the road's own motion, the commission began an investigation to ascertain the cause of the re-ownership at the time the road was placed in the hands of a receiver. Briefs are to be submitted by interested parties before Jan. 10.

State Farms Give Profit of $512,000

DES MOINES, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Farms owned by state institutions under supervision of the state board of control in the last legislative biennium returned to the state a net profit of $512,000 from the sale of products, the biennial report of the board to Governor Hannamill, shows. The value of all products sold or used is listed at $1,581,794.76. These farms consist of 12,271.5 acres valued at $2,722,798.20.

Value of livestock owned on the farms is $420,524.33; the value of milk is listed at $412,000 and the net profit from milk at $256,704.13.

The average production per cow in milk for the two year period was 9,950 pounds.

C. of C. to Work for Greater Iowa City

Committees Appointed to Consider Plans for Civic Improvement; Hope to Improve Lighting Conditions

A "greater Iowa City" is the aim of the Chamber of Commerce for the coming year. A cleaner city, a larger city, and a more prosperous city, is the goal toward which it is aiming.

Members of the chamber were recently given cards upon which they were requested to make any suggestions that they might desire to bring before the chamber in regard to the work being done this year. These suggestions are being carefully considered by a committee and when practical will be carried out as far as possible.

The smoke committee, which is working on the soot nuisance, hopes to greatly reduce the amount of smoke of the larger plants, and also that of the residence and smaller furnace owners.

A committee is making great progress on plans to improve the lighting conditions in the downtown district and it is hoped that the near future will see steel standards marking the streets or at least a re-painting of the signs on the curbing. A drive to straighten the system of house numbering is also being discussed. House numbers are not at all systematic in several parts of the city, especially where there are extra long blocks to throw the numbers out of place.

Maintenance of the air mail field and furthering of the road improvement will be continued as well as fire prevention work.

A committee has been appointed to consider means of increasing the safety of citizens. Probably school officials will be asked to help in urging the children to be careful.

A new function not hitherto given much attention will be introduced sometime soon, that of welcoming newcomers to the city. A committee will be appointed who will meet the incoming residents and make them acquainted with the city and its citizens, and help them to adjust themselves to conditions here.

Strub Company to Expand Present Place of Business

The Strub company last night announced the acquisition of the room formerly occupied by the F. W. Woolworth company. It will be added to the present store of the dry goods firm. Work of remodeling the interior, which has already been started, is in charge of Paul W. Schmidt, one of the owners of the building.

Steel girders will support the weight when the partition is removed. A new front will be constructed to conform with the style of the present store and will serve as display space. There will be no additional exterior entrance.

The Strub firm will remove the rug and floor covering department to the new addition. The upstairs rug department will be used for draperies.

Studies Law in Day-time, Edits at Night

STOUCHEVILLE, Jan. 7.—(AP)—H. Ray Kenaston, night city editor of the Sioux City Journal, enjoys the distinction of being the hardest working self-supporting student at the University of South Dakota, at Vermillion.

By day he is a senior law student at the university. When his classes are over for the day, he motors to Sioux City in order to be in on his editor's job by 6:30 p.m. He leaves his editor's desk at 3 a.m. and motors back to Vermillion in time to obtain an hour's sleep before his day's work begins. He manages to get another hour's sleep in the afternoon and does most of his resting and sleeping on Sunday.

Anderson, Nutting Debate California

Question Will Concern Anti-Evolution Legislation

"The house looks with disfavor upon anti-evolution legislation. Iowa will uphold the affirmative and the University of California the negative of the foregoing statement when the two teams meet Thursday, Jan. 13, in the natural science auditorium.

The first speaker of the affirmative will be George B. Anderson, J.D. of Hawarden, editor of the 1928 Hawkeye, who played last year in the "Whiteheaded Boy," who was on the winning intersociety team last year, and who was one of the popular speakers in the University of Sydney-Iowa debate in November.

He is a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity, Irving Institute, Sigma Delta Chi, and Phi Delta Gamma.

Nutting is Team Mate

His team mate is Charles B. Nutting, A.B. of Iowa City, who has taken numerous interscholastic and extemporaneous speaking contests. He is president of Irving Institute, member of the forensic council, Iowa's representative in the Northern Oratorical league contest at Madison last year. He was in the Kansas intercollegiate debate, and represented Iowa in the Sydney-Iowa debate. He is a member of Phi Delta Gamma and Delta Sigma Rho. He is a major in philosophy.

California's transcendental team consists of two of the most experienced debaters of the university, Phillip Stevens Broughton is a senior in the college of letters and science, registered from Sacramento.

He is a major in political science. He is commissioner of debating, and representative to the university executive committee. He is a member of Delta Sigma Rho, honorary debating society. He has had a record of over seven Varsity debates including debates with Stanford, Australia and Ohio Wesleyan universities.

Helbron Second Member

The second member of the team is Louis Henry Helbron, a junior in the college of letters and science, registered from San Francisco. Mr. Helbron is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, a winner of the University Kraft scholarship, and a candidate for Rhodes scholarship from the university. He is a member of the varsity tennis team, and holds three junior tennis titles on the Pacific coast.

Council Gives Vote of Thanks for Gifts

Police Department, Mayor and Building Inspector Present Reports; and Join in Fight for Gas Tax Cut

At a brief session last night the city council pledged itself to letters of thanks to Geo. S. Carson, Dr. J. P. Mullin, and O. H. Carpenter for donations totaling $588.35 for the new firemen's dormitory which has just been completed.

Mr. Carson's donation was for the sprinkler shower which will be installed for the firemen's convenience and was in the form of a check for $500. Dr. Mullin made a donation of $50 and Mr. Carpenter, the local architect in charge of the dormitory designs, donated services valued at $38.25.

Make 246 Arrests

Quarterly reports featured the evening's meeting and that of Assistant Chief of Police John McQuiston showed that during the past three months there had been 246 arrests, exactly one hundred of which included motorists brought in on divers charges.

There were sixty-five arrests made for disturbance of the peace and thirty-two persons arrested on intoxication charges. A new form of culprit was discovered in street car fender riders, two being booked for this violation of the city's ordinances. No arrests were reported on serious charges.

The police statement also stated that during the last quarter of 1926 there were eleven cases of diphtheria reported, two cases of scarlet fever, eight cases of whooping cough, one case of mumps, and three cases of chicken pox, a total of twenty-five. Warning signs were posted in each case.

Carroll Collects Fines

The quarterly report of Mayor John J. Carroll showed that $744.22 was collected in fines on the above arrests and that $649.00 had been collected in costs. Licenses issued by the mayor during this period totaled $620.66 while fees were low in the report with only thirty-seven dollars. Miscellaneous items were placed at $48.

A report from the A. A. Alexander contracting company of Des Moines concerning the College street viaduct now being pushed forward was followed by the report of C. A. Kuchler, city inspector.

According to the Inspector's report 208 building permits were issued. The total amount of cash re-

Founded School for Religious Leaders

Dubuque U. Started in 1852 by Holland Clergyman

[By The Associated Press]
DUBUQUE, Jan. 7.—The need of religious leadership and education among the stragglers of the gold rush of 1849, who halted their quest for fortune to make homes on the Iowa prairies, so impressed Adrian Van Vliet, a Holland clergyman, that he gathered a few young men in his study here and began instructing them with a view to supplying teachers and preachers to the scattered settlements.

That was the beginning, in 1852, of the University of Dubuque, which is the oldest Presbyterian school in Iowa, has made steady growth since that time. It now contains six schools and the enrollment for the present school year is 363.

The theological school stressed by its founder has kept pace with other departments and last year marked the opening of a new Divinity Hall named for the pioneer Holland and in which twenty-one students now are preparing for the ministry. A historical angle of this department is the mission undertaken back in 1902 of training students of foreign birth for the ministry among their own people in this country and in their home lands. This was prompted largely by the great influx of immigrants.

Individual gifts, endowments, and assistance received from the Presbyterian churches all over the country have aided the university in a financial way until a model plant has been completed. This includes seven buildings, valued at about $1,000,000. The present endowment amounts to $646,485.

The first woman graduated from the college of liberal arts in 1915, the advance guard of a large body of coeds that were to follow.

The university claims to be one of the most cosmopolitan schools in the country. By stressing Americanization work, large numbers of students have been attracted from abroad, along with young men and women of foreign-born parents. The per centage of these students ranges from 40 to 60 per cent of the enrollment each year and the university authorities are fostering a condition which they feel creates a broad atmosphere for American youth.
