New York Gives Startling Ovation to Three Aviators

Baron Stuffs Cotton in Ears to Keep Out Noise

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—The German-Irish crew of the trans-Atlantic airplane Bremen was given a welcome today that left the trio gasping.

"Overwhelming," Major James Fitzmaurice exclaimed when at last it was all over. And Baron Gunther von Huenfeld and Captain Herman Koehl nodded in agreement. "I am sure that since the days of ancient Rome such a sight was never witnessed before," the Irish major added.

It was a day of festival and the city turned out to do honor to the heroes from a foreign shore. Enthusiasm seemed to have no bounds and no jarring note was heard in all tumult of friendly greetings.

Baron Stuffs Ears

The flyers had heard in advance something of the strenuousness of New York welcomes and at first they were slightly nervous. The Baron even stuffed cotton in his ears lest the sound of carnival be too piercing for him to stand.

And once the celebration was really under way the aviators lost their fears and joined in the spirit of the day with full delight, shouting and waving their hats like boys on a holiday.

The day's program began in mid-morning with a tour of the harbor in the city tug Macom.

50,000 at Battery

When the Macom docked at the battery 50,000 people were gathered there and their cheers rolled over the lower city like thunder. Led by 10,000 troops and surrounded by police the flyers rode up Broadway through a blizzard of ticker tape wadded down from the high windows of the financial district.

Over all the route they traveled crowds were packed from curb to buildings in a solid mass and never ending cheers rolled over them like waves. It was all evidently exhilarating and exciting to the aviators and, standing in their automobiles, they waved back to the throng that greeted them and joked among themselves.

At city hall the wives of Fitzmaurice and Koehl and the Irish major's nine year old daughter, Patsy, who had arrived in the country while the Macom was towing the bay, were waiting for the flyers.

3,000 Pay Homage to Martin Madden at Burial Service

CHICAGO, April 30 (AP)—Illinois paid homage today to Martin B. Madden, the man who for a quarter of a century represented the state at Washington.

More than 3,000 statesmen, capitalists, leaders of business, friends and acquaintances of the congressman crowded about Castle Eden, his farm home near Hinsdale, during the funeral service.

Mr. Madden was called one of the greatest statesmen of the present day by the Rev. Spera Montgomery, chaplain of the house of representatives, who officiated at the service. He was an example, said the minister, of advantages to be derived from opportunities offered the American boy.

Lindbergh and "Spirit of St. Louis" Separate After Hop to Washington

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—A partnership of the heights and distances which has won worldwide acclaim passed into history today as Col. Charles A. Lindbergh brought his cherished Spirit of St. Louis to earth at its last airport.

"We" participated in one last long hop. The boyish and tanned trans-Atlantic flyer said the 735 air miles from St. Louis to Bolling field had been spanned in four hours and fifty-eight minutes.

W.O.W. Seek $2,000,000

LINCOLN, Neb., April 30 (AP)—W. A. Frazer and other officers of the Woodmen of the World, were ordered to pay back $2,000,000 funds today by District Judge Fred Shepherd.

New York Greets Bremen Flyers

Longley Finds Easterners Interested in Proposed Air Mail Route Change

"I was surprised to find that people in the east are very interested in the proposal to change the transcontinental air mail route so as to pass through Cedar Rapids instead of Iowa City," said the Rev. Harry S. Longley after returning from a trip to Washington, D. C., and New York.

"People all through the east are watching for the results and many predict that there will be a general upheaval if the proposed change is made," he said.

Longley Returns Saturday

The Rev. Mr. Longley returned Saturday from attending a college of preachers in Washington, D. C. He was in the east for more than a week and during that time talked with several legislators in regard to the air mail route and also to several prominent men in New York.

While most of these men are not interested in Cedar Rapids any more than they are in Iowa City, they feel that the attempt to move the field is an act of piracy and is the result of a large city, feeling strong enough to take anything from a smaller place.

Talks With Brookhart

The Rev. Mr. Longley talked with Senator Brookhart and when the senator was asked what he thought of the matter, he seemed reticent to reply, but hinted that he thought the route would be changed. He added, however, that the matter was entirely up to the post office department and Assistant Postmaster Glover.

Cole Friend of Glover

They allege that Congressman Cyrenus Cole, who has led the fight to have the route changed, is a personal friend of Assistant Postmaster Glover and lives in the same hotel.

Orchestra Plans to Give Concert

Will Play Movements of Symphony of Mozart

The formal concert of the university orchestra will be given at Iowa Union Wednesday evening, May 9. For the first time in the history of the orchestra, the concert will be given free to the public.

Among other numbers which will be played, some of which the Minneapolis symphony orchestra played when here, will be three movements of Mozart's Symphony, Number Forty, in G minor. Critics agree that this symphony is the finest example of classicism in existence in the field of music. According to Prof. Frank E. Kendrie of the school of music, the orchestra will play the first, third, and fourth movements.

Colleges Mix in War of Learning

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 30 (AP)—Teams representing Yale and Harvard competed today, not for major letters but for the honor and glory of the English departments and a prize of $5,000. Ten "scholastic athletes" here, and a like number at the Cambridge institution, took the field (a class room) at about the same hour and, after a short practice session took their places and set themselves for the first "battle of learning."

There were no spectators, no officials, no vendors and the only noise was the scratching of pens and the rustling of examination papers.

Iowa Enrollment Hits 9,203 Mark

In confirmation of the oft-repeated statement that the number of college students is steadily increasing, the office of the registrar recently compiled the following enrollment figures. For the past year, from last June to the present time, the total enrollment in the university is 9,203. This figure includes the last summer session, enrollment without, however, counting any duplicate registrations.

As compared with this year's enrollment, during the year 1926-1927 the registration reached 8,679, making the total for 1927-1928 almost 600 more than last year's total.

Registration during 1925-1926 amounted only to 8,300 which is more than 900 less than the present enrollment.

In all cases the above figures represent the number of single registrations during the fiscal year, with no duplicates, and including the summer session.

Higbee Chooses Chairmen for Commencement

With Pig Cargo Woman Pounds Iowa Pavements

"Hitch-hiking," the current collegiate term for travelling from town to town on the highways with the aid of big-hearted autoists, is not an undertaking exclusively for college men, college women, and professional travelers. Neither does it represent the number of single registrations during the fiscal year, with no duplicates, and including the summer session.

Iowa City police yesterday received a call from Tiffin which yielded the information that a woman was seen walking eastward on Federal highway 32, carrying as luggage two small pigs. The woman was about forty-five or fifty years old, and was surely insane, according to the informant.

Davis Quiet on Labor Request

Labor men of Iowa City have not as yet received word from Washington, D.C., regarding a request for the aid of Secretary of Labor Davis in solving the controversy between the Iowa City building crafts and the department of grounds and buildings of the university.

John C. Lewis, president of the Iowa Federation of Labor, who is in Washington to see about labor conditions in building the new federal building at Des Moines, could not be reached today by the local union men. It is thought that Lewis will confer with Davis on the problems confronting the labor unions in Iowa City.

Senate Committee Curbs Bank Loans

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—With loans to brokers by New York federal reserve members banks at a new high level of more than $4,000,000, the senate banking committee today ordered a favorable report on the La Follette resolution asking the federal reserve board to admonish against further expansion of this class of loans.

The resolution was reported to the senate by a vote of 7 to 5 after it had been modified to have the board "advise against" rather than "take steps to restrict" further expansion of the loans.

X-Ray May Control Biological

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—The treatment of fertilized hens' eggs by x-ray so that only female chickens can be hatched, was one of a series of remarkable experiments described to the Associated Press for the first time by Dr. William H. Diefenbach of the Flower hospital.

The experiments extending over three years, he said, have brought to light that chickens hatched from eggs which have been exposed to x-rays show certain marked peculiarities. Exposures up to several hours produce chickens with deformations or mutilations such as absence of wings.

SETS RECORD DESPITE ARM INJURY

JANE FAUNTZ

An auto crash fractured and partly paralyzed her right arm, but Jane Fauntz, 16-year-old Chicago girl, has since set two new world records in the breast stroke swim. She did it by developing other parts of her body to make up for the arm weakness.

CHICAGO, April 30 (AP)—A 16-year-old girl has overcome the handicap of a partially paralyzed arm and became a champion swimmer with two world records to her credit. She is Jane Fauntz, Chicago high school senior, star member of the Illinois Women's Athletic club and holder of new world's swimming records in the 100-yard and 100-meter breast stroke events.

Possessing a strong, wide-arm stroke, Miss Fauntz won the special interest of I. W. A. C. coaches two years ago. They predicted she would win a niche among the leaders in the breast stroke.

Just when her chances seemed best, an automobile in which she was riding, crashed against another. Her right arm was broken and the spine injured. Those who had predicted a brilliant future said the injury had finished her career.

But Jane never gave up. Realizing she never could get the strength from her injured arm, she developed her leg stroke and body movements. She kept up long, painstaking exercises and after the first few months of the self-imposed training, rapidly came back, and soon surpassed her previous form. She displayed better form than ever, too, in her first tank love, fancy diving.

She set the new world marks at a meet here between the I. W. A. C. and the Canadian champions, the Parkdale Dolphins, of Toronto.

"She certainly fooled us all," said her father. "I wonder what she could do if her right arm were at its full strength. Maybe, she would have been just mediocre."

Latin and everything in and out of books.

"Equity, justice, and confidence in all industries is what is needed in the administration of this country now," Mr. Weaver said. "Frank O. Lowden is the man for that office."

Harvey Ingham, '89, editor of the Des Moines Register, and national honorary president of Sigma Delta Chi, gave a short talk in which he related some of the things Lowden did when in school here.

Lowden Worked Way
How Lowden made up a year's work in Greek in two weeks immediately after school was out one year so he could graduate with his class, how he worked at $3 a week in a Chicago law office while going to law school and doing two years work in one, how he wrote two essays in a contest in Chicago and won first prize each time, thus getting $100 which paid his expenses the next year, were incidents narrated by Mr. Ingham.

President Jessup gave a short talk before he introduced Governor Lowden. He pointed to the men who founded the state educational institutions, and wondered at what dreamers they were.

Proud of Graduates
"I take great pride in watching what the graduates of these universities founded by those men are doing in the world," he said. "My only wish is that those dreamers could be here tonight to see some of the products of this institution they founded as pioneers in the field."

Thomas J. Hysham, '84, of Red Oak; Carl E. Kuehnle, '81, of Dension; M. J. Tobin of Vinton; Rush C. Butler, '93 of Chicago; Harry Eugene Kelly, '92 of Chicago; and Judge M. L. "Down on your heels, up on your toes,

"Maybe not the words, but it certainly feels
"Like the lively rhythm of Wingfoot Heels!"

NOW come the perfect days of the college year—the swing-outs, the meets, the picnics, the sophomore-senior proms, and then the big parade!

The fresh has almost worn off the frosh, and from one end of the campus to the other you'll hear mighty few pairs of the old hard heels.

The world has gone Wingfoot, that's why.

And so it should. Goodyear Wingfoot Heels are rubber—new, live, cushioning rubber—rubber that gives, and lifts, and helps. They have that "look! look!" style, and they wear like a new gold key.

More people walk on Goodyear Wingfoot Heels than on any other kind. Get in line! A minute's huddle with your favorite shoe repairman, and you're stepping out on Goodyear Wingfoot Heels. Yes, today!

City Will House 3,000 Contestants

Headquarters to Use All Available Lodgings

Plans for housing the 3,000 high school students who will be in Iowa City this week-end to compete in the Iowa high school state music festival are being rapidly completed by the members of the extension division.

Anyone who can give rooms to the high school students, is urged to notify the extension division officials in order that full arrangements may be made before the young musicians swarm into town for the week-end.

Work Out Schedule

A careful assignment and notification schedule is being worked out at the present time. No festival guest will be sent out from festival headquarters without a card bearing the address of the place at which he is to stay. Private individuals, and especially fraternities and sororities, are asked to accept only those who have a certified card. Last year, some difficulty was had in this respect and the authorities do not wish to have it repeated.

It is expected that about 1,200 youngsters will be accommodated in town homes. Rooms for about 800 have already been arranged for, and it is expected that the others will be obtained shortly.

Last year fraternities and sororities took care of about 450 contestants. Three hundred have already been signed for now, and a number of groups have not yet reported.

Overflow in Field House

The overflow, if more students come than expected, will be taken care of in the field house. East-lawn will be used for a group of girls, a number of contestants will be taken care of in the Elks club rooms and the Chamber of Commerce rooms. All the empty places in Currier hall and the Quadrangle will be filled.

About 3,000 high school students are expected for the contest. However, the program is being planned so that many groups need not be here for more than one day, and no arrangements will have to be made for them. Accommodations for about 2,400 or 2,500 are needed.

The contest will open Thursday morning and will close Saturday afternoon. Preliminaries and finals in the solo and small groups events will take place Thursday, in the glee club and chorus events Friday, and in the band and orchestra sections Saturday.

Britain Threatens Egyptian Struggle

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—Relations between Great Britain and Egypt tonight were strained near to the breaking point. This follows an explicit British demand for the withdrawal of the Egyptian government of the objectionable assemblies bill by Wednesday night, failing which the British government holds itself free to take whatever steps the situation may require.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign secretary, announced in the commons today that Lord Lloyd, British high commissioner in Egypt had notified the Egyptian premier that the time limit for compliance with the British demand was fixed at 7 p.m., May 2. This demand applied also to categorical assurance that the premier in writing that the bill would not be proceeded with.

Backing the British demand a British squadron seems to be on the way to Alexandria from Malta, although ostensibly, according to the official explanation, it is only going to Corinth, Greece, scene of the recent great earthquake.

Death of Woman, Daughter in Fire Remains Mystery

LE MARS, April 30 (P)—Mystery still veiled today the cause of the death of Mrs. Eleanor Day and her daughter, Helen, 5 years old, whose bodies were found after the Day home had burned, near Remsen, Iowa.

A report on an analysis of the vital organs of the victims showed no traces of poison, apparently disproving a theory that the woman might have poisoned the child and herself and then arranged to burn the home to cremate the bodies. The investigation is continuing by authorities who said that bruises were found on the child's head.

Meanwhile the coroner's inquest has been postponed because members of the coroner's standing jury are out of town.

Three Injured in Airplane Crash

SIoux CITY, April 30 (AP)—Three young men, all of Climbing Hill were near death tonight at Methodist hospital here from injuries received when the air plane in which they were riding crashed to the ground from a height of about 150 feet, near here tonight.

The injured, all of whom hospital officials fear may die, are Wilbur Howard, student pilot; Lewis Gallup and Lewis Francis.

The crash came when the plane, in which Howard was taking his friends for a ride, stalled as he tried to bank it too sharply in preparing to land. It fell in a pasture within sight of several persons. Howard flew the plane from Missouri Sunday to visit relatives in Climbing Hill. He had been studying aviation in Missouri.

Vesper Speaker Classifies Men

"Provision for the Flesh" was discussed Sunday at vespers in the natural science auditorium by the Rev. Miles H. Krumbine, pastor of the Parkside Lutheran church of Buffalo, N. Y. The Rev. W. S. Dyringer, pastor of the First Lutheran church, acted as chaplain. Music for the service was furnished by the vespers choir and the chamber orchestra.

We think too much of glorifying our instincts, the Reverend Mr. Krumbine believes. Often we excuse our rash actions by saying that our instincts promoted us.

There are three kinds of men, according to the Reverend Mr. Krumbine. Those are wise men who want to do good and do it. Knaves want to do bad and do it. Fools he divided into two classes: The black fools who do bad if it is in style, and white fools who do good if it is in style.

Democrats Elect Convention Head

Bowers of New York Gets Temporary Chairmanship

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—The keynote at the democratic national convention will be sounded by Claude G. Bowers, author and editorial writer on the New York Evening World. He was selected as temporary chairman today at a meeting here of members of the democratic national committee charged with making arrangements for the Houston convention.

It was Bowers who at a get-together of democrats here in January, stirred his party colleagues with an appeal for adherence to the principles of Jefferson and Jackson and with an arraignment of present day republican party leadership. Since then this designation as keynoter had been almost a foregone conclusion.

Bowers, a former resident of Indiana, but who will sit in the convention as one of the New York delegates pledged to support Governor Smith for the presidential nomination, was proposed for temporary chairman by Mrs. LeRoy Springs, national committeewoman from South Carolina.

His selection was quickly made unanimous, after Chairman Clem Shaver of the democratic national committee had advised his party coworkers that only one other name had been suggested to him—that of Senator Dill of Washington. Shaver said he had told Dill there appeared to be a universal demand for Bowers' and reported that the western senator readily showed a willingness to have his name withdrawn.

When Dad was a "Modern Youth"

BICYCLES, stereopticon lectures, and the "gilded" youths with their horses and carts; at night the midnight oil burning in student lamps while the gas lights glared and flickered across the campus—the gay nineties when Dad was in college seem primitive to us today.

Now it's sport roadsters, the movies, and radios. At night the MAZDA lamp replaces the midnight oil in dormitory rooms, while modern street lighting sheds its friendly glow over the campus. Without electricity we would have none of these improvements. To-day's marvel of electrical invention becomes to-morrow's accepted utility. In the coming years, by taking advantage of new uses of electricity you will be able to go so much farther that the "tearing twenties" will seem just as primitive as the "gay nineties".

Scientists in the research laboratories of the General Electric Company keep G.E. a leader in the field of electrical progress. Skilled G-E engineers develop each latest invention. The G-E factories carry out the engineers' designs with high-quality material and expert workmanship.

Answering Iowa's Need

THE University of Iowa will inaugurate this summer a course for rural social workers, the first of its kind ever to be offered in any American university. It is a course outlined to fill the need which exists only in principally rural communities like those so commonly found in Iowa and nearby agricultural states.

Much work has already been done by sociologists in advancing welfare work in the cities. Courses have been installed in many universities and special schools have been instituted to take care of this one problem. But these courses have failed to provide adequate instruction for the social worker who must relieve the suffering and destitute humanity in sparsely settled districts.

These people do not come for aid. They are not often suffering from hunger or cold. But other more desperate needs have taken hold of them and they do not know how to relieve themselves.

The rural social worker must hunt out these cases. She must go to them and offer her aid in a diplomatic and tactful way. It is a difficult problem, but one which is very vital in Iowa today.

Counties and smaller communities have been aroused to the need of social workers. But they cannot find people equipped to fill the position. They are asking for aid, but no one can give it to them.

The course which is being outlined for the university summer session is arranged with this in view. The best social workers in the United States have been engaged to instruct qualified welfare workers in rural sociology.

The university is answering another need in Iowa's life. It is bringing service to the farthest places, the places where only the light of education and intelligence will banish the darkness of poverty, sickness, and unhappiness.

Wind and Water

AT the present rate of consumption, it is estimated that American forests will be depleted in less than forty years. Coal is going fast and the oil supply may last but fifteen years. Even to the casual observer it is evident that the world is fast undermining its source of power.

Seventeen million motor vehicles burn a half billion barrels of petroleum annually to produce 345,000,000 horsepower. Three barrels are wasted for every one consumed. Is it possible to conceive that every car may be "out of gas" in less than fifteen years?

At the end of this time, America will turn to the great god, electricity. Wind and water, never failing natural resources, will generate the power that drives the wheels of industry. A windmill in our average ten mile gale will produce five horsepower—there could be a windmill atop every nose generating in the United States a total of 8,700,000,000 horsepower.

Today, no more than two-sevenths of our water power is used. Rivers will run as long as rain falls—and the rain, since the beginning of time, has never failed. The power of a universe will be scattered over the country on slender wires. Their long lightning will redistribute man and take the advantages of the city into the country home.

Mules

MAJ. R. W. SHROEDER is reported to have made the wild assertion that "more people are kicked to death by mules in Missouri than lose their lives in airplanes today." That seems to imply that scarcely anyone loses his life in an airplane, for everybody knows that the mortality rate in Missouri is not materially increased by mules. Major Shroeder might have said with equal accuracy there are more mules kicked to death by Missourians than there are men who lose their lives in airplanes.

Mules don't kick half as much as men do and they don't kill half as many people with their kicking. At any rate if we were mules, perhaps some of us are nearer to being than we think—if we were among the most intelligent and shrewdest of beasts, yet still had to back to the command of men we would not stop at so mild a show of displeasure as kicking. Mules are a universal joke. From Daudet's "The Pope's Mule," to Major Shroeder's assertion they have been consistently razed. Yet the remark on what constitutes humanity and divinity might be greatly modified to read, To razz requires only a tongue, but to be razed without a greater comeback than an occasional kick requires supreme fortitude.

"Dragging One's Husband Along"

AN interview with Fanny Hurst says that a novelist tells Iowa women of their duty, which is to fill in the gaps of culture. "By conscientious attention to what is going on in the world of intelligence," says she, "and by dragging their husbands along by hook or crook, they can help in the good fight."

We have a slight suspicion that if husbands suspected they were being dragged to anything, particularly to culture, there would be a "good fight." Where did Miss Hurst acquire the pretty notion that Iowa men were bores, and Iowa women were not. We have heard the old gag to the effect that "John, you didn't say a word all evening. I was so ashamed of you. Why not pay ten cents down and receive your five foot shelf tomorrow?" We never appreciated that suggestion nor is it easy to see how women can absorb culture for herself, her husband, and her family. Can a woman serve her husband a lightning survey of all the cultural attainments of the world as she would serve his morning coffee?

Surely the striving for culture should be mutual. For the joy of attaining that beautiful something constitutes half of its charm. Iowa women may help their husbands to culture. Their husbands may help them. But help, and drag, are different words. We will bet Miss Hurst a cookie of any shade, flavor, and dimension that nobody, anywhere, at any time was dragged into culture.

Working Students

DEAN S. H. GOODNIGHT of the University of Wisconsin, announces that fully half of Wisconsin's honor freshmen are supporting themselves. A like condition exists on this campus.

The keynote of success among the youth of today seems to be maximum effort and minimum of leisure time. Everyone has experienced the phenomenon that he does his best work under strain and when he has the most to complete.

Appreciating that fact, it might some day be worked out that every student will be given a job and required to support himself, at least partially. If the stories of the great amount of waste of time and money by university students continue, the state might utilize this waste by providing state industries in university towns, giving all students part time work, and paying them wages.

Code of the Criminal

A CODE of the criminal was presented in a recent issue of Welfare Magazine by Victor F. Nelson. The code deserves some thought on the part of those who are too eager to believe that all criminals are hopelessly and entirely wicked. The code reads:

- Be "right," i.e., courageous, close-mouthed, absolutely loyal.
- Don't "squeal" on anyone.
- Don't doublecross a pal.
- Be brave.
- Keep your business to yourself.
- Honor a "right" guy.
- Kill a "rat."
- Steal from those who can afford it, not from your own kind.
- Don't get caught.
- Die "game."

A glance through this code will show that it is based entirely on the Golden Rule. If criminals live up to it, they are not quite so bad as most people believe. In fact, certain of the clauses of their code could be advantageously copied by law-abiding but non-ethical non-criminals.

Making Scholastic Touchdowns

(From The Christian Science Monitor)

Some persons are wondering if the coming scholastic contest between Harvard and Yale is to be conducted under the rules that govern athletic meetings between these two great American universities. Perhaps they base their speculation on the statement regarding the new venture which says that "the competition which has inspired young men to undertake and undergo so much for the sake of athletic victories might accomplish the same result in academic fields."

Harvard recently appointed its scholastic team, and it contains ten undergraduates who will meet an equal number from Yale. After a few close contests in the scholastic arena the new Harvard Ten may become as well known as the Harvard Eleven or the Harvard Nine. The character of the contests is such that it may not be deemed desirable or feasible to hold them in the Stadium, though a decision to do this undoubtedly would meet with popular approval among the sportsmen in the alumni of the two universities involved.

The announcement concerning the personnel of the Harvard Ten designates the judges but remains silent on such questions as referees, time keepers, trainers and other appurtenances of a well-organized athletic contest. Rules and regulations of some kind there will have to be, but whether or not they will have to do with Harvard seizing the English grammar and "tearing off a touchdown" remains to be seen.

In the meanwhile the academic good posts are going to be set up, and both Harvard and Yale are out to make as many scholastic touchdowns as two well-trained teams of intellectual athletes can make.

Chills and Fever

It is with regret that The Daily Iowan announces the departure of F. L. G., known to the university registrar as Franklin L. Gregory, from Chills and Fever. Mr. Gregory has been the able shepherd of the column since June 1, 1927, and leaves now to accept a position with the Waterloo Evening Courier. Regretting the loss of F. L. G., The Daily Iowan is nevertheless pleased to announce the appointment of Beulah J. Wickard, A3 of Maxwell, as his successor. Miss Wickard has been on the staff of editorial writers for this paper, and is a contributor to the Iowa Literary magazine.—The Editor.

Found! Discovered! Apprehended!
An honest man!
We always thought so. But for fear some fond females still have cherished illusions left about the constancy of the male of the species homo-sapiens, we call attention to the contrib of the man Diogenes failed to find. He is tickle and he admits it.

My Rosary
The hours I spend with thee, dear heart,
Are as a string of pearls
And so are all the other hours
I spend with other girls.

Here's to the girls I one time knew.
And those I scarce remember
And here's to you, whom I shall love
Perhaps—til next September.

The perfidy of the male biped has been observed since the days of Adam. Eve never worried about him. She didn't have to. There was nobody else in the garden but a snake. And who wants to carry on an animated flirtation with a box constrictor?

But a page or two of "begats," and not one but innumerable seductive ladies made Eden seven times as dangerous as Chicago—Chicago is so tickles began and the Edenites soliloquized.

To be or not to be
Whether it is wiser to be tickle
And pursue this entrancing grass skirt
Or to be constant and save our heads

From the thumpings of coconuts
Wielded by our incorporated l/b/s
Alas—our dear wit—
That is the interrogation.

The Greeks came about the nearest to competing in tickleness with that aggregation of red socks, checkered suspenders, and derby hat, known as the collegiate. The Greeks were good sailors, but don't misunderstand us. We mean they could run a ship well. They could evade both rocks and their wives.

They spent their "shore leaves" with Circe, and those marine flappers the sirens.
Sailors haven't changed. It was just last week that the American sailors tried to make a harem out of a "flagship." They were court martialed. Everybody was shocked but not surprised. There is a difference between those two words. We haven't decided what it is.

Anyhow the syllogism is good.
All men are tickle.
Sailors are men.
Idem-quo, sailors are tickle.

We won't be tolerant of their inconsistency. F.L.G. says tolerance is the bunk. But we will let Harry Lauder defend the mariners.

They say that every sailor's got
A wife in every port,
That's a dirty lie because
He's nothing of the sort.
If every sailor has a wife
In every port, then take my tip
That every sailor's wife has got
A man on every ship.

But Harry Lauder isn't a sailor—or a sailor's wife. What does he know about it?

Men don't change, but times change, worlds change, styles change. We believe in change. Lets change the subject.

About contributions—we dote on 'em.
If you think the world is crazy
Let us know it
If you have a row to hoe
Let us hoe it
If you have a horn to blow
Let us blow it
If you have some mud to throw
Let us throw it.

In other and more Biblical words, "blessed are the contributors, for with their aid, the fever of chills and fever may break the thermometer."
Here's to a rising temperature!
—B.J.W.

Authorities Seek 1925 Ford Car of Murdered Editor

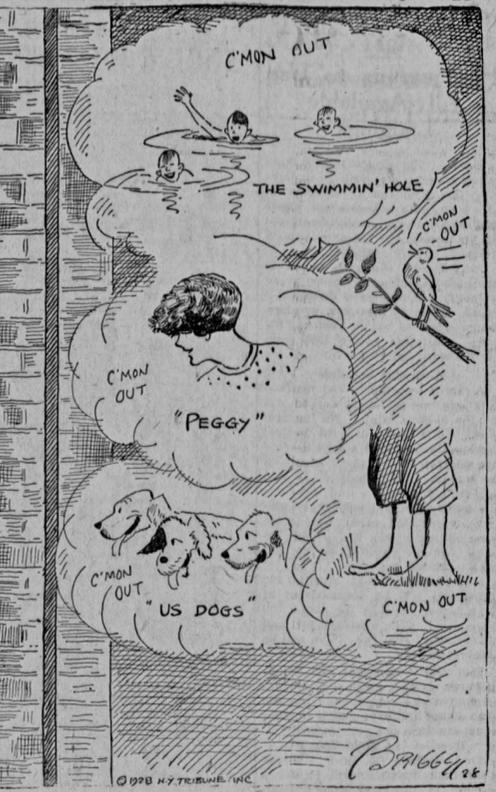

TAMA, April 30 (AP)—A 1925 Ford coupe was sought today by authorities in the hope it might shed some light on the mystery surrounding the death here yesterday of A. B. Stansbury, 59-year-old editor of the Fairmount, Ill., Review, who is believed to have been attacked and robbed of money he took with him when he left Fairmount in the car April 21, bound for Bloomington.

Mr. Stansbury died in a hospital, without regaining consciousness, after being found near some railroad tracks about a half mile from Montour, by trackmen, last Wednesday. There were indications of a wound over his left temple, but an X-ray examination failed to reveal any fracture. He was without funds, although when he left Fairmount he is said to have had $125 in his possession.

At Camp McKinley

(Furnished to the Associated Press by the State Historical society at Iowa City.)
Camp McKinley, established at the state fair grounds at Des Moines, was the mobilization point for the Iowa National Guard regiments which saw service during the Spanish-American war.
The men assembled at Des Moines April 26, 1898, and after a month of intensive drill were ordered into action.

Following news that the battleship "Maine" had been sunk in Havana harbor on the night of Feb. 15, members of national guard companies expected to be called into service. Drills were increased, and many new recruits enrolled.
April 21, Adj. Gen. Melvin W. Byers ordered company commanders throughout Iowa to prepare their companies for mobilization. Preparations to depart were immediately made. Uniforms were donned, knapsacks packed, and frequent drills held as an air of excitement pervaded every community that had a national guard company.

Monday, April 25, an order from the governor, sent through the adjutant general, came for the troops to entrain the following morning. The excitement became general, and Iowa communities accepted the first opportunity since the stirring days of 1861 to cheer the soldiers as they left for war.

Public meetings were arranged for Monday afternoon and evening in opera houses and armories to express the good wishes of the communities. Veterans of the Civil war gave patriotic speeches, local orators made the most of their opportunity, and doctors warned the soldiers about dangers of diseases in camp and field. At many of the meetings, silk battle flags were presented to the companies.

The call of the bugle the next morning reminded both civilians and guardsmen that the time for training was not far distant. Stirring scenes, as generally enacted, were recorded by the State Historical society. People thronged the streets and business was suspended. Flags flew from every flag-staff. Members of the G.A.R., and the W.R.C. formed in ranks to escort the boys to the depot, and school children carrying small flags joined the procession.

Led by the home town band, the departing guardsmen marched from the local army to the station, where a special train awaited to take them to the encampment at Des Moines.
The progress of the special trains to the capital city was marked by a continuous ovation. Crowds, cheering and waving flags, gathered at each town along the way, and at every stop cigars and fruit were given.

Troops Go to Des Moines
At Creston, where the men from Company G joined their comrades from Glenwood, Villisca, Red Oak, Shenandoah, Corning, and Bedford, pandemonium broke loose. The engines at the railroad yards blew their welcome, bells were rung, and thousands of people thronged about the station. Business houses were closed, schools were dismissed, and the entire community joined in welcoming and bidding farewell to the national guardsmen.

All day-long troops poured into Des Moines. As soon as trains arrived, they were shunted to the state fair grounds to avoid marching the companies through the crowded streets. By nightfall the mobilization of the four regiments of the Iowa National Guard was practically complete.
The men were assigned to quarters in the horse and cattle barns, where stalls had been filled with clean straw for bunks. Mess was served for the first time at 8:30 o'clock, and afterwards groups formed to discuss the chances for active service.

On the next day Gen. James Rush Lincoln took command and the camp was organized under the name of Camp McKinley.
When the routine of camp duty was posted, no doubt was left but that plenty of hard work was in store for the men. The daily program started with reveille at 6 a. m., and continued with sick call at 6:15; mess, 6:30; guard mount, 8:00; drill 9:00; mess, 12:30; drill, 2:30 to 4:30; mess, 5:30; dress parade, 6:15; tattoo, 9:00; call to quarters, 9:45; and taps, 10:00.

Program Heavy
Battalion drills were to be held in the forenoon, and regimental drills later in the day. The schedule also included numerous marches in to the surrounding country, with emphasis upon advance guard, outpost and skirmish drill. Tramp and maneuvers over rough, wooded heights and advances toward an imaginary enemy hardened the muscles of the guardsmen and whetted appetites for the rations of coffee and hardtack, pork and beans.
From the outset there was considerable apprehension among members of the four Iowa regiments over the fact that the requisition for troops called for only three regiments of infantry and two light batteries from the state. Merging the four regiments into three was suggested, but rejected as unsatisfactory.

Finally the authorities in Washington agreed to accept four regiments from Iowa, and they were promptly renumbered the Forty-ninth, the Fiftieth, the Fifty-first, and the Fifty-second, the numbering beginning where it had left off at the close of the Civil war.
Throughout May a continuous program of drill and discipline hardened the men into well-trained troops. Each day the guardsmen expected to receive orders to move to the front.

May 21, the Fiftieth regiment entrained for Camp Cuba Libre at Jacksonville, Florida. The Fifty-second left Des Moines May 23 for Chickamauga Park, Tennessee.
The other two lingered and the men commenced to fear that their military record was to begin and end at Camp McKinley. June 5 the Fifty-first Iowa regiment left for San Francisco, and June 11 the Forty-ninth left for Jacksonville.

Tippetts Writes Article in Journal
Charles S. Tippetts, professor of commerce, is the author of "Decline of membership in the federal reserve system," an article which appeared in the April issue of the Journal of Political Economy.
Changes affecting the number of national banks, why national charters became less attractive, state bank and trust company members, whether the federal reserve system is disintegrating, and the McFadden-Pepper bank act are discussed in the article.
Professor Tippetts states in the conclusion:
"The only respects in which the system is not quite as strong as formerly is that it now controls a slightly smaller proportion of the country's eligible banking resources, and of the state banks and trust companies in the country, than in 1920."
"Although the Federal Reserve system has, late in 1927, 850 fewer members than were enrolled in 1923, it is probable that the drift away from the system is almost at an end."
"If suspensions and insolvencies occur less frequently during the next year, we may by that time expect to reach the end of the period of decline in federal reserve bank membership."

Two Stolen Idols

By Frank L. Packard

CHAPTER 34

It was afternoon, and the Alita, in a light wind, was tacking in for a point of land some five or six miles distant that showed now off the port bow.

Bob Kingsley leaned against the weather rail, his eyes on Tifu at the wheel—his thought far afield. It had been a strange voyage! They were ten days out from Auru—and in another hour, or an hour and a half, they would make Kalawa. And in those ten days scarcely a word had passed between Verna and himself. Kafan had served her meals in the cabin and had attended to her wants; no one else had been permitted to enter the cabin. The freedom of the deck had been hers, but it was only of late she had begun to avail herself of it to any extent—as though slowly she were becoming less disquieted and less in fear of her surroundings. But—she smiled a little wistfully to herself—she was not so sure now she would act on her own, or rather, react to what he had to say, and to what he proposed to do in this last hour just before Kalawa was reached. He would not, however, be long in doubt on that score, for a few moments ago he had sent Kafan below to tell her that they were making land, that there was something he must say to her—and Kafan had brought back word that she would come up on deck in a few minutes.

Bob Kingsley pushed his cap abruptly and unasily to the back of his head. The breeze a little while ago had seemed cool enough—now it seemed suddenly hot and unrefreshing.

During all the voyage, though the crew had rigged up a bit of privacy for him, he had berthed forward with Nanu and the rest of the men. His wound proved to be only a flesh wound, no infection had set in, and, other than keeping him below for the first four days, it had not amounted to much. But in those four days when only mental activity was possible, he had come to some rather definite, and perhaps drastic, decisions.

His first intention had been to take Verna direct to Singapore, and resolve her to her family, assuming that others of her family besides Colonel Lyle lived there, or, falling actual relatives, to her friends, of whom she must have many. But in those four days he had utterly discarded that idea. There were very many reasons why he had done so. Nanu had told him that a small schooner had been lying at anchor for several days just off Auru and had still been on the night the Alita had sailed. That was bad news. It presented an opportunity to get away from Auru that Chen-shu would not overlook. To board the schooner in the dark, and surprise and overpower the three or four men, probably natives, who at most would comprise the crew, would be no more than child's play. It was so obviously the thing to do, and so certain of success that, in his own mind, he, Bob Kingsley, had already rated it as an accomplished fact. In any case, since there had existed a means of transportation, there was no longer any question that there would be weeks and even months before Chen-shu could reach Singapore. Therefore, Singapore was no safe place for Verna. As a matter of fact, she wasn't safe anywhere so long as that idol was in her possession!

That brought up another point. For her own sake she had to be so indubitably dissociated from the "very god," both as to its possession and any presumed knowledge she had concerning it, that neither Chen-shu nor his fellow bandits in Singapore would have any further interest in her. There was only one plan whereby this could be accomplished so far as he could see, and he had determined to put that plan into effect. She must, whether she liked it or not, turn the idol over to him. After that, he would go on to Singapore, and there, in those underground haunts that he purposed to visit and to which he had the entrée, he would either openly or with apparent inaction, as circumstances dictated, let the idol be seen. The news would travel fast, say, from Java. Diek's den of iniquity; his possession of the idol would be speedily and unquestionably established, and his, thereafter, would alone be the trail that they would follow.

Bob Kingsley laughed suddenly in a law, hard way. A question of sticking his head into the lion's mouth? Perhaps, yes; perhaps, no. He had not forgotten that Chen-shu and the four men with him were not the only ones who had been on Hsi Yan's junk that night at Kalawa—and that he, Bob Kingsley, had set out to run them all to earth. What he now proposed to do would most certainly induce Chen-shu's other associates to show their hand, whether Chen-shu ever got back from Auru or not. That was all he asked, and it would become, then, a question of who could play the craftier game. He had assumed that the headquarters of these human vultures was in Singapore, but whether he was right or wrong in that regard mattered very little. If it were elsewhere, the underworld exchange would still function with the same unholy efficiency. The fact that he was in possession of one of the ivory gods would become known to the men he was seeking quickly enough, and would draw them like a magnet to Singapore from wherever they might be. In any case, and whatever might happen to him personally as the outcome of this play of his to lure his uncle's murderers out into the open, and whether he himself were caught or not in the trap he set for them, Verna at least would be safe. She would be here in Kalawa, a two days' sail from Singapore. No one would know where she was, and Crowley and his wife would be only too glad to have her stay with them. There wasn't any question about her welcome. The Crowleys were the sort of hospitality anyhow, besides being old friends of both his father and his uncle. He shrugged his shoulders whimsically now. How shocked they would be when Verna accused him of murder!

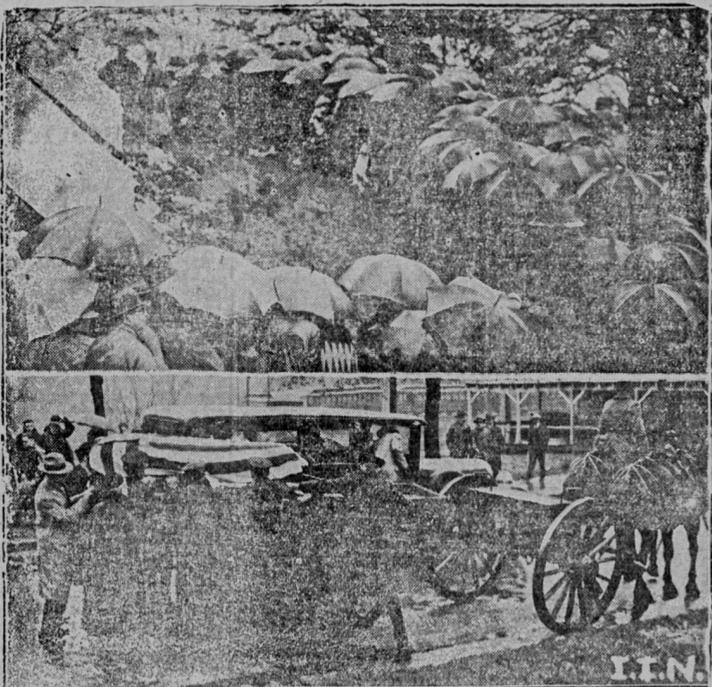

That was exactly what she would do, of course. She was as hard as adamant. Not once had she unben in the last ten days. The man that she believed had murdered her brother—her brother's murderer. It began and ended there; that was where he stood in her eyes, that was the sole category in which she placed him. If, when she was on deck, he had persisted beyond a civil word of greeting she had immediately gone below. Ten days of it!

There was wistfulness in his eyes now, pain in the lines around his mouth. Life was a queer paradox! Every little mannerism of hers he knew—and loved. For hours at a time, unobtrusively, unknown to her, he had watched her when she had been on deck. That trick of hers—with head thrown back a little, inviting the breeze to caress the uplifted face and bare white throat! The sunlight playing joyously on the burnished hair! The eyes of hers—as blue as the sea itself! And always in the moonlight she was like some cherished vision enticed out of the land of dreams to live before him again, vivid and real and existent, as all dreams are while they endure—and as unreachably, as unattainably as the dream entity itself!

She was as hard as adamant. His hands gripped the schooner's rail tightly. Well, that was no more reason why she should not go to Singapore! Her first act there would undoubtedly be to go to the authorities and demand his arrest—and, temporarily at least, that would very effectively put an end to any effort on his part to dig the rats he was after out of their holes. It was quite true that eventually he might even ask aid from the police himself—but not in the character of an accused or suspected murderer!

His hands gripped tighter on the rail. He meant to be unhampered now, free to play his own game in his own way in Singapore. Every last one of them! He could see his father now in the living-room at Patua as the old man had sat there that night helpless in a wheel-chair,

A dark, funeral day saw the burial of Floyd Bennett, one of the navy's most distinguished aviators. They said in Washington that he was given an admiral's funeral though a man of the ranks. ## Leap to New Highs in Wild Buying Stampede

CHICAGO, April 30 (AP)—In a wild buying stampede today, wheat, corn, oats and rye smashed the season's record for high prices. Momentum for big upward swings in grain values had for a source largely a widespread belief that May 1 crop reports from private experts will indicate a yield of domestic winter wheat this season about 52,000,000 bushel less than was harvested last year.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 net higher, with corn showing 3 1/2 to 4 1/2 advance. Oats at 1/2 decline to 1/2 gain, and rye quotations ranging from 2 1/2 lower to a rise of 20c.

Right from the beginning, wheat trade was at a furious pace, and according to some observers the pit showed more evidence of excitement

Price Movements Irregular in Bond Market Yesterday

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—Irregular price movements characterized today's bond market. High grade issues displayed a little firmer undertone than in recent sessions, but some convertible and other semi-speculative issues reflected much profit taking following the midday decline of stocks which attended the advancing of call money to 6 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates showed no change.

Oil company mortgages again moved forward, particularly Barnard 6's, which reached a new peak of 105 1/2. Since these bonds carry stock warrants, their price follows the movement of the shares very closely. Loew's 6's, also with warrants, and Liquid Carbonic convertible 6's also followed a strong trend. General Asphalt 6's sold up 1 1/2.

Copper convertibles were distinctly heavy, both Anaconda 7's and Andes 7's declining more than a point. Brooklyn Union Gas 4 1/2's were sold in large amounts, depressing the price nearly three points, and there was active profit taking in most of the New York traction issues.

Denver & Rio Grande 4's made the poorest showing of the railway list, declining about a point in the face of moderate advances elsewhere. Chesapeake corporation 5's continued to attract buyers around 100, their best price of the year.

United States government obligations followed a firm course, treasury 3 1/2's being in particularly good demand.

The foreign list was irregular and devoid of individual features.

Sharkey Knocks Out Delaney in First Round in New York

French-Canadian Falls to Floor After One Minute, Thirteen Seconds in Heavyweight Bout in Gotham

Referee Introduces Crew of Bremen to Crowd; Ovation Lasts Longer Than Main Bout in Elimination Contest

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, April 30 (AP)—After having talked and fiddled his way out of the main heavyweight picture for this year, Jack Sharkey suddenly came to life tonight and knocked out Jack Delaney, the one-time rapier of the north, in one minute, thirteen seconds of the first round.

Snarling and vicious, Sharkey leaped at his lighter foe at the tap of the gong, had him punch-drunk in less than 30 seconds and on the floor for the first time, taking the count of ten, from as crushing a right-hand uppercut as has landed in any ring or on any jaw for several months.

Didn't Land Blow

Delaney didn't land a blow and made only a few faint gestures. The French Canadian's handsome features were twisted grotesquely and he went to one knee from the effects of the first onslaught. Wild-eyed and wobbling he struggled to his feet, only to go down heavily from a smashing right hander. Delaney was able to stagger up at nine but was "out" on his feet. Sharkey lunged and swung a right uppercut from his heels. Delaney went down as if hit by an axe, rolled over and squirmed in agonized fashion on his face. Blood poured from his mouth and one ear. They picked the fallen boxer up and carried him to his corner, dead to the world, while the road of the crowd reverberated to the rafters.

16,000 Present

Sixteen thousand spectators, including the famous trans-Atlantic crew of the airship Bremen, sitting in the front row with Mayor Jimmy Walker, saw the shortest and most sensational heavyweight fight staged in a long time.

The ovation accorded to the flyers, as they were introduced from the ring just a few minutes before, occupied considerably more time than the main go that they had come to see. The echo of the thunderous greeting to the airman, jaunty Major Fitzmaurice in flying uniform and his German companions, Captain Koehl and Baron von Huenefeld in evening dress, had hardly died down before the big battle was over.

Regains Prestige

With nothing particular at stake except to regain some prestige he had scattered to the winds in the winter's elimination tournament, Sharkey fought probably the greatest—certainly the most spectacular—hour of his career. The Big Boston sailor, after frittering away in mediocre exhibitions against Tom Heeney and Johnny Risko his chances of going up the heavyweight scale during the winter, suddenly has shown a return to form.

But it is too late now to do him any good this year, after the fight promoter Tex Rickard declared it would make no change in his plans for Gene Tunney to fight Heeney in July in the only heavyweight title battle this year.

Delaney, revived in a few minutes, seemed little the worse for his setback, his first knockout since Augie Fatter flattened him several years before he became a head-liner and champion.

Badgers Upset Illini

BEARDED BRITON LEADS RUNNERS

Peter Gavuzzi of England thrust his bearded face ahead of the other runners in C. C. Pyle's cross country derby when the loping caravan passed Rolla, Mo., on the way to St. Louis.

Gavuzzi Holding Local Independents Foot Race Lead Meet First Defeat

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 30 (AP)—C. C. Pyle's seventy-one knights of the calloused soles today struggled into Springfield, fifty-eighth control station in the trans-continent footrace, with the wiry little Britisher, Peter Gavuzzi, still holding first place.

John Salo of Passaic, New Jersey, led the pavement pounders on the twenty-six mile stretch from Virden, today, in the fast time of 3:01.50, to retain him in third place. Gavuzzi blew in nearly six minutes later, with a time of 3:07.40, thereby increasing his lead over Andrew Payne, youthful Oklahoman, to 4 hours, 40 minutes and fourteen seconds. Payne, coming in tenth, still retains second place in the race.

This afternoon and tonight, the runners gave themselves over to social functions, the most important of which, in the eyes of the derbyst, was the afternoon spent cavorting in the swimming pool of the Elks club here, said to be the first they have seen since they left the coast.

Minnesota Wants Return Match With Hawk Golf Team

Another dual meet with Minnesota may be carded for the Hawkeye golfers, according to Coach Charles Kennett. F. W. Liehring, athletic director of the Gophers, has written to Coach Kennett requesting a return meet with the Minnesotans. Coach Kennett is anxious to schedule it if a suitable date can be arranged.

The only day the meet could be played is May 26, the week after the Gopher match here. The meet, if scheduled, will be the fifth of the year for the Iowans.

Golf Hopes Soar as Captain Kurtz Returns to Team

Infected Finger Heals in Time for Clash With Wildcats

With the return of Capt. Fairburn Kurtz of Des Moines to regular practice yesterday, the prospects for the Hawkeye golfers to down Northwestern Friday took a sudden jump skyward. Kurtz has been laid up with an infected finger for several weeks and has been able to practice only intermittently. It was feared that he would be out of the game for the entire season, but the infection has cleared up enough to permit him to compete.

Despite the high winds and frequent rains which have made the course difficult for good play, Coach Charles Kennett is well pleased with the form which his golfers have shown in their recent workouts and is optimistic about their chances to tame the Northwestern Wildcats when they invade Finkbine field this week. The recent return of sunshine has helped to dry out the fairways and scores are consistently lower than the marks turned in previously.

Team Not Selected

While Coach Kennett has made no definite selections for the quarter which will compose the Iowa team for the approaching battle, it seems probable that along with Captain Kurtz, Don Jackson of Council Bluffs and Robert Miller of Iowa City will get into the select circle. Jackson is a sophomore who will get his first taste of Big Ten competition this week, while Miller is a senior and competing for his last year. Captain Kurtz is a junior. Thus far there has been no indication for the fourth member of the quartet.

To Use Nassau System

The Nassau system of play will be used in Saturday's competition, and a morning and afternoon round will be played. In the first eighteen holes, each Hawkeye will be paired against a Northwestern representative and the winner of the first nine holes receives one point, the winner of the second nine one point, and the one who is ahead for the entire round gets another marker.

The afternoon play will be by foursomes, each composed of two Iowans and two invaders. The scoring system will be two points to the team winning the first nine holes, two to the combination capturing the last nine, and two for the winners of the entire round. In this team play competition only the best ball of each team will be counted on each hole.

The Northwestern athletes will

The finals of the inter-fraternity wrestling tournament will be held tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. Coach Mike Howard and Leslie "Red" Beers, A of Iowa City, will officiate.

Gopher Netsters Will Invade Iowa

After narrowing his tennis squad down to eight men, Coach E. J. Schroeder has been putting the netsters through a week of stiff drill in preparation for the invasion of Minnesota this week-end.

Four men are practically certain of facing the Gophers in the initial match of the season at 10 a.m. Saturday. Dick Boyles and Irvy Albert, both of Iowa City; Robert Netolicky of Cedar Rapids and Robert Conrad of Burlington are the four. The team that will play the Norsemen will be a five-man assemblage, so it remains for "Dad" Schroeder to choose another racketeer from the other four varsity aspirants.

The tournament, which will be staged on the courts adjacent to the reserve library, will consist of five singles tilts and two sets of doubles. Comparatively little is known about the strength of the invading Gophers, but tennis fans can be assured of a close series in any case.

Iowa's hopes were given a considerable jolt with the elimination of Pau Mitchell through inelegibility, so it is up to the Hawks to show their claws to the Northerners in order to start the season with a victory.

The last day on which freshman tennis players will be allowed to sign up with Coach Schroeder will be Wednesday of this week. Those who report for training will be divided into groups of four, the most promising quartet of varsity caliber being selected by elimination matches to be held throughout the remainder of the tennis season.

C. of C. Supports Trading at Home, Community Spirit

Backs Move to Keep $1,000,000 Sales in Iowa City

The campaign to build community spirit, and a movement to sponsor trading-at-home was furthered at the regular weekly luncheon of the chamber of commerce yesterday noon. The work of the advertising committee of the retail merchants bureau, which is sponsoring the two movements, was described by E. A. Chappell, chairman of the committee.

An average of $1,000,000 of business yearly goes to other cities, business which should remain in Iowa City, said Mr. Chappell. "Imagine what it would mean to Iowa City if that were to remain here," he continued.

Citizens Must Cooperate

It will be necessary to spend much time and effort in putting across such a move, Mr. Chappell contends. But if every individual in Iowa City would lend his cooperation it could easily be done.

The idea of the campaign, as outlined by Mr. Chappell, is to influence every citizen of the value of doing all his purchasing in Iowa City. "Iowa City is very capable of supplying the wants of each of its residents," he said.

Such meetings as the recent Rotary convention, the coming music festival, and conferences of like order were commended by the speaker. It is in this way that Iowa City is sold to the state.

Bremer Boosts Campaign

A further boost to the buy-at-home movement was given by Pres. Harry L. Bremer of the retail merchants bureau. In a short speech at the close of Chappell's address he asked for the co-operation of the chamber of commerce in putting over the campaign.

The cooperation of the chamber in aiding the extension division to provide accommodations for the boys and girls coming here for the music festival was assured. Prof. E. H. Lauer who asked the group for support.

Ether Fuller, J4 of Mount Ayr, attended the luncheon and asked the members for their assistance in entertaining the mothers of university students who have been invited here for the special mother's day celebration. The event will be held May 11, 12, and 13. The club, through its president, Dean C. A. Phillips, pledged its support to the program.

East Lauds U. of Iowa

The University of Iowa is receiving much recognition in the east.

While at a meeting in New York the Rev. Harry S. Longley, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, overheard some members of the Columbia university faculty, and also several other professors from eastern universities, discuss various universities of the country.

They made several remarks about the high scholarship shown by graduate students coming from the University of Iowa, and unaware that anyone from the Hawkeye state was at the meeting, proceeded to tell of the work Iowa graduates are doing there.

Declining to tell what the men said about Iowa, the Rev. Mr. Longley told only the fact that they were loud in their praises of the University of Iowa.

"It would sound to much like bragging to tell what they said about Iowa," he remarked.
