Army Plane on Way to Hawaii

Professor Munro Asks for Improvement of Courts

3-Motored Fokker Hops Off on Flight at 5:24 O'Clock

Warm Motors for Half Hour Before Ship Takes Air

ROOSEVELT FIELD, June 29 (AP)—Lieut. George Noville, radio operator aboard the "America," wireless a message "Everything going fine" at 6 a. m. The message was received at the hangar.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, Long Island, June 29 (AP)—The three-motored plane "America" took off on its flight to France at 5:24 o'clock, Eastern Daylight time this morning.

The motors of the great plane were warmed up for about half an hour. Then suddenly, as though flung from a catapult, the huge plane shot down the short incline, ran about two-thirds the length of the field, and soared easily into the grey dawn and disappeared.

There was excitement at the field when it was reported that T. Harold Kindkade, Wright motor expert, had stowed himself away as a fifth man on the plane.

Kindkade had confided to newspapermen before the take-off that he hoped to stow away on the plane when it was seen to leave the ship it was reported that he had achieved his ambition.

Kindkade appeared at the hangar sometime after the take-off and disclosed that he had left the plane in order not to handicap it by extra weight when hooking winds.

As the "America" shot down the incline on which it had been perched for six days awaiting a chance to fly, the crowd pressed against the police lines and broke into a thunderous cheer.

Forty-eight seconds after the rope which bound the plane's tail to the incline was cut the "America" rose gracefully into the air and disappeared into the grey mist.

A few minutes later the great monoplane was seen returning, conveyed by an escort of nine planes, and passed directly over the field, flying low. Some of the watchers on the ground said they identified one of the air convoy as Charles A. Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis."

ROOSEVELT FIELD, LONG ISLAND, June 29 (AP)—Commander Byrd issued the following statement just before taking off for France today.

"Whereas I am attempting this flight for many reasons, I hope our countrymen will appreciate the fact that my shipmates, Noville, Acosta, and Balchen are flying over the top today totally for the progress of aviation to which they are devoting their lives. There is, they realize, little glory in the undertaking. There are no prizes awaiting them.

Piquant Phrases of Public Policy

We place so much attention on making laws that we forget to enforce them.—Prof. William B. Munro, Harvard university.

Anarchy lies in public opinion deciding every question.—Professor Munro.

Public opinion is usually right after a time. I am a real believer in that and in the jury system.—Judge John T. Moffit, Tipton.

Let us stop when we elect representatives, and make them responsible for the common welfare.—Prof. William Anderson, University of Minnesota.

If the voice of the people is the voice of God, I am sorely tempted to become an atheist.—Professor Munro.

Library Workers Will Hold Annual Conference Here

Ranck Gives Lecture on Rural Library Service

Samuel H. Ranck, librarian of the public library of Grand Rapids, Mich., will address the eighth annual conference for library workers, which meets here Thursday and Friday, June 30 and July 1, on the topic "Rural Library Service."

Mr. Ranck has been making a study of the rural library for some time, and has pictures he has taken to use as illustrations in the lecture.

Frank K. Walter, librarian of the University of Minnesota, and Eva Canon, librarian of the Council Bluffs public library, are among those who will speak. These, together with Mr. Ranck also lectured at the annual meeting of the American Library Association, held last week at Toronto, Canada.

Margery Doud, chief of the Reading room at the University of St. Louis, and who is at present a student at the university, is included in the list of speakers.

This conference is held through the joint efforts of the extension division and the summer school for library training.

Eastern Murder Case Subject of Group Discussion

Controversy Arises Over Control of Utilities

Members of the Commonwealth conference returned to the public library this morning, tossed aside their scheduled discussion of police power and administration, and indulged in an animated argument on the relation of public opinion to the Sacco-Vanzetti murder case.

But at the afternoon session, the political scientist returned to the more sedate work of the conference, and mulled over their pet ideas for control of public utilities.

By insisting in his opening talk that the policy of trying all cases by public opinion is a dangerous one, Prof. William B. Munro of Harvard brought upon himself blunt disagreement from many of his colleagues.

Suggests Improvement of Courts
"If the courts are defective, let's improve them," Professor Munro asserted. In the next breath, however, he warned against public opinion becoming too great an agency of pressure in the court system.

Such opinion, he later declared, should determine only fundamental policies, unless a state of anarchy were sought.

Prof. Clarence A. Berdahl of the University of Illinois rallied to the defense of public opinion, stoutly maintaining that "every citizen has the right, and even the duty, of giving his opinion." He advised critics of the court system, of which he expressed some distrust.

Boistering up Professor Berdahl's contention were Judge John T. Moffit of Tipton and Prof. H. L. McCracken of Penn College.

Discuss Sacco-Vanzetti Case
No definite conclusion was reached on the famous case at the public library, which a commission is studying to ascertain if a retrial is justified. W. J. Shepard of Brookings Graduate school, Washington, D. C., compared the case to the Dreyfus incident in France. He doubted that Sacco and Vanzetti were guilty by public opinion, and affirmed his willingness for further investigation.

"The Massachusetts court's ruling ought to be final," was the statement of Prof. Thomas H. Reed of the University of Michigan. "Nevertheless we can't take away the right to cuss the judge." He assumed the attitude that public opinion cannot be divorced from the administration of justice.

Though Professor Reed tried vainly to bring the group back to the scheduled discussion of police authority, a dispute over the value of the jury system, which had been intermingled with the Sacco-Vanzetti bywords, continued to hold the attention of the conference.

"The jury is a cross section of public opinion—all except the select classes," was the charge of Professor Munro which served to open the argument on the question.

Commends Jury System
Judge Moffit took issue with him, and vouchsafed his opinion that a jury is a fine institution. Prof. Gale S. Lawrie of the University of Cincinnati maintained that a jury is not a representative body. He was taken to task by Professor Reed, who contended that the jury represents the politics of a situation, and gives trial by public opinion.

President Calls Student Assembly

An assembly of all the students of the university will be held this morning in the natural science auditorium at 11:00 o'clock in connection with the Commonwealth conference which has been held in session Monday, and Tuesday and will end tonight.

President Walter A. Jesup will preside. Brief addresses will be given by the following: Judge Martin J. Wade, of the southern branch of the federal court of Iowa; Prof. William C. Munro, of Harvard university and president of the American political science association; Prof. Henry R. Spencer, Ohio State University; and A. R. Hutton, member of the city council of Cleveland, Ohio.

Coolidge Favors Control of Islands by Civil Bureau

States Approval for Past Government of Possessions

RAPID CITY, S. D., June 28 (AP)—Pacific recommendations to the next congress for administration of American insular possessions is seen in the opinion that the summer white house today that President Coolidge favors the vesting of control over those territories in a civil bureau of the interior department.

It was pointed out that Mr. Coolidge previously had expressed his opinion that the interior department upon any change which would place the insular possessions under a civil rather than a military authority, and his recent visit with Governor General Leonard Wood of the Philippines has tended to strengthen the opinion that the interior department would be the logical executive branch to govern the possessions.

Hughes Agrees
Recalling that a government commission once recommended that interior control be placed in the state department, it was pointed out that no criticism was intended of the present administration of insular possessions by the army and navy.

Charles Evans Hughes, secretary of state, was not inclined to favor control by the state department, and Mr. Coolidge believes the interior department would be more adaptable.

In discussing Philippine conditions with Gov. Wood the president received an intimate picture of life of the islands to supplement the report last spring of Carmel D. Thompson who went to the far east possessions as Mr. Coolidge's special envoy.

When the Thompson report was sent to congress the president directed special attention to that portion which recommended a civil bureau government for the Philippines.

The first thing to command Mr. Coolidge's attention today was the flight of Lieutenants Maitland and Hegenberger from Oakland to Honolulu which he viewed confidentially.

The fact that the late Commander John Rodgers was able to fly a sufficient distance to span the water lying between California and Hawaii even though forced to land because of misunderstood radio signals, seemed to Mr. Coolidge to indicate that the army aviators might be successful.

Excursion to Visit West Side Campus
Another weekly campus excursion will be conducted this afternoon to the west side campus under the direction of Eric C. Wilson, director of the university news service.

Shimek Refuses Apologetic Reply to Rush C. Butler

Professor Denies He Attacked Integrity of Waltonians

Refusing to offer an apology affirming his right to criticize officers of the Izaak Walton League, Prof. Bohumil Shimek has replied to Rush C. Butler, Chicago attorney, in an open letter made public last night.

Professor Shimek resigned as national director of the league and as president of the Iowa division several weeks ago, charging mismanagement of the national administration by Chicago capitalists and suggesting the withdrawal of Iowa Waltonians into a separate organization.

Mr. Butler in an open letter to Professor Shimek last week, asked a number of complaints against the administration conducted by the executive committee of the league.

He charges that this committee failed, upon more than one occasion to carry out the recommendations of the league convention.

"What is the point of holding conventions if a handful of appointive officers can nullify their action?" asked Professor Shimek. This was particularly in reference to drainage measures which he says were provided by the committee on resolutions, of which he was chairman, and which were adopted unanimously by the convention of 1925 only to be ignored by the executive committee.

The resolution, he states, provided for an educational campaign on drainage, for space in "Outdoor America" for that purpose, and for the appointment of a standing committee on drainage.

"While you give much space to an effort to show that my letter was a personal attack, you wholly avoid any reference to the inconsistency in the officially reported statement."

Lack of Evidence Loses $1000 Claim
Dooley Estate Wins Final Verdict in Controversy

The $1,000 claim of Nellie Shields against the Joseph P. Dooley estate ended yesterday afternoon when a verdict for the defendant was returned. Miss Shields claimed to have rendered personal services at the special request of Dooley, and although promised payment, had never been remunerated.

The case was concluded at 3:30 p. m. yesterday, when Judge Ralph O'Dell directed the jury to return a verdict for the estate because of lack of sufficient evidence on behalf of the claimant.

Carries Food to Dooley
Taking the stand for her own behalf, Miss Shields testified that she had performed services for Dooley such as secretarial work, carrying food to him, and conducting some of his business affairs. She testified that she was cook at the Sigma Pi fraternity house, directly across the street from the Dooley home, and that Dooley often sent her to carry out his wishes. He promised to pay her well.

Mrs. Ella Fry, housekeeper for a number of years, also testified for the claimant. She said that while she was suffering from a broken arm, Miss Shields prepared meals for her and for Dooley. She testified to having heard Dooley promise to pay Miss Shields for her services.

Workmen Require Another Month to Complete Viaduct

That only one month more is needed for the completion of the College street viaduct, was the prediction of the contractor, A. A. Alexander, yesterday.

The floor of the bridge is completed and workmen are now laying the street car tracks which are to pass through the center of the driveway. The remaining sections of the hand rail are being put in place and will be completed in several days.

The cement requires a month to dry and set properly. The last of the concrete was poured last week. The approaches to the bridge will be widened and work on them will probably start soon after the fourth of July. Six lights will be added to the structure.

Truck Crushes Life From Boy Against Paving

Accident Victim Dies in Local Hospital From Injuries

William F. Beckica, 18 years old, of Swisher, died at a local hospital at 3 p. m. yesterday as a result of injuries sustained when a six-ton truck crushed his chest.

The accident, which happened one mile south of North Liberty on the new pavement, was a result of Beckica's effort to hop the truck while the latter was moving, according to witnesses. His hold on the vehicle slipped and he fell to the ground beneath the rear wheels of the machine.

He was rushed to an Iowa City hospital by Dr. Chittum of North Liberty, who was called to the scene of the accident. Once there he was placed on the x-ray table but his injuries were so severe that he died before he could be removed to a room.

Coroner George Marech went to the scene of the fatal accident, yesterday afternoon and, on his return, announced that no inquest would be held. Beckica's death was purely the result of an accident Coroner Marech said.

Beckica's home is in Swisher. He is survived by his father, Lewis Beckica, mother, sister, and three brothers.

Funeral arrangements are pending the arrival of relatives in this city.

Pathologist Takes Instructorship at Nebraska School

Fear Meeting May Create Animosity

Japanese Economy is Threat to Peace in Politics

GENEVA, Switzerland, June 28 (AP)—What constitutes the present danger of the tripartite naval conference to the minds of close observers is that it may awaken or even create political animosities.

Not so much danger is attached as it has been to an agreement on the strength of auxiliary war craft Great Britain, the United States, and Japan may bind themselves not to exceed.

This political peril has appeared on the horizon because of the sudden Japanese initiative which indicates that Tokyo, either by conviction that real economy may be achieved, or by political expediency, may back the British in their demand for a reexamination of the Washington treaty at least insofar as battleships are concerned.

Treaty Means Peace
In American circles the Washington treaty is looked upon as something more than a mere agreement to curtail construction of capital ships. In a large sense it is regarded as a new era of tranquility on the Pacific ocean.

The United States having agreed to maintain the status quo of American fortifications at Guam and in the Philippines, and Japan having accepted a ratio in battleships considerably under that of the United States.

Steamer Sights Maitland and Pal 1300 Miles at Sea

Civilian Plane Started to Return

PORTLAND, Ore., June 29 (AP)—The Federal Telegraph company here reported late last night that it had intercepted an amateur radio message from Pearl Harbor stating that the Army Fokker plane was reported 900 miles north-east of Honolulu and that it was well. The message was timed at 6:30 p. m. Honolulu time (9 p. m. Pacific Coast time; 11 p. m. Iowa City time).

Municipal Airport, Oakland, Calif., June 28 (AP)—With more than half of the 2,400 miles of its flight from the mainland behind it, the six-ton Army Fokker plane tonight was still winging its way westward.

At intervals from 7:35 p. m. (Pacific Coast time) until 9:30 o'clock messages from the steamer President Pierce, 600 miles off shore, declared it could hear the aircraft in which Lieut. Lester J. Maitland and Alfred Hegenberger took off here at 7 o'clock this morning, asking radio bearings from the steamer "President Cleveland," approximately 150 miles from the California coast.

The plane, approximately 750 miles off the California coast, reported cloudy weather at 8:30 o'clock. The time the "Cleveland" and the army flyers were passing each other rain was falling and there was about a five-mile wind. The message was received by the Federal Telegraph company in San Francisco.

Municipal Airport, Oakland, Calif., June 28 (AP)—Racing westward over the Pacific ocean with the setting sun, the six-ton United States Army Fokker flight plane, with two airmen aboard, was roaring on to Honolulu late today.

A radio report received by the Federal Telegraph company in San Francisco at 2:44 p. m. said the steamer Sonoma had sighted the plane approximately 750 miles off the California coast.

The big tri-motor Fokker averaged approximately 100 miles an hour up until the time it soared over the Sonoma and disappeared into the west with more than a third of its 2,400-mile journey covered since 7:35 a. m. today.

Race Given Up
The expected air race to the Hawaiian Islands failed to materialize when Ernest Smith, piloting a civilian plane, was forced to return to the airport after having taken off more than two hours later than the Fokker plane.

The air deflector on Smith's plane was damaged and before a new one could be fixed, the navigator, Charles Carter, decided it was too late to start as the army had a lead of almost five hours.

Not so much danger is attached as it has been to an agreement on the strength of auxiliary war craft Great Britain, the United States, and Japan may bind themselves not to exceed.

This political peril has appeared on the horizon because of the sudden Japanese initiative which indicates that Tokyo, either by conviction that real economy may be achieved, or by political expediency, may back the British in their demand for a reexamination of the Washington treaty at least insofar as battleships are concerned.

Youthful Marriages

JOHN COOLIDGE is going to marry Miss Florence Trumbull as soon as he finishes his college course. After that it will be hard to predict what young Coolidge is going to do. Perhaps Cautious Cal will provide his son and daughter-in-law with sufficient money for them to keep on studying. If he does not, young Coolidge may have to find a job in order to keep things sweet in the family.

If the son of the president is as resourceful and as good a business manager as his father, he will not find himself in a predicament. But hundreds of young people who have not yet reached the years of their majority have found themselves greatly handicapped by an early marriage. Many have found it impossible to support themselves. Others have been obliged to give up their college training, or have had to rely upon the resources of parents or other relatives to see them through school.

The question of early marriages has been the subject of many discussions. It is true that many of these marriages have been made on the impulse of the moment. Others have been the result of short period of "puppy love," while still other people have felt that if they did not now "hitch their wagon to a star" they possibly never would. But all of these reasons are not sufficient excuse for youthful marital relations.

A young man when he marries should be able to support a wife, and give her some of the luxuries she rightfully deserves. In the present day it is essential that young people should know proper sex relations and the bringing up of a family. Many marriages have gone "on the rocks" because of a lack of understanding of these problems.

More and more people are beginning to realize that youthful marriages are not the happiest ones. In Europe a young man of the highest or second class of society very seldom marries before he is twenty-five years old. At this age both the man and wife have had a wealth of experience which will enable them to live life more happily. Perhaps if this system were tried on our educational institutions, there would be fewer parasites in our colleges and universities and more people who are able to make their own way in this world.

Smoke Prevention Again

THE Smoke Prevention Association is holding a meeting in Des Moines this week. General problems of steam, heat, and smoke nuisances will be considered.

The Des Moines meeting serves as a reminder of the smoke nuisance in Iowa City. In winter clouds of smoke bellow forth from the chimneys and scatter a flurry of soot over the streets. As soon as the winter nuisance has ceased or diminished, some neighbor starts burning rubbish in his backyard or in the street or alley.

Formulation of laws to forbid such nuisance is necessary, and might well be considered at Des Moines. But laws alone will not create the desired effect. People need to possess an intelligent attitude toward the matter. They should respect their neighbor's feelings and welfare. It should also be recognized that such a problem is a municipal one. The city should be responsible for it as much as it is responsible for the disposal of sewage.

Profiting by Nature

AS education advances people are more and more beginning to realize the importance of outdoor life. This is demonstrated by the growing popularity of outdoor camps and conferences. In Iowa City it is shown by the increasing popularity of the city park, where scores of families partake of the outdoor life and after some healthful recreation in the open air enjoy their picnic lunches.

Seventy families are living in the tent city across the river. This number is at least twice as large as that of those students who had their temporary abode in the colony last summer.

The university took a wise step when it inaugurated the tent city idea, and should be complimented on its foresight. Each year under proper conditions the camp will continue to grow, when more and more people begin to see the advantages of outdoor living and the subsequent physical well-being. The cool, fresh night air has a stimulating influence upon one's sleep, while during the day the atmosphere is not saturated with the dust, smoke and soot to be found in the city. The refreshing breezes are more likely to blow under the trees than in the city where the buildings are likely to shut them and the sunlight out. Naturally the amount of cool and fresh air is much smaller in a room up town than in a tent in the summer camp.

Students who are well physically are more likely to be well mentally, while these students in ill physical health are very subjective to ill mental health, because of their lack of physical resistance.

Living in a tent city is therefore not only cheaper financially but is more economical in other ways in the long run. It affords the student who has been imprisoned in the class or study room a chance to enjoy the fresh air and the beauty of nature. It keeps him in trim, alert at all times and ready to do a good day's studying, which is often impossible in a suffocating, hot city.

Less Alimony—and Divorces

THE Reverend John Thompson, pastor of the first Methodist Episcopal church at Chicago, urges stricter laws governing alimony to curb excessive divorce.

If alimony were given only when absolutely necessary for the protection of women and children, the exploitation of men by divorcees, marriage for support only, divorce on a pretext would be checked.

Belief that a few years residence with a man entitles a woman, when no children have been born, to continued support from him although she has given up her side of the bargain, is based on erroneous and selfish reasoning.

Growing independence of women merits a proportional decrease of alimony, instead of an increase, as has been the case.

Aside from the ethics of the situation which at present has established an unorganized, national group of gold digging wives, Dr. Thompson's suggestion would undoubtedly decrease divorce by making its consequences less tempting.

Modernity—the Scapegoat

"It may be Old Fashioned, but—" the defendant of ante-dated virtue will give with self-satisfied martyrdom whenever a controversy on good or bad, moral or immoral, booze drinking or saloon abstinence arises.

"Old Fashioned" is synonymous of morality, perfection, honesty, the garden of Eden and Heaven and Hell.

Modernity is the goat ridden by sin, suffering, vice, and the younger generation. The obsession that anything modern must be markedly evil, or at least a little spicy, rides rough shod over the minds of the young as well as of the old. That virtue or good can be or are modern is beyond the conception of either.

A little thought and fair-mindedness on the part of both: an interpretation of the present day in broader terms than those of the cruder and more talked of forms of recreation of the past, without sole regard for the courtesies of E. P. Roe, would prove that virtue and vice have not been materially affected by the passage of the last twenty years and that the two generations have a great deal more in common than the hurling of epithets at one another.

A survey made at Princeton university has revealed the astonishing fact that 25 per cent of the students never eat breakfast. Probably many of these 25 per cent, if questioned closely, would have confessed that the reason they never ate breakfast was that it came too close to their 8 o'clock classes. On the other hand, maybe some of them would have testified that they always ate their breakfast before going to bed so they would not have to get up so early.

Playtime is Here
(From The Clinton Herald)

Those who believe that enjoyment of life is the shortest road to everlasting torment should find little hope for the salvation of the American people of this generation. In fact it is not infrequently rumored about by those who look askance on a smiling countenance that the United States is even now passing through the several stages of the decline and fall.

Surely no country, not even Ancient Greece and the Romans, was ever more abundantly provided with the pleasures of life and relieved of more of life's miseries and discomforts than America.

Like the "woman on the white horse" of the nursery rhyme, the people of the United States with their phonographs, pianos and piano-players, radio, orchestras and other music makers have music wherever they go. There are more pastimes to attract people and more leisure to give to those pastimes. This summer millions of men and women in the United States are participating in numerous sports and recreations, highways are constantly congested with motorists pleasure bent, vacation resorts are heavily patronized and the baseball parks and race tracks and pleasure parks draw their usual crowds.

But why should this love of pleasure be cause for anything but satisfaction? To avail himself of all this play the individual must work the harder and faster, for it costs real dollars and many of them to play in this big playground. And when people work harder they need more play. Those who work must play.

New York Today

By BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, June 28. (E.P.S.)—Stephen Graham, the English vagabond litterateur, has been collecting material for a book on the night life of New York. The other day he returned from his lodgings in Greenwich Village and discovered two flappers, somewhat inebriated, dancing in the hallway. He made inquiries of the girls as to why they were so gay.

It seems that a "tired business man" lives on the floor above Graham. This business man, who toils during the day in an office downtown, has a large apartment, sumptuously fitted out and stocked with an enormous collection of drinkables. He keeps open house from 5 until 7 for a number of working girls—stenographers, file clerks and the like, during which time they can drop in for as many cocktails as they want. Between 5 and 7 there is almost a steady stream of girls going up to that apartment.

"That is his hobby," commented Graham. "At 2 in the morning, some time after meeting the 'tired business man,'" Graham went into Texas Guinan's club. He saw the "tired business man" playing leap-frog with the chorus girls on the dance floor of the club. Later on in the morning, he saw the chorus girls partially undressing the "tired business man." They took off his coat and handed it to Tex; they took his watch and wallet and change out of his pockets and trustingly handed them to Tex; they took off his vest, and then began to unloosen his galuses.

"Innocent Merriment," said Graham. "As far as I can see, the great moral question is not involved in what people do at night, but what they do during the day. Night is the time to relax and to seek relief from the pursuit of money and from the pursuit of the other blessings of civilization. New York offers a night life unique among all the cities of the world. But I do discover that 'having a cocktail' in New York never means having one cocktail but at least six."

Graham also related that in his nocturnal meanderings about town, he had taken several young women with him; and that he had discovered that in some speak-easies he could get in on the face of the young woman he had with him, while on the other hand he could not get into some speak-easies on account of the faces of the women he had with him, however well supplied he was with "passwords and cards of intro-

NOCTURNE

Ten and toast with Fitz last night (tea brown; toast black) and Fitz was bemoaning the laconic truth that one of his world-beating harem was a wet dancer.

"What's the matter?" we asked sympathetically. "Is she heavy on her feet?"

"No, I wouldn't say that," replied Fitz, "but his Chesterfield with a green-tipped match. 'But she's heavy on mine.'"

"You know," he commented (the boy is great on literature), "I came across this in an Oxford university calendar of events:

"8:00 p. m. New Theatre: THE RAT."
"8:15 p. m. Queen's Theatre: THE PIED PIPER."

No comment.

"But," lamented Fitz wistfully, "now that absent-minded professors are out of date, I reckon there's no place for the fellow who muzzled his girl and then carried his dog up the sorority fire-escape."

"No," conceded Slim, the waiter, as he grabbed our tea-pots to refill them with hot water, "but there certainly is for the fellow who invents a straw-bait with automatic reversible ear-muffs and a thermometer control."

Old Timely (that's the Western Union clock in this particular greasy spoon) was counting the seconds.

"One!" she said, and by that we understood that Jupiter had begun his lachryman cake-walk with Venus. Anyway, the sky was all lit up. Which of course stimulated a uniformed messenger boy to rush in to Fitz, grab off his cap, throw down a yellow envelope, and after the signatures of all, were performed, to hold out five digits for a tip.

Fitz, who also knows something of palmistry, was shocked!

"Gorgeous!" he commented, "what an interesting hand."

There is an offstage spirit of nepotism operating to hamper and defile public utilities which exist. "The public be damned," put Thomas H. Reed, University of Michigan.

City councils are not competent to operate public utilities—Herman H. Truesdel, University of Iowa.

If councils do wrong, that is the business. It is better to be satisfied and wrong than right and dissatisfied.—Frank G. Pierce, Marshalltown.

Democracy is a neighborhood of fair, and its power is a neighborly hood of feeling of cooperation in common end.—Judge Maria Wade, United States district court.

You can kill a judge, but you can not kill the courts.—Judge Wade.

Those who are successful in their own business can not afford, except through a sense of public duty, to run for office, and will not do the things which ordinarily must be done to be elected.—C. M. Fawcett.

Distrust of democracy has inspired much of the literature on the subject. Distrust of democracy has disgraced most of our city laws.—Frederick C. Howe.

number of members, and to the "financial condition of the League."

Produces Figures

Professor Shimek continues, "You cannot dismiss these as 'vague and bare assertions.' I have the official figures which show these inconsistencies and they cannot be brushed aside or hidden in a fragrant bouquet of personal laudation. The members of the league have a right to know the truth.

"It is to your credit that nowhere in your letter do you defend the cowardly campaign which was conducted against Will H. Dilg in 1926. No one can successfully deny that the campaign was one of slander and misrepresentation waged against a man on the verge of the grave, and this was certainly cowardly.

"As I did not attack the personal character and integrity of your friends in my letter, and as I hold that I had a right to criticize the acts of officers as a member, I must decline to offer an apology. If any apology is due from anyone it should be from you to your friends for handling their case so carelessly," he concluded.

Iowa League Prexy Against Shimek Plan

KEOKUK, June 28 (AP)—Dr. E. G. Wollenweber, president of the Iowa League of Municipalities, in a statement here said that the movement headed by Prof. Bohumil Shimek of Iowa City to organize an advisory conservation body in Iowa is not likely to advance the cause of observation, the purpose of the league, since time would be required for the public to understand the purpose of the new group as they now understand the Izak Walton League.

"Many of Prof. Shimek's objections," he said, "are worth considering, but these reforms should and eventually will be brought about and accomplished by the league itself."

In connection with the state convention of that league to now being held in Des Moines, Dr. Wollenweber said:

"The league will give due consideration to this new proposed movement and the friends of conservation may be assured that the Walton League is not to cease in its efforts to pursue its program along the same principles as it has in the past."

State Walton Meeting Backs National Group

DES MOINES, June 28 (Special)—A firm stand behind the national organization of the Izak Walton League was taken by 100 members representing about thirty chapters, assembled for the state convention of the Iowa division.

"The Des Moines meeting carefully avoided mention of the rival convention called at Marshalltown by Prof. Bohumil Shimek, resigned head of the Iowa division, except when Henry J. Shaw of Grand Junction, made a sharp attack on the Iowa professor.

"The state organization had only two letters from Professor Shimek during his term as president," Mr. Shaw said. "One of these contained his resignation."

Historical Society Elects Nine New Resident Curators

Nine resident curators of the Iowa State Historical society were elected at a meeting of the society Monday afternoon. The names of those elected are as follows: Arthur J. Cox, Marvin H. A resolution of greeting to Thomas H. MacBride, a former curator of the society, and president emeritus of the university, was passed.

The nominating committee consisted of Louis B. Schmidt, Iowa State college; Henry J. Peterson, University of Wyoming; Fred H. Hunter, mayor of Des Moines.

President Dey presided over the meeting.

the value of a state public utilities commission. A. R. Hatton of Cleveland combined various suggestions into the idea of establishing a commission to pass on rates without having power to fix them.

Prof. Thomas H. Reed of Michigan opened the round table, contributing three methods of controlling public utilities: by conditions in the franchise, by police control, and by the commission. He strongly advocated the adoption of the last proposal, giving the commission power to fix rates.

Iowa was regarded as one of few states which do not already have some form of control of public utilities. Furthermore, a distinct improvement in the attitude of private corporations was seen as a result of giving old-time squeezing of rates.

Judge Wade Talks

In a picturesque speech, Judge Martin J. Wade of the federal court for the south Iowa district, dramatically told of the psychological effect of court intervention in public utility cases. He pointed out that the court is forced to set rates that will pay expenses of the corporation.

Judge Wade related his experiences in making such decisions, and discussed on the power of attorneys in swaying the emotions of a jury. "Like a preacher, the lawyer who fills the minds of the jurymen through passion has an advantage over the stumbling lawyer," the judge declared. He added, however, that the "underdog" has an advantage in arousing sympathy with the jury.

Believe King Safe Somewhere in Iowa

DES MOINES, June 28 (AP)—William H. King, vice-crusader and former Iowa assemblyman, who disappeared from Pittsburgh yesterday will probably return to Des Moines in a few days according to his friend Mrs. Rachel Carr, The Des Moines Register says.

The Register quotes Mrs. Carr as saying that she talked with King over long distance telephone Saturday and again tonight.

Banking System Helps Germany

Prof. Melchior Palyi of the University of Berlin in a lecture before the Iowa commerce college yesterday morning, pointed out the close connection between industry and banking in Germany and how the Germans' prosperity results from this system.

"The banks of Germany are closely allied with industry," said Prof. Palyi. "The banking system supports its members, so that a loss of one is a common loss." The national government also supports the banks and often advances public money to protect and aid them. Banks do not "close their doors," in Germany until the whole system is bankrupt.

Credit Easy to Get

The banks are not required to maintain a large reserve against their deposits so more money is placed on the market. Germany is the only country where this system has reached a magnitude. It works for the advantage of all people, reducing the price of money, the cost of commodities, and providing cheap credit.

In Germany there is only one large central bank, the Reichbank, which is located in Berlin. This bank, unlike our Federal reserve banks, enters into competition with the other banks but, as banking is looked upon as a public service, it does not have a marked effect on them.

Big Berlin Banks

The co-operative bank of Germany is another phase of the system. In these banks the deposits of the people and the long term credits of Germany, often fifty years duration, are held.

From Berlin the six big banks of the country maintain branches throughout the country.

"The strength of the banks and their influence upon industry is probably greater, as a whole, than ever before," said Professor Palyi. "It is an interesting study of the two to the advantage or disadvantage of both."

weather conditions on the Atlantic. There appears to be no general areas of bad weather although there are local conditions of unfavorable weather. Dr. James A. Kimball, meteorologist at the weather bureau reported.

Commander Byrd has been apprised of the fact that he will encounter some fog, showers, and low clouds," Dr. Kimball said. "There appears no prospect of any improvement over conditions as they are now and rather than wait indefinitely he has decided to go."

Byrd's announcement came as a surprise to his crew. P. Harold Kindade, motor expert for the Wright Aeronautical corporation, was called out of bed this morning after he had been told before retiring that there was no chance for a hop-off today. About 11 o'clock last night Byrd had told reporters that the weather reports appeared so unfavorable that a hop-off today would be impossible.

Twice before during the past week a take-off has been imminent but not before affairs progressed to the point of sealing the barograph.

"That this action has at last been taken was accepted here as a certain indication that the 'America' would leave this morning.

At 4 a. m. indications were that the flight might not start before 6 a. m.

When the sealed barograph was installed in the forenoon only one of the four men of the crew was at the field. That was George Noville, the flight engineer. Commander Byrd, Bert Acosta, pilot, and Vernat Balchen, relief man, were still resting at Garden City.

Luncheon Honors Gertrude Walker at Dutcher Home

Jane Dutcher, 620 South Summit street, entertained sixteen guests at a one o'clock luncheon yesterday as a courtesy for Gertrude Walker. A three-course luncheon was served at quartet tables, which were decorated with bowls of pink roses.

Afternoon hours were spent in playing bridge, honors for score being awarded.

Miss Walker and Mary Elizabeth Jones leave tonight for Camp Andree, New York. Miss Walker will remain at camp for two weeks, and will then go to Geneva, Switzerland for a month.

Members of the country club were entertained at a dinner-bridge last night at the country club. Covers were laid for sixty at tables decorated with bowls of white daisies, delphinium, and red roses, carrying out the red, white, and blue color scheme appropriate to the Fourth of July. Flags were used.

After dinner hours were devoted to bridge.

The committee included Mr. and Mrs. H. L. McCleery, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Crum, Dr. and Mrs. John Voss, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Dutcher, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Parsons, and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Keyser.

Prof. Charles F. Ward, in behalf of the tournament committee, presented Mrs. Harold L. Hands, winner of the recent open tournament, with a brassie. Addie M. Shaff, winner in the commencement handicap tournament for women was presented with a golf bag.

Committee Adopts Round Table Plan

The American Political Science association's annual convention will be patterned after the round table method of the Commonwealth conference, it was decided Monday morning at a meeting of the organization's executive committee.

Meeting in Old Capitol preceding the Commonwealth conference, for which the members are in Iowa City, the group approved also the compilation and publication of an index of all volumes of the American Political Science Review.

The round tables at the convention at Washington, D. C., in December, will be devoted to activities of the federal government. Many national officials will participate.

Topics include a study of the legislative processes of the McNary-Haugen bill, interstate and regional relations, problems of administrative activities, the reporting of political news, and the diplomatic process.

Prof. William B. Munro of Harvard university, president, was in charge of the meeting yesterday.

Prof. J. R. Hayden of the University of Michigan, secretary and treasurer, reported on membership and finances.

Robber Apprehended

COLUMBIA CITY.—Len Schoeder, sheriff Jim Haynes the other night, that some pesky chicken thief had got into his yard again and made off with two of his choicest hens. Strapping on his guns and tightening his belt, the sheriff started out in hot pursuit. The thief hunt ended when the sheriff ran to earth a weasel which had killed, in one week, forty-eight chickens, dragged their bodies to a hiding place under a board, and was taking them out of storage as seemed necessary.

Minneapolis Concern Draws Work to Completion

The remodeling and installing of up-to-date machinery and new scientific processes of filtration, begun at the People's Iowa City water works, March 2, is nearing completion. The work of installation and the engineering is in charge of the Beecher Cunniff company of Minneapolis, Minn.

Changes have been made in practically every process through which the water passes from the time it is taken from the river until it is pumped into the water mains for distribution to the city.

Ten days ago a new intake was put into use, bringing the water from the middle of the river. The old intakes were in the more sluggish portions of the river, so they were frequently clogged with mud. The current prevents mud-clogging.

Aerator Begins Operation

When the water is pumped into the plant from the crib-wells or filters in the river, it goes first to the spray pond or aerator, a new mechanism which began operation, Saturday, June 25. Here the water is sprayed through twenty-four nozzles and exposed to the air. This process of purification removes from the water algae, which cannot live in contact with oxygen. It also does away with the unpleasant odor, but difference in the water is yet apparent, as the mains are still contaminated.

Latin song by the club. Light refreshments will be served to the close of the program.

Economize on Chemicals

The chemicals cause vegetable matter to settle to the bottom. The amount of chemicals is varied according to the amount of water and the amount of mud in the water.

Student Tour to Visit Penitentiary

Keokuk Dam Included on Itinerary of Excursion

Leaving Iowa City at 6 a. m. Saturday, summer-session students will make the longest excursion of the series to the state penitentiary at Fort Madison, and to the Mississippi river dam and power-plant at Keokuk. The trip will be made in automobiles following highway 161 south to Donnellson, thence east on number 2 into Fort Madison. The excursionists, under the direction of Bruce E. Mahan, will leave from the south entrance of the liberal arts building.

New Sewer Installed

Another improvement in the installation of a new sewer higher than the old one. The old sewer, put in before the dam was built, was too low. In case of high water, the basin could not be washed. The river now can rise six feet above normal without affecting the wash.

OTTO TO HEAR CASE OF STAGG JUNE 30

Stagg is the owner of a rug cleaning factory on Riverside drive, south of the Burlington street bridge, and he claims that he was ordered by Chief of Police Benda to move his establishment from its present location.

Stagg contends that the city has no legal right to bar his business from the locality by zoning restrictions.

He also asks that his temporary injunction be made permanent.

Harvard, Cornell and Princeton Given Outside Chance

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 28.—A rowing season dominated by upsets and form reversals will come tomorrow in the intercollegiate regatta with prospects pointing today to the keenest battle in years for the chief prize in the varsity four mile race down the Hudson.

Coaches of the seven varsity contenders are unanimous in regarding this year's race as the most "open" in many seasons. Four or five of the rivals are so closely matched anything may happen to turn the day to any prospect.

Notwithstanding the views of the men guiding the destinies of the 19 crews entered in the three title races—freshman, junior varsity and varsity—the naval academy has been made a pronounced favorite to win the varsity race, with California instead of the championship Washington eight picked as the far west's chief threat and Cornell and Columbia as the main contenders among the four members of the Intercollegiate Rowing association.

California, intact and in good shape, appears to have an excellent chance of lifting the big prize for the first time, but Washington, if its workouts are sufficient criterion, measures considerably below its 1926 championship standard. Both the navy and Washington have only three survivors of the great boat loads that fought it out for supremacy last year, separated by only a second at the finish.

AROUND THE BIG LEAGUE CIRCUITS

When Babe Ruth poled his twenty-fourth home run of the season in his sixteenth game he tied the pace he set in 1921 with 59 that year. The Babe has gathered his homers in groups of two per game three times this season.

Nothing delights Grover Alexander as much as to whip the Cubs. He has beaten them twice this season. There's a snap of the fingers that carries: "That for you!" by Alexander over to Joe McCarthy when he tames the Cubs.

The most vicious fence-busting attack of the season in a single series came when the Cardinals crushed the Cubs for three straight in 4-5, 13-3, and 11-5 scores. The world champions punched out 55 hits that totaled 85 bases. In the collection were seven doubles, seven triples and four home runs.

While they are spreading these "special days" around the circuit wouldn't it be appropriate to reward Bill Carrigan with some special token? A fellow who is trying to bring the Red Sox to life is entitled to something more than applause.

The first request from Tommy Thevenow when he was carried to a hospital in St. Louis with a fractured right ankle was to install a radio in his room. "I want to keep in touch with the boys," said Thevenow to manager Bob O'Farrell.

Paul Waner was stopped in his hitting streak after hitting safely in 23 straight games. The late Willie Keeler holds the National league record at 44 in a row back in 1897. They don't travel that far nowadays.

St. Louis fans put on an extra celebration following the game of June 22. The occasion was Frankie Frisch passing Rog Hornsby in their swatting duel, Frankie advancing to 331 and passing Rog, who was at 330.

Southpaw Walter Stewart has fulfilled the spring prophecy made by Dan Howley, who upon becoming manager of the Browns, said he had a pitching prize in his Toronto southpaw. The juvenile has won six out of eight for the Browns.

Day by day the American league race becomes top-silled. The Yankees promise to gallop home in front with the White Sox, Athletics and Senators battling for the three remaining first division positions, the Tigers, Indians and Browns for fifth, sixth and seventh places and the Red Sox staggering home in the cellar.

Pressure Filter System Purifies Iowa Pool Water

To maintain the water continually in a sterile condition, the purifying system forces the 500,000 gallons of water in the University of Iowa swimming pool through filters twice every twenty-four hours, says David A. Armbruster, Hawkeye coach.

Faculty members and students, swimming in the huge tank in the field house this summer, are protected from bacteria by the best system ever devised. Powerful pumps send the water coursing through sand filters, and in the process, alum and chlorine are injected to free it from impurities.

So efficient is the system, declares Armbruster, that it will be necessary to drain the tank only once a year. Semi-weekly, a vacuum cleaner or which functions under water removes all sedimentation from the bottom and sides of the tank.

Under the supervision of Jack J. Hinman, Jr., associate professor of sanitation and chief of the water laboratory at the university, samples are tested daily. This rigid inspection reveals the exact condition of the water and checks up on the working of the filter.

A constant temperature of 76 degrees, the best for healthful swimming, is maintained, according to Armbruster. There is no larger indoor body of water in the country.

They call it "summer time" in England, and the change in the clocks is enforced by law. Mrs. William Willett originated the plan for an extra hour of sunshine and this sundial memorial to her achievement was dedicated recently by the Marquis of Camden, who is seen here unveiling the shaft at Chiselhurst, England.

Just Like a Woman Only Woman 'Oilman' is Financial Wizard

Just to be different, Dolly Savory, 20-year-old long distance swimmer, is to attempt this summer to swim the English Channel from England to France, a feat declared by experts to be impossible—at least it has never been done.

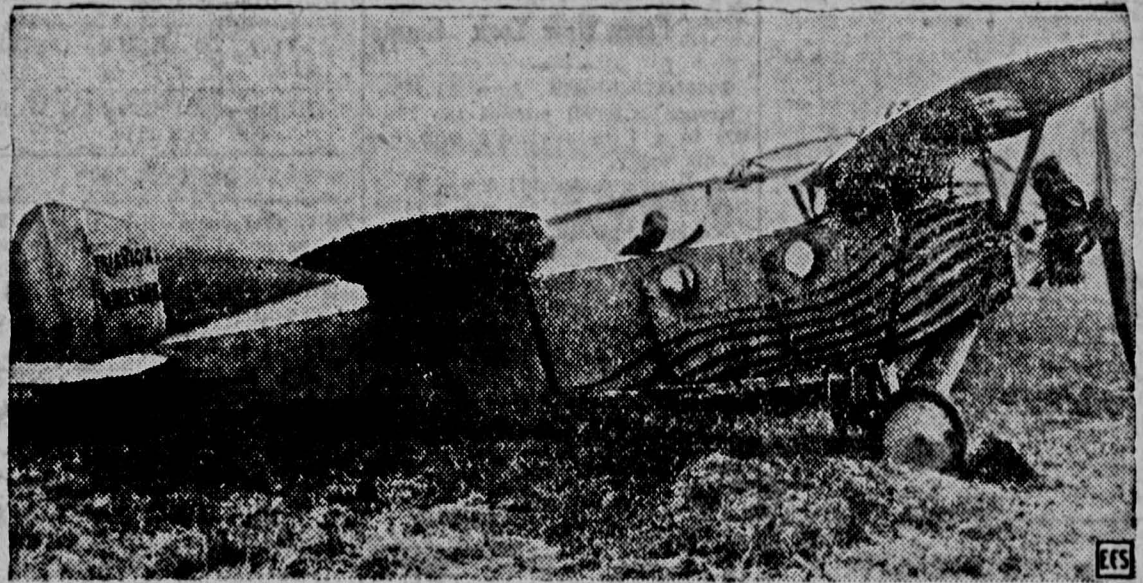

It took only six months for Mrs. Charles Murray to amass $5,000,000 in the oil business. The only woman oil operator in Oklahoma, Mrs. Murray is her own geologist, financial manager and drilling superintendent.

GENERAL MANAGER'S SON TOO

Roland De Malglaive, jr., is the son of the general manager of the French Line, and a post graduate of the Harvard School of Business Administration, but he's learning the shipping business from the ground up, diploma, or no diploma. On the French Line dock in New York he drags cases around just like any other longshoreman, and soon the Longshoremen's Union's will admit him to membership.

Throng Waits in Heavy Downpour to Receive Them

Officers Span Pacific in 25 Hours and 50 Minutes

HONOLULU, Hawaii, June 29 (AP)—Arriving in the sunshine of a new day Lieutenants Lester J. Maitland and Albert Hegenberger of the U. S. Army completed this morning the first flight over the Pacific from the American mainland to Hawaii.

They came unscathed for the army welcome planes lost them in the murky darkness and rain of early morning.

No prize money was theirs. But they received the acclaim of the highest officers of the army and navy, the congratulations of the governor of Hawaii, and the spontaneous whole-hearted applause of the thousands who had waited hours in the rain to greet them.

Lieutenants Maitland and Hegenberger rested tonight happily in the accomplishment of another aviation triumph in the progress of the world and proud in possession of personal telegrams from the president of the United States, praising the skill of Maitland as a pilot, and of Hegenberger as a navigator.

Vessel Sights Flyers

From the time Maitland and Hegenberger took off from Oakland yesterday at 7:59 a. m. until their monoplane rode into Wheeler field, the army air field twenty-five miles from here, they were sighted by only one vessel. They finished the 2,400 mile passage over the Pacific waters in twenty-five hours and fifty minutes. They landed at 8:55 a. m. Pacific time.

The radio beacon signals that were to have guided their functioned only a part of the time; they set their course by "dead reckoning," and by the heavens.

Maitland and Hegenberger were tired and hungry when they arrived. For nearly twenty-six hours they had driven the great monoplane on a coast-to-coast flight from active. They had had nothing to eat, for the chicken sandwiches and coffee supplied by friends had become lost within the plane.

But no happier men ever stepped from a plane than they.

150 Per Miles Per Hour

"I have realized the dream of a lifetime," Maitland told The Associated Press correspondent a few minutes later. "I have always wanted to fly to Hawaii."

On asked for their general impressions of the long flight, Maitland replied, Hegenberger nodding in concurrence:

"My first and outstanding impression is that it is the starting point toward more general distribution and strengthening of military aviation and an important step in reorganization of coast defense."

Asked regarding the step of deviation from the plotted course Hegenberger the navigator answered:

"We knew where we were at all times or very closely so. While we were not exactly on the course every minute of the time we were not very far from it."

Maitland estimated the Pooker's average speed at 150 miles per hour but said he might correct this figure later.

MANA, Island of Kauai, Hawaii, June 29 (AP)—Headwinds tonight were delaying the proposed hop-off of Richard Grace, Hollywood aviator, for the mainland. Grace slipped most of this afternoon.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 29 (AP)—The successful flight to Hawaii of Lieutenants Maitland and Hegenberger stirred official Washington today to a high pitch of enthusiasm and brought as one of its reactions a prediction from Assistant Secretary Davison of the War Department that the two young aviators undoubtedly would be awarded the distinguished flying cross.

President Sends Cable to Fliers

RAPID CITY, S. D., (AP)—President Coolidge sat in his bare and simple office in the high school building of a town of 8,000 and heard of the successful termination and the beginning of two hazardous trans-oceanic flights and from far off Switzerland came the most recent news of what is going on at the Geneva naval arms conference which this country sponsored.

As the word reached him from both press dispatches and the War Department in Washington that Lieutenants Maitland and Hegenberger had arrived in Honolulu, Mr. Coolidge sent a telegram:

"Your success," he called, "furnished evidence of the efficiency of our air forces."
