D. A. R. to Mark Birthplace of President Hoover at West Branch With Public Program

Shambaugh to Give Address at Ceremonies

The birthplace of Herbert Hoover, first person born west of the Mississippi river to become the president of the United States, will be marked Saturday at 2:30 p.m. The ceremonies will take place just 55 years after the little Quaker lad destined to become the thirty-first president of his country, was born in a rude, frame house in West Branch.

The Pilgrim chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution of Iowa City, has obtained a marker which will be formally dedicated at a public program. This marker which is a huge boulder, bearing a bronze tablet, will be placed near the house.

Mrs. George M. Clearman, wife of Senator Clearman of Oxford, will be master of ceremonies during the day. She is chairman of the historical spots committee of the local organization of D.A.R. Other members of the committee include: Mrs. W. P. Boulden, Mrs. A. G. Frimco, Mrs. Sarah Plapp Hoffman, and Mrs. Atta Hoopes all of Iowa City.

Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh, superintendent of the state historical society of Iowa, will give the main address on the program. Mayor N. P. Olsen of West Branch, who will extend his greetings, Mrs. W. H. Hamilton, state regent of the D.A.R., and Mrs. Robert T. Johnson of Knoxville, state chairman of the historical spots committee, also will be on the program.

Besides these talks there will be special music by the West Branch band. Presiding over the program, the local chapter of the D.A.R. will entertain guests of the day at dinner at the Hotel Hoover.

The marker is a granite boulder weighing more than one and one-half tons. It is a gift from Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Hemphill of North Liberty.

Chapter Selects Marker
The bronze plate will bear the following inscription:
"Birthplace of Herbert Hoover, first president of the United States born west of the Mississippi river. Marked by the Pilgrim chapter of the American Daughters of the Revolution."

The committee which selected the marker were: Helen White, regent of the Pilgrim chapter, Zada Cooper, and Carrie Weatherly, all of Iowa City.

Mrs. Clarence Van Epps is chairman of the invitations committee, and Mrs. Clara Weber has had charge of finances. The monument was paid for by voluntary contributions from the local members.

Great Britain Favors Basis of Reparation of Reparation

Snowden Says Nation Opposes Division of Payments
THE HAGUE, Netherlands, Aug. 6 (AP)—Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer in the labor government, today thrust into the foreground of the 1929 conference of The Hague, his government's opposition to the revision of German reparations payments among the allies as defined by the Young committee in Paris.

"Taking the floor immediately after the commencement of the first business session, Mr. Snowden informed delegations from 11 other nations that Great Britain was in favor of the principle of the Young plan, but was stoutly opposed to the division of payments which the Paris experts had evolved.

"The chancellor, who held the floor all the first business session, today, asked his fellow statesmen to forgive him for speaking plainly, but, he continued, he was in accord with his friend Premier MacDonald and with all the political parties in Great Britain in opposing any further sacrifice in reparations receipts by Great Britain.

"The new distribution of reparations proposed by the experts is indefensible, and I note the experts made no attempt to explain or defend it," Mr. Snowden declared vigorously.

He affirmed that his government was ready at any time to cancel all reparations payments and all war debts under the principles laid down by the Balfour note, but that as long as reparations were to be received and debts to be paid Great Britain intended to see to it she received equitable treatment.

He said that under the distribution made by the financial experts in Paris, France got five-sixths of the negotiable part of the reparations annuities and Italy received the equivalent of 10,000,000 pounds more than she was allotted under the Dawes plan. Meanwhile, only small sums had been left to the lesser reparations creditors.

Graf Zeppelin Will Take Off on Trip Today

Workmen to Complete Task of Preparing Liner by Noon
LAKEHURST, N.J., Aug. 6 (AP)—A score of pipes winding their way into the silver frame of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin hissed and whirred today with fuel and hydrogen being pumped into the great ship for her takeoff tomorrow on the first flight around the world by a lighter-than-airship.

Lieut. Com. Zeno Wicks, U. S. navy officer in charge of the refueling, said the task would be completed tomorrow noon and all would be in readiness for a midnight takeoff.

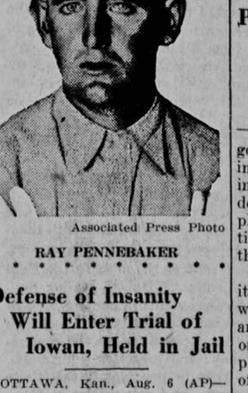

Wicks Accepts Position
Between orders to the refueling crew, today, Commander Wicks said he had resigned from the navy, effective Aug. 9, to become hangar and construction superintendent at the Akron, O., plant of the Goodyear Zeppelin company, which is now building a hangar in which to construct for the American navy two airships each twice as large as the Graf Zeppelin.

The complete passenger list had not been made public today but several names were learned. The Hamburg line announced that it had sold $9,000 tickets for the entire trip.

Among the passengers who will fly in the Graf as far as Germany and maybe farther are two New York hotel men and Morris Shamoske, a New Rochelle, N.Y., baker. The round the world trip will be made as observers for the American navy by Com. Charles Rosendahl, chief of navy dirigibles, a navy lieutenant and a civilian engineer attached to the navy at Washington. There will be 15 passengers.

Dr. Eckener expects to be back at Lakehurst in about a month, having arranged for refueling stops at Friedrichshafen, Tokyo and Los Angeles. His course between these points will be determined by weather conditions.

Held as Poisoner

Defense of Insanity Will Enter Trial of Iowan, Held in Jail
OTTAWA, Kan., Aug. 6 (AP)—The alleged murderer of his 6-year-old niece, Ray Pennebaker, 22 years old, Diagonal, Ia., farmer, today was held in jail here pending trial in September district court, with indications pointing to a defense of insanity.

Arrested last Friday and brought here from his home, Pennebaker confessed to giving a poisoned candy bar to his wife before her departure for a visit to her sister, Mrs. C. C. Barnes, living near here. Mrs. Pennebaker divided the candy between her sister's five children, and Elva Irene, 6 years old, soon died.

Justice John Hamilton yesterday ruled that Pennebaker should stand trial on a first degree murder, and denied him the right to bond.

James Locke, Bedford, attorney, represented the defendant at the hearing. He said he was not surprised at the crime. Pennebaker was known to have a child's mind, he said.

Two Convicts Die in Break for Freedom; Guards Turn Back Attempt of Six Felons

President Hoover Plans Relief for Crowded Federal Prisons
WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—Convinced that the federal government can delay no longer in relieving crowded conditions in governmental prisons, President Hoover today outlined a plan to provide more accommodations for federal law violators in the institutions.

When congress convenes for its regular session, the president will ask the necessary authority and appropriations for a revision of the federal penal system. The plan includes an appropriation of $5,000,000 for extending the prisons at Atlanta and Leavenworth and the probable construction of a new prison somewhere in the northeastern section of the country.

Hopes to Relieve Congestion
The president also hopes to relieve congestion by the appointment of a larger number of probation officers so that more prisoners can be placed on probation. Through a betterment of the probation system, Mr. Hoover is of the opinion that not only the prisoners would be benefited, "but the good of the federal government will be served."

The chief executive determined upon this plan of procedure following extended conferences with Attorney General Mitchell and Sanford Bates, the new director of prisons, which were expedited by the recent outbreak at Leavenworth.

Blames Overcrowding
Mr. Hoover said he considered overcrowding in the prisons the cause of "infinite demoralization and the direct cause of outbreaks and trouble." He declared the increased number of prisoners is due to the general increase in crime which led him to create a commission to investigate federal law enforcement and court procedures.

Statistics which have been placed in the president's hands show that the Atlanta prison is 120 per cent over capacity with Leavenworth housing 87 per cent more inmates than intended for its quarters. At those two institutions 33 per cent of the inmates are narcotic act violators, and 14 per cent are serving terms for prohibition violations.

Railroad Men View Airport

Bonds Not Issued Until Field Approved
B. M. Richardson, chairman of the state board of railway commissioners, was in Iowa City yesterday examining the airport with City Engineer Allen Wallen. Before the municipally owned airport is a certainty, and before the council will be allowed to issue the $70,000 worth of bonds, every member of the board of railway commissioners must approve the field.

The last step in assuring the city that approval will be given according to the law, is for the city to provide a topographical map for the commissioners. The map is being prepared and will be ready in two or three weeks," Dr. W. L. Bywater said yesterday. Dr. Bywater is chairman of the airport committee of the council, and is assisted by Alderman Len H. Kaufmann, and Jacob Van der Zee.

With the visit of Mr. Richardson to the local airport, there leaves only one member of the board, Fred P. Woodruff, who must examine the field. Charles Webster and George L. McCaughan are the commissioners who have already made the visit. The approval by these men will await the receipt of the topographical map. It is felt certain that the men will approve, according to Dr. Bywater, as other preliminary requirements have been met.

Lindbergh Suggests Survey of Territory By Means of Plane

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today applied his technical knowledge of aerial photographic surveying to an international problem.

Before the Bolivia-Paraguay commission of inquiry and conciliation he discussed the feasibility of mapping and surveying from the air the 200,000 square miles of undeveloped country in the Chaco Boreal, which is the subject of the historic controversy between the two nations. The commission is attempting to settle the dispute.

Lindbergh's assistance was described in an official announcement by the commission as "a significant contribution to the cause of international understanding on the American continent."

Tong Leaders to Arbitrate

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 (AP)—A new peace treaty between the On Leong and Hip Sing tongs was signed early today by leaders of both organizations in the presence of United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6 (AP)—An unidentified Chinese was shot tonight at South State and 18th streets in an area dominated by the Hip Sing tong. He was taken to a hospital, where physicians said he had little chance to recover.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 (AP)—Leaders of the On Leong and Hip Sing Tong, whose smouldering rivalry blazed forth along the Atlantic seaboard in Chicago Sunday, in a war that caused five killings in two days, today agreed to settle their difficulties with Dr. Samuel S. Young, Chinese consul general in New York, acting as arbiter.

Coal Miners Battle Troops

BUCHAREST, Aug. 6 (AP)—Fighting between coal miners of the Lupeny district and government troops today resulted in the death of 58 persons with hundreds of wounded and no signs of the disturbance subsiding.

It is feared today's all day battle will extend throughout the entire Lupeny district.

A labor dispute involving 4,000 coal miners is the root of the trouble. During the night the strikers were reported in control of the power station and to have put the district in darkness as well as stopping current to the mines. The report states mines still at work were thus placed in danger.

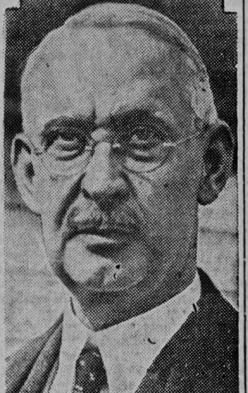

Revisers Cut Duty on Cars

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—The senate finance committee republicans, engaged in amending the house tariff bill, today reduced the duty on automobiles from 25 to 10 per cent and reaffirmed their previous action in eliminating the existing countervailing clause permitting the United States to raise its motor vehicle tariff to meet foreign levies.

By the change trucks valued at less than $1,000 would be dutiable at 10 per cent, but trucks worth more than $1,000 and busses intended to carry ten or more passengers would bear the 25 per cent rate.

The existing law, which the house bill did not change, provides a duty of 25 per cent on all motor vehicles and the countervailing arrangement. Previously, the tariff farmers had eliminated only the countervailing clause. The cut in duty decided upon today, they said, was made after it was learned that Alvan Macaulay, president of the Packard Motor company and the national automobile chamber of commerce, had agreed to both the duty reduction and countervailing clause elimination.

British Make Concessions to Egypt Under New Treaty

Military Occupation to Be Abandoned Except in Canal Zone

LONDON, Aug. 6 (AP)—British military occupation of Egypt, except for the Suez Canal zone, is abandoned and other important and far-reaching reforms agreed to in the new Anglo-Egyptian draft treaty, details of which were issued today from Downing street by the foreign office.

The agreement which Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson has negotiated with the Egyptian premier, Mohammed Pasha Mahmoud, in a general way, follows the lines of the abortive treaty of two years ago but makes important concessions to Egypt.

The British occupation will cease and British troops will be withdrawn to the Suez Canal zone.

The British government will use its influence to induce other powers to consent to the abolition of the capitulations or extra-territorial rights, and will assist Egypt to become a member of the league of nations.

Further, Great Britain recognizes that the protection of foreigners in Egypt is a matter involving solely upon the Egyptian government. The protection of minorities was one of the four "reserved" points by the British government two years ago. Some points not mentioned in the draft proposals are made clear in accompanying explanatory notes.

Thus the British inspector general of the Egyptian army will cease to function completely and all British personnel will be withdrawn from the Egyptian forces.

Similar concessions in other respects are foreshadowed in the notes exchanged. For instance, Egypt retains the right to engage Egyptian officials in various advisory capacities where British officials hitherto were employed.

SOCIAL EVENTS

"Klondike Dig" A Clever Idea at Club Frolic

Amid the icicles, snowflakes, and the blue gleams of northland lights, the members of the Iowa City country club traveled to the Arctic regions during their "Klondike dig" party at the clubhouse last night.

The affair was an amicable one. Guests were seated at small tables entered with bouquets of Hydrangea and baby breath. White and blue streamers and blue shaded lights suggested the far north as did the polar bears that decorated the room.

Following the dinner, claims were staked and a gold hunt ensued. The treasure found was in the form of bags filled with bright, new pencils. These were discovered by Mrs. W. F. Merriam and Mr. J. Turner.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Parsons were head of the committee in charge of the affair. They were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Willis Mercer, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Bailey, and Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Bennett.

Many out-of-town guests were included in the party.

Frances O'Connell Marries George C. Wyland at Denver

Word has been received of the wedding of Frances Edith O'Connell of Atlantic, and George Christian Wyland of Avoca, which took place Aug. 1 at Denver, Col.

The bride attended St. Mary's school at South Bend, Ind., and graduated from the University of Iowa, where she affiliated with the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. Mr. Wyland is also a graduate of the university.

After a wedding trip to Yellowstone park, the couple will make their home at Avoca.

Merritt Ewalt Weds North Liberty Girl

Mae Kelley, daughter of W. R. Kelley of North Liberty, and Merritt Ewalt of Iowa City, son of Myron Ewalt of Marshalltown, were married Saturday at the parsonage of the Methodist church in Cedar Rapids.

The Rev. H. W. Singer read the single ring services. After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's father. The couple then left on a wedding trip to Marshalltown and other Iowa cities. They will make their home at Iowa City where Mr. Ewalt is employed as a carpenter.

Iowa City guests at the dinner were Mrs. J. L. Weatherly and Mrs. Eva Lawre.

100 Students Tour Hospital

Interest in the normal working of two of Iowa City's large hospitals was in evidence yesterday afternoon when nearly 100 persons gathered for the campus excursion sponsored by the summer session office.

Members of the party met outside the tower entrance of general hospital at 4 p.m. The entire group was divided into four by John T. Goldman, assistant hospital administrator. Each section began its tour of inspection in a different part of the building for the convenience of the party, and to avoid congestion in the elevators. All groups, however, were permitted to see the outstanding features of the hospitals.

A tunnel trip connected the sight-seeing in the general hospital and that in the children's hospital. Opportunity of observing the making of braces, shoes and appliances was afforded in the latter hospital. Guests were shown the gymnasium of the children's hospital, also.

Guides were Dr. G. W. Graham, official hospital host; Mrs. L. W. Welcher, commitment clerk; Marcelle Lynch, hospital mail clerk, and Esther Forbes, social service secretary.

Bruce Mahan Will Conduct Excursion to U. S. Arsenal

The final excursion of the summer session will be taken Saturday, Aug. 10 to the United States arsenal, the largest in the world, at Rock Island, Ill.

A letter from the commanding officer of the arsenal, Col. D. M. King, has been received by Bruce E. Mahan, director of the tour. Col. King gives the party a "blanket" pass to inspect the government property.

During the World war the expense of maintaining the arsenal was phenomenal. New shops were erected, warehouses were built and in general the whole expansion made it the greatest in the world.

Indians Oppose Fort

The history of the arsenal tells that the government obtained possession of the land by a treaty with the Sauk and Fox Indians at St. Louis in 1804. William Henry Harrison carried out the negotiations for the government.

Chief Blackhawk later repudiated the treaty and this circumstance brought forth the Blackhawk war of 1832.

At the time of the erection of Ft. Armstrong on the island, one of the links in the chain of Mississippi river frontier forts, the Indians opposed the project. According to their belief a great spirit dwelt in the large cave at one end of the island. If a fort were built there the noise of the guns would drive the spirit away. But the objection never ruled for the fort was erected in 1816.

Historic Personage

One of the historic personages of the island was George Davenport, a fur trader, who opened an army store near the fort. Here soldiers could buy trinkets, sweet meats, and small articles. Such a merchant was called a "sutler." Today the city of Davenport bears his name.

A tragic death came to Davenport on July 4, 1845 when he was alone in his home and robbers entered his house and murdered him. He had accumulated considerable wealth. A federal prison camp existed on the island during the civil war. One of the sights of the place is the Confederate cemetery where several hundred prisoners are buried.

Arsenal Grows Rapidly

The great arsenal was built in 1865. Its growth has been rapid. At present, visitors are shown the shops where army tanks and tractors are assembled; warehouses where thousands of field pieces, tanks, tractors, and war equipment of all kinds are stored.

A museum containing relics from all the wars in which the United States has participated, from the Revolutionary to the World war, will be visited. There are also exhibits of the articles manufactured on the island, such as gas masks, metal and leather goods, shells and rifles.

Another of the historic sites is the remaining abutment of the first bridge across the Mississippi. In the early days the rivermen opposed this bridge and tried to have it removed because it obstructed the passage of boats up and down the river. When finally the Effie Shannon crashed into the bridge a suit was brought against the owners. Abraham Lincoln, the attorney, won the case.

Visit Palmer School

After the tour of the island which comprises 1,000 acres, the excursionists will have luncheon at Rock Island before going to Davenport to visit the Palmer chiropractic school.

Inclement weather will not prevent the tour because the roads are hard surfaced all the way.

Those who are planning to go must register at the summer session office, Old Capitol, before noon Friday.

The party will leave from the entrance of liberal arts building at 7 a.m. Saturday.

Dill to Speak at Wild Life School Tonight

MCGREGOR, Aug. 6 (AP)—A graphic description of an alligator hunt in the Louisiana swamps was described by Prof. Homer R. Dill of the University of Iowa, in an address prepared for delivery tonight at the American school for wild life protection. Professor Dill was director of the university expedition which went to southern states in 1918 to collect reptiles for a habitat group.

"After obtaining a native to serve as guide," Professor Dill said in relating the incidents of the hunt, "the party set out for alligators. After a journey of some two miles, the ground became so soft that the horses were unable to travel, and the remainder of the journey to the 'hole' was made on foot.

"At last a pool was reached that seemed an unlikely place for gators, but the guide was apparently satisfied. Presently the large pole that had been trailing from the guide's belt began to disappear foot by foot under the bank. This was the alligator hole.

"When the pole was in the hole some 15 feet, the hook on the far end was moved cautiously from side to side. Suddenly the operator straightened out, yanked, and braced his feet. The gator was hooked. Slowly, such by inch, it was drawn out. Finally there came a rush and a splash and the whole began to boll. The creature was out of its hiding place, slapping with its tail and snapping with its jaws. Around and around walked its captor, keeping his quarry hooked, until it was at least exhausted and a well placed rifle shot ended the excitement."

Most of the reptiles were collected at night, the scientist said, because their eyes reflected rays of searchlights and made them easy to locate and capture. Mosquitoes were so thick, he asserted, that it was necessary to wear head nets and gloves. During each meal these nets were removed only long enough for the hasty admission of food into the mouth.

Two carloads of material were collected, including birds, reptiles and trees, and were placed in the university museum.

Professor Ellis is a member of the staff of the history department and during the second term of the summer session has been conducting a course in modern European history. During last year he reviewed books for Current History magazine.

See Rapid Changes by Radios, Airplanes

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 6 (AP)—Predictions that the airplane and radio will do more to change Latin-America in the next 25 years than has anything in the last 200 years was made yesterday before the institute of politics at the first Latin-American conference.

Harry F. Guggenheim, president of the Daniel Guggenheim fund for promotion of aeronautics, and Prof. Harry Collings, of the University of Pennsylvania outlined economic and social changes to be brought by the airplane. Professor Collings directed the conference.

The work of the dental hygiene bureau is to assist in the establishment of dental health educational programs in every public school system in the state. Reports indicate last year about 70,000 school children were reached by some form of dental activity throughout the state.

These projects were carried on with and without assistants from the bureau of dental hygiene.

Extensive plans are being developed for work on a wider scale for the coming year and it is hoped that at least 150,000 school children may be reached by some form of dental activity.

Classes will meet in the senate chamber of Old Capitol and are limited to 8 persons in order that the director may be able to give each student special help and instruction.

Wheat Sinks Lower With Heavy Sales

Prices Suffer Almost Perpendicular Fall in Wild Selling

CHICAGO, Aug. 6 (AP)—Unnerved by whirlwind selling that without warning overtook the wheat market today, numberless traders in semi-panic let go of wheat wholesale. Prices for wheat suffered an almost perpendicular fall of as much as 7 1/2¢ a bushel here, compared with yesterday's finish, reaching a level fully 18¢ under recent current figures. The selling that started the smash of values was generally ascribed to Canadian sources.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were feverish, at virtually the day's lowest point, 6 to 7¢ net lower. Corn closed 1 3/4¢ to 2¢ down, oats 1 3/8¢ to 1 7/8¢ off, and provisions showing 2¢ to 10¢ setback.

Upsetting of confidence on the part of speculative owners of wheat came abruptly after the market here had shown a decided tendency to advance on account of reported big purchases of flour today in the southwest because of evidence of rapid falling-off in the movement of domestic winter wheat to most of the leading railroad terminals.

A tumble of 10¢ a bushel in wheat prices at Winnipeg added to the force of the selling storm which overwhelmed the Chicago wheat trade. Besides, the selling orders from Winnipeg came at a time when the Chicago market was apparently without much if any of the aggressive buying support that of late had been so conspicuous. Meanwhile, about the only immediate known incentives for the selling were reports of some rains in Canada, and rather vague advices that Argentina wheat acreage would be enlarged.

Relative slackness of export demand for wheat from North America was no doubt, also, a considerable factor, as well as general knowledge that speculative wheat contracts for future deliveries in the Chicago market have piled up to the unprecedented total of 217,088,000 bushels, an increase of about 12,000,000 bushels in hardly more than a week.

All other cereals reflected the weakness of the wheat market. Corn was responsive also to forecast of moistures much needed in the southwest.

Provisions were easier owing to downturns both of hog values and of grain.

Bond Mart Follows Along Easy Route With Prices Firmer

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 (AP)—The bond market traveled over soft ground again today. Although prices were a shade firmer than on Monday the general tone was easy, especially in the rails. Recessions proved to be mostly nominal in the standard issues and no extensive liquidation was in progress, but the underlying sentiment seemed to be unfavorable with 9 per cent time money making its reappearance after a very brief absence.

Convertible worked lower in the irregular session. Early declines were mostly erased by mid-afternoon, but selling was developed in the late trading and the close found most of the share privilege bonds lower. American Telephone 4 1/2's made an extreme dip of about 6 points, closing at 200 1/2 for a net loss of 4 1/2.

Industrials showed wide fluctuations. Steel issues were firm, but rubber company bonds and some of the specialties sagged.

Utilities ruled irregularly lower and oil company obligations, in which some far trading developed, were mixed.

United States government issues reflected the general sentiment by selling off, although in only one security, the Liberty first 4 1/4's, was there an appreciable turnover. Foreign bonds likewise with virtually all price changes fractional.

THE GREEN ARCHER

By Edgar Wallace

THE STORY SO FAR
Valerie Howett, adopted daughter of Senator Howett of Pennsylvania, is searching for her mother, Elaine Held, who, as Valerie suspects, was hidden in Garre castle, the owner of which, Abe Bellamy, is a Chicago millionaire with a repellent past, who now resides in England. Bellamy's motive was vengeance on the woman for refusing to marry him. The Howetts lease Lady's Manor, which adjoins the castle grounds. Bellamy identifies Valerie as an infant whom years before he delivered to Howett to rear when the latter was a poor farmer. Spike Holland, an American reporter working on a London newspaper, is investigating reports that a ghostly archer clad in green haunts the castle. Bellamy suspects Valerie of being the green archer. Featherstone, a Scotland Yard official, who is in love with Valerie, is helping her search for her mother. When next Bellamy enters the secret underground chamber where he has been keeping Valerie's mother, he finds that his prisoner has disappeared. Bellamy and Coldharbour Smith, keeper of a low resort in London, plot against Valerie. She is carried off by a ruse and put on board the steamer Confessa, but is rescued. Julius Savini and his wife, Fay, accept positions at Garre castle. In the night they hear mysterious tappings from underground and a muffled explosion. Old Bellamy is working at some unexplained plot. Later Bellamy entices the Savinis into the dungeon and imprisons them.

Valerie stood at the tunnel entrance of the room, not knowing what to do, scarcely capable of lifting one foot before another. She was dimly conscious that a girl was addressing her.
"Miss Howett?"
Valerie stared uncomprehendingly and then:
"Isn't it Mrs. Savini?" she asked shakily.
"In another moment Valerie was sobbing in Fay Savini's arms, and Fay felt her shivering as though she were sick of a fever.
"Is Captain Featherstone here?"
"You can see him, but he is not with us."
"Where is he? I must see him."
She scarcely noticed Julius, though it was he who showed her the grille and called Jim Featherstone to her.
"Jim, Jim," she called eagerly, and his brain reeled at the sound of her voice.
"Is it you, Valerie? Oh, my God!"
"We shall not be here for long," she said. "The police are being reinforced by soldiers and they are certain to catch him, and Holland thinks that the castle will be carried tonight."
"How did he get you here?"
"The Green Archer brought me."
"The Green Archer? Impossible. The Green Archer?"
"She nodded."
"It was Lacy."
Jim sat back on his heels and stared into the darkness where she was.
"I can't possibly be Lacy," he said. "Are you sure?"
"I pulled off his mask. I am absolutely sure."
"It is incredible. I can't understand it. I don't think it matters very much who is the Green Archer, my poor darling. That you are here is the crowning horror."
"What do you think he intends doing—Bellamy? What can he do in the time?"
"I am certain that he meditates something very dreadful," he said. "But whatever it is, Valerie, we have to meet it like—I nearly said English, but I forgot that you're American. We've got to die like good Anglo-Saxons, if it comes to that."
"You think there's no hope at all of getting into the castle?" she asked.
"None whatever," Jim's voice was emphatic. It was kinder that she should know. "Tell me how the Green Archer brought you here. Surely there is a cordon round the castle?"
"We came by way of an underground passage. There must be one connecting Lady's Manor with the castle," she said. "I have always suspected the existence of one."
"And I," said Jim, "since you told me of the servants' gossip about 'Lovey,' the very name of your house is self-explanatory. It is Lady's Manor, the house built by a De Curcy for his lady love. And these 'loves' ways between houses were very common in olden times. That is the way the Green Archer came, and that is also why you saw him at Lady's Manor that night. He was on his way to the castle."
"You forget that I saw him in the grounds," which was true, as Jim remembered.
They were interrupted by the arrival of Julius with a startling piece of information.
"Lacy? In the dungeon?"
"If he were only in the dungeon it wouldn't be remarkable," said Julius, "but he's wearing the kit of the Green Archer. Ray's just taken him some water. I think the old man must have thrown him down the stairs."
"Lacy here?" she whispered fearfully. "Oh, Jim, can't you come through?"
"Julius will look after you. Have no fear," he said, though he was far from feeling the assurance he assumed. "I might be able to get through later, dear. I have chipped away the cement from two of the bars. I have the old man's hammer, and it is distinctly useful."
He had been resting when she came, but now he resumed the work, and for the next hour the tap of the hammer was incessant.
Valerie went back to Julius.
"Is he hurt badly?" she asked.
"It is only his head," said Julius, casually. "That's the only part of Lacy that you couldn't possibly hurt, not if you ran a roller over it. He was the man who carried you from the house, wasn't he? I heard you telling Featherstone. Well, he's welcome. He had a lethal weapon tucked away under his gay blouse that may be very useful."
Julius exhibited with pride his discovery.
"Naturally," he admitted frankly, "my first instincts were to search him for fear any of his valuable property fell into dishonest hands. But beyond the pistol there was nothing," he said loudly. "He's under the impression that Abe gave him a bank roll. Either that's an illusion or else the old man took it back when he had 'outed' him—Abe never likes wasting money. And I think he's right." He tapped his bulging pocket unconsciously.
Valerie went out to find Fay fastening a rough dress around the masquerader's head. A ludicrous spectacle he was, his ill fitting costume ragged and blood stained and soiled.
"I had a lot of money when I came down here," he was saying. "It's not here now. Money hasn't got legs. It can't walk away."
"If you'd had it then you would have it now," said Fay grimly. "And I've had money that went faster than the air mail in a gale of wind. You're not accusing my Julius of having robbed you, are you?"

"I don't know what I'm accusing your Julius of," growled the man, "but he took my gun. Why shouldn't he take the money?"
"Because the gun was there to take and the money wasn't," said Fay gently. "It is wise to accuse people who have saved your life of having robbed you? Old Bellamy must have taken it himself."
"Why didn't he take the gun?" demanded the man logically. "That's a thing he'd want to get back. Where is that gun, by the way?"
"Julius has it," said Fay, and added with unmistakable emphasis: "And Julius will keep it."
"What's the old man going to do? He can't keep us here forever. Where can I sleep?"
"You can either sleep on the stairs or you can sleep under the stairs."
"Ain't there any beds here?" demanded Lacy truculently.
"There's bedrock," said the humorist Fay. "And that is where you're sleeping, Lacy. And if you start kicking, you'll get kicked. You're a low brute anyway, to take this lady from her home; and if Featherstone gets you."
"Is he here?" asked the horrified Lacy.
"He's not here for the moment; he's on the other side of the bars."
"I hope he'll keep there," said Lacy fervently.
Julius and Jim took turns throughout the evening to use the one tool which had providentially fallen into their hands. Before 6 o'clock, by the united efforts of both, the grille was wrenched back and Jim wriggled through to the girl.
And there, then, without any preliminary or apology, he took her in his arms and kissed her.
No further time was lost in explanations or demands for an explanation. Jim had confided his decision to Savini, and found that Julius held the same view. The settee was dragged from the wall and its legs broken off. The back was low enough to allow them to push it through the hole though it meant tearing the costly fabric which covered it.
"What is the idea? Are you furnishing the apartment next door?" asked Fay.
"A whole lot of things are going to happen next door," said Jim. "That table looks good to me," he said as, with his hammer, he knocked off first one and then the other of the legs and pushed it through to Julius.
"You can help here, Lacy." He called the man forward and Lacy came quickly.
"What do you want me to do, captain?" he asked.
"Creep up to the top of the stairs and the moment you see Bellamy shout and jump, for I'll be coming up quicker than you can get down. Up there!" Jim took him by the ear and led him to the stairs and posted him just beneath the level of the grating.
"The moment he comes to that barrier, shout. Is that clear to you?"
"Of course it's clear," said the indignant Lacy. "Do you think I'm a fool?"
"I wouldn't like to tell you what I think about you," was the unsatisfactory reply.

He left the man watching at the head of the stairs and went back to Julius.
"I'm not so sure that any of these precautions will be worth a snap of the fingers," he said, "but they're the best we can do. If we only had some nails!"
He was erecting a barricade around the jagged hole in the wall and to assist him Fay had brought into employment the longest portion of the nose, which she fixed to the gas bracket which was nearest to them. This gave sufficient light to enable them to work. Chairs, tables, bedding, all were dragged into the dungeon, and while they worked Mr. Lacy sat quietly on the top step, hating Abe Bellamy, but hating worse the man into whose company fortune had so very strangely thrown him.

Pinch Money Helps Stock Market Rally

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 (AP)—Foreign banking interests came to the rescue of a tottering stock market today. Prices reacted sharply during the morning, as heavy selling was spilled into the market by a 12 per cent renewal rate for call loans, the break on the Chicago stock exchange, and a drop in wheat prices, but a sudden influx of funds carried the cash money rate to 8 per cent in the afternoon, and prices rallied briskly, regaining much of their losses.

That the sharp drop in call money resulted from action to bolster confidence, rather than abnormal easing of credit, was indicated by time money rates, which followed a contrary course, very little money loaning at less than 3 per cent, even for some of the longer maturities.

The day's industrial and business news remained largely favorable, including several more satisfactory earnings and sales reports.

The utility shares, which made substantial advances yesterday despite the break in the Insull stock at Chicago, were particularly depressed.

Rails were also generally depressed, New York Central and Chesapeake and Ohio dropping about 7 points, although the former regained about half its loss. Steels were generally steady, U. S. Steel sagging a couple of points, then regaining its loss.

Coppers were heavily bought in the last hour, particularly Anaconda, which rose more than 3 points to 122, a new high for the movement, in a turnover of nearly 400,000 shares.

Foreign exchanges were inclined to ease, although sterling cables held fairly steady at $4.85 3/16.

Corn was active and easier in tone. Prices 1¢ to 2¢ lower. Basis steady to 1-2¢ easier. Receipts estimated 158 cars. Shipping sales 128,000 bushels. Cancellations 13,348 bushels. Booked to arrive 55,000 bushels.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 (AP)—Foreign banking interests came to the rescue of a tottering stock market today. Prices reacted sharply during the morning, as heavy selling was spilled into the market by a 12 per cent renewal rate for call loans, the break on the Chicago stock exchange, and a drop in wheat prices, but a sudden influx of funds carried the cash money rate to 8 per cent in the afternoon, and prices rallied briskly, regaining much of their losses.

That the sharp drop in call money resulted from action to bolster confidence, rather than abnormal easing of credit, was indicated by time money rates, which followed a contrary course, very little money loaning at less than 3 per cent, even for some of the longer maturities.

The day's industrial and business news remained largely favorable, including several more satisfactory earnings and sales reports.

The utility shares, which made substantial advances yesterday despite the break in the Insull stock at Chicago, were particularly depressed.

Rails were also generally depressed, New York Central and Chesapeake and Ohio dropping about 7 points, although the former regained about half its loss. Steels were generally steady, U. S. Steel sagging a couple of points, then regaining its loss.

Coppers were heavily bought in the last hour, particularly Anaconda, which rose more than 3 points to 122, a new high for the movement, in a turnover of nearly 400,000 shares.

Foreign exchanges were inclined to ease, although sterling cables held fairly steady at $4.85 3/16.

Test to Decide Entry in Race

Seaplane May Compete in Trophy Contest

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—Whether the United States will have an entrant in the International Schneider seaplane trophy race in England will be determined largely within the next few days at Annapolis, Md., in tests by Lieut. Al Williams, navy speed flyer, of his little Mercury racer.

The plane is known to have a speed of more than 300 miles an hour, but just how much more will be ascertained in the tests. It has been indicated Williams will not take the ship aboard unless it can exceed substantially the present world's record of 313 miles an hour.

The tiny blue racer is a middle wing monoplane of 26 1/2 foot wing spread. It is powered with a Packard 24-cylinder engine which develops in excess of 1,100 horsepower.

The twin floats of the seaplane have been utilized as radiators to cool the engine while it is taxiing on the water. It is the first time such a cooling method has been employed on an American seaplane.

British planes have used it in modified form, but on Williams' plane, about 80 per cent on the surface area of the floats have been utilized.

The hot water from the engine, passed between the walls of the double bottomed metal floats, is cooled by the seawater upon which the plane taxis.

The Packard "X" engine has undergone radical changes to reduce the frontal area and make it more efficient. Its four carburetors and intake manifolds have been placed in the "vees" between the upper and lower banks of cylinders. The propeller has been geared down and the compression ratio of the engine raised about seven to one. There are 48 spark plugs and four distributors.

Bert Hassel Plans to Blaze Air Trail in Flight to Europe

ROCKFORD, Ill., Aug. 6 (AP)—A new attempt to blaze an air trail to Europe over the northern route will be made this month by Bert Hassel, Rockford, flyer, the Morning Star will say, tomorrow. Hassel will be accompanied by Leonard H. Fredericks, Rockford, as co-pilot and by a marine navigator, possibly one of the navigation officers of the Leviathan, the paper will say.

The takeoff will probably be from the Grant park ramp on Lake Michigan, Chicago, from which the Chicago Tribune's plane, the 'Untin' Bowler, started in its recent attempt. Parker Cramer, co-pilot of the Bowler, was Hassel's companion in an attempt to fly from Rockford to Stockholm.

The 1928 flight ended in Greenland when the plane, the Greater Rockford, was forced down by fuel shortage after the flyers had lost their way and missed Mt. Evans, their Greenland supply base.

1,000 Men Fight to Control Fires Raging in Western Forests SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 6 (AP)—Fires raged through the forests of Washington, Idaho, and Montana again today, leaving behind more than 20,000 blackened acres, while approximately 1,000 men fought to control the flames.

Forest air patrol planes sent from Spokane to spot new fires were hindered by dense clouds of smoke. Hot weather, low humidity, high winds, and thunderstorms all fostered hundreds of new blazes, none serious, but all straining the resources of the foresters and timber protective associations.

Old fires crept onward and additional fire fighting recruits were sought. Citizens of some regions feared a conscription, where volunteers were not available.

New blazes were reported in the Clearwater, Selway, and Nez Perce forests of central Idaho.

In Washington the Chelan fire, 12,000 acres in extent, was the most serious.

North Platte Citizens Held Responsible for Racial Disturbance

Snook Counsel Begins Defense

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., Aug. 6 (AP)—Complaints charging four North Platte citizens with unlawful assembly were filed in county court here late today by Special State Prosecutor Lloyd Dort, as an outgrowth of the racial disturbance here on July 13.

Those named in the complaints are Albert A. Hastings, real estate dealer; James Miller, insurance salesman; John McCampbell, teamster, and Edward Supanick, a youth.

The four are accused of being leaders of a mob of men and boys which formed after the slaying of a veteran police officer by a Negro. The mob visited the Negro section of the city and made threats which resulted in a general exodus from the city of the Negro population.

Prosecutor Dort, who was appointed by Attorney General Sorenson of Nebraska, to investigate the disorders, said he expected to have the four alleged ring leaders arraigned for hearing within the next two days. "I believe I have sufficient evidence to warrant convictions in each case," he asserted.

River Holds Secret of Disappearance of Federal Dry Agent

DETROIT, Aug. 6 (AP)—The Detroit river continued tonight to hold the secret of the disappearance of Richard J. Sandlands, federal prohibition agent, missing since early Saturday. Sandlands was guarding a motor boat which had been seized by customs officers, at the time he vanished.

Federal authorities today found themselves confronted by two versions of the affair immediately preceding Sandlands' disappearance. One of them, offered by Mrs. Maxine Heath wife of John M. Heath, owner of the craft Sandlands is said to have boarded, indicated that Sandlands may have been drowned after a struggle in the river with her husband. The other version offered by Milton Larson, customs officer, and two fishermen, is that Sandlands was left to guard the seized cruiser and is occupants while Larson went to make his report and was seen by the fishermen putting out into the river with the two persons.

Scotland Yard Faces Problem of Finding Slayers of Two

LONDON, Aug. 6 (AP)—Scotland yard, with a record showing only four unsolved cases out of 109 murders in the last five years, tonight was faced with the duty of determining who murdered two members of the Sidney family and probably a third.

The British public, which has been following the slow unravelling of the manner of the deaths by a coroner's jury, looks expectantly to the famous detective force to take action merited, fairly now that the coroner's verdicts are in.

The third verdict, that on the 16-year-old Edmund Creighton Duff, was returned today and was of wilful murder by a person or persons unknown, as had earlier been reported in the case of his sister-in-law, Vera Sidney. Although the jury had found that Mrs. Violet Sidney, mother of Vera, was also poisoned it did not find in her case that the evidence was conclusive of murder.

As in his previous charges to the jury, the coroner today was explicit in telling the members that while members of the family had been in position to administer the poison it was with intimate knowledge of the personal habits of each of the victims that the family appeared to have been entirely congenial and that no evidence had been produced pointing to a motive.
