E. Davis Marries Carlyle Anderson at Cedar Rapids

Ellen Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Davis, 1948 First avenue, Cedar Rapids, became the bride of Carlyle Anderson of Chicago, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock at St. John's Episcopal church in Cedar Rapids.

The Rev. Harry S. Longley of Iowa City, who officiated, was assisted by the Rev. Charles F. Edwards, rector of the Cedar Rapids church.

Cathedral tapers in five-branched holders formed the background for the ceremony. Backing the altar at each side were twining clusters of smilax and white chrysanthemums. At each of the windows of the church were lighted tapers.

Ernest A. Leo of Cedar Rapids, played the bridal procession, and the bride was given in marriage by her father.

Cyrus Mark, of Lake Forest, Ill., served as best man, and ushers were George Gibbs and Judson Large of Chicago, Ray Kauffman of Des Moines, Edward Ford of Iowa City, and Robert Davis of Cedar Rapids.

Mrs. James Yull and Maxine Anderson were brides attendants, and Betty Davis served her sister as maid of honor.

Following the ceremony a reception for about 100 guests was given at the Davis home.

The bride attended Coe college for two years, later going to the University of Iowa where she was a member of Delta Gamma sorority.

Mr. Anderson also attended the University of Iowa where he was graduated from the college of commerce, and where he was a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity. He is now superintendent of the central department of the Clayton Mark Steel company in Chicago.

The couple left Saturday night for a motor trip to Minneapolis, and from there they will go to Hackensack for a short stay at a camp. They will make their home at 431 East View Park in Chicago.

Herndon-Britton

Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Herndon of Iowa City announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Marjorie Estelle, to Charles Wilbur Britton, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Britton of Sioux City. The wedding will take place Saturday, Oct. 29, at Chicago.

The Rev. Charles Merrifield, who is a college classmate of Mr. Britton will officiate.

Miss Herndon is a graduate of the Iowa City high school and attended the university where she is affiliated with Gamma Phi Beta sorority.

Mr. Britton was graduated from the Sioux City high school, attended the University of Iowa, and was graduated from the university of Iowa last June. He is a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

The new home will be made in Chicago where Mr. Britton is associated with the Gelvin clothing company.

Mr. and Mrs. Herndon and daughter, Constance, and Frank Britton brother of the bridegroom, a student at the university, expect to attend the wedding.

Munn-Nelson

Mr. and Mrs. Ira T. Munn of Red Oak announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Dorothy, to Jack Nelson of Exira. The wedding will take place at 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 29, at the Congregational church.

The bride-elect will be attended by her sister, Margaret, as maid of honor, and by Mrs. Fred M. Replogle as matron of honor. Richard Nelson, a brother of the future bridegroom, will serve as best man.

Miss Munn was graduated from the Red Oak high school and attended the University of Iowa for two years where she affiliated with the Delta Delta Delta sorority.

Mr. Nelson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Nelson of Exira, and is a graduate of the high school in that place. He was graduated from the university last June. He is a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

The couple will make their home in Madison, Wis., after the first of the year where Mr. Nelson is state circulation manager for the Iowa Homestead.

Sigma Nu

Sigma Nu fraternity entertained several guests at the chapter house last evening for 6 o'clock dinner. The dining and living rooms were decorated with red and old-gold tinted leaves from oak trees. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Terrill chaperoned the party.

Hikers of W.A.A. Will Post Markers Along Best Routes

The hiking section of W.A.A. has perfected a new plan for marking the roads about Iowa City so that the hikers may know the length of the hike.

Signs in the form of small I's will be marked with the number of miles from the women's gymnasium and posted along the favorite hiking routes. The signs will be Old Gold with black letters.

The posting of the signs will be delayed because several of the signs were stolen from the yard of the gymnasium on the night of the pep meeting last week. New signs are now being made.

New women may earn their entrance points for W.A.A. by taking a series of hikes, three, five, seven, nine, and eleven miles in length under the supervision of an approved leader. The hikes must be taken in the proper sequence in order to work up endurance.

The tables were centered with pumpkins out with three faces and tall orange tapers were placed at either end of the table. Orange nut cups filled with tiny black and orange candles and which placecards marked the covers of the guests.

Assisting as hostesses at the various tables were: Mrs. James E. Stronks, Mrs. L. C. Clearman, Mrs. John K. Duncan, Mrs. L. G. Lawyer, Mrs. O. E. Van Doren, Mrs. George F. Kay, Mrs. Carl E. Seashore, Mrs. Ed Weber, Mrs. Theodore Loveland, and Mrs. S. L. Updegraff.

Mrs. Paul Mercer of Keokuk was an out of town guest at the affair.

Kappa Delta

Kappa Delta national founders' day banquet was held yesterday at 6 p.m. at Youde's inn. Dorothy Denkmann was toastmistress and toasts were given by Ruth Olsen, Betty Rones, and Aileen Slater.

Bertha Strohbein, Aileen Slater, and Virginia Quimby were guests of Sigma Beta chapter of Kappa Delta at Minneapolis last week-end.

Roberta Santee spent Saturday and Sunday at her home in Cedar Falls.

Dorothy and Gertrude Denkmann and Beulah Williams visited in Durant over the week-end.

Mrs. Bierkamp of Davenport visited with her daughter, Genevieve, yesterday.

Mrs. Hazel S. Miller is a guest at the chapter house.

The Whirlwind, comic publication of the University of Oklahoma, was withheld this month because it was objected to by the university authorities regarding some of the material. Only one picture and one joke were really considered objectionable and the other material will be held over until next month. Two years ago the editor of the Whirlwind resigned because there was so much discussion of some of the jokes printed.

Novices to Hold Swimming Meet

Women Beginners in Speed and Form Competition

The first women's novice swimming meet of the year will take place this afternoon at 5 o'clock in the pool at the women's gymnasium.

Women who have not taken a first place in some previous novice meet or a first, second, or third place at any other meet are eligible for entrance.

All women trying out for the Seattle club must enter the novice swim.

The events will be the 20-yard free style, 40-yard free style, 40-yard side stroke, 20-yard breast stroke, 20-yard back crawl, side stroke for form, crawl for form, and plain diving, including the running front, standing front, and back dives.

Women are not allowed to enter more than two speed events, or more than three events altogether. They may sign up for the various events at the women's gymnasium bulletin board.

Women winning a first place in the meet will receive a pin and one hundred W. A. A. points. Second place winners will receive seventy-five points, and third place winners fifty points. Every woman entering the meet, whether or not she places, will receive ten points.

Members of the Seattle club will act as officials.

Girls Hold Class Games in Volley Ball and Hockey

The dates of the class matches in women's hockey and volleyball will be Nov. 14-15, according to the present plans of the department of women's physical education.

Women must decide whether they prefer to play class hockey or class volleyball, as no one is allowed to take both sports. They must have nine practices before they are eligible to play upon a class team.

Training for the matches begins tomorrow. The W.A.A. constitution states that no girl may win points toward an I sweater unless she has kept training for three consecutive weeks before the beginning of the matches.

Training rules are given in the W.A.A. handbooks received by new students. The include rules about sleeping, eating, drinking, and bathing. Only one violation of the training rules is allowed during the three-week period, and that must be explained to the class captain.

Class practices are being held Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 4 p.m. and Wednesday at 8 a.m. Women may learn the practice period for their class by going to the women's gymnasium.

Currier Entertains Faculty Members

Each of the thirty-one tables in the four dining rooms at Currier Hall will entertain faculty guests during the year. Girls at each table will act as hostesses to two guests at a time. The guests will be either a member of the faculty and his wife, two women of the faculty or two men of the faculty.

Sundays and Wednesday are the regular guest days and there will be about seventy guests present during the year. Plans are being made to entertain ten guests tomorrow night.

Alpha Chi Omega
Dinner guests at the Alpha Chi Omega house were: Prof. and Mrs. Morton of the speech department, and Mr. and Mrs. Casady and children from Moline, Ill.

Gamma Phi Beta
Guests at the chapter house yesterday were: Mrs. Mildred Paddock and daughter Betty, and Mr. and Mrs. Van Haughten of Davenport.

Theta Tau

Theta Tau announces the pledging of Arnold Thiessen, E1 of Durant.

Herbert Howe of Rock Island, Ill., was a guest at the chapter house for the week-end.

Francis L. Kline, E4, and Jerome Reid, E4, attended the annual national convention of engineering magazines associated, at Columbus, O. They are there as staff representatives of the Transit, the official magazine of the college of engineering.

Alpha Delta Pi

Guests at the Alpha Delta Pi house yesterday were: Prof. and Mrs. Latham, Mr. and Mrs. Jones, Leslie of Clinton, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Compton of Guthrie Center, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Folwell of Rock Island, and Mr. and Mrs. Jericho of Fairfield.

Music Masters to Play for Freshman Party Friday Night

Complete arrangements for the freshman party, the first all-university informal function of the year, have been made, according to Charles Akre, A1 of Algona, chairman of the committee in charge.

Special programs featuring the freshmen will be used.

The "Music Masters," of Des Moines, a Brunswick recording orchestra, will furnish the music for the dance. A special ukulele duet number, featuring "Poley and Hause," has been secured by the committee.

All other dance halls will be closed Friday night.

Prof. and Mrs. E. C. Mable, Dr. B. F. Devel, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Fitzgerald, Dean Robert E. Rienow, and Mrs. Adelaide L. Hurge will act as faculty chaperons. President and Mrs. Walter A. Jessup will be guests. Student chaperons are Dorothy Denkmann, A4 of Durant; Esther Fuller, J4 of Mount Ayr; Otto Bauch, L3 of Des Moines; and Lee Flatley, C4 of Iowa City.

Tickets are on sale from members of the party committee or at Whetstone's number one.

Literary Groups Pledge Rushees

Literary society rushees will today indicate their choice of a literary society by wearing the colors of that organization. All bids were mailed Sunday evening, but because of an error, some persons appeared on the campus wearing their ribbons yesterday.

"Due to a mistake on the part of the persons making out the invitations to membership, it was not specified by all the societies that the ribbons should be worn this morning," said Edith Coben, J4 of Manly and president of Women's Forensic council.

"Some girls wore their ribbons yesterday, but because all the bids were not received at the same time, the wearing of a ribbon Monday did not indicate officially the choice of a society. If any girl received a bid late and after she had already worn the ribbon of another society, she is privileged to wear the ribbon of the society she prefers, the first time she appears on the campus in public this morning. It will indicate her official and final choice of a society. This choice cannot be changed."

The colors of the societies are as follows:
Brodelphian, pink and green; Octave Thane, lavender and white; Athena, green and white; Hamlin Garland, maize and brown; Whitey, yellow and white; Hesperia, red and cream.

Prof. Wylie Speaks of Fiji Islanders to Botanist's Club

"Fiji and the Fijians" was the title of a lecture delivered yesterday at 4 p.m. before the Botany club of the University of Iowa by Prof. R. B. Wylie of the Botany staff. The lecture was an illustrated talk on the plants, natives, and culture of the Fiji Islands.

Professor Wylie stressed the agricultural possibilities of the islands. In his opinion, they will, in the future, figure prominently in the production of the world's food supply. Passing reference was made to the native Fijians and some of their customs.

Professor Wylie also dealt at some length upon the personal work of Dr. S. M. Lambert, representative of the Rockefeller health board in the islands.

Accuse Aviator of Flying Recklessly

Say Alleged "Stunts" Endangered Life and Property

ATLANTA, Oct. 24 (AP)—Introduction of testimony in the court martial trial of Lieutenant George Finch, army aviator, charged with reckless flying and other violations of regulations was completed at Fort McPherson late today and an announcement was made by the court that a verdict would be returned tomorrow.

Lieutenant Finch, Selfridge Field, Mich., denied that he flew low on May 1, over the home of his parents-in-law, where his wife lay critically ill.

The officer was a member of an airplane squadron enroute from Selfridge field to Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and obtained permission from his flight commander to circle over Atlanta, his home.

Lieutenant Finch said he flew at a height of approximately 1,000 feet, the minimum altitude prescribed by army regulations for flying over congested areas of population, and that he could have landed easily if forced down on the race track oval at Piedmont Park, near where he was alleged to have "stunted" and flown so low as to endanger life and property.

Questioned by the prosecution concerning a charge that he had used profanity in addressing enlisted men when they drew two of the squadron's planes from their hangar at Candler field here, with their wings overlapping, he said he did not recall employing abusive language, but added:

"I did use profanity, it was spontaneous. The lapping of wings of planes is just like dropping guns in the army—it just isn't done."

Guernsey Speaks for Law College

Nathaniel T. Guernsey, vice-president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, is in Iowa City this week to speak before the class of public utilities of the college of law. This is the third successive year that Mr. Guernsey has come to Iowa City. The lectures are primarily for the class in public utilities, but are open to all students in the college of law, and to other persons interested.

Mr. Guernsey is a former student of the University of Iowa. In speaking of the university at the present time, he remarked that it was a great institution. "Big men make a university," he explained, "and you have some here at Iowa City." Mr. Guernsey spoke particularly about President Walter A. Duesenbury, whom he believes is building a great university of which the state of Iowa should be proud.

Mr. Guernsey spoke before the members of the chamber of commerce at a luncheon, Monday noon. He will speak informally at the Kiwanis luncheon today, and will also address the business school while he is in Iowa City.

"One need not worry about the younger generation today," Mr. Guernsey said during an interview yesterday, "they know more, and are better than their predecessors. A little advice is good once in a while, but every one must learn by experience."

Girls Play Volley Ball Semi-Finals

Preliminary play in the women's intramural volleyball tournament will be completed today with matches between Phi Omega Pi and Delta Delta Delta, and between Alpha Delta Pi and Phi Mu at 4:45 o'clock.

The winners of the preliminary matches which have been played in the last two weeks will meet in the final match tomorrow at 7:30 p. m.

By defeating the Home Economics club 17 to 4 in a match yesterday afternoon, Currier hall won the round robin in group two and will meet the winner from group one in the finals. Currier has won all four of its matches. Pi Beta Phi stands second with three wins and one defeat.

The winner in group one will not be decided until after today's matches, when Phi Omega Pi meets Delta Delta Delta. Phi Omega Pi is the favorite, as it is undefeated so far, while the Tri Deltas have lost two games.

Kappa Delta cinched second place in group one by defeating Delta Zeta yesterday 17 to 14. Delta Zeta finished third in the group.

Sigma Xi Holds Its First Meet Wednesday Night

Sigma Xi, honorary scientific society, will hold its first meeting of the year Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in the north room of Old Capitol. This will be the only open meeting that the society will hold this year.

Prof. Perry A. Bond of the chemistry department, the retiring president, will give the address, "Factors Governing Solubility."

Prof. Christian A. Beckmick of the psychology department, the president-elect, will preside at the meeting. The other new officers are: Prof. C. J. Lapp of the physics department, vice-president; Prof. Frank A. Stromsten of the zoology department, treasurer; and Prof. N. O. Taylor of the chemistry department, secretary.

Needed: A Rubber Dam

HARRISBURG, Pa., (AP)—N. R. Buller, fish commissioner, received a letter from a resident of western Pennsylvania complaining that the fish in Connequenessing creek were developing square noses from bumping into a concrete dam when they tried to jump it. The commissioner suggested that rubber shock absorbers be supplied to the fish.

Wassam Makes Unique Collection of Numerous Commercial Products

Spices from the orient, buttons manufactured in Muscatine, breakfast food from Battle Creek, Mich., and samples of wheat from almost every country in the world, are found on the shelves of many cabinets in Prof. C. W. Wassam's office in university hall. A unique collection of commercial products, used for teaching commercial geography, has been amassed during a period of twenty years by Prof. William K. Patterson of New York and Professor Wassam.

Patterson Obtains Material

Professor Patterson, who was formerly professor of economics at the University of Iowa, obtained his first material at the World's fair in St. Louis in 1905. In 1908, Professor Wassam took charge of the commercial museum and has added to it extensively.

The collection includes an exhibit of pearl buttons which originated in Muscatine fisheries. These buttons are made of fresh water mussels from a process discovered by J. F. Boepple of Muscatine about thirty years ago.

Boepple Makes Discovery

Mr. Boepple, who learned the fisherman's trade in Europe, spent much time fishing in the Mississippi river after he came to this country. While engaged in this occupation he discovered the method of manufacturing pearl buttons more cheaply than they could be made by using only ocean water mussels. The industry has been perfected, and today is one highly important in the manufacturing world.

Classify Shells

The shells are gathered by rakes, dredges, and tongs, and the meats are boiled out. The shells are run through a machine which sorts them into different sizes. They are then soaked for a week, after which they are cut and classified according to their various thicknesses. Again they are soaked and then shaped and drilled by automatic machines. They are churned until they become smooth and polished and are sorted according to quality. After this procedure, they go to the packing room where they are sewed on cards and are prepared for shipping.

A display of food adulterants occupies an entire shelf.

Slaughter House By-Products

Numerous by-products of the slaughter house prove that more than sirloin steak comes from Mr. Swift's place of business. Iowa comes in for its share of glory with a large assortment of corn and corn products. "Sugar, salt, graphite, and mesochium are other commercial products on display."

Juniors Respond to Call for Pictures

That the juniors of the university are going to back the Hawkeye, publication of their class, became evident yesterday when a large number signed up for reservations for space in the 1928 Hawkeye.

Assistants on the Hawkeye staff are handling the reservations and are on duty all day at the basement of the Journalism building at 128-130 Iowa avenue.

While a large section is given to the juniors each year, the book is primarily for the whole school, and limited space allows the record of only one class to be published.

St. Mary's School Organizes Orchestra

An orchestra composed of students of St. Mary's school has been organized under the supervision of Sister Mary Josephita, instructor in the music department. The first meeting will be held Oct. 26 at 4 p. m.

The members and their instruments are Joseph Corso, Irene Ruppert, Ralph Lumsden, Catherine McDonald, and Robert Alberhasky, violins; William Morrison, saxophone; Genevieve Moravec, clarinet; Virgil Kohl, cornet; Martin Gerber, drums.

FRESOL, Mich. (AP)—A pet crow belonging to Theodore Wolbeking has been adopted as a mascot by a nearby oil station. He likes peanuts and perches on the radiator of tourists' cars until they give him a tidbit.

Reward For Study

CULVER, Ind. (AP)—Scholastic excellence at Culver Military academy this year will be rewarded by theatre trips. The academy will pay expenses of nineteen men to Chicago and of forty-one to South Bend.

Professor Wassam found at the Iowa State fair a number of years ago. Wild rubber, just as it comes off the tree, is traced through its various processes until it becomes a finished automobile tire.

The collection is used by Professor Wassam in his commercial geography classes for demonstration purposes. He will take some of the smaller articles to Nebraska this week when he goes to lecture on his work at the Nebraska State Teachers' convention.

Desert Meteor

SALT LAKE CITY, (AP)—While searching the Great Salt Lake desert for relics of pioneer wagon trains Capt. Charles E. Davis of California came upon a celestial trophy which he was unable to move. It was a meteorite weighing several hundred pounds, partially buried in alkali and sand and where it had dropped from the heavens. Captain Davis believes it fell recently.

The Curtain Rises

AS the university theatre opens its new season tonight, there is a spirit of eager anticipation, both for the prospects of the coming year and for the whole future of the theatre. The dream of a new building is nearing reality, giving a certain impetus and enthusiasm to the forthcoming work of the university's dramatic center.

It will be with a feeling of justifiable pride that the university theatre will make its bow tonight. In the face of large obstacles, dramatic work at the University of Iowa is already ranked as one of the three best schools of the theatre in America, Yale and Carnegie Tech being the others. When the new building is completed, possibilities for advancement, both in size and talent, will be unlimited.

Meanwhile, the theatre continues to progress in spite of mechanical difficulties. The number of patrons grows, the number of students seeking casting increases, but most of all, the standard of productions is raised continually. The record of Prof. E. C. Mabie as director is enviable, and brings national fame, not only to himself, but to the university. Under his supervision only the best in acting and in stagecraft is permitted, so that the result is not only technically successful, but is an artistic presentation of professional worth.

Mother's Day

DAD has his annual day at the university with his sons and daughters, and now Mother will have hers. The selection of May 13 as the tentative date for inviting the mothers of Iowa men and women to visit the university was made when Mortar Board, senior women's honorary organization, announced that it would take over the new project. University officials expressed their hearty endorsement of the plan.

Slow that it has been in coming, the welcome to hundreds of Iowa mothers next spring, to be with their sons and daughters, will bring them in closer contact with the university and their children. They will see how students live; they will see what they do.

While Dad enjoys his day here in the fall and cheers the football team from the stands, a day set aside for Mother will mean even more to the students.

Yes, Dad does furnish the checkbook, but Mother gives something greater and more enduring than money can reach—kind advice when it is needed most. She has watched you grow from a tiny tot into young manhood and womanhood. She knows what you like and what you dislike. It is Mother who never forgets birthdays. It is she who always remembers to write when you are gone.

Whether fate smiles or frowns on your ventures, your ideals, your loves—Mother is always waiting to take you back. She loves you.

Let us make this day a never-to-be-forgotten event for her to whom we can never repay our gratitude—Mother.

Gratitude?

WILLIAM HALE THOMPSON, burly Chicago mayor, is still on King George's trail. Nothing but George's scalp will satisfy "Big Bill," so right now he's intent on ridding all Chicago libraries and schools of books which might possibly explain England's greatness.

But now Mayor Thompson has hit a detour. For, in his library orgy he has found that Queen Victoria, Lord Alfred Tennyson, William E. Gladstone, and Thomas Carlyle had contributed, after the Chicago fire, 7,000 volumes with which to start a new library. In one volume the queen had written:

"Presented to the city of Chicago toward the formation of a public library after the fire of 1871, as a mark of English sympathy, by her majesty, Queen Victoria."

This must, indeed, be an embarrassing moment for "Big Bill." For what gentleman relishes being accused of ingratitude?

Our Aureate Earth

THE work of Dr. Edward Capps and his American school at Athens in recovering from the debris and earth layers the ancient beauties of that city is now nearing fulfillment. In the poetic phrasing of the New York Times, "from the aureate earth of Athens will arise a more beautiful city..."

Is the earth of Athens, even with all its treasures of a wonderful art, more "aureate" than that near Iowa City? In the glory of its Indian summer raiment does not the beauty of our earth, even though more temporary, at least equal that of ancient Athens? In its mellow, autumnal coloring, its rich reds and browns, does not the beauty of Iowa trees and hills move its patrons as much as did the art of the learned Greeks?

Can one walk in the country at this time of year, smell the ripe fall odors, see the hazy blotches of nature's paint, and feel the sense of perfect fulfillment of function, like the autumn days of a life richly lived, without having a deeper love for the work of nature?

Is there any pleasure more delicious or lasting than that of sitting under an open wood campfire during late afternoon and the early evening, smell the enticing aroma of boiling coffee and of a steak frying over glowing coals?

What aureate earth can furnish more pleasures than does ours in Indian summer?

Meet the Team!

WHEN the Iowa football team departed for Minnesota, it was given a rousing send-off by a huge crowd of enthusiastic students. A mammoth pep demonstration was held on a street corner, and led by the university band, this gathering of students marched down Clinton street ringing cowbells and cheering.

This same Iowa team came back to Iowa City early Sunday morning, but there was no cheering throng. Why this difference? Those men who faced that great Minnesota team fought a hopeless battle against tremendous odds. It was a superior team that met the Hawkeyes.

Although that Iowa team lost the men were glorious in defeat and were deserving of a rousing reception. It would have proved that the student body is behind them in victory or defeat and that they appreciated the effort made by the school's gridiron representatives. It would have helped to bolster a broken morale and send the players into the next contest with confidence. This failure to stand back of the team, no matter what the score, is a blot which must be removed after the next out of town game.

Health Conservation

DR. O. B. ARMSTRONG in the November issue of the North American Review writes that the health of the modern man is no longer dependent upon organized forms of sanitation. Health and opportunities for a ripe age are matters now of individual responsibility.

Organized sanitation has performed its duty. It has cleansed the water supply, disposed of sewage, and purified the milk supply, and consequently has subdued smallpox, typhoid fever, tuberculosis, and diphtheria.

But in their place a new type of disease has sprung up. Cancer, heart disease, kidney ailments, and other diseases that result from the degeneration of vital organs, are threatening the health of man.

These diseases, Dr. Armstrong says, are caused by "hazardous, unbalanced, excessive methods of living."

They can be prevented only by a knowledge of personal hygiene and a knowledge of health conservation.

Twenty-four were killed in motor-car accidents in Massachusetts last week. Are we entering the era of the weekly two dozen?—Boston Transcript.

Vigilance

(From The Muscatine Journal)

The same interests which the late Hall Powell of the Ottumwa Courier used to fight so vigorously, are at work at the University of Iowa again. They have brought up the question of abolishing military training at the university. Without going into the question extensively at this time, we desire to point out that the so-called "liberals" who, as a general proposition, seek to make this country as defenseless as they can, are never asleep. Vigilance is the price of true liberty, and vigilance against the under-cover movements of the foes of this government must be unceasing. The boll weevil is again at work at Iowa U.

The R.O.T.C. at Coe

(From the Coe College Cosmos)

We can see no particular reason why the military department of Coe college found it necessary to hold a review in the rain last Tuesday. If the students of this college were members of a standing army and hence were subject to military discipline, it could be understood. It does seem that whoever was responsible for the holding of the review was a little too zealous in carrying out the compulsory feature of military training at Coe.

The students of the college should be allowed no choice as to whether or not they should take military training is bad enough, but when the students are forced to take that training under unhealthy and uncomfortable conditions it approaches injustice.

Chills and Fever

Halt and Lame

If the gentleman who announced his intention of presenting Mr. Joesting of Minnesota with a pair of silver crutches will please communicate with this department, we might be able to collaborate on a better plan. Specifically, a wheel chair. Contributions for the fund this far—

Coach Spears.....$0.55
"Peaches" Browning.....0.05
Press Agents.....5.00
Burt Ingwersen.....1.00
Total.....6.50

Which leaves a deficit of sixty-nine cents due to the cost of this adv.

Crutches, one is to understand, are as inelegant at Minnesota university as Laws' canes are at Iowa. And the salary coats which Joesting used near Iowa's goal posts are not so hot when it comes to catching a forward pass.

With a wheel chair, amply vebled by Messrs. Nydahl and Howde, Joesting would be able to smash the enemy's line much to said enemy's exasperation—you can't tackle a sick man!

Our excellent seats at Saturday's game—fifty yard line on the gridiron—showed us several weak points in the Minnesota backfield. For example, we find that Joesting is the type of player who doesn't go in for carrying ice or that sort of thing, you know. It's a cold shoulder business. Interviewing the gentleman on the subject a few minutes later, we asked what he intended to do when he grew up.

"Social welfare work," Herb replied courteously.

"Ah."

"I'm immensely interested in sickness. Why, I visit the hospitals every day."

"You see," continued Joesting lavishly, "I have a slight infirmity of the foot, so I can get at folks' troubles from their own viewpoint."

The Minnesota captain was by now reclining in the student hospital sipping a strawberry soda. He informed the reporter that it was his "strongest" drink. "Ice cream is good for pig bites," said he.

"And did a pig bite you?" we asked.

"Oh yes; several pigs in fact. Pigs seem to take a natural fancy to me. I don't know why."

"Where did the pig put in the dirty work?"

"Just below the ankle," we were informed.

"That is quite serious," we observed. "We have known of several cases of pig bites that proved fatal. In fact, there was that pig at Sauk Center back in 1896..."

"Oh, yes," said Herb, "I've heard of that pig. A particularly vicious one, too. But mark my word, if the patient had eaten ice cream he wouldn't have died. It reminds one of that little pig that went to market..."

"No," we interrupted, "it was the one that stayed at home."

"Or the one that had roared beef. I forget right now..."

At this moment we were interrupted by a nurse.

"How's the foot?"

"I can't kick."

"And the head?"

"Dunt esk!" (Mr. Joesting is said to be the most popular man on the Minnesota campus.)

"Are you enjoying your stay at the hospital?" we queried, when the last aroma of chloroform had vanished from the ward.

"Indeed... yes. It's just like home. You see, I can come and go at my pleasure."

"Thirty-eight to nothing?" we observed.

"I never bet." — Joesting. (Joke.)

Nothing so discouraging as Monday Wash day—and you even have to clean your finger nails. But it's interesting to reflect that even an honest man won't make a good fisherman—and what else can a fellow do on wash day? Sometimes, you know, we feel like we'd like to be a university disease. But, being of a literary character, we face immense difficulties. We've solved the problem, however, and will soon publish our first literary effort, a technical account of "HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL THOUGH A TRI DELE." And there you are. —F.L.G.

TO GRADUATE STUDENTS
The graduate catalog states that the doctor's qualifying examination shall be taken at least one academic year before the degree is conferred. The graduate council has recently voted that this shall be interpreted to mean that at least twenty-four of the credits required for the doctorate must be earned after the qualifying examination for the doctorate has been taken. The graduate council is of the opinion that this examination should be taken earlier than has been the tendency the last two or three years because the only purpose of the examination is to determine whether or not the student should be encouraged to be a candidate for the doctorate. C. E. SEASHORE, dean of the graduate college.

NOTICE
In order to avoid conflicts in scheduling dates for important affairs, a calendar of events is maintained in the office of the president, with reservation blanks to be filled out.

Students and faculty are requested to report to this office anything that will be of interest to the student body of to the faculty in the nature of lectures, concerts, conferences, programs, social events, et cetera.

Failure to report such events in the past has resulted in very serious complications and conflicts. For example it has been impossible for all visitors to secure hotel accommodations; important events have been scheduled for the same hour.

This calendar is maintained for the faculty and students to avoid embarrassing conflicts in university events. MARCELLA HOTZ, secretary to the president.

The R. O. T. C.

(From the Council Bluffs Nonpareil)
The Iowa City Iowan, published at the home of our state university, contained an editorial recently which strongly condemned the compulsory feature of the reserve officers training corps now maintained as a part of the university work.

This R. O. T. C. work is maintained by the government in some universities and in some high schools in the country. Council Bluffs is one of the cities fortunate enough to secure the benefit of this training for its young men in the high schools of the city.

The principle involved in this training is opposed by the parlor socialists in the country. It has been found by critics that if the compulsory feature is eliminated in many cases the work becomes inefficient. Therefore, with malice aforethought, they attack this feature.

During our civil war we had some mental nincompoops in this country who wanted "peace at any price." Old Horace Greely, then in the early stages of mental paresis, urged Lincoln to permit the people of the south to "depart in peace." This student editor at Iowa City belongs to this type. Woodrow Wilson's illuminative phrase, "men with pygmy minds," accurately describes these pacifist birds.

The lessons of history are plain and conclusive. Reasonable preparedness for national defense is wise policy beyond doubt or cavil. Washington knew what he was talking about when he declared that the best way to insure peace was to be prepared for war.

In every war in which we have participated we have lost more men because of our unpreparedness for emergency than we lost in the war. In the world war the allies had 37,499,386 casualties while the central empire had but 22,094,600. Russia was the heaviest loser. The casualties of that country were 9,150,000. Untrained Russians against trained Germans explains these figures.

Now we have the spectacle of Iowa people taxing themselves heavily to develop a great university and installed in this institution as editor of the student paper is a callow youth who assumes that he knows more about governmental policies than George Washington knew. This fellow's work on this index, and from there to the stories themselves, which blot out any other forms of recreation for the next hour or two.

If I were to state the quality in which this volume excels, I would give "satisfaction." There is no sense of loss, no consciousness of inadequacy of workmanship or plot, on the whole, when the book is completed.

In addition to the works of well established authors such as Sherwood Anderson, Dorothy Canfield, Willa Cather, Theodore Dreiser, Edna Ferber, John Galsworthy, Sam Hellman, and Zona Gale, there are contributions by new writers, among them Louis Bromfield, winner of the 1926 Pulitzer award, in "Lets Go Hinky-Dinks," a title that suggests hash houses and pool halls, he writes of an old man in the midst of garish Paris jazz, keeping an engagement in an old Paris of "streets lighted by the soft blue of gas lamps" in the room where his bride died years before.

Barry Benefield, another new writer brings home the tragedy of the black race in "Simply Sugar Pie," a story noteworthy for its fine, restrained emotion.

In "Flowers of the Soul," Dorothy Canfield shows how the mad fancy of an old Parisian encouraged an Ohio girl to develop her artistic

Becky

A Serial of the Price of Glory
by RAYNOR SELIG

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Becky McCloskey, young and goodlooking, trying to make her way alone in New York, meets Dan Scarlett who lives by his wits. He makes love to her, but discovers she has ideals of her own. She sings for him and he realizes she has a beautiful voice and offers to finance her for a share in her profits. Becky has made an ideal of John Estabrook, a very rich young man of high social standing. Through Scarlett's influence she joins a Broadway chorus. He upbids her not to pick out a millionaire admirer and getting what she can out of him. At a studio party given by Boris Abelard, a close friend of Estabrook's, Becky is thrown into a fountain with her clothes. She faints, and Abelard angrily sends his guests away and has her taken care of. Months afterward Becky meets Estabrook in the studio. She interests him and he kisses her. She stands dazed and tells him she expected him to be different. He apologizes. Estabrook hears her sing, tells her she has a wonderful voice, takes her to her shabby little room in his car and tells her he loves her. Scarlett urges her to get what she can out of Estabrook and not to delude herself with any idea that Estabrook will marry her. Becky greatly worried, confesses to Abelard, who has proven a devoted friend, that she loves Estabrook. Abelard realizing the social chasm between them tells her she must be mad. Later Estabrook tells Boris he is fond of Becky and Boris urges him to treat her gently. Scarlett chiding in on a shady deal leaves town, but is kept informed of Becky's activities by a woman friend. Estabrook takes Becky to his home. She meets his sister Nan who is loved by Lord Travers a young Englishman. Nan calls him a timid sweetheart. The two agree to be friends.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XX

"Yes, that's true enough," Nan said. "But in a way he's too much John's type. He's so quiet and staid, and I long for—Oh I don't know—dash, glamour, romance, whatever you please. I'm fond of Geoffrey, but he doesn't make my heart race like a mad bull, or even like a nice, well-trained saddle horse."

"And then he lives down in the country in England, and keeps to himself a good deal, and has old-fashioned ideas about women. It's just going from one cage into another, don't you see? It isn't that I wouldn't want to marry Geoffrey, but I'd like to have a good spree before I settle down to be Lady Travers."

"Lady Travers?" Becky was unable to conceal her awe. "Is it that young Lord Travers that's visiting the Cabots? I read about him in the papers."

"Yes, celebrated war hero and all that. A brave soldier, but a terribly timid sweetheart Miss McCloskey. Nan, in turn sighed. "You must forgive me for talking so much about myself. It's rude I know, but I liked you as soon as I saw you. Perhaps," she ventured with a chuckle. "It was partly the cigarette. But I felt you'd understand, somehow, how I felt. And I know you're a girl, and they're so—well, so silly, I haven't anyone to talk to. So let's be friends, shall we?"

A flush of gratitude swept over Becky, almost bringing tears to her eyes. Here was a woman of the highest social position—a woman who was to marry an English Lord—who asked for friendship as gently and sweetly as though it were a favor Becky might confer.

"It's... it'd be wonderful. I'm sure," she stammered, and Nan, with a little crow of delight, took both her hands and squeezed them affectionately.

On the following afternoon there took place one of those curious coincidences which occur repeatedly in the enormous city of New York. It has been tritely and frequently said that there is no city so small as a large city, and indeed, that the world is a small place after all. And it is an astonishing truth known to anyone who has inhabited the city that people are met and seen in the most unlikely and unexpected spots. Now in all her years of life Becky had never once chanced to see Nan Estabrook until the afternoon which followed their meeting.

On this occasion she emerged from a side door of the theatre after a special rehearsal which had been called for the perfection of a new number, and, swinging into the crowd which always surges up Broadway like a living mass when the lights first go on and the matinees empty out their throngs, she collided, fairly and squarely, with Estabrook's sister.

"Why you, of all people," cried Nan, poking out her pink face from an immense fur collar, "How perfectly lovely!"

"It's a nice surprise," Becky responded, "But—but are you alone?"

"Yes, for a wonder. Come with me into this tea-room, it looks cozy and warm, and I'll tell you about it. I'm so excited that I can hardly breathe, and to make that necessary function even more difficult I've been going along with my nose in my collar."

While she was talking Nan had propelled Becky through the crowd, and they now descended the steps of a cozy looking small place, where a sign announced that chocolate, coffee, and tea were served.

Nan, still chattering as gaily as a cheerful bird, led the way to a small table set far back, in a corner. The two girls laughed gaily at the ornaments on the walls and ceiling. In accordance with its name every available corner of the restaurant had been decorated with purple cats, there were purple cats painted on the table-tops, purple cats stamped on the paper napkins, stuffed cats of purple flannel hanging from the rafters. Even the teapots were purple cats with removable heads, made of pottery.

Nan asked Becky whether she minded having her back to the door, "Because," she explained, "this is a back room, and I want to be able to see all there is to be seen. I'm fearfully thrilled, I've never been in a place like this before."

"Oh it's a very quiet place, nothing much going on," Becky murmured, unwrapping a scarf of plaid wool which served to mitigate the thinness of her old cloth coat. "The girls from the show stop in when they want to be left alone."

"The show?" Nan interrupted midway in peeling off her stipped kid gloves. "Oh my dear! Are you in the stage?"

Becky flushed, stammered... "I thought your brother had told you. Yes, I am. I—hope you don't mind?"

"Mind! My dear I'm simply thrilled. You're the first actress I've ever known. To tell you the truth I've always longed to be on the stage myself... I'd like to do tragedy, like Duse. But then I suppose all girls don't want to... and John wouldn't hear of it. He says the stage is no place for—she stopped, and coloring, concluded. "John must simply adore you. You've overcome all his severest prejudices."

"Oh Miss Estabrook—"

"Nan please. We are friends, you know. That's settled. And please, please, tell me all about yourself. I'm too rightfully interested."

Becky, who was shrewd enough to see that her only protection lay in an encouragement of Nan's volubility, shook her head and said: "Not until you tell your story. A promise is a promise, honey. How come you're out all by yourself? Has your other brother decided to—"

"Oh John doesn't know a thing about it," Nan interrupted quickly. "Oh my dear, he'd go plain berserker if he found out. You must absolutely swear to keep my secret. Give me your word, and I'll tell you all about it."

Becky, deeply perturbed at the thought of being party to any secret which would drive Estabrook berserker—what ever that might be, some form of rage, she assumed—hesitated, saying: "Oh, d'you think you ought, Nan?"

But Nan's face was so absurdly crestfallen at this sign of disapproval that Becky made haste to change her tone. And, smiling her sudden, naughty smile she held out her hand, and whispered: "Mum's the word, matey. We'll be sisters in crime."

"Oh, you're an adorable accomplice. And I'll tell you all about it. Of course you'd understand much better if you knew the worthy Miss Ralston, my watch dog, but you don't, so here goes. Only first you must give me a cigarette, because I don't want to waste a single precious minute."

Becky passed the cigarettes without showing the reluctance she felt in doing so, and in fact her general feeling of guilt in being, however innocently, a partner in Nan Estabrook's rebellion.

"First of all," Nan resumed, between long puffs characteristic of the amateurs in the art of smoking. "I discovered that my watch dog has a weakness. She adores movies, and movies of not quite the kind a young girl should see. And I, who never suspected the depths of guile in my own soul, contrived a marvelous plan. Miss Ralston deposits me respectfully at the Metropolitan Museum, sneaks off to a movie, and picks me up later. So you see..."

"Why the watch dog's being naughty herself," exclaimed Becky delightedly. "Ho clever of you. She'll never dare snitch."

"Exactly. And just as soon as she is well underway I leave by the nearest entrance—and Lo and Behold! I am as free as an eagle. You can't imagine what it means, because you are free yourself but... And Nan went on outlining the joys of her forbidden pastime until, interrupting herself suddenly, she leaned forward to whisper in an excited tone, "My dear, the most fascinating man has been standing near the telephone, and he keeps looking over here."

Becky, hardened to the stares of strange men, said without moving her head: "Well look right through him. There's no way like a glassy stare of freezing these fresh—these impertinent men."

"Oh but he doesn't look impertinent," Nan contradicted, and Becky saw the sidelong glance she cast from beneath her long lashes. "I wish you'd look, he's stunning, simply stunning. He's just the romantic type... Oh, you are too proper. If you won't look of your own accord I'll tell you. He's tall, and well built, and blonde, and I'm sure he has blue eyes, at least they ought to be blue. And he has the dearest mustache, blonde and waxed at the end... Mm... and such nice swaggly tweeds." There was a pause.

"I don't like that type," Becky said a trifle sharply.

Nan spoke at the same instant. "It do love he's been looking at you all the time. Yes, of course. He's trying to catch a glimpse of your profile. He thinks he knows you."

"They always do," Becky replied tartly.

"No—Yes, it's true. He's seen you. Oh my dear, I'm so thrilled, he's coming over. You must know him."

Then, at last, Becky looked up. "I do know him," she said, but the words were almost inaudible. For, with a sensation of horror, dread, and utter bewilderment she saw the man himself advancing across the floor, smiling suavely, and swinging a heavy walking stick. He came straight toward the table at which the two girls sat and he was Dan Scarlett, known on Broadway and points West as "The Dandelion."

talent, and by an ironical twist at the end of the story, the author saves her tale from the "Success" category.

Sherwood Anderson tells "The Man's Story," which he himself calls his favorite, in simple language, impressive, complete, and filled with fine impressions.

George Ade and Sam Hellman spin humorous yarns in their well known vernaculars; Willa Cather shows how "a big career" for a woman "takes its toll even with the best of luck." Theodore Dreiser depicts a contented man, and Edna Ferber uncovers beauty in the soul of a stolid servant girl; F. Scott Fitzgerald stages a murder that is an outbreak of "old hatreds—ghostly scandals and tragedies—that live on all tangled up with the natural ebb and flow of outward life" in a small town.

Ensign Outlines Sixteen Features for Homecoming

Hoxie Presents Statue of Iowa Civil War Governor

Sixteen events, one to represent each year that there has been Homecoming at Iowa, are planned for Homecoming, Nov. 5. Prof. Forest C. Ensign has made the announcement of these plans, adding that this Homecoming is to be the biggest that has ever been held.

The first event in connection with Homecoming is the football game with Illinois. The game begins at 2 p. m. Saturday, Nov. 5.

Schedule Golf Tournament

Other athletic events on the schedule are the golf tournament Saturday morning in which the winner of cups offered by Fred Sargeant '01, president of the Northwestern railroad, and by Dr. John Voss, '04 of Iowa City will be decided. The tournament is under the direction of Coach C. Kennet.

Another contest is to be a cross country run between the Illinois and Iowa teams. A girls' hockey game and a swimming exhibition in the field house are also scheduled.

Present Kirkwood's Statue

On Saturday morning the presentation of a statue of Governor Samuel J. Kirkwood, Civil War governor of Iowa, is to be made. The bronze statue of heroic size is the replica of one which stands in the rotunda of the national capitol. It is to be presented by Gen. Richard L. Hoxie, husband of the sculptor, Minnie Ream Hoxie. General Hoxie is an alumnus of the university.

Socially, the visitors are to be entertained by the Triangle and University clubs at informal receptions on Friday evening. There will also be an all-university party to celebrate the event, and a chamber of commerce luncheon. A mass meeting of alumni is the fourteenth of the listed events.

Elks Hold Open House

The B. P. O. E. has announced its intention of holding open house for the guests and there will be numerous other organizations, including all sororities and fraternities, which will do likewise.

An innovation of this Homecoming is the broadcasting of all the above local events for the benefit of alumni who are not able to return. The committee in charge of this event, headed by Prof. Frederic G. Higbe, plan to send through the ether, every possible part of the Iowa City celebration to alumni gathered in groups all over the country to listen in.

Legion Named in Honor of Chopek

In honor of Sergeant Roy L. Chopek, Iowa City soldier who had gone farthest into Germany with the army of occupation after the signing of the armistice and then lost his life, the Post No. 17 of the American Legion was named.

When the Iowa City American Legion was first organized under a temporary charter soon after the close of the World War, it was called Harvey Graham Post, but this was changed, after much controversy, to its present name.

Iowa City legionnaires were the seventeenth group of the 500 posts in Iowa to obtain a charter. When it was founded, Roy L. Chopek post membership numbered 420 but the present records show but 275, the decrease being due to the death or moving away of former members.

Since the Roy L. Chopek post was founded in May, 1919, it has had nine commanders. In the order of their terms of office, they are: Col. R. P. Howell (two terms); Edward L. O'Connor, Frank J. Zeithamel, Leroy R. Rader, Allen Walker, William R. Hart, Dr. A. W. Bennett, Harold Evans and the present commander, W. B. Gipple.

Market and Financial News

Brisk Rally on Mart Displaced by Stock Sales

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 (P)—A brisk rally in the stock market today, attributed largely to covering by an over-extended short interest, was superseded by a resumption of heavy selling in the final hour of trading. Although the general market closed somewhat higher than Saturday's final levels, substantial advances in most of the pivotal issues were reduced, or wiped out entirely as the close drew near.

The opening was rather irregular, partly in reflection of liquidation of weakened marginal accounts following four successive days of descending prices. The leading shares headed upward smartly within the first half-hour, and by mid-afternoon, a long list of two and three point gains was presented. U. S. Steel, General Motors, New York Central, and other speculative favorites were in the van.

There was little in the news to influence speculative sentiment, aside from some optimistic forecasts of the 1928 outlook for business, voiced by bankers in convention at Houston, Tex. Although banks called some $15,000,000 or $20,000,000 in loans to strengthen a weakened reserve position, as revealed in a Saturday's report of $43,000,000 deficit in reserve, there was little change in the credit situation.

Call money ruled around the normal rate of 3 1/2 per cent all day. Some of the popular specialties, and industrials showed rather wide fluctuations, notably Houston Oil, which arose to 14 1/2, then tumbled to 14 1/4, and closed at 14, up 1 1/2 on the day. Baldwin advanced to 25 1/2 before declining to 25, where it closed with a net gain of 2 1/2.

There was little change in the foreign exchange market, aside from a 6 1/2 point drop in Spanish pesetas to around 118 cents. Demand sterling ruled slightly higher around $4.82 and French francs sold unchanged at 2.323 cents.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK

Wheat Breaks Low Price Level, Then Rallies Noticeably

CHICAGO, Oct. 24 (P)—Stimulated by an unlooked-for decrease of the United States visible supply, wheat rallied today after having once more broken the season's low price record. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as Saturday's finish to 3c down, with corn unchanged to 3c; oats at a shade to 1/8c advance, and provisions varying from 5/8c decline to a rise of 1/8c.

Unexpected announcement today that 479,000 bushels shrinkage of the United States available stock of wheat had taken place in the last week was accompanied by word that exports of domestic wheat between Sept. 10 and Oct. 15, had been more than 20,000,000 bushels greater than a year ago. Besides, a report to the department of commerce indicated that Germany would import 95,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels of wheat. Earlier, however, the market was largely dominated by the big crop movement in Canada.

Timely rains were reported to have put Argentine wheat in good shape, and there were advices that the Australian crop outlook is less pessimistic.

Corn showed stubborn resistance to selling pressure, and rallied quickly with wheat, influenced also by corn export demand at the Gulf of Mexico. Receipts of corn here say were of liberal volume, 531 cars, including some new corn from Oklahoma that graded No. 2, testing, 14.2 per cent moisture. Oats were firmer sympathizing with corn rallies.

Arrival Many New Bonds Results in Market Hesitancy

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 (P)—With the recent rush of new bonds continuing, more than $60,000,000 arriving on the market in the first day, the trade in listed bonds again showed hesitating tendencies today. Price changes, with a few exceptions, were again confined to fractions in either direction.

Prompt over-subscription of the $20,000,000 Federal Land bank issue and the $12,000,000 bonds of the Continental Oil company, however, again testified to the fundamental soundness of the mortgage market. Prospects of a heavy influx of offerings within the next few days failed to exert any generally depressing effect.

Further strength of International Paper convertible 4's was the individual feature. The bonds sold within a fraction of their year's high. Dodge 6's improved, and several other industrials were firm.

Railroad issues were comparatively quiet. Baltimore & Ohio 4's sold at 88 for the first time this year, and rather heavy offerings of Chesapeake Corporation 5's and Erie re-funding 5's brought only slight recessions. Great Northern 5's were a point lower around 105 1/2.

In the foreign group, losses in some of the French, German, and Italian securities ran as high as a point or more.

Most of the United States government issues were easy.

Committee Adopts Health Standards

Prof. Earl L. Waterman of the college of engineering, has returned from the meeting of the American Public Health association in Cincinnati, O.

"The thing of most interest to me that resulted from the meeting," said Professor Waterman, "was the adoption of the report and suggested standards for the design, equipment, construction and operation of swimming pools."

Prof. J. J. Hinman was a member of this committee, which has been working for a number of years to arrive at a standard for public bathing places, a thing vital in the protection of public health. The three swimming pools that are available to people in Iowa City have all been carefully inspected and are satisfactory under the requirements made at this meeting.

Two graduates of the college of engineering at this university were attending the conference as representatives of the Kentucky and Tennessee sanitary engineering departments. E. E. Jacobsen is now located in Kentucky and H. D. Schmidt in Tennessee.

Capital Stock of $100,000 Goes in New Local Plant

Chicago Man Plans Powdered Milk Company

Capital stock amounting to $100,000 will go toward the organization of a powdered milk factory in Iowa City, plans for which are nearing completion. Outside money will be used to finance the company and no stock will be sold in Iowa City.

Further action in regard to the new company has been delayed pending the arrival of H. J. Robbins of Chicago. Mr. Robbins and Albert G. Crawford of the Crawford Engineering company of Clinton will complete plans for the incorporation of the company under the name of the Globe Creamery and Powdered Milk company.

Inspection of the rooms in the Iowa City ice company which are to be leased to the new concern was made yesterday by Mr. Crawford, with a view to preparing plans for the installation of machinery.

Negotiations have been begun with the Buffalo Foundry and Machine company to install the necessary machinery for the production of powdered milk but nothing further can be done in this direction until the arrival of Mr. Robbins, who is at present in Cleveland.

Fred L. Stevens, who is assisting in the plans for incorporation, feels certain that Mr. Robbins will be in Iowa City by the middle of the week, when plans for the new factory will be completed.

Titzel Files Claim in Counter Charge

Frank C. Titzel, Jr., yesterday in an appeal from the justice of the peace court filed a counter claim in which he asks damages of $6.60 from T. F. Murray and also a cancellation of the damages awarded Murray before Justice Elias J. Hughes.

Murray brought action against Titzel claiming $41.90 that he alleged was due as damages resulting from an automobile collision. The jury awarded Murray $28.40. Titzel's counter claim against Murray will be heard during the November term of court.

Jury Favors State Against DuBrava

The jury brought in a verdict in favor of the state in the trial of the state against Harry DuBrava, who was charged with possessing an automobile with the engine number defaced. DuBrava has not yet been sentenced by Judge R. G. Popham before whom he appeared in the district court.

The Ford runabout that DuBrava was driving was the same as one which was stolen from Edwin West of La Porte city while West was in Cedar Rapids. Du Brava stated that he bought the car from John Cox who is awaiting trial in Linn county on the charge of stealing this same car.

Judge Fines Jones on Assault Charge

Vernon Jones, arraigned yesterday morning in the court of Justice Elias J. Hughes, pleaded guilty to charge of assault and battery. He was fined $1 and costs.

Jones was arrested Saturday and released over Sunday under bond of $100.

Youth Hurts Thumb as Gun Explodes

The fact that "he didn't know it was loaded" may prove rather serious to Millard Wray, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wray of North Liberty.

After a Sunday afternoon hunting trip, the lad was cleaning his gun and the accidental discharge of the weapon severely lacerated his thumb which may have to be amputated. Reports from the university hospital indicate that he is resting easily.

Muscatine Officers Apprehend Patient

Muscatine authorities notified Iowa City police Sunday evening that they had found Ed Bean who escaped from the psychopathic hospital here Saturday.

Police telephoned hospital authorities of the arrest and Bean was returned yesterday.

Air Mail

The transcontinental air mail service operates both east and west-bound, leaving San Francisco at 7 a.m. P. T. and New York at 11 a.m. E. T. Plans cherry mail for all parts of the United States. Mail for points not touched by planes is sent by train from the nearest air mail depot.

The closing time for westbound mail at the Iowa City postoffice is 8:40 p.m. Air mail closes one hour before the departure of the plane. Under the new regulations air mail is collected from all mail boxes. Note time of collection on the boxes and allow sufficient time for clearance through the local postoffice.

Note: While Iowa City is not a regular stop for the eastbound plane, ships will make stops for passengers and express if ample time is allowed to notify them. For further information phone Air Mail field, 425.

Australians Plan Longest Flight

A 9,000-mile flight from Oakland, Calif., to Melbourne, Australia, with only two stops across the Pacific is planned by four Australians—Kingsford Smith (right), pilot; Charles T. P. Ulum and Keith V. Anderson (left), navigator and alternate pilot, and W. A. Todd, co-navigator. The map at the lower right shows their route. They will fly the ship used by George H. Wilkins of Detroit in Arctic explorations—a trimotored Fokker of the type shown above.

OAKLAND, Calif., Oct. 24 (AP)—Four intrepid Australians plan soon to essay one of the longest and most perilous trans-oceanic flights ever attempted.

Their 9,000-mile itinerary from Oakland, Calif., to Melbourne, Australia, includes one water jump of 2,450 and a possible second one of approximately 3,800 miles, if it is decided not to attempt to land on any of the Pacific Islands between Hawaii and New Britain.

The flight would carry them from autumn to early spring in a period of eight days, flying time, and take them virtually through every zone of weather known.

Smith Heads Venture
Captain Kingsford Smith, Australian ace, will head the aerial venture. His associates will be Charles T. P. Ulum, navigator; Lieutenant Keith V. Anderson, alternate pilot, and William A. Todd, second officer of the Limer Tahiti, co-navigator.

They will fly the giant three-motored Fokker plane which was used by George H. Wilkins in his recent Arctic explorations. It has been reconditioned and powered with three new engines.

The plane has a wing spread of seventy-three feet, gas capacity of 1,400 gallons and will leave the ground with a total load of 15,000 pounds. It is essentially a land plane, but its fuselage will be sealed and it is equipped so that two of its engines can be dropped, gas tanks emptied quickly and six flotation bags inflated. Wooden wings increase its buoyancy and as additional precaution rubber life rafts are to be carried.

Plane Would Float
Forced to alight upon the water it could not rise, but would, it is believed, remain afloat for a considerable time even in a fairly rough sea.

Radio equipment will include a 600-meter set for receiving messages from and for talking to ships at sea and a short wave set for communication with shore.

They will endeavor to follow the United States army radio beacon from the Golden Gate to Hawaii and will utilize to the fullest the radio facilities of the South seas. There are scores of radio stations in the scattered islands of the South Pacific, but for the most part these are small stations and ships do not rely on them for distances greatly in excess of 100 miles.

Tentatively, the itinerary is: Oakland to Kauai, Hawaii, 2,450 miles; Kauai to Lae Island of the Marshall group, 2,450 miles; Lae Island to Rabaul, New Britain Island, 1,350 miles; Rabaul to New Guinea, 350 miles; New Guinea to Normanston, Australia, 950 miles; Normanston to Brisbane, 1,000 miles; Brisbane to Sydney, 550 miles; Sydney to Melbourne, 500 miles.

Anderson made a trip to Hawaii and examined the take-off possibilities of the barking sands on Kauai. He believes the Fokker can take the air there, despite the inability to do so of Richard Grace, Los Angeles stunt flyer, who crashed attempting a flight from Hawaii to the mainland.

The flight will cost approximately $50,000, of which the government of New South Wales appropriated about $17,500. The remainder is provided by private capital.

Belting Plans for Boy Scout Day

University Entertains Visiting Troops October 29

A program for Boy Scout day, Oct. 29, has been worked out by the department of athletics under the leadership of P. E. Belting, director, with the cooperation of Paul R. McGuire, scout executive. It has been planned with the idea in view that the affair, which is the first of its kind, will become an annual one.

Headquarters will be maintained at Iowa Union where scouts will register upon their arrival in Iowa City. A tour of the campus will be conducted Saturday morning under the guidance of local scouts. Following the tour the men's pool in the field house will be open to the visitors.

The Iowa-Denver game will be the entertainment of the afternoon, with admittance free to the Boy Scouts.

Scout executives in seven cities in the state have accepted for their troops the invitation of Mr. McGuire and of the athletic department of the University of Iowa to attend Boy Scout day. These are: C. M. Daniels, Fort Madison; Arthur P. Jury, Waterloo; Chris H. Hueck, Davenport; K. G. Bontz, Burlington; Joseph S. Fleming, Des Moines; Carol C. Thomas, Cedar Rapids; and Robert F. Evans, Dubuque.

Court Tries Elmer Brenneman Today

Fruit Tree Tries to Produce Crop

A cherry tree in the yard of Frank Fisher, N. Dodge street, is doing its best to produce another crop of cherries this month in the face of almost certain failure.

Fall frosts, however, will no doubt cut short the worthy efforts of the tree, although it presents a most unusual natural phenomenon.

Girl Scouts Give Mothers Vacation From Home Duties

Many Iowa City mothers took a brief vacation from home duties yesterday as it was Mother's day for Girl Scouts. Each scout cooked at least one meal for the family and performed any other tasks she could do. In addition to helping about the house, they endeavored to assist with the work in other ways.

Troop 5 entertained their mothers at a tea at 4 p.m. No special program was planned and the afternoon was spent in having the mothers of the girls get acquainted. Josephine Burrell was in charge of the tea.

A Halloween party was given for the mothers by troop 4, at 7:30 p.m. in the Girl Scout rooms. The girls in charge were Anna Fisher and Eunice May.

Paulist Fathers Conduct Mission

A mission opened at St. Patrick's church Sunday which will continue until Sunday, Nov. 6.

The first week is to be given over to special devotions for women, and the following week to devotions especially for men. There will be mass at 6 and 7 a.m. daily and evening devotions at 7:30 p.m., which will consist of rosary, benediction and sermon.

One of the features of the mission is the question box, which is placed at the back of the church. In this box any one is free to place religious questions they wish answered. The missionaries will attempt to answer these during the services.

The mission is being given by the Paulist Fathers, and the two missionaries are the Rev. L. O'Regan and the Rev. Edward Peters.

"We extend an invitation especially to the Catholic students of the university, and anyone who wishes to come is welcome," says the Rev. W. P. Shannahan, pastor of St. Patrick's church.

Condition of Beuter Slightly Improved

A slight improvement in the condition of Chase Beuter, 35 years old, employee of the Iowa City Iron works, who was injured Friday in an explosion, was reported last night. Beuter regained consciousness at times yesterday but his condition is still serious.

C. of C. Honors Teams Yesterday

English Debater Tells First Impression of America

The debating teams of Cambridge university and the University of Iowa were guests of honor at the chamber of commerce luncheon yesterday noon. M. A. B. King-Hamilton spoke for the visiting team, telling his first impressions of America, emphasizing American money and American girls. Others on the English team are Herbert Lionel Elvin, and Hugh McIntosh Foot.

Men on the Iowa team were George Anderson, J. H. Hawarden, Herschel Langston, A. J. Gilmore City, and Burton A. Miller, A. J. of Newton.

N. T. Guernsey, head of the legal department of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, gave a short talk, expressing his approval of international debates. He emphasized their help in bringing together English speaking nations and commonwealths of the world.

Legion Financial Drive Unfinished

The American Legion has not completed the financial drive for the erection of their new community building.

"We are still pushing the campaign and hope that it will be brought to a close as quickly as possible," said W. B. Gipple, commander of the local unit.

At the monthly legion dinner, held last night, committees were chosen to take charge of the "chow" dinners to be held every month in the coming year. The committee having the best dinner and producing the best entertainment will receive a prize. The committee which will choose the winner has not yet been selected.

Capt. W. J. Hayek, won the attendance prize for answering the greatest number of local questions. A prize of this sort is always offered at the monthly dinners.

More than forty persons were at the meeting.

ST. PAUL, (AP)—The University of Minnesota experiment station has opened a school for ice cream makers. Lectures are given in the morning and laboratory work in the afternoon.

Custer Fines Five on Small Charges in Court Yesterday

Police Judge Paul Custer fined E. J. McLaughlin, transient inn, $5 and costs in police court yesterday. McLaughlin was charged with intoxication.

Ruth Vetter was fined $1 and costs for cutting a corner.

John Maher received a similar fine for driving past a red light stop sign.

Roy Mokenhop was fined $1 and costs for speeding.

H. D. Hampton and L. H. Graham each paid $1 and costs for overtime parking.

Lighting System Nears Completion

Work was resumed on Iowa City's new lighting system yesterday when a force of men under the direction of Carl Stach, contractor, began trenching on E. Washington street.

Mr. Stach said yesterday that the work would probably progress now without further interruption. Although the new posts and cables are not here yet, both have been shipped and will be here by the time they are needed.

The first week in December is the time set yesterday by Mr. Stach when the completion of the work may be expected. However, under favorable working conditions it may be finished a week or so earlier.

Stach Sets Date for First Week in December

Bert A. Stefert of East Chicago, Ind., asking judgment of $125 with interest against George M. Hughes, yesterday filed petition for trial in the November term of court.

The plaintiff claims that Hughes executed a promissory note July 1926 to the Dryz Silver Fox Ranch, Inc., which was in turn sold to him. He now wants payment of this and costs of the action.

City Grants Two Building Permits

City Inspector C. A. Kutcher granted a building permit to Hal Bayless yesterday for the erection of a residence and garage in Morningside. C. Crowe is the contractor. The permit has a value of $5,000.

A permit was also granted to the Trinity parsonage on S. Johnson street for the erection of a garage. The value of the permit was $455. The contractor is Jack Leuz.

Boy Scouts Meet on Same Evening

In compliance with the plan to have all Boy Scout troops meet at the same time, all troops met last night for routine business.

According to Paul R. McGuire, scout executive, with this plan there can be closer cooperation. The things discussed at the meetings can be carried out to better advantage during the week. It is planned to have the new troops which are being organized also follow this schedule for their meetings.

RUPTURE Expert Here

F. H. Sealey, of Chicago and Philadelphia, the noted expert, will himself personally be at the Montrose Hotel, and will remain in Cedar Rapids Thursday only, Oct. 27, from 9 A.M. till 5 P.M. Mr. Sealey says:

"The Spermatic Shield will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case. Being a vast advancement over all former methods—simplifying instantaneous effects immediately appreciable and without standing any strain or position no matter the size or location. Large or difficult cases, or incisional ruptures (following operations) specially solicited. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, injections, medical treatments or prescriptions."

CAUTION—All cases should be cautioned against the use of any elastic or web truss with understrap, as same rest where the lump is and not where the opening is, producing complications necessitating surgical operations. Mr. Sealey has documents from the United States Government, Washington, D. C., for inspection. He will be glad to demonstrate without charge or fit them if desired. Business demands prevents stopping at any other place in this section.
