HOOPER PAYS TRIBUTE TO EDISON

Theater Opens With Comedy, "Is Zat So"

Harry Barnes Directs University Players in Opening Play

"Is Zat So," a comedy in three acts by James Gleason and Richard Taber, under the direction of Harry G. Barnes, associate in the speech department, opens the university theatrical season tonight. The play was an immediate success in New York and after it had run for a short time Taber took a company to London. The play was so full of New York slang and dialect that the English could not understand it. To overcome this, small dictionaries of American slang were printed and handed out to the audience. The play then became immensely popular.

The scenes are all located in New York city. The opening scene, an evening setting, is located on the east side of Central park, on Fifth avenue, somewhere above Fifty-ninth street. The second scene is a living room in the Parker house on the east side of Fifth avenue, the time five minutes before scene one. The entire second act takes place in the sun room of the Parker house, ten days later. The last act is three weeks later in the living room of the Parker house, late evening.

Barnes Designs Settings Mr. Barnes has designed and executed the settings for the production. Viola Stevens, A4 of Iowa City, has charge of the costumes. Dorothy Smith, A4 of Waterloo, and Velma Bookhart, A4 of Ida Grove, are in charge of the properties. William Loufek, A4 of Davenport, is stage manager, assisted by James Wren, A1 of Wheeling, W. Va., Warren Lee, A3 of Iowa City, and William Chase, A2 of Ames. Dorothy Mueller, A3 of Des Moines, is directing the makeup.

The following characters are given in order of their appearance: Eddie "Chick" Cowan, Sydney Smith, A3 of Council Bluffs; "Hap" Hurley, Herber Lubart, A1 of New York City; C. Clinton Blackburn, Dan Howell, A3 of Iowa City; Susan Blackburn Parker, Winogene Hovenden, A3 of Laurens, Marjor, the Hon. Maurice Pitt-Stanley, Edward Burchett, A1 of Bloomfield; Florence Hanley, Agnes Lewison, A4 of Canton, S. Dak.; Robert Parker, Richard de Laubentals, A4 of Burlington; Mario Mestretti, Virginia Wingert, A2 of Davenport.

High School Student Master James Blackburn Parker will be played by S. Erlesand, student of the Iowa City high school; Grace Hobart, Helen Wareham, A1 of Davenport; Fred Hobart, Edmund Morrison, A3 of Washington; John Duffy, Raymond Mohl, A1 of New York City; Angie Van Alsten, Ellen Fox, A3 of Iowa City; Smith, William Van Schreeven, A2 of Sioux City.

The New Republic, April, 1925, in a review of "Is Zat So," says: "There is nothing else quite as good as these three words, is zat so, but there are a lot of other good things, too. For rich, native humor and dialogue is the best thing in the theater for a long, long while. Nearly all the remarks that pass between Gleason and Armstrong are somewhat unaccountably funny. Half the time they were just as funny if we didn't hear what they said, and only the curiously aggressive, telescoped whine of the gas-house reached our ears."

CHICAGO, Oct. 21 (AP)—Mrs. Marguerite C. King, 38 years old, a widow, killed herself early today in the hotel room of Parks Brown, political writer of the Chicago Tribune. She shot herself twice in the breast with a .22 caliber pistol belonging to Brown.

When Brown returned to his room shortly after midnight, Mrs. King was there, he said. She appeared disconsolate and he asked what the matter was. In reply, Brown told police, the woman drew the pistol from her handbag and shot herself twice before he could prevent her. They had quarreled two weeks ago.

Taft Gives Third Lecture of Series on Sculpture Today

Lorado Taft will speak about "Praxiteles and his successors" at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the main lounge at Iowa Union. This is the third of the series of lectures by Mr. Taft on the university lecture platform. The entire group of talks will cover the period of sculpture from 3,000 years before the great period of Greek art through the fifteenth century and including Michelangelo.

All the talks are illustrated, for Mr. Taft has said that an art lecture which is not illustrated is like a menu without the dinner.

J. P. Goode, Chicago Scientist, to Give Lecture Here Friday

JOHN PAUL GOODE

State Teachers to Hold Annual Conference

"When Coal is Gone, What Then?" will be the subject of a public address by John Paul Goode, professor emeritus of the University of Chicago, and internationally known author and lecturer, who will speak at the natural science auditorium Friday at 7:30 p. m. The address will be a special feature of the first annual conference of science teachers of Iowa to be held here Oct. 24-25.

Professor Goode has contributed to the fields of cartography and geography, and has received the Culver medal, heretofore given only to explorers such as Amundsen, Stefansson, and Shackleton. He is the originator of the homoloxine equal area projection system of mapping, which is essential for accurate recording of distance on maps of large areas. He is also the author of many books and articles on the subject of geography.

Dean George F. Kay, of the college of liberal arts, says of the speaker: "I have known Professor Goode for many years, and I consider him one of the ablest and most interesting lecturers on scientific subjects in America today. He delivered an address before the members of Sigma Xi several years ago, and only high words of commendation were heard in regard to his address."

The conference will be conducted by the colleges of liberal arts and education and the departments of chemistry, zoology, physics, and botany. Teachers of science from all junior colleges, high schools, and elementary schools may attend.

The main objective of the conference will be to consider recent developments in the teaching of science. The program comprises three sections which will meet concurrently during the conference. A series of addresses and demonstrations will be given in each section, followed by open discussions led by specialists in their respective fields.

Evening sessions will be devoted to features of general interest and entertainment. Eighteen members of the university faculty and ten specialists from other institutions will appear on the program.

Out of town speakers besides Professor Goode include D. W. Morehouse, president of Drake university; R. S. Abbott, natural science, Iowa State college; H. M. Kelley, biology, Cornell college; T. C. Stephens, zoology, Morningside college; H. S. Conard, botany, Grinnell college; G. T. Hendrickson, zoology, Iowa State college; Eessie B. Goodrich, director of elementary education in Iowa; B. C. Berr, superintendent of schools, Newton; F. C. Anibal, university high school, Chicago.

Supreme Court of Claims Refuses to Hear R. R. Review WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—The Ft. Dodge, Des Moines, and Southern railroad today was refused a review by the supreme court of claims against the government arising out of the guaranty given to the railroad after government control.

The railroad sought to recover $214,222 with interest from September, 1920, claiming that the interstate commerce commission disallowed a large part of the amount the government should have paid the railroad as guaranty under the transportation act.

The government insisted the railroad had accepted final settlement for use of its property under federal control and was bound by it. The court of claims dismissed the suit.

George D. Koser was chairman of the judging committee for the Lions club and William Horrabin for the Kiwanis club.

Court Argues on Farm Act

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—Farm relief legislation was argued today in the supreme court, that tribunal being called upon to decide what congress could do through the Hoch-Smith resolution of 1925 to relieve depressed agriculture by reducing railroad rates.

About 400 railroads joined in a vigorous attack on the construction commission on the resolution when it ordered a decrease in the rates on deciduous fruits shipped out of California.

The railroads broadly took the position that the reduced rates were unreasonably low and therefore invalid. They insisted that if applied to other agricultural products claiming to be suffering from depression the interstate commerce commission would be practically demolished.

Solicitor General Hughes appeared for the government in his first argument before the court. He pointed out that the Hoch-Smith resolution was aimed to aid industry in general, and agriculture in particular, and asserted it was clearly within the powers of congress limits control over interstate commerce.

Fall Listens to Testimony Hears Self Denounced and Praised WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—Albert B. Fall heard himself denounced and praised today as government and defense counsel presented closing arguments to the jury which will decide whether the former interior secretary accepted a $100,000 bribe from David L. Doherty.

At the government special government prosecutor, directed his fire as much toward Doherty, whom he termed the "wise old man," as he did toward Fall. He told the jury the evidence indicated that Fall and Doherty had conferred months before the Pearl Harbor contract and Elk Hills lease for which Fall is alleged to have accepted the $100,000, were negotiated.

Frank J. Hogan, chief defense counsel opened his argument with an attack upon the government prosecutor and lauded Doherty as a man who would not take a chance that any of his actions would "ruin his friend."

He told the jury that Fall, asked by Secretary Denby of the navy to administer the oil reserves, had refused to do so and that President Harding transferred that responsibility to him against his wish.

Wilbur Elliff Dies; Result of Auto Accident

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—General approval was heard in the senate today of the announcement by Secretary Stimson that Senators Robinson of Arkansas and Reed of Pennsylvania had accepted places on the American delegation to the London naval limitations conference.

With assurance of a delegation of at least three men, headed by Stimson, it was expected that President Hoover will go beyond this with the appointment of Charles G. Dawes, ambassador to Great Britain, Hugh Gibson, ambassador to Belgium, Stimson regarded as likely to be a member of the American delegation.

Brothers Accompany Body Van Alstyne suffered lacerations of the left eyeball, which may result in loss of the eye, and severe cuts on the face. Stewart is suffering from a severely wrenched back.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Elliff, parents of the deceased, had been at his bedside since late Saturday night. The body will be taken to Minier, Ill., where funeral services will be held Thursday and interment made. The Elliff family resided at Minier before moving to Aberdeen. Four Acacia fraternity brothers will accompany the body to Minier.

Senators Approve Choice Senate colleagues of the pair praised their selection. There seemed to be no reaction to Hoover's decision not to consider the ranking members on the foreign relations committee. Reed ranks sixth on this committee after Chairman Borah. Senator Johnson of California is ranking republican, and Swanson of Virginia, ranking democrat.

While Borah made no comment on the decision, there was an understanding among his colleagues that he holds the views that senators should not participate in negotiations of treaties on which they will be called upon later to pass judgment.

Borah's Attitude Doubtful Nevertheless, Borah's declination was regarded with some interest in view of his breaks with President Hoover on farm relief and tariff legislation. There was some speculation as to what attitude he would take toward a naval limitations treaty when the senate is called upon to ratify it.

In selecting Senator Reed, Hoover picked a republican who is regarded not only as a staunch national defense advocate but also one who is not identified with the League of Nations controversy.

Research Means Much "Scientific research means more than its practical results in increased living comforts," President Hoover said. "The nature of our nation is not merely a question of the development of our industries, of reducing the cost of living, or multiplying our harvests, or of larger leisure."

"We must constantly strengthen the fiber of national life by the inculcation of the virtues of industry, which springs from the search for truth. From its pursuits we shall discover the unfolding of beauty, we shall stimulate the aspirations for knowledge, we shall ever widen human understanding."

Family Life Disorganized, Says Deets at Conference MARSHALLTOWN, Oct. 21 (AP)—The hall opener has played an all-too-important part in the disorganization of family life in urban communities Lee E. Deets, department of sociology, University of South Dakota, told the annual convention of the Iowa conference of social work, here today.

Professor Deets, presenting his argument by way of statistics, declared that between 1910 and 1920, the number of delicatessen dealers in the United States increased three times as fast as the population. He also cited Dr. William F. Ogburn to show that restaurant keepers increased in number 158 per cent while the general population increased 62 per cent and the urban population 46 per cent.

Waters in such restaurants increased in number four times as fast as the population. Amount of work done in laundries increased four times as fast as the population in the years 1914 to 1925. In the same period the output of bakeries increased 60 per cent compared with a population increase of 15 per cent. Similar large increase in the output of canneries was shown by the speaker.

"The making of home clothing, home butchering, home baking, home wash day, home cooking and home canning has passed, or is passing, to the tailor, the butcher, the baker, the laundry, the delicatessen, the restaurant and the cannery," Professor Deets asserted.

Other speakers included Dr. George Donahue, superintendent of the Cherokee state hospital; Prof. Olynthus Clarke, Drake university; Dr. Andrew H. Woods, University of Iowa; Dr. E. E. Harris, Grinnell, and Miss Alice Whipple of Davenport.

Air Pilot Warns Sleepers of Fire Threatening Home

The latest type of fire alarm is an airplane motor. The family of Alfred Newkirk slept as late from barns threatened the home on a farm near Williamsburg late Friday night.

A letter received today from Elmer Pugh of Williamsburg, by D. W. Crum, secretary of the Iowa City chamber of commerce, gives the time of the fire as between 11 p. m. and midnight. Lee, ranking 4th in the United States who has recently completed 1,250,000 miles at the controls, left Iowa City at 11:52 p. m. The Newkirk farm is about 20 miles due west on Lee's route.

Lauds Genius for Research in Electricity

DEARBORN, Mich., Oct. 21 (AP)—Commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the perfection of the electric lamp, President Hoover paid tribute here tonight to the tireless zeal and patience of this country's inventive genius that has lifted drudgery from the shoulders of the American people.

With the aged and eminent inventor, Thomas A. Edison, at his side, Mr. Hoover said every American owed this genius "not alone a debt for great benefactions he has brought to mankind, but also a debt for the honor he has brought to our country."

The ceremonies at which the president spoke, attended by many prominent citizens in various fields, also dedicated the Edison Institute of technology, the gift of Henry Ford.

Priceless Possessions "Our scientists and inventors are amongst our most precious national possessions," the president said. "There is no sum that the world could not afford to pay these men who have that originality of mind, that devotion and industry to carry scientific thought forward in step and stride until it spreads to the comfort of every home."

The speech came at the end of a day crowded with activity in honor of Edison's perfection of the lamp, during which the president had been acclaimed by the people of Detroit and Dearborn. The inventor, who is 84 years old, was in a motor car during a cold, driving rain. Millions heard his words over a coast-to-coast hook-up of radio stations.

Edison Reconstructs Lamp Before Mr. Hoover spoke, he had witnessed an unusual contrast of circumstances. The inventor used a tungsten filament lamp which he had constructed when he watched the now aging and distinguished Edison construct the first lamp as he did a young hopeful, ambitious but unknown inventor, 50 years ago.

Standing by the inventor in the same laboratory Edison used a half century ago, brought here by Ford, the president saw how the soft glow of delicate, vibrating wires ushered in the age of light.

With Edison and President Hoover were Ford and Francis Jehl, who as a youth, aided the inventor in his experiments. They saw the old man deftly construct his lamp within a few moments which 50 years ago was brought into being only after long days of patience, trial and error.

Bells Ring Out As the experiment was completed, the dim lights of 1879 in the laboratory burst into the full light of present day electricity and liberty bell in the town of Independence hall, a reproduction of the original at Philadelphia, where Mr. Hoover returned to make his speech, rang out a noisy salute to the inventor whose genius was being celebrated.

President Hoover was introduced by Owen D. Young, the toastmaster, at the ceremonies, and was applauded as he lauded both Edison and Ford. By founding an institution dedicated to Edison research, the president said, Ford was honoring Edison in a "manner which appeals to a sense of fitness."

Research Means Much "Scientific research means more than its practical results in increased living comforts," President Hoover said. "The nature of our nation is not merely a question of the development of our industries, of reducing the cost of living, or multiplying our harvests, or of larger leisure."

"We must constantly strengthen the fiber of national life by the inculcation of the virtues of industry, which springs from the search for truth. From its pursuits we shall discover the unfolding of beauty, we shall stimulate the aspirations for knowledge, we shall ever widen human understanding."

Two Routes Suggested to Badger Game

Two possible hard-surfaced routes for those attending the Iowa-Wisconsin game at Madison Saturday have been suggested for motorists by local road authorities.

The best route is 225 miles, all of which is paved except a strip from Iowa City to Tipton and 14 miles near Madison. This route lies from here to Rochester on No. 159, then No. 35 north to Stanwood, east on No. 30, the Lincoln highway, through Clinton to Dixon, Ill., north to Preepport, Ill., Monroe, Wis., and Madison.

The second route is all hard-surfaced but is largely gravel and is rough in inclement weather. This is via No. 161 through Cedar Rapids and Dubuque, thence east to Madison. It is approximately 215 miles long.

Clapp Offers New Course

School of Fine Arts to Add New Courses

Several new courses are being offered and planned in the department of music, which has been recently made a part of the new school of fine arts. Prof. Philip Greeley Clapp, director of music, is offering a general course, "18th and 19th Century Composers," which is open without prerequisite to juniors and seniors.

In this course Professor Clapp and other members of the staff will perform and analyze a series of musical programs from the standpoint of the layman. The second semester of this course will be broadcast from station WSHU.

Next year a supplementary course, "Recent and contemporary composers," will be offered, and the two courses will be continued in alternate years. For more advanced students, a course in "Musical literature," with more opportunity for individual study of orchestra and chamber music, is being planned. This course is offered by Prof. Ernest H. Wilcox, assistant director of music.

Several group courses in voice, piano, and stringed instruments, designed especially for public school music teachers, will be offered during the second semester.

The university symphony orchestra, under the direction of Prof. Frank E. Kendrick, is scheduled for two concerts this year. The principal selections to be played are Beethoven's "Symphony," Glazunov's "Fifth Symphony," the "Caucasian Sketches" by Ivanov, Mozart's "Don Juan Overture," and Wagner's "Meistersinger Prelude." In addition, the string section assists at the monthly vesper services, and the entire orchestra plays at Christmas and Easter.

Members of the university glee clubs are selected at tryouts by Prof. Walter Leon, at the beginning of each semester, and consistent punctuality at rehearsals and performances is required. The men's and women's glee clubs combined form the vesper chorus, which appears at all vesper services and on special occasions. The clubs sing both modern and classic works, and present their performances "A Cappella." This year the combined glee clubs and orchestra, conducted by Professor Clapp, and assisted by several soloists, will present Handel's "Messiah" at the Christmas vesper.

A series of concerts by professional artists and a supplementary series of faculty recitals are planned, and early announcement of detailed schedules will soon be made.

1929 Homecoming Shows Little Increase in Sales

Homecoming passed on with its usual amount of glamour in spite of the deluge, and the business houses of the city, on the average, showed little or no increase in business over previous Homecomings.

Clothing and dry-goods sales were influenced by the weather, as rain-coats and umbrellas led the sales demand. Some blankets were sold, but most of the Homecomers came prepared.

Saturday's sales in the cigar stores were not as marked as in other years.

The theater patronage, while a little above the average, especially Friday night after the pep meeting, was not in keeping with the crowd.

The cafes and restaurants were able to accommodate the crowds, and were kept busy from a short time after the end of the game until very late at night. Several churches accommodated many of the visitors by serving lunch and dinner.

Filling stations were kept busy, and the garages were well filled.

The cleaning establishments are enjoying good business now, due to the rain and the mud.

While some business establishments noted increases and others slight decreases, the weather had much influence.

Farm Boards—or Boards

SINCE the war the American farmer's surplus has been deprived of its market, and the European's surplus, while it is nowhere as large as ours, has to some extent been "dumped" upon us. Results have been two: low prices of American raised products due to greater supply than demand, and second, increased tariffs on foreign raised products to protect the home market.

The last named activity has been to the point. We have now to deal with the first problem—how to assure the farmer a fair profit by disposing of his surplus in an intelligent manner. There is fond conception which the American citizen harbors concerning the farm problem, that to the farm industry can be applied the principles of big business, and presto! the situation is relieved.

Pure imagination! It is one matter to organize an industry into an efficient profit making machine where the minority hold the capital. It is another to organize 6,000,000 capital holders, for every farmer is a capitalist, representing many hundreds of commodities, no two of which can be handled in the same way. It is one matter to organize an industry in which the output can be regulated to conform with the demand. It is another to organize an industry where it cannot, where weather, climate, acts of God and what not are apt to frustrate the "best laid plans of mice and men."

It is that "another matter" with which the farm board must deal. The farm board! "Ah there's the rub!" Can one farm board handle these problems for 6,000,000 farmers and many hundreds of commodities?

Let us take a look at it: It shall deal with farm problems as they arise. Well and good, that leaves it the loophole for further farm boards, about which we shall talk in a minute. And by the grant of the agricultural marketing act it is empowered to finance cooperatives to be owned and controlled by the farmer.

There is little use in going into the farm problems in detail. They are the problems of disorderly and wasteful marketing, lack of standardized prices, rabid speculation that keeps the farmer on a picket fence most of the time. And now—how can one farm board correct these evils?

It can do this much: It can investigate conditions and it can build the first step in the long stairway of improvements leading to profitable agriculture. But it seems to us that only by the creation of further farm boards can the field be adequately taken care of. Every commodity should have a board of its own, doing for it what the present board aims to do for the whole heterogeneous business. We would never think of putting the steel industry, the paper industry, the lumbering industry—all three under one body composed of representatives from each.

Agriculture, too, is a matter of many separate industries. It is not one business; it is many businesses, and the farming situation can be satisfactorily handled only by a consideration of each commodity as an individual problem. The present board in the face of these hundreds of problems, can be nothing short of ineffective. But it can look the field over, and let us hope, take the first step in the creation of further boards.

Fashion vs. Health

NOW COMES Dr. C. Jeff Miller, president-elect of the American college of surgeons, with his statements attacking the present trend in feminine fashions. Dr. Miller is one of the leading gynecologists of the country and is professor of that subject at Tulane university.

has produced, is far more healthy and strong than the young woman which the next few generations will produce with their corsets, dragging skirts, and otherwise means of hampering free movement of the human body.

If a man of such standing in the world of science and medicine can see so surely into the future and warn us of the disaster just around the corner, it is only a foregone conclusion that we should and must heed his warning. Fashion means too much to women. The popular connotation of fashion has always been "that which the majority accept as the finest degree of perfection." Certainly the women of a progressive, sensible age, such as our's is, have intellectual ability sufficient to show them that "perfection" doesn't signify pallidness, sickness, and discomfort. These will be the results of unnecessary and forceful restrictions in dress.

We should agree with Dr. Miller. We should, for once turn our backs on fashion and work for health and happiness.

Death Takes Its Toll

THE CURSE of careless driving was forcefully brought to the attention of every citizen during the last week-end by the appalling list of auto accidents and fatalities resulting from crashes. In almost every case the accident was the result of carelessness and today there are drivers going about their everyday affairs with the thought foremost in their mind—"if I had only known."

"If I had only known." What an awful significance the words contain for the mothers and relatives of the victims of careless drivers. In Cedar Rapids yesterday a young man died as a result of a fractured skull, caused by a speeding car crashing into his stalled car along the edge of the highway. Two young men are dead and another near death as the result of a turnover near Victor.

And so on down the list. The unprecedented traffic of the last week-end caused congested conditions on every highway. Drivers realized that every infraction of highway laws was more than likely a flirtation with death. Almost every accident resulted directly from some driver who was taking the extra chance that only a thoughtless person will take.

When the inevitable crash comes it is too late. The heartaches, the shattered dreams of a lifetime, the tear-stained eyes of a mother who has lost her son, cry out to every driver the plea for cautious driving. The inevitable crash will come for the man who persists in taking the long chance—the dare to pass the car ahead. And when it does, another name will be added to the too long list of drivers who will live the rest of their lives with the burden of knowing that an innocent party met death at the hands of their carelessness.

Edison and Our Time

THE HONORING of Thomas Alva Edison on the fiftieth anniversary of the electric light brings about a momentous period in the era of scientific changes and improvements. It is doubtful if any period in history has been so full of changes, and in this time the hazard of living has become greater and greater. A person from the era a half century ago, if he be brought to life, might indeed find things disconcerting.

Such men as Edison and Burbank, have stamped their names firmly in the book of achievements in the history of accomplishment. Edison is living and is now being honored for his large number of inventions in the field of electricity, while Luther Burbank, the plant "wizard," is a memory and a matter of record.

During the 50 year period the automobile has been making rapid strides, and the result was the passing of the old wagon, buggies, and bicycles. The radio has become a part of the life of the American people, and television is making rapid strides. Machinery controlled by electricity has increased production of manufactured goods, and business is working on a vastly different basis than of old.

Not only has Thomas Edison been witnessing the development of his own work, but within this period of time he has been viewing American giants who have been gathering power, and though none have been able to eclipse him, they have taken their place as marvels in their own spheres. Such names as Chrysler, Ford, Eastman, Firestone, Guggenheim, and the DuPonts, have been added to the list of famous names.

State and National Officials Among Homecoming Guests

Governor Hammill and Judges Grimm, Faville and Wagner of Iowa Supreme Court Here

A group of Iowa's "favorite sons," including state and national officials from other states, were among the 36,000 visitors at the eighteenth annual Homecoming celebration last week-end.

These men, who have honored the university from which they were graduated, by achieving success in various fields of endeavor, joined once more with their classmates in expressing their loyalty to Old Gold.

Sedate judges, the governor of the state, two United States congressmen, 41 members of the Iowa assembly, railroad magnates, and heads of state departments, cast aside their official titles to cheer for Iowa as it battled Illinois on the Hawkeye field Saturday afternoon.

Gov. John Hammill, who was a speaker at the pep meeting Friday evening, left for Des Moines Friday night but returned for the game Saturday afternoon. Lieut. Gov. Arch W. McFarlane of Waterloo, was also present.

Other state officials present were: Ed Smith, secretary of state; Ray E. Johnson, treasurer; Atty. Gen. John Fletcher; Robert Henderson, head of the printing department; head of the printing department; Oscar Anderson, budget director, and J. W. Long, auditor.

Three judges from the Iowa supreme court attended the celebration. They were Judge John Grimm, Judge F. F. Faville, and Judge Henry T. Wagner. Judge W. L. McKinley of the Cook county district, at Chicago, was also present.

The congressmen were: L. J. Dickinson of Alaska, and Edward H. Campbell of Battle Creek.

Alumni Chat of Way Back When Campus Days of '99

The barriers were cast down Saturday as alumni came together again, visited the campus, and relived their own student day. Ten, twenty, and thirty years dropped away as if by magic as a trio of prominent Iowa graduates met and discussed "way back when."

Benjamin F. Swisher, '00 of Waterloo, president of the university alumni association; W. Earl Hall, '18 of Mason City, and C. C. Riepe, '12 of Burlington, both members of the board of directors of the alumni association, paused a moment in the round of Homecoming activities to chat of former days on the campus.

Athletics, fraternities, dates—all these played as important a part in college life then as they do now. "In the two years preceding my graduation, Iowa had a marvelous season," says Mr. Swisher whose recollections of the university go beyond those of the other two men. "Under the tutelage of Coach Knipe we were only tied once and were never scored upon. They didn't build teams around individual stars as they do now. We had eleven stars in those days, all functioning as one."

"They did it without modern conveniences, too," the president of the alumni association laughs. "The teams played on Iowa field but as to a field house—well, we just didn't have one. When I was on the track team we used to dress behind the bushes if there were ladies present and on the track if there were men. Then after the meet we made a bee-line for the old Y. M. C. A. building for our showers."

The three men find great changes in the fraternity buildings on the campus. When Mr. Swisher was a student here none of the Greek letter groups had homes of their own, but hired rooms downtown for their social and business centers. Both Mr. Hall and Mr. Riepe were here when a few of the chapters had homes but they were few and far between.

"THE MASKED HOSTESS"

by Blair Stevenson

What has gone before: An abandoned Long Island estate, "The Firs," is the only inheritance left by her once wealthy sportsman father. Repulsed by her rich aunt, Mrs. Swayne, Nathalie, in desperation, cashes a check with no funds in the bank. Nathalie agrees to act as hostess to a South American, Capt. Ramon Stefano, who has taken over "The Firs" supposedly to entertain his wealthy friends, on condition that she remain masked and her identity secret. John Sloan, young lawyer, has fallen in love with Nathalie. Without her knowledge, he has made good the false check. He warns her of this strange venture, but neither of them knows that Stefano is being financed by Ferris, a New York ex-policeman, who wishes to obtain possession of "The Firs." Long Island's wealthiest attend the opening of "The Firs" and are intrigued by their friends recognize her. Nathalie, fascinated by the handsome Stefano, finds herself in his arms. Mrs. Swayne learns of Stefano's adventure, and Ferris likewise is irritated and questions Stefano about the masked hostess. Now go on with the story:

CHAPTER XXII. "And I'm being watched myself," of course," he said aloud, "or 'spied' as he calls it. The devil with him. Let him. Damn disgusting, though." But all at once he forgot Ferris and his mind went back to Nathalie. The caution that was in him took full command of him as he entered the gates of "The Firs." As he went up the steps someone half tumbled out of the first car that came up, and a cheerful voice mumbled: "Don't be 'fraid, ole Stefano. I'm behind you."

He turned, recognizing the greeting as Monty Delaine's. Monty was in a harlequin's suit and masked. Two girls sprang laughing from the car that had disembarked Monty, and they, too, were much. And right after them from all the cars that had been driven in came a score of other people, all in fancy costume and all masked.

Within 20 minutes, so rapidly did cars roll up to the door and discharge their laughing passengers, the house was filled with cowboys, gypsies, Watteau shepherdesses, oriental dancers, milk maids and girls in all the court costumes of history. There was no lingering away till several hours after midnight as there had been before on other party nights. Whoever was coming appeared early. Within an hour no more cars arrived and the whole lovely flood of "The Firs" was jammed.

Stefano, who had come into the house determined that he would catch a glimpse of Nathalie or anyone related to her and if possible get the address of the law firm Ferris wanted, felt his spirits go down as he looked about him and realized that the high hearted gathering which hemmed him in was a human labyrinth in so far as he might hope to identify any reasonable part of the young men and women he saw about.

A few, because of some special physical characteristic, he managed to pick out. But the overwhelming majority were disguised beyond all identification. It seemed to him that they must have gone to pains to make themselves unknown. And this was quite true, for they were uniformly young people of intelligence and imagination who saw each other frequently and in the main had known each other from childhood. So they had put thought into their costumes and make-up—had been thorough each in his or her determination to be as perfectly disguised as clothes and color and face stain could bring about. He was disconnected, as he noted the number of girls in Egyptian, Hindoo, Persian, Menechur and Arab costume, at the realization that scores of them had colored their faces with pigments to be appropriate to the costumes they had on and render their disguises deeper. All about him he could see false hair arrangements, for long tresses and hair built up in high masses were on every hand. Out of costume nearly all the girls in his house were smoothly bobbed. So of course the variegated coiffures above the masks beneath them were nearly all transformations. And he knew—being a person of imagination himself—that all who were normally fair haired were brunettes tonight and the other way about.

He looked at Nathalie—with never an intimation that she was the very person he was being paid to find, and the search for whom was responsible for the house being open at all—and was glad that he had seen her Spanish dancer's dress and had noted the color of it while she stood in the dining hall as the others trooped in. But because he was used to seeing her masked he was sure he would have known her anyway. She beckoned to him and he went to her swiftly.

She indicated the masked and costumed dancer. "Did you have any forewarning of this? Of course you couldn't have as you're the only one here unmasked." He shook his head. "Absolutely not the smallest. Amazing, isn't it? Somewhere in the mad maze there's a master organizer, what? Wonder whose notion it is?" "Whoever thought it up," agreed Nathalie, "has put energy as well as secrecy into it. My guess is that some clever girl thought it up last night or the night before and kept her idea strictly to herself until this morning. Then of course she began telephoning in every direction and the result is this. It's been awfully well done—and of course makes things tremendously easy for me. I've counted eleven other Spanish

CHICAGO GRAIN CHICAGO, Oct. 21 (AP)—Cash wheat receipts were a little heavier today at 86 cars and sales were 17,000 unchanged to 1c lower than Saturday. The old trading basis was in effect except on poorer quality yellow hard offerings, which sold at 1c wider discount under the December. Shipping sales were 12,000 bushels, and there was nothing booked to arrive. The seaboard claimed the working of about 300,000 bushels of wheat, largely Manitobas, to the other side. For a two-day accumulation the receipt of 303 cars of corn was light. The trading basis on both old and new corn offerings softened somewhat, with the former selling 1/4c lower compared with the futures and the latter from 1/2c lower. Sales of old corn ran from unchanged to 1c lower and the new crop, 1/2c net lower as compared with Saturday. Shipping demand for corn was moderate with 125,000 bushels sold during the session. Nothing booked to arrive. Chartered made for 200,000 bushels to go to Buffalo. Cash oats offerings totaled 80 cars in all and sales were unchanged 1/4c lower. Shipping sales were 55,000 bushels and nothing was booked from the country.

Psychology Class Selects Delegates for Madison Game

Orpha E. Schuppert, A4 of Iowa City, and Glenn Hall Brandhorst, A4 of Manning, were elected Monday as delegates to represent Prof. Frederick Knight's educational psychology class at the Iowa-Wisconsin game at Madison. Every year it is the custom of the educational psychology class to take up a collection to send two of its members to an out of town game. The voting was carried on entirely without the use of the names of the candidates. The four men and the four women who nominated themselves were each given a number. Each member of the class voted for one of the men and for one of the women.

Joe McGinnity, Former Pitching Ace, Near Death Following Operation

"Iron Man" of Baseball Now Seriously Ill

Joe McGinnity Fails to Rally Following Operation

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP)—"Iron Man" Joe McGinnity, the great old National league pitcher who once defied such human frailties as weakness and fatigue, is waging a losing battle against the greatest of all adversaries.

Critically ill at his home in Brooklyn, the 58-year-old McGinnity is growing steadily weaker, having failed to rally after an operation Aug. 27 for removal of a tumor. His surgeons said today that there is virtually no hope for his recovery although he may live "a month or so" longer. A second tumor has developed and in McGinnity's weakened condition, it is considered inadvisable to attempt another operation.

The patient was removed three weeks ago from Brooklyn hospital to the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Marguerite Lappen, Brooklyn, where he makes his home. Since then his condition has been growing worse despite the resistance of one of the most courageous figures in sport.

The old "Iron Man" who set the modern record of 51 games pitched in a season when with the Giants in 1904 and who originated the stunt of pitching and winning both ends of a doubleheader has not been associated with baseball since 1927 when he was with the Brooklyn club in the capacity of a scout. For the last two years, until the time of his illness, he had been working in a dental laboratory. His wife died three years ago.

McGinnity gained baseball immortality as a teammate of Christy Mathewson on the Giants of 25 years ago. In a day of great pitching performances McGinnity shone as one of the leading lights. A big moment in his career came when he blanked the Athletics in the World series of 1905, a series incidentally which was won entirely by shutouts, Mathewson scoring three, McGinnity and Bender each one.

Living up to his name, the "Iron Man" pitched and won a game of baseball at Ottumwa, Ia., May 11, 1925, at the age of 54, defeating John Welch, an 18 year old hurler from Ottumwa, by a score of 7 to 3. For a time he was manager of the Dubuque club of the Mississippi Valley league, resigning and selling his interest in July, 1925.

Ames Gridders Receive Injuries

AMES, Oct. 21 (AP)—The football hopes of the Iowa State college team were dealt a severe blow last Saturday at Marquette when two additional casualties were added to the former list of three.

Capt. Ed Schlenker, tackle, suffered a sprained ankle, and Frank Swabdo, sophomore half, a broken leg. Paul Trauger, Carl Kern, Bob Smith, and Franklin Nolte are still out of the lineup with varied injuries.

Trauger may see action after his month's rest, but definite promises were lacking from Trainer George Nelson. Smith also may have recovered sufficiently to play, but Kern is not likely for a time to endanger the eye cut received in the Missouri game.

Only Two Factors Kept Homecoming from Being Classed in the Category of Perfect Days

Only two factors kept Homecoming from being classed in the category of perfect days. One was a trivial matter of a victory rather than a tie game; the other an aggravating situation arising from the difficulty and slowness with which the 33,000 spectators experienced in leaving the stadium and making their way down town.

The rain last Friday night and during the game turned the land surrounding the stadium into a sea of mud and the crowd, finding its only clear exit a narrow board walk, was a good hour in reaching the area for parking cars. Another hour was spent in driving to the downtown district by taking a roundabout tour of the city's outlying suburbs.

Complaints were many, and there were even reports of a near panic in the emptying of the west stands. The narrow, wood sidewalk did not allow for a fast-moving stream of pedestrian traffic and consequently a jam occurred. This especially was responsible for sharp criticism being directed at the stadium officials.

If it hadn't been for the rain, perhaps no such situation would have arisen, no complaints would have been made, yet the facilities for a clear exit from the stadium were not adequate as was evidenced Saturday. More than one narrow walk leading from the west side to the road at the east end of the stadium is needed and steps should be taken now.

However, the stadium officials should not bear the brunt of the criticism as situations like that of Saturday accompany the inaugural years of new stadiums. It is very probable that proper exit plans, included in the administration program of the stadium are to be effected in the very near future.

One very commendable feature at the game Saturday was the comfort enjoyed by members of the press who sat in glass-enclosed press boxes watching the game and partaking of a free lunch between halves.

There is no rest for a football coach and Coach Burt Ingwersen is no exception. Now that Homecoming is over, his team a moral victor from the Illinois game, and Iowa football hopes given new life, the young Hawk mentor confronts the task of removing another obstacle in the climb back to Big Ten championship consideration. No less than the Badgers, who so rudely interrupted Hawkeye title dreams last year, form the opposition this Saturday.

Wisconsin, whipped by Notre Dame and Northwestern in successive Saturdays; mainly through mediocre offensive tactics and shoddy defense work, smarts under the tongue-lashing given it by Glenn Thistlethwaite, head coach and looks forward to the tilt for gun to point his charges for the contest.

The Big Roundup

More than 2,000 invitations for the ninth annual roundup of Big Ten schools to be held Nov. 23 at Washington, D. C., have been tendered to graduates and former students of Western conference universities. The event is staged mostly for the heralding of the conference football champions. On the committee for arrangements are two Iowa alumni, Karl Hoffman, president, and John W. Fisher.

Add: Bonehead Club Fred Merkle, Roy Riegels, et al, have a promising candidate for initiation into the world famous Bonehead club. He is Homer Taylor of the Grays Harbor team, Washington. Taylor, ensconced on first, scooted to second as his teammate singled and pulled up safely at the "bag." Consternation was his when the opposing second baseman signaled for the ball and tagged him out.

He was almost inarticulate in his protestations when he discovered the regulation sack several feet away. He had mistaken a pair of fielder's gloves for second base.

Have You Heard—That Hack Wilson is considering a vaudeville contract? May be his act will be known as the "Sun-God."

That Tommy Loughran plans to begin his comeback campaign in New York shortly after the New Year?

About the shorter exhibition game programs that are being planned for several major league teams next spring? Cold weather, always a drawback to conditioning sore muscles, was given as a reason.

Freshman Gridsters Plan Intra-Squad Game for Thursday

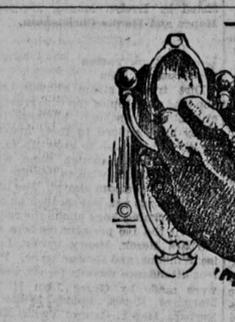

Washday activities for the freshman football squad consisted of preparatory work for the most part—Smedes' Huskies and Irvin's Warriors making plans for the second of the series of inter-house encounters to be staged this Thursday.

Wayne O. Smedes and his outfit were plotting touchdowns in which the Warriors were to have no part. Among the dire things they planned for Thursday was a passing attack, in addition to new plays and formations. Parks H. McNeill of Omaha was calling signals.

Boss Otto Vogel and "Spike" Nelson schooled their large detachment in plays Wisconsin is likely to spring next Saturday. The latter portion of the afternoon was devoted to a light scrimmage with Ingwersen's second string.

Hope for the recovery of DeWitt Cameron of Iowa City, who was first reported dangerously injured in the accident which resulted in the death of two members of the local Moose football team Sunday, was strengthened with the announcement that Cameron, although suffering from a broken shoulder and other lesser injuries, showed signs of improvement.

Supreme Court Cleans Docket

Judicial Body Creates New Time Record

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—The supreme court today cleaned up the cases filed during its summer recess and incidentally made a new record.

It acted on 195 cases, a larger number than ever before reached at a single sitting. Last week it acted on 80, thus giving it a record of having acted on 275 cases during the first two weeks of its present term.

Of the cases in which the court issued orders today 36 granted reviews on the merits of the controversies presented, while 159 petitions for review were thrown out.

The court refused to review a case from California challenging the right of the governor of Iowa to impose an estate tax on the interest of a widow in community property.

It refused to review settlements made by the Southern Pacific and other railroads for losses suffered during the railroad strike of 1922 by shippers of perishable freight; the claims of heirs of Mark Hopkins, who died in San Francisco in 1878 that millions of his estate had not been distributed; and an attempt of the International Typographical Union to abolish trade district unions.

The best football teams don't "just happen--"

When you see a big hole open off the tackle, and the secondary defense smothered—with a halfback streaking through for ten or fifteen yards—you know there has been many hours hard practice—careful coaching.

Good clothes don't "just happen" either. Careful tailoring, style "coaching" from men who know, the latest scientific methods in manufacturing all help your score in wearing good clothes.

Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes are the best "ground gaining" clothes we know. More university men wear them than any other make... We'll be glad to show them to you.
