Six Hawkeyes Qualify for Finals

Congress Votes to Keep "Lame Duck" Sessions

Defeat Amendment to Constitution by 36 Votes

WASHINGTON, March 9 (AP) — The White-Norris constitutional amendment to abolish "lame duck" sessions of congress and change the presidential inaugural date was rejected by the house.

The vote was 209 to 157 which was 38 votes less than the two-thirds necessary for approval of constitutional amendments.

The house action taken after three days of debate, during which republican leaders led a vigorous fight against the proposal, definitely shelves the amendment for this session of congress, at least. The amendment, in slightly modified form, was approved earlier this session by the senate.

Amendment Far-Reaching

The amendment sought to change the meeting date of congress from March 4 to Jan. 4. This would have abolished the "lame duck" sessions of congress or those in which sit members who were defeated at earlier elections. To conform with this change the resolution proposed to have the president take office on January 24 instead of March 4.

It also proposed to clear up ambiguous provisions in the constitution regarding succession to the presidency in the event of the death of the president and vice president, and, in addition to give congress power to establish presidential succession in possible contingencies not covered by the constitution.

Party Lines Disappear

Party lines disappeared entirely in the voting. Tilson, of Connecticut, the republican floor leader; Martin Madden of Illinois, chairman of the appropriations committee, and Snell, of New York, chairman of the powerful committee on legislative procedure, waged relentless war against the amendment.

They encountered, however, the stiffest opposition from their own republican colleagues, White of Kansas, co-author of the amendment and Gifford of Massachusetts, a comparatively new member, who proved difficult foes.

Garrett Meets Opposition

On the other side of the aisle, Garrett of Tennessee the minority floor leader, found the democratic ranks equally disrupted. Tucker, Moore and Montague, all Virginians, joined with a host of other southerners in taking opposition to their leader.

As finally rejected by the house the amendment had been modified by the adoption of two provisos regarded by members as of material importance. One sponsored by Jeffers, an Alabama democrat, eliminated all reference to specific adjournment dates for congress.

Another proviso, offered by Garrett, proposed that the amendment would be null and void if not ratified by three-fourths of the state legislatures within seven years.

Authorities Seek Governor's Help Finding Murderer

DES MOINES, March 9 (AP) — Determined to apprehend the slayer of Mrs. Martha Smith, 82 years old, of Rising Sun, who was shot in her farm home, Tuesday, county authorities this afternoon appealed to Gov. John Hammill for a reward for his arrest.

Sheriff Findley was preparing tonight to send descriptions of Frank White, Fort Snelling deserter, sought as a suspect, throughout the middle west.

White who has been missing from his quarters since Sunday, is 26 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall, with blue eyes and light brown hair. He has a ruddy complexion.

Deputy Sheriff Rich Anderson was expected back from Fort Snelling tonight with the overcoat, holster and gloves which army officials identified as belonging to White and which were found near the scene of the murder.

Expect Favorable Report on Green

WASHINGTON, March 9 (AP)— A favorable report on the nomination of Representative Green of Iowa, chairman of the house ways and means committee, to the United States court of claims is expected to be made to the senate judiciary committee next Monday by its subcommittee.

The nomination was held up at the request of Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, for inquiry because Representative Green is now 72 years of age, two years beyond the legal retirement age for federal judges.

Iowan Goes to Washington

TACOMA, Wash., March 9 (AP)— Dr. Oscar A. Tingelstad of Luther college, Decorah, today accepted the presidency of the Pacific Lutheran college here.

Snow Storm Hits East and Canada

NEW YORK, March 9 (AP)— A storm swirling out of the middle-west spread snow over large sections of the east today, as far south as Maryland and North into Canada. In Detroit it brought an endurance flight to a premature conclusion.

The snow fell all day and was predicted to continue during the night unless a shifting wind with warmer temperature should change it to rain.

Crawford Talks to Lunch Club Today

Chooses "Modernism, What of It" as His Subject

Nelson Antrim Crawford, author, poet, and director of publicity for the department of agriculture at Washington, D. C., will deliver an address, "Modernism; What of It," to members of the Saturday Lunch club this noon at Youde's inn.

Professor Crawford has been described by Prof. John Frederick of the English department as interested in advance movements in art and literature. He is personally acquainted with many young modernistic poets abroad.

Free verse of an experimental kind has been written by the speaker and he received the Kansas poetry prize of $100 in 1920.

His recent novel, "Man of Learning," is a mock biography of a college president that pretends to praise him as a great figure while it really exposes him as a perfect blend of chicanery and buncombe. This is the first satire of this type to be published by an American.

The president of Vassar college, Henry Noble MacCracken, in discussing the book in a recent article in the Saturday Review of Literature calls it the Elmer Gantry of education. President MacCracken refers to it as a devasting exposition of a prexy in his nineteenth century costume written from the inside.

He goes on to say that no college president is a hero to his publicity director and that the book grew out of Professor Crawford's experience as a teacher of journalism under William M. Jardine, formerly president of Kansas Agriculture colege and now secretary of agriculture.

Glass Blower to Present Program

Robbins to Exhibit Art Before Chamber of Commerce

A program different from the usual type given at chamber of commerce luncheons has been been arranged for next Monday noon.

John W. Robbins, glass blower in the university department of chemistry, will give a demonstration at the luncheon of the mysteries of forming intricate articles from brittle glass.

Robbins has spent all his life working at glass blowing and gives demonstrations every year for the Mecca show of the engineering college. He also appears on special programs for the chemistry department.

Small pigs, letters of the alphabet, and scores of other intricate articles are made by the glass blower.

By using a coloring process, articles of beauty can be made. Long tubes two inches in diameter are used, and heat for making the glass soft enough to be worked is furnished by compressed gas.

In his everyday work, Mr. Robbins makes tubes, and other articles used by students in the chemistry department.

Graduates From Penitentiary Form New Fraternity

BERLIN, March 9 (AP)—Germany, the land of the countless "vereine" and societies has added another to its list.

The latest organization that has come into existence is the "Society of Former Inmates of the Penitentiary of Celle," in the Province of Hanover. Its members wear a special badge so that they may recognize each other in case they did not have a chance to become acquainted in Celle.

The chairman of this society, who has given himself the old and respected name of "Ben Akiba," did not hold his position long. About a fortnight after he had taken over the presidency he was grabbed by the secret service of Dortmund, in the act of opening a safe without keys.

Leaders Ask for Speedy Settlement of Labor Dispute

Say Fisk Discriminated Hiring Workers for New Hospital

DES MOINES, March 9 (AP)—Governor Hammill today was asked by state labor leaders to expedite a decision on an application filed with him to name a board of arbitration and conciliation in connection with a labor dispute arising over construction work at the University of Iowa.

J. C. Lewis, president of the Iowa State Federation of Labor, H. A. Morris, business agent for the Iowa City carpenters' union visited the executive to inquire into the status of the application, and were told that a reply had been filed by certain workmen at the university, claiming to be union men, that the conditions complained of did not exist. The governor said he had delayed action in order to ascertain further details concerning the dispute. He asked the inquirers to furnish him with further data in writing as to the status of those who had replied to the application for a board of arbitration.

The petitioners claim that J. M. Fisk, superintendent of building at the University of Iowa, has discriminated against union labor in construction of new university buildings, especially in connection with the construction of a unit of the university hospital; that non-union labor is generally employed and that he refuses to comply with a demand for use of union labor in state work. Mr. Fisk has denied these claims and in support of his position, filed with the governor statements of several workmen who said they were members of local Iowa City unions.

A further conference with the governor will be had early next week.

Congress Raises Election Question

Senators to Consider Intervening Power of Presidents

WASHINGTON, March 9 (AP)— The long debated question of the authority of the president to supervise elections in foreign lands was raised anew today in the senate.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, a leader of the republican independents, offered a resolution proposing an inquiry by the foreign relations committee as to the president's authority and the drafting of legislation to prevent the use of the army and navy for the supervision of elections should the committee find that the president was without authority to so use the nation's armed forces.

Borah Discusses Question

Senator Borah declared the resolution raised the whole question of "the extent of the powers of the president in relation to the protection of life and property in foreign lands."

"This subject has been debated and differed upon for 100 years the Idaho senator said. "It is an important matter for we have been holding elections in some of these countries off and on for twenty years. The Taft administration held elections; the Wilson administration held elections and the Harding administration held elections, so I think it is a matter we ought to consider very carefully."

Question President's Authority

Under the Norris resolution the foreign relations committee would be directed to deal with such questions as:

What authority the president had to accept an invitation from the Nicaraguan government to supervise an election in Nicaragua. If the president has authority to act in Nicaragua, has he not authority to supervise elections in any foreign country?

Will the use of the armed forces in supervising elections in foreign countries have a tendency to bring on war between the United States and foreign nations where such supervisory authority is attempted?

Stanley Baldwin Promises Women Equal Suffrage

LONDON, March 9 (AP)—Stanley Baldwin, the first British prime minister to appear before an equal suffrage meeting ,promised a vast assembly of women representing 140 organizations that "in a few weeks" parliament would grant them complete equality with the men in voting privileges.

This declaration was received with frenzied cheering by the women, who had met to celebrate the success of their bitter fight extending nearly 100 years.

LOOKS AHEAD TEN YEARS

"I love life and I want to live it," said Velma West, life-sentenced "husband hammer-slayer," as Judge Jesse D. Barnes (upper right) intoned the words of her punishment. The 21-year-old murderess is already looking forward to her future freedom. "Within ten years I am eligible for release, that gives me hope," she said. Besides no part of her imprisonment is to be solitary.

Rongnetti to Die in Electric Chair

Date of Execution Set for April 13; New Trial Denied

CHICAGO, March 9 (AP)—A sentence of death in the electric chair was given Dr. Amante Rongetti in criminal court here today after his motion for a new trial had been denied. The date of the execution was set for April 13.

Convicted of performing an illegal operation on a 19-year-old girl and then through wilful negligence permitting her and her baby to die, the physician paled as Judge Frank Somerford asked if he had anything to say before sentence was pronounced.

"I advise my client to answer 'no'," shouted Rongetti's attorney, William Scott Stewart, leaping to his feet.

"No," echoed the doctor, his mouth twitching.

In overruling the motion for a new trial, Judge Comerford said: "Proof was made that the defendant performed a criminal abortion on Loretta Enders and left an unhappy 19-year-old girl to die because she did not have any money and had not paid her bill.

"It was shown that the defendant refused to perform an indicated operation after the abortion was performed and after symptoms of peritonitis had set in. He refused to send her to another hospital where she might have had such an operation performed.

"No one took the witness stand to challenge, dispute or deny these terrible truths.

"The defendant was accorded every right and protection of the law. The jury found him guilty of a most revolting and brutal murder and fixed the punishment at death."

Passenger Ship Grounds in Bay

Robert E. Lee Stuck Off Manomet Point; 263 on Board

BOSTON, March 9 (AP)—The Boston-New York steamer Robert E. Lee, with 150 passengers and a crew of 113, drove aground tonight on May Ann rocks of Manomet Point, in a snowstorm and gale. The vessel remained hard and fast on the reef, but a message sent out at 10:20 o'clock said the passengers were in no danger. It was said that no attempt would be made to remove them before tomorrow morning.

An SOS message sent out by the steamer at 8 o'clock a few minutes after she grounded, started a fleet of rescue craft to her assistance. These included the naval ships Bushnell, Falcon and Mallard, engaged in salvaging the sunken submarine S-4 off Provincetown, the coast guard cutters Tuscarora and Redwing, coast guard patrol boats and life saving surfboats from shore stations. All were in the vicinity of the Robert E. Lee late tonight.

The reassuring message received from the Lee after several hours during which her condition appeared to be hopeless read as follows:

"Lying comfortable. No immediate danger. Transfer passengers in the morning."

Druggist Murder Case Ends; Jury to Judge Hickman

LOS ANGELES, March 9 (AP)— A jury in superior court tonight took under consideration the case of William Edward Hickman and Welby Ford, accused slayers of C. Ivy Toms, druggist, who was shot to death in a holdup of his drugstore a year ago Christmas eve.

Final arguments of state's counsel and of attorneys for the two former pals in crime—each of whom accused the other of firing the fatal shot—were concluded late today and the jury received its instructions from Superior Judge Elliott Craig. The jurors retired at 4:40 p.m.

Judge Craig instructed the jury to return separate verdicts on the guilt or innocence of each defendant, and also that it should consider the sanity of Hickman. It was instructed that the legal definition under California law of sanity was the ability to distinguish between right and wrong.

Instructions were given that if Hunt, a minor, were found guilty the jury must fix the penalty as life imprisonment.

A few minutes after the jury, which consists of six men and six women, received the case, they were taken out for dinner. Consideration of their verdicts was to be continued afterward.

Accident Victim in Critical Condition

Funeral for Children Will Take Place Tomorrow

WATERLOO, March 9 (AP) — Harry Arthur, driver of the school bus in which two children were killed when the machine was struck by a Rock Island passenger train late yesterday near Marble Rock, was in a critical condition at a hospital here tonight.

Thelma Shafer, one of the most seriously injured of seven children who were brought to the local hospital, also is in a serious condition. There is a chance for recovery, hospital physicians said.

Pauline May, sister of Harrison May, 12 years old, one of the boys killed, was slightly improved tonight, and the five other children were thought to be out of danger.

An inquest was held at Marble Rock today to determine whether the driver stopped for the crossing. None of the witnesses was able to give information on that point and the hearing was continued until next Friday.

Engineer Fred Mays and Fireman Lee Grant of the train testified they did not see the bus until the train had nearly stopped, after the crash. A blinding snow obscured their vision, they said. They were aware something was wrong they said, but thought the engine had developed trouble. The whistle and bell were sounded for the crossing, they declared.

Edgar Reed, father of Webster Reed, who lives near the crossing, testified he heard the train whistle but not the bell. The son said he heard neither whistle nor bell, but told of his son alighting from the bus just before the crossing was reached, and of hearing the crash and summoning doctors from Marble Rock.

Tentative plans were made today to hold the funerals of the victims, young May and Roger Stauffer, 10, Sunday afternoon.

Evans Receives Appointment for Eighth District

Governor's Selection Goes Contrary to Usual Practice

Harold D. Evans, republican, was appointed yesterday by Gov. John Hammill as judge of the eighth judicial district to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Ralph Otto.

The appointment was made exactly one week after a committee of four Iowa City attorneys had presented to the governor a recommendation from the Johnson County Bar association indorsing A. O. Byington, a democrat, for the appointment.

The new judge has received no official word from the governor in regard to the appointment but is expecting instructions today as to the place and time of taking the oath of office.

Business Awaits Evans

He will assume the duties within a few days in the Iowa county court at Marengo. In the meantime he is finishing up business at his law office here.

A number of cases are awaiting hearing in the Iowa county court as no judge has been on duty there since the death of Judge Otto, Feb. 24. Mr. Evans will first sit on the bench here in the May term of court, as the two judges of the district alternate terms between the two counties. The other judge, R. G. Popham, is now holding court here.

The newly appointed judge had the following to say yesterday in regard to the appointment:

"I am naturally very much pleased to receive the appointment and I consider it an honor and mark of respect to be appointed to fill as important an office as district judge."

Graduate from Iowa

Immediately after being graduated from the University of Iowa law college in 1914 he at once entered the office of Edwin B. Wilson. In

1929 Hawkeye Uses Gothic Motif

Two-Color Views of Campus Feature of Yearbook

An entirely new style of art work and a two-color border combination will characterize the 1929 Hawkeye as an inovation in year book publication in the middle west. Carrying as its theme, the Gothic art creations of the fourteenth and fifteenth century woodcutters, the new plates for the yearbook represent an adaptation of this form of illustration to modern day ideas.

The view section of seven pages will be run in two tones of color. Each page will carry a large portrait of a campus view in a border of medieval design. On each page there will also be found a small duotone illustration of a similar scene.

With the serious nature of the theme it has been found desirable to introduce a small amount of humor. This is done through the subdivision pages which mark the beginning of each individual section. These small drawings illustrate to the best advantage the crude woodcutting attempts of the early artists and contain a remarkable amount of subtle humor.

An effort has been made to change the entire style of publication wherever it is possible. Cuts have been enlarged with the idea in mind that pictures carry more of an appeal. Type matter has been reduced to a minimum and edited to carry a maximum of reading interest.

It is expected that the results of the beauty contest will be announced soon.

Legislators Seek Government Aid for Flood Areas

WASHINGTON, March 9 (AP)— A plan of action for inclusion of a tributaries flood control project in plan was framed today by a score of representatives from states through which the tributaries flow.

The group endorsed an amendment to the Jones flood bill pending in the senate, proposed by Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, to appropriate $5,000,000 for flood surveys on the tributaries by the chief of army engineers. The findings of the surveys would be presented to congress Dec. 1.

Another amendment, suggested by Representative Wingo, democrat, Arkansas, which was approved, proposed that the flood control of tributaries should be stated as a purpose in any flood bill enacted by congress as a part of the main project of the Mississippi valley.

Watson Wins in Indiana Meeting

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 9 (AP)—United States senator James E. Watson, favorite son presidential candidate, received the endorsement of the Indiana republican editorial association here today over the protests of supporters of Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce. Hoover entered the Hoosier primary fight yesterday.

Pleas for harmony within the editorial association put an end to what for a time looked like the outbreak of a fight over the issue.

Wanamaker Scion Succumbs to Cold at Seaside Home

Last of Great Family Dies After Four Weeks' Illness

JENKINTOWN, Pa., March 9 (AP)—Rodman Wanamaker, last surviving son of the late John Wanamaker, and head of the stores in Philadelphia, New York and abroad that bear the family name, died in Atlantic City early today. The body was brought here late today to his estate "Lindenhurst."

Mr. Wanamaker went to his seashore home about four weeks ago and later contracted a cold. He apparently was improving until a week ago when complications set in. His condition, however, did not become alarming until yesterday when there was evidence of uremia and he passed into a state of coma. He was 65 years old.

Three Physicians at Bedside

Three leading physicians from Philadelphia were summoned to his bedside for consultation yesterday.

Death came to Mr. Wanamaker at Buckhill in the Ventner section of the seashore resort one of the five palatial residences maintained by the merchant.

His fine estate "Lindenhurst" here just north of Philadelphia was "home" and interment will be in the graveyard of the protestant Episcopal church of St. James at the falls of Schuylkill, this city, where rest the bodies of his father and mother.

Interested in Many Enterprises

Mr. Wanamaker was interested in many enterprises of a civic and philanthropic nature, not only here and in New York, but abroad as well. He was a generous patron of art and had many examples of the work of great painters and other artists in the New York and Philadelphia stores. He had given lavishly of his wealth to further aviation. He financed the airship "America" which was wrecked in a storm in 1914 when it attempted a trans-Atlantic flight. Byrd's aerial flight to the north pole and his later hop to France were made possible by Mr. Wanamaker's backing.

High School Trio Wins Arguments

Defeats Grinnell With Judges Vote of Two to One

Iowa City high school won the decision over Grinnell last night when they debated the question: "Resolved, that the United States should grant independence to the Philippine Islands at once." A two to one vote in favor of the affirmative was for the local debaters.

This marks the first of series of debates to be held by three Iowa districts. The question debated last night will be the one considered The cities composing district No. 1 are Burlington, Davenport, and Muscatine. Fairfield, Oskaloosa and Ottumwa comprise the second district. District No. 3 consists of Iowa City, Grinnell and Clinton.

Teams of the three triangles debated in their respective districts last night. The winners will meet for the final match March 23.

The Iowa City team which was to have met Clinton last night, at Clinton will meet that team Monday night. This postponement was due to an athletic contest at Clinton.

Grinnell has lost a decision debating the negative of the question with Clinton, at Grinnell.

Legislators Fear Reapportionment Bill

DES MOINES, March 9 (AP) Some concern is felt among Iowa legislators that Congress may enact the reapportionment bill to be reported out the first of the week by the house census committee. The bill would reduce the Iowa representation in congress by two members. The state legislature would, in that case, have to decide what congressional districts would remain, and make new apportionment of districts, or provide for the election of congressmen from Iowa at large.

Iowa, Illinois Men Favorites in Big Ten Preliminaries

Rockaway Breaks 60 Yard Dash Record for Conference

The sharpened talons of the Hawkeyes proved superior to the educated tendons of the Illini as the two teams began their battle for the championship of the Big Ten in the field house last night.

The cinders were hot as the Iowans swooped toward the finish tape, and succeeded in breaking it four times. As a result of the preliminaries, the Iowa team stands to the fore with six men qualified in the three events; the 60 yard dash, quarter, and half mile runs. Michigan Illinois, and Chicago followed, each qualifying three men.

Captain Cuhel started the fireworks for the Hawks when he showed a clean pair of heels to the field in the third heat of the 60 yard dash. Stevenson ran a neat race to win the sixth heat. Wilkins of the Purple qualified by placing second.

Rockaway Wins Heat

The fastest heat of the short dash was won by Rockaway of Ohio State in 6 1-2 seconds. This establishes a Western conference record for the distance. This is the first time that the meet has been held in a building large enough to permit the race. Sexton of Iowa finished in third place, just out of the qualification.

The first heat of the quarter was won by the veteran Baird of Iowa. He had things his own way and was not pushed to win. Another Iowan came through in the fourth heat. Wilmoth, formerly a half-miler, ran a heady 440, passing Chambers of Illinois in the back stretch and winning with a lot of reserve. Stephenson, the Hoosier flash strutted a timely ankle winning his heat in :51.8.

Wilmoth Places Second

The first semi-final turned into a battle from start to finish with Stephenson of Indiana breasting the tape in front of Wilmoth of Iowa. The third man to qualify was Chambers of Illinois.

Baird qualified in the second heat by taking third in a slow race which Nickol won from Smock of Indiana.

An Indian bit the dust for a loss of a probable five points in the third heat of the half mile run. White, the Illini speedster, doped to win the finals of the 880, became tangled with Banks of Indiana and they were both rolled for a loss. They continued the race as soon as they could get to their feet. White dug in and gave a remarkable exhibition of a comeback, finishing third after making up a heartbreaking lead held by Gorby of Northwestern and Gunn of Iowa who finished first and second respectively.

Moulton Sprints to Second

Jack Moulton, Iowa's hope in the finals, drew up from fifth position on the last curve to second at the tape in one of the finest sprints of the evening. He was led to the tape by Martin of Purdue who scored the fastest time of the field by negotiating the distance in 1:58.2. Tooley, star of Ohio State, failed to qualify as Lomont, plucky little runner, placed in front of Dick Williams of Chicago, conference champion, and Ponzer of Illinois, who tied for second.

The "tumbling twins" of Indiana were running in hard luck last night. C. O. Banks was running in second position in the first heat of

Modern Portia

Miss Dorothy Woodman (above) and Mme. Louise Brunet.

LONDON (AP)—Enthusiastic feminists of Europe still believe in vigorous action.

In London, four young women decided to let the king know, by means of a personally delivered letter, that they wanted parliament to expedite the enfranchisement of women under the age of 30.

Among those carrying the letter to the palace was Dorothy Woodman, secretary of the "Young Suffragists." She engaged the police in conversation while a colleague slipped into the palace grounds. The latter was captured after a chase and carried kicking from the grounds.

Across the English Channel, which has become a swimming tank for intrepid women, Madame Louise Brunet, militant suffrage leader, warns France that something stronger than words will be forthcoming from French women soon unless affirmative action is taken quickly on their demand for municipal voting privileges and the right to hold municipal office.

Mme. Brunet heads a feminist minority which counsels direct action. The majority of French feminists are for peaceful campaigning.

"Peaceful methods have brought us nowhere; let's try action," says the militant leader.

Beard pulling is suggested by newspapers that take the campaign lightly.

Iowa Men Among Best Dressed in Big Ten Schools

University of Iowa men place this institution among the three best dressed schools in the Big Ten conference is the opinion of Donald Barr, a representative of Stratford clothes who has been making a tour of eastern universities and was in Iowa City yersterday.

The men of Michigan and Wisconsin share sartorial honors with Iowa.

The trend among students of eastern schools, noticed by Mr. Barr is to follow the style dictates of England and Wall street, and to be less influenced by existing college styles. He finds that western conference schools set the mode for students of the middle west.

Spring and fall style trends for men, according to Mr. Barr, show three-button coats with soft fronts and lapels which roll past the third button. The length will remain the same. Fancy patterns in twists and tweeds will give way to finished and unfinished worsteds in plainer colors. Shorter topcoats, about 46-47 inches in Harris tweeds and camels' hair will predominate.

Plain colored neckwear in small figured patterns, such as is now worn by University of Iowa students will persist. Newer shirts will have long-point collars.

Black shoes, not with the narrow toes favored in the east but with square toes will be worn by the well-dressed student.

Mr. Barr will have a complete analysis of style trends in the spring fashions edition of The Iowan next week.

Students Express Ideas on Career in Women's Group

Although there was an absence of radical opinion in the discussion of "Children or a Career?" sponsored Thursday in the Iowa Union by Sigma Delta Phi, honorary forensic sorority, the general consensus seemed to be that every woman should answer the question for herself.

Very few took a definite stand on one side or the other of the question. Some of the more maternally minded insisted that a woman with babies has no need of a career. Others came back with the retort that any woman could have babies but few are able to have careers.

"Women can't raise the babies and the wherewithal both," one young woman remarked. Another solved the dilemma with, "Men work, and women work the men."

Some of the discussion group felt they could have both children and careers. Others insisted that a definite choice must be made. Personal examples were brought up to prove both sides.

The young women who urged marriage plus a career suggested birth control as solving many of the problems. The meeting ended with a resolution to meet fifteen years from now and see how all the various theories had worked out.

THE BIDDING

South Bids	West Bids	North Bids	East Bids
1 S	2 D	3 S	4 D
4 S	Pass	Pass	Pass

Final Bid 4 S. Played by South

Salient Points of the Bidding

South's four-card suit bid is compensated by a side Ace. West's two-bid of Diamonds was fairly justified by his holding. North jumps his assist of Spades to three to show more than normal length in Spades in order to provide for the possibility of South's Spade suit being one of but four cards, and thus encourage a rebid by South in case he holds any side strength. East refused to be shut out from showing his Diamond assist, and therefore bid four Diamonds, an eminently sound bid in view of the previous bidding and his own bidding.

Salient Points of the Play

With fair distribution, South can count ten tricks, losing a Spade, a Heart, and a Club. The difficulty of getting into Dummy to finesse, compels South to lead the Ace of trumps to the second trick. When the King of Spades drops, all the trumps must be drawn, and a losing Heart discarded on the Ace of Diamonds. If West, when in with the Club, should lead a Heart, Declarer will make a Small Slam. If East has held four Spades to the King, the game could still be won. After winning the second round of trumps, East could lead either a Spade or a Diamond. If the Diamond, Declarer would take another round of trumps and then set the Clubs. East would be permitted to make the low trump, but would be forced to lead the Heart for the loss of a trick.

House Majority for Good Roads Beats Opposition

Votes Down Series of Amendments to Proposed Bill

DES MOINES, March 9 (AP) — A vote in the house of representatives on the $100,000,000 state road bond bill may be reached tomorrow, it was indicated when the house adjourned tonight with but four amendments remaining to be considered.

The forces behind the bill today saw the majority which had pledged its passage hold together while a series of amendments were offered during the fourth day of the special session. Four minor amendments were adopted in the house, three of which were introduced by Rep. J. H. Johnson of Marion county, floor leader for the bill.

The bill which the senate passed by a 32 to 17 vote yesterday was messaged to the house of representatives at the opening of this morning session, and almost immediately was substituted for a companion measure in the house. The one house amendment passed yesterday was retained, and the representatives considered proposals to amend during both morning and afternoon sessions.

Knudson Fights for Measure

A strong fight for an amendment was made by Mr. Knudson, who asked that some consideration be given to market roads and charged that proponents of the bill were disregarding the people who did not live on primary roads.

As finally voted upon, the amendment provided that the $3,000,000 would be apportioned to the counties on a ration to be based upon the varying cost of road construction in the various parts of the state. The amendment was defeated 56 to 50 by roll call.

The roll call:

Absent or not voting—Carter, Springer—2.

Four Amendments Pass

The three amendments by Mr. Johnson which carried merely changed the wording of passages of the bill. One stipulated that not more than $100,000,000 in bonds should be outstanding "at any time."

The fourth amendment, by W. E. G. Saunders of Palo Alto county, gave the state highway commission authority to purchase cement and other manufacturing plants.

Also included in the bill is an amendment which Representative Knudson succeeded in passing yesterday which limited the maximum rate of interest on the bonds to four per cent.

1915 and 1916 he was assistant county attorney and in 1917 he entered into partnership with Wilson, which firm has lasted until the present time.

Mr. Evans is 40 years old, and will be one of the youngest members of Iowa's judicial system. He is a member of the Presbyterian church. He was commander of the Roy L. Chopek post of Iowa City for one year.

He has always been a resident of the eighth district in which he is to serve. He was born at Williamsburg, and was graduated from the high school there in 1905. After two years as deputy clerk of the Iowa county district court, Mr. Evans came to Iowa City to enter the University of Iowa.

Evans Active in Politics

Always an actie participant in politics, Mr. Evans was apponted chairman of the Johnson county central committee of the republican party in 1920 to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Frank Stebbins. He has held that position continually since.

In June, 1917, Mr. Evans was enlisted in the regular army and served until April 1, 1919, part of the time being overseas.

No reason has been given by the governor for not following the indorsement of the Johnson county bar association. It is customary for the local bar association to meet and select a man to recommend to the governor for the appointment. The executive is not, however, required to follow the bar's recommendation.

Methodist Church Will Retire Five Oldest Bishops at Meeting in May

Five bishops, having reached the retirement age, will be relieved of active duty by the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church this year. They are Joseph F. Berry (center)' Francis W. Warne (upper left), Luther B. Wilson (upper right), William F. Oldham (lower left) and Wilbur P. Thirkield (lower right).

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 8 (AP)—With a combined service record of 267 of their 366 years of life, five of the thirty-seven bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, who have reached the age limit, will be retired when the general conference meets here in May.

Church discipline prescribes that a bishop shall be relieved of active duty at the close of the session of the general conference nearest his seventy-third birthday.

Those retiring will be Joseph F. Berry, Philadelphia; Luther B. Wilson, New York; Wilbur P. Thirkield, Chattanooga, Tenn.; William F. Oldham, Buenos Aires, Argentine; and Francis W. Warne, Bangalore City, India.

The conference will choose their successors at the Kansas City meeting. Bishops are elected by a two-thirds majority conference vote.

Dean of the retiring bishops is Joseph F. Berry, Philadelphia, who was the forty-seventh bishop of the church, chosen in 1904. He served eight years at Buffalo, N. Y., and the last sixteen at Philadelphia.

Bishop Berry was born at Aylmer, Ontario, May 13, 1856, one of twelve children. His father, Rev. Francis Berry, served small charges in Canada and Michigan for sixty-five years at a salary never exceeding $1,000 annually. Bishop Berry began to preach at sixteen, was licensed at seventeen and received on trial in the Michigan conference at eighteen.

A printer's apprentice in his youth, he became assistant editor of the Michigan Christian Advocate thirteen years later and editor of the newly-founded Epworth Herald in 1890. Fourteen years later he became general secretary of the Epworth League.

He helped found the Forward Movement of Methodism. Since 1912 he has been president of the Methodist Board of Home Missions, and has edited several song books.

Bishop Wilson likewise has served as bishop twenty-four years, having been elected fifty-seventh bishop in 1904. He has served the New York area for sixteen years. Born in Baltimore in 1856, he was educated at Dickinson college, and entered the ministry in 1878.

He is president of the Board of Foreign Missions, secretary of the Board of Bishops and a former president of the Anti-Saloon League of America. During the world war he did Y. M. C. A. work in France.

Bishop Thirkield, lecturer and writer, became a bishop in 1912, and has served at Chattanooga for the last four years. Born at Franklin, O., in 1854, he was educated at Ohio Wesleyan and Boston university, entering the ministry in 1878. He was general secretary of the Epworth League in 1899, and president of Howard university, Washington, from 1906 to 1912.

Bishop Oldham, elected in 1916, has had world-wide religious experience. Born in Bangalore City, India, in 1854, the son of a British officer, he served the church before attaining his majority.

After his graduation from Boston university, he entered the Michigan conference, then was sent to India, where he helped found the Malaysia conference, and the Anglo-Chinese school at Singapore. Poor health caused his return to the United States within five years, and he served in Ohio and Chicago. In 1904 he returned to Asia as a missionary bishop.

Bishop Warne was elected in 1920. He was born at Erin, Ontario, Can., Dec. 30, 1854, and entered the ministry twenty years later. He went to Calcutta, India, on missionary work in 1887, and became a missionary bishop there in 1900. During his work he paid official visits to Malaysia, China, Korea, Japan, Honolulu and the Philippines.

State May Return Culvert Expenses

Votes to Reimburse Counties for Road Funds

DES MOINES, March 9 (AP)—The counties' hope of obtaining refund from the state primary road fund for money they have spent for constructing culverts on state primary roads was partially realized today when the state senate by a vote of 48 to 9 passed the Stoddard amendment to the refund law of the last session, and included culverts as participating in bridging and right of way refunds.

The measure must await action on reconsideration before being messaged to the house for action by that body. Included in the Stoddard amendment was a provision to include the so-called gravel counties in the state's provision for bridge refunds.

Under the estimates of Fred R. White, state highway engineer, who appeared before the senate to explain what the amendment, if passed, would mean in the six year construction program under the state bond bill, the culvert refunding costs would be $2,200,000, and leave the six year construction program with a $1,600,000 deficit in the estimated costs.

A bill to add an extra cent of gas tax to the present three-cent tax, introduced in the senate today by Senator C. S. Browne of Jackson county without opposition will be one of the first items of senate business tomorrow. Senator Browne proposes that the additional cent of tax shall be used for construction of the secondary or county road system.

Columbia Court to Try Oil Head on Contempt Charges

CHICAGO, March 9 (AP)—Col. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil company of Indiana have signed a $5,000 bond for his appearance for trial at the next term of the court of the District of Columbia on charges of contempt of the United States senate for refusing to answer questions of its Teapot Dome investigating committee.

Colonel Stewart refused to comment on the warrant which charged him with violating section 102 of the criminal code in four instances.

Colonel Stewart was indicted on the contempt charges when he refused for "personal reasons' to divulge to the committee what he knew of the Continental Trading company, Ltd., bond deal.

American Workers Leave Texas After Influx of Mexicans

WASHINGTON, March 9 (AP)—An exodus of American laborers from Texas forced by an influx of Mexican workers, was described to the house immigration committee Wednesday by Charles McKamey of Austin, Tex., commissioner of labor, in urging favorable action upon the Box bill to restrict immigration from western hemisphere countries.

Along with McKamey, who declared that Mexican laborers with lower standards of living gradually were driving the Americans from Texas, appeared Dr. Harry H. Laughlin, of New York, a biologist with the Carnegie institute. Dr. Laughlin pleaded for an amendment to the immigration laws which would permit only white immigration.

The Texas commissioner testified that not only American laborers but tenant farmers were being driven from Texas by the gradual encroachment of the Mexicans.

Fifteen Des Moines Candidates Compete in Council Primary

DES MOINES, March 9 (AP) — Fifteen candidates for the Des Moines city council, six less than the number in the 1926 campaign, are listed on the slate for the primary municipal election March 13. Of the candidates, five are to be eliminated before the general election March 26.

Mayor Fred Hunter so far has but one opponent, John MacVicar, whose candidacy has precipitated speculation as to whether the mayor can fulfill predictions made two years ago and receive a landslide for a second term.

Professor Stites Praises de Vinci

Italian Sculptor Sets High Mark for Attainment

Leonardo da Vinci, famous Italian sculptor and painter of the Renaissance period, was rendered high tribute by Raymond S. Stites of the history of art department, speaking at the Baconian lecture in the chemistry auditorium last night. Mr. Stites' subject was "Some Observations on the life of Leonardo da Vinci."

The life and accomplishments of Da Vinci formed the central theme of the lecture. The speaker lauded the artist as one of the great figures of history.

Da Vinci an Ideal

"Four centuries ago a man lived and died," he said. "He was so much of a man that we may take him as an ideal. His moral and social senses were so finely balanced, and he was so urged to independent inquiry, that for almost three score years he labored day after day. During that time he created an art which looks modern today, and he saw with a vision that would in no wise be out of place in our modern world of scientific marvels."

According to the speaker, Da Vinci was not only an artist but he had attained a knowledge of other sciences that was no less than remarkable for the age in which he lived. His works prove his excellence as an anatomist. Moreover he is known to have dissected over forty corpses.

During these dissections he seems to have discovered the circulation of the blood, the function of the generative cells, and several other medical facts which are generally attributed to later scientists.

Sculptor a Botanist

Da Vinci was also a botantist, and as a geologist he did research in fossils and denied the existence of the universal flood.

The lecture was illustrated with slides showing a number of Da Vinci's works. The speaker commented upon the phenomena observed in these works, in relation to the development of painting throughout the Renaissance.

Lewis Blames Railroads for Mine Situation

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP)—Depicting deplorable economic conditions in the central competitive bituminous fields, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America has laid the situation primarily to what he termed a conspiracy among the railroads.

The conspiracy was a two-ford purpose, to reduce coal costs to carriers, and keep down the level of wages for miners and railway men, Lewis charged, as he presented the opening statement for the now unemployed union miners in the senate investigation ordered under the Johnson resolution.

While making this the primary foundation for his complaint, Lewis detailed many other factors entering into the whole equation of the ills that beset operators and union and non-union miners alike. He protested vigorously against the use of iron and coal and other private police clothed with the sovereign powers of the state and against the operation of injunctions isued by the federal courts restraining union men.

Jones to Assist in Consolidation

Law Dean on Board to Join Methodist Institutions

Dean Henry Craig Jones of the college of law has been appointed on the board of commissions which will formulate a plan for the maintainance of one Methodist college in the Upper Iowa conference. By a conference vote of two to one, it was decided last Tuesday that the state would support only one institution in that district.

H. C. JONES

Nine persons have been appointed on the committee. It will include two members of the Cornell college board, two persons from the Upper Iowa university board and five persons selected at large. This committee will meet in Waterloo, Monday, and will begin work immediately on the report which will be presented by April 15.

The belief of some persons that Cornell college officials started the idea of consolidation because of the superior strength of that institution is erroneous, according to Dean Jones. Laymen, who were unconnected with the two institutions started the measures, he said yesterday.

Dean Jones intimated, however, that the consolidation would probably be in favor of Cornell because of the fact that the college is stronger, larger, and better equipped than Upper Iowa.

British Aviator to Fly on 4,000 Mile India Test Trip

LONDON, March 9 (AP)—A 4,000 mile flight to India as a preliminary test for an attempt to make the first flight from Europe to America in May or June is being planned by Capt. Walter Hinchcliffe, noted British aviator.

Reports that the captain was about to start immediately on a flight from England to the United States with the Honorable Elsie Mackay, titled British heiress as a passenger, brought denials both from Captain Hinchcliffe and Miss Mackay.

The captain said that he probably would start for India in about three weeks. He denied that Miss Mackay would accompany him.

University Actors Study Phonetics

Players Copy Scotch, English Dialects for Roles

Students playing roles in the next university production, "What Every Woman Knows," by Sir James Barrie, to be given March 20, 21, and 22 under the direction of Vance N. Morton, associate director of the theatre, are making a scientific study of the different dialects used in the play.

The main problem in the presentation of the play is the correct pronunciation of many of the Scotch and English words. The first scene is laid in the Pans of North Briton where the Wylie family, who are among the chief characters in the play live and speak a peculiar Scotch dialect that is typical of the locality.

Marjorie Gailey, graduate student in speech, is making a phonetic study of the dialects that the persons interpreting these characters will have to imitate. To make a thorough study, she has made trips into various parts of the state where Scotch families live and has taken down their speech by means of dictaphone records. Among the records made was one by Peter McArthur, radio announcer at WOC, Davenport.

The dictaphone records are being studied and copied by the actors. They in turn have dictaphone records made of their attempt at Scotch speech and note the progress they are making.

Another scene in the play shifts to London and Surrey where English characters appear. Actors playing these parts have made similar studies of the refined British speech through the use of phonograph and dictaphone records under the direction of Sarah Barrows, assistant professor of phonetics in the speech department.

WSUI to Feature History Program

Week in April Named for Broadcasting Iowa's Past

The State Historical society of Iowa and the university will cooperate in presenting a "History Week Radio Program," April 16 to 21 over WSUI.

The idea of observing the third week in April as "Iowa History Week" was inaugurated in 1926 by the State Historical society in cooperation with the Iowa Federation of Women's clubs. The purpose of the movement was to stimulate a greater interest in the history of Iowa.

The historical society has published a pamphlet for use as a high school assembly program during the history week. The pamphlet contains a pageant in two scenes, one dealing with the first meeting of Indians and white men in Iowa; the second showing how the Sauk and Fox Indians gave up the last of their land in Iowa to the white man.

The radio program follows:

Monday, April 16 at 5:30 p.m.—"Indian Tribes of Iowa" by John E. Briggs, editor of the Palimpsest.

Tuesday at 12:25 p.m.—"Indian Chiefs of Iowa" by J. A. Swisher, research associate, State Historical Society.

Wednesday 12:25 p.m.—"The Indian at Home" by Ruth A. Gallagher, library research associate, State Historical society.

Thursday, 12:25 p.m.—"How the Indians Lost Iowa"by Bruce E. Mahan, associate editor, State Historical society.

Friday, 9:10 a.m.—(High school assembly program) "Indian Amusement" by Bruce E. Mahan. Musical numbers by Anne Pierce and Frances Camp.

Saturday, 11:15 a.m.—"Prehistoric Red Men" by Charles R. Keyes, director of the state archeological survey, State Historical society.

Monday, April 23 at 8 p.m.—(Natural science auditorium) "The West in Song and Story" by Isabel Garland and Hardesty Johnson of New York city.

And He Asks for Mercy

GEORGE CHISHOLM killed two of his three sons by drowning them in the ship canal at East Chicago, Ind., because the woman with whom he was living objected to caring for them. The third escaped death because Chisholm was afraid he would scream when taken to the river.

Chisholm confessed to the crime and intends to throw himself on the mercy of the court.

How can he even hope for mercy? The crime was premeditated. Chisholm hid the weights with which to sink the little fellows beneath the water, two days before the killing actually occurred. He himself almost followed in their wake, but he lacked the nerve, yet his hand did not falter when the lives of his own helpless sons were involved.

The angel of mercy cannot but frown on such a man. There was no mercy in his own act. His own sons perished by his hands. He is a menace to the welfare of society. The law should and must take its toll.

A Day for the Law School

THE Law Jubilee is dead, but its memory lingers. Since its historic burial two years ago, the laws have nursed the remembrance of that "tradition" until it has grown to be almost a hallucination. They speak of the jubilee at every opportunity; they revere its name. In the law smoking room is a large piece of black crepe, in memory of the dear departed.

Thus the laws have carried a chip on their shoulder for two years against anyone who may oppose their sacred cow. They have rubbed salt into the wounds caused by the tearing away of their brain child.

Now all this is to be changed, for the best. A celebration in honor of the jubilee's ghost is not to be held, but rather, by amicable agreement with the faculty, a day is to be set aside for "furthering the spirit of the college of law." At that time programs will be arranged to show the best work of the college, and to bring out its highest ideals.

Such a goal is a worthy one. If one dares speak of the engineers in the same sentence with the laws, the project compares to the Mecca celebration of the former school. Mecca week has as its aim the unification of the engineering college and the exhibition to the public of its accomplishment. Law day can have the same benefits.

Why not extend the plan to every college in the university? Let each set aside a day or a week for a display of its achievements, to show the people of Iowa what the students are doing. Let such occasions also be times of bringing the groups within one college more closely together, of bringing out the ideals of the profession, whether it be law, medicine, or dentistry.

A Cynic's Ideals

"WE are certainly entering, if we are not already in, an age of cynicism regarding idealistic conceptions of human nature and the objectives of human life."

This statement sounds as if it might have come from the pen of a cynic. Certainly tendencies on this campus do not seem to be showing a marked deviation from the idealistic path.

Religion could surely be regarded as one of those idealistic conceptions of human nature referred to above. A new school of religion has been established here and seems to be both popular and successful. Churches do not seem to lack in student attendance.

The recent fine arts conference held here seems to contradict this aforesaid tendency. It has shown an appreciation of the so-called higher things of life.

Musical programs, plays, lectures — all seem to draw audiences that bespeak of both quantity and quality.

The celebrations that have been held on Dad's day and the one planned for Mother's day seem to have an idealistic quality in them.

Perhaps the sponsoring of these occasions is due more to curiosity on the part of the student body than to a seeking after ideals. That curiosity trait would hardly be expected to be found, however, in the makeup of a cynic.

Higher Education

IN a midwestern college a woman, 65 years old, matriculated this semester. She maintains that she is a happy great-grandmother and that she had always longed for the advantages of a higher education. Now that she had the time and money and independence to pursue it she feels she can make the remainder of her life fuller and richer thereby.

It would seem, however, that the wisdom she would glean from text books, professors, laboratories, and experiments would be like dust after the full life she has already lived: Would not one be rather unobserving, unabsorbing, who could not gain as much from sixty-five years of actual living that a college graduate does in his four year school term?

Students come to school that they may learn how to get the most out of life, that they may acquire an adequate background and firm foundation on which to start this travel. Those who cannot have that preparatory educational advantage must learn in the school of experience. Whether it be a fool's school or not, it is true that it requires much more time and hard knocks than any other. But no matter where we learn these things, the fact remains that they are absorbed somehow, and it would seem that when we reach the ripe and full years of middle age they would be aspiring to give out more to the newcomers, not starting on the ground floor with them.

The First of Several

UPPER IOWA and Cornell are about to be merged. By a vote of 177 to 89, the Upper Iowa conference of the Methodist Episcopal church voted to unite the two conference colleges "because of economic and other reasons."

The action has been well taken although it will mean the loss of school connections and traditions for the graduates of one of the two institutions. It has been understood that Upper Iowa will be fused with Cornell at Mt. Vernon, although no designation has been made as to which school will lose its identity.

Agitation for the merger came when a $1,600,000 campaign was authorized at the last conference. The result of the move for the consolidation brought with it a motion to raise $1,200,000 for the merged institution. Here alone is a saving of $400,000, which is no small sum for a denominational organization.

Yet, this cut in expenditures is little more than a notch in comparison with the money that would be needed for the maintenance of the schools in the future. Even now, the conference learned from Chicago that a fund of $4,000,000 would be needed to place the individual schools on a sound financial basis. Today, financial solidarity is essential for every educational institution if it is to retain its place with sister schools.

With the merger, the students will also receive their benefits. The building of a larger school at Mt. Vernon will enhance its attractiveness to greater men in the educational field. Increased contacts come with a growth in attendance, and no modern educator will overlook the merits of this phase of college life. Group organizations which were established at each of the sister schools will be materially strengthened.

Within the next decade, we no doubt shall see several similar educational mergers.

Irony and Indians

(From The Cedar Rapids Gazette)

Congress has been discussing seriously several questions concerning the Indians. One of the major problems is the administration of oil wealth, developed on Indian lands.

Years ago a great many Indians were placed on somewhat worthless land in the southwest. Irony smiled at the grim Indian and grinned at Uncle Sam. Oil in abundance has been discovered. Many of the Indians are immensely wealthy. Now our country faces many difficult problems in discharging its obligations as self-appointed guardian of the American Indians.

In many respects the Indians have been exploited by white men. Our whisky and the Indians' oil have written some tragic stories. In many ways the story of the American Indian is pathetic. Our civilization has been too much for him in many respects.

Contrary to the general impression, the Indian population actually has been increasing in recent years. But there is enough oil wealth flowing from Indian land to care for all Indians. One of the questions the administration has to decide is whether the excess wealth of one Indian tribe may be used to help other Indians. Whatever decisions are made in the administration affairs, the prior claims of the Indian must be respected.

The Indian deserves justice and honest consideration. The federal government must rigidly protect the Indian's rights and see that he is not exploited by his white brother.

(Almost a Dramatic Monologue)

"The day is dark and damp,
And I am weary
Of the ceaseless rain that floods the air
And makes them cheery.
Sunshine from our camp
Has flown to other places where
It warms glad peoples' hearts
And makes the mcheery.

"You lay upon me kindly hands
And tell me, 'Tush,
It isn't raining rain. Flowers shall spring
From all this slush;
Violets from the sands
Shall rise, and everything
Will beam with gladness once again.
Be cheerful! Tush!"

"Yes, roses may be falling
In this giant mist;
Grasses may be assuming brighter hues and daisy blooms
May be descending—this
Is possible; but the calling
Of the rain also assumes
A tone that beckons forth the weeds and dandelions!"

The Wild West in Iowa

(Furnished to The Associated Press by the State Historical Society of Iowa at Iowa City).

The wild west, now a matter of legend, existed in actual fact in Iowa immediately following the Civil war. The railroads had not pushed westward to the Missouri river, Indians were yet commonplace, and the rough life of the frontier prevailed wherever the white man established his civilization.

A picture of western Iowa while it was yet range country has been left by G. Smith Stanton, who came from New York to Boone in 1865, and wrote of local frontier conditions in his book, "When the Wildwood Was in Flower."

The town of Boone was then called Montana and at that time was the western terminal of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, which did not reach Council Bluffs until 1867.

Montana at that time consisted of but one street, a sixty-foot strip of prairie without a tree in sight. Along it were strung some 200 one-storied, detached frame buildings. The buildings had been hastily constructed, for in a month they would again be moved to the end of the railroad as the track crawled westward.

Music, Whiskey Abundant

"Tall, black-mustached, rough-looking men, with wide sombreros, their pants in their boots" jostled their way through the street looking for trouble, and generally finding it," Mr. Stanton wrote. Music and whiskey were plentiful, and an occasional fight added to the excitement.

Indians in their native costumes, and young army officers mingled with railroad employes and with men who had left homes in the east to seek fortunes in the west. Capitalists and mining engineers waited for the next stage toward the Rockies.

Emigrating families with their prairie schooners made their way westward, while slow moving oxen yoked to government wagons hauled grain and provisions to government posts. Long lines of mule teams moved along the railway grade with scrapers, grain and food supplies. Unhaltered animals wandered about town.

Western Iowa at that time was a cattle country, and grass fed herds, "smooth and fat" were driven in by cowboys from the Missouri river plateau to be shipped to eastern markets.

Ranches occupied the land now utilized for farming. Blizzards on the open prairie in winter, and tornadoes or "cyclones" occasionally threatened the rancher, while autumn prairie fires endangered haystacks and cattle.

Crews Stopped to Hunt

The first trains into the west were operated in a haphazard manner, with the armed driver in transporting mail and passengers through the country that was still infested with horse thieves and prowling Indians. At first there were one passenger and several freight trains each way a day. Train crews made a habit of stopping in the unsettled country to hunt, until railroad officials drew up drastic regulations to prevent delay.

With the engines and stock cars comparatively small, ten or twelve cars was a heavy load. Two nights and a day were required to make the trip to Chicago, and many cattle perished on the way. With no snow fences or plows, trains in the winter time were often stuck in cuts drifted full of snow.

After one storm, the Northwestern railroad was unable to move a train in western Iowa for three weeks. A freight train, blocked in a cut was completely covered over, with nothing in sight but snow and the smoke stack of the locomotive, as the trainmen retreated to the nearest farm house.

Western and northwestern Iowa, however, did not long remain a range country. As settlers moved in during the late sixties and early seventies the available land was made into homesteads and cattle men were forced to seek the still open ranges farther to the west. The wild west in Iowa, picturesque as it was, soon passed away.

Commerce Department Represents Multitude of Government Capacities

WASHINGTON, March 9 (AP)—The chap who laments the lack of business in government overlooks the United States department of commerce. If there is no business done in that department, then the promotion of trade, manufacturing, shipping, fishing, transportation, statistics, geodetic surveys, patents and standards isn't business. As a matter of fact the department and its secretary, Herbert Hoover, handle an unending variety of business.

In its administrative capacity the department maintains lighthouses along the coasts, charts domestic waters, registers and inspects vessels of the merchant marine and enforces navigation laws.

The original work of promotion is even more extensive. Nominally the department seeks to help industry to simplify processes, increase output, eliminate waste in production and distribution and minimize unemployment. Actually, it conducts investigations into the problems of production, transportation and sale of American made goods. It helps the mining industry to safeguard life. It encourages invention through the grant of patents. It protects and preserves the fisheries. It enumerates population and compiles statistics, it supplies classified and trade information to American producers and shippers, and it aids them in developing foreign markets.

But that isn't all. The airplane and the radio have added to the department's labors. It now encourages and registers the commercial use of aircraft and exercises certain supervisory functions in connection with radio broadcasting.

For convenience the department is divided into ten bureaus and these in turn into two groups, those which administer laws designed to aid marine navigation and those concerned with the promotion of industry and trade. In the administrative group are the bureaus of navigation and of lighthouses, the steamboat inspection service and the coast and geodetic survey. In the second group are the bureaus of foreign and domestic commerce, census, standards, fisheries, mines and the patent office.

The department and its bureaus soon are to be housed in a new building designed to be one of the great office buildings of the world. It will occupy three complete city squares, will be 300 feet longer than the capitol and 110 feet longer than the British house of parliament and will rise seven stories above the eight acres of land it covers at the base of the triangle formed by the Pennsylvania avenue and B street.

The bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, directed by Dr. Julius Klein, and the bureau of standards, under Dr. George K. Burgess, especially are of help to American business men. The bureau of standards establishes and maintains weights and measures as the authorized custodian of the country's official standards of measurement. It also constructs, tests and compares measuring apparatus used in commerce and in scientific investigations.

The bureau of foreign and domestic commerce is really a bureau of opportunity for American business. From fifty-two offices in foreign lands and from the twenty-three district and thirty-five cooperative offices in this country, there flows continuously into department headquarters for classification and dissemination a stream of trade information.

Hawkeye Swimming Stars May Enter A.A.U. Title Meet

Two University of Iowa swimmers are probable entries from the Mid-Western district in the National A.A.U. senior men's indoor swimming championships to be held in Chicago April 2 to 7, said Coach D. A. Armbruster yesterday.

The men are Captain Merlin I. Carter, holder of both short and long course records of the Mid-Western A.A.U. for the 220-yard breast stroke; and Boyd N. Liddle, Hawkeye freshman, who holds district marks in the 100, 220, 440, and 500-yard free style events.

If Carter enters the national affair, he will swim the 220-yard breast stroke. His record time is 30.6 made when he won the 1928 title here a month ago.

Liddle will be nominated for the 220 and 500-yard free style events. He is the Mid-Western A.A.U. champion at those distances and also in the 100-yard free style, low and high board diving. Because he is a freshman, Liddle will swim as an unattached athlete.

Class Rooms Suppy Threats to Reign of California at Olympics

LOS ANGELES, March 9 (AP)—Age versus youth—this time worn struggle is the one confronting Charley Paddock here in his campaign to become for the third time a sprinting cog in the United States Olympic team.

The speed king is only 27 years old but he is embarking upon his fifteenth year of competition as a sprinter. This year, he will have to meet the challenege of youths seven years and more his junior.

Charley Borah, University of Southern California flyer, and Frank Wykoff, Glendale, Cal., high school star, will furnish the veteran with opposition of the first order in the sectional Olympic tryouts here in May. But Paddock, in his efforts to make his third Olympic team—a feat accomplished by very few—thinks he will have an advantage over his youthful rivals. His previous experience, he believes, makes him better equipped to stand the nerve strain of the many qualifying heats.

The skirmishes of Borah and Paddock will mark renewal of a speed duel that last year took the cinder path public by storm. Borah the 20-year old Trojan dashman, pressed Paddock so closely that Charley was clocked in 9.5 seconds, for which he has applied for a world's 100-yard dash record. The race was so close many thought Borah had won. The same year, Borah won the national A.A.U. and collegiate championships in the 100 and 220-yard events.

Wykoff, at 18 years of age, was the sensation of southern California prep ranks last year. He holds the National Junior A.A.U. championship for the 100-yard dash and many times has been clocked at 9 4-5. Jimmy Quinn, sensational young Holy Cross sprinter, finished third behind Wykoff in the title event.

Vogel to Discuss Baseball Hopes

Athletic Staff to Put on WSUI Alumni Program

Featured by a talk on baseball prospects by Coach Otto H. Vogel, and by a series of musical numbers, the alumni hour Sunday evening will be in charge of the division of physical education.

Coach Vogel, who developed a team which shared the Big Ten championship last spring, has been drilling his men since early in January, and will leave in three weeks for a ten day trip in the south. His talk will be on his players and the schedule soon to be played by the Hawkeyes.

A musical feature has been prepared by the university band, under the direction of Dr. Orie E. Van Doren. During the course of the program, songs of Chicago, Ohio State, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Michigan, Iowa's 1928 football rivals, will be played.

The usual reading of campus and alumni news will be given by Orville Simmons, assistant director of physical education, who will act as master of ceremonies of the program. Broadcasting will begin at 9:30 p.m.

Two Iowa Teams Journey to Meet

Fencers, Gymnasts, to Enter Big Ten at Chicago

Nine Hawkeye gymnasts and three Hawkeye fencers left last night on the 12:05 a.m. train for Chicago. There the two Iowa teams will compete in the Western conference gymnastics and fencing meets to be held this afternoon and evening.

In its contests with other Big Ten schools the gym team has lost to Illinois and Wisconsin and has won from Minnesota. Both the Wisconsin and Illinois teams have been winning their dual meets consistently.

Compete in Many Events

The following men will represent Iowa: Capt. W. B. Henderson, K. M. Peterson, P. C. Houser, F. W. Edwards, H. W. Swift, L. Unglenk, W. J. Temby, H. G. Gee, and R. A. Nelson.

They will compete in the following events: high bar, Henderson, Peterson and Unglenk; parallel bars, Henderson, Swift and Gee; flying rings, Henderson, Edwards and Peterson; side horse, Houser, Unglenk and Nelson; tumbling, Gee, Temby and Swift; Indian clubs, Temby.

At last year's conference meet Captain Henderson tied for first place on the parallel bars. In spite of a single defeat this year the Iowa captain is expected to again place near the top.

Houser's record of three wins and no defeats in the season's dual meets puts him in line for a high position in the conference.

First Dual Meet for Fencers

Since the Iowa fencers have not competed in dual meets this year what they do at the conference meet today must rest upon the fact that the team is composed of three veterans of last year's campaigns; Capt. W. M. Matthews, J. B. Kirchner, and E. R. Wyckoff.

The fencing meet has the three events; foils, sabre and dueling swords. Captain Matthews will handle the dueling swords for Iowa, Kirchner the foils, and Wyckoff the sabre.

Steel Merger Halted

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 9 (AP)—The prospective merger of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube company and the inland steel company of Chicago which would have set up the third greatest steel corporation in the country was definitely called off Thursday in official announcement that heads of the two companies had found it impossible to carry their agreement into effect.

SPORT SLANTS

by ALAN J. GOULD

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP)—Jack Sharkey has been made a decided favorite over Johnny Risko for the second semi-final of the heavyweight elimination tournament but it isn't quite clear just how the so-called "wise money" gets that way.

With the exception of "Honest Tom" Heeney all of the big fellows in the tournament have been in-and-outers. Tom has plugged along consistenly, in fact too consistently for his own good. A flash of the something or other that has made Jack Dempsey stand out would boost Heeney to the top of the heap.

Sharkey Beaten Twice

Sharkey and Risko are more spectacular than Heeney but more difficult to figure in advance. Unless the railbirds base their contentions on the ground that Sharkey, after two unsatisfactory bouts against Dempsey and Heeney, is due for a return to form it is difficult to see how the Boston sailor can be made a top-heavy favorite.

Risko is apt to connect with one of his terrific left hooks any time. The Cleveland rubber-man has endurance and aggressiveness of the Heeney sort. He isn't the boxer or the sharpshooter that Sharkey is but he is a difficult target for any marksman to bring down.

C. C. Pyle's trans-continental foot race, popularly known as the "bunion derby," has brought back into the limelight one of the greatest marathon runners of all time, Willie Kolehmainen of the well known Kolehmainens of Finland.

If his bunions do not succumb to the long grind Willie may find the end of the big-money rainbow some sixteen years after he started out in quest of it.

Turned "Pro" in 1912

Back in 1912, Willie turned "pro" at a time when there was much hub-bub over professional long-distance running. Tom Longboat, Alfred Shrubb, Johnny Hayes, St. Ives and others were in the public eye. It looked like a chance to "clean up," for Willie was the fleetest of the Kolehmainens. He collected world's professional records for distances of twelve miles up to the standard Marathon route but didn't collect much money. No promoters were offering $50,000 purses for grand tours in those days.

Now, Willie has put down his spade, hammer, trowel, or whatever laboring implement he was using and is setting the pace for the Pyle pack.

The day is not far past when outdoor track and field records were the standard of the world, but since 1925, many of the principal performers such as Lloyd Hahn, Sabin Carr, Paavo Nurmi and Willie Ritola, have been doing better in the steam-heated arenas than on the cinder paths.

Hahn and Carr have both surpassed outdoor records this winter.

Basketball Joust Begins Monday

The contest to determine the best basket eye on the campus opens next Monday, and will last through Wednesday evening. On Wednesday the efficiency contest will open. All entries for the two contests have been received, and all is in readiness for giving the "victors the spoils."

The following fraternities have entered men in the contests: Sigma Phi Epsilon, Alpha Sigma Phi, Sigma Pi, Phi Epsilon Pi, Phi Gamma Delta, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Phi Beta Delta, Sigma Nu, Delta Tau Delta, and Sigma Chi. Other university men not affiliated with Greek letter organizations have entered the contest also.

Iowan Appointed Head of Athletics at Pittsburgh U.

Harrison Selected as Successor of Blacklee

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 9, 1928 (Special to The Daily Iowan)—William Donald Harrison, graduate of the University of Iowa, yesterday was appointed director of athletics at the University of Pittsburgh, succeeding Elmer F. Blackelee, prominent local civil engineer, who was forced to relinquish his position because of outside business interests.

Harrison came to Pitt five years ago as assistant professor of English and student councillor. Pitt holds a leading position in eastern circles because of its championship football and basketball teams. Harrison has been dean of men at Pittsburgh for the last two years.

William D. Harrison, newly appointed director of athletics at the University of Pittsburgh, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Harrison of Coralville and a brother of Lawrence "Pops" Harrison, Hawkeye basketball guard, and Jim Harrison, Trinity college coach.

Harrison graduated from the University of Iowa, receiving his B.A. degree in 1916 and his M.A. degree in 1921. In the year 1921-22 he was a member of the faculty of the English department of the university.

Although vitally interested in athletics during his undergraduate days, Harrison never competed for the university. He was a stellar student however, and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa for his outstanding work in his studies. He is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity.

After he left the university in 1916, he worked on the Des Moines Tribune, but left that position to join the army at the entry of the United States in the world war.

He served twenty-seven months in the army as a member of the medical corps and spent considerable time in France. He held the rank of a lieutenant.

When Harrison left Iowa in 1922 he became a member of the faculty on the English department of Iowa State college at Ames, and from there went to the University of Akron, at Akron, O., where he held the position of university editor.

Milk Factory to Open Soon; Men Test Equipment

Hire Many Trucks to Handle Cans on 25 Routes

Smoke rolled from the large smokestack on the old brick building at 324 E. Market street yesterday as workmen tested the two 150 horsepower boilers in preparation for the opening of the powdered milk factory next week.

All machinery necessary for opening the plant has been installed but small finishing touches are needed before actual operation can begin, J. N. Dary, manager of the company, said yesterday. Next Wednesday or Thursday are the probable days for opening.

Twenty-five routes have been established within a thirty mile radius of Iowa City. Contracts have been signed with as many owners of trucks, who will be required to put their full time in the hauling of whole milk from farms to the factory.

To Install More Equipment

At least 50,000 pounds of milk will be needed to keep the plant running at capacity, Dary says. Provision has been made in planning the present machinery to have more equipment installed when necessary.

Powdered skim milk, powdered butter milk, and butter, will be manufactured by the company. Only whole milk will be purchased from the farmers. This will be separated immediately upon being received at the plant.

The skimmed milk will be at once put through the powdering machine while the cream is warmed to the proper temperature and churned. Large new churns of the latest approved types are to be used.

After the butter is churned the buttermilk which is left will also be powdered in a process similar to that given the skim milk.

Markets for the three products will vary. The butter will be sold both locally and shipped to eastern markets. The powdered skim milk will be sold to manufacturers of baking companies and also to candy and confectionery companies where large quantities of it are used.

Farmers to Use Products

Farmers from whom the milk is purchased will use most of the powdered buttermilk as feed for hogs in place of the skim milk now used.

From ten to fifteen men will be employed in the plant besides the twenty-five truck drivers who will collect the milk. The crew needed is smaller than the usual plant uses on account of the machinery being nearly all automatic or semi-automatic in nature.

Cans in which the milk is hauled are washed and sterilized in a machine which takes the can and carries it through seven distinct operations with not a single touch by an attendant. Both the can and lid are washed, sterilized, and dried, and the can sent out on a long rack to await loading on the trucks.

The Iowa City Ice company which now occupies part of the building will continue in the present location. Offices of both companies will be together although there are two distinct firms represented.

Swisher Retires From Business

After fifty years of service to Iowa City as head of an insurance agency, S. A. Swisher retired yesterday to enjoy a rest from the writing of policies.

He has conducted business since 1879. His first office was in the building now occupied by the Johnson county bank. With the exception of the time taken up while the newer structure was being erected, Mr. Swisher has had his office at Washington and Clinton streets ever since.

Sam T. Morrison and company will take over the business of the writing of fire insurance, while H. I. Jennings will write the casualty policies.

Coolidge's Approval of Authorization Bill to Benefit Iowa City

The public building authorization bill which was recently passed by the senate and is now in the hands of President Coolidge for his O. K. is as yet unsigned but local postal authorities are of the opinion that it will be considered some time within the next few weeks.

The bill as it was submitted carries with it an appropriation of $250,000,000 which is to be used to improve buildings throughout the United States in which several Iowa cities are included. The cities being aided are Mason City, Newton, Fairfield, Davenport, Des Moines, and Iowa City.

The amount alloted for Iowa City would probably be about $170,000 and would be applied entirely to the improvements on the local postoffice.

Provided the bill is passed it will end a struggle which Iowa City citizens have been putting forth for the last ten years in their effort to get legislation which would favor this improvement.

Although no definite plans have been made as to the improvements it is the hope of the officials to enlarge the present office so that the cramped conditions which now exist will be lessened. The building will undoubtedly be extended to the east about sixty feet and to the north about thirty feet.

SUICIDE OR MURDER BY SUGGESTION

(No. 1.) Mrs. Helen Lawrence, housekeeper for George Allen Chisholm, confessed murderer of two of his three children, Edgar, 7, and George, 9, by inducing them, shackled with wire, to jump into the canal at East Chicago, Ind., "to keep expenses down." Robert Chisholm, the favorite child and twin of George, was spared. He is shown with Mrs. Lawrence. (No. 2.) George Allen Chisholm, the father, who confessed the double murder, and says Mrs. Lawrence "nagged me into it." She has children by a former marriage and is a divorcee. (No. 3.) The only photo made of the three Chisholm children together. They are: George, 9; Edgar, 7, who leaped to their death, and Robert, twin brother of George, who was spared. (No. 4.) Mrs. George Chisholm, the mother, separated from her husband in Montreal years ago, is said to be living in London, England.

Hearing Continued in Stoddard Case

Sheriff Smith Testifies to Establish Guilt of Defendant

The greater part of the evidence in the case of William Stoddard, 915 E. Bloomington street held on a grand jury indictment for driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated, was presented in district court yesterday.

Following the impanelling of the jury yesterday morning, all of the state's evidence and part of defense testimony was introduced. It is probable that the case will go before the jury today.

Stoddard was the driver of the car which ran into George Hartsock and Albert and John Buck on the Red Ball road Feb. 8. Hartsock suffered a fractured skull, and while he is no longer in the hospital, he is confined to his home and his condition is so serious that there is no possibility of his being a witness in the trial. The other two men suffered minor injuries.

Woman, Resident for 41 Years, Dies

Mrs. Julia Grace, 66 years old, 427 S. Dodge street, died at her home early yesterday morning. She was born in Cleveland, Ohio, and has lived in Johnson county since 1887. In 1888 she was married to Alexander Grace, who died twelve years ago.

She is a member of the Eastern Star lodge and the Iowa Woman's club.

She is survived by two daughters, Geneva Grace of Muscatine, and Dura Grace, who lives at home; two sons, Eddy Grace and Francis Grace, both of Tiffin; two sisters, Minnie Folker and Mrs. Burr Wolfe; and one brother, Charles Folker.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Oathout funeral chapel and burial will be made in Oakland cemetery.

Mrs. Lynch Dies in Local Hospital

Mrs. Kate Lynch, 58 years old, 20 W. College street, died at a local hospital at 10 a.m. yesterday. Funeral services will be held Monday at 9 a.m. at St. Patrick's church and burial will be made in St. Joseph's cemetery. The body will remain at the Hohenschuh mortuary until the funeral services.

Mrs. Lynch is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Walter Linnell and Mrs. Larry M. Brown, both of Iowa City, and Mrs. Charles J. Helmel of Davenport; a sister, Mrs. Tom Jennings of Cedar Rapids; and ten grandchildren.

Call Out Fire Department

The fire department was called to the Corey and co. grocery store at 105 S. Clinton street at 9 a.m. when a spark from a chimney ignited a sack of leaves. No damage resulted.

Davenport Couple Gets License

A marriage license for Lewis H. Dudley, 21 years old of Rock Island, and Marie Kottong, 18 years old of Davenport, was issued yesterday at the office of the county clerk.

Medals of Cuhel Now on Display

A collection of medals, watches, ribbons, gold track shoes, etc., won by Frank J. "Babs" Cuhel, Iowa track captain, is on display in the window of Racine's cigar store number two. The collection numbers nearly 100.

The watches alone, numbering an even dozen, make the collection intrinsically valuable. They were won at various track meets over the middle west.

The medals represent victories at Iowa City, the University of Michigan, the Kansas relays, the Drake relays, Ames, and University of Chicago meets.

College Flivver Sounds Knell of Carrier Pigeon

Moline, Ill., was his home, he was four years old; and he was very tired and hungry carrier pigeon when he hovered over Iowa City early Wednesday morning. But when he decided to take a rest, alighting at the corner of Church and Dubuque streets, he made the error of parking in the path of a collegiate Ford, which, being no respecter of persons, gave him a free ride to bird heaven.

However, W. W. Aitken, A1 of Iowa City, who had been passing the time of the day with the driver of the Ford, observed the incident, and, being a student of taxidermy under Prof. Homer Dill, recovered the body of the bird. Surprised at the bird's inability to dodge the oncoming car, an art in which Iowa City gutter pigeons are efficient, he found that pigeon was a carrier from a Moline station.

The wanderer is a large, beautiful speciment, with a greater wingspread than the ordinary species. There is a small white spot of feathers beneath his beak, while his collar is of downy purple and green feathers.

"335" is his name, and Moline 24 MPC is the rest of his identification on a little bracelet around his leg. He is now stuffed and happy looking once again, and awaits claiming by his owner at the museum department.

Lone Tree Wins Speaking Contest

Cosgrove Team Takes Second Honors, Solon Third

Lone Tree high school, with two first places and one second for a total of four points, was the winner of the declamatory contest held at the court house last night for the larger high schools of Johnson county.

Cosgrove Consolidated high school with one first, one second, and one third, for a six-point total, ranked second, and Solon high school with a second and two thirds, finished third with an eight-point total.

The contest was sponsored by he Schoolmaster's club of Johnson county. This club was donor of the cup which went to Lone Tree high school.

Small Schools Contest

Earlier in the year, the club sponsored a contest for the smaller county high schools. Five schools entered contestants, Sharon being the winner by a close margin.

Harry Barnes, of the speech department of the university, judged the contest last night.

Sales Soar High in Stock Market

General Motors Common Leads Record Buying Orgy

NEW YORK, March 9 (AP)—Unbridled speculation in the common stock of the General Motors corporation, which went "over the top" for the sixth consecutive session with a gain of $9.25 a share to $159.75, started a wild orgy of buying in other speculative issues on the New York stock exchange today which carried the day's sales to 3,706,500 shares, the second largest in history. Extreme gains ranged from $3 to $17.25 a share, but many of these were cut down by profit-taking.

At the close of the market tonight, the average of twenty leading industrial issues, compiled by The Associated Press, was just one-fifth of a point below the record high for all time established on the first day of trading this year.

Closing Price 159 3-4

The gain in General Motors today added $163,950,000 to the market value of the 17,400,000 shares of common stock outstanding, bringing the appreciation in aggregate quoted value during the last week to $358,875,000. At today's closing price of 159 3-4, the market value of all General Motors common outstanding was $2,770,950,000, contrasting with its par value ($25 per share) of only $435,000,000. Today's sales of the stock were 506,400 shares, making the total transactions during the past week in excess of 2,500,000 shares.

Two factors were behind the sensational buying movement today, the unexpected decrease of more than $26,000,000 in federal reserve brokers' loans, and the announcement that the Managers Securities company, owned by General Motors executives, had purchased 200,000 shares of General Motors stock during the past week for $30,000,000 in cash or approximately $150 a share.

Dozen Men Make Big Gains

Names of about a dozen prominent men were being widely mentioned in Wall Street tonight as among the "big winners" in General Motors. At the top of the list was William C. Durant, who formerly headed the corporation, and is reported to have "cleaned up" upwards of $10,000,000 in General Motors during the past two years. Arthur W. Cutten, of Chicago, who is understood to have given up trading in grain in which he was a big figure, and devoted himself exclusively to stocks, is reported to have amassed several millions in his operations in General Motors, Baldwin Locomotive, Montgomery Ward, Radio corporation and Westinghouse Electric.

The fortunes of the Duponts of Wilmington, Del., are understood to have been increased several hundred million dollars during the last decade through their investments in General Motors, Dupont, and affiliated corporations. Other men in the automobile industry who are rumored to have made "killings" in motor stocks are the Fisher brothers of Detroit, the Timkens of roller bearing fame, the Graham brothers, and Clarence R. Bitting of Detroit.

Shontz Brothers Plead Not Guilty

Harley Shontz and Ward Shontz changed their plea from guilty to not guilty on a charge of arson in district court yesterday.

After pleading guilty at their arraignment last Monday before Judge R. G. Popham, the brothers appeared in court yesterday, and were given permission to change their plea. The case was continued by agreement to the May term of district court.

The Shontz brothers were indicted with Everette R. Snider for arson, after an investigation had been made of a fire in Snider's home last September. The house, which was owned by Bert Clifford, was completely destroyed.

Snider stuck to his original plea of not guilty and went on trial this week. After twenty-two hours of deliberation, the jury returned a verdict of not guilty for him.

Grain Takes Setback

Big Profit-Taking Wave Makes for Lower Quotations

CHICAGO, March 9 (AP)—In a big profit-taking wave, all grain underwent a setback today after a general advance in which May delivery corn touched $1.00 a bushel. Upturns scored by corn were ascribed to the fact that official estimates of farm reserve stocks of corn were much below what the trade as a rule had looked for, being 114,000,000 bushel smaller than a year ago.

Closing quotations on corn were nervous at ¼c to ⅜c net decline, with wheat 1⅜c to 2c down, oats ⅜c to ⅝@1c off, and provisions, unchanged to a rise of 5c.

Corn trading was on a heavy scale throughout, whereas transactions in wheat were of greatly increased volume as the day neared an end. Late weakness of wheat was a distinct bearish factor as to corn, with rains in the eastern part of the winter wheat belt having considerable influence on wheat values. Much letting go of future delivery wheat holdings resulted from reported improvement of crop conditions because of widespread moisture relief.

Corn prices went soaring at the outset, May being rushed up on general buying to $1, which was ¼c over the previous top made a few weeks ago.

Government estimates of farm reserves more than confirmed the private estimates of a week ago, and caused considerable reinstatement of long lines.

Considerable selling out of oats took place because the official report on farm reserves of oats was somewhat above the average estmate by private experts.

Provisions derived some firmness from the action of the corn market and of cotton seed oil.

Scores Radio Industry

WASHINGTON, March 9 (AP)—The American infant radio industry came under fire in the senate yesterday both in committee and on the floor. The Dill radio bill, which would provide for the forfeiting of patents by any concerns convicted of monopolistic operations, had its final hearing before the senate patents committee, where it was energetically opposed by Thomas C. Robertson, commissioner of patents.

Railroad Bonds Lead in Brisk Buying Revival

NEW YORK, March 9 (AP)—Railroad bonds were the leaders in brisk buying in the bond market today. The details of the treasury's March 15 financing program evidently revived confidence in the money situation to a degree.

The new St. Paul railway liens continued active at rising prices, again establishing new peaks. Erie 5's; Big Four 4½'s, "Katy 4's, Missouri Pacific 5's, and several others were accumulated in large amounts, but the prices moved up only fractionally. Renewed weakness attacked the Seaboard issues.

The annual report of International Telephone & Telegraph corporation showing 100 per cent increase in earnings in 1927, stimulated the 4½ bonds of that company. Kayser & Co., 5½'s responded to the strength of the stock.

Renewed firmness of French and some of the Latin-American securities featured the foreign group.

United States government obligations were moderately active after a slow start, but prices showed some irregularity.
