BIG TEN FAILS TO REACH DECISION

Committee Adjourns After Two-Hour Discussion; Will Pass on Plea This Morning

Iowa Delegates Express Confidence Over Outcome of Meeting Today; Will Make No Further Plea if Petition Fails

CHICAGO, Dec. 6 (AP)—After a two-hour discussion of the University of Iowa's petition for reinstatement to good athletic standing in the Western conference, the faculty committee on athletics of the group postponed decision until tomorrow.

The meeting opened with all members of the committee and Western conference athletic directors, as well as E. H. Lauer of Iowa, in attendance. The meeting was secret, but it was understood that the Iowa question was not discussed. Shortly after 10 o'clock, the coaches left the meeting, and the faculty committee remained to discuss the plea.

The athletic directors were asked to rejoin the faculty committee at 9 a. m. tomorrow, when the discussion as to whether Iowa will be reinstated or finally expelled from the athletic relationship with the other nine schools will be made.

Griffith Undecided Maj. John L. Griffith, Big Ten athletic commissioner, said no decision would be made until tomorrow, and added that he had no idea of what the outcome of the plea would be. It again was indicated that Michigan, Chicago, and Illinois did not favor reinstatement; that Ohio State and Minnesota still were ranked as undecided, and that Northwestern, Indiana, Purdue and Wisconsin were favorable to the Iowa cause.

The feeling among Iowa delegates was one of confidence that the school would be successful in its plea, mixed with determination that there should be no more delay. They indicated that if the petition was turned down, the school would not again ask for reinstatement.

Delay Schedule Making The failure to make a decision further delayed the arranging of schedules for next year, making it likely that the coaches would be at work until late tomorrow.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6 (AP)—Amos Alonzo Stagg of the University of Chicago, was elected president of the Western conference football coaches' association here, making it likely the conference's representative on the national football rules committee today.

Burt Ingwersen, football coach at the University of Iowa whose future relations with the Big Ten was weighed on the conference's association, voted, lending belief that his school would be restored to good standing in the conference.

The football coaches recommended to athletic directors that no school be permitted to have more than two football teams in any conference game. Previously, the commonly accepted limit was one but so many schools made personal agreements to have two or more that it was decided to make the limit two.

Attention was called to the athletic directors that the conference rule, forbidding cameramen along the sidelines during games, had been broken and should be enforced. It also was recommended that no movies be taken of the games unless both teams consent.

Italy's Royal Family Pays Visit to Pope

ROME, Dec. 6 (AP)—Rome lives this week in an atmosphere of high ceremony and meetings of state. Yesterday King Victor Emanuel and Queen Helena paid their first visit to Pope Pius. Tomorrow Crown Prince Humbert and his sisters, Princesses Giovanna and Maria, accompanied by the king, will visit the pontiff to mark the settlement of the Roman question and the end of discord between the house of Savoy and the Holy See.

The ceremonial for the reception at the Vatican will not be so elaborate as that for the welcome of the king and the queen, but as Humbert is the heir to the throne, it will be more elaborate than usual in receiving a royal prince.

Pope Pius is expected to congratulate Prince Humbert on his engagement to Princess Marie Jose of Belgium and to give him his blessing. "I was drunk and he worried me." He made the confession in the face of a death bed statement by the 63 year old invalid-capitalist that his chauffeur did not shoot him.

He said, according to officers, that he shot Parks when they were on the outskirts of Union City late last Saturday. With the wounded man at his side in a coupe, he said he drove back through town, stopped several times, and chatted with friends.

ALUMNUS DIRECTS PLAY Francis Hood of Sargent Bluff, a former university student, is at present engaged in directing home talent plays under the auspices of the American Legion auxiliary. Since taking up her work in Sept. she has directed plays in four western states, Idaho, Montana, Utah, and Nevada.

THE WEATHER

IOWA — Partly cloudy or cloudy, much cooler in east and south portions Saturday; Sunday unsettled, slightly warmer in west and north portions in afternoon.

After three years of discussion the senate yesterday denied William S. Vare (right) of Pennsylvania, a congressional seat. Vare's cause was championed by Sen. David A. Reed of Pennsylvania (left).

Rebels Grow More Violent

SHANGHAI, Dec. 6 (AP)—The mutiny Tuesday of several thousand nationalist soldiers at Pukow had grown today into a rebellion in several provinces of central China, the declared object being the overthrow of the government and its president, Chiang Kai-shek. Other rebels continued to threaten Canton, chief city of south China.

Meanwhile renewed raids by Russian troops are reported to have taken place Wednesday in western Manchuria.

Nanking, China's capital, was placed under martial law tonight to prevent untoward developments. The government troops marched northward to meet rebel forces, estimated at 20,000, and were looking down from the gallery. For three years and at much personal expense he had attempted to win the seat.

Revolts at Itu and Ichang, begun yesterday, were so serious that the government had to send large forces in Hankow to be sent against these Hupei province rebels, operating 800 miles from the sea. Traffic over the Peking-Hankow railway was stopped and the nationalists began gathering their rolling stock into Hankow, apparently fearing that it would be seized either by rebellious Kuomintang troops who recently operated in that region, or by government generals whose loyalty was doubted.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Dec. 6 (AP)—Another of the 10 little fishing schooners which blew far to sea in the storms that swept the north Atlantic ocean since last Friday night, was accounted for today with the rescue of the captain and crew of the Northern Light by the liner Baltic. Only two members of the ill fated fleet are still missing, the schooners Neptune and the Lloyd Jack.

Five seamen were taken off the Northern Light today by the Baltic and the schooner was abandoned. It was a daring rescue, made in heavy and dangerous seas and resulted in the death of one of the Northern Light's crew, Rex Parson, 20 years old.

The deserted fishing vessel was left in a sinking condition and the Baltic was forced to cast adrift the lifeboat in which the men were rescued.

The full gale and high seas sweeping over the Atlantic hampered the rescue work of two other of the fishing schooners, the Fife May Petite and the Merry Widow.

Senate Denies Vare, Wilson Chair Rights

Warns That Grundy Will Not be Acceptable to Body

By FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON (Associated Press Staff Writer) WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—Senate membership was denied to William S. Vare today and, while the Pennsylvania lipped from the chamber, the senate also refused to seat his democratic opponent in the 1926 election, William B. Wilson.

Even before Vare was excluded by 58 to 22 because of expenditures of $75,000 and charges of fraud in his senatorial primary race, warning was given in the senate that Joseph R. Grundy, prominently mentioned as a possible successor, would not be acceptable. Senator Nye, republican, North Dakota, gave that notice and the senate waited apprehensively tonight for Governor Fisher's decision.

Nye called attention that Governor Fisher was nominated on the Mellon-Pepper ticket in the 1926 primary, the ticket which opposed Vare and which was reported to the senate to have spent $1,504,979 in fighting Vare's $785,000 campaign.

"If the senate is going to damn one ill-smelling machine," declared Nye, "it will have to damn the other. And I give notice here and now that the appointee of Governor Fisher will need to be one far removed from affiliation with the Mellon-Grundy-Fisher machine before I will vote to seat him."

The resolution of Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, denying Vare membership was supported by 25 republicans, 32 democrats, and the one farmer-labor member. Twenty-two republicans opposed it.

Turning immediately to the contest of Wilson for the seat, the senate adopted by 68 to 15 the resolution of Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, holding Wilson was not elected.

The democratic contestant, a former secretary of labor, was looking down from the gallery. For three years and at much personal expense he had attempted to win the seat.

George Beltz, 19 years old of Iowa City, who escaped the county jail here recently and was apprehended in Arkansas, was sentenced to 10 years in the men's reformatory at Anamosa by Judge Haaser in district court at Independence yesterday, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

He was charged with breaking and entering, following a series of store robberies in Buchanan county.

Beltz was held in the Johnson county court house as witness in a case against several members of his family who were charged with receiving stolen goods. He escaped the county jail and fled south after being apprehended in Arkansas after an attempted store robbery there. Sheriff Frank L. Smith returned him from the south.

United States Marines Sail for Haiti as Revolt Threat Flares Against Americans

Officials Fear More Trouble After Attacks

U. S. S. Wright Leaves for "Duty Beyond the Seas"

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 6 (AP)—Five hundred marines, drawn from the barracks at Quantico, Norfolk, and Paris island will leave here tomorrow aboard the U. S. S. Wright, flagship of the aircraft squadrons of the fleet, under "secret orders" for "duty beyond the seas."

Although naval and marine corp officials, if they know, decline to state the ship's destination, it is generally believed the men are to be sent to Haiti, where recent developments are said to have caused considerable concern in Washington.

The Wright today began loading supplies and taking aboard airplanes which have been operating from the naval air station here since the vessel has been in port. All officers and members of the crew also were ordered to be aboard not later than midnight tonight. The supplies included a million rounds of small arms ammunition and five carloads of fruit and fresh provisions in addition to staple food.

Situation Serious An indication of the gravity of the Haitian unrest was given by Secretary Stimson, who said the American high commissioner, Brigadier General John H. Russell, fears that a "serious situation" may result at Haitian ports after the disturbance, which arose at Aux Cayes yesterday morning.

The immediate cause for the trouble was said in his public statement to have been a strike instituted by students at the agricultural school at Damion, Oct. 31. The students went on strike as a protest against rearrangement of appropriations for scholarships, the state department made known.

Propaganda Active The department said that President Borno appointed a commission of prominent citizens to settle the difficulty, but that "certain political elements inspired apparently by the approaching presidential election" took advantage of the situation to disseminate propaganda considered detrimental to the Haitian administration.

Subsequently there were demonstrations in the customs house at Port-Au-Prince in which two American officials were slightly injured, the department said.

HAITI UNDER MARTIAL LAW PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Dec. 6 (AP)—After two days of popular unrest, which was ended with the proclamation of martial law by marine corp authorities, Haiti was tranquil today. There was no recurrence of the occasional conflicts of yesterday and Wednesday between certain sections of the populace and detachments from the marine corps and the Haitian guard.

Press dispatches reporting that the Washington state department had advised President Borno of the receipt of his declaration that he would not be a candidate for re-election, helped to calm the unrest in opposition circles.

Leaders in the agitation admitted the situation had got beyond their control when the marine corp intervened. They said they regretted the incidents, which had gone far beyond their plans.

The customs service, where the trouble first started after an employee had been discharged for fraudulent entries, were functioning normally. There were more applicants for work than there were jobs.

World War General Confined to Hotel by Heart Attack

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP)—Major General Robert Lee Bullard, retired commander of the third American army corps during the World War, was seriously ill tonight at his apartment at the Hotel Adams as the result of a heart attack on Monday.

In a statement tonight his daughter, Miss Rose Bullard, said that although his condition was still serious, it had improved steadily since Monday and that he appeared to be in no immediate danger.

The veteran warrior himself made light of his illness. Although unable to leave his bed, and ordered by doctors to remain absolutely quiet, he insisted on receiving visitors, and answering queries as to his condition.

EXPECT OIL BOOM BELLEVUE, Ill., (AP)—Twenty-six leases have been filed with the county recorder here as the result of oil prospecting in the Marissa, Fayetteville and Millstadt areas, south of Dupu, Ill. Natural gas was discovered in the district about two weeks ago.

Hurley Gets Secretary of War Position

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—Patrick J. Hurley, of Oklahoma, lawyer, soldier, and executive, was appointed today by President Hoover as secretary of war, a post in which he has been acting since the death of James W. Good last month.

Thus the chief executive gave effect to the wish of the southern states for a cabinet member and selected a man from one of the states of the south which gave him its electoral vote a year ago.

In announcing the appointment simultaneously with the dispatch of the nomination to the senate, the president said Hurley had been endorsed by the leading men of practically every state in the south. He added that the new cabinet officer was a lawyer of long experience, a distinguished soldier, and an executive of proved ability.

Selection of Hurley to succeed Mr. Good had been expected from the first, as it was known the president desired to give the south a cabinet place and also had a high regard for the ability the official had shown since his appointment as assistant secretary.

Gale Causes Heavy Loss

LONDON, Dec. 6 (AP)—Severe gales developed in the English channel tonight and again menaced shipping around the British Isles and off the coast of Spain. Violent winds already had taken a toll of 19 lives at sea and seven on land with other vessels missing.

The Clyde Lane steamship Arklow was 18 hours overdue at Waterford, Irish Free State. Three life boats from Bombardier, Isle of Wight, Worthing and Selsey, put out into the storm tonight in response to signals from the Hungarian steamer Hoved, which the gale was forcing ashore at Selsey.

From Spain came a brief dispatch that two cruisers of the Spanish navy had collided off Ferrol, the northwest corner of Spain. No mention was made of their condition or whether help would be required.

Spanish sources also reported an Italian steamer on fire and asking aid off Mogador, Morocco. It was said that the vessel was in a precarious position because no other ships had been reported in the vicinity.

The most serious disaster of the storms thus far was the foundering of the steamship Frances Duncan off Lands End with a loss of 16 of her crew of 21. The other five clung to wreckage until picked up by the steamship Alice Marie. An Irish fishing boat with three men disappeared in the storm.

Mexico Faces Revolt From Vasconcelistas

Defeated Candidate for Presidency Charges Fraud, Flees

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 6 (AP)—A movement to bring before the people of the United States conditions under which Pascual Ortiz Rubio was declared the winner in the recent presidential elections in Mexico was started in San Antonio today upon the arrival of Jose Vasconcelos, Rubio's opponent.

Vasconcelos came here from El Paso where he met several of his San Antonio friends and political advisers. He brought with him copies of a manifesto issued earlier in the day by Dr. Francisco Del Rio Canedo.

Challenge Rubio Vote The manifesto pointed out the manner in which the presidential elections were conducted and challenged the vote polled by Rubio.

Vasconcelos said it was "ridiculous there could be a difference of millions of votes between two presidential candidates," and claimed that he had polled 95 per cent of the votes cast in the elections.

The defeated candidate plans to remain here for several days, when he will leave for Los Angeles where he will confer with his west coast representatives.

Announcement that funds already are available for a resolution in Mexico to elevate Vasconcelos to the presidency, was made by Dr. Canedo of San Antonio, former secretary of the anti-re-electionist candidate.

Plan Armed Resistance Dr. Canedo made the first announcement of a plan by Vasconcelos, revealed in a manifesto signed at Guaymas, Sonora, on Dec. 1 to offer armed resistance to the government represented by President-elect Rubio, who now is in the United States.

In his manifesto, Vasconcelos declared that "there is no other legitimate president of the republic of Mexico than Jose Vasconcelos. All authorities including the army, who continue to support the present government of Mexico will be severely punished."

The theft was reported to the Des Moines police about 10 o'clock Thursday night. PERSONAL ITEMS

Albino Field Mice Head for Museum

When Judge Smith, a farmer who lives near Iowa City, was husking corn recently, he noticed a peculiar mouse. Upon following the rodent, he discovered another just like it.

Mr. Smith caught the two in his hands and put them in a cage. Yesterday afternoon he brought the mice, which are now quite tame, with him when he came to see his friend, Dr. W. L. Rywater, Dr. Rywater thought that the mice were very unusual and suggested that they be taken to the university museum.

Prof. Homer R. Dill identified them as albino meadow mice. Field mice are ordinarily brown but occasionally an albino is found. This case is unusual because there are two of these yellowish-white animals. He plans to keep them for observation for several days, after which they will be mounted for the museum.

The meeting was called to order at 2:40 by Pres. Hal Kelly of the Minnesota, Ski-U-Mah, who gave a short introduction emphasizing the importance of having both business managers and editors of the magazines represented present at all sessions of the convention, since editorial and business functions of the magazines are so closely allied.

The program yesterday afternoon was mainly concerned with the problems of business managers. All of the visiting editors attended the Sophomore Cotillion last night. Today's program begins with a session at 9 o'clock, at which time

George T. Eggleston, college art editor of College Humor, will present the plans of his publication for renewed relations with the association. A round table discussion will precede formal action on the proposition.

ALL QUIET on the WESTERN FRONT

By Erich Maria Remarque

The story so far:

Paul Baumer and his soldier comrades enlisted in the German army at 18. During their training, they were abused and persecuted by a former mail carrier, now corporal Himmelstoss. Hatred, they beat him up the last night. He appears later at the front, where one of the privates calls him a "dirty hound." The lieutenant, after hearing the whole story of the corporal's abuse in camp, imposes light sentences.

Returning to the front lines, they pass piles of new coffins. Days of bombardment wreck the trenches, food is impossible to get. A heavy barrage and the attack is on. Baumer and his comrades are in deadly hand-to-hand fighting, defending their new position. He says, "If your own father came over with them (the enemy) you would not hesitate to fling a bomb into him." A successful counter-attack, then comes night and quiet in the trenches.

In Paul's mind are pictures—some of the scenes of the recent carnage, others of his youth and a row of poplar trees back home. Again the shelling, counter-charges, charge, repulse. Young recruits "fall like flies." Hands clench, bodies battered and torn, they only "whimper softly for their mothers." It is WAR! Himmelstoss tries to "funk it," but Baumer drives him on. In the end, the corporal acquits himself well and seeks to be friendly.

Baumer's company—32 men out of 150 who went up to the front—is relieved. Paul gets home leave and bids his friends goodbye. Emotions surge over him as the train carries him back to scenes of his childhood.

Now go on with the story:

CHAPTER XX.

I prefer to be alone, so that no one troubles me. For they all come back to the same thing, how badly it goes and how well it goes; one thinks it is this way, another that; and they are always absorbed in their things that go to make up their own existence. Formerly I lived in just the same way myself, but now I feel no contact here any longer.

They talk to me much. They have worries, aims, desires, that I cannot comprehend. I often sit with one of them in the little beer-garden and try to explain to him that this is really the only thing; just to sit quietly like this. They understand, of course, they agree, they may even feel it so too, but only with words, only with words, yes, that is it—they feel it, but always with only half of themselves; the rest of their being is taken up with other things, they are so divided in themselves that some feels it with his whole essence; I cannot even say myself exactly what I mean.

When I see them here, in their rooms, in their offices about their occupations, I feel an irresistible attraction in it. I would like to be here too and force the war, not also it repels me, it is so narrow, how can that fill a man's life, we ought to smash it to bits; how can they do it, while out at the front the splinters and the star-shells go up, the wounded are carried back on water-proof sheets and comrades crouch in the trenches—there are different men here, men I cannot properly understand, whom I envy and despise. I stand, whom I think of Kat and Albert and must think of Tjaden, what will they do? No doubt they are sitting in the kitchen, or perhaps swimming in the sea; they will have to go up to the front-line again.

In my room behind the table stands a brown leather sofa. I sit down on it. On the walls are pasted countless pictures that I once used to cut out of the newspapers. In between are drawings and postcards that have come my way. In the corner is a small iron stove. Against the wall opposite stand the book-shelves with my books.

I used to like it in this room before I was a soldier. The books I bought gradually with money I earned by working. Many of them are second-hand, some of the classics for example, one volume in blue cloth boards cost me mark 20 pfennig. I bought them complete because I was thoroughgoing. I did not trust the editors of selections, even though they may have chosen all the best. So I purchased only "collected works." I read most of them with laudable zeal, but few of them really appealed to me. I preferred the other books, the moderns, which were of course much dearer. A few I came by not quite honestly. I borrowed and did not return them because I did not want to part with them.

One shelf is filled with school books. They are not so well cared for, they are already thumbed, and pages have been torn out for certain purposes. Then below are periodicals, papers, and letters all jammed in together with drawings and rough sketches.

I want to think myself back into that time. It is still in the room. I feel it at once, the walls have preserved it. My hands rest on the arms of the sofa, now I make myself at home and draw up my legs so that I sit comfortably in the corner, in the arms of the sofa. The little window is open, through it I see the familiar picture of the street with the rising spire of the church at the end. There sit a couple of flowers on the table. Ben-holders, a shell as a paper-weight, the inkwell—here nothing is changed.

It will be like this too, if I am lucky, when the war is over and I come back here for good. I will sit here just like this and look at my room and wait.

I feel excited; but I do not want to be, for that is not right. I want that quiet rapture again, I want to feel the same powerful, nameless urge that I used to feel when I turned to my books. The breath of desire that then arose from the coloured backs of the books shall fill me again, melt the heavy, dead lump of lead that lies somewhere in me and waken again the impatience of the future, the quick joy in the world of thought, it shall bring back again the lost eagerness of my youth. I sit and wait.

It occurs to me that I must go and see Kemmerich's mother; I might visit Mittelstaedt too, he should be at the barracks. I look out of the window—beyond the sober picture of the street appears a range of hills, distant and light; it changes to a clear day in autumn, and I sit by the fire with Kat and Albert and eat potatoes baked in their skins.

But I do not want to think of that. I sweep it away. The room shall speak, it must catch me up and hold me, I want to feel that I belong here, I want to hearken and know when I go back to the front that the war will sink down, be drowned utterly in the great homecoming tide, know that it will then be past forever, and not gnaw us continually, that it will have none but an outward power over us.

The backs of the books stand in rows. I know them all still. I remember arranging them in order. I implore them with my eyes; speak to me—take me up—take me, life of my youth—you who are carefree, beautiful—receive me again—

I wait, I wait.

Images float through my mind, but they do not grip me, they are mere shadows and memories.

Nothing—nothing—

My disquietude grows.

A terrible feeling of foreignness suddenly rises up in me. I cannot find my way back, I am shut out though I entreat earnestly and put forth all my strength.

Nothing stirs; listless and wretched, like a condemned man, I sit there and the past withdraws itself. And at the same time I fear to importune it too much, because I do not know what might happen then. I am a soldier; I must cling to that.

Wearily I stand up and look out of the window. Then I take one of the books, intending to read, and turn over the leaves. But I put it away and take out another. There are passages in it that have been marked. I look, turn over the pages, take up fresh books. Already they are piled up beside me. Speedily more join the heap, papers, magazines, letters.

I stand there dumb. As before a judge.

Dejected.

Words. Words, words—they do not reach me.

Slowly I place the books back in the shelves.

Nevermore.

Quietly, I go out of the room.

Still I do not give up hope. I do not, indeed, go to my room any more, but comfort myself with the thought that a few days are not enough to judge by. Afterward—later on—there is plenty of time for that.

So I go over to see Mittelstaedt in the barracks, and we sit in his room; there is an atmosphere about it that I do not like, but with which I am quite familiar.

Mittelstaedt has some news ready for me that electrifies me on the spot. He tells me Kantorek has been called up as a territorial.

"Just think of it," he says, and takes out a couple of good cigars. "I come back here from the hospital and bump right into him. He stretches out his paw to me and bleats: 'Hullo, Mittelstaedt, how are you?' I look at him and say: 'Territorial Kantorek, business is business and schnapps is schnapps, you ought to know that well enough yourself. Stand to attention when you speak to a superior officer. You should have seen his face! A cross between a dud and a pickled cucumber. He tried once again to chum up. So I snubbed him a bit harder. Then he brought up his biggest guns and asked confidentially: 'Would you like me to use my influence so that you can take an emergency exam?' He was trying to remind me of those things, you know. Then I got mad and I reminded him of something instead. 'Territorial Kantorek, two years ago you preached us into enlisting; and among us there was one, Joseph Behm, who didn't want to enlist. He was killed three months before he would have been called up in the ordinary way. If it had not been for you he would have lived just that much longer. And now: Dismiss. You will hear from me later.' It was easy to get put in charge of his company. First thing I did was to take him to the stores and fit him out with a suitable equipment. You will see in a minute."

We go out to the parade ground. The company has fallen in. Mittelstaedt stands there as ease and in-spect.

Then I see Kantorek and am scarcely able to stifle my laughter. He is wearing a faded blue tunic. On the back and in the sleeves there are big dark patches. The overcoat must have belonged to a giant. The black, worn breeches are just as much too short; they reach barely halfway down his calf. The boots, though old clod-hoppers with turned up toes and laces at the side, are a model for you to learn from.

The cap is too small, a terribly dirty, mean little pill-box. The whole rig-out is just pitiful.

Mittelstaedt stops in front of him: "Territorial Kantorek, do you call those buttons polished? You seem as if you can never learn. Inadequate, Kantorek, quite inadequate."

It makes me bubble with glee. In school Kantorek used to chasten Mittelstaedt with exactly the same expression—"Inadequate, Mittelstaedt, quite inadequate."

Mittelstaedt continues to upbraid him: "Look at Boettcher now, there's a model for you to learn from."

I can hardly believe my eyes. Boettcher is there too, Boettcher, our school porter. And he is a model to remind me of those things, you know. Then I got mad and I reminded him of something instead. "Territorial Kantorek, two years ago you preached us into enlisting; and nothing could look more ludicrous than his forage-cap and his uniform. And this is the object before whom we used to stand in anguish, as he sat up there, enthroned at his desk, spearing at us with his pencil for our mistakes in those irregular French verbs with which afterwards we made so little headway in France. That is barely two years ago—and now here stands Territorial Kantorek, the spell quite broken, with bent knees, arms like pot-hooks, unpollished buttons, and that ludicrous rig-out—an impossible soldier. I cannot reconcile this with the menacing figure at the schoolmaster's desk. I wonder what I, the old soldier, would do if this skin full of woe ever dared to say to me again: Baumer, give the imperfect of 'aller'."

Then Mittelstaedt makes them practise skirmishing, and as a favour appoints Kantorek squad leader.

Now in the skirmishing the squad leader has always to keep 20 paces in front of his squad; if the order comes "On the march, about turn," the line of skirmishers simply turns about, but the squad leader, who now finds himself suddenly 20 paces in rear of the line, has to rush up at the double and take his position again 20 paces in front of the squad. That makes altogether 40 paces doublemarch. But no sooner has he arrived than the order "On the march, about turn," comes again and he once more has to race at top speed another 40 paces to the other side. In this way the squad had made merely the turnabout and a couple of paces while the squad-leader dashes backwards and forwards. That is one of Himmelstoss' well-worn recipes.

Kantorek can hardly expect anything else from Mittelstaedt, for he once messed up the latter's chance of promotion, and Mittelstaedt would be a big fool not to make the best of such an opportunity as this before he goes back to the front again. A man might as well die easier after the army has given him just one such stroke of luck.

In the meantime Kantorek is dashing up and down like a wild-boar. After a while Mittelstaedt stops the skirmish and begins the very important exercise of creeping.

On hands and knees, carrying his gun in regulation fashion, Kantorek shoves his absurd figure over the sand immediately in front of us. He is breathing hard, and his panting is music.

Mittelstaedt encourages Kantorek the territorial with quotations from Kantorek the schoolmaster. "Territorial Kantorek, we have the good fortune to live in a great age, we must all humble ourselves and for once put aside bitterness."

Kantorek sweats and spits out a dirty piece of wood that has lodged in his teeth.

Mittelstaedt stoops down and says reproachfully: "And, in the trifles never lose sight of the great adventure, 'Territorial Kantorek'."

It amazes me that Kantorek does not explode with a bang, especially when, during physical exercises, Mittelstaedt copies him to perfection, seizing him by the seat of his trousers as he is climbing along the horizontal bar, so that he can just raise his chin above the beam, and then starts to give him good advice. That is exactly what Kantorek used to do to him at school.

The extra fatigues are next detailed. "Kantorek and Boettcher, bread fatigue! Take the hand-cart with you."

In a couple of minutes the two set off together pushing the barrow. Kantorek in a fury walks with his head down. But the porter is delighted to have scored light duty. The bakehouse is away at the other end of the town, and the two must go there and back through the whole length of it.

"They've done that a couple of times already," grins Mittelstaedt. "There are still a few people waiting to see them."

"Excellent," I say, "but hasn't he reported you yet?"

"He did try. Our C. O. laughed like the deuce when he heard the story. He hasn't any time for school-master. Besides, I'm sweet with his daughter."

"He'll mess up the examination for you."

"I don't care," says Mittelstaedt calmly. "Besides, his complaint came to nothing because I could show that he had hardly anything but light duty."

"Couldn't you polish him up a bit?" I ask.

"He's too stupid. I couldn't be bothered," answers Mittelstaedt contemptuously.

Big Ten Faculty Committee Listens to Iowa Ouster Case in Chicago

Question of Iowa Status Holds Stage

Hawkeyes Place Doubt Before Conference Chieftains

CHICAGO, Dec. 6 (AP)—Future athletic relations of the University of Iowa, with other members of the Big Ten, rested tonight with the faculty committee of the Western conference.

This committee, composed of one faculty representative from each of the institutions, met to decide whether the Hawkeyes, charged with proselyting and subsidizing athletes, should continue as a member of the Big Ten, or be banished, effective Jan. 1.

As the committee prepared to go into session, indications were that a stormy meeting was in prospect, with much debate and discussion on both sides before a decision might be reached. The meeting threatened to become a long, protracted affair, with the possibility that no decision might be reached tonight, and that adjournment might be taken, after a thorough discussion, until tomorrow.

No Inking of Fate
There was no inking as to what the fate of the Hawkeyes might be, so far as the committee members were concerned. Each of the faculty representatives had a copy of Iowa's 4,500 word plea, in which the institution asked to have its banishment set aside. The Iowa athletic and faculty chiefs, in making their plea for restoration, were prepared to present evidence that there has been a wholesale house-cleaning in athletic affairs at Iowa City, and that the Hawkeye institution now is attempting to conduct its athletic affairs in accordance with all Big Ten rules.

The possible outcome of the faculty meeting includes:
1.—That the ruling against Iowa made by the faculty committee last May, will be made permanent, and that the nine other institutions will go ahead and arrange schedules with Iowa blacklisted.

2.—That Iowa will be placed on probation and be given more time to demonstrate it has cleaned house and proposes to live up to the Big Ten rules.

3.—That Iowa will be reinstated to good standing.

The move for reinstatement has come from the Hawkeyes themselves. Dean C. C. Williams, newly elected head of the Iowa athletic council, was to make the plea for his institution.

Iowa Optimistic
There was a persistent undercurrent of belief in the Hawkeye delegation that Iowa would be reinstated, and that Prof. James Paige, faculty representative from the University of Minnesota, was the key man to the situation.

Dean Williams expressed confidence in Prof. Paige's support of Iowa, provided he has not decided in advance what his vote on the petition should be. Paige is a professor of law, and Hawkeye leaders were confident their evidence, if properly weighed, would be sufficient argument for reinstatement.

"All we want, or can expect from Professor Paige, is any other member of the committee, is an honest and open consideration of the evidence," Dean Williams said. "We do not ask that they come into the meeting favoring Iowa. We feel that we can convince them of the justice of our cause."

Pending schedules for the Iowa situation, no move was made today to draw up schedules for the 1930 competition. Schedules are to be drawn up for football, basketball, swimming, baseball, tennis, golf and other sports, and the coaches were unable to make much headway, until they learned whether they could arrange contests with Iowa for next season.

National Business Survey May Form Council of Guidance

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—Outlines of organization for a possible permanent council of guidance for American industry were being formulated slowly today after the recess of the national business survey conference begun by President Hoover.

Julius H. Barnes, named as chairman of the gathering, said he intended to proceed with care and to interview the nation's business leadership generally. Notwithstanding this, the tentative program shaped after close of the session yesterday at the chamber of commerce of the United States, appeared to call for the creation of a large assembly conference committee representing many business lines. A small executive group acting as a sort of second chamber of counsel is contemplated.

TEAMS READY FOR TILT

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 6 (AP)—Football teams from two corners of the United States to Miami, did not find the semitropical weather of Miami more discomforting than did the Gators from Gainesville. Weather predictions for tomorrow are "generally fair, and warm."

FIVE OF DRAKE TEAM ON MISSOURI VALLEY ALL-STARS

Gophers Get Indoor Meet

Directors Award Track Event for '30

By HERMAN J. SMITH (Associated Press Staff Writer)
CHICAGO, Dec. 6 (AP)—Eager for any indication as to the outcome of the University of Iowa's attempt to win Western conference reinstatement, coaches and observers tonight were discussing the possible significance of action taken by the Big Ten athletic directors late this afternoon in awarding the conference indoor track meet to Minnesota.

The indoor event, which has been held at Iowa for the last two years, was scheduled for March 7 and 8 at Minneapolis. A. A. Stagg, director of athletics at the University of Chicago, and newly elected president of the Big Ten coaches' association, said no other invitations were presented to the directors meeting and that the action was taken in accord with the unanimous recommendation of the track coaches at their session earlier in the day.

The outdoor meet again went to Northwestern, which has been host to the annual event for several years. It will be held at Evanston, May 30 and 31. Chicago will be the scene of the conference tennis tournament May 29 and 30.

Three Men Killed in Cleveland by Railroad Accidents

CLEVELAND, Dec. 6 (AP)—Three men were killed and two others injured, one seriously in three railroad accidents on the east and west side late today. Switch engines struck and killed two men, while the third was mutilated beyond recognition when hit by a nickel plate railroad work train.

The dead are Peter Glowatsky, 26 years old; John Taross, 59 years old, and an unidentified man.

Otto Trajvall, 40 years old, was seriously injured and J. F. Sawyer, 36 years old, suffered minor cuts and bruises when the flat car on which they were riding was derailed by a split switch.

Glowatsky was crushed to death between the engine tender and the flat car in the same accident.

Fort Dodge Man Gets Jail Term on Liquor Charge

MASON CITY, Dec. 6 (AP)—Milo Horner, Ft. Dodge, was fined $900 and sentenced to 4 months in jail by Judge M. H. Kepler on a charge of illegal transportation of liquor, here today.

The defendant asked clemency on the ground of ill health but the jail sentence was imposed when the court was informed Horner could be given a satisfactory diet in jail.

MAK BLESSED

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6 (AP)—Cornelius McGillicuddy, or Connie Mack, as he is known in the baseball world, has received the papal blessing sent from Rome for himself and his family.

The document, designating the bestowal of this benediction, was presented to him at his home this week by two catholic laymen and a priest. Mack, whose Philadelphia Athletics are the world's champions, was surprised at the unusual recognition but was quickly enlightened by the delegation.

Acacia

John P. Louden, C3 of Fairfield, was a dinner guest at the Acacia chapter house Thursday night.

Majors Adopt New Hands Off Policy With College Stars

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 6 (AP)—As the national association of professional baseball club leagues closed its twenty-eighth annual convention today, it told the colleges and schools of the United States that it would adopt a hands off policy for athletes seeking education and would be content to sign them for professional baseball when they have laid their books aside.

The convention went on record as "deprecating" invasion of halls of education. K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, spent a part of his last day in Chattanooga, for the time being, in hearing a plea from H. N. (Nick) Cullop for free agency.

Nick, who hit and threw long distances while playing in the Brooklyn outfield, for a short while, thought his transfer to Atlanta of the Southern association, was not all that he should have been, according to the strict letter of the baseball law. Commissioner Landis heard the player, R. J. Spiller of the Atlantic club, and Wilbert Robinson of Brooklyn. The decision will come later. Cullop in the meantime has been transferred by Atlanta to Minneapolis.

Another manager was named today. Tulsa of the Western league, appointing Albert (Bruno) Betzel, formerly manager of the Indianapolis club and a former major league infielder with the St. Louis Cardinals. Tulsa also sold Doc Smith, a catcher, to William Sport, of the New York-Denver-Vanilla league.

Senate Again Tackles Tariff

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—The republican tariff revision bill laid aside two weeks ago in the special session returned temporarily to its legislative groove in the senate today but little headway was made with committee amendments.

Chairman Swoot of the finance committee called up the legislation soon after the votes on the Vore case were taken.

Reconsideration of the controversial wool rate schedule, the senate approved increases proposed by Swoot in the duties on raw clothing wool if secured, on the skin or sorted, to bring these duties into line with the increase previously voted on the clean content of raw woolen from 31 to 34 cents a pound.

How long the tariff will remain before the senate was uncertain tonight in view of the plans of the finance committee to report out as soon as possible the house-approved tax cut resolution.

The calibre of competition in this year's interfraternity tournament is the highest ever. "Soft spots" just don't exist on the schedules.

In past tournaments there were always a number of "weak sisters," who merely played for the fun of it. This season there are 30 teams entered, a record number, and every one is capable of making it tough for its opponents.

The guards, it seems, hold the key to victory. The airtight defense of the Phi Chi may win the title for them, at least it makes them strong bidders.

To show the importance of guards: Geer's guarding of Joe Woodka enabled Sigma Phi Epsilon to eke out victory over Theta Xi, 17 to 15 after two torrid overtime periods. Theta Xi guards overtake feed the ball to Woodka, but close guarding held him down to three baskets.

To Begin Boxing Classes Thursday

Roscoe Hall, university boxing instructor, announced yesterday that actual instruction in classes will not begin until Thursday of next week, and further stated that students would not do any boxing for several weeks. Hall's method of instruction is based on the principle of giving his charges a working knowledge of the various punches before allowing them to box. Light exercises and shadow boxing comprised the workout in yesterday's class.

Splashers Drill in Absence of Mentor

While Coach Dave Armbruster was helping iron out conference differences in the conference meeting held at Chicago yesterday, his swimming charges held a light workout of their own, drilling mainly on form, and on ironing out the kinks in their style.

Most of the men swam their usual distance, without exerting themselves or attempting speed. With the East-Sea review out of the way, the splashers are beginning active preparations for the freshman-varsity meet to be held within the next two weeks, possibly next Saturday.

St. Pat Cagers Nip Alums by 13-10 Score in Ragged Game

St. Pat's cagers edged out a 13 to 10 win over the alumni in a ragged game, showing only occasionally bursts of speed and flashy play. Throughout the game both teams had plenty of chances to score that were muffed. With Dvorsky carrying the brunt of the winner's attack, they grabbed a small lead in the second period and maintained it throughout the game. Dvorsky and Glasgow, alumni, tied for high point honors with two baskets and a free throw apiece.

Joe Welch started the scoring with a short side shot, which was followed by like one from Dvorsky. The score remained in a tie until late in the half when Glasgow dropped one. Just before the half ended John Welch garnered another basket and Dvorsky put the Pats ahead by a free throw.

The second half started listlessly with neither team having the advantage, then Spratt looped a short shot in that was followed by two neat buckets by Kelly. Having the lead, St. Pat's took it easy until the alumni started a rally that was cut short by the gun.

In the preliminary the St. Pat midlets took a fast game from the Cosgrove juniors with a score of 10 to 8.

DEAN PHILLIPS IN EAST

Dean Chester A. Phillips, of the college of commerce, left Thursday evening for a trip in the east that will include stops in New York city and Detroit. Professor Phillips plans on returning to Iowa City in about a week.

Sueppelmen Play Monday

When St. Mary's Hambers take the floor against St. Wendelmas at Cedar Rapids Monday night, they will meet a team of experienced hoopers. Seven out of 10 of the Cedar Rapids school's first squad are back this year, and four members of the team which battled St. Mary's last year in a hard fought game which finally ended 11-10 in favor of the Blue and White, will be back in uniform.

Monday night's game will be a contest between speed and brawn. St. Wendelmas, with a squad of 17 huskies, who average nearly 170 pounds, seven of whom are seniors, and nearly all veterans, seem on paper to have an edge, but Coach Sueppel's fast stepping, close guarding quintet has already defeated three larger opponents by overwhelming scores, while the Purple City aggregation will be playing their first game next Monday.

With Grimm, who is back in the local lineup, a bulwark on defense, and Fay Knoedel and Gauscheer tossing field goals as they have been in practice, St. Mary's should be able to more than hold their own with the Cedar Rapids lads.

For St. Wendelmas Ferguson, a huge Negro, will be back at center. Stepanek, a flashy offensive player, also a veteran of last year, at forward, and Patsiek and Seda, the other two regulars last season, at guards.

Tony Holm, Alabama fullback, gained 1293 yards in eight games.

Other good marks, yesterday, were: Gilney, 98, standing; Weeber, 96, kneeling; and Weeber, 94, sitting.

Draft Schedules for Mo. Valley Conference

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 6 (AP)—If any action is taken by the Missouri Valley conference at its fall meeting toward the admission of new members into its ranks, it probably will be conservative as directors, coaches, and faculty men today were engaged in the drafting of schedules.

The conference arranged for the annual cross country meet at Grinnell, Nov. 22, 1929; the indoor track meet at Drake in Des Moines, March 1; the outdoor meet at Creighton in Omaha, May 22 and 24, and the swimming meet March 12 at Drake.

The conference also worked on football and basketball schedules.

Lettermen With Aid of New Men to Meet Test

Seventeen shoulders will bear the burden of the Hawkeye basketball hopes, when Iowa and Duquesne clash in what will be the initial battle of the season for both contenders, in the field house Monday night. Contrary to previous information, however, no men will be cut from the Old Gold practice squad.

When the whistle announces that the University of Iowa's 1929-30 cage season is under way Monday, three centers, and six guards will be sporting the Old Gold outfits for Iowa.

Of these men, eight are lettermen from last year, Robert Spaulding, Doyal Plunkitt, Irving Nelson, and George Rogge, forwards; Seward Leika is the only "T" center.

Other members of the practice squad are: Floyd Mitchell, Herbert Yaki, Dennis Arango, Homer Muscovo, Art Hansen, Kenneth Trickey, and A. G. Ross, all guards.

Whatever it is their eastern invaders have in store for them, the ten Iowa men who will most likely bear the brunt of it are: Spaulding, Plunkitt, Hildreth, Nelson, Rogge, Leika; and Benson, centers; and Kinman, Farrah, Jensen, and Reinhardt, guards.

The Hoosier lads, Spaulding and Plunkitt who teamed together for four years in high school, will both forward, bringing to the court the same eye that enabled them to win two football letters as crack drop-kicker on the gridiron.

Leika Dangerous
Especially dangerous under the basket and tricky with the ball, Seward Leika, understudy last year for "Bib" Wilson, is chief candidate for the pivot job, with Benson his closest competitor.

Kinman and Farrah have the edge on the defensive positions because of greater experience; Kinman is a talented dribbler, while Farrah's ability for free endurance and the ability for his own defense by his apparent lack of fitness.

Pops' Harrison, who is in charge of the squad during Coach Williams' absence in Chicago, ran his men through a light signal drill yesterday. A short period of basket shooting is scheduled for the final workout this afternoon.

Iowa City Hi Spills Foes

Lone Tree Dropped in Opener, 21 to 17

Iowa City high pried open the lone cage season last night by defeating a scrappy Lone Tree denter in the annual battle, 21-17. Both teams played typical early season basketball, the contest being featured by an abundance of fumbles and bad passes. The Red and White offense was led by Captain Moffitt who was high scorer of the evening with a total of six field goals. Flake registered nine points for Lone Tree in addition to playing a bang-up floor game.

Lone Tree resorted to long range shooting early in the struggle as they were unable to penetrate the tight defense of the Welmenes. Stimmel broke the ice with a gift toss, but was injured shortly afterwards in a skirmish under the basket and was replaced by Mathews.

Baker looped a nice side shot to give his team a temporary advantage. Iowa City missed shot after shot, before Cliff Hildreth stepped one through the hoop from near the center of the floor. Moffitt took a nice pass from Glick to count again. Flake's free throw ended the scoring in what was a rather ragged opening period.

Poor Passing Game
The rival quintets handled the ball very poorly at the opening of the second quarter, many of the passes going out of bounds. Two field goals by Glick concluded the first half, before the substitutes slipped two counters in from the side of the court, but Flake retaliated with a beautiful goal from the center of the court.

Defensive Game Played
Both quintets played splendid defensive games during the first period. Flake put his team within striking distance with a neat shoulder toss with but three minutes of play remaining.

Howard Moffitt and Lester Glick, veteran forwards from last year, were responsible for most of Iowa City's tallies. Coach Wells' team played a strong defensive game making its opponents shoot largely by from far out in the court. Flake and Baker led the visitors' attack aided by the sensational dribbling and floor play of Deorris.

A large crowd attended the opening tilt.

Scoreboard for Lone Tree (7) vs FG, FT, PF. Includes names like Doerries, Flake, Baker, Beckman, Storms, Wright, and Totals.

LEGOURI WINS BY TECHNICAL KO

Legouri rushed the Filipino to the ropes and half hit, half pushed him over the ropes. Falgano's back was strained to such an extent that he was unable to continue and the fight was awarded to the titleholder.

Vale Falgano, brother of Henry, also lost his fight, a four round decision to Tuck Shaddon, Omaha. The Nebraska won every round and never was in danger, completely outclassing the local boy.

TILLIE THE TOILER—A Picture of Prosperity

Hagen Loses Opportunity for Golf Title

Leo Diegel Continues Battle for National Pro Crown

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6 (AP)—Championship hopes of Walter Hagen crashed on the fairways of Wilmette today when the colorful wanderer of golfdom bowed to the superior play of Leo Diegel, defending titleholder, 3 and 2, in the semi-finals of the national professional golfers association tournament.

While Diegel met and matched the challenge of Hagen, Johnny Farrell of New York, cruised through his test to eliminate Al Watrous, Detroit, 6 and 5. Smiling Johnny fought his way back from the brink of defeat yesterday, when he came from far behind to nose out Craig Wood, Bloomfield, N. J., on the twenty-seventh, but his contest today was made without much exertion. As the result of his win, he will face Diegel tomorrow in the 36 hole final.

Seeking his sixth P.G.A. title, Hagen saw his chances swept away before a rush of pars and birdies that streaked from the clubs of his nearest rival—the same rival who a year ago eliminated him from the rank of contenders. Diegel shot subpar golf; Hagen par.

Diegel toured the Hillcrest country club course in 48 in this morning's round to lead his opponent two up at the half way point. Hagen shot a respectable par 71. Two times in the two rounds, "breaks" aided Diegel. One down at the seventh, Diegel captured the eighth to square the match with a par 4 to Hagen's 6. Diegel's ball was headed for some brush but glanced off a spectator's heel and bounded back toward the green.

The twenty-first hole brought Diegel a three up lead after he had hooked his drive into a fence and the ball bounded back into the fairway. He eventually posted a birdie three to Hagen's four.

20 Major Letters Awarded at Ames

AMES, Dec. 6 (AP)—The Iowa State college athletic council today granted 20 major football "T's", one major manager's letter, and seven minor football letters. Cross country men received one major award and five minor "T's".

Those who received the major football awards are: Forrest Bennett, Marshall, Okla.; Hinnel, Ames; Herbert Lea, Minn.; Robert Burton, Waterloo; Warren Duesenberg, Garner; Gilbert Hitch, Ft. Madison; Harry Johnson, Dubuque; Carl Kern, Cedar Rapids; Lloyd Lounsbury, Colo.; Gordon Nagel, Guthrie Center; Truman Nelson, Kanawha; Frank In Nolte, Hampton; Orrie Roe, Ames; George Schlenker, Des Moines; Robert Smith, Des Moines; Maynard Spear, Toledo; Franz Swoboda, Omaha; Rudolph Tegland, Story City; Paul Trauger, Ames; Kenneth Wells, Lake View, and Richard Wilcox, Stanhope.

Harley Wilcox of Perry, senior football manager, received the manager's major "T," and Ray Putnam, Elvins, Mo., won the major cross country letter.

FULLBACK TITANS OF 1929

Modern football usually assigns two main duties to the fullback, i. e., he's the team's principal line plunger and, with the sving center, closest to his own line on defense. Generally he is the sturdiest of the backs, because of his employment as the chief hammer in close order, smashing power plays. Where there is wealth of backfield material, halfbacks and fullbacks are used interchangeably, but, in the main, the fullback is the ace short-gain rusher and line backer.

Charlie Brookins Dons Spikes in Track Drill

Coach Charles R. Brookins donned the spikes once more yesterday afternoon to show the aspiring tracksters how it is done. After Coach Brookins' demonstration, the squad took a light workout and played a few games before being sent to the showers.

The weight-lossers welcomed the warm weather. Coach Thomas Martin had them paying more attention to their form and was teaching them not to foul as they threw their favorite weight.

Oliver Samsen, last year's freshman triathlon winner, reported for practice yesterday afternoon. Gordon Prange, promising sophomore shot-putter, was a spectator at the practice. Early in the season Prange strained the muscles in his elbow and it is doubtful whether he will be able to compete in the triathlon.

Edward Everett Horton featured in 'The Hottentot', an all-talking picture, with Patsy Ruth Miller and Edmund Breese, which opens at the Garden Theatre tomorrow for a 4-day run.

Handy's Cagers Drill on Defense, Offense in Light Practice

No practice game has been scheduled yet and Coach Handy is still drilling his U. high cagers on the fundamentals of both offense and defense. A noticeable improvement in the passing department of the Blue and White machine was evident yesterday. The men also showed signs of polish in the basket shooting phase of the game.

Coach Handy expects to begin scrimmages next week although the men have no game until Jan. 10. He faces a problem in selecting a winning combination from the small squad with which he has been working.

At present the first string university high lineup is composed of Rowe and Thomas at forward, McGinnis at center, and Van Epps and Dill holding down the guard positions. Rowe and Thomas, veterans from last year's squad, are expected to bear the brunt of the scoring power. Van Epps and Dill show promise in developing into a fast pair of defensive men, although they will be somewhat handicapped by a lack of size. McGinnis has the build of a second Blackmer and Coach Handy includes to capitalize on his height a great deal.

The second team lineup includes Kinley and Leamer, forwards; Book, center, and Patena and Meisner, guards. Although they lack the experience of the first group, the second string may develop into a strong five before the season is begun.

When Michigan State defeated the Mississippi Aggies at Jackson, Miss., it marked the first time the mid-western eleven had won a road game in six years.

Earl Dunlap, Georgia Tech quarterback, plans to become a missionary. He is a senior.

Santa Claus Will Call at Hospitals With Iowans' Aid

Christmas will not be a time of melancholy within the university hospitals if donors throughout the state repeat their beneficence of past years.

With special attention to the 125 inmates of the children's hospital, a committee of eight members has begun plans for observance of Christmas, it was announced yesterday by Robert E. Neff, administrator of the hospitals.

Already persons in all sections of Iowa are shipping gifts to the children's hospital. Included among the consignments are toys of all descriptions, magazines and books, games, stationery, and garments.

There is no limit to the amount of such articles which are acceptable to the children, Mr. Neff said. He pointed out that hospital officials are almost wholly dependent upon Iowans' donations to cast joy among the crippled children.

In the concentration upon the children's wards, the general hospital with its hundreds of patients will not be neglected. All wards will be decorated, and on Christmas eve carols will be sung by two organizations.

Members of the Christmas committee, all attaches of the hospital, are: Lois B. Corder, chairman; Mary M. Maxwell, Mrs. Alma Nieman, Kate Daum, John T. Goltman, Dr. Mark Floyd, Dr. C. W. Thomas, and Flora Weber.

Wi-Dopun to Turn Iowan Office Into Razz Grounds

The sacred atmosphere of a newspaper office will be invaded Wednesday, Dec. 11, when the lobby of the journalism building will be turned into a pleasure seeker's haunt.

The din of typewriters and the jangle of telephones will be silenced from 4 to 6 p.m. when students, faculty members and their families, pressmen, compositors, and copyreaders declare a short truce at the Wi-Dopun which is to be the scene of a thrilling disclosure.

Feature the Daily Iowan office will all its occupants clad in Sunday best, with shoes shined, and with their manners in their hands. Can you imagine the office (minus the noise and bustle) a picture of an afternoon gathering? Can't you hear the low roars of chime with starcoo laughter, and see huge shoes tramp on tiny ones? It's so unusual, the betting is all in favor of a good time and surely there will be for when a newspaper stops work it cannot be without good effect.

No pressman will climb ladders in anger at copyreaders and no faculty member will cast cruel glances at those making the most racket. It shall be a scene of true though short-lived friendships and of surprising entertainment.

Gray May be the skies, dark the horizon, and black the clouds, but journalists are accustomed to all that and it will not phase them. Just give them space, people of their own kind and a clear field and the day is theirs.

Professor Eldridge Delivers Lecture on Physics Topic

"It matters a form of energy" was the subject of the first of the fourth series of Baconian lectures, delivered last night in the chemistry auditorium, by John A. Eldridge, professor of physics, at approximately 175 members of the faculty and students.

Professor Eldridge explained the properties of matter, and then showed by a series of experiments and slides, that various forms of energy have material properties. The properties which he attributed to matter or mass are: inertia, because mass gives a push when stopped; weight, because it falls to the ground when dropped; conservation, because its aggregate remains unchanged; continuity, because it may disappear here and reappear there but only passing through intermediate points; and atomicity because it is not divisible.

Professor Eldridge then showed that the various forms of energy kinetic, potential, chemical, and light, had these five material properties, and thus concludes that matter is a form of energy.

After the lecture members of the audience were given the privilege of asking questions, and a brief discussion of the points raised by Professor Eldridge concluded the program.

"Bill" Hart Mails 40,000 Health Seals to Local Families

"Bill" Hart, local business man, is said to be conspiring to throw additional work upon Postmaster C. C. Shrader and his cohorts at the post-office.

Already "Bill" has sent letters to practically every head of a family in Iowa City as well as to numerous business houses; but not satisfied with the mails with these letters he has included 40,000 little seals to be affixed to later letters.

However, the postmaster says that he is not the least chagrined with "Bill's" campaign and heartily endorses the sale of these health seals and that he and his men do not in the least mind the extra burden.

An effort is being made by Mr. Hart, who is chairman of the Christ health seal campaign, to sell $1,200 worth of seals in this county to be used in the fight against tuberculosis, and the mails seem the most logical way to reach all the people.

Four Colleges Offer Contests in Basketball

Nebraska for Football California, Notre Dame Possible

By HERMAN J. SMITH (Associated Press Staff Writer) CHICAGO, Dec. 7 (AP)—Their hopes for Western conference reinstatement gone University of Iowa athletic leaders...

Through the official Big pronouncement expressed "earnest hope of the conference that Iowa may find itself in a position in the near future to accept its new petition," there was the sentiment on the part of Iowa delegation that the efforts, twice balked in their fight to win reinstatement the expulsion edict last week again rap at the conference door at a later date.

E. H. Lauer, director of athletics, said it was his own Iowa would make no attempt to regain its conference status, despite the invitation contained in the resolution naming the Hawkeye plea. A definite determination of Iowa's future policy, however, rests with the university board in conference of athletics, which will convene at Iowa City Monday or Tuesday to consider the problem.

With only three weeks which to compile a basketball schedule, Coach Rollie Willard faced perhaps the most difficult task among the Hawkeye sports who feverishly began search for prospective opponents in their various sports programs. With four games to be played for the month of December against Duquesne, Pittsburg, Marquette, and Notre Dame, Lauer had offers from Michigan State, Missouri, and Dakota to aid him in building a schedule.

Pittsburgh Possible No sooner had he emerged from joint session of the athletic directors with the Big Ten faculty committee at which Iowa's fate was determined this afternoon, than Director telegraphed to the University breaks his acceptance of an offer from home football game Iowa in 1930 and 1931. Lauer asserted that Iowa would try to win a Southern conference for next fall. Southern California and Notre Dame but said it was his understanding that Pittsburg, another possible opponent, already had a full schedule. George T. Brennan, track coach whose retention in that capacity Iowa defended in the face of a conference attack during stormy sessions, said he had had Notre Dame for a dual meet at Bend, Mo. 10.

The Iowa cinder path men debated that he would rely upon meets to fill out most of his schedule. The indoor season includes meets with the Chicago Illinois Athletic clubs at Iowa though dates have not yet been set. Among the relay carnivals in the Hawkeyes are likely to take place: Texas relays at Austin, Tex., Southern Methodist relays at Dallas, Tex., March 29, Minnesota relays at Minneapolis, April 6, Drake relays at Lawrence, April 9, Drake relays at Des Moines, 23 and 26.

Williams Still on Committee Brennan also hopes to boost major dual meet opposition national collegiate conference in New York next month. In baseball, Coach Otto H. had a tentative schedule call games with Nebraska, Notre Dame, Loyola of Chicago, Michigan Kalamazoo Normal, and Creighton. "MEET THAT TEAM!"

The midnight train to Chicago pulled out Thursday night, and on it went an Iowa team. It was not a team of tackles, of halfbacks, of guards; it was a team of faculty members, of athletic directors, of coaches...

The team failed! For some reason or other it was unable to take its plea for reinstatement across the goal line, and whether that was the team's fault or the referee's is a matter for conjecture...

That team fought for Iowa for 14 hours in Chicago today and yesterday—as hard or harder than any Hawkeye football machine ever fought!

At 7:45 tomorrow morning our "team" will arrive at the Rock Island station.

And every single Iowa student, who believes in the University of Iowa, regardless of what the Big Nine thinks about it, is going to be there tomorrow morning to meet Iowa's Faculty Football Team!

How about it, Iowans?

Suspected Players Listed Of the three items said by Lauer to be the "steps remaining to be taken," which figured in the original Iowa plea last June and Fiedling H. Yost, athletic director at the University of Michigan...

Alleged abuse of student notes given to the alumni "trust fund" which figured in the original Iowa charges, involved five Hawkeye football players of last season...

With Iowa still technically a member of the conference though cut off from athletic relations with any of the other members, conjecture turned tonight to the future of Hawkeye course with the Big Ten...

Campus, City Resent Action of Big Ten

Expression of disappointment and a feeling that Iowa had been done an injustice were made tonight by University of Iowa officials and students following the refusal of the Big Ten conference to reinstate the Hawkeye school...

Prof. E. E. Mahan, director of the extension division said, "I think Iowa was given a raw deal. The action was atrocious and not at all just, but Iowa will have to make the best of it."

Emerson W. Nelson, captain of the 1927 football team, said, "We might as well go ahead and schedule outside games and show the rest of the conference that we are good enough to be in it."

Prof. Rudolph A. Kuever, pharmacy representative on the athletic council, expressed disappointment and said the committee action was not what he expected...

Eric C. Wilson, university news editor and former Iowa Olympic track star, said, "There is something back of the whole thing."

Lloyd Jenson, reserve Hawkeye quarterback, thought the ouster made little difference. Ingals Swisher, Iowa alumnus and former mayor here, said, "The alumni will be plenty sore. I am not in favor of any counter attacks until Dean Williams and Mr. Lauer have been consulted."

Dean George F. Ay of the college of liberal arts regretted "exceedingly that the action was taken and at present I cannot understand the basis on which the decision was reached."

Many students expressed the belief that other members of the conference might withdraw. President Walter A. Jessup was enroute to here today from New York, where he had been on business...

Other members of the Iowa athletic board and faculty declined to issue comments until they had received further explanation of the reason for the committee's action.

The following comment was given to The Daily Iowan's reporter: H. H. Gibbs: "That the Big Ten voted to sever relations with Iowa is a very regrettable thing. I feel that Iowa hasn't been given a square deal..."

Harry Brenner: "Iowa will overcome the stigma. Public sentiment will force the Western conference authorities to ask Iowa to come back in. I don't think Iowa should again endeavor to gain readmittance."

Iowa Alumni and Fans Term Big Ten's Decision Unfair to Hawkeye Cause

DES MOINES, Dec. 7 (AP)—Dr. D. W. Mohrhouse, president of Drake university, commenting on the Iowa ouster from the Big Ten, said, "As an Iowan, I'm sorry. Further he would say nothing, adding, 'I know nothing of the merits of the case.'"

He said he would favor the resumption of athletic relations between the University of Iowa and Drake. "The two schools were at one time annual foes on the gridiron."

AMES, Dec. 7 (AP)—Dr. Raymond M. Hughes, president of Iowa State college, said, "I am very, very sorry," when told Iowa was denied reinstatement into the Big Ten.

Asked if he would favor an Iowa-Iowa State college football game, he said he would make no such suggestion.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 7 (AP)—Howard Jones, former football coach at the University of Iowa, now coaching the varsity at the University of Southern California, expressed deep regret today that his former team had failed to obtain reinstatement into the Big Ten.

"I am out of touch with the situation, and of course Big Ten officials know conditions better than I. But I don't see why they need to be so arbitrary. There probably was cause for suspension, else action would not have been taken, but some of the other schools in the loop probably have as impure records. In any case," Jones said, "I believe Iowa probably made honest efforts toward correction."

Sam Barry, former basketball coach at Iowa, who now is cage mentor at Southern California, could not be reached this afternoon. He resigned early this year, shortly before the Big Ten conference took its action barring Iowa from further athletic relations after Jan. 1.

Jones was Iowa coach at the time Gordon Locke and Aubrey Devine won all-American recognition as football players.

WATERLOO, Dec. 7 (AP)—Ben Swisher, president of the Alumni association of the University of Iowa, expressed surprise when he was told today that Iowa had been denied reinstatement into the Big Ten conference.

"I am sorry to hear it," he said, "I don't regret it and think the action was not fair. I don't know the details and presume that no one but those on the committee do, but personally I think there is no material difference in the conduct of athletics at Iowa and at any of the other schools of the conference."

Until he has read the report of the committee and can learn upon what grounds the Iowa petition was denied and what demands the conference has made upon Iowa, Swisher said he would not comment on whether

Conference Says Iowa 'Clean-up' Incomplete

CHICAGO, Dec. 7 (AP)—The University of Iowa was denied reinstatement to the Western conference today because it refused to dismiss George Bresnahan, track coach; declare several athletes ineligible under the classification of improper financial aid and because it has not materially changed the personnel of its athletic governing board, E. H. Lauer, Iowa director of athletics, said tonight...

"Iowa did not do these things for the reason that it was not willing to sell its soul to gain the world," Lauer said in a statement. "At the June meeting, the chairman of the faculty conference quoted a scriptural passage to Iowa's representation," Lauer's statement read. "The passage was apt and had to do with the necessity of good work as a sign of repentance. Iowa took this seriously and good work has been done."

It is now Iowa's turn at scriptural citation: "What does it profit a man though he gain the whole world if he loses his soul?" "Iowa lost the only thing it was asking for. It was revealed to me in the conference, that the reasons for continuing sentence against Iowa were: It had not materially changed the personnel of its athletic governing board; it had not dismissed Coach Bresnahan from his position as track coach; it had not declared any athletes ineligible under the classification of 'improper financial aid.' Iowa did not do these things for the reason that it was not willing to sell its soul in order to gain the world."

1930 Schedule Out First of Next Week

CHICAGO, Dec. 7 (AP)—The University of Iowa today was definitely barred from Western conference athletic competition, beginning Jan. 1, 1930. After 14 hours of wrangling, in secret session, the conference faculty committee turned down the Hawkeye petition for reinstatement to good standing and voted to concur in its action of last May by severing all athletic relations with the institution.

The decision, in effect, makes the Big Ten become the "Big Nine." In a resolution adopted by the committee, it was announced the decision was unanimous, which clearly indicates Iowa did not vote. The committee said its reason for refusing to restore Iowa to good standing was that the reform within the institution's athletic department had not been sufficiently complete.

No official explanation was made, but it was understood the conference had expected Iowa to disqualify for future athletic competition such star athletes as had benefited by various "slush funds" or means of subsidy which had been admitted to exist by Iowa officials.

Hopes Iowa Will Re-Appeal The faculty committee expressed the hope that Iowa, at some future date, might find itself in a position to renew its petition for reinstatement to good standing, thus leaving the door open for the Hawkeyes to make another appeal. The committee usually holds meetings twice a year, one in December and one in May, but may call a special meeting should Iowa decide to make another appeal.

The committee in its resolution, said: "Whereas, at its May, 1929, meeting a resolution was adopted by the conference to the effect that beginning with Jan. 1, 1930, athletic relationship with the State University of Iowa, shall be discontinued, and

"Whereas, Iowa has now petitioned for the rescission of the May resolution, and

"Whereas, the faculty intercollegiate conference, while definitely of the opinion that Iowa has made earnest and definite steps to correct the evils which led to the May action, are nevertheless of the opinion that there are steps remaining to be taken. "Now, therefore, be it resolved that the petition of the State University of Iowa for the present be denied.

Nine Committee Members Vote "It is to be observed that the adoption of the above resolution does not mean that Iowa ceases to be a member of the conference on Jan. 1, 1930. Nor does it mean that Iowa is then suspended. The action means that the resolution of May, 1929, under general regulation VII, of the conference, severing athletic relations with Iowa, effective on Jan. 1, 1930, becomes operative on that date. "It is the earnest hope of the conference that Iowa may find itself in position in the near future to renew its petition."

The nine faculty committee members who voted were: Prof. Frederic Woodward of Chicago; O. F. Long, of Northwestern; J. F. A. Pyre, Wisconsin; James Paige, Minnesota; A. C. Callen, Illinois; William Marshall, Purdue; Ralph Agler, Michigan; Thomas E. French, Ohio State, and W. J. Moenkhaus, Indiana. Professor Marshall was chairman.

Dean C. C. Williams, newly appointed chairman of the Iowa athletic council, who represented the petition, and E. H. Lauer, Iowa director of athletics, were disappointed and dismayed by their failure to convince the committee that Iowa had "cleaned house," eliminating proselyting, subsidization of athletes, undue alumni control, the existence of slush funds and other evils which precipitated the committee's action last May.

Lauer Expected Restoration Both Dean Williams and Lauer said that until they returned to Iowa City to discuss the situation with Pres. Walter A. Jessup they could make no definite statement as to what Iowa's future relations with the conference might be or whether another petition would be made.

"What is Iowa going to do now?" Lauer was asked. "Well, for the immediate future, it means a lot of hard work," he replied. "It will be a hard winter trying to get things straightened around."

Lauer said Iowa had anticipated immediate restoration.

lished by service clubs, lodges, ect. Only concerted action on the part of all conference schools will be effective in this connection.

3. "Student Notes." In spite of the fact that much could be said in defense of a system of student notes at Iowa, Iowa has, by official action, discontinued the practice.

4. Restraint of "Alumni Activities." This is a problem common to all institutions. Alumni have not dictated athletic policies at Iowa, and Iowa feels itself in a position where it can give assurance that its alumni are now working with the university to put the athletic program on a clean, sound basis.

5. "Faculty Control." Iowa has reorganized the body governing its athletics. The body has changed from an advisory council to a board in control. It is composed of seven faculty members, three alumni members, and the director of athletics.

6. Disqualification because of "Improper Financial Aid." Iowa asserts emphatically that it is willing and intends to disqualify men on this basis. Its athletes, whom it has certified this year, have been subjected to a searching scrutiny. All evidence, official and informal, has been weighed.

7. Iowa believes that action against the university has served its purpose. The punishment has already been severe. The stigma cast on the whole school has been resolutely borne during the past months. Further penalty can not effect an improvement in athletic conditions.

Those in control of affairs at Iowa cannot see how it is possible for them to do more than has been done. Iowa interprets the action of the conference as made in the interests of athletics in all of our institutions. It feels that this end would be best served if Iowa were permitted to retain its full conference prerogatives so that it could work with its sister institutions at a task common to all.

In the conviction that the faculty representatives will see not only the justice but also the wisdom of such action, Iowa rests its case.

III Summary. On the basis of the above facts and summaries, Iowa feels that the action proposed to sever athletic relations should be reconsidered. A fair statement of her position is about as follows:

1. The memorandum points out many shortcomings which Iowa

begins to intrude itself. My mother watches me silently—I know she counts the days—every morning she says, 'It is one day less. She has put away my pack, she does not want to be reminded by it.'

The hours pass quickly if a man broods. I pull myself together and go with my sister to the butcher's to get a pound of bones. That is great luxury and people line up early in the morning and stand waiting. Many of them faint.

We have no luck. After waiting for turns for three hours the queue disperses. The bones have not lasted out.

It is a good thing I get my rations. I bring them to my mother and in that way we get something decent to eat.

The days grow ever more strained and my mother's eyes grow more sorrowful. Four days left now. I must go to see Kemmerich's mother.

I cannot write that down. This quaking, sobbing woman who shakes me and cries out to me: 'Why are you living then, when he is dead?'—who drowns me in tears and calls out: 'What are you there for at all, child, when you—' who drops into a chair and wails: 'Did you see him? Did you see him? How did he die?'

I tell her he was shot through the heart and died instantaneously. She looks at me, she doubts me. 'You lie! I know better. I have felt how terribly he died. I have heard his voice at night. I have felt his anguish—tell the truth. I want to know it, I must know it.'

'No,' I say, 'I was beside him. He died at once.'

She pleads with me gently: 'Tell me, you must tell me. I know you want to comfort me, but don't you see, you torment me far more than if you told me the truth? I cannot bear the uncertainty. Tell me how it was and even though it will be terrible, it will be far better than what I have to think if you don't.'

I will never tell her, she can make mind-meat out of me first. I console her, but she strikes me as rather stupid all the same. Why doesn't she stop worrying? Kemmerich will stay dead whether she knows about it or not. When a man has seen so many dead he cannot understand any longer why there should be so much anguish over a single individual. So I say rather impatiently: 'He died immediately. He felt absolutely nothing at all. His face was quite calm.'

She is silent. Then she says slowly: 'Will you swear it?'

'Yes.'

'By everything that is sacred to you?'

'Good God, what is there that is sacred to me?—such things change pretty quickly with us.'

'Yes, he died at once.'

'Are you willing never to come back yourself, if it isn't true?'

'May I never come back if he wasn't killed instantaneously.'

I would swear to anything. But she seems to believe it. She moans and weeps steadily. I have to tell her it happened so I invent a story and I almost believe it myself.

As I leave she kisses me and gives me a picture of him. In his recruit's uniform he leans on a round rustic table with legs made of birch branches. Behind him a wood is painted on a curtain, and on the table stands a mug of beer.

not take you in my arms and die with you? What poor wretches we are!

'Yes, Mother, I will.' 'I will pray for you every day, Paul.'

'Ah! Mother, Mother! Let us rise up and go out, back through the years, where the burden of all this misery lies in us no more, and back to you and me alone, Mother!'

'Perhaps you can get a job that is not so dangerous.'

'Yes, Mother, perhaps I can get into the cook-house that can easily be done.'

'You do it then and if the others say anything—'

'That won't worry me, Mother—' She sighs. Her face is a white gleam in the darkness.

'Now you must go to sleep, Mother.'

She does not reply. I get up and wrap my cover round her shoulders. She supports herself on my arm, she is in pain. And so I take her to her room. I stay with her a little while.

'And you must get well again, Mother, before I come back.'

'Yes, yes, my child.'

'You ought not to send your things to me, Mother. We have plenty to eat out there. You can make much better use of them here.'

How destitute she lies there in her bed, she that loves me more than all the world. As I am about to leave, she says hastily: 'I have two pairs of underpants for you. They are all wool. They will keep you warm. You must not forget to put them in your pack.'

'Ah! Mother! I know what these underpants have cost you in waiting, and walking, and begging! Ah! Mother, Mother! how can it be that I must part from you? Who else is there that has any claim on me but you? Here I sit and there you are lying, and we have so much to say, that we could never say it.'

'Good-night, Mother.'

'Good-night, my child.'

The room is dark. I hear my mother's breathing and the ticking of the clock. Outside the window the wind blows and the chestnut trees rustle.

On the landing I stumble over my pack which lies there already made up, because I have to leave early in the morning.

I bite into my pillow. I grasp the iron rods of my bed with my fists. I ought never to have come here. Out there I was indifferent and often hopeless. I will never be able to be so again. I was a soldier, and now I am nothing but an agony for myself, for my mother, for everything this is so comfortless and without end.

with a good feed. It is distressing to watch them take their afternoon meal thus; one would like to crack them over their thick plates. They rarely give anything away. How little we understand one another!

All Quiet on the Western Front By Erich Maria Remarque

The story so far: Paul Baumer and his soldier comrades enlisted in the German army at 18. During their training, they were abused and persecuted by a former mailcarrier, now Corporal Himmelstoss. Hating him, they beat him up the last night. He appears later at the front, where one of the privates calls him a "dirty hound."

The lieutenant, after hearing the whole story of the corporal's abuse in camp, imposes light sentences.

Returning to the front lines, they pass piles of new coffins. Days of bombardment wreck the trenches, food is impossible to get. A heavy barrage and the attack is on. Baumer and his comrades are in deadly hand-to-hand fighting defending their new position.

He says, "If your own father came over with them (the enemy) you would not hesitate to fire a bomb into him." A successful counter-attack, then comes night and quiet in the trenches.

In Paul's mind are pictures—some of the scenes of the recent carnage, others of his youth and a row of poplar trees back home. Again the shelling, counter-charge, charge, repulse. Young recruits "fall like flies."

Hands clench, bodies battered and torn, they only "whimper softly for their mothers." It is WAR! Himmelstoss tries to "funk it," but Baumer drives him on. In the end, the corporal acquits himself well and seeks to be friendly.

Baumer's company—32 men out of 150 who went up to the front—is relieved. Paul gets home leave and bids his friends goodbye. Emotions surge over him as the train carries him back to scenes of his childhood.

It is the last evening at home. Everyone is silent. I go to bed early. I feel the pillow, press it against myself and bury my head in it. Who knows if I will ever lie in a feather bed again?

Late in the night my mother comes into my room. She thinks I am asleep, and I pretend to be so. To talk to stay awake with one another—it is too hard.

She sits long into the night, although she is in pain and often writes. At last I can bear it no longer, and pretend I have just wakened up.

'Go to sleep, Mother, you will catch cold here.'

'I can sleep enough later,' she says.

I sit up. "I don't go straight back to the front, Mother. I have to do four weeks at the training camp. I may come over from there one Sunday, perhaps."

She is silent. Then she asks gently: "Are you very much afraid?" "No, Mother."

"I would like to tell you to be on your guard against the women out in France. They are no good!"

Ah! Mother! Mother! You still think I am a child—why can I not put my head in your lap and weep? Why have I always to be strong and self-controlled? I would like to weep and be comforted, too; indeed, I am little more than a child; in the wardrobe still hangs my shirt, boy's trousers—it is such a little time ago, why is it over?

"Where are there aren't any women, Mother," I say as calmly as I can.

"And be very careful at the front, Paul."

Ah, Mother, Mother! Why do I

ON IOWA!

Though University of Iowa students, faculty members, and alumni sincerely regret action taken by the Big Ten committee in turning down the Hawkeye petition for reinstatement, the disgrace is not all Iowa's.

It is too bad that the efforts of E. H. Lauer, director of athletics, and C. C. Williams, chairman of the faculty board in control of athletics, should be futile so far as favorable action from the Western conference is concerned.

There is but one course for this university to take. The honor of Iowa by far outweighs the value of membership in the Big Ten. Denied reinstatement, Hawkeye officials can only steer their own course.

Iowa has been dragged in the mud too long to lick dirt any more for the somewhat doubtful honor of being able to compete in athletics with institutions whose status, at least, is unquestioned.

Fighting back is no program for a state university. This is too great an institution to be intimidated into submissive penitence for something it has not done.

We have put up with all that a self-respecting university can without losing its temper. What shall it profit the University of Iowa that it should sacrifice its honor to gain the whole world?

Booze Suicides

WITH THE approach of the Christmas holidays comes the concern and possibility of another epidemic of deaths from poisoned liquor. Every year since the prohibition amendment, holiday celebrators have tried to convert canned heat, anti-freeze mixtures and other things of that kind into drinkable mixtures, and every year a great number lose their lives.

Doubtless there will be the usual number of deaths again this year, and as in the past the "wet" population will send up the hue and cry that it is all the fault of the government for taking away the privilege of the right kind of alcohol. But can the government be held responsible for the deaths of persons who continue to take one more chance with a commodity that is plainly marked "Poison"?

It would be as reasonable to hold druggists or grocers responsible for deaths of persons who commit suicide by drinking chemicals which they have sold for household uses. People are free to take their lives in their own hands, but they do not have the right to blame someone just because they continue to do it. Everyone has the right to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," but they would rather give their life for a few hours, or perhaps minutes of be-fuddled happiness—who can keep them from doing it?

The Pork and Beans of Art

WAY BACK in the dim, distant, old fashioned, almost beyond recall days, when the movies were still in existence, a conversation ensued in the lobby of a picture palace. The chief "lobbyist" was attempting to prove that art has no practical value. He named a painting. "What good is it?" asked he, rhetorically. He meant, of course, of what practical good is it—how will it help the farm situation, or the Haitian situation, or any of the front page "situations," with which we substantial citizens sugar our morning coffee.

Why wasn't the skilled hand of the artist turned to making pork and beans (which leads us to digress a trifle, and raise the question of why in the world a can of Hienz' pork and beans, of late, contains all the 57 varieties of edibles except pork?) for when a man is hungry—even an aesthetic man—prefers pork and beans to canvas and oil, if home environment has been at all up to standard.

And now is the time for we bean-fed high-brows (N.B. the absence of the word, pork, for though "tasting is believing in nine cases out of 10, tasting is the only safe criterion for the thinking man where foods are concerned) to rally to the salvation of our souls, by championing our favorite (if often neglected) child, art. How dull life without it—and so on ad infinitum.

But since the "lobbyist" was arguing on economic grounds, let's be sporting and have at him with his own medicine.

Take "The Mother" by Whistler. What does it consist of? A bit of canvas, some oil applied by brushes, the whole being a kindly old lady sitting in a chair with her hands crossed.

Where did James Whistler procure his canvas? From a dealer in portrait materials—even a first grader could make a good guess at that. Where, his oils and brushes? From a big paint factory, employing hundreds of helpers. Where, his kindly old lady? By hiring a model and paying her by the hour.

There! The old law of supply and demand. The painter demands and the firms sell. The public demands and the painter sells—and everybody makes money, and the price on, what is erroneously called pork and beans, goes up!

Our Associates

A PIONEER traveler of an early day crossed through Cumberland gap and stopped in a clearing just beyond to spend the night. After he had tended his team and had eaten his supper with his host, the conversation turned to the kind of people who lived where he had come from.

"Where did you come from?" "I am from Baltimore." "What kind of folks do you leave there?" "A few were good, but for the most part they were selfish and deceitful. What kind shall I find here?" "About the same kind."

A few days later another traveler from the east stopped for the night and in the course of the conversation the host asked the same questions of this man. The man replied, "A few were deceitful and unneighborly, but for the most part they were true friends. What kind shall I find out here?" The host replied, "About the same as you left in the old neighborhood."

Could a truer picture be given of human nature and how we are prone to judge our associates? To some people the world is always out of joint, the people we meet are never perfect and therefore we judge them by the faults they have instead of looking for their good points. While to others, neighbors are good, loyalty is there in abundance, no matter what the circumstance, and the whole world is a great place to live in.

Perhaps the person you have been thinking of "high hat" is really only very reserved by nature, and has not acquired the art of being "gushy" with people who are pleased with "gushiness," and is therefore branded as being too aloof. But underneath this sphinx-like countenance may lurk the friendliest sort of a person.

Old King Coal

A LUMP of coal—what could be more unassuming or more uninteresting? Yet ever since its discovery it has vied with bread as one of the staffs of life. From out of the dark centers of these ugly lumps has come power to accomplish wondrous things. Beauty, progress, light, happiness, have all been made possible through this lowly medium.

Now appears a new triumph from coal. The Standard Oil company is making gasoline. One ton of coal yields 83 gallons of oil, which in turn yields eight gallons of gasoline. The rest of the oil is usable for by products.

Whether this discovery will have much effect on the fuel conditions remains to be seen, but it is significant of the progress science is making along all lines. The old saying "nothing new under the sun," cannot apply in this day and age. If there is nothing new under the sun, there is at least something new from under the ground—gasoline from coal.

Ten Western conference schools, getting along fine; One turned amateur, And then there were nine!

If health experts are right, dress designers are denying women their rightful place in the sunshine.

Our greatest ambition is to be able to read the papers for a week without finding any mention of Charles A. Lindbergh.

It is better to have tried and lost than never to have tried at all.

As the problem of Christmas presents nears, the pressing need for the average American is an inventor who can design a refill for emptied pocketbooks.

No sooner had he emerged from joint session of the athletic club with the Big Ten faculty committee at which Iowa's fate was determined, than Director telegraphed to the University breaks his acceptance of an offer of home and home football game Iowa in 1930 and 1931. Lauer asserted that Iowa would try to sidestep contests for next fall Southern California and Notre but said it was his understanding that Pittsburgh, another power, already had a full schedule.
