Coolidge Explains Aid for Hoover During Convention

President Will Take Passive Part in Fall Election

SUPERIOR, Wis., July 31 (AP)—President Coolidge's chief part in Secretary Hoover's campaign for the presidency will be to continue to so conduct public affairs as to appeal to the electorate and move them to return the republican party to power in November.

Apart from this Mr. Coolidge has agreed to undertake no special activities in the course of the campaign.

His contributions to Mr. Hoover's campaign, the chief executive feels antedate the commerce secretary's nomination as republican standard bearer, inasmuch as ever since he was sworn in as president of the United States on Aug. 2, 1923, Mr. Coolidge has always striven to give the country a government which worked to the voter's satisfaction and benefit.

Calvin Coolidge

Continue Policy

Mr. Coolidge will continue pursuing such a policy for the rest of his term of office. Inasmuch as Mr. Coolidge was assured by Chairman Work of the national republican committee that continuation of the present administration's policies would be made the chief issue in the campaign by Secretary Hoover, the chief executive feels that he can best enhance the prestige of the republican party by persisting in policies which up to now have appeared to him to have proved themselves popular.

It was thought here that Mr. Coolidge, in addition to such passive aid in the campaign, will be ready to help more actively from time to time, as occasion may suggest, to the extent of his power.

On account of the shortness of the next session of congress, Mr. Coolidge sees little opportunity to inaugurate any new policy at this late hour in the life of his administration. For this reason he believes that it will be impossible for congress upon reconvening next December to revise the tariff act so as to increase protection on agricultural products. It was indicated, however, that Mr. Coolidge would oppose on principle a move to raise such schedules.

Tariff Revision Unlikely

The only way in which such a tariff revision could be accomplished in a short session, Mr. Coolige feels, would be for leaders of both parties to agree beforehand on the amendments to be introduced. Such an agreement in a campaign year is impossible, according to the chief executive, and while possible after elections is still unlikely.

In the course of a call from Vice Governor E. A. Gilmore of the Philippine Islands today, President Coolidge received an encouraging report as to the economic and social advancement of the natives and heard promises of likely future harmony between the American authorities and the Philippine legislature.

The president definitely decided today to attend the Wisconsin state convention of the American Legion at Wausau probably an Aug. 15. He will undertake an overnight trip from Superior, returning the following day, after delivering a short address.

Lind Reports on Radio Chemistry

EVANSTON, Ill., July 31 (AP)—The wizardy of radio chemistry in wielding light natural gases into the heaviest of oil for making clear white gasoline from dark dirty petroleum was described before the institute of chemistry at Northwestern university tonight by Dr. Samuel C. Lind, director of the school of chemistry at the University of Minnesota and former director of the bureau of mines.

"Radio chemistry," explained Doctor Lind, "Is a new tool in the hands of man kind, speeding up chemical changes in the transformation of substances and bringing about great savings in time and money."

"By using radio chemistry, various kinds of short wave-length light rays, such as the ultra violet and x-rays, are brought into action to bring about more rapid direct chemical changes needed in making oils from gas and gasoline from petroleum," Doctor Lind said.

"To use a slang expression, we can now 'jazz up' molecules by radio chemistry so that their different atoms are separted from each other or united more quickly, as the case may be."

"Large molecules in petroleum are cracked up by radio chemistry into the small molecules found in gasoline. Hydrogen and nitrogen molecules are brought together to form ammonia, radio chemistry being the tool in each instance."

Tunney Retires After Ten Years in Boxing Game

Heavyweight Champ Withdraws From Profession

NEW YORK, July 31 (AP)—As dramatically as he entered the boxing game ten years ago, Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion, stepped down from his throne today and back into private life—finished with the ring forever.

Amid surrounding that lend every aid to his desire to retire "as gracefully as possible" from the game that has made him an international figure, grown to a giant in strength and size, and a millionaire, since that desperate day ten years ago when he sought a fight in order to eat, the big marine, with a husky note in his voice, told fifty newspapermen and friends that he was through.

Rumors Circulate

For days rumors had circulated that Tunney's final ring engagement took place in the Yankee stadium last Thursday night when Tom Heeney, best of the present crop of challengers, succumbed to the champion's merciless power and ring mastery in eleven rounds. But Gene refused to confirm these stories until he stood today at the side of William Muldoon, the 82-year old New York state boxing commissioner and "grand old man of sport" to talk to those who had gathered in the ancient's honor.

Then standing, before the luncheon table, Gene looked down on the faces of newspapermen and intimate friends who had followed his career from the day he entered the professional ranks, fresh from service overseas in the marine corps, a moderate sized youth unable to find a job anywhere else. In his ears were ringing the words the snow haired Commissioner Muldoon, erect and solid for all his 82 years, had just uttered, in awarding to the heavyweight king a bronze trophy, "Gene Tunney, champion of champions."

Retires at Greatest Moment

Gene seemed to fight for control of his voice and features as he said in a low voice, hardly heard through the room, "This is the greatest moment of my life, greater even than the night I won the heavyweight championship at Philadelphia two years ago. I am retiring from that honor with reluctance."

Slowly and carefully, choosing his words with precision, the first heavyweight champion to retire since Jim Jefferies vaintly tried to put the ring behind him, went on to explain that he wished to leave no impression that there was anything wrong in the situation or that he felt he was bigger than the game itself. As he talked his assurance came back to him and he spoke clearly and forcibly.

"I have won the highest prize in boxing," he said. "I have defended it against the man from whom I won it and then against the best opponent a long series of eliminations could produce. I feel now that I am entitled to give it up in the most graceful manner possible."

BOSTON, July 31 (AP)—Jack Dempsey, whom Gene Tunney dethroned as heavyweight champion, does not think Gene is serioun in his announced retirement from the boxing game an undefeated champion.

Dempsey, who arrived here today as announcer at the Schaafmays bout at Braves field tonight, expressed the belief that Tunney would enter the ring again should the occasion demand it.

"It is a shame that Tunney is quitting just now when he is at the top of his fighting career," the Manassa mauler said. "I can say, however, that Gene's retirtment will not affect my own plans in any way."

Dempsey, who also is supposed to be on the retired list, did not appear to be very sure that he was through with the game for keeps. He declared, however, that he had no immediate fistic plans.

"If I do fight again it will not be this year," he said.

Wharton, Cleaver Trial Comes to Final Arguments

CHICAGO, July 31 (AP)—The trail of former Congressman Charles S. Wharton and Charles "Limpy" Cleaver, on charges growing out of the Evergreen Park mail robbery last February, progressed through the final arguments today after both sides abruptly rested shortly before noon.

Attorney Wharton won a point when Assistant District Attorney John E. Northrup withdrew four of the seven counts against him. State Senator James J. Barbour moved quashing the three remaining counts but this was denied by Federal Judge James J. Wilkerson. Wharton did not take the stand in his own defense.

Conviction of charges against them would carry a maximum penitentiary sentence of 25 years in Cleaver's case and five years and a fine of $10,000 in Wharton's case.

Italians Welcome Polar Explorers

Crowds Meet Trains, Shower Gifts on Homecomers

ROME, July 31 (AP)—"Vivi Nobile" was the slogan of Italy today as country men of the polar explorer welcomed him and five other survivors of the dirigible Italia to their home land. Enormous crowds met the train at each stop in Italian territory throughout the day, showering the returning explorers with flowers and gifts of wine and shaking rafters of railway stations with their roars of encouragement.

The demonstrations constituted a veritable march of triumph from the northern frontier and offered a sharp contrast to the cold receptions or incipient hostile demonstrations which have marked the homeward journey at several places in northern Europe.

Demonstration at Florence

Premier Mussolini sent the Prefect of Bolzano to welcome Nobile and his men at the Brenner pass in the name of fascist Italy. Hearted by this concrete evidence of the support of their government, members of the party were further delighted by the outbursts of enthusiasm that greeted them at every stop. There were striking demonstrations at Trento, Verona, Florence, and Bologna.

Lieut. Alfredo Viglero, navigator of the dirigible Italia and who was in command of the red tent encampment of the ice after Nobile himself was rescued, was the center of a demonstration all his own. He left the train soon after passing the frontier and went to his home in the little town of Borgretto Santo Spirito. Enroute, however, he had to stop at Milan, the city from which the Italians departed for the north.

Admiral Camperio Welcomes

The Prefect of Milan and an enormous crowd welcomed him, the officials embracing him and kissing him on both cheeks in the name of the entire population of the city. Women and girls covered him with flowers and Admiral Camperio, whose wife was Eleanor Terry, daughter of Admiral Silas W. Terry, U. S. N., presented Viglieri with a basket of fruit and champagne decorated with ribbons in the colors of the Italian navy.

The crowd shouted "Viva Viglieri" and "Viva Nobile" ond added: "Down with the jackals of the Italian press."

Police Padlock Clubs

NEW YORK, July 31 (AP)—Prohibition padlocks were attached today to the barrooms of six night clubs, including the Salon Royal, managed by Texas Guinan. The clubs were among the 18 mentioned in indictments returned yesterday against 147 defendants. Thirty-one additional dfendants were named in other indictments today against eight more night clubs.

Zion Slain After Election Frauds

Man Released Under Bond Dies Before Investigation

CHICAGO, July 31 (AP)—The slaying of Bennie Zion, 20th ward hoodlum and alleged political henchman of Morris Eller, ward committeeman and republican leader, today was added to the list of crimes arising from election day frauds and disorder now under investigation by a special grand jury.

Zion, himself under indictment on nine different counts charging kidnapping, assault and murder, was slain early today a few hours before Morris Eller appeared before the special investigators under subpoena to tell what he knew of the election day violence in the bloody 20th.

It was in this ward, Eller's own, that Octavius Granady, Negro candidate, opposing Eller was shot to death on election day, and Zion was one of those accused of killing him. But four bullets in his body today removed Zion from further connection with any election day troubles. His body was found in an alley back of a west side saloon, an ice man noticing it partly buried under a pile of rubbish. Police said the slaying had apparently taken place in the saloon, the killers dragging Zion's body to the refuse heap.

Authorities characterized Zion's slaying as a "warning from those pulling the strings that it isn't healthy to squak."

Zion had obtained his release under the indictments against him by providing bonds of less than $100,000 after they had been reduced from $220,000.

Eller appeared as scheduled before the grand jury this afternoon but what, if anything, he told the investigators was not given out.

Veteran Democrat Slightly Improved; Condition Serious

CHICAGO, July 31 (AP)—The condition of George Brennan, democratic national committeeman for Illinois, although described as "still very serious" was reported improved tonight.

Dr. C. R. G. Forester, one of the staff of attending physicians said his patient had "a fighting chance to pull through."

Yesterday the veteran democratic leader underwent an operation for septic poisoning brought on by an infected tooth. Early today his condition began to improve and the hope was entertained that he would recover.

Lindbergh Forced Down

EAST VAUGHN, N. M., July 31 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who landed here last night because of engine trouble, proably will be delayed here two or three days until motor parts can be sent to him from Santa Barbara, Calif. He took off from Los Angeles about noon yesterday.

Talks at Outdoor Life Conference Interpret Nature

Mrs. Henry Frankel Advocates More State Parks

A plea for the development, appreciation, and conservation of state parks was made by Mrs. Henry Frankel, a member of the state board of conservation, on the opening day of the fourth annual Outdoor Life School of instruction.

"Iowans would not move to California if they could see the beauty spots in their own state," said Mrs. Frankel. She continued, "We have been the leader in the state park movement, and now have 39 state parks occupying thousands of acres, with scenery rivaling anything to be found in this country. Some of the most beautiful parks are: Wildcat Den, near Muscatine; Lacey-Keosauqua, near Keosauqua; and Backbone park, near Lamont."

The conference was opened yesterday afternoon by Prof. Bohumil Shimek in the senate chamber of Old Capitol with a presentation of its plans and purposes. Mrs. Frank gave a brief resume of the nature study work in the Des Moines schools, and Prof. Charles R. Keyes of Cornell college gave a short bird lecture.

Portrays Beauty of Scenery

Mrs. Frankel's talk on "What our state parks offer" was the principal address at the evening session. She painted word pictures of a number of Iowa river towns portraying them as picturesque and colorful, revaling any New England village. Mrs. Frankel strongly advocated converting miles of bluffs along the Mississippi river into state or national parks. Some of the parks contain historic landmarks, which are being preserved as examples of early Iowa pioneer life.

Professor Lazell Speaks

An illustrated talk by Prof. Frederick J. Lazell, on bird photography, followed Mrs. Frankel's speech. Professor Lazell showed a number of pictures revealing the intimate life and habits of native birds. He told why the great horned owl is a benefactor to the farmer, rather than a pest, that the crow develops a love song at nesting time, and why the nighthawk has such a bad disposition.

Today's session begins with a morning bird walk conducted by Professor Lazell at 5:30 o'clock and at 1 o'clock Prof. L. H. Pammel will give an illustrated lecture on "The Everglades of Florida." A general field trip at 2 o'clock, starts from the east steps of Old Capitol. The evening conference will begin at 7 o'clock in room 314 of the pharmacy-botany building.

Students Discover Ancient Cliff Ruins

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 31 (AP)—Discovery of ancient cliff ruins in the unexplored wilds of southern Utah is reported in a telegram to the Milwaukee Journal today from Clyde Kluckhohn, Lemars, leader of a band of five University of Wisconsin students seeking archeological lore under auspices of the Garwood foundation, New York.

The explorers also have found the mouth of Nasja Creek, never accurately charted before. The creek which rises near Navajoa, mountain, on the Arizona-Utah boundary, flows through canyons, delves in underground channels ad flows over steep falls. The five young men found the mouth at the San Juan river near the San Juan's conflux with the Colorado.

In his message, Kluckhohn says that three cliff ruins were found on the San Juna, and to the best of his knowledge are the first to be discovered on the San Juan after it enters the gorge. On the upper Nasja, 16 ruins were found in a side canyon.

Bell Company to Build New Structure in Next Year

Property on the southeast corner of Burlington and Linn streets was deeded to the Bell Telephone company yesterday in an instrument filed in the county recorder's office.

The telephone company is to build a large office building soon, although no definite date for starting work has been announced from the headquarters.

The place has been known as the N. F. Schmitt property, and was occupied by a large brick apartment house and one smaller building.

Exact details of the new structure planned by the telephone company are not known, except that it is to be large enough to house all of the company's equipment, including the new automatic switchboards and apparatus.

All supplies ,with the exception of poles, is to also be contained in the new building. Work will be started so that the place will be ready for occupancy within a year.

The building will also house the repeaters for the transcontinental system of the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

The property has a frontage of 150 feet on E. Burlington street and 80 feet on S. Linn street.

Democrats Confer on Farm Problem

NEW YORK, July 31 (AP)—George Nelson Peek, of Moline, Ill., chairman of eleven northwest states' committee of the republican party bolters, today conferred with John G. Raskob, democratic national chairman, on the political situation in the agricultural states.

Plans for organizing the farm states were discussed at great detail at the conference which was attended by United States Senator Peter G. Gerry, of Rhode Island, chairman of the democratic advisory committee; Collonel Hert H. Lehman, democrat finance director; Supreme Court Justice Joseph M. Proskauer, and Gray Silver, Martingsburg, W. Va., former legislative representative at Washington of the American farm bureau.

Peek, who supported the candidacy of former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois for the republican presidential nomination bolted the Herbert Hoover group over the party's farm plank.

Today's conference in the new Smith headquarters at the General Motors building was to lay groundwork for a campaign that will bring disgruntled midwestern republican farmers into the Smith camp.

O'Connor Plans Ocean Service

NEW YORK, July 31 (AP)—Completion of tests on a model of a seaplane designed to carry 60 passengers across the north Atlantic ocean in 20 hours was announced today by the O'Connor trans-Atlantic airways, inc.

Present plans call for construction work to begin immediately and to be completed in four months. The O'Connor company has been organized to develop a project looking to the establishment of trans-Atlantic and coastwise South American and Bermuda routes.

The proposed plane is the invention of John P. O'Connor, of New York. It will have a wing spread of 160 feet and will weigh 70,000 pounds under full load. Its power plant will consist of eight air-cooled motors, two of which will be held in reserve. Entirely new principles in structural design are to be used, Mr. O'Connor said, which "will make possible the carrying of the large fuel load necessary to cross the ocean and at the same time to carry pay loads."

In the event of unexpected motor trouble and a forced landing it was said the finished plane will be in every way seaworthy even in a severe north Atlantic storm.

College Seniors Best Spellers

College seniors are more than ten per cent more accurate spellers than high school seniors of Iowa in negotiating the 268 most difficult words among the 5,000 commonly used in writing.

This has been discovered by Dr. Harry V. Masters whose findings have been published by the University of Iowa college of education.

Average accuracy for these words was 86.53 per cent for college seniors in eleven Iowa institutions, 76.75 per cent for high school seniors, and 49.67 per cent for eighth grade pupils. Forty-one public school systems cooperated in the study.

By the application of four spelling rules which cover fifty-one of the words, the students of each grade level would have avoided from 20 to 27 per cent of errors, Doctor Masters reports.

He made a special cliassification of frequent errors at the eighth grade level and found that one-third of the errors were due to confusion and substitution of letters, and that one-fourth are credited to omission of letters. Erros in doubling account for one-fifth of the mistakes.

The most frequent forms of misspelling at one grade level tend to be the most frequent forms at the other grade levels.

Rioting Lessens With Arrest of Strike Leaders

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., July 31 (AP)—Made virtually leaderless by the commitment to jail today of the leaders of textile mill committee organizers on charges of rioting, pickets at mill gates tonight had lost some of the militancy that characterized their actions during the past 20 hours.

Only one arrest was reported tonight in contrast with the total of 250 last night which was followed by a threat of 10,000 strikers and sympathizers to storm police headquarters to release prisoners.

The arrest tonight was that of a woman who refused to move at the Whitman mill.

While Judge Frank A. Milliken was continuing a session of district court into the evening, to clear the docket of 250 cases resultant from las tnight's disorder, the pickets centered their activities at the Whitman and Achushnet mills, where crowds averaging about 4,000 each, gathered to look on at comparatively small picket lines. The lines were composed mostly of women and children and police made no effort to disperse them.

Obregon's Slayer Admits Influence

Nun Denies Statement of De Leon Toral Before Court

MEXICO CITY, July 31 (AP)—Jose de Leon Toral, assassin of President-elect Alvaro Obregon, admitted in testimony before a criminal court today that nun conception "indirectly influenced" him in his deed.

His hearing before a court today marked the first step in the legal procedure which is aimed at trial and punishment for the assassination of the president elect. It took place before "the preliminary court of first instance," of the town of San Angel, where the crime was committed, and suburb of Mexico City.

Toral refused an attorney but the court appointed two lawyers to defend him.

Toral's only comment on the procedure was that he had no defense to offer.

In the questioning which followed he asserted vehemently that "nobody on earth" knew his intention prior to the assassination itself. Further questioning elicited the statement that he had been "indirectly influenced" by the nun, Conception Acedo de la Lata,, who is being held in connection with the case.

This statement is, after a fashion, contradictory to his contention all along that no one had influenced him in the least, and followed a denial by the nun herself that she had done so.

It has not yet been decided whether the preliminary hearing will be followed by a formal trial or whether there will be an interval or whether the trial will be held in San Angel or in nearby Mexico City.

Gift of $50,000 to Lord Inchcafe to Provide Sufferers

LONDON, July 31 (AP).—A gift of $50,000 has been made by Lord Inchcape to provide for others who might suffer from disaster in which his daughter, the Honorable Elsie Mackay, perished with Captain Walter Hinchcliffe. They were lost on an attempt to fly the Atlantic from east to west.

The money was put at the disposal of Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchaequor. He was given absolute discretion as to its use and he has handed it to the public trustee "for administration accordingly."

While Captain Hinchcliffe's widow was not mentioned by name in the announcements, the sum is understood to have been given in response to her claims that there was moral obligation on Lord Inchcape to provide for her because the whole scheme of the flight came from Miss Mackay.

Mrs. Hinchcliffe is about at the en dof her resources and unless help comes will be obliged to leave her home, she said.

Gerry Plum Talks at State Conclave

Addresses made by Mayor C. V. Findley, Ft. Dodge; Gerry Plum, Iowa City, chancellor commander; Ward Ferguson, Des Moines, grand keeper of the records; R. R. Hibbs, Marengo, past grand chancellor, and Mrs. Hazel Robinson, Glenwood, grand chief of Temple sisters, auxiliary of the Pythians.

English, French Sends U.S. Plans for Disarmament

Hope for Success of Agreement From Washington

PARIS, July 31 (AP)—Questions on which the United States and Great Britain did not agree at the three power naval conference at Geneva, appear to be involved in the naval compromise agreement which has been reached between France and Great Britain.

The British conception of the size of cruisers is understood to be an important part of the agreement. The size of guns is left out although this question appears conditioned by the size of the cruisers.

The negotiations were brought about by frequent mention of American naval convictions, but both sides are described as endeavoring to avoid anything which might annoy the government of the United States. Some objection, however, is expected from Washington on the clause relating to the size of cruisers, both the British and French conceptions being for small cruisers rather than large ones. The agreement in no way touches the size or length of life of capital ships.

The text of the agreement already has been dispatched to the American government. The French superior council of national defense approved the final draft of the plan two weeks ago and it was initialed in London last Saturday.

The foreign office tonight made public a note explaining that the French and British governments began a search for an acceptable compromise which they have now reached in order to continue the work that broke down when the powers found themselves in discord in discussions provoked by the league of nations' preparatory commission for disarmament.

The Franco British compromise formula proposed as a solution of the naval disarmament deadlock in which the preliminary disarmament conference of Geneva is enmeshed probably will prove acceptable to the United States as a member of that conference.

In advance of a study of the forthcoming British communications on the subject, government spokesman appeared today to see no objection to the plan and they anticipated it would result in the reconvening of the Geneva preliminary conference, probably in the fall.

The terms of the Franco-British understanding are believed in a general way to agree with the French theory that an all embrasive naval tonnage total be assigned to each power under the projected universal disarmament, or rather limitation of disarmament, treaty, for which the league of nations hopes to pave the way through the deliberations of the preliminary conference. To reconcile this with the British point of view, also shared at Geneva by the United States and Japan, France is willing it is understood, that a specific construction program for each category of combat ships within the limit of the total or global tonnage allotment shall be laid down by treaty.

The construction treaty, however, whether incorporated in a general disarmament project which would include land as well as sea armaments, or handled as a separate treaty matter, would be effective only for a definite period of time, such as ten years, within which each nation would agree not to exceed the specific tonnage in any category.

Senator Curtis to Remain in Kansas Until Late August

TOPEKA, July 31 (AP)—Hoping to obtain what rest he can before his campaign gets under way, Sen. Charles Curtis, republican vice presidential nominee, returned home today to await formal notification ceremonies here August 18.

Senator Curtis' return to Topeka was the second trip he has made to his home city since his nomination. A few hours after his selection by the republican national convention, he made a trip from Kansas City to spend a few days here before returning to Washington and the east.

Senator Curtis, who appeared to be in excellent health said his rest in Rhode Island had helped him and that he expects to rest some more in the three weeks before his notification ceremonies.

Why Study Nature?

THE Wild Life conference which opened in Iowa City yesterday has called forth the annual crop of wisecracks concerning its name as well as a full quota of questions regarding its aim, scope, and value.

As to the name, the conference does not deal with wild life of the type many people seem to think for it does not seek to perfect one in the night life of New York, make one an understudy for the Ziegfeld Follies, nor train for the position of star in a western melodrama of the Tom Mix variety. Wild life as here used means wild flowers, wild animals, wild birds, each in its natural state and residing in its native habitat.

The conference is open to "lovers and students of nature" whether teachers and leaders of study groups or simply persons interested in birds, insects, and flowers. Each year men and women leave their daily vocations and journey to Iowa City, there to mingle with others with kindred interests while they participate in the study and discussions of the conference.

Why do they come? What do they get out of it? Of what use is all this to them? What does such study add to life? Some of the benefits are almost intangible, but they exist.

Familiarity with nature gives a richness and fullness to life inconceivable to those who have not drunk at this stream. There is a phase for every mood; a panacea for every ill of mind. Are these not valuable?

How much enjoyment is in store for him who, when about his daily toil, can recognize old friends in the face of nature. The farm boy who can name all the trees in the woodlot; the girl who knows by name every wild flower in the valley; the child who recnizes a moth or a butterfly by name; the man or the woman who can listen to the symphony of nature and distinguish the voices of the various birds and insects has a pleasure that does not pall.

The barefoot boy who learns of birds and trees is not building a den in the woods from which to steal forth and terrorize the neighborhood; the girl interested in flowers and butterflies is not sighing for Hollywood. Their lives are so filled with better thoughts that the undesirable are crowded out.

The powers of observation are trained by the study of nature; the child learns to discriminate between different classes and varieties; he learns to classify his knowledge. These powers, once developed, carry over into and have untold value in the business of life. The training of the senses through the study of nature is as valuable as that obtained through any sense training device ever invented and used in school, while it has the advantage of being much more palatable and easily administered.

The grown man or woman who studies nature as an avocation gets much pure enjoyment from his knowledge. To say "I saw an elm" is more satisfactory than to say "I saw a tree"; "a swallow" than "a bird"; "a trillium" rather than "a flower." Truly, to study nature is to open up a new world of pleasure, a new album of pictures, a new storehouse of treasures.

And then, when active days are over and one sits, more or less alone, by the fireside of life, watching the setting of life's sun and waiting for the falling of that curtain which "never outward swings," there is a host of memories to brighten the long, lonely hours. As Wordsworth says in "The Daffodils"

"They flash upon that inward eye
Which is the bliss of solitude."

These are a few of the reasons for the wild life conference.

"No Age Limit"

HENRY Ford expressed his views on the relative merits of intelligence in youth and age, on his sixty-fifth birthday, when he said, "You take all the experience and judgment of men over 50 out of the world and there wouldn't be enough left to run it."

Here we have an archaic idea expressed by one of America's most successful financiers and business men. But when Mr. Ford made this statement he did not take into consideration the almost inevitable trend to conservatism that accompanies the successful man after middle age. Mr. Ford has been so busy with his experiments; and so successful with his ventures, that he may have escaped conservatism; but his case is exceptional, and cannot be used as a measuring stick of others.

Progress has always been the result of young men's efforts, with the older men acting as governors to their reckless strides. The young Turks brought about the reform in Turkey; the young Luther led the movement against medieval church corruption; the young Christ first brought the new religion.

Always the young men of a city are the ones who build it up—the young men's clubs, the lodges, and other organizations of youthful spirits, who have not been tied down with years, families, and businesses.

Youth looks ahead, and always sees just beyond the skyline, visions of things much better; but age, having lost its illusions, sees only realities, and progress depends upon visions.

In our neighboring state, Wisconsin, a few years ago the elderly legislators made regulations quite inimical to big business. Consequently new factories did not build there, and many old ones moved out. Hence, while the sylvan abode may please conservative age, it has not satisfied busy youth. A new movement is now on foot, led by the young Wisconsin sons, to get more factories and more industrialism scattered throughout their peaceful, but stagnant, farming districts.

Men past 50 are more given to philosophizing, and to abtruse musings, and retrospecting, than to progressing. But there are conservatives of 30, and youths of 75. When Mr. Ford spoke of the "age limit" he must have meant the age when an individual stops looking ahead, and becomes sedentary.

With the accumulated experience of 50 years a man would surely be better able to work creatively—if he kept the spirit of youth—and Mr. Ford is pre-eminently youthful in his outlook; wherein he differs from most men of 65.

If some men were not labeled geniuses, they would be regarded as "nuts."

The New Postal Rate

THE adoption today of the five cent per ounce letter rate on air mail to any place in the United States brings to mind the various steps in mail carriage and letter postage in our national history. Someone has said that the United States mail service is the greatest business in which any nation or individual ever engaged. When one considers the large number of employes scattered over the country, the enormous amount of mail handled, and the great number of mile of transportation routes covered, one is quite apt to agree with him.

In colonial times mail transportation was irregular, uncertain, and expensive. The earliest methods used were postmen on horseback and stagecoach. In 1813 all steamboat routes were declared post routes. Mail was first carried by rail in 1834, and all railroads were made post routes in 1838. The traveling railway postoffice came in 1840.

The first air mail routes were operated by the government as experiments. On May 15, 1918, the route from Washington to New York, via Philadelphia, was established. In 1919 it was extended from New York to Chicago, via Cleveland, and in 1920 from Chicago to Cheyenne, Wyo. The transcontinental route was established in 1922, but it was not until July 1, 1924, that through day and night service was obtained. Mail now travels from New York to San Francisco, 2665 miles, in 34 hours, 20 minutes, with 15 stops (Iowa City is one of these), and from San Francisco to New York in 29 hours, 15 minutes.

Consideration of the means of carrying mail is no more interesting than, is that of the various changes in letter postage rates since colonial times. The first rates established by the United States government varied from 6 cents for one sheet sent under 30 miles to 25 cents for the same amount sent over 450 miles. Two sheets, or a double letter, called for double postage. These rates continued for 30 years with but slight modification.

In 1844 the government recommended lower postal rates with but two distance charges: five cents for any distance less than 300 miles and 10 cents for all distances over that, a half ounce being the unit of weight. After the reduction in rate the revenue from postage increased rather than diminished.

In 1851 the rate changed to three cents for not over 300 miles but with a fourfold charge on Pacific mails. In 1863 the rate became three cents a half ounce without regard to distance. In 1883 another reduction brought letter postage down to two cents a half ounce and in 1885 it became the same for an ounce.

The first airmail stamp was of 24-cent denomination. It provided for special delivery of the letter at its destination. This rate was soon reduced to 16 cents an ounce or to six cents with the sender having the option of putting on a special delivery stamp if he so desired. In 1927 the government issued 15- and 20-cent air mail stamps with a special Lindbergh stamp at 10 cents. In 1928 the airplane rate was 10 cents a half ounce anywhere in the United States, and today it becomes five cents an ounce.

So Uncle Sam provides for his subjects a cheaper and more efficient mail service than would be possible through employment of private means. Sometimes we may complain of the service and feel that it is not as efficient as it should be; but stop and consider what we would do without it. Only when one has suffered the inconvenience of no mail service can he readily appreciate what the government does for him, and does it cheaply and well.

Radio Will Bring News From Arctic

WASHINGTON, July 31 (AP)—Up to the minute information from hitherto inaccessible weather-breeding regions in the Arctic—long the dream of meteorologists—is to be brought by radio to the weather men of the world.

Latest addition to the chain of short wave radio stations in the far north, and second to none in value to the forecasters of the U. S. weather bureau, is the Signal Corps station at Point Barrow, Alaska, which will start transmitting observations about Sept. 1. Point Barrow, farthest north of all radio stations on the continent, is the "first stop" of the domes of polar air which bring cold waves into the United States via Medicine Hat and other points.

The weather bureau has maintained an observation station for several years at Point Barrow. Data obtained there and forwarded to Washington indicated that current reports would be of immense value in foretelling cold spells, says E. B. Calvert, chief of the forecast division. During the winter it takes several months for the reports sent by mail to reach the bureau. It is estimated that the transmission by radio and wire relay from Seattle will take, at the most, six hours.

Mrs. Stanley L. Morgan, wife of the Signal Corps operator who will be in charge of the station, has been appointed weather observer. She will make two reports daily, one requiring her to arise in the middle of the night to take a reading. In the winter, however, conditions under which she will make the night reading will be little different than the day as the semi-twilight of the Polar night will prevail throughout the 24 hours.

Daily weather reports are transmitted also by Signal Corps and Navy stations in other parts of Alaska and by government and Hudson Bay company stations in northern Canada. Low power transmitters at several points in Siberia dispatch information to Vladivostock whence it is forwarded to the weather bureaus.

Lambeth Palace Faces First Moving Day in 25 Years

When the Archbishop of York succeeds Dr. Thomas Randall Davidson as Archbishop of Canterbury soon, Lambeth palace (above) will witness its first moving day and many changes in personnel for the first time in 25 years. Dr. and Mrs. Davidson are shown below.

LONDON, July 31 (AP)—Lambeth Palace is soon to witness a "moving day" for the first time in 25 years.

With the resignation of Dr. Thomas Randall Davidson, the 80 year old Archbishop of Canterbury, the palace staff already has been notified of the impending change.

The retirement of His Grace of Canterbury, who is bitterly disappointed and saddened by his defeat at the hands of the House of Commons in the now famous "prayer book" controversy, involves the uprooting of a staff of more than 30 assistants and domestic servants.

The Primate's successor, the Archbishop of York, is not likely to re-engage many, if any, of them, as he will probably want to bring with him the personnel who have served him in his former diocese. The changes at Lambeth Palace in the near future are, therefore, likely to be drastic and will entail the severing of many personal and domestic bonds.

Moving out for Dr. and Mrs. Davidson, aside from the sentimental rupture, is not a simple matter. Although much of the furniture and furnishings of Lambeth Palace have been made into a national trust during his incumbency, both he and his wife have collected personal treasures which will have to be removed when they leave. One item alone, his books, represent a herculean task for any housewife, for in the vast technical library at Lambeth Palace are thousands of volumes which are Dr. Davidson's own property, collected during his quarter century as primate and which he must either take with him or give away upon his departure.

The Archbishop's successor, in his turn, faces no easy task in taking over Lambeth Palace and its many entailed duties at a period which is the most difficult in the history of the Church of England since the Reformation. Apart from the internal crisis in the church the position is at any time an onerous one. The patronage of the Archbishop alone includes two canonries at Canterbury, the honorary canonries, two archdeaconries and the presentation to more than two hundred livings.

The upkeep of the palace is a tremendous responsibility. The Archbishop is accountable for the interior decorations, wholly or in part, unless he can show a surveyor's certificate for having decorated any part of it within five years, and constant restorations make heavy demands on his salary of $75,000 a year. The gardens and grounds extend to 18 acres and in turn require constant expert care.

Lambeth Palace has been the seat of the Archbishops of Canterbury since 1190. Curiously enough in view of the recent political disruption which has taken place in the Houses of Parliament just across the river at Westminster, it owes its existence to an ecclesiastical quarrel.

Boniface, Archbishop of Canterbury in the twelfth century, when on a visit to the Priory of St. Bartholomew in Smithfield, London, fell into dispute with the prior and canons on a point of precedence with their own bishop.

NOTICES

GRADUATE STUDENTS IN EDUCATION

Graduate students expecting to write examinations for advanced degrees in Education during the August examination period, call at the College of Education office, room No. 117 University Hall, on or before August 2nd.
P. C. PACKER.

CANDIDATES FOR DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY

Candidates for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy are reminded of three routine matters: (1). A thesis topic must be announced and approved before the qualifying examination is taken. (2). The qualifying examination must be taken at least one year before the candidate comes up for the degree. By the term "one year" is meant the equivalent of an academic year's residence on full time, with a definite minimum of 24 semester hours credit as a numerical measure of that residence. (3). The two language requirements must be fulfilled before the qualifying examination is taken.
G. W. STEWART for C. E. SEASHORE, dean.

TIME LAPSE OF CREDIT IN THE GRADUATE COLLEGE

Experience has shown that the extension of graduate work over an unlimited period of time is impractical. The council of the graduate college in May of this year adopted the following regulation:

"In evaluating credits for the purpose of determining the fulfillment of residence requirements, no credit dating back over ten years shall be counted, and credits dating between five and ten years shall be reduced proportionately."

All graduate students in residence should take notice.
G. W. STEWART for C. E. SEASHORE, dean.

TO LOVERS AND STUDENTS OF NATURE

The fourth annual conference of the Outdoor Life School of Instruction will be held at the University July 31 to August 3, inclusive, under the auspices of the Extension Division and the Summer Session.

The conference will open at 2:00 p.m. Tuesday, July 31, in the Senate Chamber of the Old Capitol.

The afternoons will be devoted to field work, and the general conferences will meet at 7:00 p.m. July 31 and Aug. 1 and 2, in Room 314, Pharmacy-Botany building. An excursion to one of the State Parks is planned for August 3.

Competent leaders will discuss and direct the various phases of outdoor or field work in a non-technical way.

Teachers and all others who are interested in outdoor observation and study are invited to participate. Detailed programs will be issued.
PROFESSOR B. SHIMEK.

AUGUST CONVOCATION

The August convocation will be held, Thursday evening, August 23. There will be no classes, Friday, August 24.
Summer Session Office.

TO ALL STUDENTS WHO EXPECT TO GRADUATE AT THE CLOSE OF THE SECOND TERM OF THE SUMMER SESSION, AUG. 24, 1928

Every student who expects to receive a degree, or a certificate, at the University Convocation to be held August 24, 1928 should make his formal application on a card provided for the purpose, at the Registrar's office, on or before Saturday, August 4, 1928.

It is of the utmost importance that each student concerned comply with this request immediately for otherwise it is very likely that a student who may be in other respects qualified will not be recommended for graduation at the close of the present term.

Making application for the degree, or certificate, involves the payment of the graduation fee ($15.00) at the time the application is made—the payment of this fee being a necessary part of the application. Call at the Registrar's office for the card.
H. C. DORCAS, registrar.

Governor Smith Finishes Vacation

Nominee Plays Round of Golf Before Trip Home

HAMPTON BAYS, N. Y., July 31 (AP)—Reluctant to wind up his vacation, Governor Smith played a final round of golf on the shore today, took a farewell swim in great Peconic bay and got ready to return to the political atmosphere of New York city and Albany. He plans to leave here by motor around noon tomorrow.

The democratic presidential nominee gave every indication that until after the end of his holiday, at least, he would avoid discussion of politics. Even the withdrawal of part of William Allen White's charges against his legislative record evoked no comment except a reiteration of "nohting to say at this time."

Al Smith

Smith was breakfasting with his old friend, William H. Humphreys of Albany, at Canoe Place inn when advised by newspapermen that White had withdrawn charges relating to vice and prostitution and was standing his guns in his attack on Smith's record as an assemblyman with regard to the saloon.

The governor evinced interest, but said nothing. Early in the afternoon, as he sat under an elm on the front lawn at the inn chatting with reporters, the subject was brought up again. Smith inquired when the White statement should be given out and part of it was read to him. But before it was completed the nominee interrupted, and with a wave of the hand, put in a final "nothing to say about it now."

Movies Produce Scenes in Color

Light Filter Process Impracticable for Large Areas

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July (AP)—Soon the amateur cinematographer will be able to reproduce the scenes which delight his eyes in the natural colors instead of the conventional black and white.

As a group of forty leaders in the world of science and business sat in a darkened room at George Eastman's home today there flashed on two small screens, peacocks and parrots in all the glory of their highly colored plumage; flowers with the various clors shading into one another; models showing the summer styles for woman with nearly all the colors of the rainbow; and outdoor scenes of children and grownups at play in the wods and surfs.

Filter Limits Size

The new process is a combination of a three color "light-filter" on both camera and projector and a new film with numerous minute cylinderical lenses.

"The light filter" which in combination with the film makes possible color motion pictures is responsible also for its present limitation in the size of the image.

Eastman Puchases Process

The screens used today were 16 by 22 inches. The use of a larger screen was said to be impracticable because of the diffusion of light through the filter.

The new process was developed in the Eastman research laboritories after rights had been purchased from a Frenchman. It has not been adopted to commercial use.

Attitude of Labor Remains Unknown

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., July 31 (AP)—The attitude labor will take toward the presidential candidates still is "entirely undecided," William L. Green, president of the American federation of labor, decared today after the first meeting of the quarterly conference of the executive council.

Asked about reports that neither Gov. Alfred E. Smith or Herbert Hoover would receive definite endorsement, Mr. Green said: "It is much too early to predict any such thing. It is first necessary to hear the report of the non-partisan political committee. That was not ready today and will not be ready for a day or two."

If Uncle Sam deports Ludmila Maksimova (above), pretty young Russian girl now resident in San Francisco, she will go not to Siberia, but to death, her attorney told immigration officials. The girl escaped from Siberia in 1924 after being sentenced to be shot by a Soviet drumhead court and came to the United States a year later.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 31 (AP)—The St. Paul dispatch today says six railroads operating trains between Chicago and the twin cities are contemplating "pool" of passenger trains to reduce their number from 21 trains a day each way to seven.

Roads operating trains between here and Chicago are the Burlington, Milwaukee, Northwestern, Great Western, Soo Line, and Rock Island.

Officials of these roads available here today refused to comment on the reported "pool."

Herbert Hoover Fishes for Trout

Presidential Nominee Vacations Prior to Trip East

BROWN'S CAMP, Near Hornbrook, Cal., July 31 (AP)—Herbert Hoover demonstrated his skill as an angler today by catching nearly a dozen rainbow trout in Beaver creek, about 30 miles from this place.

Accompanied by Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford university and another friend, the republican presidential nominee left his cottage here snortly after dawn and motored nearly 10 miles to a point where the highway ended. The party fished in the creek there until saddle horses could be obtained from a nearby ranch.

Herbert Hoove

The mountain trail then led through trees and underbrush for a distance of 15 miles to what proved to be good fishing grounds. Some of the rainbow were so small that they were thrown back into the stream, but the party brought back a sizable string to show for their morning's effort.

Party Breaks Camp

After lunch, Mr. Hoover rested until time for his party to break camp and leave by motor for Shasta Springs, 70 miles away across the Siskiyou range and to the foot of Mount Shasta, the snow clad peak which rises 14,126 feet.

After spending the night at the hotel at Shasta Springs the nominee will try his luck for the fourth time on this trip, fishing in tributaries of the McCloud or Pit rivers, the exact location to depend upon reports as to where the fish are most plentiful.

Tomorrow evening Mr. Hoover and his companions will motor to Dunsmoir where they will board a train for the return trip to San Francisco. Arriving there at 7:30 a.m. Thursday, they complete the journey back to Palo Alto by automobile.

Hoover to Revise Speech

This will give Mr. Hoover a full day to study and revise his acceptance speech which is to be delivered at the notification ceremonies, at Stanford university stadium one week from next Saturday. He hopes to have a completed copy ready not later than Saturday.

This five-day outing is the only one which Mr. Hoover has in mind on this visit to his old home. He probably will leave Palo Alto on Aug. 15, returning to Washington via Los Angeles, Albuquerque, Kansas City, Cedar Rapids, and his birthplace of West Branch.

While the plan of campaigning on his return to Washington has not yet been definitely decided upon, it is regarded as almost certain that he will make some speeches in the east and will visit several states, including Oklahoma, Missouri, Kentucky, and Tennessee.

Applications for the hearing were filed by a number of farm organizations which are asking an increase of 50 per cent in the present tariff of fifteen cents per bushel, under the flexible provisions of the tariff act. The Argentine embassy announced today that a brief would be filed for that country, the greatest competitor in the American corn market, in protest against the proposed increase.

Police Demolish Kessler's Home

CHICAGO, July 31 (AP)—A humble church home on the edge of a forest preserve which for 26 years served as a place of worship and habitation for August Kessler, head of a small religious colony, tonight was demolished by county highway police.

During the last quarter of a century few persons had ever heard of F. R. Kessler, claimed to be a retired Catholic priest, although his name was not found on the records of Chicago diocese. Last Sunday the aged recluse was attacked by three persons, who since have been arrested. The following day police found a crude casket containing the body of a woman, identified by Kessler as his cousin, Claudia Clara Haupt. Today police found an old sword in the building which police said was blood stained.

In the roof of the shack police also found a bullet imbedded in a rafter, which they took as indications that the woman or some other person might have died from other than natural causes.

Kessler was convalescing in a hospital from the beating he received Sunday. His condition was said to be critical. Those held in connection with the attack upon him were James Donahue, Mathais Ott and Mrs. Ellen Matterville, all of Chicago. Robbery was believed to have been their motive, although police said they were under the influence of liquor when they vsited Kessler.

Quetioned about the finding of the body of his cousin, Kesler said she had been his housekeeper for 26 years. Last April she became ill and died without medical attenion.

Dr. Axel F. Benson announced tonight that an examination of Miss Haupt's body indicated she had died a natural death. There was nothing to show she had died by violence, he said.

Highway Joins Cities

OMAHA, July 31 (AP)—Omaha, in two weeks, will be connected with New York city by an all weather surfaced highway. The last scoop of concrete on the final ten mile stretch of paving between Logan and Woodbine, was poured today. Within two weeks, when the concrete has set, it will be possible to drive from here to the Atlantic seaboard without leaving the concrete, excepting in four counties in Iowa where the surface is gravel.

A HUSBAND AT HER HEELS

By Mildred Barbour

"I am a stranger in New York, Mr. Annesley—quite alone. . . ."

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND CHARACTERS

CELIA DREW, has been obliged, after the death of her father, to go to work. She is the secretary of

BENJAMIN HARRINGTON, and is engaged to his son,

TOM. The Harringtons disapprove of the match, but Celia does not know this. She has recently rejected a proposal of marriage from HORACE VAIL, one of Harrington's business associates, and incurred his ill will, as a result.

THE HARRINGTONS, to be rid of Celia, concoct a plot, with Vail's help, whereby Tom finds her locked in her office at midnight with

LARRYCROSS, a dissipated young chap, who is hopelessly in love with her. Without waiting for explanations, Tom rushes off. The next day Celia finds herself jobless and the object of gossip. Her sole defender is GWEN BURNS, who is rich and socially prominent. Larry, aghast at what he has done, urges Celia to marry him. She refuses and returns Tom's ring when the day passes without word from him.

MRS. DREW goes to pieces at the shock of hearing that Celia's engagement is broken and that Tom has left town.

VAIL again proposed to her.

SHE IS UNABLE to obtain another position, and Gwen urges her to go to New York.

SHE finally goes.

AFTER many difficulties, she finds a post as secretary to a rich, eccentric invalid, RICHARD, FALCONER, who is writing his memoirs.

CHAPTER XV.

THE FAIRY-WAND

Celia was alone in the drawing room when the servant announced: "Mr. Annesley."

She found herself face to face with a man of perhaps 35—clean cut, erect, with the indefinable poise that spells breeding. His hair was black and his dark eyes had a glint of humor.

Bowing formally, he said, in a clear, deep voice:

"May I introduce myself, Miss Drew? I am James Annesley. I have the good fortune to be Mr. Falconer's attorney and his friend, too. He has just informed me that he has engaged you as his secretary. He asks me to arrange the financial end of things with you. Business tires him, and we must spare him as much as possible."

Celia said hesitantly:

"It seems to be a very curious position I am offered—pleasant surroundings and little work."

His quick smile showed even white teeth.

"Mr. Falconer is eccentric, Miss Drew, but he has a heart of gold. In all the years that I have known him, I have never seen him angry or inconsiderate. It is necessary for you to do only what he requires—and that, I assure you, will probably be very little. He constantly puts too great a burden on his strength, but, in his condition, it is well to humor him, to allow him to write when he feels able. The position you have accepted will be easy, I assure you, but the hours may be long, and, if you desire to keep it, I must warn you not to be like the other young women who have essayed the post and have kept an eye on the clock." Again his pleasant smile flashed out.

Celia smiled, too.

"I am a stranger in New York, Mr. Annesley—quite alone. This is my first position here, and I desire, with all my heart, to make good."

"I feel sure you will do that," he smiled. "Your check will be given you weekly. You can report at 10 o'clock each morning, I trust, and remain always in readiness to take Mr. Falconer's dictation. Mrs. Glover will see that you are comfortable. If you have any requests to make, please make them to me. I am a sort of unofficial manager of the household."

As Celia walked across the park, she kept saying to herself:

"There's a catch in it somewhere. It's too good to be true. But I'm not going to look for the catch. It'll trip me up soon enough."

With the confidence born of a good job in hand, she began looking for a modest apartment.

It was her lucky day, after the blank despair of the morning, and she found a tiny apartment of one room that was a sitting room by day and a bedroom by night. By 10 o'clock that night, she had moved, and dined on a sandwich and a glass of milk, and tumbled sleepily into bed.

For the first time in all those weary weeks, she had had no time to think of Tom Harrington and her broken engagement. No time to probe the soreness of her own heart. No time to wonder if, some day, as she walked along the crowded streets, she would see Tom.

She had often wondered what she would do, how she would act, if they met by chance. Was he in New York now? Or had the Harringtons shipped him off to Europe, determined to put the ocean between him and the girl he had loved and jilted so cruelly? If they had so objected to Tom's marrying her that they had matched that diabolical plot, they would believe her capable of following him and trying to win him back? Yet, somehow, she felt that Tom was here, in New York ;seeing the same blue sky, hearing the roar of the city, searching the passing throng, as she did, for a glimpse of a familiar face.

She awoke early, after the most refreshing sleep in weeks, and prepared coffee. In her new quarters, she felt a sense of possession, the sense of being a householder. Her cheerfulness, for the first time since that wretched episode at home, was not forced. She even stopped on her walk to the subway and bought a purple aster for the buttonhole of her gray tailleur. How much brighter the future seemed. She was pretty, she was young, she had hope.

But, when she turned the corner into the street where Richard Falconer lived, doubt and a new fear assailed her. Suppose she had dreamed it all?

Railroads Plan Air Subsidiary

Pennsylvania R. R. to Offer Plane Service

NEW YORK, July 31 (AP)—Reduction by one day of the travel time between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts appeared today to be an early possibility with two of the country's larger railroads making plans for transcontinental air-services.

The transcontiinental air transport, built around the Pennsylvania railroad, already has announced its plans to begin operation of an air-rail route about August 15. Disclosure yesterday that the New York Central contemplates establishment of a similar service through the northwest led to information today that its plans, still somewhat indefinite, have been delayed through inability to obtain the necessary airplanes. Transcontinental air transport, it is understood, has eliminated this difficulty to a degree by guaranteeing a bonus to aircraft manufacturers for early delivery of the planes it will use.

N. Y. C. Considering

New York Central officials today refused to confirm the details of yesterday's disclosure that air-rail service is planned by that road, in cooperation with the Canadian Pacific "Soo Lines. Boeing airway corporation and the Mid-Lane transit company of Minneapolis, the air committee, headed by Vice President Charles C. Paulingzn, has been holding meetings for a year or more, it was said, but it was added that no definite conclusions have been reached and that the company is not in a position to announce definite plans.

It was learned on reliable authority, however, that the railroad has been negotiating for facilities to provide service which would compete with that planned by the Pennsylvania. Northern Pacific, Great Northern and other roads in the northwest. The first New York Central routes would connect Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth, Detroit, Chicago and Winnipeg, but later would be extended to form a transcontinental route through a tie-up with other large railroads. The first route of the Transcontinental Air Transport will be between Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago, but the objective of both projects appears ultimately to be cutting one day from coast-to-coast travel time.

Express Service

Other air transportation projects are expected to be placed in operation within the near future. Although lacking official confirmation, it was understood today that the American Railway Express company plans to expand its airplane express service on a large scale after the railway express business is taken over by the railway express, a non-profit making organization to be formed by the railroads when their contract with the express company expires early next year.

Nearer consummation are plans for a trans-oceanic service in which the use of 50-passenger planes is proposed. As contemplated, but will be opened between the main land and Havana, later to be extended to greater over-water distances, probably between American and European ports.

Swedish Scientist Studies Influence of Soil on Trees

Prof. Lars G. Rommell is undertaking the first comprehensive research work on American forest soils. Much of the investigation will be conducted in the Pack demonstration forest.

By FRANK I. WELLER
(Associated Press Farm Editor)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 30 (AP)—Soil, ever determining the pathway of civilization, is expected to guide future projects in forestry as it long has influenced the fortune of farm crops.

Prof. Lars G. Rommell, noted Swedish scientist who has just been appointed to the Charles Lathrop Pack professorship of forest soils at Cornell university, is directing a study of the chemical and biological influences in tree growth. It is the first comprehensive research on forest soil ever undertaken in this country. Much of the investigation will be conducted in the 2,000-acre Pack demonstration forest near Warrensburg, N. Y., where preliminary surveys already have been made by Franklin Moon, dean of the College of Forestry at Syracuse, and Tom Gill, forester of the Charles Lathrop Pack forestry trust.

Pack, president of the American Tree association, says the whole history of civilization is "written in the soil," each chapter revealing the struggle against exhaustion of fertility and man's constant movement over the face of the earth in search of land for his crops. His success has marked the rise and fall of human society through all the ages. As a result of the fight for existence much is known of soil influences on farm crops. Relatively, nothing is known of the effect on tree growth, but Pack is convinced that soil conditions are of tremendous importance.

Prof. Jacob G. Lipman, of the New Jersey agricultural college, tracing the inter-relationship of soil and civilization, declares that human agencies disturb the balance of nature's forces and that one generation of mankind, in providing itself with food and shelter, appreciably influences thereby the fortunes of the succeeding generations. The cutting down of forests, the plowing of prairies, drainage and irrigation, the stirring of surface soil with tillage implements and the removal of plant and animal products from the land, tell their story in no uncertain terms. Exploitation of the soil, in its many forms, must be followed by economic and social stagnation when not counteracted, he says.

Simple as soil facts may be, Professor Lipman explains, they are still calling for systematic study in their bearing on the rise and fall of nations, and "they still are to be interpreted in terms of human progress—political, social and economic."

In Professor Rommell's investigation an effort will lbe made to coordinate studies in several fields of science and supply all obtainable and applicable knowledge to the special problem of forest soils. It will necessarily deal with the chemistry and biology of soils and also will have intimate relation with the study of heredity in tree growth, particularly as that study may help to solve problems of adapting certain varieties to given soils.

Corn Remains Steady

Wheat Take Down Trend Throughout Chicago Markets

CHICAGO, July 31 (AP)—Plenty of liveliness but no sensational squeeze in prices marked the wind-up today of dealings in July delivery corn. Owing to sharp differences of opinion between opposing powerful groups of traders, an exciting finish had been looked for, but the victors in the struggle who were the leaders in the bull side of the market deemed moderation becoming, and kept values from any wild advance.

Closing quotations on corn were irregular at 1 1-3c off net to 4¼c gain, wheat ⅝c to 1¼c off, oats ⅛@¼c to 6¾c down, and provisions varying from 10c setback to a rise of 50c.

The final price today for July delivery of corn was $1.15½c a bushel, just ¼c under the highest point which had heretofore been reached this season. Throughout the day, previous speculative sellers who wished to settle their accounts had been freely given opportunity to do so at or below $1.15½, but the defeated element proved stubborn, and in the effort to win were able to force the market temporarily as low as $1.11 for July.

However, the bears were under a decided handicap today from the outset, arrivals of corn here being far short of what was expected and totaling only 643 cars, whereas 1,000 cars or more had been looked for. Especially during the last hour, trading in corn was on a huge scale with enormous selling of Septemebr and December deliveries, but with offerings of July scant except from the principal holders and at gradually tightening quotations. The sell of September and December deliveries was done largely on assertions that monthly unofficial estimates tomorrow would indicate a larger corn crop than was forecast a month ago. As against this, owners of corn here expressed themselves as satisfied that there would be a god demand for all the corn at present available and that prices tomorrow for actual corn would by no means be based on the September price.

Wheat tended downward throughout the day, influenced by favorable crop reports from the American and Canadian northwest. Harvesting is expected to be under way in Manitoba by Aug. 10 and in Saskatchewan a week later.

Belated liquidating sales on the part of holders led to a break of 6⅞c a bushel in the price of old-style July contracts and 4⅞c in new style July. Otherwise, oats futures held within narrow limits.

Provisions were mostly dull and without significant changes in price.

Increase in Call Money Rates Sets Bond Market Agog

NEW YORK, July 31 (AP)—A flurry from 6 to 8 per cent in the call money rate, accompanied by the calling of between fifty million and sixty million in loans, temporarily unsettled today's stock market.

Prices rallied briskly at the opening and held well in the face of a renewal rate of 6 per cent. Marking up of the rate to 7 and 7 1-2 per cent in quick succession around mid-day brought a wave of selling into the market, which wiped out many of the early gains and sent a number of issues down 2 to nearly 9 points. Buying support was quickly provided and the market headed upward again in the face of a further advance in money to 8 per cent.

Credit situations completely overshadowed the day's business developments.

The United States Steel corporation, making its report public after the close of the market, earned $4.86 a share in the first six months as against $5.60 in the first half of 1927, but earnings in the June quarter were $2.75 against $2.11 in the first quarter and $2.87 in the second quarter of 1927.

Establishment of new levels for the year by British and Dutch currencies and the shifting of the Canadian dollar from a premium to a discount were the outstanding features in the mixed foreign exchange market. Sterling Cables were quoted as low as $4.85⅝ and Dutch guilders around 40.17.

Montgomery Ward advanced nearly 4 points to a new high record at 185¾ and closed within a point of the top. Other issues to move into new high ground were Atlantic Refining, American Smelting, Postum, Savage Arms, Kroger, Jewel Tea, Chicasha Cooton Oil and Utah Copper, but not all of the early gains in these isues were maintained.

Radio slipped from 175½ to 172½ and rebounded to 174½, Wright Aeronautical from 160½ to 155 and back to 158⅜, General Motors from 183½ to 191½ and back to 192⅜, and U. S. Steel from 143½ to 141⅜ and back to 142⅝, all closinp at net declines. American Car & Foundry, Cuba Cane Sugar common and preferred, General Outdoor Advertising, Peerless Motor and Stanley co., were among the dozen issues to sink into new low ground for the year or longer.

Lloyd Hahn, American Favorite, Places Fifth in 800-Meter

Ed Hamm Boosts U.S. Hopes With Broad Jump Win

Yankee Sprinters Get Fresh Setbacks in 200-Meters

OLYMPIC STADIUM, Amsterdam, July 31 (AP)—Douglas C. A. Lowe, young British barrister, retained the Olympic 800-meter crown this afternoon by outclassing a great field, including the American favorite Lloyd Hahn, and smashing the Olympic record with the most spectacular performance of the third day of the track and field championships.

What was expected to be the most exciting middle distance struggle in Olympic history with world's champions and record breakers all assembled turned out to be a rout. Lowe, running like a thoroughbred, came from behind in the last 100-meters to beat his nearest rival, Erin Bylehn, of Sweden, by ten yards, while Hahn leading the field almost from the start staggered home fifth, badly whipped.

Engelhard Passs Hahn

Hahn was passed by Herman Engelhard of Germany and Phill Edwards of Canada while the two remaining Americans, Earl Fuller and Ray Watson, were eighth and ninth respectively, bringing up the rear.

Lowe not only dealt another blow to the apparently groggy American runners but his time, 1 minute 51 4-5 seconds, beat by 1-10 second the former Olympic mark set by Ted Meredith in 1912.

In a day marked by the shattering of three world's records and two Olympic standards, Yankee fortunes again ebbed and flowed. Hahn's defeat was off-set by a triumph by Ed Hamm in the running broad jump and victory for little Miss Elizabeth Robinson in the women's 100-meter finals in the world's record time of 12 1-5 seconds.

Hamm Wins Jump

Hamm wound up the most sensational broad jumping campaign any human kangaroo ever had by adding the world's championship to his national and world's record holding honors. His winning leap of 25 feet 4 -34 inches displaced the Olympic mark set in 1912 by the American, A. L. Gutterson and gave the Georgia Tech star possession of all the jumping honors worth mentioning. He out leaped S. P. Casor, Negro rival from Haiti, and his own countryman Al Bates, who finished third, while the former champion, Dehart Hubbard, failed to reach the finals.

It took a world's record discus throw of 39.62 meters or 129 feet 11 113-128 inches by a husky Polish star, Ralina Konopacra, to beat another American feminine star, Lillian Copeland, who finished second with 37.08 meters or 121 feet, 7 111-128 inches.

Beats American

The third world's record was clipped by the rangy South African hurdler, C. C. Weightman-Smith, who beat the American, John Collier, by half a yard as he skimmed the 110 meter high timbers in 14 3-5 seconds. Carl of the United States was fourth in his heat and thus did not qualify. Weightman-Smith's performance, establishing him as another likely to upset American victory hopes, followed semi-final triumphs by two other Americans, Leighton Dye and Stephen Anderson, each equalling the former world's record of 14 4-5 seconds made by Earl Thorson in 1920.

American sprinters suffered a fresh set back in the 200-meter trials when Charley Borah was nosed out for the second qualifying place by Percy Williams, the Canadian youth who now qualifies as the Yankee nemesis, on top of his 200-meter triumphs yesterday. Helmut Cernig, German ace, captured this heat, equalling the Olympic record of 21 3-5 seconds but it was a real battle between Williams and Borah. The American appeared to have the place cinched but lacked the stamina to meet William's closing rush.

Barely Wins

The Canadian just got the width of his chest across the line first.

The other three Americans each came through two heats easily to qualify for the semi-finals tomorrow. Jackson Scholz, the defending champion, and Charley Paddock, won their second trials in similar time of 21 4-5, while Henry Cummong placed second to the German, Jacob Schuller, in 22 flat in the second heat.

AMSTERDAM, July 31 (AP)—Although Americans have captured only three of the eight Olympic championships decided thus far, the United States still held a commanding lead in points. Scoring 16 points today under the unofficial scoring system, the United States had rolled up 71 points to 29 for her nearest rival of the moment, Great Britain, who tallied only ten points today. Unable to place in either of the two men's finals today Finland saw herself passed in the standing by both Sweden and Germany.

Cleveland Uses Five Twirlers to Beat Yanks

CLEVELAND, July 31 (AP)—The Yankees struggled through a 12 to 7 victory over the Indians here today in the series final, which saw Hoyt and Moore knocked out of the box and Pennock pounded. Cleveland used five pitchers. The home team retained an edge of three to two in games in the series.

Injury Keeps Iowa Star From Placing

A leg injury sustained in the final tryouts is believed to have prevented Edward L. Gordon, University of Iowa athlete, from placing in the broad jump at the Olympic games Tuesday.

Gordon hurt a muscle at Cambridge, July 6, but made the Yankee team on a 23 foot, 6 3-8 inch jump registered before the leg went bad. A letter received at the department of athletics from Coach G. T. Bresnahan in Amsterdam indicated that the injury had not mended properly and that Gordon was handicapped in his work-outs.

The young Gary, Ind., negro has a mark of 24 feet 11 5-8 inches made in the competition for freshmen and other ineligibles at the National Collegiate A.A. meet in June.

Iowa Mails Grid Ticket Material

Begin Reserved Seat Sale for Big Ten Encounters

The last of 15,900 letters containing football ticket application material was mailed from the University of Iowa department of athletics yesterday as the initial gesture of the 1928 season.

State University alumni and persons who have ordered tickets in the past are included on the mailing list which is the largest in Iowa's history. The two home games for which seats will be reserved are Minnesota, Oct. 27, the homecoming affair, and Wisconsin, Nov. 17, Dad's day and Iowa day.

Continuing the custom of past years, the orders will be filled in the order received so the location of seats depends upon the number of tickets applied for before each order reaches the office.

Diagrams indicating the area of the stands which will be occupied by each class of customers are included in the material. Classes included in this seat distribution are alumni, non-alumni, yearly athletic ticket holders, alumni and followers of the visiting teams, and former holders of the bonds which built the Iowa stadium. In the sections held for year ticket holders, newspaper men and offical guests of the university also will be accomodated.

An unlimited number of tickets may be ordered by each applicant, according to rules set forth in the information sheet. The alumni section for the Minnesota game will be discontinued Oct. 3, and for the Wisconsin game, Oct. 31. Orders received beyond that date will be filled from other sections.

FORT DODGE, July 31 (AP)—Knights of Pythias of Iowa and auxiliary opened their 59th annual convention here today with more than 300 registered. Fifteen hundred are slated to attend the sessions.

English Professor Talks to Kiwanians

Craig Tells of Life in Kentucky, Now and Yesterday

Prof. Hardin Craig, head of the English department of the University of Iowa, gave a talk on "The Free Workman and the Hired Man," at the luncheon of the Kiwanis club at the Red Ball inn yesterday.

Professor Craig contrasted conditions in the south as they are now with what they were during the Civil war. He told of his early life on a small tobacco plantation in Kentucky; a tract of land that once supported nine different families and now barely yields a living for one.

Tobacco raising was a profitable thing to engage in during the last quarter of the eighteenth century for the domestic markets were good and the crops brought fair prices. Then the tobacco trusts began to develop throughout the southern states.

Tobacco Importance Grows

Certain brands of tobacco were being advertised and demanded by the public especially those that the northern soldiers had become acquainted with during the Civil war.

The growth of incorporated tobacco concerns was the result which had a damaging effect on the small grower, Professor Craig declared. Representative agencies could outbid the local buyers, store the crop in warehouses and later ship it at regular intervals to Liverpool, a world market, after supplying the needs of the manufacturers of the United States.

This monopoly by big companies led to the great distress of growers with limited acreages, and small capital. Bad became worse and they at the present time face a difficult situation.

Now Hired Man

He who was formerly the free workman now becomes the hired man; his prosperity is gone. Where ever he looks he sees a boss and a condition of affairs that he canont control. He is hired; hired at the will of others.

At the conclusion of Professor Craig's talk there was a business meeting of the directors of the club.

Secretary Cliff L. Palmer read a letter written by Judge O. A. Byington to another Kiwanian, Dr. T. L. Hazard. Judge Byington, who with Mrs. Byington is visiting in England, humorously described their voyage across the Atlantic.

Guests at the luncheon were Dr. M. A. Stainbrook of Luppoch, Tex., with A. C. Trowbridge; Dr. John N. Nicholson, Bristol, England, with F. C. Ensign; Robert Gibbs of Iowa City with his father, H. H. Gibbs, and Kiwanians J. M. Thurber of Ames and O. J. Gabel of DeKalb, Ill.

Auto Registration Reaches Big Mark

Automobile registration in Iowa reached 620,736 on July 1, the state motor vehicle department of the secretary of state announced yesterday. According o the Associated Press dispatches, this figure shows a marked increase over the figures announced for June 1.

On July 1, 57,017 trucks had been registered with the county treasurers, as well as 1,514 motor cycles and 193 trailers.

Among the counties having large urban populations, Polk county leads on July 1, with the registration of 37,172 automobiles; Woodbury county is second with 21,189; Linn county, third with 19,807; Scott county, fourth with 17,886; Pottawattamie county, fifth with 15,736; Blackhawk county, sixth with 15,344; Dubuque county, seventh with 12,170;0 and Clnton county, eighth with 10,921. All the remaining counties have registered less than 10,000.

Street Car Kills Lady Once Rich

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 31 (AP)—Once wealthy, member of a family of revolutionary war fame and widow of the late Samuel D. Karns, who was credited with earning millions in the early Pennsylvania oil days, Mrs. Maude Truby Karns, 84 years old, died here in humble circumstances, the victim of a street car accident.

Down in a poorer district of the city, the aged woman lived in a rooming house, at times recounting to her neighbors stories of the days when she lived at "Glen Karn" the beautiful Karns home that Andrew Carnegie bought and called "Glen Cairn." Also there were stories of Karns City, founded by her husband, and of how a great great grandfather had provided the site on which Greensburg was built, later becoming a good sized city in Westmoreland county.

The Karns fortune which was said at one time to have increased at the rate of $18,000 a day, dwindled with the years and Karns left for Arizona where he planned to prospect for gold. He died while enroute there and his widow took up her abde alone, refusing to accept the assistance of a son.

Neighbors in the humble community said that the elderly woman's greatest pleasure was in walking about the streets, and it was on the street that she met death. Yesterday she stepped in front of a street car and was killed.

Forecast of Postal Head Puts Deficit Over $100,000,000

WASHINGTON, July 31 (AP)—Postmaster General New today forecast a deficit of more than $100,000,000 for the postoffice department during the fiscal year 1929 based on estimates of pay increases totalling $77,000,000, a loss of revenues through lowered rates of $16,000,000 and increased pay to railroads of $15,000,000.

Pointing to the 1928 deficit of about $32,000,000, Mr. New said that he hoped the department would break even this year but added there is "no such thing as running with regard to balance while one body fixes your rate of receipts and another fixes your rate of expenditures."

The interstate commerce commission's decision yesterday increasing payments to railroads for carrying the mail by 15 per cent will grant them a lump sum of about $45,000,000 immediately, he said, as the increased rate is retroactive to July 1925. This will have to be met as well as the extra annual payment of about $15,000,000 provided in that order.

Police Probe Son of Former Mayor

Officials Make Efforts to Get Information on Murder

NEW YORK, July 31 (AP)—Police questioned the young son of a former mayor of Miami, Fla., today, in an effort to connect the gunmen of Scarface Al Capone, Chicago racketeer, with the slaying of Frankie Yale, one time crony of Capone's who was "put on the spot" in Brooklyn on July 1.

After a long conference between District Attorney Dods of Brooklyn, police inspectors in charge of the detective forces of Brooklyn and Manhattan, Chief of Police Reeve of Miami and Parker, now dead, was jr., whose father, now dead, was once a Miami mayor, police announced that they had no definite information that the guns which killed Yale came from the Capone arsenal.

Buy Tickets to Chicago

They said they had discovered that shortly before Yale was killed four of Capone's henchmen went to Miami from Chicago and were furnished with weapons and told to "get" Yale. They bought tickets back to Chicago which they ostentatively showed around before leaving Miami in an effort, police said, to establish an alibi in advance.

Instead of returning to Chicago, these four gunmen dropped off the train in Tennessee, bought an automobile and proceeded to New York. On July 1 rankie Yale, who had broken with Capone, was seated in his automobile in a quiet Brooklyn street when bullets from a machine gun, a shotgun, and a magazine pistol in the hands of occupants of a passing car killed him.

The weapons later were found in an abandoned automobile bearing Tennessee license plates.

Henderson Buys Guns

Before he left for New York with Chief Reeve, dispatches from Miami said today, Henderson admitted buying 12 guns for Capone "as a favor." He said that he never knew why Capone wanted the guns. Police attention was first turned to Florida when it was discovered that one of the weapons with which Yale was killed had the same number as one of the guns purchased for Capone by Henderson at a Miami pawnshop.

The first time Capone went to Miami he was asked to leave by the police. He returned, however, and while staying at a hotel managed by Henderson struck up a friendship with the young man. Through Henderson he was able to buy a luxurious island home but Henderson felt such disapproval directed at him for the assistance he had given the racketeer that he left Miami for Asheville, N. C.
