DRYS PLAN AL SMITH'S DOWNFALL

Dopesters Expect Olympic Records to Fall

Aces From Nine States Will Fight on Track Today

Records Should Fall in Every Event on Program

Track and field stars from 23 universities, colleges and clubs are staking their chances to compete in the final Olympic tryouts on their performances this afternoon on Iowa field in the midwestern trials.

Awaiting the starting signal will be 24 winners of major championships led by such track notables as Frank J. Cuhel, Ray Conger, Winston Hooper, R. W. Haggard, Cyrus Walking, George Baird, Charles Haworth, and Edward Gordon.

Nine states will be represented among the list of athletes who will attempt to batter the existing records off the boards. In practically every event on the program there are entries who are potential record breakers.

Cuhel Leads Field

One of the feature races of the day will be the 400-meter hurdles in which "Bab" Cuhel, brilliant Hawkeye athlete, heads a field of clever timber toppers who seem certain to play havoc with the standing record, :53.2 seconds, set by C. F. Coulter, former Iowan, in 1924. Cuhel, winner of the 220-yard low hurdles in the Big Ten three times successively and holder of the National Collegiate A.A. mark of :23.2 seconds, has been covering the barriers in the 400-meter event in fast times in preliminary practices.

Others entered in this event, who will make the going hard for the Old Gold ace are: Warren Taylor, Grinnell college, brother of the famous Morgan Taylor of the 1924 Olympics; Robert Reay, Carleton college, North-central conference titlist; Morris Penquite, Drake university; and Dill Smith, Iowa State college.

Array of Spear Throwers

The javelin has brought together one of the greatest arrays of spear throwers ever assembled outside of an Olympic meet. Every man entered has thrown the javelin close to the 200 foot mark and some have pushed the wand farther. The meet record of 176 feet, 7 inches seems certain to be broken. The men entered include L. D. Weldon, Graceland college; Glenn Rice, College of the Ozarks; Carl G. Schjoll, former University of Minnesota star, competing unattached; Vernon Kennedy, Central Missouri Sate Teachers college; G. Mackinnon, University of Minnesota and William H. Dunkak, Vermillion, S. D., competing unattached.

Another feature race, the 800-meter, will see such distance stars as Ray Conger, conqueror of Otto Peltzer and Lloyd Hahn, who holds a record of 1:52.2 seconds for this event.

Conger wil have to run the race of his life if he intends to place first over Cyrus Walking, dusky Indian from Haskell institute; Winston Hooper, Southern Methodist ace; L. L. Caulm, Iowa State college; Joe Winchester, Kansas State Teachers college, and Joe Gunn, University of Iowa.

Fur Sure to Fly

The fur is sure to fly when Charles Haworth, Penn college, Oskaloosa, winner of the 3,000-meter race at the Kansas relays; Dudley Townsend, Herman Gallegos, Otto K. Korand and Bernard Frazier get together in their favorite event.

Another University of Iowa runner who is after a ticket to the Olympics is George Baird, who will meet Gerald Murchison, St. Louis; Wilson Charles, Haskell institute; William Nadeau, Hibbing, Minn.;

Liquor Rings Buys Prescriptions From Physicians; Caught

LOS ANGELES, June 22 (AP) — Twenty-five physicians, a score or more of druggists and many others were involved in an investigation today by federal prohibition officials in what they declare to be a large "prescription liquor" ring.

The physicians are declared to have "sold out" to the liquor men, turning over thousands of prescription blanks for an average price of $3 a blank.

Headquarters of the combine, according to the prohibition men, were maintained in a downtown building and used as a general clearing house for the traffic in prescription blanks.

Kill Man, Hang Body

ALTOONA, PA., June 21 (AP)— His skull fractured by a blunt instrument and his throat cut, the body of Natale Sangiorgio, 30, a railroad laborer, was found suspended from a tree in Oakton, a suburb, last night.

Officials determined that death was not due to strangulation.

Pluvius, Athlete, Record Holder, Practices Here

J. Pluvius, bewhiskered athlete of the University of Elements and very much abused individual, has entered his name as a probable starter in the Midwestern A. A. U. track and field meet on Iowa field this afternoon.

Mr. Pluvius, holder of all the records in his sphere of activity, his best record reported to be about 15 inches in two minutes, came here last week end and practiced seriously though spasmodically since for his specialty.

Judging from his workouts during the week, and particularly yesterday morning, the old gentleman is in prime condition. Feeling that he was rather cramped on Iowa field he has made use of Iowa City and the surrounding country in general for his practice sessions.

Other athletes entered are well aware of Mr. Pluvius' ability and are hoping that something may happen to put him out of the running. Their hopes rest on three straws: that he may be withdrawn by his coach, Mr. Weatherman; that being an indifferent sort of a person he may choose not to run; and that having worked so hard this week he may have burned himself out and be unable to perform up to standard this afternoon.

Arrest 2, Hold 1 After Indictments

CHICAGO, June 22 (AP)—Fourteen indictments of terrorism in the primary vote April 10 were returned tonight by the special grand jury. The indictments are a sequel to the 19 voted last week against ten persons.

Names of five of the eight listed in the latest counts were suppressed by order of the Chief Justice William V. Brothers, of the criminal court at the request of the special prosecutors who are investigating the alleged alliance of crime and politics in Chicago.

The indictments charge assualt with attempt to kill, kidnaping and perjury.

The three whoes names were made public are Policeman George Hartigan, charged with perjury, Johnny Armando, charged with assault, and Abe Silverman, charged with kidnaping and assualt.

The latter two are under arrest and the first is easily obtainable.

Democrats Hold Group Meetings to Stop Al Smith

HOUSTON, Texas, June 22 (AP) —A series of conferences among democratic leaders of the south was started here today in an effort to stop Alfred E. Smith in the party convention which opens here next Tuesday.

Faced with the necessity for quick action if they are to head off the candidate whose foes concede he has within a hundred votes of enough to obtain the presidential nomination, these leaders made a thorough canvass of the delegate situation, assessing the potential strength against the New York governor not only in their own group but in other anti-Smith camps.

Daniel Roper of North Carolina, internal revenue commissioner in the Wilson administration and one of William G. McAdoo's chief lieutenants in the Madison Square Garden convention four years ago, appeared to be one of the moving spirits in the effort to coalesce the elements that are reconciled to Smith's nomination. He declined however, to discuss the movement.

Nobile Rescuers Drop Provisions With Parachutes

Italians Fail to Find Trace of Other Lost Flyers

(Copyright 1928, by the Associated Press)

KING'S BAY, SPITZBERGEN, June 22 (AP)—General Umberto Nobile and the five men marooned with him on the Arctic ice today received their second batch of supplies from the air. Majors Maddalena and Penzo flew their Italian seaplane over the camp of the refugees. They found no opportunity to land, and again made used of parachutes to get provisions and radio equipment to the stranded men.

Increase Efforts to Rescue

While this effort of the flyers was successful, they failed to find any trace of Roald Amundsen and his five companions in the French seaplane piloted by Rene Guilbaud.

The Italian aviators also reported they had seen nothing of the balloon portion of the Italia or of the seven men who were carried away with it when the gondola of the aircraft was torn loose on May 25.

Neither was there news of the other three members of the Italia's party ,who, on May 30, started to walk across the ice from the place where General Nobile and his companions were spilled.

With Nobile fortified to await rescue by an ice breaker, increased efforts will be made now to learn the fate of the missing ten explorers and six would be rescuers.

No Trace at Advent Bay

All vessels in this section of the Arctic are being notified to watch for the missing. A sailing vessel which arrived here today from Tromsoe followed closely the track which the Amundsen situation there is a feeling of optimism respecting him among the Arctic experts here. They recall the times in the past when he disappeared into the icy wastes of the Arctic and Antarctic, only to come out safely when hope for him had reached its lowest ebb. Particularly they mentioned his sudden change of direction in 1910 when he started for the North Pole, but switched his plans in midocean and won a four-nation race to the South Pole.

Those who know the veteran Norwegian best are inclined to believe that he may have given up his determination to come to King's Bay. The hope that he might have landed at Advent Bay with the idea of establishing an independent base there was shattered when the steamer Svalbard visited that place today. Finding no trace of the Amundsen party, the Svalbard continued toward South Bay.

Enraged Witness Grabs Shorthand Book, Destroys It

LOS ANGELES, Calif., June 22 (AP)—Remarking that what she had said "Was her own business and might incriminate her," Mrs. Marion Harris, officers state, today suddenly flew into a rage, grabbed the stenographer's shorthand notes,and tore the sheets into shreds. The woman was being questioned in connection with the mysterious murder of John I. Glab, former Cicero, Ill., druggist, who was shot down four days ago within a few feet of his suburban home.

Mrs. Harris had been held as a material witness because of her intimate friendship with Mrs. Hazel Glab, who with her niece, Ethyl Kaser, 17 years old, is charged with the slaying.

The four pistols found thus far in the search do not fit the bullet taken from Glab's body, and failure to find the weapon in Mrs. Glab's possession, which she would have had no opportunity to hide outside the grounds of her home, weakens the state's case against her.

Although Mrs. Harris is thought to have phoned W. R. McIntyre, former officer and one-time lover of Mrs. Glab, the morning after the shooting to inform him of the tragedy, McIntyre's alibi is satisfactory, but he will be held as a material witness.

Officers refused to state what the line of questioning recorded in the torn-up notebook had been.

Inspector Tests Plane

LOS ANGELES, June 22 (AP)— The monoplane "Greater Rockford" in which Bert Hassell, Rockford, Ill., pilot, and P. D. Cramer, government aeronautics inspector, left San Antonio, Texas, at 5:30 a.m. this morning central time, landed at 7:30 p.m. tonight Pacific coast time.

The monoplane is being put through test flights preparatory to an extended two hop flight from Ilinois city, to Stockholm, Sweden, next month.

"Everything Looks Bright, Mother"

This intimate picture of Governor and Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, made recently in the executive mansion in Albany, would indicate that the democratic leader is well pleased with the political outlook over the country.

Temperature Drops After Heavy Rain

Within an hour and a half yesterday morning, precipitation was .88 of an inch, according to Prof. John F. Reilly, United States weather observer. He also reported that at 7 a.m. yesterday the temperature was 66 degrees above zero and at 7 p.m. yesterday evening the mercury had fallen to 62 degrees above zero.

The high mark registered for yesterday was 75 degrees above zero while the lowest registration was 62 degrees above zero.

Mann, Woodard, Sherman Attend Engineers' Meet

Three members of the college of engineering, Prof. F. G. Higbee, Prof. C. V. Mann, and Prof. Sherman M. Woodard, leave tonight for Chapel Hill, N. C., to attend the annual meeting of the Society for Promotion of Engineering Education. The meeting lasts from June 26 to June 28.

Professor Higbee, who was vice president of the association in 1922-23, and a member of the council from 1916 to 1919, will read a paper on the rise of descriptive geometry.

Professor Mann, who is connected with the Missouri school of mines, and Professor Woodard are members of the council for this society. Professor Woodard is a member of the committee on mechanics.

Dean C. C. Williams of the college of engineering left for North Carolina by automobile last Wednesday to attend the meeting. He was accompanied by Mrs. Williams and Mrs. W. G. Raymond, wife of the former dean.

Twenty-two University of Iowa men belong to this society. Pres. Walter A. Jessup is the University of Iowa's institutional member.

Gang Trial Judge Risk for Insurance

CHICAGO, June 22 (AP)—Criminal court judges who preside over trials involving gangsters are not regarded as good risks by fire insurance companies, Judge John P. McGoorty has discovered. A $10,000 fire insurance policy on his home was cancelled by a company yesterday with the explanation that he was a "bad risk."

It was Judge McGoorty who presided at the recent trial of Eugene (Red) McLaughlin for attempted robbery. During the trial, at which McLaughlin was convicted, a plot to bribe jurors and intimidate a witness was discovered. The home of one juror was bombed, and Judge McGoorty was threatened.

Students From 41 States, 8 Foreign Lands Registered

Students from 41 states, the District of Columbia, and eight foreign countries have registered for the first term of the University of Iowa's summer session, according to statistics compiled here yesterday.

Some 550 of the 3,000 campus students registered are from other states and countries. Enrollment has not yet ceased.

Illinois students lead the list of out-state registrants for from that commonwealth have come 100. Missouri furnished 77, Wisconsin, 64; South Dakota 52; and Minnesota and Indiana, 43 each. For the first term of last summer, the figures showed 37 states and five foreign countries.

Other states on the roster are Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana, Michigan, Arkansas, Pennsylvania, California, West Virginia, Montana, Alabama, Tennessee, New York, Ohio, New Jersey, Georgia, Kentucky, North Dakota, Rhode Island, Virginia, New Mexico, Massachusetts, Arizona, Oregon, Idaho, Colorado, Mississippi, Florida, Wyoming, North Carolina, New Hampshire, Maryland, Washington, and Connecticut.

The foreign countries are China, Japan, Hawaii, India, Denmark, England, Canada, and the Philippine Islands.

Lone Bandit Steals $50,000 From Train

BLISSFIELD, Mich., June 22 (AP)—One lone bandit held up the express car of the Detroit Toledo New York Central passenger train here tonight and escaped with a money shipment estimated at $50,000, according to reports to the local officials.

The holdup occurred between Monroe and Blissfield, when the train pulled in at 10:30 p.m. The expressmen reported the holdup to authorities and asked that officers at Toledo be notified. The expressman gave no details on the robbery to Blissfield authorities.

Farm Bureau Head Endorses Relief Bill

CRESTON, June 22 (AP)—"Until a better plan is offered for control of surplus crops the American Farm Bureau federation will adhere to the proposed Equalization Fee," several hundred farmers of seven southwestern Iowa counties were told here this afternoon by Sam Thompson, national bureau president.

A heavy downpour of rain this morning left local roads muddy and prevented several thousand from attending the all day bureau meeting.

Welfare Meeting Ends With Round Table Summaries

Home Punishment Not Discipline Says Dr. Blatz

"A hungry child is hard to put to sleep," began Dr. Amy Daniels of the nutrition department at the first round tale summary yesterday afternoon at the child welfare conference. This statement was made in suport of the main subject discussed at the meeting, that of physical development of the child.

Edward Lauer of the extension division at the second round table of the afternoon series on the family and the home, emphasized the principle that the family should be arganized on a democratic basis. He concluded with the suggestion that an educational process be employed in the home with attention centered on participation by the children.

"The Mental Hygiene of Childhood" was the subject of the discussion led by Dr. W. E. Blatz of Toronto, Canada. "Punishment is not a means of discpline in the home," he continued, "and the child should be allowed to judge of right and wrong for himself with proper direction."

A larger field was coverd in the concluding discussion led by Lauer, in which he stressed that delinquencies in the family should not be attributed to the family, but rather to environmental circumstances in the community.

Other features of the last day of the conference were two lectures. The morning lecture was given by Edna N. White of Detroit, Mich., in the senate chamer of Old Capital. Her address dealt with home economics in relation to parent education in which she pointed out a close connection between the two, since parent education is concerned with environment and environment is a problem of home economics.

The concluding lecture of the conference, given in the auditorium of the chemistry building by Dr. W. E. Blatz of Toronto, Canada, yesterday afternon, covered hereditary and environmental influences in the modern family life. In this address, Doctor Blatz concluded with the statement that in spite of inherited tendencies, children's lives may be influenced by environment.

Hoover Formally Notified at Home

WASHINGTON, June 22 (AP)— Secretary Hoover, the republican presidential nominee, practically completed today his pre-campaign conferences with party leaders and reached a decision to leave Washington between July 2 and 5 for his California home at Palo Alto, where he will receive the formal notification of his nomination.

On his trip west it is likely although not definitely decided, that the nominee will visit President Coolidge in Wisconsin. Wheher he will present his resignation from the cabinet at that time or await a later date was not made known.

During the day Mr. Hoover conferred with Senator Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the Kansas City convention, Representative Walter S. Newton, of Minnesota who is the probable chairman of the speakers' bureau and C. C. Hamlin of Colorado, national committeeman from Colorado. He also received a brief viist from General Pershing.

The question of Secretary Hoover's visit to Wisconsin apparently has been left in abeyance pending the contemplated trip of Secretary Work to President Coolidge's summer residence to tender his resignation from the cabinet so as to assume his new post of republican national committeeman. Mr. Work plans to leave for Wisconsin next week.

Evans Will Head Iowa Bar Group

CEDAR RAPIDS, June 22 (AP)— H. E. Evans of Sioux City was named president of the Iowa State Bar association by delegates here this afternoon. John Grimm of Cedar Rapids received the vice presidency. Judge Marcus A. Cavanagh of Chicago, the principal speaker, was unable to reach the city and the convention was adjourned following the election of officers.

Mrs. Bailie Expelled

WASHINGTON, June 22 (AP)— Mrs Helen Tufts Bailie of Cambridge, Mass., was expelled today from the Daughters of the American Revolution for circulating statements injurious to the organization.

Enemies Insist Need of Better Platform

Aged Man Finds Teeth in Throat

SHERBURN, Minn., June 22 (AP)—Edward Claude, 80-year-old pioneer resident of this town, lost his set of false teeth two weeks ago. Diligent search failed to reveal them.

Claude's health thereafter was none too good and he went to a physician. An x-ray disclosed the teeth lodged in Claude's esophagus. Yesterday two surgeons operated on him and removed the set, which was lodged so tightly an incision had to be made.

"Must have swallowed them while I slept," Claude mused today as he was recovering from the operation.

Dan Hunter Wins "Good Will" Race

Planes Finish Tour of 13 Iowa Cities in Five Days

DES MOINES, June 22 (AP)— When 14 airplanes finished the 1,000 mile, 12 hop good will air race around Iowa at the local airport late today, Dan Hunter of Cedar Rapids, flying a ladge Stinson-Detroiter monoplane, was announced as the winner.

Second among the pilots to complete the journey was Carl Christenson of Des Moines, who was shown by official tabulations to have consumed 8 minutes more than Hunter in making the dozen hops. He drove a Waco biplane.

Ames Man Third

Times of the other pilots, unofficially tabulated, showed Wilford Gerbracht of Ames in a Travelair, in third place; H. G. Long, of Des Moines, in Henry Bolte's Ryan monoplane, fourth; and George Lowers of Wesley, flying an Eagle-rock owned by J. A. Hauptman, fifth.

These three places may be redistributed by official checking it was pointed out.

Only one of the fifteen planes which left Des Moines on the five-day journey failed to finish. That was a Travelair biplane, piloted by W. Fiske Marshall of Waterloo, who landed 50 miles southeast of here on the first day because of motor trouble. He was unable to take off again because of the mud. The first plane left here at 9:22 a.m., Monday, and the last to arrive at the starting point, touched ground at 6:20 p.m., today.

Stopped Here

Stops were made at Centerville, Iowa City, Cedar Rapids, Waterloo, Mason City, Wesley, Fort Dodge, Rockwell City, Battle Creek, Sioux City, Clarinda and Des Moines.

Approximately 175,000 persons gathered at the 1 3cities to greet the flyers, it is estimated.

Kenosha to Quell Riot, State Order

KENOSHA, Wis, June 22 (AP)— Governor Fred R. Zimmerman refused this afternoon to send national guard troops to Kenosha to quell what was described to him as "riotous conditions," and maintenance of order was to be attempted by city police and the sheriff with an augmented force. The governor intimated a personal representative might be sent secretly to Kenosha, to investigate fully concerning the situation whose seriousness is minimized by leaders of the strike, now in its fifth month, at the Allen A company.

At the end of a day marked by efforts of union leaders to delay the governor's action on the petition of officials for outside assistance, that executive received the officials at Madison. After a hearing he told them to handle the situation at present themselves, and if necessary later, to appeal to him again.

The officials acquiesced in the governor's decision. The sheriff was authorized today by the county board to employ as many additional deputies as he deemed necessary.

Two Escape Crash

SIOUX CITY, June 22 (AP) — W. L. Velie, sr., an official of the Velie motor company of Moline, Ill., and Vern Roberts, airplane pilot, escaped unhurt when a plane in which they were riding fell 100 feet following take off at the Leeds airport here today. The plane was so badly damaged that the men were unable to continue their trip.

Governor's Managers Oppose Strong Tactics

HOUSTON, Texas, June 22 (AP) —With the prohibition question thrown squarely into next week's Democratic convention by the Smith adherents, those seeking to prevent the nomination of the New York governor were busy today canvassing the situation in the hope that this turn in events might give them the strength to turn back the now leading candidate.

Quietly they discussed plans to bring about Smith's downfall by withholding from him more than one-third of the delegate strength over a series of ballots. Some of the anti-Smith group declared that if his nomination could be checked for ten ballots the convention would turn to some other candidate.

They contended that the Smith strength, now conceded to exceed a majority of the 1,100 convention votes, was made up of so many discordant elements that it could not be held together as a cohesive group for any great length of time after the balloting actually had begun.

Smith Leaders Undisturbed

One the other hand, the Smith leaders, apparently undisturbed by the signs of renewed activity in the opposition camp, passed the word that the nomination of their candidate could be brought about on the first ballot, if necessary. However, there would be no effeort to force the issue until the favorite sons had been given full opportunity to develop their strength.

While the Smith forces admittedly will be in control of the convention, George R. Van Namee, preconvention manager for the New York governor, reiterated that there would be no attempt at steam-roller tactics; that New York state would insist upon freedom of speech in the convention and full liberty of action by all elements within the party.

Smith Shows Sincerity

Governor Smith's declaration at New York yesterday that he had not changed his belief that amendment of the prohibition provisions was necessary was seized upon by the drys as adding strength to their cause. The Smith adherents argued the sincerity of the New York executive.

Van Namee refused to concede that renewed discussion over prohibition might cause a bitter fight in the convention and his view was held by a number of other leaders who have not been over friendly to the cause of the governor of the empire state.

Some of the Smith leaders took the position that the governor's declaration had in no way precluded their support of a strong dry enforcement plank in the party platform since he repeatedly has stated that the constitution must be upheld and enabling acts rigidly enforced.

Lincoln of Sidewalks

Upon his arrival George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany Hall, referred to Smith as "the Abraham Lincoln from the sidewalks of New York," and predicted his nomination and election.

The anti-Smith group were heartened by the arrival of Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, whom they expect to conduct a militant campaign to stop the governor. The Missourian was prepared for a fight to the finish and his managers asserted that he would pick up strength steadily as the balloting in the convention proceeded, probably next Thursday or Friday.

For the present, at least, the anti-Smith group are ready to concentrate on no particular candidate; their sole purpose being to hold away from the governor a large enough block of votes to prevent him from obtaining the nomination.

Dinwiddie Leads Drys

Platform questions, particularly that dealing with law enforcement, were inextricably bound up in the discussion of party standard bearers. Dry leaders on the ground, including E. C. Dinwiddie, former superintendent of the anti-saloon league, insisted that there would be a demand for perhaps an even stronger plank than the republicans approved at Kansas City last week in which the eighteenth amendment was specifically named.

Smith managers were not discussing platform questions at this time.

A vigorous declaration for farm relief appeared to be assured. Suggestions came from some quarters that the party definitely commit itself, in the event that it is given control of government, to call an extra session of congress next spring in an effort to work out a satisfactory solution of the farm problem.

Lindy Forced Down

SCRANTON, Pa., June 22 (AP)— Col. Charles A. Lindbergh en route from Detroit to New York, was forced down near Pittston early tonight, state troopers reported. A detail of state troopers were being rushed to the spot.

The Traffic Signal

STAND on the corner of Dubuque and Washington and listen to the comment on the new traffic signal.

Someone says, "It's built too low." Another person says, "It's too high."

These crepehangers stand there making their comments about the base not being set right and it's not being the right type of signal. One person even went so far as to say that if the city ever intends to build a car line on Washington street that the signal will have to be moved. This talk misses the point altogether.

How would you like to sit in council meeting and try to reach some conclusion on how, where, when, and why to set up a traffic light? It's a hard job to please everybody.

The new signal seems satisfactory in every way. The lights are on the level of the motorist's vision. The standard is built with four small supports rather than one large one, so that it offers little obstruction to vision. It is true that the changing of the lights has not yet been accurately regulated; but this will be done as soon as a careful study indicates the intervals which will best handle the traffic at that intersection. Moreover, the signal was installed at a minimum of expense to the city.

Wouldn't it show a little more community spirit to commend the installation of the new signal as a step toward eliminating traffic congestion, rather than straining the imagination to find flaws?

Amundsen

RECENTLY we have heard much about Nobile, but little of Amundsen.

Who discovered the north pole? General Nobile argued that he did. Roald Amundsen disagreed, saying that he was the first to accomplish the feat. For some time, the arguments continued.

Then came the word that Nobile had begun his flight, followed soon by the report that he was lost.

Then Roald Amundson showed his true character. His experiences in the Arctics made him competent to be one of the searching party. Forgetting all his unfriendliness for his rival, he offered his services to go to the aid of Nobile and his companions. This man, so well skilled in the ways of the Arctic, accompanied by a skilled French pilot, left Monday to begin his search. Soon there were no signals from the two searchers. As yet there has been no report from Amundsen. To his list of accomplishments, whether he returns or not, he has added another honor.

Doesn't any man who is great enough to forget enmities and risk his life for an enemy deserve praise? Hasn't Amundsen, by his recent search, proved himself a great man as well as a great explorer, even if he does not rescue Nobile and return?

Reed of Missouri

JIM REED, the noisy senator from Missouri, continues to announce to the world at large that he will be the next democratic candidate for president. He believes it. His confidence is shared by few.

Senator Reed is a born skeptic. He is "agin" everything. He's from Missouri on any proposition that ever sees the light of day—except Jim Reed. Where his own personal powers are concerned, he is an optimist that puts Pollyanna to shame.

All the senator's ballyhoo creates very little excitement outside the circle of his home fires in Missouri. But he is unperturbed. He proudly reminds the doubters that single handed he succeeded in getting himself elected senator from Missouri in 1922, when he had been read out of the party. Therefore, he says he will be nominated at Houston, and elected at the polls.

But there are two reasons why he won't get to first base in the race for nomination. For the first, Reed is not a party man. He was a bitter opponent of the League of Nations during the Wilson administration, and later he ceased to support the president, himself. The party has not forgotten that Reed is a professional hater, and that he is bound to hate something even if that attitude involves disloyalty to the party.

But there is another consideration. Senator Reed will not be nominated because the democrats do not believe he has a chance of winning the election. Whatever the persuasive power of his personal appeal, it cannot be very potent when diffused over a nation. Reed is not widely enough known to be matched against Hoover.

The only force that can defeat a name as big as that of Herbert Hoover is a bigger name. The only candidate the democrats can bring forth who remotely measures up to that standard, is Al Smith.

If the democrats are to win the election, they will have to forget petty prejudices and intersectional disputes, and concentrate on Al Smith. If Reed is to continue calling himself a democrat, he will have to quit blowing his own horn and save his breath for Al Smith.

The Danger of Being Yourself

O. O. McINTYRE, New York journalist, in an article in Cosmopolitan, admonishes the youth of today to "Be yourself." He cites his own experiences in losing jobs because of a cocksure attitude and feigned self importance.

Certainly we agree with Mr. McIntyre that such a personality as Dr. George A. Dorsey, noted anthropologist, may be pardoned for a lapse of grammer now and then, and that the popularity of the versatile Will Rogers is due largely to the fact that he chews gum and rubs his sleeves across his nose. But how about the rest of us—average human beings with no special talents, who are judged merely by our general conduct and appearance day after day? Can we really afford to "be ourselves?"

Affected mannerisms are dispicable, but there is something to be said for "putting one's best foot forward." Too often "being ourselves" implies taking the line of least resistance and not bothering to conceal unpleasantness, but displaying an utter disregard for the feelings of our associates. We are not all of an innately cheerful disposition, but we can hide our true feelings if we will exert the effort. Tactfulness goes a long way.

In other words, if you can't smile naturally now and then, force it. Anything is better than a frown. You won't appear superficial if you don't overdo it.

One dreads meeting the shining example of sincerity, honesty, and commendable virtue. He has a naive manner of making us feel decidedly uncomfortable at intervals by blurting out the truth unreservedly, often causing untold embarrassment. He seems to have a mania for making awkward situations.

"Being yourself" implies a special privilege granted only to celebrities and notables. If Mme. Marvelle, the famous French movie star, falls in a jealous fury and hurls stage settings at her director, the public calls it artistic temperament, but if plain Maggie Jones brandishes a rolling pin at the head of her irate spouse we call it a common marital clash and snicker up our sleeve. It doesn't profit Maggie Jones, but Mme. Marvelle gets a lot of sensational publicity.

This is an age of subterfuge, lots of it harmless. Would you begrudge the matron of forty her permanent waves, reducing machines, and facial massages, shouting "Be yourself?" Unless she makes ludicrous attempts at being the exact version of a 1928 flapper, let's commend her efforts to ward off age as long as possible.

O. O. McIntyre says he can spot the poseurs every time and warns against artifice. All well and good, Mr. McIntyre, but some of us would be about as popular as the Bubonic plague if we fell into the laxity of "being ourselves."

Either some of the sweet things are wearing clothes an inch and a half or so shorter this summer, or the girls are longer.—Detroit News.

Gaining Prestige

A RECORD registration of 2,978 persons for the first term of the summer session stamps the work offered by the university during the summer months as of undeniable importance.

The idea that summer school is a place of punishment for scholastic laggards who failed to function properly during the school year has faded with the years and in its place has come the recognition of the summer school as a place for acquisition of new ideas and brilliant accomplishments

Men and women, who during the year are chained to primary and high school classrooms, find that a summer at the university provides a stepping stone to higher degrees. Exchange professors from universities in this country as well as Europe offer courses during the summer months that are not available at any other time; these men are drawing cards for students interested in their particular fields.

Because of lack of time or money or both, many students utilize the summer months for making up a semester's or a year's work.

In what other job but a student's would a three months' vacation be given? More and more the folly of this long period of idleness is being realized. More and more the summer session of the university is gaining prominence—not at a place to go covertly, making up undone work, but as a place of construction where ample opportunity is given to accomplish everything in the field of education.

FATE'S TWIST

Almost anyone would think
That my ways should have mended.
I never yet have told a fib,
And not been apprehended.

If I were worthy of regard
And not just gay and youthful,
I'd say that Providence conspired
To try to keep me truthful,

Oh, some own yachts and motor cars
To liars knees have bended,
Thompson gets a mayor's job,
But I get apprehended.

CHILZ EDITORIAL

After much observing I am really alarmed at the situation as it now is. To be exact, saw my old school superintendent, R. E. Blank; better known as Rest Easy, in plus sizes. You know d— well men over 250 shouldn't try it.

Then there are the tittering school ma'ams of the middle and late thirties whose apparel is so abbreviated. Perhaps they have been getting the spirit of Dad Janks but the worst feature is that they are crowding out those of us who by virtue of long residence should receive some consideration.

Judging from the countless parked cars in places that used to be the very example of solitude, it seems that the 3,000 summer students, young or old, do more neckin' than the 8,000 regulars who are supposed to be regular hellraisers according to the papers. Perhaps they take their extra-curricular activities like their work, too seriously. We liken them to the Chi O who liked to neck better on week nights than Sundays, six to one in her favor.

The radio operator at the air mail field says he can hardly make his way through the sparking space. What can we do for this?

Political Issues of 1928

This is the fourteenth of a series of articles on major issues of the coming campaign, prepared by the staff of the department of political science. They present an expert, unbiased analysis and clear explanation of current political problems, together with brief comments by men of national prominence. The subjects covered by these articles will be the main topics of discussion at the sixth annual Commonwealth Conference, to be held here July 9, 10, and 11.—Editor's Note.

THE EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT

Nullification

Another attitude toward the issue of prohibition as involved in the eighteenth amendment is expressed in the word "nullification." It is quite possible for a state to refuse to cooperate with the federal government in the matter of enforcement. A state may have no law in its own constitution or on its statute books dealing with prohibition or enforcement. In the absence of state law there is no way of compelling state officers to enforce a federal law. Thus it becomes a simple matter for a state to refuse to help enforce the eighteenth amendment and the statutes of congress enacted for its enforcement.

Many people do not understand the status of a federal law and the relation of state and local authorities to its enforcement. Nearly all of the federal criminal laws are also embodied in the state criminal law, either by means of statutes or through the precedents of the common law. Hence federal, state, and local officials pursue criminals quite impartially. As a matter of legal theory the federal officer derives his authority from the federal law, and the state officer his from state law. It is important to know under which law to proceed when it comes to arraigning the offender in court; but in the matter of actual enforcement federal and state officers can work in perfect harmony, without being concerned about the source of their authority.

Prohibition Law Differs

To many people it is not clear why this is not the case with respect to prohibition. The main point is that to traffic in liquor is not a crime until the law specifically declares it to be so. And the law must prescribe a penalty and impose the duty upon officers to enforce its provisions before it becomes effective. In the matter of prohibition this has all been done so far as the federal government is concerned. The eighteenth amendment declares it to be contrary to law to traffic in liquor. Congress is given authority to enforce this amendment, and congress has passed a law fixing penalties and imposing the duty of enforcing the law upon federal officers. Hence the federal machinery is complete, even though sometimes it may be inadequate to the task.

But congress does not have the power to impose a duty upon state officers. The amendment itself does not fix any penalties or impose any specific duties upon state officers. In order to secure enforcement by state officers the state legislature must enact laws fixing penalties and imposing duties upon the state officers. In the matter of prohibition most states have done this. And when the state laws correspond with the federal law, state and local officers are in duty bound to work alongside federal officers in enforcing exactly the same law.

Prohibitionists Puzzled

This is the administrative ideal of the prohibitionist. He thinks every state should enact laws similar to the federal law in order that the entire enforcing machinery of both the United States and the state can be brought to bear on enforcing prohibition. Indeed he is sometimes puzzled that this is not the case simply as a matter of course, and if a state fails to enact enforcement legislation he is inclined to think that the state has failed of a moral obligation, if not a legal one.

Thus it is clear that if a state is merely passive, refusing to enact the necessary legislation or repealing the legislation already enacted, partial nullification will have been brought about—partial nullification because the federal government is more or less incapable of dealing with the problem single handed. Congress would be obliged to appropriate several times as much money as it now appropriates for prohibition enforcement if the federal government were to undertake the task seriously and alone. The federal judiciary would have to be greatly enlarged, since the federal courts as now constituted could not handle the additional business. The attorney general's staff would have to be greatly enlarged, to say nothing of the additional army of prohibition agents.

New York Nullifies

The state of New York has effected this sort of partial nullification. That state repealed its own law enforcement legislation. The governor is said to have signed the measure with some reluctance. Many advocates of prohibition consider this action on the part of New York a deep disgrace to the state and an affront to the United States. Ardent opponents of the eighteenth amendment believe that it is a legitimate and legal step in the direction of mitigating the effects of a bad law.

There is another sort of partial nullification that can be accomplished by congress alone. The eighteenth amendment forbids traffic in "intoxicating liquor" without defining or interpreting the phrase. The amendment becomes effective, therefore, only when congress or some state legislature defines the phrase and forbids traffic in beverages containing a fixed percentage of alcohol.

Ultimately the courts must pass upon the constitutionality of the legislative interpretation. Congress through the Volstead act has forbidden traffic in beverages containing more than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol. It would be quite competent, however, for congress to repeal the Volstead act and to provide for no enforcement whatever. Or, congress might alter the law in such a way as to increase the alcoholic content, permitting the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer. Apparently it is within the competence of congress to bring to pass a partial nullification of the eighteenth amendment in this way.

It has been suggested that 2.75 per cent would be proper, and some states have adopted this percentage. Indeed, there are some people who believe that congress itself exhibited bad faith when it fixed such a low percentage as was fixed in the Volstead act.

Whip Turns to Tree

LAMONI, June 22.—A Civil war soldier stuck a cottonwood sprout into the ground here. He had used it as a whip. Now a 70-foot cottonwood tree has been felled, and J. W. Heasley, on whose farm it grew, says it sprouted from the whip.

Textiles Display Shows Handwork

An exhibit of Berea hand woven textiles is being displayed by the home economics department, room 119, natural science building. These articles are made by the mountain women of Kentucky, and cotton, wool, or linen thread is used. This collection contains woolen scarfs and runners; linen luncheon sets, and towels; and colonial patterns in bags and couch covers.

A collection of Japanese batiks and Chinese brocades, owned by Mrs. Grey Potter Benton, of Minneapolis, is also on display.

One piece of brocade work which is made of foot square blocks, individually designed, was made in 1725. The background, which is red, is mellowed with age and the imperial dragons and conventional clouds are woven in different colored golds.

The Japanese batiks are made by the process of printing cloth covering all the material except the design with wax. This is one of the oldest known arts and was brought to the western world by the ancient Dutch traders.

Lady Lindy's Poem Idealizes Courage

The spirit of indomitable courage in which Miss Amelia Earhart set forth upon her hazardous flight across the North Atlantic was intimately revealed in verse from her own hand embodied in an article by Marion Perkins, by whom she was employed as a settlement worker, made public yesterday by the Survey Graphic.

Miss Earhart described her outlook on life thus:

Courage is the price that Life exacts for granting peace,
The soul that knows it not
Knows no release from little things:

Knows not the livid loniliness of fear,
Nor mountain heights where bitter joy can hear
The sound of wings.

How can Life grant us boon of living, compensate
For dull gray ugliness and pregnant hate
Unless we dare

The soul's dominion? Each time we make a choice, we pay,
With courage to behold resistless day,
And count it fair.

Children Present Science Program

The assembly program, Thursday morning at the university elementary school, was conducted by the fourth grade, under the supervision of their instructor, Hazel Prehm. The program was given for the benefit of the county superintendent's conference, and an audience of approximately 100 visitors attended.

The object of the assembly was to show the progress the students had made in the past year in the pursuit of studies of a scientific nature. Herbert Smith, of the fourth grade, presided over the assembly, made the announcements, and introduced the participants of the program. Wallace Adams, who is a member of the third grade, demonstrated his discussion on the usefulness of ants, with an artificial ant hill in a glass container.

Josephine Sidwell, fourth grade pupil, talked on the subject of silk worms, and exhibited specimens of their cocoons. Barbara Lilick, of the fifth grade, discussed different kinds of rocks, and their respective commercial uses. Jack Hinman, a student of the sixth grade, told his audience about the usefulness of earth worms. Tom Horn and Helen Ries officiated as ushers.

Faculty Receives 1,000 Students at Union Party

A thousand persons are ready to declare that the student-faculty reception held at Iowa Union last night, was a success, from the punctual guests who started down the receiving line promptly at 7:30 p.m., to the stragglers who dashed in breathlessly at 9 p.m., just in time for the program.

The lounge was used as a reception hall and as a theatre, with a small stage set up at the west end, and the entire west half of the room filled with chairs. Bowls of snapdragons were used on the small tables.

The program included a group of songs by Anna Pierce of the school of music, accompanied at the piano by Frances Camp of the placement bureau; and a one-act play "Two Gentlemen of Soho," presented by the speech department under the direction of Chester M. Wallace.

Punch was served on the west porch throughout the evening.

The receiving line included Pres. and Mrs. Walter A. Jessup, Miss Margaret Hotz, secretary to the president, Dr. George W. Stewart, Dr. Zella White Stewart, Dean Adelaide Burge, and Mrs R. H. Fitzgerald, Prof. and Mrs. George Stoddard, and Dean P. C. Packer.

Coolidge Indulges in Western Attire

SUPERIOR, WIS., June 22 (AP)—The first definate accounts of President Coolidge fishing, showing him wearing a typical western ten gallon hat, rubber boots and a slicker over his khaki shirt and using dry flies as his bait-both puzzled and delighted this town of ardent fishermen today.

Mr. Coolidge's ten gallon felt hat gave rise to the puzzlement while the news that he did not use worms for bait, caused much relief among the easily touched, sporting sensibilities of the habitual trout anglers.

Mr. Coolidge's tall hat, apparently the same one he wore last summer in the black hills of South Dakota, was a strange sight in the timberland of this northern lake region. It caused much wonderment among guides and workmen at Cedar Island lodge who saw Mr. Coolidge wearing it, and who had previously only seen such headgear in the movies. Word soon spread that the chief executive was trying to introduce the western fashion here.

The wonderment increased when it was learned while lounging on the little islands in the Brole, Mr. Coolidge habitually wears the high heeled boots customary in the cattle lands of the west. These boots, of very soft black leather, reaching half way up the calf, were worn by the chief executive in approved style with his long trousers tucked into them. The boots were recognized as those which Mr. Coolidge wore last year in South Dakota.

Recollections of reports from Rapid City last year that Mr. Coolidge had fished there with worms, had troubled local anglers who said that the waters of the Brule river had always been reserved exclusively to fly fishermen. The late Henry Clay Pierce, who built Cedar Island lodge, had even gone so far, they said, as to prohibit any but habitual fly users to step on his estate. Today's announcement that the chief executive had no intention of shattering the tradition was, therefore, received with pleasure.

Hotz-Dietz Marry; Spend Honeymoon at Wisconsin Dells

St. Mary's rectory will be the scene of the marriage of Margaret Hotz, daughter of Mrs. Frances Hotz, 201 E. Park road, to Carl I. Dietz of Moline, Ill. The ceremony will be performed by Monsignor A. J. Shulte at 9 o'clock this morning.

The bride will wear a green crepe dress with a hat of tan, and Mary McLaughlin, who will attend her, will wear a gown and hat of rose.

Decorations at the wedding breakfast, which will be served at the city park pavilion, will be white daisies and pink rosebuds. Only the immediate members of the families will be present.

Both the bride and bridegroom attended the university, the bridegroom receiving a degree from the law school in 1925. He was a member of Gamma Eta Gamma fraternity.

Following the ceremony the young couple will leave for the Dells of Wisconson for a short honeymoon. They will be at home in Moline, Ill., where Dietz is a member of the law firm, Kenworthy, Dietz, Shallberg, Harper and Sinnett of Rock Island and Moline, Illinois.

Out of town guests at the wedding will be: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Solla of Moline, Ill.; Mrs. Lucy Herrmann of Des Moines; and L. L. Hotz of Dubuque.

Signed Shield to Decorate Union

Characteristic signatures of the twelve members of Mortar Board for 1928, written by themselves with an electric needle prepared by the electrical engineering department, appear on a polished gum wood shield which will be hung in the lounge of Iowa Union early next week. In addition to these names, the emblem of Mortar Board, and a small design, the shield is inscribed "Mortar Board, 1928, Sponsors of the First Mother's Day." Decoration was done by the art department.

Members of Mortar Board for the past year were: Esther Lucille Mueller, Katherine Kinne, Harriet Cammack, Percie Van Alstine, Esther Fuller, Dorothea Starbuck, Helen McLachlan, Aileen Carpenter, Dorothy Denkman, Ramona Evans, Helen Barnes, and Barbara Kittredge.

Coolidge Seeks Woody Solitude

SUPERIOR, WIS., June 22 (AP)—Satisfied to let all but the most pressing of his duties lay over till Monday, President Coolidge decided today to wind up the remainder of this week in the solitude of the Wisconsin woods, thus getting ten full days of invigorating open air life before paying his first call at his executive offices.

Some routine matters, however, required Mr. Coolidge's approval and signature and these were taken out to him today to Cedar Island Lodge. These questions quickly dispatched, and wearing his ten gallon hat and his cowboy high heeled boots, he chose to take it easy reading the papers and strolling about in the immediate vicinity of the lodge.

No word had reached Mr. Coolidge today from Washington that Secretary Work intended to come to Superior in the near future either before or after resigning from the cabinet. In fact, officially, Mr. Coolidge had not been informed of Mr. Work's intention to resign, having learned this only through press reports. The announcement, however, caused no surprise at the summer white house.

While it was emphasized that Mr. Coolidge had apparently every intention of spending an exceedingly quiet summer, receiving few visitors and perhaps refusing all invitations for trips and speeches. It was also said that a visit from Mr. Work would be welcome.

In any case, the chief executive would be glad to go over departmental matters with the retiring interior secretary in view of the vacancy in the cabinet which would have to be filled.

It was added that probably it would devolve upon Mr. Work to prepare the preliminary estimates for his department's appropriations for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1929.

Rev. Smith Returns From Baptist Meet

The Rev. and Mrs. Elbert J. Smith returned yesterday from Detroit where they have been for the last week attending the Northern Baptist conference convention.

The next of the summer union services will be held at the Christian church tomorrow evening, and the Rev. Mr. Smith will deliver the sermon.

Albert Alligator Says Wet Plank to Matter Little

Albert is back---back in Iowa City for the summer and more of a lounge lizard than ever. When interviewed yesterday he was resting after his trip from his country home but he had a few comments to make on Iowa City weather and food.

The last week, he agreed, had been beastly. Such a contrast to his old Florida home where summers are really hot and there are rich green swamps in which one can steam. Of course he had no university students there and they are diverting. Still---Albert sighed reminiscently.

The food? He straightened with indignation. Meat,raw meat stuck through a triangular hole in the top screen while live fish butted their heads impudently against the sides. No way at all to treat a gentleman!

The interviewer changed the subject hastily. "Are you in favor of a wet plank in the democratic platform?"

"As long as the florist keeps my plank wet, I am not particular." And Albert Alligator snapped at a fly, loked hungrily at the goldfish, and went to sleep in his cage in the shop window.

Dill Describes His Expedition Through Louisiana Swamps

About 125 persons attended the lecture last night by Homer R. Dill, director of the university museums, on his expedition through the swamps of the Louisiana gulf coast.

The encounter and capture of a 13 foot alligator, was one of the experiences of the expedition, also many pictures of the rare egret were obtained. The trip was made for the purpose of collecting material for one of the exhibts now on display in the natural science building.

The third of this series of lectures by Mr. Dill will be given next Friday, at 8 p.m. in the chemistry auditorium, on the sea lions and birds of the northwest.

Princess to Devote Life to Young Son

BUCHAREST, RUMANIA, June 20 (AP)—Free of her wayward husband, former Crown Prince Carol, Princess Helen intends to devote her life to her adopted country and to making a good king out of her six year old son, Michael.

Although the decree from Carol, whom she married in 1921, was absolute and she is free to remarry she does not intend to do so.

Biochemists Analyze Varied Fluids; Experiment on Animals and Humans

Experiments ranging from the study of perpiration and blood of human subjects to the study of eye fluids are being carried on in the biochemistry department. J. J. Pfiffner, who is completing his work for the doctor's degree, has been studying some of the obscure substances occurring in the blood in minute traces, developing methods for their determination and trying to learn something of their probable significance. He has examined the blood of dogs, rabbits, cats, rats, beef, pigs, and human subjects.

Peter Salit, who received his master's degree last year, is continuing his studies of the chemistry of the lens of the eye and of the eye fluids, in association with the department of ophthalmology, to obtain information on the chemical changes associated with the formation of cataract.

T. J. Fatheree is studying the chemical characteristics of the perspiration, with particular reference to the reducing sugar which it contains. Through the cooperation of the department of hydrotherapy in the university hospital his volunteer human subjects are taking electric light baths to provide him with the necessary specimens of the limpid fluid for study.

Miss M. Catherine Magee is applying the various methods for the micro-chemical determination of sugar to bacterial media with a view to selecting the best procedure. This is part of a larger problem to be studied in collaboration with the department of bacteriology, and concerns the formation of fat from sugarby bacteria.

Miss Blanche Crawford is studying the spontaneous oxidation of fats and oils, a process which causes or accompanies the appearance of rancidity. During this process the oils are bleached and, not only their pigments but the accessory substances (vitamins) which they contain, are destroyed. Certain oils, especially those from vegetable courses, contain traces of substances which tend to protect the oil from being exidized, and it is these substances that are being sought.

Professor Miller Changes Subject for Classic Talk

Prof. Frank J. Miller, who was to speak on the subject: A University without the Classics, in liberal arts building, room 110, Wednesday, June 27, has changed his subject to: "Virgil's Motivation of the Aenead," and will tell Virgil's reasons for writing it.

Professor Miller, emeritus of University of Chicago, has been at this University part of the time for the past three years. He was one of the original faculty members of the University of Chicago when that institution opened in 1892, and instructed there till 1925. For the past three years he has been visiting various Universities over the country, including the University of Iowa.

For 20 years he was editor of the Classical Journal, but resigned ta the last meeting, when Prof. Roy C. Flickinger, of this institution, was elected to the vacancy.

The Crime In The Crypt

By Carolyn Wells

While browsing through the crypt of an ancient English Cathedral, Mottram Oakley discovers the murdered body of Warren Glynn, a fellow American, carefully laid out in an old stone casket. Intrigued by the idea of "blood in a church" Oakley turns amateur sleuth. He seeks out wealthy John Clevedon, whom he had met while traveling and he too, has a passion for crime detection. Together they decide to work on the case. Clevedon't bad health limits his activities, however. Oakley wants to stay in England until the mystery is solved, but receives a very favorable offer of a secretaryship to Mr. Clevedon. He decides to continue traveling with the rich and rather eccentric man. As time goes on, Oakley learns many intimate little things about Clevedon's artistocratic family in America. He finds that his employer is planning to marry beautiful Vera Liddell when he returns to his native land. The party arrive at the Clevedon Estates in America; there is a great "welcome home" but Oakley is puzzled when Clevedon's mother dwells upon the fact that European travel seems to have changed her son considerably.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 24

A Silver Skewer

We were sitting in Mrs. Clevedon's own charming boudoir. I was received here occasionally, for the lady of the house had done me the honor to look on me as a friend, not as an employe of the household, and I was duly grateful.

I picked up the lovely picture and gazed at it. It was a painted minfature of one of the sweetest faces I had ever seen.

Something of the Greuze type, with fair hair and rosecleaf complexion, Vera Liddell's face was spiritual of expression, while the blue eyes showed a twinkle of humor.

"She is lovely!" I exclaimed. "I've seen other pictures of her, but this is the sweetest. Is she really as pretty as that?"

"Yes, I think so. And John adores her. They are a very happy pair."

"What an odd thing this is," I observed, idly, as I picked up from the table a long, silver blade, obviously used for a paper cutter, but quite evidently not made for that.

"That's an old English skewer," Mrs. Clevedon told me, with interest in her voice. "You know I love old silver. John brought it home to me. Just think, they used silver skewers in their great joints of roast beef. See the hallmark, it is a very old piece, and I adore it."

"Rather long and heavy for a paper cutter."

"Yes, I don't really use it, but I like it as a curio."

It was merely a plain silver blade, sharp pointed, but not sharp edged, with a ring fashioned at the end of it by which it could be drawn out of the roast meat. Its beauty lay in its plain simplicity and the hallmark proved its age and genuineness.

"They're hard to find now," Mrs. Clevedon told me. "They're mostly all bought up, you see. I told John before he went away how much I wanted one, and he got it for me in England."

I duly admired it, and then I asked:

"What about the other Miss Liddell, the younger sister? Is she as beautiful as Miss Vera?"

"Aha," Mrs. Clevedon laughed, "so you're already interested in her, are you, by gay young blade? Well, no, Mimi isn't as lovely as Vera, not half. She is a witch child; a black haired, dark skinned little tomboy, who hasn't found herself as yet. That is, she was like that last time I saw her; and I don't believe she has changed much. I've no picture of her, but she is just a flapper."

"Sounds rather attractive, though," I said, "I like flappers."

"Well, I don't," and the sound of a voice was followed into the room, by the speaker, Nurse Plum.

"The name is a curse! Flapper! Why call anybody a name like that?"

Clearly the nurse was in one of her belligerent moods. I saw at once that argument was not advisable, placation was my role.

"Oh, it's only a bit of slang," I said. "Queer, how such words get into the language and stick. You tell me, Miss Plum, about Mimi Liddell. Is she a nice child?"

"Nice child?" the nurse almost screamed. "No, she's not! She's the worst little vixen I ever knew!"

"You know her well, then?"

"Yes, I nursed her through an attack of measles, and a more forward patient I never had!"

"Oh, well, one must expect that in a youngster with the measles."

"Of course," Mrs. Clevedon broke in, anxious to shut off the tide of Miss Plum's vehemence. "And Mimi isn't a bad sort, really. Full of mischief, burning with curiosity about everything, and avidly eager for fun and frolic,—that's the worst one can say about Mimi."

"And enough, too," grunted the nurse, under her breath. "Now, Mr. Oakley, when do you propse to get at the books? Here you've dawdled away nearly a month since your arrival, and not a stroke of work done yet! What sort of librarian do you call yourself, I'd like to know!"

I had become accustomed to Miss Plum's sharp tongue, and I no longer minded her sarcasms.

And by a strange stroke of fortune, it had turned out that she too, was interested in old and rare books, and had sufficient knowledge of them to be of help to me in my cataloguo work.

I was ready to begin on the cataloguing, but Clevedon had held me back with the secretarial work he had me do.

He decided he could never learn to work a typewriter himself, so he dictated all his correspondence to me. And this, with his financial accounts and household bills and payrolls meant a lot of work for one of us, and as a rule it fell to me. For John was often out, either over at the Liddell home, or at parties nearby, or at his club, and so as the work had to be done or pile up, I kept the desk cleared.

But this left no time, so far, for the library. However, this did not bother Clevedon at all. He said, the library could wait, and even if it wasn't touched until after the wedding he didn't care.

Miss Plum was impatient, partly because she longed to get at the books, for the enjoyment of them, and partly ecause Clevedon had agreed to let her help me a certain number of hours each day, and receive extra remuneration therefor.

Mrs. Clevedon was better now, and didn't need a nurse's care continuously, so Miss Plum wanted to get busy on the books.

She had a book with her when she came into the room.

"Look," she cried, as she showed it to me. "Here is a First Edition of Gray's Elegy. Isn't it fine?"

"Yes," I said, "I was with Mr. Clevedon when he bought it."

She looked blank for a minute and then said:

"You must be thinking of some other book. This has been in his library for two years. I brought it up here just now, because I want to verify a quotation, and I couldn't seen to find an ordinary copy of the Elegy."

"Let me see it. Yes, Miss Plum, this is the book that Clevedon bought in London. I was with him, and he had to pause to remember whether or not he already had one."

"What nonsense!" she retorted, "that book has been in the library ever since I have been here, and long before, because, as you see, here's the date it was bought, on the slip inside. It came from the Porter Sale."

I took the book and looked at it carefully.

As the nurse said, it held a slip with date and price, and quite evidently she must be right. In that case, then, Clevedon had bought another First Edition of this same work in London.

"He forgot he had one, I suppose," I said, handing the volume back to her.

"People don't forget First Editions of such rarity," she snapped and I said no more. It was a queer incident, but it was none of my business. Maybe John wanted another copy to sell or to give to a friend.

But I seemed to remember his saying he had no duplicate of that book at home.

Well, I would ask him when the right time came.

Then Miss Plum shooed me away, for Mrs. Clevedon was expecting a new maid on trial, that night, and they must prepare for her.

"I know she'll be no good," Mrs. Clevedon wailed. "They don't have good ones any more."

"Perhaps she will," I encouraged her. "Maybe she'll be as good as Hilda."

"No she'll just be another filure."

"Oh, well, let's hope for the best," and I scurried out of the door Miss Plum was holding open for me.

Pell had told me that, behind her back, the servants called her Ugly Plum. I was not altogether surprised for now and then, she certainly could put on as ugly an expression as one might wish to see.

And she did so, now, as she urged me out of the room.

I gathered that she was angry about the new maid, or something I didn't know what. Nor did I care. The vagaries of Mrs. Clevedon and her satellites were too many for me, and I kept out of such matters all I could.

It was only when John asked me to look after something for his mother, that I came in contact with her at all.

I went straight down to the library, where, on some unused shelves were all the books we had brought from abroad. There were not many, perhaps fifty or sixty. And among them was the First Edition of Gray's Elegy, which Clevedon had bought in London.

Iwent up to his study, which was on the second floor, adjoining his bedroom and asked him about it.

"Did I have a copy?" he said, smiling. "Do you know, I thought I did, and then I thought the book I had in mind was "The Cottar's Saturday Night," I always get those two mixed up. Well, never mind, we can put it into an auction some time, and get twice what we paid for it."

"I think, if you don't mind," I said, "I'll begin on the library work, while Miss Liddell is here. You won't due much work yourself, and I'll look after the bills and correspondence, and have time left for some library work.

"Do just as you like about it, Mott. You're a cormorant for work. Of course I want you handy by, if I've social notes to write, or especial matters to attend to. But outside that, your time is your own. Why don't you take a good rest before you really settle down to work?"

"Oh, I'd rather take the work slowly, and take my resting spells now and then."

"All right, take it that way then. Just as you please. But I can't be bothered with it. You and Miss Plum go at it, and spend as much or as little time on it as you like. I believe mother is expectnig a new maid tonight. Pray heaven she suits, and then Miss Plum will have less to do."

"The nurse doesn't look over worked."

"No. One reason is, she gets so much sleep. You see, whether mother has a maid or not, Miss Plum will not attend her at night. She goes to her own room at ten o'clock, and nothing short of an earthquake would bring her out until morning."

"Doesn't Mrs. Clevedon need her at night?" I asked, in surprise.

"Of course, she ought to have some one. When she has a maid, she sleeps in the dressing room, and that makes it all right. But when she hasn't a maid, mother is alone. I've begged her to let one of the housemaids sleep in the dressing room, but she won't. She vows she doesn't need anybody, and I would feel easier about her to know some one is in attendance.

"Yes, but if there were any real necessity, I'm sure Miss Plum would fix it up somehow."

"Yes, of course, ugly Plum is a first class nurse."

"Hush, she'll hear you!" I warned him. "At any rate, I hope the new maid will prove good enough to be kept while your house party is on."

"Yes, indeed, so do I. The affair is growing bigger. Besides the Liddell girls, we now have six other guests coming."

"Fine! How did you ask them? I didn't write those notes for you."

"No, I did it all up by telephone. They're some people Vera wanted asked. A married pair, and a young man who are staying at their house. I fancy he's a flame of Mimi's. Then, a couple of chaps I know, and one of them is bringing his sister. So we'll have one or two real parties, they'll entertain themselves mostly. They like that best."

"All right," I said. "Call on me for anything I can do that you want done."

Wheat Upturns Cease

Better Conditions in Kansas Harvest Helps Lower Price

CHICAGO, June 22 (AP)—Prospective better harvest conditions in Kansas did much today to overcome wheat price upturns that accompanied big export business and more news about black rust. Houses with eastern connection led the selling which flattened the market out.

Wheat finished easy, ¼c to ⅜c net lower, corn unchanged to ⅜c@½c higher, oats varying from ¼c decline to ¼c advance, and provisions 2c down to 2c up.

Although export dealings in North American wheat today totalled 2,000,000 bu. most of the business was in wheat from Canada, and the fact was given attention that the Winnipeg market showed weakness toward the last. Meanwhile, bears were putting special stress on a forecast of fair skies for Kansas, although the general run of reports indicated that seevral days of dry weather will be needed before Kansas harvest work can get under way in good earnest. As a matter of fact, a decided bullish influence early was further crop damage reported in Kansas and Oklahoma by storms last night.

Corn held relatively strong, with July gaining on September and commanding about the best premium yet, a feature was gossip that some corn had been bought for export via the Gulf of Mexico, December shipment. Arrivals of corn today were small, only 70 cars here. Oats followed corn. July oats were firm on apparent likelihood of delayed harvest.

Corn displayed an upward trend early, there being no heavy pressure, while there was some short covering and moderate commission house demand. Primary arrivals were 513,000 bu., against 967,000 bu. a year ago. The cash demand was fair, and country sales extremely small. Omaha reported a good demand cash corn at relatively firm prices. Shipments from Chicago were 17,000 bu. Weather was showering and the crop outlook is fine in most sections. Argentine shipments were 8,243,000 bu.

Provisions were sustained by firmness in the hog market.

Price Changing; With Light Trading Lower Sale Volume

NEW YORK, June 22 (AP)—Trading was light and price changes small in the bond market today. Volume of sales again was less than $10,000,000. Utilities were inclined to heaviness and industrials were neglected, while a few of the leading rails sought slightly higher levels.

Further attention was called today to the treasury's offer to accept third Liberty 3½'s at 100 2-32 and accrued interest for an indefinite time through the federal reserve banks. Holdings of the issue are widely scattered and only about $75,000,000 of the treasury's proferred $125,000,000 for the issues has been taken up.

Rock Island 4's and Pennsylvania Gold 5's, each with a gain of a point or more, were prominent among rails.

U. S. government obligations were irregular.

Bobby Jones Retains Lead in National Open Golf Tournament

Atlanta Star Two Up on Von Elm; First Half Ends

Hagen Comes Back by Shooting Four Under Par

OLYMPIA FIELDS, Chicago, June 22 (AP)—The shot making kings of them all, the one and only Bobby Jones and that daring gambler in golf fortunes, Walter Hagen, stole the thunder of a stormy second round in the international open championship today.

When the bunkered brigade had finished the first half of the 72 hole test, Jones, after a brilliant par-equalling round of 71 today, stood two strokes in front of the field with a 36 hole total of 144.

"The Haig" Comes Back

The great Georgian, completing his round before a huge gallery just before the storm broke, was three strokes in front of Hagen, who rallied with the suddenness of the downpour to finish his incoming nine holes to the record-breaking tune of 32, four under par. "The Haig" thrilling the soaked and dilapidated gallery that stuck to his heels, served notice to his threat to Jones or any other title rival by finishing in 72 for a two day total of 147.

In between Jones and Hagen were two others who moved up into contending positions, George Von Elm, of Detroit and Bill Leach, Philadelphia "pro," each with totals of 146 while the British open king at 147, was tied by two more, Willie MacFarlane, 1925 champion, and Henry Ciuci, young Stratford, Conn., pro, who fell to 77 today after his dazzling 70 of the opening round.

Amateurs Drop Lead

With two amateur aces out in front, these were the leading half dozen in the field that was cut down tonight from around 140 to 65 survivors for the final 36 holes of the tournament tomorrow. Scores of 158 or better were necessary to remain in the battle for the crown now worn a bit shakily by Tommy Armour, the black Scot from Washington, who was seven strokes back of Jones tonight and on the brink of disaster.

It was a day of dazling, storm swept golf, filled with shattered hopes for such as John Ball, the Atlanta pro of Bobby Jones' home course, who blew up with an 81 after helping Ciuci set the pace with a 70 yesterday, and for such stars as "Light horse" Harry Cooper of Buffalo, runner up a year ago but among those eliminated tonight as he turned in a dismal 163.

Pirates Trim Reds 11-1 With 10 Runs in 2 Innings

PITTSBURGH, June 22 (AP) — The Pirates rushed ten runs home in the first two innings here today, and won easily over the Cincinnati Reds 11 to 1. Burleigh Grimes never eased up despite the comfortable lead he enjoyed.

Ray Kolp, Jim Joe Edwards and Jimmy Beckman were victims of the Pirate flurries in the first two rounds:

Score:

Cincinnati	000 000 010—	1	7 3
Pittsburgh	460 100 00x—11	5	0

Herron, Bartlett in State Golf Finals

DES MOINES, June 22 (AP)—Lee Herron of Sioux City, present titleholder, will risk his crown against Art Bartlett of Ottumwa in the thirty-six hole final of the state amateur golf tournament tomorrow.

Herron, flashing brilliant golf, today eliminated Ira Allen, of Davenport, with comparative ease, winning 9 up. Allen appeared to lack stamina under strain and cracked badly. The match ended on the eleventh hole of the afternoon round.

Bob McKee, local star and also a one time state amateur king played commendable golf against Bartlett, champion for several years, holding the Ottumwa shoemaker even in the morning round. McKee, however, faltered in the waning moments of the afternoon session and could never quite find himself to outstroke his opponent.

Today's semi-final matches were played over greens and fairways made sodden by last night's heavy rains.

A Couple of Jumpers

Ben Dally, Fulton, Mo.; and Alf, Doane college, Crete, Neb.

R. W. Haggard, Headlight A.C., St. Louis, seems to have the best chance in the running high jump according to advance dope on the field. The former Texan has jumped better than 6 feet, 7 inches and should beat the 6 feet, 1 inch mark set by W. F. Lyons in 1923. He will have plenty of competition from Sumner Brunk, Drake university; Joseph and Emil Kutilek, Omaha; Prince Barnes, Max Conrad and Elton Smith.

Gordon of Iowa

The broad jump record seems likely not to stand the assault put to it this afternoon. Chief among the entrants who will attempt to set a new record are Edward Gordon, University of Iowa freshman, who has a mark of 24 feet, 2 3-8 inches; C. Spangler, Missouri Valley conference broad jump champion; and S. T. McInerney, University of Kansas.

Cockrell, Parks, and Grady, all of whom have stepped the 100-yards in :09.8 seconds, are favorites in the 100-meter. In the 110-meter high hurdles Penquite and Trumble are doped to fight it out for first honors, while Hooper and Walking look good in the 1500-meters.

Other events in which new records are likely to be set this afternoon are the hammer throw; running hop, step, and jump; shot put; discus, and the 5-000 meter race. Ae record will be established in the 3,000-meter steeple chase, the event not having been run before.

No team scores will be kept but four places will be awarded in each event. The meet will get under way at 1:45 o'clock with the 100-meter dash preliminaries.

Proceeds of the midwestern sectional Olympic trials on Iowa field this afternoon will help to swell the fund for the defraying of the American athletes' expenses to the games at Amsterdam, it was announced by G. T. Bresnahan, local manager of the meet.

The money will be forwarded to the Olympic finance committee, of which John J. Raskob, New York city, is chairman. The amount of $400,000 will be necessary to send the American Olympic team abroad.

Olympic 10,000 Meter Trials Fail to Threaten Ritola Record

CINCINNATI, O., June 22 (AP)—The 10,000 meter run, only complete event on the opening program of the Allegheny Regional Olympic tryouts today, failed by a wide margin to develop any threat against the time of 30 minutes 23 1-5 seconds set by Willie Ritola of Finland in winning the Olympic race in 1924.

Rufus Tankins of Braddock, Pa., won the race by ten yards in 35 minutes, 9 1-4 seconds. Harold Bauer, Cleveland, was second, Ben West, Cincinnati Y.M.C.A. third. Finals in all other events will be run off tomorrow.

Coggeshall, Brown in Tennis Finals

DES MOINES, June 22 (AP)—The singles championship in the Iowa State tennis tournament will be competed for tomorrow by Harris Coggeshall of Des Moines and Wray Brown of St. Louis.

Brown advanced to the finals today when he eliminated George O'Connell of Chicago in straight sets, 6-1, 6-0, 6-2.

Coggeshall, Grinnell college star who won the Missouri championship last week, defeated Johnny Doeg of Santa Monica, Calif., 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Gladman, Greef, Women's Doubles, Wins Tennis Crown

The women's doubles championship was won by Marjorie Gladman of California, national girls champion, and Mary Greef of Kansas City, who downed Ruth Bailey, Missouri women's champion and Lottie Fuller of Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., 6-2, 6-4.

Doeg and O'Connell went into the men's doubles finals today by trouncing Coggeshall and George Struble, Missouri champions from Grinnell college, 6-0, 6-4, 6-3. Brown and Ted Eggman also of St. Louis, also qualified for the finals, by defeating the Chinese Davis Cup stars, Gordon Lum and Paul Kong, 6-4, 7-5, 6-4.

Bottomley Hits Sixteenth Homer as Cubs Beat St. Louis

CHICAGO, June 22 (AP)—Bottomley of the St. Louis nationals hit his sixteenth home run of the season today after the Cardinals already had won a six inning game from the Cubs, 4 to 1. His circuit clout connected with Frisch on base in the seventh inning, but a sudden deluge of rain stopped the game and washed his hit off the records, So, tonight, his home run record still stands at 15.

American Davis Cup Team Leads

EASTBOURNE, England, June 22 (AP)—George Lott and Johnny Hennessey, American Davis cup players, put the United States into the lead in the international team matches against England here today by winning a hard-fought doubles encounter from L. A. Godfree and I. G. Collins, 8-10, 6-1, 3-6, 7-5.

The doubles victory gives the American team a 2 to 1 lead over the British in the team matches.

LONDON, June 22 (AP)—Another great day for the members of the American Davis cup team resulted in an all American final for the London championships, to be played tomorrow at the Queens club. Junior Coen, 16-year-old American star, who has become the idol of the English tennis enthusiasts, put up a plucky battle against his captain, William T. Tilden, but lost in straight sets, 6-2, 6-2.

In the final Tilden will meet his teammate and doubles partner, Francis T. Hunter, who reached the final by eliminating the Australian Davis cup layer, Hopman, 6-4, 7-5.

At least half of the doubles final will be an American affair, Hunter and Tilden, the Wimbledon champions reached the final bracket today by winning two matches, defeating the brilliant French pair, Rene La Coste and Henri Cochet, 6-1, 6-4, then eliminating the Irish Davis cup doubles team of F. Scroope and Captain O'Callaghan after a bitter three set battle in the semi-final, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Californians Play Newsboys by Air

Golfers on Western Coast Get Rapid Service

Chicago morning papers in San Francisco by 4 p.m. of the same day may seem like unusual service, but J. R. Miller and Marcus M. Baruth, passengers on the west bound mail plane last night, intend to give their friends in the west real service for once at least.

When they stopped at the local port last night, they showed several editions of Chicago papers which they intend to drop on the Sesqual country club course there this afternoon.

The men are textile manufacturers from San Francisco, and have been traveling through the eastern parts of the country. They were forced to make a rapid trip home, and so chose the air mail planes.

They report a late spring in most parts of the country, and estimate that the cotton crop will be at least a month late.

Both men were enthusiastic with tarveling by air, and said riding was smooth last night. It was Mr. Baruth's first trip, but Mr. Miller has been using planes for several months to make fast business trips.

Murder Mystery Takes New Turn

LOS ANGELES, June 21 (AP)—The John I. Glab killing mystery took a new turn today. An hour before Glab's widow and Ethel Koser, her niece, were to appear for arraignment on murder charges, information was produced that a strange automobile was driven up to the Glab home in Van Nuys a minute or so before the former Chicago druggist was shot.

Detectives examined statements tending to break down the story of Miss Kaser that she and her aunt were playing cards in the house at the time of the shotting. A grocer whose name was not divulged, told officers that the 17 year old girl, who was visiting at the Glab home from Oklahoma City, was in his store making purchases shortly before the time police believe the shot was fired.

Another bit of information that Mrs. Glab herself was the last to drive the car which Glab apparently was about to enter as he was killed came in for police scrutiny. The widow, central figure in a former shooting and other escapades, was reported to have parked the car near the big home some time during the evening Monday.

Girl Scouts Open Camp as 40 Start Real Outdoor Life

When Camp Cardinal, the girl scout camp, opens at Gray's ford tomorrow afternoon, 40 registered scouts will begin a week or more of real outdoor life.

The camp day begins at 6:45 a.m. and breakfast, inspection, court of honor, and "sing" are the most important events of the morning schedule. The remaining hours of the day are occupied with dinner, rest hour, swiming, flag lowering, supper and camp fire. The day closes when taps are blown at 9:15 p.m.

All camp rules must be strictly obeyed and upon registeration each girl agrees to live according to the girl scout laws. The applications for enrollment are the written approval and consent of each girl's parent or guardian.

The time of camp is divided into four periods of one week each. A scout may register for any number of the periods she wishes or for the entire time. The camp fee is $6.50 a week for Iowa City girls and $9 for out of town girls.

Lightning Cuts Off Light, Power; Hits Tree at Pre-school

During the rainstorm yesterday morning lightning struck a guy wire holding a trolley wire on Washington street in front of the Bell Telephone building.

A brilliant ball of fire passed down the wire and was grounded, according to persons who saw the spectacle. For a few minutes the light and power of the city was shut off as a result of the bolt.

Hits Near School

When a bolt of lightning struck a huge cottonwood in front of the pre-school home laboratory, 12 E. Bloomington, the flying bark and splinters broke windows and dented pillars in the building. Chunks of wood were thrown for fifty feet.

School was in session and although none of the children were stading in front of the windows at the time of the crash, they were badly scared.

Explosion Kills Eight

BRUGES, Belgium, June 22 (AP)—An explosion attributed to a bursting shell among scrap metal in a storehouse tonight caused the deaths of eight persons and injury to 40 others. The building and all houses in the neighborhood were wrecked.

Johnson Becomes Head

DES MOINES, June 22 (AP)—C. C. Johnson, Des Moines, was elected Grand Commander of the Negro Knights Templar of Iowa, Minnesota, and Nebraska tonight. The organization voted to hold its next conclave in Waterlo during June 1929.

HOW HOOVER CARVED OUT A CAREER

Here is a picture of the repubican nominee for president as he appear today against a backgroud nof his own romantic career. The boy Hoover had few opportunities in life that he did not make for himself. He was born poor, worked his way through college and then, with a mining engineer's degree, he started out to conquer his world. Louis Biedermann, famous artist, graphically illustrates the many-sided man who is better known for his achievements than any other living American.

Materials Arrive for Legion Building; Construction to First Floor Finisned

Practically all material for the exterior of the new American Legion building has arrived, Prof. B. J. Lambert of the college of engineering, superintendent of the building, announced yesterday.

All mason and carpentry work up to the first floor has been finished and the work is progressing rapidly. It is hoped to have the building enclosed in nearly three weeks.

The building, when completed will have four floors, basement, mezzanine, first floor and second floor.

Drill Hall in Basement

The basement will contain a drill hall and gymnasium 50 by 80 feet with a 20-foot ceiling. This room will be used by the national guard companies of the city. Leading off from the drill hall will be four storage rooms for use by the companies. In the northeast corner of the basement will be the boiler room and fuel bins. The walls of the boiler room and ceiling are all of reinforced concrete in order to make the room as nearly fireproof as possible, Professor Lambert said.

A regulation handball court will also be in the basement and shower rooms for both men and women. The handball court is 20 by 40 feet with a 20-foot ceiling and is the only regulation handball court in Iowa City.

Two Dining Rooms

The mezzanine floor will have two dining rooms, one which will seat 250 persons and another with a capacity of 25 persons. There will be a concession room on this floor which Professor Lambert said will be equipped with a soda fountain, cigar counter, and other accomodations for the public.

Besides the dining rooms, this floor will house the kitchens, offices for officers of the national guard companies, and balconies overlooking the drill hall and handball court. There will also be a men's rest room on this floor.

Has Commerce Rooms

The memorial lobby with entrance on Gilbert street, will be on the first floor. Leading off from the right of the lobby will be a general assembly room and on the left will be the chamber of commerce rooms with offices for six chamber of commerce officials.

The east end of the first floor wil be occupied by the auditorium, which is 80 by 90 feet. In one corner of the auditorium will be an orchestra alcove and in another will be the serving room. Service will be given from the kitchen by means of dumb waiters connecting directly with the serving room.

Room for Auto Show

The entrance into the auditorium from the northeast corner has been made wide enough to accommodate an automobile, Professor Lambert said, making it possible to hold an automobile show or similar display in the main auditorium.

The second floor of the building will be used by the legion, legion auxiliary, and will house the offices of the various legion officials. There will be a legion room on this floor which, according to Professor Lambert, will be connected with the kitchen by dumb waiters making it possible to use this room for banquets. The dimensions of the room are 28 by 50 feet. There will also be a stereoptican room on this floor for general use.

Professor Lambert stated that it was thought the building would be ready for occupancy by November 1.

Roy Zinkula Seized on Charge of Theft

Roy Zinkula, 17 years old, of 431 S. Dodge street, was arrested Thursday night by Officers Berenak and Sedivec in an Essex sedan, owned by Will J. Hayek which had been taken from St. Wencesiaus church a few minutes before.

Zinkula was taken before Justice Elias J. Hughes yesterday morning by County Attorney C. B. Russell where he pleaded not guilty and was released on a $500 bond for hearing Monday morning at 9 a.m.

Patterson Receives Fine for Detention

Bruce Patterson, was the only offender to appear before Justice B. F. Carter yesterday. He was fined $1 and costs for wrongful detention of a storage battery.

The law says that it is a misdemeanor to retain a rented storage battery for more than thirty days. The punishment for such an offense is not more than a $100 fine or more than 30 days in jail.

First Lady Mails Letters; Attracts Citizens of Brule

Brule, Wis., June 22 (AP)—Out for her first ride since her arrival here, Mrs. Coolidge electrified this little hamlet today by driving to the local post office from Cedar Island lodge to mail some letters.

Not realizing immediately who the occupant of the great automobile was, the inhabitants were at first attracted more by the car than by the quiet, smiling, unassuming woman who, surrounded by four leaping dogs, stepped out of it. Then realizing that despite the absence of ceremony she actually was Mrs. Coolidge, all the villagers, two hundred strong, gathered about the general store which also acts as post office.

With a quick wave of her hand and ready smile, Mrs. Cooldige drove away before the crowd had hardly had time to give one cheer.

"North Star" Takes Air

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., June 22 (AP)—The monoplane North Star, recently purchased by Mrs. Anne U. Stillman for Thea Rasche, German aviatrix, took the air tonight with William Winston, Curtiss pilot, at the controls, and headed for an unannounced destination.

Short Skirts Do Not Hurt Morals of Young Folks

IOWA CITY, June 22 (AP)—Romantic movie fadeouts and depiction of briefly costumed charactors will not harm children's morals, Dr. W. E. Blatz, assistant professor of psychology at the University of Toronto, told the closing session of the state conference on child development and parent education here today.

Ultra-love making scenes either make no impression whatever on youthful audiences, or are greeted with jeers, he said.

Older folks, Dr. Blatz believes are apt to get more "kick out of abreviated costumes" than the young people, who he said take legs and arms "as a matter of course".

Reports on round tables dealing with the physical development of the child, mental hygiene of the childhood, the family and the hme, and the family and the community, were given at the closing session of the conference.

Rabbi Berman to Speak Tomorrow

Rabbi Morton M. Berman of Davenport will be the principle speaker tomorrow at 8 p.m. at a special meeting of the Agudas Achim congregation, 432 S. Clinton street, in the interests of the United Palestine appeal, a fund which is being raised for the building of Palestine.

J. Braverman, chairman of the drive locally, siad last night that there will be several other speakers on the program besides the rabbi. A. Abramson is secretary of the fund here and Sam Worton is treasurer. The amount for Iowa is $60,000.

Minister Urges Peace

WATERLOO, June 22 (AP)—Another war would wreck civilization, delegates to the convention of the Iowa Christian Endeavor were told today by the Rev. Albert W. Palmer, of the First Congregational church of Oak Park, Ill., who urged total renunciation of war as the first and fundamental step in promoting international friendship.

Negro Taken From Hospital, Lynched

HOUSTON, Texas, June 22 (AP)—Indictments charging murder were returned here today against six men accused of having lynched Robert Powell, 24 year old Negro, alleged slayer of City Detective A. W. Davis.

A. B. Wheeler, 26 years old, boilermaker, who made a statement to the police admitting he participated in the lynching and naming the others, was not indicted.

The Negro was taken from a hospital, where he was being treated for wounds received in a gun fight with the slain officer, and hanged from a bridge outside the city early last Wednesday.
