Norris Says Efforts to Enforce Law Not Sincere

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (AP)—Increased attention was directed to prohibition enforcement today as Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, one of the foremost campaigners for President Hoover's election on the dry issue, assailed the entire personnel charged with making the Volstead act effective. He said they would never enforce the law.

Christmas Around the World

Berlin—President Paul Von Hindenburg celebrated Christmas eve in the closest of family circles at the executive mansion from which even other officers of the government were barred. With almost youthful ardor the 82-year-old president actively distributed the gifts piled under a brilliant Christmas tree among his eight grandchildren. In view of the absolute privacy of this Christmas eve observance, not even the nature of the gifts given the former field marshal was learned.

Frees Burke; Then Starts Hunting Him

Sheriff Finds Former Prisoner was Fred Burke

NOGALES, Ariz., Dec. 24 (AP)—Sheriff H. J. Patterson announced today that he had begun an intensive search for a man whom he released from custody today and later identified from a police photograph as Fred Burke, wanted in Chicago as the suspected leader of the St. Valentine's day massacre there last February.

All Iowa City Centers Its Attention Upon Annual Christmas Dinner Parties Today

When Santa Has Gone All Turn Attention to Dinner; Many Visiting Here Today

Hundreds of Dinner Parties Are Planned for Iowa City's Observance of Annual Holiday Season

After Santa has paid his annual visit, and all packages and stockings have yielded their mysterious contents, families will turn their thoughts to the big Christmas dinners which are to grace various tables in the city. Perhaps housewives have been forced to give at least a little attention to this important matter for some time, but today is the day that really counts as far as the actual dinner goes.

But there are others who have been looking forward to these dinners for some time. Sons and daughters have come from afar to be with Dad and Mother and all the others for this one day of the year. This is the day for the smaller dinner parties and there will be hundreds of them in Iowa City. The following list gives a few of them.

President and Mrs. Walter A. Jessup will entertain at a Christmas dinner at 1 o'clock today at their home, 102 Church street. The table will be decorated with a tiny Christmas tree and poinsettias.

The affair will honor their guests, Alice Cameron of Detroit, Mich., Albert Jessup of Spiceland, Mich., and Nell Jones of Logansport, Ind.

Simplicity will mark the table appointments at the informal 1 o'clock dinner given by Dr. and Mrs. E. M. MacEwen, 315 Fairview avenue. Guests will include Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Bolter and son, Billie, and daughter, Betty, and Prof. and Mrs. Arthur C. Trowbridge and son, Lambert, and daughter, Carolyn.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Dorcas, 1603 E. Court street, will be host and hostess at a family dinner party this noon. Guests will include their son, Robert Dorcas of Moline, and Mrs. Dorcas' mother, Mrs. Annabel Sherman of Cedar Rapids.

Lighted tapers, and a miniature Christmas tree will form the appointments of the Christmas dinner table of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Strub, 221 E. Fairchild street. Among the guests will be Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Ebert, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Rawland and son, John, Mrs. Winnie Rawland of Arcola, Ill., and Frances Rawland of Chicago.

Prof. and Mrs. B. J. Lambert, 4 Melrose circle, will also entertain today. Their guests will include their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. F. Bruce Forward of Chicago.

They will be seated at a large table centered with a tiny Christmas tree. Red and green candles and other decorations will carry out the holiday color scheme.

Christmas decorations of poinsettias and tall red tapers will add an atmosphere of festivity to the table at the H. B. Newcomb home, 314 Summit street. Dinner will be served at 1 o'clock today. Among those present will be Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Schulz of Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Cannon and son, David, Dr. and Mrs. E. Sylvester, and son, Bradley, of Des Moines, Mr. and Mrs. August Schmidt of Lincoln, Neb., and Lenora Newcomb of Detroit, Mich.

Among those who will spend Christmas with their immediate families are Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cone, 419 N. Governor street. They will have their dinner guest, Mrs. M. Martin of Des Moines.

Probably the largest dinner party of the day will be that of the D. Thomas Davis family. This is the forty-second gathering and it will be held at the American Legion building. A turkey dinner will be served at 1 o'clock.

Among those included will be Mr. and Mrs. J. Milton Tudor and daughters, Mary, Gwen, and Abbey Ann, and son, John; Mr. and Mrs. Julius Tudor; D. Thomas Davis, and daughters, Lucille, Isabelle, Helen, and Ruth; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis of Lawrence, Kan.; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Howell, and daughter, Eunice, and sons, John and Edward; Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Davis, daughter, Gwendolyn, and sons, Richard, William, and Kendall; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Brooks. After the dinner the families will spend the afternoon and evening at

The marriage of Emma May McCutchen of Iowa City, and Arthur Briggs of New Sharon, was solemnized yesterday at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Roy Lewis, 514 S. Tice of the peace, read the marriage Dodge street. Elias J. Hughes, justice.

Mr. and Mrs. James Phippen and daughter, Phyllis, witnessed the ceremony.

Mrs. Briggs has been making her home during the last year with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Phippen, 619 Third avenue.

Mr. Briggs is the owner of a farm near New Sharon where the future home will be made. The couple will visit during the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Phippen.

Elliot-Olson Tell of Engagement at Pi K.A. House

Announcement was made last week at the Pi Kappa Alpha house of the engagement of Edna Elliott, 428 E. Jefferson street, to Ernest T. Olson, C3 of Grinnell. Miss Elliott is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Elliott of Oxford and was a student at the university last year. She is now secretary in the surgical department of William's Iowa Supply.

Mr. Olson is a junior in the college of commerce and a member of Pi Kappa Alpha, social fraternity, and Pi Epsilon Pi, national pep fraternity.

Westlawn Nurses Entertain at Party

Student nurses at westlawn were hostesses to their friends and to the internes of the hospital at an informal Christmas party last night. Red and green garlands and a gayly lighted Christmas tree were used as decorations, while the red lighting effect served to carry out the scheme.

The graduate parlor and one student parlor was used for radio dancing, while bridge was played in the alumni parlor, and five hundred in another student parlor. Christmas cakes and pink and green ice cream were served at the close of the evening.

Catherine Reid is Engaged to Cooper

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Reid of Cedar Rapids have announced the engagement of their daughter, Catherine, to James Leo Cooper of Tuscon, Ariz. The engagement was announced at a party given at the Cedar Rapids country club Monday.

Miss Reid is a senior at the University of Iowa, and is a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. Before coming to the university she attended Mary institute at St. Louis, Mo.

Mr. Cooper is employed in Cedar Rapids by the Three Minute Cereals company. He was formerly a student at the university and a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity.

M. E. Ladies Aid to Meet

Members of the seventh division of the Ladies Aid society of the Methodist church will meet at the home of Mrs. D. R. Pyle, 419 S. Governor street, Friday afternoon.

There will be an election of officers at the meeting, which will begin at 2:30 p.m. Assistant hostesses will be Emma Stover, Mrs. W. O. Lawrence, Mrs. E. T. Hubbard, and Mrs. Ben Mercer.

Rodney Stewart to Entertain Friends

Rodney Stewart, son of Prof. G. W. Stewart, and Dr. Zella White Stewart, 1919 Woodlawn will be host at a dancing party at the Red Ball inn tomorrow night.

The affair will honor John Ogren of Chicago who is Mr. Stewart's house guest during the holiday vacation. Mr. Ogren is a student at Northwestern university. One hundred thirty guests will be included in the company.

Mooseheart Charity Ball to be Jan. 17

Proceeds Help Local Lodge Contribute to Building

The Mooseheart charity ball will be held at Moose hall Jan. 17 at 8 p.m. The proceeds of the ball will be used to help the local Moose lodge raise its quota of funds for the vast building program at Mooseheart, Ill., the child city of the Moose.

The committee in charge of the ball includes Will Parizek, Leo Kohl, John Schintler, George Chadek, Fred Smith, George Seydel, and Otto Graelz.

Mooseheart is located upon an estate of 1,000 acres containing some 150 or more cottages of granite-faced concrete with red tile roofs. It is a city complete in itself, with its own water and sanitary systems, its fire patrol, its hospital, and its schools and workshops. Its population, besides the executives and teachers, consists of 2,000 children, ranging in age from tiny infants to men and women of 18 years.

The children are all orphans or dependents of deceased members of the lodge, and are being provided a home, a high school education, and instruction in a trade.

The plan toward which the Iowa City lodge will direct its quota, calls for an expenditure of $750,000 for the construction of a boy's village of 30 buildings of eight to 12 years will be lodged, which new arrangement, James J. Davis, United States secretary of labor, believes will do much toward bettering the training of boys of this age. Each of the 30 buildings will be devoid of every institutional aspect and will supply a home for 20 boys.

Kiwanis Sing Carols, Songs for Christmas

Group singing replaced the usual prepared program of the Iowa City Kiwanis club at the weekly luncheon yesterday noon at the Red Ball Inn. Christmas carols, popular songs, and Kiwanian club songs were rendered with C. M. Updegraff leading and Burton F. Bowman playing the accompaniment.

C. A. Bowman was elected district trustee of the club to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Clifford Palmer, who resigned to assume the office of secretary.

Guests at the meeting were Prof. F. C. Grossman of Manchester with his father-in-law, S. L. Updegraff; J. S. Rough of Nehawka, Neb., with his son-in-law, H. J. Damer; Victor Cullin of St. Louis, Mo., with his brother-in-law, B. A. Ingwersen; Don C. White of Storm Lake with his father-in-law, Isaac B. Lee; Prof. F. Stromsten, with J. H. Bodine, and Burton F. Bowman with his father, C. A. Bowman.

Christmas Spirit Permeates All University Hospitals

By GEORGE JENSEN
It was Christmas at the university hospitals last night! This spirit was manifest in several different forms. Immediately upon stepping inside the building, one could tell that this was an evening apart from the ordinary day's end. The atmosphere of the place seemed permeated with the Yuletide spirit.

Choruses of nurses went through the halls and wards singing Christmas carols. "Joy to the World," "Hark the herald angels sing," "Holy night, silent night," "It came upon a midnight clear,"—all of these old familiar songs were sung. The girls were dressed in their white uniforms, dark capes, and white hats, and each carried a lighted white candle. It made a very impressive ceremony—impressive in its simplicity—as they walked down the darkened corridors singing. The response seen in the faces of the patients showed that this effort on the part of the nurses was appreciated.

Further singing was furnished by the children's choir of the Episcopal church. This was composed of a combination of the senior and junior choirs under the direction of Lawrence Eberley. All members were dressed in their vestments, the small girls in scarlet capes and black tulle sashes and the boys in cassocks and surplices. All wore Windsor collars and black ties. They first sang in several places in the general hospital and later in the children's hospital.

As the reporter walked through the hospital he heard an anxious child say, "Well, I wonder where Santa Claus is? They said he would be here in 20 minutes." And the white whiskered gentlemen from the polar regions did not disappoint the child. In fact, in order that his wish might be done well, he brought his wife along with him. Together, the two of them were able to provide every patient in the hospital with a gift. These gifts were obtained through donations on the part of individuals, associations, and clubs outside the hospitals. Some of them were made in the occupational therapy department of the children's hospitals, under the direction of young women of the Christian association. Candy was dispensed by the nutrition department to all patients whose illness did not prohibit the use of sweets.

The buildings themselves suggested the season. At each side of the main entrance to the general hospital stands a lighted Christmas tree. High above these, flanking the sides of the lofty tower, stand two other brightly illuminated trees. Wreaths hang on the doors. Inside, down the center of the long white corridors, hang a row of red Christmas bells, suspended from the lights with ropes of red and green material. The wards are decorated in similar fashion and each contains a Christmas tree. Lighted trees are also found in front of the children's and psychopathic hospitals. These too, are decorated on the inside with seasonal colors.

Today the tray of each patient will contain a sprig of holly. Last evening the employees' and the nurses' cafeterias and the doctor's dining rooms were lighted by red candles, placed on the tables in green holders. Much work has been done by various attaches of the hospital to emphasize the fact that this is truly the season of "peace on earth, good will to men."

Frutig Returns
L. G. Frutig returned to take charge of the Western Union Telegraph company station at Iowa City yesterday. W. H. Schubert who has been acting as relief manager the last three months left for Charles City, where he will have charge of the Western Union station. Mr. Frutig has been attending a technical training school at Fremont, Neb.

Union Prayer Meeting Today
Union prayer meeting will be held at the home of C. J. Brennan, south of Iowa City, this evening. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Lions Entertain for Youngsters at Club Luncheon Yesterday

Nearly 100 sons and daughters of members of the Iowa City Lions club were the guests of that club at a luncheon yesterday noon at the Hotel Jefferson. Gifts were distributed to each boy and girl attending with the compliments of the club. Christmas songs were sung by the group and short speeches made on Christmas.

Dr. F. H. Smith was elected into the club by a vote of reinstatement at a short business meeting that followed the program.

Bear Plays Ferry to Transport Cubs

SEWARD, Alaska, (AP)—With three subs in itself an unusual thing—a brown bear recently played ferry across the Yukon river in front of Circle, visitors from the interior reported.

The mother loaded her triplets on her back and swam the current. The family scattered immediately after landing, the mother escaping, the cubs being captured.

Nurses Play Santa to Hospital Children

Student nurses in uniform and carrying lighted candles marched through the wards of the hospitals last night, and sang Christmas carols. They played Santa Claus to the children in the children's hospital and distributed gifts and candy.

Greetings

The Daily Iowan staff today extends Christmas greetings to all readers and friends of The Iowan, and also wishes for a Happy New Year and continued prosperity and health during 1930.

Is There a Santa Claus?

FOR YEARS children have asked that question. And it is sad to say that they have often been answered in ways which are hardly appropriate. A newspaperman, one who had known children and talked with them, was destined to one day turn from his work of dealing with scandal, crime, murder, and other disagreeable features of everyday life, and write an answer to this question.

This answer, printed in the New York Sun in 1897, has been reprinted thousands of times since. But it is always worth reading, and for that reason The Daily Iowan is again printing it.

We take pleasure in answering at once and thus prominently the communication below.

"Dear Editor—I am 8 years old. "Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus.

"Papa says 'If you see it in the Sun it's so.' "Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?" "Virginia O'Hanon. "15 West Ninety-fifth street."

Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except what they see. They think nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! how dreary would be the world if there was no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies! You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseeable in the world.

You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, nor even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance, can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernatural beauty and glory beyond. Is it real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

No Santa Claus! Thank God! He lives, and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, Nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood.

The above editorial was written by Francis Pharcellus Church, who was born in Rochester, N. Y., on Feb. 22, 1839, and died in Baltimore on April 11, 1906. It has been reprinted thousands of times.

Mr. Church was graduated with honors from Columbia college in 1859, and began the study of law, but put it aside to write. He was editor of the Galaxy magazine and was associated with his brother, Col. William C. Church, in the management of the Army and Navy Journal. For thirty-five years and until his death in 1906 Mr. Church was a regular contributor to the New York Sun's editorial page.

Frank and Friendly

JAPANESE delegates to the London naval conference have been discussing with Secretary Stimson the underlying problems in sea armaments which involve the United States and Japan. The meetings are a friendly and unofficial preliminary to the London meeting next month.

Both leaders have characterized the conversation as frank and friendly. Both are optimistic for the successful termination of the London conference and the increase of good will between Japan and the United States through the solution of the naval problems.

Premier MacDonald's visit to the United States last fall has already established better understanding between this country and England. Friendly preliminaries such as these will go far toward making the London conference a success. Problems which have already been solved or at least understood will be removed as possible sources of friction at the conference.

If the party nations approach the meeting in a friendly spirit which these informal conversations encourage, they will be far more likely to cooperate in the reduction of armaments than if the delegates gather at London determined only to protect the rights of their respective countries. It will augur well for the success of the conference if other nations will follow the example set this week by the United States and Japan.

Students Owe Colleges

THE annual report of the University of Chicago shows that the college student owes a real debt and obligation to his college. That debt is along the lines of dollars and cents, in which it is claimed that the student's fees, tuition, and the like, amount to 40 per cent of the university's total operating income.

In other words, for every four dollars that the student spends on his college course, the university spends six more. It is paying more of the cost of his education than the student. Few students realize that fact. Of course, to college students the different fees required of the university seem like a huge sum. At that particular time, the money is probably needed elsewhere, but the average college student fails to conclude that the university is giving more to that particular person's education.

Obviously, then, the student who refuses to study, who spends his time as an idler, and a "collegiate" do-nothing, is literally cheating his university. For it should be noted that similar conditions prevail at every college and university in the land. No student really pays his way, he merely invests his time, coupled with a slight financial protection, and it is all for his own personal gain.

Thwarting Bank Holdups

WILLIAM GRANGER, president of an Oklahoma bank, disproved the theory that bank robbing is becoming a safe and successful practice when he routed and shot two men while they were attempting a get-away with stolen cash. Quick action and a handy revolver were responsible for the frustration.

Granger followed the men to the sidewalk after their bolt from the bank and opened fire. His shots were effective and injured both men as they speeded out of town. Several merchants, attracted by the shots, followed the holdup men. The small improvised posse captured them in a field near their abandoned car outside the town.

Perhaps others may profit by the action of this bank president and the small posse. If Granger had not had a revolver convenient or if he had not been able to fire effectively or if the neighboring merchants had not cooperated, the two men might have gained their freedom.

A few more cases like this and bank robbing will connote suicide or imprisonment to the potential holdup man. We must commend Mr. Granger for his efforts.

Still More Students

AN ARTICLE based on the reports of 226 institutions on the approved list of the Association of American Universities, reports that more persons are attending college this year than any previous reckoning achieved.

There are 442,493 students taking full time work in these schools. The grand total enrollment, including part time and summer session students, is 697,840. Both are nearly 2 per cent over the totals of 1928.

At opposite ends of the country, California leads in full time enrollment, with 17,242 students, and Columbia has a grand total enrollment of 33,367, but only 14,952 full time students.

This widespread and fairly rapid increase in education means an approach of a wider culture and a deeper, more sure civilization. It is a joy to realize that we are taking part in this great influence.

Red and Green Sidewalks

NEW ORLEANS has laid red and green sidewalks on two of its main streets, Baronne and Canal, on the principle that, if building contractors can specify bright colored tile roofs, the Baronne Street association can lay gay side walks. There's no law against it in either propriety or aesthetics.

But one of the New Orleans attorneys doesn't like what he calls the "pink and green monstrosities" and suggests that if the association wants Baronne and Canal streets to stand out above all other thoroughfares they might better have trained monkeys to cavort on the street corners.

Mrs. Hoover Tries to Prevent Mix-up of Gifts

By BESS FURMAN Associated Press Staff Writer WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (AP)—The merry mix-up that Santa always makes proved too much today for helpful Mrs. Herbert Hoover.

She came through the curtain of Washington's biggest picture house and saw, arranged in neat rows, by color and number cards, the wide-eyed, expectant children of Washington's non-too-prosperous class. They were the kind of children whose parents were not hit by the stock market crash, having no margin for even the insurance payments.

All Sizes and Colors She saw huge, bulging, gay cotton-covered bags, arranged in neat rows, by color and number cards, to match the little boys and little girls.

For the children, Mrs. Hoover spoke an ultimatum: "Will you please arrange it so the right child is with the right bag," she said to the master of ceremonies. "If I just give any bag to any child that comes, I'll get them all mixed up. I went out once and mixed up bags. I'm not going to be mixing up the bags for these children."

The organ played carols. The line started. The camera men began their grinding.

She Was Smiling A smiling Mrs. Hoover, in soft, rich gown of maroon-colored velvet, with close-fitting hat of maroon deepened almost to brown, stood beside a cheerful Santa, give out bright bulging bags to the toddlers from Central mission emergency home. The bags were almost as big as the wee boys and girls.

And as tiny Marie Couch struggled from the stage under her burden, she was saying to little Betty Heiter, "Wait, you got mine! This is yours!"

In a smotherly manner, Mrs. Hoover added much to the gaiety of the Christmas party. It was she who suggested that the organ play while the packages were being distributed. It was she who warned the mothers of little babies not to let the dazzling lights of the camera men shine in infant eyes. It was she who thought of the boys and girls at home with colds, who couldn't

Big Ten Comment

The Main Show

Some curious examples of the importance football has assumed in the university scheme have been forced on the public's attention as the result of ousting Iowa from the Big Ten. They are as follows:

(1) After much talk of going it alone, Iowa has renewed her fight for reinstatement in the conference by declaring 14 athletes ineligible.

(2) Judge M. L. McKinley of Chicago, former head of the university alumni association, asserts that "if Jessup were out Iowa would be back in the Big Ten."

(3) It is seriously charged that Iowa was ousted because other members of the Big Ten, now the Big Nine, wish to substitute a university whose stadium produces juicier gate receipts than that of Iowa.

Numbers one and three illustrate the commercial aspects of football. E. H. Lauer, director of athletics, dramatically exclaimed, "Iowa wasn't willing to sell her soul to gain the world." It now appears that Iowa has begun the process of selling her soul. Fourteen athletes have been declared ineligible. The institution is still holding onto Bresnahan, but he is likely to go if the conference insists on it. The fact is that Iowa has so much money tied up in her football plant that it is imperative for her to stay with the crowd that will produce the big gate receipts. If the conference wishes to substitute for Iowa an institution which can come across with handsome gates, Iowa is just as anxious to stick with the crowd that makes football rate as big business.

Number two illustrates the attitude of many alumni toward university presidents. Judge McKinley of Chicago notes regretfully that Iowa is out because Jessup is in. This alumnus is not concerned with the ability of Jessup as an educator. The model university professor is judged by his capacity to produce winning ball teams and keep on good terms with other members of the big business organization. This attitude makes the president a satellite of the head coach and makes the university proper an appendage of the stadium. Education is a side show for the freaks and football is under the big top.

The Case in Brief

The true irony of the Iowa situation lies in these two items: That the university was ejected from the conference last May on the basis of a case which was found within one week to be false and falsified in practically every count.

And—That the university now is being kept out of the conference on the basis of conditions discovered, voluntarily reported and eliminated by the new administration of Iowa athletics. The original ouster was pathetically unjustified and the continued suspension is in the nature of a penalty upon Iowa for having discharged an incompetent director of athletics and cleaned house.

The Real Reason

To permit the decision of the Big Ten to center all the attention on Iowa, and hold up Iowa as the school that has been violating "amateur" athletics is to play directly into the hands of the men who have wanted to break up the Big Ten for their own advantage.

Nobody knows the incalculable damage that will be done to Iowa by permitting the big football promoters to focus it there, and make Iowa the goat. For Iowans, the board of education, the alumni of the university at home or abroad, to be led off on this angle will be to confess a want of sagacity worse than anything that is charged against us as sports.

In so far as football is concerned why does anybody need go beyond the report of the Carnegie investigators to know how football elevens are organized in all the big colleges? Does any body believe the promising material of the high schools is not looked over and kept in mind by the coaches from the biggest schools down, or that want of money is permitted to keep a really star man from getting his education in any of them? Does anybody believe a coach could long hold his job who could not find some way to rally the right sort of talent for his eleven?

Why are coaches paid higher salaries than the professors, and ranked frequently along with the presidents? It is merely because they can take raw freshmen out and set them to tackling straw dummies?

Iowa made the mistake from the start of not recognizing what this move to break up the Big Ten and get rid of the small crowd drawing schools really meant. Iowa should have met the first move of the other schools with a bold front and promptly challenged the whole football situation. The very worst thing Iowa can do now is to lie down and permit the stigma of defeat to be fastened on the university.

The trouble with the whole situation is that the colleges are trying to make football into the biggest money making enterprise in the United States, and at the same time keep up the outward appearance of not offering inducements to the best players to join their teams.

Tail Wags Dog

With all that is being said about this Big Ten conference, and about the manner in which athletics are secured one wonders if the University of Iowa isn't sort of a football stadium with a college attachment.

It's a Crime

As Iowa goes humbly before the great powers again, it is interesting to remember that nine out of the 10 have been shown to be as guilty of violating rules and the spirit of sportsmanship as Iowa.

But the others did not dismiss a member of the Physical Directors' Union. That was Iowa's chief offense.

A Man's Men

There isn't a better athletic staff in the country than the one now in control at Iowa. No matter what happens with regard to the Western conference, these men will continue to administer affairs at the Hawkeye school.

TOYS FOR ALL AGES

Even if the average sport bug for distribution but wouldn't you like to have Babe Ruth make 70 home runs next season and doughty Claus should deliver every desired present. It is doubtful that the kindly old fellow could produce what most of us desire with all the enthusiasm of childhood. toys that would give him the most fun for the next 365 days.

A Notre Dame-Pittsburg post-season game would provide the greatest thrill, but we must be satisfied with the New Year's Rose Bowl classic between Southern California and Pitt. Notre Dame beat that West coast team, 13-12, at Chicago on Nov. 16, when both seemed in top form.

If Pitt does better than that, or worse, a fair comparison can be drawn as to the respective power of the 1929 Notre Dame and Pitt teams.

And here's something Santa can deliver: Another spectacular and hard-hitting Jack Dempsey who can ward through most of our lack lustre heavies and put Jack Sharkey's real prowess to the test.

toys that would give him the most fun for the next 365 days.

A Notre Dame-Pittsburg post-season game would provide the greatest thrill, but we must be satisfied with the New Year's Rose Bowl classic between Southern California and Pitt. Notre Dame beat that West coast team, 13-12, at Chicago on Nov. 16, when both seemed in top form.

If Pitt does better than that, or worse, a fair comparison can be drawn as to the respective power of the 1929 Notre Dame and Pitt teams.

And here's something Santa can deliver: Another spectacular and hard-hitting Jack Dempsey who can ward through most of our lack lustre heavies and put Jack Sharkey's real prowess to the test.

Father Time would probably refuse to give these packages to Santa for distribution but wouldn't you like to have Babe Ruth make 70 home runs next season and doughty Claus should deliver every desired present. It is doubtful that the kindly old fellow could produce what most of us desire with all the enthusiasm of childhood. But it does no harm to mention some of the whimsical things which "The Sport Bug" would like to find in his stocking today—

This and That in Sports

By Roland White

Long famous as a basketball state, Indiana has at least four universities which have placed quivers among the national leaders since the war.

Indiana university at Bloomington and Purdue university at Lafayette are always topnotchers in the Big Ten basketball title race. Though both have started below par this season, there remain two others to uphold Hoosier honors.

The football glory which is Notre Dame's probably casts a shadow on the Rambler basketball record, which is also a cause for pride at South Bend.

The best of Sam Barry's star five was down by a one point defeat before Notre Dame, year after year. The feat of holding such a team to a tie score is something for the emergency lineup of Coach Rollie Williams to regard with satisfaction.

Fourth among the Indiana cage contenders is Butler, at Indianapolis. Pat Dage made the school known, but it still is a power in basketball. This fall Butler has won four consecutive titles, one from Purdue and another—Monday night—from the strong Montana State aggregation.

The Indiana championship which comes so near to being a national crown seems to lie between Butler and Notre Dame this year.

Judging from behavior, I believe the present Iowa athletic policy might be phrased in the motto "Better be contrite than sorry."

Webster defines "contrite": "Broken down with grief and penitence; deeply sorrowful for sin because it is displeasing to God; humbly and thoroughly penitent."

In the sports columns of The Daily Iowan this morning you will find a resume of Hawkeye sport records since the "sway back nineties."

Can it be true that basketball alone of the important sports is able to avoid the games? The overtime period is not often necessary, but when used it clears up what would otherwise be an undesirable deadlock.

Except for such occasions as the dogged Iowa play against Illinois in football this Homecoming, tie games seldom seem worth the effort. There is always a feeling that one team or the other—depending on which team is your favorite—should have won.

Besides, it seems a great waste to have as many as two dozen athletes battling up and down the field, to end the game where they started. Patience is that true at a scoreless tie such as the Michigan football game this season, when the energies of players seem about as well spent as those of a dog running the treadmill for a sausage grinder.

Knute Rockne says: "I can't help but feel that what the University of Iowa has needed for the last few years has been an expert to handle her athletics."

Rockne infers that the man to run the sports end of a great university should be an expert in the field, and that the academic man does not fit the job. The expert, of course, ought to be the honest.

Faculty control of athletics. Familiar phrase. One John L. "Commission" Griffith used it on a visit here last May. At the Chicago meeting Dec. 6-7 it seemed to have been forgotten. Power had been shifted here from athletic director to faculty board chairman when C. C. Williams was given the latter position.

The Big Ten faculty committee itself recognized the practical necessity of consulting coaching staff members when a vote of athletic directors was asked prior to their vote. But they allowed that vote to influence their decision, and that decision was a purely academic one. I think, without strong practical basis. Did the Western conference itself have faculty control? Ideals must always be compromised before they become

Negroes Object to Tennis Color Line

NEW YORK, Dec. 24 (AP)—Declaring two young Negro tennis stars have been barred from the national junior tennis championship tournament because of their color, the national association for the advancement of colored people filed emphatic protest today.

In a letter to Edward B. Moss, executive secretary of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, Robert W. Bagnall of the colored people's organization charged "class and caste snobbery." In the refusal to accept the entries of Reginald Weir, of the City College of New York tennis team, and Gerald L. Norman, Jr., captain of the Flushing high school team.

The removal of Coach George T. Bresnahan would be a mistake if asked as a next move. Dean Williams, E. H. Lauer, President Walter A. Jessup, and even the athletic board have taken a stand against allowing outside dictation of staff personnel here. I cannot see how, in justice to Bresnahan or to the university's self-respect, such a move could be taken.

I hope the Jan. 9 meeting will prove the end of Iowa's brief official ouster—which begins Jan. 1—but there is still doubt in my mind as to whether Big Ten officials really want Iowa back in the conference, pure or otherwise.

Last night's Associated Press wires carried a Negro protest against exclusion from eastern tennis matches. Here at the University of Iowa, where such stars as Fred W. "Duke" Slater in football and Ortiel Roberts in track have been produced, that seems silly.

If a colored player is good enough to survive eliminations on the basis of skill, let him play. And if his white brother on the Atlantic coast doesn't happen to be superior at the net game, let him take the trophies.

But for many sections of the country the refrain will always be: "Black is black and white is white—and never the twain shall compete."

CHICAGO, Dec. 24 (AP)—Payday for Chicago's 12,793 school teachers won a race with Santa Claus today and the teachers got their checks just in time to permit their Christmas shopping tours.

The teachers' pay was due Dec. 20, but the school board's fund to pay teachers was depleted and several conferences between bankers and board officials were futile. Today, however, city officials approved the transfer of $3,000,000 from the building fund of the school board to the teachers fund and the checks were mailed.

Trio of Grid Squads Busy

ARMY, STANFORD PRIME CHRISTMAS EVE

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Dec. 24 (AP)—Three very tired football teams quartered on the Stanford campus found Christmas eve just an opportunity to recuperate after a strenuous day's work.

The West Point Army varsity tested its offensive power against its own "B" team, with the Cagle to Carlmark and Cagle to Messenger passes, according to reports emanating from the locked gates of the stadium, much in evidence.

This was followed by a defensive drill, with a first year squad using Stanford plays trying to penetrate the Army line.

The Stanford first string players took things easy today, confining themselves to a light limbering up drill.

The all-star eastern eleven, here with Coaches Andy Kerr of Colgate and Dick Hanley of Northwestern, got another taste of scrimmage today, this time with the Stanford third string. Tony Holm, powerful Alabama fullback, showed to advantage on the offensive, ripping the Cardinal line to shreds on straight power plays. Tommy Dowler, Colgate back, who was injured yesterday, was hobbling around the field on crutches but expected to get back in action in two or three days.

Local Boys Make Planes for Air Race

Will Hold Meet Here Jan. 2; Prizes Offered

Vacation days for Iowa City youths will be spent in the planning and building of small model airplanes. A flying meet sponsored by the local chapter of American Air Cadets will be held in the field house at 7:30 p. m., Jan. 2. Models made by members of the Air Cadets will be submitted and demonstrated by the owners. Clinton Moyer, star scout and alumnus of troop five, has charge of the technical arrangements for the contest. Judges will include university professors and employees at the Iowa City airport.

The main event of the meet will be the indoor tractor competition. Not more than 15 inches of rubber is allowed on planes entered in this division. The first prize in this group will consist of the Frank J. Strub award and five dollars. The Strub trophy is a 12 inch cup which is being given this year for the first time. Other events will include the contest for baby R. O. G. planes, the speed contest, and a balloon bursting contest.

Those who wish to participate in the model airplane contest should register in Strub's toy department between Dec. 26 and Jan. 1. The local chapter of Air Cadets with 250 members is sponsored by the Boy Scout. Paul McGuire, scout executive, directs the work. Perry Rowland has been made district commander of the cadets, and is completing plans for the contest.

Other local meets will be held during Boy Scout anniversary week in February and in May of next year. Those boys making the best consistent showing in workmanship and flying skill will be considered as delegates to the national convention of the American Air Cadets to be held in Aurora, Ill., next August.

Representative Dies in Utah

Heart Attack Takes E. O. Leatherwood

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (AP)—After two weeks in a hospital, Representative Elmer O. Leatherwood, 57 years old, of Salt Lake City, Utah, died today from a heart attack.

Although in a poor health during the last few years, hope had been held for his return to strength. Shortly before his death he had engaged his wife in a cheerful conversation on their plans for Christmas, and she had left his bedside to do some shopping.

It was during his vigorous contest against the Boulder Canyon dam bill that Leatherwood's constitution gave way. He bitterly opposed the measure in the house irrigation committee and later on the floor.

Leatherwood's work in formulating legislation in the four committees—banking and currency, irrigation, education and pensions—brought him into prominence, particularly his opposition to the Boulder Canyon bill. He took an important part in handling legislation before the irrigation committee, much of which dealt with the vast reclamation projects of the western states.

Entering congress in 1921, the Utah representative was reelected to each succeeding congress.

Funeral arrangements had not been concluded tonight. Speaker Longworth probably will name a delegation tomorrow to attend the service.

May Institute Legal Battle to Get Huckins

Elder Huckins Plans to Oppose Return to Cedar Rapids

CEDAR RAPIDS, Dec. 24 (AP)—A legal battle to obtain the return of Elmer S. Huckins, arrested at Wautoma, Wis., appeared likely today. Huckins is charged here with obtaining money under false pretenses, as a result of civil suits filed against him and his son, George E. Huckins, by four investors asking return of $73,350. George Huckins faces charges similar to those filed against his father.

The firm headed by the Huckins' is said to pay investors 25 to 52 per cent dividends.

Word was received here today by District Attorney Jones of Wautoma, that R. S. Milner of Cedar Rapids, the elder Huckins' attorney, planned to oppose the return of his client. County Attorney Hendrickson, however, said he believed extradition proceedings would result in Huckins' return on Jan. 7.

Meanwhile, authorities awaited word from Excelsior Springs, Mo., that would indicate that George Huckins had recovered sufficiently there from illness to return here. Sheriff Harry Manchester, who went there to take the younger Huckins into custody, returned here today with the report that the time of George's return was doubtful.

Knoxville Man Dies After Illness of Year; Was Representative

KNOXVILLE, Dec. 24 (AP)—J. B. Elliott, 77 years old, representative from Marion county in the sixteenth and seventeenth general assemblies, died here today after an illness of nearly a year. He was former president of the Knoxville National bank, having retired from active service with the institution three years ago. Elliott started work in the bank in 1884 as cashier. A heart attack caused his death.

Elliott was born in Poland, O., but came to Knoxville as a youth of 16 years. He studied law here and was admitted to the Iowa bar in 1876, practicing his profession here for several years before engaging in the banking business.

Train Wreck Injures Man at Ottumwa

OTTUMWA, Dec. 24 (AP)—Thomas Evans of Des Moines, baggage man, was severely injured today when Rock Island passenger train No. 475, operating over the branch line between Eldon and Des Moines was wrecked near the Union station here due to a broken rail.

M. Border, also of Des Moines, mail clerk, escaped injury by bracing himself so as to ward off tumbling boxes. He worked in the same car with Evans. The car turned over on its side but two day coaches which led the rails did not overturn.

Evans, who was preparing to set out baggage and express at the local station, was struck from behind by falling merchandise. He suffered a broken rib, a wrenched right arm, and a number of minor bruises, which physicians said would keep him confined to a hospital for several days.

Cars loaned from the Burlington railroad enabled the train to proceed to Des Moines with the same engine and all of its passengers.

Gyro Club Accepts Boy Scout Troop

The Gyro club at its weekly luncheon yesterday accepted the sponsorship of troop number nine of the boys scouts. Harvey Mitchell, who is a member of the club, is the scoutmaster of the troop. Paul McGuire, local scout executive, spoke on "The Boy Scout Movement in Iowa City."

Members on the committee sponsoring the troop are Dr. Frank J. Love, W. J. Hayek, C. E. Beck, and W. E. Gipple.

Druids First to Decorate With Now Common Mistletoe

By WILLAMINE POWDERLY
Christmas, the season of the mistletoe, is at hand, and with its revival each year, as a form of festive decoration, are awakened anew the historic legends which intertwine it with poetry and mystery. The custom of decorating with mistletoe is an old English one, handed down to the Anglo-Saxon people of Britain from the time Roman dominion in that land was supreme. The Romans in turn received it from the ancient Druids, who regarded mistletoe as a gift from the heavens if it were found growing on their sacred tree, the oak.

At the time of the winter solstice, which was universally looked upon by the Druids throughout Europe as an occasion for great festivity, the ceremonial gathering of the mistletoe was done. Five days after the appearance of the new moon a procession was formed headed by an old Druid priest all in white and carrying a golden sythe. He was followed by other priests in white leading two snow-white bulls, after whom marched the great mass of people, large and small.

When the procession had reached the oak whereon grew the mistletoe and after the bulls had been tied fast on either side, the old priest climbed to the branches of the sacred tree and with the golden sythe cut great masses of the parasitic plant and tossed it to the priests below. The bulls were then sacrificed, and not infrequently human beings, also. On the first day of the new year the mistletoe, so gathered, was divided and distributed among the people, and each family hung its share above the entrance to its home as a propitiation and offer of shelter to the gods and goddesses of the woods during the season of frost and cold.

As mistletoe rarely grows naturally upon oak trees, the wily priests often found it necessary to secretly transplant some of the luxuriant growth found upon the nearby apple trees to their sacred oaks in order to have enough with which to supply their people.

With the beginning of Christianity mistletoe came to be used as a Christmas decoration in the churches, together with the privilege of kissing under its festive garlands, but mistletoe as a decoration was later abandoned in the churches of England because it was "found to set young ladies and gentlemen a-reading of the marriage service," and holly, "to indicate the dark monotony and the numerous thorns with which matrimony abounded" was substituted in its stead. But the historic mistletoe which had come to be celebrated in story and in song, in art and in literature, was not to become second alone even though it were banished from the churches; nor the jolly English custom of kissing under its berry sprinkled wreaths was not doomed to death for that reason, either. The servants took the mistletoe to their own halls and continued to kiss under its garlands, and it was but a short time until even the lords and ladies throughout the whole of merry England caught the jay spirit.

Nor is the custom of kissing under the mistletoe hough reserved for the young people alone. We are told that it is not uncommon in England today to see a stately old gentleman bow low to an elderly lady of his choice, lead her to the archway where the mistletoe hangs, and bestow a kiss upon her withered cheek, bowing low once more after he has escorted her to her chair again.

Former Iowa City Awaits Present of Job for Christmas

DES MOINES, Dec. 24 (AP)—Henry Miller, 56 years old, tonight awaited the coming of Santa Claus, hoping for one gift—a job. Made momentarily happy by Judge Ralph Powers following his arraignment on vagrancy charges, Miller hoped that he would find a job with which to provide for himself food, shelter, and clothing. Judge Powers gave him money for a meal today and promised to aid him in his search for a job.

Two calloused, toll-worn hands were exhibited by Miller in disputing the vagrancy charges. A slightly twisted foot, broken many months ago, and graying hair, were given as the reasons he found a job hard to get.

County Prisoners to Get Christmas Dinner

A Christmas dinner with all the trimmings will be the only event today for the nine prisoners who are serving time in the Johnson county jail. Until recent years an annual Christmas program was given at the jail by a local organization, but this practice has been dispensed with.

However, visitors will be allowed at the jail during the day.

Assassin Fails to Kill Chief of Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 24 (AP)—President Hipolito Yrigoyen of Argentina escaped injury today because the aim of a would be assassin at his speedy automobile was faulty. Two of the three shots fired from behind a wall along the roadway struck members of the presidential party and the third went wild. The assassin was executed immediately. The nation rejoiced tonight at the narrow escape of its chief executive from a tragedy which would have brought to an abrupt halt the extensive Christmas celebrations already under way.

The assailant was described by the police as an Italian anarchist named Gasparito Marinelli, 44 years old. He concealed himself behind a wall bordering the international road. As the president was driving to the national palace from his home Marinelli sprang out and opened fire. An employe of the investigators office, Carlos Marie Sicilia, was wounded in the stomach and at a hospital tonight it was said that he was injured critically. Another man in the presidential automobile also was wounded. President Yrigoyen and his companion Dr. Meabe were not injured.

That the plot failed of its purpose was attributed to the quick action of the presidential escort which streamed down the assassin with a stream of shots. He was killed where he stood and later it was found that seven bullets had entered his body.

President Yrigoyen has long been one of the most powerful and individual figures in Argentina. He was first elected president in 1916 and served until 1922.
