Chamber of Commerce to Hold Open Discussion of Municipal Flying Field

The chamber of commerce airport committee will hold an open forum meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the American legion community building to discuss the proposal to establish and maintain a municipal flying field in Iowa City. Carl Cone is chairman of the committee and will be in charge of the meeting.

Mr. Cone stated last night that the meeting will be conducted as a round table and any individual interested in the airport project is invited to attend the session and will be given opportunity to express his views or ask questions.

Estimates show that the $70,000, which is being asked to purchase and equip 130 acres of land on a standard required by the government for all AAA landing fields, can be paid off in 13 years at a moderate cost to taxpayers. This would include both interest and principal.

May 27 the question of the city issuing the necessary $70,000 worth of bonds to adequately arrange the field will be voted on at a special city election, and meanwhile service clubs, lodges, and other organizations are sponsoring plans and campaigns for the success of the election.

Speakers will be sent to group meetings prior to the election to explain the project and arouse enthusiasm to keep a first class airport in Iowa City.

At present has equipment worth approximately $40,000 and a lease on 134 acres of land at the local air field. It will be necessary to add between 60 and 70 acres of land to this to bring the field to the government specifications which require plane runways of 5,000 feet in length in eight directions.

Contacts Outweigh Classroom Work, Finkbine Asserts

Speakers at Banquet Stress Knowing Professors

"Of the thousands of alumni that come back to the University of Iowa, no one comes back with more joy or with a greater appreciation of what the university has meant to them than I," was the tribute given by the university by W. O. Finkbine at the twelfth annual Finkbine dinner attended by 119 Iowa men and alumni last evening at Iowa Union.

Advising the young men that they should no longer believe the age-old fable that opportunity knocks but once, he suggested that they should become intimately acquainted with one or two members of the faculty.

He paid a high tribute to past and present men of the faculty, of those who are gone he said: "These men are not dead but have taken their lives and gone, and I am remaining to cover the embers of the fire which they kept burning so brightly."

Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh as the keynote of the evening spoke on the "Gay 90's." Through his old notebooks gave him the partial truth of the subjects he had studied, he said, it was the greatness of the men more than their lectures in letters or history that remained. The University of Iowa, he stated, is more than a university; it is a place of life, a symbol, an ideal.

Talks on Jazz Age

Theodore M. Rehder, C3 of Lincoln, fittingly replied, in speaking of the "Jazz 20's," giving the aims and ideals of the present student body, saying that they hoped, when coming back as alumni in 30 or 35 years, to be more than alumni.

Following Mr. Finkbine, talking on the "Roaring 40's" was Rush Butler of Chicago, who advised the students to be true to their ideals, "for it is not the books or the lectures or the hours spent in laboratory work that remain."

A challenge was issued to the men who have been made leaders by their fellow students by Col. Morton Munster, who advised the students to do to justify the position of leadership which you now hold," he asked.

Benjamin F. Swisher talked the men to catch the vision of the great men on the campus.

James H. Weaver, a student on the campus 48 years ago, spoke of the inspiration of the university, introducing into the evening a new spirit, he sang two or three sailor songs. He brought up the idea of the inspiration of the spirit of the university as embodied in Old Capitol. He asserted that there are two objectives which every student should follow; to be of service to the community; to be a success in the profession which he chooses.

Charles M. Dutcher of Iowa City reminded the men that as leaders in the university they had a responsibility both here and in the state. In this, he said, lay the future of the school.

Prof. Walter A. Jessup, introduced as "more than president," advised that the annual dinner had become a ceremonial. That the older men, successful, busy men were here meeting with Mr. Finkbine to "share their rich successful lives with the boys."

Will Assume Charge of Physical Education

Administration Plans Full Revision of Department

Resignation of Paul E. Belting as director of athletics was announced last night from the president's office, following a meeting of the university athletic council yesterday afternoon. The resignation will take effect as soon as a successor is appointed.

Professor Belting in his resignation said that "continued opposition, dissension, and jealousy, which has been embarrassing to the university and disheartening to me," was the reason for his action.

In accepting the resignation, the athletic council passed a motion granting the work of Professor Belting during the five years that he has been connected with the University of Iowa, and recommending that he be retained by the university in some capacity.

Professor Belting has accepted a position as head of the physical education department, the work of which will be entirely separate from the management of inter-collegiate athletics. The resignation will take effect as soon as a successor is appointed.

To Change Organization

The Association of education from reliable sources, the administration of the division of athletics and physical education will undergo a sweeping revision. It is understood, however, that it is understood, has general supervision over the work of the head of the physical education department, and that the director of inter-collegiate athletics, yet to be appointed.

The full text of Professor Belting's resignation follows:

April 26, 1929
My Dear President Jessup:

This year I am completing a five-year program of education from reliable sources, the administration of the division of athletics and physical education in the State University of Iowa. Under this new organization the inter-collegiate athletics will be built; the golf course was developed, and the new stadium was begun and is now under rapid construction. The result of this physical education have been revised; the semi-professional curricula in physical education were initiated, and numbers of men and women have been trained who have reached a high level of development, and the intercollegiate teams have achieved distinction. Much of this success has been due to the direction of the net proceeds from inter-collegiate football.

To this program of achievement I point with pride. Naturally continued opposition, dissension, and jealousy have developed over a program that not only has moved so rapidly but also has only had educational aims in view. I would gladly see the stadium through to final completion, but these matters have been entrusted to the university and disheartening to me.

I, therefore, tender my resignation to you, and I am glad to see the completion of this five year program.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) Paul E. Belting.
Graduate of Illinois

Prof. Belting is a graduate of the University of Illinois, where he also received his master's degree. While at Illinois he was a star lineman on the football team in 1910 and 1911.

Later he accepted a position as principal at Oklahoma high school. He coached football and in 1916 he coached his football team to a state championship.

He was principal of the Globe, Ariz. high school and held a similar position at Martinsville, Ill. Then in 1917 and 1920, he was director of games for boys at the Horace Mann school of New York City.

The University of Illinois then secured him services as there, he was director of games for boys at the Horace Mann school of New York City.

Professor Belting came to the University of Iowa as director of physical education in June, 1924.

Dance Chief Event as Nonpareil Club Entertains Couples

A humming bird tag dance featured the annual dinner dance of the Nonpareil club at Youde's inn last night.

Thirty-eight couples were seated at tables trimmed in wild crab apple blossoms with place cards and nut cups to match, and lighted by tall pink tapers.

Immediately following the dinner the following dancers were elected: Charles Beckman, president; E. B. Korab, vice-president and Margaret Petrick, secretary and treasurer.

During the course of the evening the lights were turned out and a great golden moon shone on the dancers from behind a rose covered trellis. Putnam's orchestra furnished the music. After the last number, roses were picked off the trellis and presented to the ladies.

The committee in charge of the dance was Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Korab, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Beckman, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mezik, Jr., Dr. and Mrs. William M. Rohrbacher, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Soucek.

Orchestra to Give Spring Program

A program of orchestral numbers has been arranged by Frank E. Kendrie, conductor, university symphony orchestra for the spring concert to be given at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow in the lounge of Iowa Union.

Standard orchestral literature to be played comprising selections by symphony orchestras all over the world. An overture, some known as the "Elk King's" from the opera "Cleron" by Marie Von Weber, is the first set of the program. The opera is played without pause in the story of the "Elk King's" by Marie Von Weber's own direction.

Cerily to Solo

The three movements of "Cerily in E Minor" written by Mendelssohn, who later collaborated with Ferdinand David, violinist, in his revision of a violin concerto, will be played without pause in the story of the "Elk King's" by Marie Von Weber's own direction.

"Prelude and Love-Death" from the opera "Frisian and the Sea" by the composer of some 100 operas was completed in 1885, although the piece was written first and given in times before the rest of the opera was completed. It is characterized by the theme known as "Love Potion" or "Motiv of the Wind Instruments." The "Death" is the finale of the opera.

To Play Old Gold

The theme of "Old Gold," from "Believe me, all things are possible" is the first of the "dear young charms" is contained in the "Irish Rhapsody" composition was written by Herbert Ross, a composer of some of the most popular Irish songs.

Ruth Harris Olson, G of Des Moines, will sing "Depute la" from "Believe me, all things are possible" which was written by Gustave Charpentier and produced in Paris in 1909. The "Depute la" is the first of the "dear young charms" which Louise sings to her lover at the beginning of the third act of the opera.

The march "Pomp and Circumstances" written by Sir Edward Elgar is well known. The piece will conclude with the "Ave Maria," "Old Gold."

Orchestra to Give Spring Program

University Symphony to Play Standard Compositions

A program of orchestral and solo numbers has been arranged by Prof. Frank E. Kendrick, conductor of the university symphony orchestra, for the spring concert to be given at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow in the main lounge of Iowa Union.

Standard orchestral literature will be played comprising selections used by symphony orchestras all over the world. An overture, sometimes known as the "Elfkings' Oath" from the opera "Oleanna" by Carl Maria von Weber, is the first number of the program. The opera was first presented in London in 1826 under Weber's own direction.

Cerily to Solo

The three movements of the "Concerto in E Minor," written by Mendelssohn, who later collaborated with Ferdinand Furtwaengler, violinist, in its revision as a violin concerto, will be played without pause by Harold Ceray, A2 of Belle Plaine.

"Prelude and Love-Death," taken from the opera "Tristan and Isolde" will be the second orchestral number. The opera was first given in Munich in 1865, although the prelude was written first and given several times before the rest of the opera was completed. It is characterized by the theme known as the "Love Potion" or "Kiss of Love-Death," and is carried by the woodwind instruments. The "Love-Death" is the finale of the opera.

To Play Old Gold

The theme of "Old Gold," taken from "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" is carried out in the "Irish Rhapsody." This composition was written by Victor Herbert, the composer of some of the most popular Irish songs.

Ruth Harris Olson, G of Red Oak, soprano, will sing "L'oiseau Le Jour" taken from the French opera, "Louise." The opera was written by Gustave Charpentier and first produced in Paris in 1900. The air, "Depuis le Jour" is the love song which Louise sings to her lover at the beginning of the third act in the opera.

The march "Pump and Circumstances" written by Sir Edward Elgar is well known. The program will conclude with the university hymn, "Old Gold."

Noted Conductors to Judge National Orchestra Contest

National high school orchestra champions will be determined by the decision of three noted conductors and a university professor when the finest groups in the United States compete at the University of Iowa May 17 and 18.

The famous orchestral conductors who will come to Iowa City for the first national competition are Emil Oberholzer, conductor of the Minneapolis symphony orchestra for 19 years; Sander Hamati, of the Omaha symphony orchestra; and George Esch, of the Chicago Civic orchestra symphony group. Prof. J. E. Maddy, of the University of Michigan is the fourth judge.

Oberholzer, Hamati, and Esch will judge the contestants on instrumentation, interpretation, tone, and general effect. Maddy will judge the sight-reading tests. Each orchestra will play two compositions, selected from a list of 20 numbers.

One of the most distinguished of American conductors, Oberholzer, also taught at the University of Minnesota in addition to his work with the Minneapolis orchestra. He led this organization in more than 2,000 concerts during the 19 years of service. For several summers, he has conducted public concerts in the Hollywood, Cal. bow.

Esch was assistant conductor of the Chicago Civic orchestra under Frederick Stock for four years, and is the leader of the string quartet which bears his name.

Professor Plant Talks to Botanists

Sidney Miller to Give Final Lecture on Monday

The twenty-third Botany club lecture of the year was delivered Monday by Prof. O. H. Plant, head of botany and pharmacology.

His subject was "Problems in the physiology of plants related to drugs—from a pharmacologist's point of view." He stated that the two basic substances producing drugs in plants were alkaloids and glycosides.

Efforts have been made to create artificial substances which have the properties of drugs. These attempts have been most successful in the case of cocaine.

Alkaloids are found in almost every part of the plant, sometimes in a highly concentrated form. He gave an example of the opium in the unripe seed of the poppy. The opium is not found in the dry seeds, leaf, or roots of the poppy.

In contrast to the poppy, the mustard seed produces its oil of mustard not in the fresh green seed, but in dry seed when warmed and moistened.

Thomas Speaks first
The first Botany club lecture of the year was given by Prof. A. O. Thomas of the zoology department, on "A general survey of life in the history of the world."

The last one will be given Monday by Prof. Sidney L. Miller, director of the bureau of business research. His subject will be "Cer-

Colonial TEA ROLLS

24 for 10 cents

Here is a delightful, dainty, light roll that you can buy fresh from your grocer. The rolls are good cold just as they come but—oh, to warm them up! You'll say they are unsurpassed. Simply place them in the oven, bag and all—and let them heat through. Heated in the bag, the fine flavor and just the right moisture are retained.

A CREED

"If you work in a town, in Heaven's name work for it. If you live in a town, live for it, give for it. Help advance your neighborhood. Respect the great power that protects you, that surrounds you with the advantages of advanced civilization, and that makes it possible for you to achieve results. Speak well of it. Stand by it. Stand for its civic and commercial supremacy. If you must obstruct or decry those who strive to help, why—quit the town. But as long as you are a part of a locality, do not belittle it. If you do, you are loosening the tendrils that hold you to the community, and with the first high wind that comes along you will be uprooted and blown away, and probably you will never know why."—Charles G. Dawes.

Revolutionists to Order

RUSSIA'S colleges and universities are putting on a thorough program to turn out their students as communists. Russian communists have decided that their higher schools are not "temples of knowledge, but schools of communism."

This only shows that an old tyrannical order is overthrown by freedom-seekers, who themselves turn around and become more tyrannical than those they overthrew. History repeatedly points this fact, and Soviet Russia is no exception. Only the children of workmen are admitted to a university, as these children already have a good start on the road to radical communism.

Professors are tied hand and foot. They must all go before a committee of students and be examined and if their ideas are not sufficiently radical, they are dismissed. No matter how great a man may be in his field of education, no matter what his qualifications as a professor, if he is not an extreme radical, he must go.

And the students who thus decide whether or not a professor may stay are almost entirely of the lower class families, uneducated, rough, and with only one great radical idea. And they hold the future of Russian education in their hands.

All of the old ideals of education have been thrown to the winds. Here it is not the aim of the university to open new fields of thought to a student, to broaden him, and made him think and decide for himself. The radical course is laid out and those who do not agree have no opportunity for education. All that is taught must correspond to the theories of Marx and Lenin, and a number of branches of education have been thrown out entirely as not agreeing with the Russian government.

The soviet government is out to train its radicals. Taking the young men and women of the country and educating them along these lines is a thorough step in planning for the future as it is the young people who will soon continue the government. But it looks as if the officials who planned this program had forgotten one thing—another thing which history has also consistently taught. And that is that high-handed force can last only so long, and that eventually those persons who do not agree but who are being thrown out by the force will some day rebel against this new tyranny as the communists rebelled against the Czar. And the sooner they rebel successfully, the better it will be for Russia. A narrow education controlled by government policies is a dangerous thing for any country and one of the deadliest barriers to progress.

Obstacles to Progress

ALTHOUGH aviation is progressing by leaps and bounds, there are still two things which tend to hold back the development. The public seems to have a natural fear of anything which is new or unfamiliar, and it is also rather reluctant to pay the necessary higher rates for air travel and transportation.

That the American public is learning is demonstrated by figures which show the rapid growth of aeronautical ventures, but we need more education to speed up the process.

Americans never seriously object to paying for something they want badly enough. High-priced automobiles have been purchased when cheaper cars would have served nearly as well. Luxurious and high-priced trains have been well patronized. Faster and better modes of travel have come in spite of any objection of a few.

Aviation is coming in the same way, and it will develop even more rapidly during the next few years.

At first, appeal for business was made on grounds of civic pride and desire of citizens to boost their city and country. But the more recent, and also more successful, attempt to increase use of air mail and transportation have been made on purely business arguments.

Modern men and women like to do everything in a business-like fashion. They will use air travel if it will save them time and money. They will send their mail by plane if it will save them hours of time.

Just as rapidly as the public finds out the great savings in time and money which can be brought about by using air transportation, we can expect to see aviation develop in like proportion and speed.

No Place for Politics

AN ALL-UNIVERSITY election to select three members of the student board of publications will be held May 21. The three men chosen will be called upon to help direct the finances and policies of a corporation that does many thousands of dollars worth of business annually.

Few students realize the significance of this board. They will be wise to banish the dead political alignments and select men who are fitted for directors of a corporation that primarily belongs to the students of this university.

Student Publications Inc. is five years old, and in that time has attained a steady and sound growth through careful management. The group of directors must not be looked upon as the plaything of amateur campus politicians, but as a body that must and does control an important factor in the student and faculty life of the university.

Happenings in Washington

THE social war has again flared up in Washington and the cause of it is still Mrs. Gann, the sister of the vice-president. Alice Roosevelt Longworth has seen fit to open the whole dispute again by politely refusing to attend a dinner and have Mrs. Gann given a so-called "preference" in the seating at the table.

We had hoped that this diplomatic dispute had been settled, but it seems that no mere man's decision could settle the position of a woman—other women have decided to settle it in their own way.

There should be enough important things happening in the nation's capital to fill the front pages of the newspapers, but what congress is doing about the important legislative matters up for consideration must wait until a group of women can fight out where they are going to sit at a dinner table. It shows the great and varied problems administrative officers must deal with.

We can only hope this petty trifling may soon end and Washington can get its mind back on more important things.

The Farmer Turns to the Chemist

(From The Christian Science Monitor)
The farmer who has long been sitting upon the legislative doorstep is now peering through the laboratory window in search of farmer relief. He has begun to believe that the chemist, as well as the Congressman, may discover the solution to his problems. He is becoming convinced that a new vapor in a test tube presents far more promise than the mirage which oftentimes arises from political conferences.

This conviction was strongly expressed by Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange. Speaking before the American Chemical Society at its Columbus (O.) convention, Mr. Taber declared that chemical research offered a more permanent solution of the agricultural problems than any measures which Congress might adopt. He was repeating what researchers themselves have believed for some time—that discovery of new and important industrial uses for farm products will transform the present vexing overproduction into a highly profitable surplus.

The role which the chemist will play in the future of agriculture is indicated by the results of research that has been progressing quietly behind the doors of the Nation's laboratories. The kernel of corn has yielded fifty different products; the humble corn cob is transformed into phonograph records or paint remover; the cornstalk is made into paper. Dozens of products have been made from cotton seeds, ranging from soap to artificial leather. Door knobs and wall paper can be produced from sour milk. Fruit pits reappear as charcoal. And yet the chemist insists that this is only the beginning of such things.

Most of the research in this field has been for the purpose of eliminating waste. The chemist has seen the tremendous volume of farm material that was of no apparent worth and has proceeded to find a way of turning it into something which the world can use. The next step appears to be the development of basic industrial uses for farm products as well as for farm by-products. It envisages the time when certain phases of agriculture will operate primarily for the production of raw material for industry.

Meanwhile the chemist has also been turning his attention to the solution of many of the farmer's technical problems. Engineers are busy studying standardization, production costs and the improvement of distribution methods. All this may offer no immediate panacea, but it is the sort of thing upon which future progress is based. The farmer who thinks otherwise may profitably reflect upon the simple fact that the cream separator—which has reduced his labor and increased his profits—was developed as the direct result of a classroom experiment by a professor of physics.

Chills and Fever

Columny
Not having the ambition of a shot putter, I didn't lift Webster's unabridged to learn the meaning of this word columny. But a pocket columny, which may be just another spelling, it means slander. I suppose columny stands for the printed form of a scandal.

This business of running a column is great stuff, though, as I'm dodging assaults now instead of creditors.

People, somehow or other, have the idea that it's an insult to have one's name in a humorous column, when it's the best form of advertising going. Who would ever have heard of Dean Rienow if it hadn't been for Frivol and Chilly? Many others owe their fame to just such such appearance before the public.

Some time ago I ran a woman's name quite innocently, just using facts. She hasn't spoken to me since, except with a look that would cut the air in our stuffy hall auditorium at Dubuque and Iowa.

AND HER, THE MOTHER OF THREE, THEY TOLD ME BUT SO IS THAT COW ON THE BACK OF GRANDPA'S FARM, BIOLOGICALLY SPEAKING.

Which reminds me of an anecdote, good and hence not original.

Four "Don't you think make you neglect your children?" Hundred "No, I employ a governess to do that."

And there are others. They say a good columnist makes enemies. If that's so, I'm a first-rater.

As far as I'm concerned, the American supply of castor oil can be devoted entirely to racing cars or to oiling castors on down-payment furniture, so I've moved in and out with greater ease.

WHICH BRINGS UP THE THIRD PHASE OF THE MEMORY COURSE STUNT SHE DOES NOT KNOW ADDISON SINGS OF SEATTLE, BUT THE PRINCIPLE OF ASSOCIATION IS HERE. SEEING A MAN DRUNK IN THE GUTTER REMINDED HER THAT HER CAR NEEDED OILING.

If it weren't that she merely controls a car or two instead of owning one, I'd blame that one on Eleanor Dumm.

Would you mind getting in touch with me today, Ozzie? Come around to the Iowa at 3 o'clock or after 7:30. It's important.

It seems to me I was telling you about something or other—oh, yes, columny. Will the gentleman in the fifth row please give me his attention? Thank you.

As I was about to say, there's many a slip 'twixt the writer and the reader. Now if the slip is from a contributor, Herr Conductor slashes it a little. Then it goes to the editor, who bends over the copy with a pencil in hand, and then, just as anxious to find something wrong as the quad council often is.

And then it goes down stairs. Maybe some of it is blown off the desk or is dropped on the way down, but readers never know the difference, and the columnist can't remember just what he DID copy out of that joke book anyhow.

Then it has to be set on the line type machine, with about as many mistakes as there are Kappa Sig pledges. Next the proofreader gets it, and has the lines with errors reset. After everything seems to be O.K. it is then laid out for the makeup man. And what he doesn't do to it.

Space is worth 42 cents the column inch, I'm told, and every new classified ad means that something must come out of Chilly. I don't tell you that to boost the classified advertising, but I guess that's all right.

The upshot of it all is that you have to write about two columns a day and have a third ready to replace a column that's been dropped when more of it goes than you expected, it flows over into the next column and the editor begins yelling about not leaving the meaning of "STOP" any more than a Beta.

Such is life in the middle west.

IS IT SO THAT THEY'VE POSTPONED THE ISSUANCE OF FRIVOL SO AS TO TAKE NO CHANCES OF GIVING OUR MOTHERS A BAD IMPRESSION OF THE CAMPUS?

The Best Thing is Free
Including contributions to this column. Here are two that would warm the heart of a speech professor.

May we suggest as a slogan for this new armchair parachute descent in the news reel: "Good to the last drop."

Are you two persons, Julie, or do you just enjoy being plural?

It has been estimated that if all the typewriters in the Journalism building were taken apart and the unpaired parts reassembled, there would be O.N.T. decent machine.

About this use of the editorial "we" again. You know that used to be reserved for royalty and newspaper writers. Since the last war, kings have been discredited, except in checkers, and Lindbergh has usurped the monopoly of the pronoun. And the other pronoun, "it," hardly fits this column. It has no sex appeal.

Words Worth
If we were a poet, we would compose a lengthy piece about Iowa's extra-curricular activities and call it an "Ode on the Imitations of Immortality."

The girl's cabin was beautifully appointed and smothered with house flowers. She did not try to ask who had sent them. Men would not lose an opportunity of emphasizing his devotion, was too fond of flowers to them out of the porthole, but knowledge that he had sent rebuffed them of at least one.

Lord Creith and she dined that evening. The captain of the bridge, for they were dining down the crowded channel, got banks were reported by less between Portland Bill and Brest.

"A jolly good dinner," said lordship with satisfaction. "I got an excellent cook, stewards." "Yes, sir," said the chief steward, a Frenchman who spoke English much better than his lordship's French, "we have two."

The girl's cabin was beautifully appointed and smothered with hot-house flowers. She did not trouble to ask who had sent them. Mr. Harlan would not lose an opportunity of emphasizing his devotion. She was too fond of flowers to throw them out of the porthole, but the knowledge that he had sent them robbed them of at least one attraction.

Lord Creith and she dined alone that evening. The captain was on the bridge, for they were steaming down the crowded channel, and the banks were reported by wireless between Portland Bill and Brest.

"A jolly good dinner," said his lordship with satisfaction. "You've got an excellent cook, steward."

"Yes, sir," said the chief steward, a Frenchman who spoke English much better than his lordship spoke French. "We have two."

"All the crew are French, I suppose, as this is a French yacht?" The steward shook his head.

"No, my lord," he said, "most of the hands are English and Scottish. The owner of the yacht prefers an English crew. We have a few Frenchmen on board—in fact, we've almost every nationality including a man who I think is either a Turk or a Moor. He came on board at the last moment to work in the pantry, and he's been ill ever since we came out of the Solent. I believe he is a servant of the owner's; we are dropping him at Casablanca."

He served the coffee, and Lord Creith took a gulp and made a wry face.

"I praised your dinner too soon,"

"Whom were you sighing about just now?"

He heard her low laugh, and grinned to himself in the darkness. "I didn't know that I was sighing. I was thinking about Jim Morlake."

"A very nice fellow," said his lordship heartily. "An American, but a very nice fellow. I don't want a burglar family—naturally. But I'd just as soon have a burglar as a money-lender. In fact, I should prefer one. I don't know whether that is particularly generous to our beloved host, but there is something in the sea air that makes me candid."

The days that followed were, for Joan, days of almost perfect peace. The yacht was a delightful sea boat; the comfort and luxury of the appointments, and a glimpse of a scarcely remembered sun, added to her happiness. If by some miracle, the waving of a magic wand or the muttering of some potent incantation, she could have brought Jim into the deep, red-cushioned arm-chair—Jim, in white flannels, Jim, with his classical face and a patch of gray at his temples—She sighed.

CHAPTER XLVIII
MUTINY

The voyage passed without event until the morning of the day they reached Cadiz. Something aroused Joan from deepest sleep to most complete wakefulness. There was no sound but the sigh of wind and sea, and the peculiar monotony of the "creak-creak" at intervals, which is a ship's own noise. The gray light showed against the porthole and faintly illuminated the cabin. Sitting up in bed, she looked around.

A movement by the door attracted her attention; it was slowly closing, and, jumping to the floor, she ran and pulled it open. She caught a glimpse of a big figure disappearing in the gloom of the alleyway, and then a strange thing happened. He had almost reached the end of the narrow passage when something rose from under his feet and tripped him. Even amidst the sea noises she heard the thud as he struck the hard deck. He was on his feet in an instant, and then, for some reason, he fell again. Straining her eyes, Joan saw a man stand over him and pull him upright. In another instant they were out of sight.

She locked the door and went back to bed, but not to sleep. It may have been an accident; it may have been that one of the crew was a thief—few crews, even a yacht's crew, but may include one of those pests of the sea. Perhaps the thief had been detected by a watchful quartermaster, and that was the explanation of the little fight she had witnessed. She did not wish to worry her father, but as soon as she was up and dressed, she went in search of the chief steward and reported what had happened. He was genuinely concerned.

"I don't know who it could have been, miss. The watch were on deck, scrubbing down, at daybreak, and there's a night steward on duty in the alleyway. What was the man like?"

"As far as I could see, he wore a white singlet and a pair of blue trousers."

"Was he tall or short?"

"He was very big," she said, "and the man passed the crew under review."

"I'll speak to the chief officer," he said.

"I don't want to make any trouble."

"You're ladyship will probably make more trouble if you don't report this," he retorted.

Lord Creith, who generally found the most comfortable explanation, suggested that she had been dreaming. But—a suggestion which she indignantly rejected.

Beckner Runs 440 in 50.9; Pape Wins Dash From Frosh

John Beckner, Clarinda sprinter, turned in the best time of the yearling youths last night when he stepped a quarter mile in 50.9. Clark and Hubbard finished in a tie for second place with a 51.2 time.

Beckner also won the high hurdles for freshman entries and placed second in the 100 yard dash. Willers from the Illinois state followed Beckner to the tape in the high hurdles. The time for the high hurdles was 15 flat.

Pape of the varsity squad, led the freshmen to the finish in the hundred with Conway. Beckner, Hubbard and Redel finishing in that order. Conway took the 220 yard run in 22.6 with Redel, the former Cedar Rapids sprinter, placing second.

1930 HOPES For Old God

Following in his brother's footsteps, Paul Towne, a speedy little blonde pitcher from La Porte City, has shown up as one of the most promising of this year's freshman baseball aspirants. A good fast ball, and one of the best curves on the field has made him stand out even among the varsity players.

Wisconsin Upset by Wildcats Puts Ball Race in Air

Big Ten baseball found another upset yesterday when the Wisconsin team was dumped from top place in the standing by the hustling Northwestern aggregation. The conference race is still much in the air, with the Michigan brigade still with a clean slate in the circuit, but with out yet entering the major part of the schedule.

Plan Post-Olympics

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Although making no protest against the award of the 1932 Olympic winter sports championships to Lake Placid, N. Y., California plans to conduct a Post-Olympic program of winter sports at Lake Tahoe, according to information made public today through the American Olympic committee.

Gavuzzi Increases Lead

COALGATE, Okla., May 7 (AP)—Pete Gavuzzi, bearded Italian of England, regained the time he lost yesterday in C. C. Pyle's bunion derby when he ran the 54 miles from Holdenville, Okla., to Coalgate today in 7:27.30.

Reedquist Crashes Home Run in 11th to Score Nelson

CEDAR RAPIDS, May 7 (Special to The Daily Iowan)—Iowa's "B" baseball team, which seemingly has won another long distance contest as liking for extra inning games, today, defeating the Coe college nine 8-7 in 11 innings. The Hawkeyes won the game when Nelson singled and Reedquist knocked what would have been a home run had he not pulled a "Merkle" and failed to touch first base. The one run scored by Nelson was enough, however, to win the game as Coe could not score in its half of the frame. Coe contributed 11 errors to help the Iowans win.

Wildcats Scramble Conference Race, Beat Badgers, 8-3

MADISON, Wis., May 7 (AP)—Northwestern's "giant killers" jolted Wisconsin into a tie for second place in the Big Ten baseball race today, handing the Badgers their first conference defeat of the season, 8 to 3, in a 10-inning game.

Tutors Hand Luther First Defeat, 17 to 10

CEDAR FALLS, May 7 (AP)—The Luther college baseball team suffered its first defeat of the season today when Iowa State Teachers college won a 17-10 game. Two weeks ago Luther won a 10 inning game from the Teachers.

This and That in Sports

Boxing in Iowa City is due for a revival. Under supervision of the American legion drum and bugle corps, an amateur boxing show consisting of 35 rounds of boxing will be sponsored May 11. This is the first attempt at staging a fight show here for over a year, and its success or failure will be watched with interest by boxing enthusiasts or would-be promoters in hopes of fortelling the future of the game in Iowa City. Boxing has enjoyed a healthy growth in the last few years in Iowa, mainly because it has been under the guidance of American legion posts whose directors have seen that the bouts were on the up and up.

Pirates Rally in Eighth, Tenth to Defeat Giants, 3-2

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—The Pirates rallied in the eighth and the tenth to defeat Larry Benton and the Giants in the first game of the series here today, 3 to 2. Lloyd Waner's double and Traynor's single accounted for the winning run in the tenth. Cohen and Fultz hit home runs in the first and second, respectively, but French thereafter led the McGraw clan at bay.

Moose, Legion Play 4-4 Tie on Diamond

In a game featured by home runs and air night playing, the Legion will club head the Moose to a 4 to 4 tie in a game played at the city park yesterday. The game was played to extra innings, but the argument will be settled some Saturday, probably May 18.

CHRYSLER MOTORS PRODUCT

With its many vital Betterments PLYMOUTH becomes an Even More Remarkable CAR

Features of vital importance added by Chrysler engineers to Plymouth's modern high-compression engine enable this great power plant to attain a new degree of operating efficiency, with still greater smoothness, silence and flexibility.

Lengthened piston stroke, larger crankshaft with bigger bearings, larger connecting rods and camshaft bearings, full-pressure lubrication of new design, an advanced system of manifold and improved crankcase ventilation assure added excellence in performance with an increase in economy.

Nor have improvements in Plymouth been confined solely to the power plant. Plymouth now offers self-conforming cushions that insure actual "easy-chair" repose. A refinement made in the steering mechanism creates an even more sensitive response to the driver's will.

PLYMOUTH—product of Chrysler engineering and craftsmanship—has been so named because its endurance and strength, ruggedness and freedom from limitations accurately typify that Pilgrim band who were among the first American Colonists.

Add to these such other costly features as aluminum alloy pistons, rubber engine mountings, and a scientifically engineered chassis with 4-wheel hydraulic brakes, of the famous Chrysler weatherproof internal-expanding type. Then you will quickly understand why Plymouth is unapproached in value among low-priced cars.

Hawkeye Track Hopes Rise as Illinois-Iowa Dual Meet Nears

Baird, Stevenson Show Good Form in Century Dash

Pape Makes Next Best Time; Saling Wins Hurdles

Iowa's hopes for points in the dashes in the Illinois dual Saturday were given a boost yesterday when Stevenson and Baird both ran 9.5 seconds against a slight breeze in the century time trials. Pape was second in time made in the trials.

Baird won the 250 yard dash, with Stevenson second and Stamata third. Time trials were run only in the two dashes and in the relay and low hurdles. George Saling won both the high and low hurdles, with Morrison second in the high and Geneva second in the low.

The workout for the rest of the meet was optional, most of the sprinters and quarter milers taking part in the dashes for their workout. Brookings in Charge

High jumpers took a hard workout, jumping for height. Charles H. Brookings, assistant track coach, conducted the time trials and directed the workout in the absence of George T. Bresnahan who fell ill in the hospital undergoing treatment for a nose infection.

Official entries for the Illinois-Iowa dual track and field meet total 32 athletes, according to announcement at the department of athletics. Coach George T. Bresnahan, whose team won the Big Ten indoor championship in March, has named the same 44 men that he entered in the Michigan meet. Illinois' coach, the veteran Harry Gill, has filed names of 32 athletes.

Abbott Stars for Illinois

Prominent among the Illinois entries are Dave Abbott, Olympic runner who here a National Collegiate title and two Big Ten two mile championships to his credit; Captain Harold White, the Big Ten outdoor half mile champion of 1928 and holder of the 1925 indoor title; Lee Sentman, the sophomore hurdler who won the high at Kansas and Drake, and the Iowa star and Ohio Wesleyan, and Robert Carr, winner of the Big Ten indoor high jump last year and Ohio relay champion.

It will be the second outdoor dual meet of the year for the Iowans, but Illinois first appearance, Iowa was downed by Michigan, 69 to 66, last Saturday, although winning nine of 15 events.

Heavy point winners for the Old Gold team, probably will be Charles Ferskald in the shot and javelin, Edward Gordon, high jump and broad jump; George Baird, quarter mile; and Henry Carby, pole vault.

Sport fans will have an opportunity to witness a novel steeplechase run when the annual competition for the Ida Grove and Cedar Rapids trophies sponsored by the Iowa Cross Country club takes place on Iowa field, May 14. An entry of more than 60 athletes is expected by Coach George T. Bresnahan.

White Sox Stop Mack's Athletics in Opener 4 to 2

CHICAGO, May 7 (AP)—Alphonse Thomas and the White Sox put a crimp in Connie Mack's Athletics today, taking the series opener, 4 to 2. Thomas restricted Philadelphia to five hits, while his mates hammered "Bob" Grove for an even dozen.

Grove kept the Sox safeties fairly well-scattered, but errors, three of them by Jimmy Dykes, Athletic shortstop, helped Chicago to score the necessary runs.

Chicago's batting line-up was: Pape, 2b; Haas, 1b; Cochrane, c; Simmons, lf; Hale, 3b; Miller, rf; Dykes, ss; Grove, p.

White Sox batting line-up was: Pape, 2b; Haas, 1b; Cochrane, c; Simmons, lf; Hale, 3b; Miller, rf; Dykes, ss; Grove, p.

Intramurals

Tearing down all opposition as in former years, the Sigma Phi nine emerged victorious from the finals of the athletic tournament, defeating the Phi Kappa Psi aggregation, who struck a stumbling block upon reaching the final round. At the end of the match Sigma Phi was leading by a 2 to 0 score.

Neither team scored for the first five innings of the game. Ford has been the pitching ace for the Phi Psi's in most of the games they have played. He has been largely responsible for the advancement of the Phi Psi's, and although he lost the final game, much credit is given him through his stellar performance.

The first round matches of the tennis tournament have been completed. All second round matches must be completed by May 13, in order that the tournament may be completed by the end of the year.

Kappa Sigma met Alpha Sigma Phi on the courts, and were victorious, the match going to the full three sets. Alpha Sigma Phi took the first set 2-6, but lost the next two, 6-2, 11-3.

Sigma Chi defeated the "B" team of Delta Chi in two straight sets in their first round match. After winning the first set 6-4, Sigma Chi continued their act, winning the second 6-2.

The all university efficiency contest will be held at the field house tonight at 7:15 p.m. Medals will be awarded to the 10 men who place highest in all events.

Babe Ruth Clouts Four Ply Drive; Browns Lose, 6-5

ST. LOUIS, May 7 (AP)—A ninth inning rally against Alvin Crowder netted the Yankees two runs and a 6 to 5 victory over the Browns in the first game of the series here today. Babe Ruth hit his fifth home run in the fourth, Herb Pennock again was knocked from the box, Wiley Moore and Tom Zachary finishing. Rip Collins relieved Crowder in the ninth. The victory gave the Yanks the league lead for the first time this season.

St. Mary's Defeats Iowa State, 3 to 0

ST. MARYS, Kan., May 7 (AP)—Behind the brilliant pitching of O'Boynick, St. Mary's college defeated Iowa State this afternoon, 3 to 0, in a baseball game here. O'Boynick held the Ames crew to three hits and only one of the visitors reached third, while the Knights rapped Arthur of Iowa for two runs in the first inning and one run in the third inning.

Braves Rally to Defeat Cards, 8-5

BOSTON, May 7 (AP)—An eighth inning rally, resulting in four runs, today enabled the Braves to fight off the aspiring St. Louis Cardinals and win the first game of the series here, 8 to 5.

Phillies Rally Beats Reds 8 to 6 on Homer

PHILADELPHIA, May 7 (AP)—An eighth inning rally enabled the Philadelphia Nationals to win over Cincinnati today, 8 to 6. Cincinnati was leading in the eighth when O'Doul, Phillies, cracked out his fifth home run of the season, with two on. Walker, Cincinnati, also made a home run.

Iowa Tennis Men Drill for Gophers

With one win and one defeat to its credit, the Hawkeye tennis team will begin drilling today for a match with the Minnesota squad, at Minneapolis May 18. Since the men have a week and a half to train for the racket swinging contest with the Gophers, Coach Ernest C. Schroeder gave the men a leisurely workout yesterday.

The Gophers are supposedly one of the strongest tennis teams in the conference this year. Cornell, who won the conference single championship last year, is still on the squad and promises to show the Hawks plenty of competition in one match of the singles.

Crippled Red Sox Nip Cleveland, 5-4

CLEVELAND, May 7 (AP)—The crippled Boston Red Sox nosed out Cleveland here today, 5 to 4, by out-hitting Wes Ferrel out of the box.
