Legislators Take Up Football

THE first message that has appeared on the horizon of the coming football season was issued the other day by the governor of Wisconsin. He indicated that he planned to call a special session of the Wisconsin legislature in November. The date, he said, had been tentatively fixed among other reasons, so that members would have an opportunity to combine law-making with attendance at the football games.

We hope that the legislators do not become such gridiron fans that they neglect their duties entirely.

Let's Give the Men a Square Deal

WOMEN are now an established factor in business. The sight of women office workers, executives, and professionals has become the usual. Even women taxi drivers in Philadelphia no longer cause stares. An aviatix is no longer a mere curiosity.

But the idea of married women working outside of the home in a business above that of the washboard has not been so readily accepted.

Only last week a woman who had been play supervisor in a city school was discharged because a new ruling forbade the hiring of married women. She is suing, declaring that as a mother she is better qualified than a single woman would be.

Her plea is just. If married women are to be barred merely to lessen competition for the unmarried ones, single men should be dismissed to do the same for family men.

Married women are as competent as unmarried ones. Some companies prefer them. The government offices at Washington are one of these. The time is not far off when workers will be hired according to their ability—not the number of their husbands.

But even then, the married women will have a problem to solve. Their common excuse for working is that they free their husbands from heavy financial responsibility and raise the standard of living for them both. Also that the pleasures of a career are their right as much as men's right.

In theory they are right. But observing the women who are married and still holding their jobs we wonder if they live up to it. Do they free the man and raise his standard of living? Or do they merely retain him as a bread-winner and spend their own salaries on more and better clothes, personal luxuries, and entertainment?

If the man is to give up a bungalow for an apartment, eat canned food instead of enlivened art, dust the living room Sunday mornings, and indefinitely postpone fatherhood, he should be guaranteed something more than a better dressed part-time wife.

In their clamor for equality, women should remember the meaning of the word. There are some today who aren't playing fair.

Chills and Fever

Thomas

It's not elemental, of course; it is not even, should we say, fundamental? In fact its importance is rather small as things in this world go and it doesn't merit a "nota bene." But it's interesting, or isn't anything interesting that lets a nine-year old child show up a riot-answering, killer-chasing, mob-bucking police force?

His name was Thomas; he said so. He came from Kansas City; he said so. In fact, when he hit New York City, he said a good many things for only nine years, chief of which was to a motorist:

"Please, sir, may I help you change your tire?"

Gotham evidently isn't able to take politeness at its face value. Behind each eager proffer is something sinister, something ulterior. Not that the lad merely wanted a nickel or a dime; he was probably going to blow up the Woolworth Tower. So the motorist took Thomas to jail.

The police questioned Thomas. Yes, he was from Kansas City. He had run away to be rid of an unkind step-father. Humph, and another humph! Likely story; melodramatic!

"Now," said a detective, "this is the last time, where you from?"

"Kansas City, sir."

"Walking, catching rides, sir."

The detective withdrew into conference. Evidently something was amiss. Children nine years of age couldn't possibly do it.

"How did you keep your shirt so white?" asked the sergeant abruptly.

"How about those sneakers; they're brand new? Who cut your hair? Why are your hands so clean? What did you eat?"

The replies came tripping on the heels of the queries:

"A lady washed my shirt, sir. Another lady gave me some shoes, and I carried my sneakers, sir. A third lady cut my hair, sir. I washed my own hands and face, sir. I got food, sir, whenever I asked for it."

What's What in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART
(Exclusive Central Press Dispatch)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Chairman William R. Green of the ways and means committee of the house of representatives, where all revenue bills originate, will be calling his group together quite a while before the next session opens, they're telling us, to decide whether or not we're to get any tax reduction in the course of the coming winter.

To decide whether—good gosh! did we understand that correctly?

Why, we thought it was definitely understood of course we were going to get a big reduction.

That's what President Coolidge told us, surely. And Senator Smoot, the administration's great tax expert, said it would be at least $300,000,000. And Senator Robinson, the democratic leader, said it ought to be fully half a billion, if it hadn't been for republican mismanagement. And Secretary of the Treasury Mellon had the surplus all figured out and everything.

How about this whether business? Well, ya see, there's nothing to get excited about. Everything's all right. Only it isn't. Well, that minor exception, the situation's as satisfactory as the most finicky financial expert could desire.

We have an elegant treasury surplus.

Instead of the mere $300,000,000 that Secretary Mellon originally estimated it at, it exceeds $600,000,000. If the cards hadn't been gummed the way they have, the democrats might have had their billion-dollar tax reduction, with a comfortable jag of money left over to start another surplus on.

The trouble is, there are so many things to be done with this present surplus—besides reducing taxes.

To begin with, who knew the Mississippi river, and tributaries, would act up as they have during this last season?

Flood control—that'll have to come out of the surplus.

You can stop right there, if you like. Once let the subject of Mississippi flood control come up in congress—it's going to, and shake Capitol hill to its underpinning—and gooye surplus.

Flood control alone will be discussed in terms of billions.

Boulder dam and a Great Lakes-to-the-Atlantic canal and a few other little problems in hydraulics will clamor for consideration also, but they'll resemble the small change in comparison with the Mississippi river, and tributaries, proposition. Still, even they'll make a three to six hundred million-dollar surplus look sickish.

That was clinch from the minute the Geneva conference blew up. It amounted to a challenge to this country from the British. We may not fully understand yet that that was what it amounted to—because it's hard for an ordinary person to get the significance of all the diplomatic sleight of hand the experts pulled off at Geneva, but our big navy folks will make it clear to us in due season.

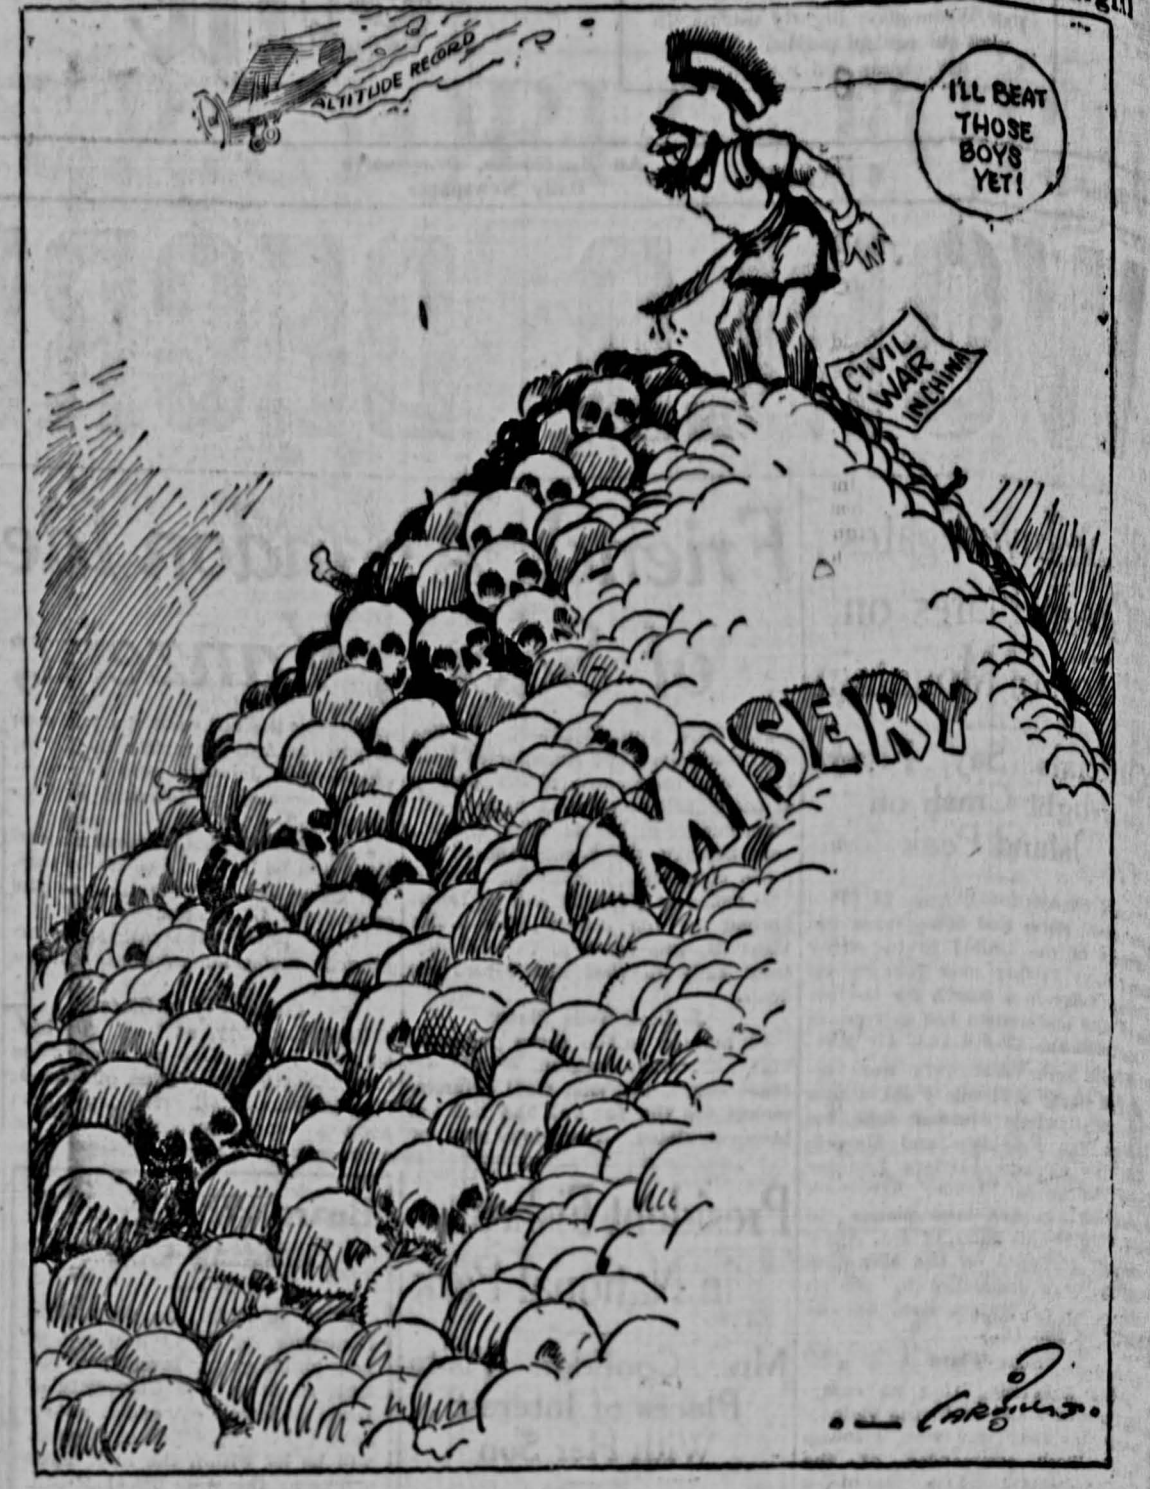

We simply have our choice between letting the British throw it into us, and outbuilding 'em—that's the size of it. Naturally we'll go to work and outbuild 'em.

If it were necessary, it would be easy to tell what's going to become of the rest of our surplus, but it isn't necessary, because this is one of the times when there won't be any core.

However, wuhda the most of our care if they don't reduce taxes? It was only super-taxes they were talking about reducing, anyway.

COMPETITION

The Chinese Revolution

WHILE news concerning trans-oceanic flights, the Sacco-Vanzetti case, the disarmament conference, and the 1928 presidential campaign held public interest, the most interesting developments in the Chinese revolution took place—the defeat of the Nationalist movement.

Chiang Kai-shek, the leader of the Nationalist armies which a few weeks ago swept over half of China, has resigned his position and returned to his home, the little village of Fenghua, one hundred miles south of Shanghai. In making his resignation Chiang Kai-shek said, "Our revolution got into difficulties because of communism." He mourned that his own anti-communistic activities had been interpreted by his comrades as self advancement which caused them to lose confidence in him. The former leader professed to believe that because of personal antagonism toward himself, it was better for his party for him to resign.

However, the facts of interest to the American reader are: the Chinese nationalist movement has, for the time being at least, failed; a great Nationalist declared his opposition to communism; Chiang Kai-shek's resignation followed a series of defeats in an attempt to take Peking, and one of the greatest Nationalist leaders has retired to his native village.

Cooperation, Not Unity

THE eighty-seven parties composing the World Conference of Faith and Order recently held at Lausanne are to present to their denominations the statements and recommendations considered at the conference. Without doubt not a third of the denominations will endorse the proposals.

Although the groups represented professed mutual respect, they found doctrinal unity and federation impossible. It is not possible to apply methods of big business and international politics to religious matters.

Recently in Philadelphia a report made by the continuation committee of inter-church conferences disclosed the fact that the Protestant denominations are losing membership at the rate of 500,000 a year.

In commenting on the situation, the "Troy Record" said, "The chief difficulty is the lack of harmony between denominations and between factions in the same denomination. It is a discouraging job to fight a common enemy with the allies only haphazardly united. Any church so situated dissipates three quarters of its strength that ought to be singly directed toward the forces that tend to tear down the spiritual structures of society."

Other reasons are also given for membership losses. The problem of preventing decrease in membership in the future is one for each locality where small congregations spend their time combating each other instead of joining in attacking a common enemy. World conferences to discuss church unity can do little compared to what small groups can accomplish through inter-denominational cooperation and tolerance.

An honest profession of mutual respect is as important as unity.

Radio Equipment on Planes

THE only plane entering the Dole airplane race which was properly equipped with radio apparatus was that of Arthur Goebel, the winner. By the aid of radio messages Goebel kept on the right course.

Martin Jensen with a faster plane, the "Aloha," might have won first instead of second place, if he had not lost four hours by getting off his course.

Neither of the lost planes, the "Miss Doran" nor the "Golden Eagle," had radio sending sets. If they had been so equipped their occupants could have signaled for aid when it became apparent that they were not going to reach their goal, which would have greatly aided searchers.

A Writer's Fortune
(From The Kansas City Star)

The day of prosperity for writers—some writers—is at hand. Even for books or plays or magazine articles of high literary merit, other factors being comparable, the returns probably never before were so large. But for the kind of fiction that appeals to the popular taste and is adaptable for the films, the compensation is sometimes astonishing.

The estate of the late James Oliver Curwood is appraised at $400,000. This money was made out of stories of the Michigan lumber region and the Northwest, most of them made into moving pictures. It was amassed in a comparatively few years, as Curwood died comparatively young. Presumably the estate will be considerably increased by continuing royalties.

Curwood will not take rank among our foremost fiction writers. Probably he knew this as well as anyone else. From an early contact with the crude life of the lumber region he had an inspiration to depict this life in fiction. He had a remarkable facility for the picturesque and the graphic. He took men and nature in the rough and did not undertake to go very deep into either. But his product, even if superficial, had a powerful appeal. Some of the pictures made from his stories were built at much expense. The photography involved excursions into the wilds of Alaska and the Hudson Bay country. We are indebted to the writer and the producers for many stirring scenes of adventure, of rushing waters, of wonderful mountains and snows, and of the life incident to them. But we do not have in any sense a cycle or a sustained phase of history, not even in the sense of James Fenimore Cooper and his pioneer novels. We scarcely recall his characters. He created no types that will live as figures in fiction. But he made great material use of what he had in hand.

The Book World

The Sequel to "Casuals of the Sea"

"Tommy" Jonkers, who is the Dutch "Tommy" in my "Casuals of the Sea," died recently in Brooklyn," he writes. "He was thirty years old exactly when he died. That makes it exactly seventeen years since he came aboard the old Fernfield, where I was second engineer, as mess-boy. He was then, you see, thirteen, or 'dirties,' as he called himself. A round, blue-eyed young squarthead we thought him. He had a very nice smile and he had one peculiarity which differentiated him from the British mess-boys we had had. He worked like hell to keep our rooms what he called 'tidy.'"

"He had learned English in the common schools in Amsterdam. He lived with his granny in a part of town or on a part of the harbor he called 'de Eye.' It is not spelled that way in maps, but I have not time to look it up. To him and to me, who 'listened,' it was the 'Eye.' His mother was dead and his father was moody as a wandering Tommy fireman in British tramps. Tommy looked as though he might make good if he had a chance."

Philosophy and Living

Among the last works of Gene Stratton-Porter were a series of editorials written for McCall's Magazine which brought into the offices of that periodical letters at the rate of two thousand a week. These little essays on the philosophy of living have now been collected into a book under the title, "Let Us Highly Resolve," and will be published by Doubleday, Page & Co.

Evolution of Music

It would take a library of many volumes, months of time, and a distinct flair for research, before one could pick out of the great mass of literature on music and musicians the information so readily presented in a single volume in Dr. Eaglefield-Hull's "Music: Classical, Romantic, and Modern" (Dutton). It is a question whether one frequently by "listening-in" to broadcast music is not in danger of developing a careless, casual habit in interpreting what is heard.

Kathleen Norris' new novel, "Barberry Dush," follows "Certain People of Importance," "Little Ships" and "Hildegarde" in line of success. Set in California, the California from the days of the forty-niners to the present, that Mrs. Norris has made her own, it tells the story of a girl who on the brink of happiness is confronted with a past that threatens to wreck all the dreams that were so nearly actualities.

Air Preliminaries

(From The Des Moines Register)

Announcement of the American Express company's program of transcontinental air package service, with everything worked out in agreement with the air carriers, is in reality an announcement that one of the two big steps preliminary to passenger and freight aviation development at the existing development in Europe has been taken.

Obviously the air carriers—take for illustration the Boeing company that is delivering the air mail between San Francisco and Chicago—are not in any position to deliver express themselves. Arrangement whereby they, like railroad carriers, would transport packages from terminal to terminal, distribution from terminals to through existing express company facilities, is a self-evident sane solution.

The second thing to be worked out is passenger insurance. Insurance is available on European air lines at low rates. Some of the companies add insurance to their tickets at an extra cost. Insurance in general for air travel is sold much as travel insurance is sold at our railway stations—when the ticket salesman happens to think about it he offers a cheap travel policy, and many times sells it.

Passenger travel over well organized and equipped and operated lines is not an emergency; it is just fast transport. The insurance part will start on cautious estimates, and will be marked by steadily lowering rates. It is all new now. The passenger lines are barely starting. Records of sound operation, proven wholly practicable abroad, are yet to be made here.

The thing to note is that the preliminaries of correct organizations are being attended to.

The Educated Sex

(New York World)

Almost two-and-a-half times as many women as men attended the summer sessions of Columbia university, according to figures released yesterday. These disproportionate numbers are mainly due to the presence of nearly 9,000 teachers; the great majority of teachers are still women.

All the same, those who fear that higher education is becoming feminized will find food for gloomy forecasts in the figures covering a number of years. In 1920, according to the Federal Statistical Abstract, there were 44,925 men college students, and 10,761 women, more than four times as many men as women. In 1910 there were 119,578 men and 43,441 women, not quite a 3-to-1 ratio. In 1924, World Almanac figures, there were in collegiate departments 289,817 men and 196,482 women, a proportion of about 10 to 7—but in the professional department there were 85,865 men and only 5,651 women.

Unless the earlier figures were very incomplete, the number of college students has in thirty-four years been multiplied by eight; and women are gaining much faster than men in the general cultural courses. They have been called in the United States the Educated Sex. Are they by way of becoming the Educated Sex?

The lecture was a continuation of the one given a week ago on the same subject, and illustrated the process of smelting and refining the copper.

The first two reels of the motion picture showed the milling process by which the ore is concentrated until there is sufficient amount of copper to be worth smelting.

Another group of reels pictured the smelting process, how metallic copper is separated from concentrated ore. The refining of the copper as it comes from the smelter, particularly by the electrolytic process was illustrated. The recovery of other metals such as silver and gold in the process was also described.

The films further pictured the fabrication or manufacture of refined copper into commercial products, showing the rolling out of sheet copper, the drawing of copper rods and different-sized wires, the twisting of the wires into cables, and the testing of the strength of the wires.

Professor Whitman commented on the references to the use of metals in ancient times. The ancients in their use of bronze evidently knew the mixture of copper and tin as they occur together sometimes in nature in a form more easily smelted than the separate constituents by the early crude methods, said the lecturer.

Though brass, which is a mixture of copper and zinc, is mentioned in the Bible, probably bronze was meant, Professor Whitman believes, the confusion in terms being made in the translation.

Whitman Finishes Copper Lectures

More than fifty per cent of all copper produced in this country is used in the electrical industry, according to Prof. James L. Whitman of the department of chemistry in his lecture on "The Story of Copper" at 7 p. m. Monday in the chemistry auditorium.

The lecture was a continuation of the one given a week ago on the same subject, and illustrated the process of smelting and refining the copper.

The first two reels of the motion picture showed the milling process by which the ore is concentrated until there is sufficient amount of copper to be worth smelting.

Professor Lauer Talks Over Radio

Prof. Edward H. Lauer, director of the extension division, was the speaker at the first of a series of lectures to be given by professors from the university of Iowa over the university radio station WSUI. Professor Lauer's subject was "Dormitories."

The talk dealt with the conditions existing in the dormitories at the University of Iowa. Up to the present time there has been a demand for more dormitory rooms. Currier Hall has been enlarged and plans have been suggested to convert the present university hospital building into a dormitory when the new hospital on the west side is finished and occupied.

The next lecture of the series will be given by Dean Robert E. Rienow. His subject will be, "Earning One's Way."

Court Dismisses "Dead" Man on Conduct Charge

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 (AP)—A dead man was dismissed on a charge of disorderly conduct in the court of domestic relations this morning.

Once before he had been reported "dead" but later turned up alive and appeared in court on the complaint of his wife.

The man, Robert Lee, 42 years old, left his wife early this year. Nothing was heard of him until several months later, when a clipping from an Alliance, Neb., newspaper, telling of the death of a Robert Lee in a cloudburst there was sent to Mrs. Lee.

Early in July, Lee was seen in Chicago, by his step-son, John J. Pazine who had him arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct.

July 22, Lee was arraigned before Judge Burke on a disorderly conduct charge. The case was continued until today and Lee went home with his wife. Late that night, according to testimony introduced at an inquest later, he got out of bed and drank the contents of a bottle of grain alcohol. He died soon afterwards.

Chamberlin Sees Shut-In Children

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 23 (AP)—After spending a full day which included a review, parades, visits to shut-in children, talks over the radio and breakfast, luncheon and dinner engagements, Clarence D. Chamberlin, New York-Germany flyer, left Omaha tonight for Denison, Iowa, where he will spend a few hours before going to Fort Dodge.

During the day, Chamberlin visited every "kid" in town who was not in a position to look upon a hero of his or her own accord.

When he asked the children at one institute how many were going to fly when they grew up, fully two-thirds of the little shut-ins raised their hands. At another children's home, several hundred offered to accompany him on his next flight across the Atlantic.

Farmers' Taxes Lessen as Land Values Decrease

DES MOINES, Aug. 23 (AP)—The Iowa Farm Bureau federation estimates that Iowa farmers will pay approximately $650,000 less in taxes during the coming year as a result of the reduction in farm land valuation approved recently by the state executive council.

Federation officials appeared before the council to argue for a reduction in taxable values.

President Hearst presented reports on 1,000 farms to support a contention that the return was not in keeping with the old valuation.

The 1927 valuation will be $2,279,740,461, compared to $2,345,052,439 for 1925. The acre valuation average is $66.20 this year against $68.20 two years ago.

State Fair Ready for Opening Day

DES MOINES, Aug. 23 (AP)—Iowa's seventy-third annual state fair opens tomorrow. Everything was in readiness tonight, officials announced, for a ten day exhibition that is expected to bring a new attendance record.

Livestock and other exhibits were virtually completed today, although the first two days will be designated as preparation days and the fair will not be considered under full headway until Friday.

An eighty acre tent city housing exhibitors and spectators who will remain most of the fair period, was gaining rapidly in population today.

University Hospital Aids All Indigents

DES MOINES, Aug. 23 (AP)—Polk county Supervisors have been assured by officials of the university hospital at Iowa City that the hospital would care for all the indigent patients this county sends to the institution.

This was the statement of John M. Stewart, chairman of the board, after a trip to Iowa City to determine whether this country was receiving full value for its share of the support fund raised by taxation for the hospital.

By increasing the number of commitments the county officials hope to avoid a special tax increase to enlarge county hospital facilities.

SPORTS ALPHABET

Ask the average sports fan to name the outstanding sports celebrity whose name begins with the letter "P" and the probabilities are that he would mention Charley Paddock, Herb Pennock or C. C. Pyle. He would if he first gave the list due consideration.

Among the other outstanding members of the same family, however, are: Roger Peckinpah, Wallie Pipp and Jeff Pfeffer (who's still in the game as coach).

Gerald Patterson in tennis. Allan Parke among the jockeys. Eric Pedley, in the polo ranks. Otto Peltzer, German runner. Paoli, French weight thrower. And George Pease, of grid fame, Cornell.

Rienow Places Students as House Boys; Service Gives Satisfaction

Robert E. Rienow, dean of men at the university, has on file a number of applications for the position of house-boy. The Dean originated this form of employment two years ago and so far he has not received a complaint as to the quality of service rendered, he says.

"Maid service is not always available when people want it. Many of the household duties, such as beating carpets, waxing floors, and airing mattresses are too strenuous for the average girl to undertake. There are but few girls that are capable of doing the variety of work that it is possible for a boy with the proper training to accomplish."

These are the three reasons, the dean says, upon which he based his conclusions that the services of a house-boy would be much in demand.

Chooses Carefully "Remember, though, I do not go to undertake this kind of work," cautioned Mr. Rienow. "It was one of a family of ten children myself and I am sufficiently familiar with household duties to know, after a short conversation with a boy, they will visit Mrs. Ensign's home. Mrs. Howard Gordon, of Davenport, formerly Betty Ensign of the class of 1923, is also visiting her parents here.

Iowa Cross Country Schedule Includes Conference Event

Three Big Ten varsity dual runs, the conference championship event, and two races between the freshmen and the varsity reserves comprise the University of Iowa cross country schedule, announced Coach G. T. Bresnahan.

The varsity harriers will race against Minnesota at Minneapolis, Oct. 22, and will meet Wisconsin at Madison, Nov. 12. Harry Gill's Illinois team will furnish the competition on the Iowa course Nov. 5.

Freshmen will compete against the varsity reserve here Oct. 22 and Nov. 12. Coach Bresnahan said. Medals will be given the place winners.

Together with the Hawkeye football team, the cross country runners will appear as an attraction at the Minnesota and Wisconsin homecoming celebrations. The Illinois harriers will accompany the football team to the Iowa homecoming.

Coach Bresnahan's teams have beaten Minnesota during each of the past four seasons and have defeated Illinois twice and tied once. Wisconsin took narrow victories in 1925 and 1926.

Practice for the Iowa candidates will begin Sept. 19, according to the coach. The backbone of the team will be formed by Captain Hunn, co-champion of the Big Ten, and the three minor letter winners, Brady, McCammon, and Elliott.

Mutschman Calls American English Language Unstable

Prof. Henry Mutschman, visiting lecturer in the English department from the University of Dorpat, Estonia, spoke to the Kiwanis club on "The American Language" at the regular luncheon meeting at the Red Ball Inn yesterday.

Professor Mutschman has been collecting material for a paper on this subject to be presented at Goettingen university in Germany next fall.

In his talk the speaker emphasized the fact that the American language is at present unstable and in the making, but that the American language of the future will come from the middle west.

He says that some day there will be classes in the American language in the European universities because the demand is already being felt by those students who expect to come to America, and who want to study American English instead of British English.

Guests of the club were: Gilbert Schwartz, of Washington, D. C., guest of George D. Koser; Prof. E. D. McPhee of Toronto, Canada, and Dr. Dwight C. Ensign of Detroit, Mich., guests of Prof. Forest C. Ensign.

Purdue Mails Out Application Blanks for Grid Tickets

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Aug. 23—Between 21,000 and 22,000 application blanks for Purdue's home football games are being mailed from the office of N. A. Kellogg, director of athletics this month. The huge task of preparing the applications is practically completed and by the end of the month all of them will be in the mails.

The list includes life members of the Ross-Ade foundation, alumni, ex-students and general public. Those desiring application blanks, whose names are not on the athletic department's list may obtain them by addressing C. S. Doan, ticket manager Purdue.

The first home game of the season is scheduled for Oct. 1, with DePauw. No reserved seats will be sold for this contest, the general admission price will be one dollar. Oct. 29 will come Purdue's first inter-sectional game with a far western eleven, Montana State.

The homecoming contest this year will be with Northwestern, on Nov. 5.

The closing home tilt is scheduled with Franklin for Nov. 12. No seats will be reserved for this contest.

The game with Montana State will attract considerable attention here, as the western eleven had a fine record last year and according to reliable advices, is anticipating its most successful season in many years during 1927.

The application blanks contain complete information regarding how tickets may be ordered. Filing of orders will begin Sept. 10.

Commander Silvio Scaroni, famous Italian flyer, who says Marconi is now experimenting with wireless control of aircraft. Inset, the latest portrait of Senator Marconi.

By DAVID GLICKMAN SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 23 (AP)—Electric, steam and eventually radio-driven airplanes will soon supersede the gasoline-motored machines that pioneered the airplane. Scaroni predicted dirigible air liners will be in operation between California and the Hawaiian islands within five years, connecting with airplane lines from New York. He believes dirigibles are more practical for long distance flights than heavier-than-air machines, because they can carry sufficient freight and passengers to become profitable.

Wheat Market Grows Materially Weaker Corn, Oats Higher

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 (AP)—Wheat developed considerable weakness today despite early firmness due to recent frost and rust damage claims. More bearish estimates regarding the wheat production of the three western Canadian provinces were chiefly responsible for the downturn in values. At the finish wheat showed a net loss of 5 1/2 to 7 1/2c, corn was 1-8 to 3-8c higher, oats 1-8 to 1-9c up and provisions varied from 1c advance to 1 1/2c decline.

Initial firmness in Chicago wheat was due to reports of frost in southern Manitoba and on scattered bushings. Winnipeg, however, failed to heed the frost reports and developed a weakness which was soon reflected on the market here.

Previous frost damage reports were minimized today by a report from a crop expert traveling in the Canadian northwest. He said that the production in the three provinces previously would make 430,000,000 bushel of wheat with two or three weeks of good weather.

There was good commission buying on the decline, but trade was not large. Forecast was for warmer weather in Canada and the American northwest, with no rain of consequence.

Corn was firmer early, only in ease off under selling and then recovered somewhat on reports of frost in parts of Minnesota and Wisconsin. Wet and cool weather prevailed over the corn belt of the central west which was regarded as delaying maturity of the crop.

Domestic cash demand for corn was better with shipping sales of 280,000 bushel. The Kansas report indicated about 15 percent of this year's crop would be soft. With the addition of four more counties in Indiana steady to 1-2c easier. Local sales 161,000 bushel. Booked to arrive 54,000 bushel. New York estimated export sales at 500,000 bushel.

Local corn offering was small. Receipts estimated 101 cars. Large applied on previous contracts. Local sales 2,215,000 bushel. Cancellations 212,000 bushel. Booked to arrive 30,000 bushel.

Oats finished 1-4 to 1-5c higher in local market. Demand good and offering fair. Receipts estimated at 140 cars. Sales to go to store 100,000 bushel and local sales 115,000 bushel. Booked to arrive 15,000 bushel.

Former Champion Shoots Marvelous 67 to Top Field

Johnston in Second; Von Elm Cards a 154 to Place

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 23 (AP)—Bobby Jones showed every sign today of recovering his title as national amateur golf champion from George Von Elm, from whom he lost it in the finals two years ago and to whom he lost it last year. He shot a marvelous 67 today at Minnikahda to total 142 and led the field of qualifiers, while Von Elm was struggling to get a 76 to qualify with 154.

Johnston in championship play has a 11 been recorded and never but shot 114 for a major tournament. That was in 1924 when Clarke Kirkwood of Philadelphia, set the same figure at Merion Cricket club.

The British open champion scored seven birdies and nine pars, going on over on only two holes where he was not quite so deadly as on the other holes.

Johnston Takes One Off Par Second to Jones was Jimmy Johnston, of the home club, who took one stroke off par today with a 71 as total 145, only three strokes behind the leader, who has thus led the medal play for three years in a row, taking 143 last year at Baltusnet.

Von Elm was far off his game on the first nine when he needed three strokes over par, but he recovered enough of his misplaced toebach to finish his round with a 76 to total 154. His performance yesterday included seven birdies and nine pars. Only two holes was the former champion forced to go over par.

Contrary to expectations among some of the veterans, who still deny that youth must be served occasionally and in some measure, the youngsters who showed the way yesterday were the winners.

Former Champs Qualify Three former champions, in addition to Jones, were today to match play. "Chick" Evans, Francis Olmstead and Max Marston, while three others, William C. Fownes, Jr., Robert A. Gardner and Lindsay S. Deaghs failed to qualify.

A score of 155 for the two days was necessary to qualify with one at a struggle, while the 22 places were completed by playoff of those scoring 156.

Bobby Jones Flashes to Front at Minnikahda

BOBBY JONES Bobby Jones flashed a brilliant brand of golf yesterday when he turned in a card of 67 to top the field of qualifiers with 142 in the National Amateur golf tournament being played over the Minnikahda course at Minneapolis.

Bobby Jones flashed a brilliant brand of golf yesterday when he turned in a card of 67 to top the field of qualifiers with 142 in the National Amateur golf tournament being played over the Minnikahda course at Minneapolis.

On the first hole, Eddie Held, St. Louis, Maurice McCarthy, New York, and Frank Delp, Portland, Ore., Elsworth H. Augustus, Cleveland, and David Ward, Grand Rapids, Michigan, qualified.

Rudy Knepper, Sioux City, Watts Gunn, Atlanta, John Vavra, Cedar Rapids, Howard Walton, Chicago, Albert B. Brodbeck, New York, and John W. Dawson, Chicago, went on to the second hole seeking the two vacant places. Knepper qualified at the second hole and Dawson and Vavra were eliminated, leaving Gunn, Brodbeck and Walton to fight it out at the third hole for the single place left to play.

Walton got a long putt down for a birdie two at the short third and completed the select class, leaving Gunn, the intercollegiate champion, and Brodbeck, New York amateur titleholder, out after a struggle.

Players qualifying and their scores included: Chick Evans, Chicago, 33-37-75-150. John McKinlay, Jr., Chicago, 29-38-77-154.

Harry G. Legg, Minneapolis, 28-29-77-153. George V. Rotan, Houston, 27-40-77-151.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23 (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals had a merry batting session today and made a clean sweep of the three-game series with the Phillies by winning 13 to 3. The Cardinals made four home runs during the game, three by Sherdel, Hafey and Schulte coming in the fifth inning when eight runs were scored.

Hafey and Schulte's each happened with two men on base. Ray Blades hit the first homer of the game in the second inning. Every Cardinal but Schulte in the line-up scored a run or more.

Smith to Return as Candidate for Backfield Berth Don R. Smith is one of two senior letter men who will be candidates for backfield positions on the University of Iowa football team this year. His home is in Des Moines.

Helen Gets Away to Good Start

Making her first appearance in the national tournament since she ended her three-year reign in 1925, Miss Helen Wills started impressively Monday her battle to regain the American women's tennis championship.

She defeated Miss Josephine Crookskank, California junior, 6-0, 6-1 in the first round. Inset demonstrates holding the racket for that famous back hand slashing attack, which she used effectively Monday.

Smith, like Cubel, his senior teammate, depends on speed in his ball carrying activities. He is, however, considered a trifle more shifty in play than the track captain.

In his high school days at West Des Moines, Smith was an all-state quarterback, but now plays a half-back position on the university squad.

Smith weighs about 165 pounds and is five feet ten inches tall. He is built to stand concussion which halfbacks are heir to, the coaches say. They see in him a player capable of a burst of speed at the right moment, somewhat disconcerting to opposing players.

An idea of his speed can be obtained by the fact that last winter, without practice, he ran fifty yards on an indoor track in 50 1/2 seconds, only two-tenths of a second from the Big Ten record.

Young Halfbacks to Bid for Places on Illini Eleven

URBANA, Ill., Aug. 23—Although Bob Zuppke described the new material for the University of Illinois football team as heavy and slow, the coach was thinking particularly of the linemen as there are several newly-fledged sophomores who can step along, even if they are not Granges.

Doig Mills of Elgin, a figure in state basketball tournaments, is a back who is fairly fast and has talent as a punter. Mills weighs 160 pounds, not bad for a back. Frank Walker of Urbana, is faster than the average and despite his 155 pounds the varsity players last fall found him hard to bring down when he escaped to the open.

C. V. Hall, an all-state quarterback at Bloomington high school, is a good blocker and tackler. One of the fastest freshman backs in last fall was E. S. Winsor of Cleveland, Ohio.

Fred Humbert, 175-pound fullback from Geneseo, K. E. Fields of Elkhart, Ind., W. Y. Frenz of Danville, C. V. Myers of Champaign, P. O. Flood of Blackwell, Okla., and R. W. Seeman of Maywood will all be observed closely.

Garland Grange, who says he is coming back is more likely to be tried at end than in the backfield. Red's brother is fast and big, weighing 170 pounds, just where the field Harold tipped the scales as a sophomore. Garland has been held out of football for two seasons by an injured shoulder dating back to his high school days.

Elkins Abandons Gridiron LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 23 (AP)—Fait "Chick" Elkins versatile University of Nebraska athlete, who won the national decathlon championship at the A. U. meet here last July, will not play football for the Cornhusker team this fall he announced today.

Grimm Fills Role as Blocking Half on Hawkeye Team

The role of the self-sacrificing blocking halfback was played well on the University of Iowa football team by Lloyd A. Grimm last fall. Grimm, a Wapello product, returns Sept. 15, as one of twelve Hawkeye letter men.

It is a settled football tenet that no backfield can gain ground without at least one good blocker. In 1921, Aubrey Devine of the Iowa team which won the western conference championship, was assisted by his brother, Glenn, who seldom received the credit due him.

The team of 1922, which shared the Big Ten title with Michigan had Craven Shutworth, one of the most efficient blocking halfbacks in recent years at the university.

Style of play developed at the University of Iowa by Durt Ingwersen demands a powerful blocker and Grimm, a sophomore, last season was assigned to this task.

Grimm is a 190-pounder, six feet one inch tall. Of compact build, with wide shoulders and bulky legs which almost are invulnerable to injury, Grimm is credited with some crashing interference play last year.

Deering Conceded Trap Shoot Crown VANDALIA, O., Aug. 23 (AP)—The second day of the Grand American trapshoot ended abruptly this evening with Guy V. Deering conceding the sweep in an uncompleted contest, when a terrific wind and rain storm swept across the range.

Deering, president of the amateur trapshooting association, from Columbus, Wis., broke 200 straight today, duplicating his feat of yesterday, and enrolling himself as a candidate for Grand American long run honors.

Rain Causes Jack to Halt Training

Abandons Road Work But Takes Some Exercise

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 (AP)—Hard rains during the night and early today turned the Lincoln Fields race course into a chilly, uninviting place for Jack Dempsey. As a result, the former world's champion was forced to abandon his plans for road work, but he managed to get in a little exercise.

Dempsey apparently is out to the Lincoln Fields camp to stay. He looked the picture of supreme condition displaying the readiness which characterized his old time ring days.

With Dempsey removed to the quietness of Lincoln Fields, much of the interest in the fight centered on the sale of tickets today. Tex Rickard was slinking around his headquarters, very much in hiding.

Every time he shows himself, he is attacked from all sides by parties who want this or that concession, or have an uncle who once dug up gold with Tex in Alaska and therefore figure they are entitled to a couple of front row seats.

Business was brisk at the ticket offices with the public forced to buy "sight unseen" or not at all.

Tunney plans to leave for the west about the end of the month.

Radicals' Bodies Lie in State as Protests Continue

Friends Have Trouble in Obtaining Place for Purpose

BOSTON, Aug. 24 (AP)—The bodies of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti lie in state at a funeral parlor in the north end Italian section from tomorrow afternoon until Sunday, the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee announced tonight. Sunday afternoon a funeral parade will march through the downtown streets and past the state house to Boston common, where the caskets will be placed in automobiles and the bodies taken to Forest Hills cemetery, for cremation.

Extension of a city ordinance requiring burial within four days of death was granted by city health authorities late today, otherwise the funeral must have been held before midnight Friday, ninety-six hours after the men were executed at Charlestown for murder.

No Religious Appurtenances
Plans to have the bodies lie in state until the time for cremation, set setbacks today when the proprietors of several north end halls refused to lend their buildings for the purpose.

A funeral director offered the use of part of his establishment and agreed to remove the religious appurtenances which in life the dead men scorned. Both died firm in their refusal to re-embrace the Catholic religion of their childhood.

PARIS, Aug. 24 (AP)—Radicals, apparently determined to keep up the Sacco-Vanzetti agitation, made an attempt to carry out another demonstration in Paris tonight. A column of three hundred collided with the police in the Boulevard Sebastopol and numerous shots were fired. The police quickly scattered the mob, however.

At Nancy laborites sought to form a protest parade, but were dispersed by mounted gendarmes. Store windows were broken and slight injuries were inflicted in the scuffles.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 24 (AP)—A one-hour general strike as a protest by Mexican organized labor over the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti was widely observed in Mexico City from 11 o'clock to noon today. Public automobiles, street cars, and telephone services were suspended and most of the factory workers abandoned operations.

A similar one-hour strike in the theatres and moving picture houses was scheduled for tonight.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Aug. 24 (AP)—Two thousand manifestants issued from a protest meeting organized by the Sacco-Vanzetti committee, descended on the center of the city tonight. Mounted police charged them with drawn swords and temporarily dispersed the assembly. Mobs, however, repeatedly gathered at various places keeping the police busy until midnight.

Aurora Brilliant
CHICAGO, Aug. 24 (AP)—The engaging questions, the tricky blocks, and other befuddling appurtenances of the psychiatrist, employed by the Chicago police to reveal subnormality in persistent disturbers showed Aurora D'Angelo, 18-year-old Sacco-Vanzetti demonstrator as having an unusually brilliant mentality.

The girl who twice headed sympathetic parades and twice landed in jail for her enthusiasm was given the psychosis test yesterday and the result made known today. She, however, was not released from jail. Aurora will face a charge of disorderly conduct tomorrow. There is another disorderly conduct charge and two of inciting a riot against her.

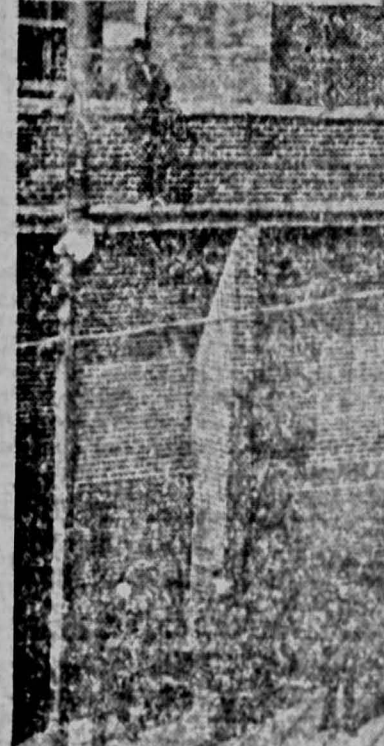

Miss D'Angelo is a high school student. Although boasting that she is an anarchist she intends studying law at the University of Michigan.

Novelist's Son Dies Penniless

NEW YORK, Aug. 24 (AP)—Murray Roe, designer of the Riverside drive viaduct above Grant's tomb, and once wealthy son of the Rev. E. P. Roe, the novelist, was found dead today in Central park, clad in cheap clothing and with only a watch, a little more than $11 and some letters in his pockets.

Before physicians established that his death apparently due to asthma, police uncovered the remarkable life history of the man who inherited fame and fortune from his father, aided to his laurels by his engineering work, and then dropped to the position of porter in the Palace theater on Broadway.

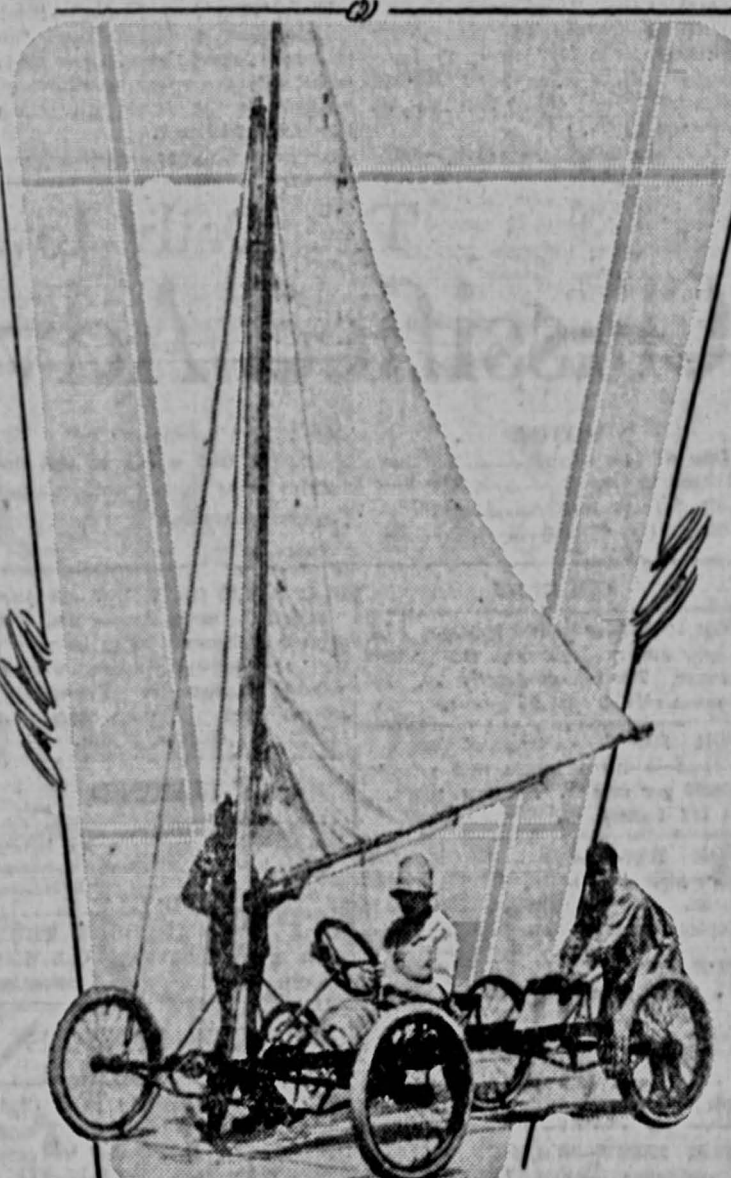

The police also learned that Roe, a college man, had worked himself up from porter to the position of head waiter at the theater, despite the handicap of ill health and such poverty that he could not afford treatment.
