DRY LAW DEBATE FLARES IN HOUSE

South Dakota Flashes Close Guarding Game to Turn Back Hawkeye Cage Team, 30-20

Nicholson, Jackrabbit Forward, Collects Eight Goals to Garner High Point Honors; Iowa Scores Six Times From Field

A close guarding quintet of South Dakota Jackrabbits stopped Coach Rollie Williams' Hawkeyes last night by a 30 to 20 margin before a crowd of nearly 3,000 Iowa fans. The stalling offensive play of the visitors caught the Hawks off guard and was partly responsible for the defeat.

Nicholson, South Dakota State forward, was the individual star of the game, gathering 16 of his team's 30 points. He made eight fields goals. Iowa's field goals totaled six and the remainder of the tallies came from free throws. Hap Jebens, Reg Hildreth, Dutch Reinhardt tied for high scoring honors for the Hawkeyes, each garnering four points.

Englemann Great at Center

Englemann, Jackrabbit leader in the stalling game, played a great game at center for South Dakota. Kinnan, who captained the Iowa cagers, played a tight defense, for the Hawkeyes while Reinhardt and Hildreth starred on the offense.

Short, accurate passes marked the play of the visiting five. With the offense centering around their star, Nicholson, the Jackrabbits relied on their passes and played an under-the-basket style of game. The half ended with Iowa trailing, 11—8.

Iowa Scores

At the beginning of the contest it looked as if the Hawks were off to an easy win. Bob Spradling started things with a basket less than 30 seconds after the opening whistle. Nicholson immediately tied the count with a neat one from the side and Herting doubled the score. After Captain Herting tossed in a charity flip, Reinhardt came in under the basket, bringing the count 4 to 5. Jebens whipped in a free throw when Hamann fouled him and evened things.

Another free throw by Kinnan put the Hawks in the lead, 6 to 5. Englemann tied the count with a free throw and the Hawks were never in the lead again. Coach Williams sent Williamson in for Reinhardt and Eshleman in for Hildreth. Iowa made four more free throws and the Jackrabbits picked up ten more points before the half ended.

Second Half

Coach Williams sent the starting lineup back into the fray at the beginning of the second half. Kinnan fouled Lowe who added another point. Mamann fouled Reinhardt and Iowa chalked up one point. Nicholson, the diminutive star Jackrabbit, hoisted the visitors lead four more markers. The Hawks were then trailing 12 to 23.

Hap Jebens made it 13 for Iowa by slipping in a free toss, after Herting had fouled him. Hamann added three points with a neat one under the goal and a free ticket. Jebens came under the net and flipped a field goal but the dangerous Nicholson replied with a perfect swish from back of the free throw line.

Nicholson Taken Out

Spradling got the next tip off and tossed to Hildreth who dribbled under the basket for two points. Nicholson made one more basket and then fouled Reinhardt. This last foul brought his total to four and he was taken from the game. Hildreth shoved in a close-up under the basket for the final score of the game.

Iowa plays Missouri State on the home court Saturday night. As a curtain raiser, two frosh teams play five minute contests. A group comprised of Kotlow, Kane, Barger, Rogge, and Ough defeated a team composed of Jones, Dierk, Rogers, Rugers, and Schmidt by the score of 2 to 1.

Isham Jones Band to Play for Military Ball at Iowa Union

Isham Jones and his 15 harmaniacs, who have been broadcasting daily over WTMJ at Milwaukee, will be the masters of ceremonies at the Military Ball at Iowa Union Jan. 17. This band has attracted thousands to the College Inn club at Chicago, where it appeared last year. Ticket sales begin today according to an announcement made by Herbert C. Gee, A4 of Anamosa, captain of Scabbard and Blade.

The greatest mystery of campus history will be solved with the presentation of the honorary colonel, whose identity has been kept from a curious public. Rex, university mascot, has promised to be present in his full dress uniform and expressed a desire to be near the camera when Charles Luthe, A2 of Des Moines, takes moving pictures of the event. Those attending will also see the crack squad drill. Their new uniforms together with those of the Pershing Riflemen should add color to the scene.

Arrangements are being made to broadcast the event over WSUI, giving alumni who are absent from the campus a chance to listen to the fun they once participated in.

Two Die in Cresco Fire

Mother and Son-in-Law Burn to Death

CRESCO, Jan. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Geo. West, 70 years old, and her son-in-law, F. J. Prann, were burned to death here tonight in a fire which followed an explosion in the Cunningham garage. The fire destroyed the garage and a filling station beside causing loss estimated at $75,000.

Prann, who operated a store across the street, lost his life in an attempt to save his invalid mother-in-law from the flames which threatened her in her apartment above the garage. Both bodies were recovered after the fire, burned beyond recognition.

The fire started from a leaky gasoline tank on one of the trucks stored in the garage. Ed Hanson, head mechanic, was blown through a rear window of the garage by the explosion but was uninjured.

The garage is owned by J. L. Cunningham and the filling station by the Northern Iowa oil station. Property loss from the fire is partly covered by insurance.

Honan Rebels Meet Defeat

SHANGHAI, Jan. 7 (AP)—Nationalist government forces have crushingly defeated Gen. Tang Seng-Chi's rebels in Honan province, capturing 10,000 prisoners, government military headquarters announced today at Nanking. Tang Seng-Chi, disguised, was said to be seeking escape to Japan.

The government was reported a week ago trying to end Tang's rebellion by using "silver bullets." Tang, it was said, had been offered 50,000 Mexican dollars (about $17,500 gold) to rejoin the nationalist forces. His officers and men were to have been paid in amounts from 20 to 2,000 Mexican dollars.

"Silver bullets" or bribery, long an important factor in Chinese military campaigns, were said to have caused the collapse last month of the Kuominchun (peoples army) rebellion in Honan and Hupeh provinces. The same method was reported to have aided the nationalist troops in defeating the Kwangsi and Ironside division rebels when they marched close to Canton's gates in December.

Heads U. S. Delegates

SECRETARY STIMSON

Delegates to Naval Parley Sail Thursday

Hoover Bids Farewell to United States' Commission

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (AP) — With an appeal to the American people for patience, encouragement and to withhold criticism during the work of the American delegation at the London naval conference, President Hoover today bade farewell to the commission.

Headed by Secretary Stimson, chief American delegate, the members of the commission and a number of their advisers gathered at the white house for breakfast with the chief executive. The president discussed with the delegates the work ahead of them and his hopes that their labors would be met with success.

Stimson Outlines Purpose

In a farewell message to the American people after the white house breakfast, the secretary briefly outlined the purposes of the conference, particularly stressing the opportunity of the parley to limit still further capital ship construction—already limited under the Washington arms treaty of 1922.

The president in a statement after the breakfast emphasized the necessity of cooperation by the American people with the delegation in its work, declaring "the progress of peace for the world rests in a large measure on the shoulders of the five delegations" to the parley.

President Confident

Informally discussing his meeting with the delegates, who will sail for London Thursday on the S. S. George Washington, the president disclosed his full confidence in the grasp which the commission has of the American naval desires and needs.

He said he had given the delegates no final instructions, believing that the months of study they had devoted to the entire naval problem had made each an expert on the questions involved. He added that he believed the United States had never before sent aboard a delegation with such a thorough grasp of the essential points involved in its work.

21 Army Planes to Start Cold Weather Test Flight Today

MT. CLEMENS, Mich., Jan. 7 (AP)—The twenty-one army planes which will start a cold weather test flight to Spokane, Wash., at 7:30 a. m. tomorrow, were parked tonight on the ice of Lake St. Clair.

Absence of snow or ice on Selfridge field made it necessary for the planes to be taken to the lake this afternoon. Once on the ice, skiis were substituted for wheels.

Maj. Ralph Royce, flight commander, said that reports from all points along the route indicated "good" landing conditions, which in this case means plenty of snow and ice.

Company Manager Injured in Crash

LUBLIN, Poland, Jan. 7 (AP)—John Pawlowski, general manager of the General Motors in Poland, was seriously injured today in an airplane accident at the airdrome here.

Mr. Pawlowski had flown from Warsaw in his own avionette and was starting the return journey when the little plane overturned. Mr. Pawlowski was taken to the Lublin hospital with a broken hip and cuts and bruises. His machanic Laudanski died at the hospital.

LaFollette's Appointment to Senate Finance Committee Results in Wider Party Split

Gap in Republican Ranks Increases to Menacing Chasm on Question of Recognition of Bolting Republicans

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—The split in senate republican ranks widened into a menacing chasm today as the question of recognition in the party organization of the bolting western independents came to an issue on the appointment of Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin to the powerful finance committee.

This committee controls revenue and tariff legislation over which the western independents and the party regulars clash regularly. After an attempt to sidetrack LaFollette was made today, the independents met and served notice of battle.

Differences in Party

The republican quarrel was complicated by differences among the party regulars themselves, and by warnings from the democratic side that if the issue of LaFollette's appointment were fought out on the floor, there would be some democratic support for him.

Worried republican leaders were busy tonight in conferences seeking a solution of the problem which threatens one of the widest breaks in the party since four republican senators were read out of the organization for supporting the candidacy of Robert LaFollette, Sr., for the presidency in 1924.

Smoot Opposes Action

The veteran Senator Smoot of Utah, chairman of the finance committee, notified his colleagues that he was unalterably opposed to placing any member of the western independent group on the committee, although he had nothing personal against them.

Senator Borah of Idaho, speaking for the independents, said, "we regard this fight as symbolical of the fight on the tariff bill." He said the group would insist upon LaFollette's appointment.

Chairman McNary of the committee on committees, which is charged with fixing the republican organization's slate, was standing firmly by his ruling that the age-old senator custom of seniority should be the guide on filling committee vacancies. Senator LaFollette is one of the ranking candidates in seniority for the two finance committee vacancies.

Metcalf Files for Committee

Another complication developed when Senator Metcalf of Rhode Island, who outranks LaFollette and who belongs to the camp of the regulars as well as the "young guard" regulars, filed today for the finance committee.

There are already three New England republicans on the finance committee, and this appeared to militate against Metcalf. There was a possibility, however, that if the rule of seniority were strictly applied, Metcalf and Goff of West Virginia would be given the disputed places.

Credit Goes Where Credit is Due; So God is Given 100

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 7 (AP)—Just before the holidays, a University of Nebraska student answered a mathematics quiz question in this manner: "God knows. I don't. Merry Christmas."

Today he got the paper back, with the following notation:

"God gets a 100. You get zero. Happy New Year."

Mayor May Veto Budget

School Board Slashes 1930 Funds

CHICAGO, Jan. 7 (AP)—Attention of Chicagoans — particularly the 2,100 who lost their jobs under the recently passed 1930 city budget—focused tonight on the forthcoming action of Mayor William Hale Thompson toward the personnel slash, and on the subsequent reaction in the council tomorrow.

Reports in the city hall were that the mayor planned to veto either the entire budget or at least those portions of it providing funds for the police, fire, health, streets, street lighting, and garbage removal departments.

"The city can't function on the budget passed by the council Jan. 2," the mayor was quoted as saying.

Those close to the administration asserted that a veto message was being prepared by the mayor in collaboration with Corporation Counsel Samuel Ettelson, with recommendation that $5,000,000 be added to the approximately $55,000,000 provided in the budget as passed. Such a provision would permit restoration to their jobs of the 473 policemen, 220 firemen, 197 health department employees and 500 street laborers discharged under the budget provisions.

Not waiting for the mayor's action, the school board finance committee today lopped $131,000 from its 1930 plans and let 131 more employees go, while another score were taken from the health department rolls.

1929 Legislators of Wisconsin Get No Larger Salary

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 7 (AP) — Members of the 1929 Wisconsin legislature will not receive the increased salary which they voted under the constitutional amendment adopted last spring giving the legislature the power to fix its own salaries, the supreme court ruled today.

Under the act passed at the last session, the salary of the legislators was increased from $500 per biennium to $2,400.

Rudolph R. Zimmerman, a Milwaukee taxpayer, petitioned the court for an injunction to restrain State Treasurer Levitan from paying the increased salary.

GRANT 16 DEVORCES

DES MOINES, Jan. 7 (AP)—Sixteen divorces were granted in Polk county district court today in the first day of the January term. Fifteen of the divorces were granted by default.

Preliminary Hearing for Huckins Held

CEDAR RAPIDS, Jan. 7 (AP) — Indictments charging Elmer S. Huckins and his son, George E., with obtaining money under false pretenses were expected to be returned tomorrow, County Attorney Carl Hendrickson announced tonight.

Hendrickson said the Linn county grand jury still had two witnesses to examine before completing its investigation of the Huckins', whose mysterious business which is said to pay fabulous dividends led to the investigation.

The two remaining witnesses are out of the city, Hendrickson said, and he refused to reveal the nature of the testimony they will give.

Witnesses today, according to Hendrickson, were Fred Leiser, owner of the Dubuque baseball club in the Mississippi Valley league; Winifred Delaney, private secretary to George Huckins; William Speas, vice president of the Cedar Rapids baseball club which is owned by George Huckins; Charles D. Negus, George Huckins' partner in a cigar store here; and "Dutch" Levsen, former Cleveland Indian pitcher and once with the Cedar Rapids team. All but Levsen are said to have invested money in the Huckins business.

Skull Donated to Coroner; Anonymous Note to Police

As the result of a practical joke, Coroner George Maresh has a new skull for his office, and the local police have a brand new anonymous note for their files. The skull was found last night in a pile of poles near the legion building by Officers Joe Dolezal and George Speaks after a note, saying that a dead body would be found at that place, had been delivered to the police station.

The skull was that of an adult, had one tooth, and was marked with the initials P. E. M. in ink. Two other sets of initials, in pencil, were illegible. According to Coroner Maresh, a blow-torch had been used to burn clean the lower part of the skull.

No good clue to the perpetrators of the hoax has been discovered and it is improbable that any action will be taken by the police.

New Evidence Takes Hoover Into Inquiry

President Mentioned in Connection With Sugar Tariff

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (AP)—New "confidential" memoranda of the sugar interests mentioning President Hoover in connection with activities in the sugar tariff controversy before congress were read to the senate lobby committee today as it resumed its inquiry.

A "highly confidential" memorandum sent in a letter to Junior Owens, secretary of the American bottlers of carbonated beverages from William H. Baldwin, of New York, publicity man for the organization, said that R. L. Purdon, sugar expert of the department of commerce, had been "asked by the white house" and Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee to work out a sliding scale for sugar duties.

Baldwin Testifies

Baldwin, who said the letter must have been "signed while I was out of the office or something like that," testified that he knew nothing of the matter and could not give the source of the information.

However, in the same letter was a "report on sliding scale" which said there had been no request "directly from the white house for a sliding scale." The sliding scale proposal was rejected by the senate finance committee. The report added:

"Mr. Hoover would like a plan worked out if possible, so that if the C. and F. price in the New York got too high the duty would not raise it. A request for a so-called workable sliding scale has been made by Senator Smoot. Mr. Hoover has worked out no sliding scale."

Committee Reads Letter

Previously the committee had read a letter from Morris Murmey, connected with Baldwin, to H. H. Pike, Jr., New York sugar broker, which said Murmey was "enclosing several copies of a highly confidential memorandum regarding sliding scales." The letter continued:

"The authority for the information on the enclosed memorandum entitled 'report on sliding scale' is Mr. Thompson, sugar expert, United States tarriff commission."

Alumnus Dies in Des Moines

DES MOINES, Jan. 7 (AP) — Clarence S. Macy, 51 years old, former president of the Adel Power and Light company and general manager of the Iowa Light and Power company at Adel, died at Mercy hospital here tonight. He had been ill for a week after submitting to an appendicitis operation.

Mr. Macy was a director of the Des Moines Electric Light company and president of the Iowa section of the National Electric Light association.

He was a graduate of the University of Iowa and was a member of the university football team in 1902.

He is survived by his wife, three daughters, Mrs. Richard L. Wilson of Des Moines; Eleanor, a student at Mills college, Calif., and a former Uniersity of Iowa student; Marion, a student at the University of Washington; and three sons, Robert, a student at the University of Texas, and Clarence Jr. and William, of Adel.

A sister-in-law, Mrs. George Ball of this city, will leave for Des Moines this morning to be with the Macey family.

LaGuardia Terms Shooting of Three Men off Coast by Guardsmen 'Bloody Murder'

Senator Blease Reopens Controversy in Senate With Charge That Capital "Reeks With Vice and Corruption"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (AP)—The congressional dispute over prohibition which was presaged by quarrels among the drys during the holidays over the enforcement situation materialized today in a scathing house debate.

Reference by Representative La Guardia, republican, New York, a wet, to the shooting of three men by coast guardsmen off the New England coast as a "bloody murder" brought a vigorous reply from Representative Beedy, republican, Maine, a dry. Beedy insisted La Guardia had not given the facts and upheld the coast guard.

At the same time, Senator Blease, democrat, South Carolina, reopened the dry controversy in the senate with the charge that the nation's capital was "reeking with vice and corruption." He said the responsibility for enforcing the prohibition law rested upon President Hoover and the republican party in congress.

Negotiate With Canada

With these developments on Capitol Hill informal negotiations went forward between American and Canadian government officials to strengthen the border barriers by closing a large number of entry roads and increasing the ports from 100 to 600, with officials stationed at each.

The treasury received reports that Canadian exports of alcoholic beverages to the United States in November amounted to 295,486 gallons as compared with 520,902 gallons for the same month in 1928.

Prohibition Commissioner Doran announced a little later that authority had been granted Prohibition Administrator Pennington at Pittsburgh to issue permits to three distilleries for the manufacture of the first medicinal rye whiskey since 1918.

Says Law Not Enforceable

La Guardia, in the first speech on prohibition since congress returned from the Christmas holidays, said the "law is not being enforced for the simple reason that it cannot be enforced."

The New Yorker asserted that "what prohibition has done to the coast guard, it will do to the department of justice within a very short time after that department is cursed with the duty of prohibition enforcement."

On the same day that the Black Duck was captured, he charged, members of the coast guard "got crazy drunk at New London, Conn."

Beedy said that the liquor drunk by some of the coast guardsmen was from the Flor Del Mar, a British boat which was seized the same day as the Black Duck.

Boys Were Cold

He said he understood that ordinary seamen who were nevertheless "red blooded American boys, stood for hours on that cold December night unloading this liquor," and that some of the "gobs, to relieve themselves from the cold and suffering, opened a bottle and drank something out of it." He added that two of the boys took some of the liquor with them and got into trouble on shore.

Beedy denied reports that officers in the coast guard had stolen liquor and said they had been slandered. He said the coast guard had broken up a string of ships which had formed a rum ring and now the vessels were scattered along 10,000 miles of coast.

Mercury Falls 49 Degrees Monday; Snowfall Tuesday

One or the largest temperatur. drops recorded in Iowa City was Monday when it dropped from 49 degrees above to zero. The temperature rose again from zero at 7 a.m. yesterday to 13 above which was the highest. At 7 p.m. yesterday, it went down again to 10 above.

The snowfall at 7 o'clock last night was about one-half an inch, and when noted it gave two-hundredths of an inch percipitation.

DES MOINES, Jan. 7 (AP) — Moderation of a few degrees, in Iowa temperatures was predicted by Charles D. Reed, government meteorologist, for tomorrow. He saw no marked relief during the next few days, however.

Today saw mercury dip into sub-zero depths in various parts of the state. Sioux City and Charles City both registered the lowest marks, six below.

Winter Grips Entire West

Heavy Snow Arrives With Zero Temperature

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 7 (AP) — Winter held the entire west in an icy grip tonight.

From the great lakes to the gulf and from the Pacific coast to states east of the Mississippi river a cold wave accompanied in many sections by snow and sleet, drove temperatures down to uncomfortable depths.

Sub-zero weather prevailed in northern communities as the cold spread over the Great Lakes and Mississippi valley regions from the frigid Rocky mountains.

California which had frost at many points last night prepared for colder weather tonight and along the Gulf of Mexico the tail end of the northern cold wave was being felt.

Sub-zero temperatures were general in Montana, Wyoming, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Nebraska but a gradual moderation was in prospect in these states.

Near zero temperatures were forecast for tonight in Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City and cities in Kansas and Oklahoma.

Plaintiff in Police Fraud Case Shot to Death in Shop

CHICAGO, Jan. 7 (AP)—Jean B. Hassewer, 50 years old, who recently brought complaints against several south side policemen on charges of fraud and extortion was found shot to death in his cabinet shop early tonight.

His secretary, Mrs. Marie Ballard, became alarmed when Hassewer did not fulfill a dinner engagement at her home this evening and visited the shop. There she found his body with two bullet holes through the head and empty cartridge shells lying nearby.

Hassewer had charged that Sergt. William Begley and five other officers had compelled him to purchase a $1,200 "money-making" machine, later extorting another $700 from him under threat of arrest as a counterfeiter.

Dry Agent Arrested Here Resigns After Drawing Suspension

DES MOINES, Jan. 7 (AP)—Roy H. Weinheimer, federal prohibition agent who was suspended after being fined $100 in an Iowa City court Dec. 21 for keeping and resorting to a disorderly house, resigned today.

The resignation was accepted by District Administrator Glen A. Brunson, who announced Weinheimer had accepted another position at Atlantic, his home.

Elting, Runke Better; Hesse Doing Fairly

Signs of improvement are reported for the three students injured Monday in the collision between a car driven by Ben Hesse, A4 of Ft. Madison, and the street car on Dubuque street.

Hesse, doctors say, has a dislocated hip, a fractured arm, and possibly a fractured skull. He is reported by the university hospital as doing as well as could be expected.

The condition of Earl C. Elting, A3 of Keokuk, is considered improved. The extent of his injuries is believed to be a dislocated hip, and a long cut on his face.

Richard Runke, C4 of Merrill, Wis., suffers minor injuries and is resting well, according to word received from the Mercy hospital.

The parents of Hesse arrived yesterday in Iowa City.

Senate Defeats Duty Increase

Attempt Made to Raise Silk Duty Fails

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (AP—The coalation of democrats and wertern republicans reformed their lines in the senate today, the first anniversary of the initiation of the tariff controversy, and defeated an attempt to increase from 55 to 60 per cent the duty on woven silk fabrics. This left the rates as in the existing law and in the house bill.

At the suggestion of Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, the senate rejected the only other remaining committee amendment to the silk schedule—which would have classified silk hose made in part of rayon under higher rates in the rayon schedule. With that, it moved on to the latter duty section and adopted slight increases in rates on rayon filaments and yarns.

Smoot said he hoped to dispose of the rayon schedule tomorrow and then call up the disputed sugar levies, which the pending bill increases but not to the extent of the house measure.

Holds Up Station; Shoots Attendant

CLINTON, Jan. 7 (AP)—A lone bandit in an unsuccessful attempt to hold up a gasoline service station here tonight shot and wounded Elmer Holm, the attendant, and escaped after a struggle with the wounded man who tried to hold him. Holm will recover.

Court Martial of Coast Guardsmen Delayed Yesterday

NEW LONDON, Conn., Jan. 7 (AP)—The general court martial of coast guardsmen charged with stealing and drinking liquor from a captured rum running boat struck a snag today.

Delay in preparing charges as prescribed by government regulations prevented the court from hearing any of the 29 cases still before it, and it turned its attention to consideration of a guardsman who deserted, but not in connection with the Flor del Mar affair.

It was expected however, that the charges would be ready tomorrow.

Thirty-nine men were involved as a result of the hurried unloading of the Flor del Mar's cargo of whiskey, and 10 already have pleaded guilty to intoxication. They were aboard their ships today awaiting a review of their sentences by officials in Washington.

Doctors Cheer Justice Taft

Will Rest for Several Weeks at N. C.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (AP)—William Howard Taft, former president and now chief justice of the United States, slept tonight on a hospital bed happy in the assurance of physicians that the ailment from which he is suffering would respond to treatment within a week.

Recurring bladder trouble necessitated his entrance into the hospital. For several years the condition has disturbed him. After his present stay at Garfield hospital, Taft plans to go to Grove Park Inn at Asheville, N. C., for several weeks of rest.

The chief justice was in a cheerful mood today, his decision to drop the exacting court work for a time having restored his customary chuckle. He transacted business for several hours with his secretary and law clerk before going to the hospital. He then walked to his automobile for the ride to the hospital with Mrs. Taft. Arriving there he made cheerful inquiry for his room.

On advice of his physicians, the chief justice will completely divorce himself from all work for several weeks.

Ottumwa Boy Hurt By Hit and Run Car

OTTUMWA, Jan. 7 (AP)—Thomas Dyer, Jr., 6 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dyer of Ottumwa, was seriously injured here today when he was struck by an automobile driven by a hit and run driver. He was taken to a local hospital with a fractured skull and broken right leg.

The boy was struck on his way home from school, the car knocking him across the intersection which he was crossing. The car left the west city limits of Ottumwa headed toward Eddyville.

Vice-President of D. A. R. Dies of Pleuro-Pneumonia

SIOUX CITY, Jan. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Kathryn P. Munger, 52 years old, national vice president of the Daughters of the American Revolution, died last night in a hospital here. Death was caused by pleuro-pneumonia.

She was the wife of Judge Robert Munger and prominent in social circles here. She formerly was state regent of the D.A.R.

Mrs. Munger was preparing to attend the national meeting of the organization at Ft. Wayne, Ind., Jan. 13.

Commissioners Hold Final Bus Hearings

DES MOINES, Jan .7 (AP)—Final arguments of the Pickwick-Greyhound lines, Inc., of Kansase City, and the Interstate Transit lines of Omaha to operate busses across Iowa in intrastate traffic were heard today by the state board of railroad commissioners.

The board took the applications of both concerns under advisement each carrier objects to the application of the other.

Weather Continues to Hold up Search for Missing Flyers

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 7 (AP)—Damp, smudgy weather which during the past few days has settled over this country, has steadily grown worse until today visibility was nonexistent with the temperature near the thawing point.

With such weather prevailing throughout the territory, the searches for both Carl Ben Eilson and his mechanic Earl Borland, Jr. and Capt. Pat Reid, William Hughes, and James Hutchinson were at a standstill. Flyers were unable to leave Fairbanks, Nulato, Teller or the ice-bound fur trading vessel, Nanuk, at North Cape, Siberia, to seek the two missing parties.

Mott Elected at Convention

Chosen Editor of New Journalist Quarterly

Prof. Frank L. Mott, director of the school of journalism, was elected editor of the New Quarterly magazine at the annual conventions of the American association of teachers of journalism and of the American association of schools and departments of journalism, which were held jointly this year at Baton Rouge, La.

The magazine will replace the Journalism Bulletin and will be published jointly by the two associations. It will be devoted principally to results of journalistic research.

Professor Mott was also elected a member of the council of research in journalism and declined the chairmanship of that council because of his other duties. He was president of the American association of schools and departments of journalism last year.

The convention was divided into sessions at which talks and discussions on new methods and experiments in teaching were given. Reports on research work in journalism done by all the members of the associations during the past year were given, including a report for the University of Iowa.

Officers elected for this year are: Dean Eric C. Allen, of the University of Oregon, president of the association of schools and departments of journalism; Prof. John R. Drewry, University of Georgia, president of the association of teachers of journalism; and Prof. H. H. Herbert, University of Oklahoma, secretary of both organizations. Combining the secretarial offices is the first step taken in an effort to unite the two groups more closely.

Professor Mott and Associate Professor Frederick J. Lazell represented the Iowa school of journalism at the convention, Mrs. Mott and daughter Mildred accompanying them. The trip was made by motor. Entertainment arranged for the group at the convention included a midnight trip to a sugar camp in operation, and visits to the historical buildings and museums in the "Vieux Carre," the old French quarter of New Orleans.

Professor Kurtz Says Electric Rates Drop With Demand

If heavy demands were made upon electric power plants for more than four hours out of the entire day, rates would decrease, according to Prof. Edwin B. Kurtz, head of the electrical engineering department at the University of Iowa.

Between the hours of 5 p.m. and 9 p.m., the peak load is reached at the power plants, but during the other hours their capacity is not approached.

More even production throughout the day would lower the cost of each unit of current, Professor Kurtz said. At present, comparative idleness of the plants' men and machinery occurs, but bond interest and dividend obligations against the investment constantly continue.

This economic problem, requiring the cooperation of both producer and consumer, is the most obtuse puzzle now before the electric industry. Its only solution lies in mass production and mass consumption.

Electric current generation has its peculiarities, the greatest of which is the fact that electricity must be manufactured as needed, but cannot be stored economically in large quantities. No matter how unusual the demand, Professor Kurtz pointed out, current must be available at the turning of a switch.

Iowa has numerous efficient steam and hydro-electric generating plants, and is traversed by a network of some 11,000 miles of transmission lines serving 99.7 per cent of the people living in cities or urban communities.

Englishmen to Lecture Here

Stefansson Engaged to Give Five Talks

Two English authors and an American explorer will appear on the university lecture series during January and February.

John Cowper Powys, English novelist, poet, and essayist will speak on the "Philosophy of Wolf Solent" Jan. 23 at natural science auditorium. "Wolf Solent" is Mr. Powys latest novel, which has won the praise of many prominent critics.

A native of Shirley, Derbyshire, England, Mr. Powys was educated at Sherborne school and Corpus Christi college, Cambridge university. Later he became a lecturer for the extension societies of Oxford, Cambridge, and London universities. In 1905 he made his first American tour and since that time has spent 15 years in this country lecturing.

Mr. Powys is the author of the following books: "Visions and Revisions," "Suspended Judgments," "One Hundred Best Books," "Wood and Stone," "Rodmoor," "Wolf's Bane," 'Mandragora," 'The Complex Vision," and "Psychoanalysis and Morality."

Jan. 29, Vilhjalmur Stefansson, noted Arctic explorer, will deliver the first of a series of five lectures sponsored by the graduate college, relating to his experiences in the north. The other four lectures will be given on following consecutive Wednesdays. Stefansson is an alumnus of the State University of Iowa and is the author of "Life With Eskimos," "Friendly Arctic," "The Northward Course of the Empire," and "Standardization of Error."

Hugh Walpole, English novelist, will appear for the fourth time on the Iowa campus Feb. 21 at natural science auditorium. The subject of his lecture will be announced later. Mr. Walpole is the author of "Wintersmoon," "The Cathedral," "The Dark Forest, "The Secret City," and "Maradick at Forty."

Mrs. Mildred Paddock to Broadcast Tonight

Mrs. Mildred Paddock, instructor in voice, will offer a number of vocal selections on the regular biweekly fine arts radio program tonight at 8:30. Mrs. Paddock will be accompanied by Katherine Robinson, G of Taylor Ridge, Ill.

The program will include four groups of songs. The first group consists of three German selections: "Du bist wie eine Blume," by Schumann; "Still wie die Nacht," by Bohn; and "Mur ver die Sehnsucht Kennt," by Tschaikowsky.

"The Lotus Flower," by Schumann and May, the "Maiden" by John Alden Carpenter make up the second group.

Two Italian numbers are included in the third group. They are "Il Mio Del Foco," by Marcello and "Serenato," by Tosti. Group four consists of "Trees," by Rasdachr and "Maria's Slumber Song" by Max Reger.

Prof. R. L. King to Begin Duties Here Second Semester

Prof. Robert L. King, who obtained his Ph.D. degree in zoology at the University of Pennsylvania, will come to Iowa City at the beginning of the second semester as an associate professor of zoology.

Professor King is an outstanding zoologist, having published extensively on cytological and genetical subjects. His research work at present is based on the genetics and the cytology of the protozoa.

He has worked at the marine biological laboratories at Woods Hole, Mass., and taught several years in Pennsylvania.

Professor King will give in this department two new courses. A practical course on principles of heredity will be inaugurated the second semester. It is bound up very closely with sociology, dealing with human problems.

The other course, protozoalogy, will be entirely new to the university. It is a study of poisonous and non-poisonous protozoans and is of great scientific value in that it will be of much aid in the prevention of diseases such as malaria fever, sleeping sickness, and dysentery which are caused by protozoan parasites.

Comins to be New Catalog Librarian

Dorothy Comins, catalog librarian in the public library of Flint, Mich., has accepted a position in the catalog department of the university library. She will assume her duties here on Feb. 1. She succeeds Alma Hook who resigned Jan. 1 to go to the library of the New Jersey college for women at New Brunswick, N. J.

Florence Hoffa, A4 of Marshalltown, has recently been added to the staff of the order department of the library. She received her training in the Iowa library summer school.

Court Rules Booze Dealers Not Liable for Revenue Tax

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 7 (AP)—The fifth United States circuit court of appeals here today held that prohibition law violators convicted and sentenced are not liable to pay the government a revenue tax for their illegal business.

The court reversed a decision of the Louisiana district court in which Judge Ben C. Dawkins instructed Anthony La Franca after his conviction and fine to pay the government a liquor dealer's tax amounting to $2,004.68.

The suit for tax payment was brought by the government as a test case of the double revenue penalties under a clause of the national prohibition act.

The circuit court in ruling that the revenue tax did not apply in this case said: "So-called taxes and other charges of the Willis-Campbell act are penalties or fines imposed for criminal misconduct. Therefore, we conclude, that the conviction of La Franca is a bar to this suit."

MOVE TO NEW HOME

The education and philosophy library, which recently moved from university hall to the west wing of east hall, was opened to the public Tuesday, although all arrangements have not been completed. Pending the arrival of new steel bookstacks, the books, 30,000 in number, have been temporarily shelved in old stacks. A circulation desk will soon be installed and also new reading tables which will provide accommodations for 80 students.

DENY REVOLUTION

VIENNA, Jan. 7 (AP)—Official denial was made here tonight of an unconfirmed report that reached Belgrade today of a revolution in Albania. That report stated that the attempts of King Zog to westernize the small Mohammedan mountain state had aroused much resentment among his subjects.

A Resolution for Everybody

ONE New Year's resolution that all of us might make is to acquire better automobile manners during the coming year. A woman in Houston, Tex., says the real reason for many traffic tragedies lies in the fact that we haven't developed any etiquette in operating cars. We are living in the caveman age, auto-speaking.

No pedestrian thinks of rushing directly in front of another person on a sidewalk. If two come to an intersection at the same time, there is no trouble about one waiting for the other to pass. If two persons start to enter an elevator at the same time, there is no question of a collision.

Manners imply carefulness of the rights of others. No one would rush about a living room, however expert he might be at rushing—endangering furniture and tripping over the children. We have acquired manners in these personal relations; we have come to show consideration for the rights and safety of others.

But on the highways we rush along with cars almost out of control. We neglect our glaring headlights, forget to have the tail light functioning, forget to have brakes in good order. We come to crossings and try to rush ahead of the other fellow. We poke along in the middle of the road and won't let the man back of us pass safely. We ignore the traffic laws, meant for the safety of all of us, when ever we feel it is safe to do so.

We think the acme of civilization inheres in a big car, but we will have had no more than the trappings of savagery until we can develop some car-culture.

Beautifying Iowa Roads

MASSACHUSETTS has taken a step forward in beautifying the roads of the state by planning "a progressive landscaping" program for its highway system of 1,600 miles. Such an undertaking might well be adopted by every state in the union, for in few parts of the United States are the highways so beautiful that the scenery is not marred by harsh outlines, obscuring advertising signs, or hotdog stands.

Iowa, while it is not the most beautiful state in the land, has hidden hundreds of mysterious little brooks and rolling hills behind huge networks of signs. The really attractive scenes of the state have been hidden from the tourist instead of brought out for him to enjoy. Just around the bend in the road, where a river turns in its course, a brightly painted hamburger hut shuts off the beauty of nature, and the automobile driver becomes more disillusioned each mile, wondering if somewhere he cannot find a bit of "God's country" still untouched and unmarred by the hand of man.

Since the advent of the automobile, millions of dollars have been spent on good roads, until they have become as smooth as the motorist would wish. Iowa is not behind in expending money for this cause. Why not start a new year with a new plan to promote another worthy cause and make traveling a real pleasure for the tourist.

A Tour for Seniors

HOW many students who will be university graduates in a few months know much about the institution of which they will be alumni? How many of them have been through all of the university buildings, know how the business of the organization is carried on, know what prominent faculty men are doing in the field of learning, or know anything about class work outside their own department?

The present day tendency toward specialization is reflected in the university by a concentration of each student in his own department with consequent neglect and sometimes contempt for all others.

Many seniors will live in small towns, may never again be closely identified with may never again be closel yidentified with an educational institution such as this, with its facilities for broad learning. A graduate who is not acquainted with the hospitals, the libraries, and Old Capitol has cheated himself of part of the cultural side of his university life. The condition seems to prevail among those who come here as upper classmen rather than as freshmen and who have a supercilious attitude toward all forms of sightseeing.

Every senior should conduct a tour for himself through the parts of the university with which he is unacquainted in order that he may know, appreciate, and be able to talk about the university as a whole rather than about one school, department, or college in it.

Coal Gas Will Kill!

ESCAPING coal gas from a hard coal stove caused the death of two aged men in a small western Iowa town during the last few days. Neither realized the danger from a tightly closed stove in a stuffy room and both were overcome while asleep. One man never regained consciousness while the other lived several days before losing the fight.

Under ordinary circumstances a coal stove will usually find sufficient oxygen to complete combustion and little gas is formed but with real cold weather people are prone to close their homes as tightly as possible. Storm windows are closed and little circulation results.

Such cases as the above should be a warning to every person responsible for a family's safety. Every precaution possible is not too much trouble in a case of this kind. Proper ventilation is essential if coal gas is to be guarded against. But Americans are prone to regard such a catastrophe with horror while going ahead in the same old careless way.

Proper ventilation will prevent any recurrence of the deadly gas which is colorless and almost odorless. For the sake of the young members of the family every home where this might occur should be carefully ventilated.

The Singing Mouse

YOU may have heard many singers, but haven't heard all of them until you have heard a singing mouse. There is no such animal? But there is—believe it or not!

The versatile little quadruped lives in Wichita, Kan., and was discovered by F. D. Long, an employee at a filling station.

According to Long's story, he was sitting alone in the office of his gas station one evening when suddenly he heard a joyful trilling from a mysterious source. Upon investigation he found a mouse sitting on the window sill warbling its little song.

When Long's friends were told of the freakish creature they did not at first believe him, but since "seeing is believing," and since they later both saw and heard the mouse, they had to admit the story was true.

If you still don't believe this tale, you might write to Mr. Long. Perhaps he might send a record—"Crying for the Moon" or something of the sort—personally autographed by the mouse.

A Turkish woman named Fatima Hanem is said to be 160 years old. Probably she got that way by adding back the years she subtracted when she was about 30.

"If a man owns an automobile it doesn't prove that he has money. It only proves he had money."—El Paso Times.

HIGHLIGHTS

By Gordon G. Gauss

The keynote for the remainder of this session of congress will be "watch your step." Because this summer all members of the house of representatives and one-third of the senators will have an accounting with the persons whom they represent in the legislative assemblies. Primaries will be in full swing in June and woe be unto those who have been unruly.

* * *

One interesting case is that of Sen. Tom Heflin, the firebrand from Alabama. Democratic chieftains of the state have announced that he will not be allowed to run on the democratic ticket because of his marked hostility to Al Smith during the 1928 presidential campaign. It is believed that Heflin will enter the race as an independent, seeking to vindicate his actions.

* * *

A similar instance arises in Nebraska where George W. Norris, long an "irregular" in the senate, has aroused the ire of the G.O.P. bosses. Norris has not been officially "kicked out" of the party, but the stand-patters plan to oppose him with Gen. John J. Pershing, retired world war commander of the U. S. army. Despite Norris' numerous bolts from the party machine, the odds favor him to win.

Cannibals, a French writer informs the world, are not bad people after all. They are friendly and do not intend to carve up fellow humans for meals. In fact they are shocked when they realize what they are doing. The entire thing is a misunderstanding. Each tribe, it seems, worships some sort of an animal like a turtle or an elephant as its ancestor. And if a member of the tortoise tribe is captured by the elephant tribe, the captors proceed to eat him since to them he is nothing more than a tortoise.

Now an inventor has created a driverless car which obeys the spoken word and starts, stops, or goes backward in accordance with the orders so given. While it is admitted that the invention is not ready for practical use, it has been lauded as a means to prevent traffic jams in the future. Incidentally, the inventor points out, the car must be spoken to politely, and will not obey if it is given a bawling out. Imagine a traffic cop saying "Stop, please."

The modern has not entirely replaced the old. At Loudon, Tenn., a ferry begun in 1794 continues to do business almost in the shadow of a magnificent new bridge across the Tennessee river. The catch is that the bridge owners exact toll and the rates of the ferryman are cheaper.

Friday three Big Ten "investigators" descend upon Iowa City to determine just how guilty Iowa's 13 suspended athletes are. In the hands of Prof. Thomas E. French of Ohio State, Prof. O. F. Long of Northwestern, and Prof. Ralph Aigler of Michigan, rests the fate of the Hawkeyes. This board will hear the case of each man and will report to the conference. If this report agrees with the contention of the athletes that they received the money thinking it a legitimate loan from the bank, the conference schools will be asked to send a telegraphic vote on the athletes. Only a majority vote is necessary. for them to be eligible to compete.

The case of Art Shires, self-styled "The Great," has become one of intense interest to sports fans and to the public generally. Shires, whose regular job is playing first base on the Chicago White Sox baseball team, went into pugilism for the winter. In his inaugural fight he "kayoed" Dangerous Dan Daley. Now Daley claims that he was bribed to take the punch and Shires faces disbarrment from boxing circles. Unless he clears up the affair in a satisfactory fashion, Judge Keneshaw Mountain Landis, the czar of organized baseball, has announced his intention of barring him permanently from that sport also. Shires, of course, pleads his innocence.

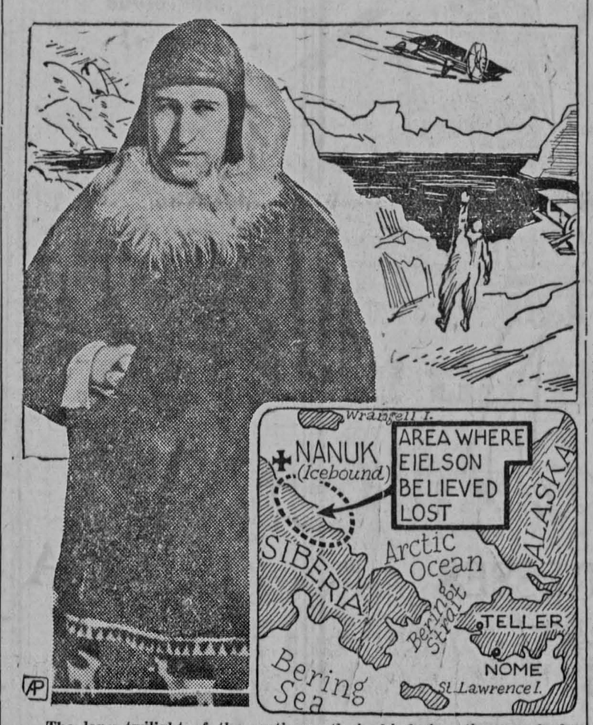
Dim Light, Gales Hamper Search for Eielson in Arctic



The long twilight of the arctic north is hindering the search for Carl Ben Eilson, lost aviator. The map shows the region to be searched.

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP)—The darkness of the winter north and icy gales are retarding the search of three nations for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland.

It will be February or March before the light in an arctic day lengthens sufficiently to permit adequate search for the aviators, who have been missing since Nov. 9.

Meanwhile, winds are raging over the dim lit desolation at the top of the world. The atmosphere is murky due to a heavy haze, caused by low temperatures rather than fog. That, coupled with darkness, makes flying extremely hazardous, weather bureau officials here declare.

While the air currents and weather conditions are only sketchily charted in the vast, frozen area, government meteorologists here state snowfall around Teller and northward is not exceptionally heavy, with an average, compiled over a number of years, being ten inches in January compared to December's 12 inches.

Teller and Nome are on the fringe of a bad weather zone which centers just north of the Aleutian islands, while Capt North, 500 miles to the north and far removed from any low pressure area, has less snow but lower temperatures.

The greatest danger from snow is in unexpected gales lashing the flakes though the air and piling it in high drifts. During such weather the wings of an airplane may become heavily coated, weather forecasters pointed out, and force the craft to land.

Near zero weather prevails most of the time with an average of 20 days in January at that mark. There is no daylight, with only three to four hours a day of twilight.

Eielson and Borland made a round trip from Teller to the ice bound fur trading ship Nanuk to rescue stranded passengers, five days before starting off the second time which failed.

Eielson, companion of Sir Hubert Wilkins in a flight over the North pole in 1928, advised other aviators carrying supplies to the Nanuk that the best air route was along the coast where there were plenty of good landing places.

In his second take-off he told friends not to worry unless they failed to hear from him within a month.

Now American, Canadian and Russian fliers have combined in their hunt for the veteran "aerial sourdough' of the Aretic.

Raymund Koch Will Give Fourth Recital in University Series

Raymond Koch, baritone, will present the fourth recital in the university artist series this evening at 8:15 o'clock in the drawing room of the Iowa Union. He will be accompanied by Delphie Lindstrom.

The program of the recital will be divided into four groups. The numbers in the first group are "Amarilli" by Caccini, "Komm, Susser Tod" by Bach, "Turn Ye To Me," an old highland melody, and "Ombra Mai Fu" by Handel. Mr. Koch will then sing "Feldeinsamkeit" by Brahms, "Ein Schwan" by Grieg, "Im Kahne" by Grieg, and "Sehnsucht" by Brahms.

In the third group Mr. Koch will present "Crai Ti Moi, Rodi Mi Crai" by Gretchaninoff, "Far on the Road" by Ipolitoff-Ivanoff, "The Pine Tree" by Balakireff, and "Dubinushka" arranged by Bromberg. The fourth and final group will include "The Cloths of Heaven" by Dunhill, "Loveliest of Trees" by Peel, "We Two" by Kramer, and "Captain Stratton's Fancy" by Taylor.

Reservations for the concert may be made at the office of Ernest Wilcox, assistant director and professor of music, at 18 N. Clinton street.

Jane Wiley, 232 S. Summit street, has returned from Lansing, Mich., after spending the holidays with her sister.

Woman Indicted for Stealing Fur Coat

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (AP)—The grand jury today indicted Miss Irene Thompson, 27 years old, on a charge of stealing a gray lamb coat, valued at $1,500 from Miss Anne Morgan, sister of J. P. Morgan. The indictment was based partially on testimony offered by Miss Morgan.

Miss Thompson is alleged to have left the coat in the checkroom at the Grand Central Station here last Thursday. It was recovered there after it had been taken from the service bureau of the American Womens' association club, Dec. 20.

Man Leaps From Island Into Slough

DAVENPORT, Jan. 7 (AP)—An unidentified man, about 50, committed suicide late today by leaping into Sylvan Slough, a branch of the Mississippi river, off Rock Island arsenal island. Scores of motorists crossing the bridge between Davenport and Rock Island saw him jump but were powerless to save him. He disappeared under the ice after floating about 100 yards.

Adams County Calls Election

Hope t o Make Highway No. 34 Hard Surface

CORNING, Jan. 7 (AP)—Prospect that U. S. highway No. 34, from Burlington to Council Bluffs, might, become an all-paved road across the state this year advanced another step today when the Adams county board of supervisors called a special election for Jan. 31 to submit to the voters a proposal to approve a second primary road bond issue of $243,000.

The new issues would be for the express purpose of completing paving of No. 34 from the Union county line west. The supervisors acted upon petitions within a few hours after their presentation this afternoon.

Union county has called a special election to act upon a proposed second issue of $498,000 of primary bonds to complete paving of about 16 miles from the Clarke county line west to near Creston. The election will be held Jan. 28. From just east of Creston to the western line of Union county the road is paved.

The proposed Union county paving would join a strip from Osceola to the west county line in Clark county. Success for the Union and Adams county issues would insure paving from Burlington to Red Oak, as the route is already solidly surfaced from Osceola east. Only the approximately 15 mile stretch between Hastings in Mills county and Red Oak in Montgomery county would then remain to be paved.

Hague Parley at Standstill Over Germany

Powers Discuss Dates of Installments at Meeting

THE HAGUE Netherlands, Jan. 7 (AP)—The big six powers at the second Hague reparations conference came to a standstill today when they tried to get the remaining chief questions between Germany and her reparations creditors cleared up.

The question of sancations, or what action is to be taken in the event Germany should default, which is the biggest thorn, was left to one side, while the delegates discuss the dates of the payment of installments. This involves the question of whether installments are to be paid on the fifteenth or the end of the month.

Little Progress Made

The guestion of a moratorium, how it is to be prepared and how accumulated payments are to be made, the question of liquidation of the past, comprising settlement of the accounts for ceded public and sequestrated private property, the transformation of negative pledges of railroad revenues under the Dawes plan into positive pledges under the Young plan and German deposits in the bank for international settlements.

Little or no progress was made on any of these problems. Three of them, the dates for payments, the transformation pledges and the moratorium, were reserved for reference to the reich cabinet and to the experts.

U. S. to Get No Favors

The creditors agreed with the Germans that there should be no special privileges handed to the United States in reparations payments over the other creditors. This and adoption of the text of the preamble of the protocol for acceptance of the Young plan are about the only things on which the conference has agreed, so far apart are the creditor nations and the Germans at this stage.

It was decided that it would be necessary to refer some of the questions to the reich governments, others going back to the experts and jurists, in order to give time for these formalities, the big six powers will not meet tomorrow.

Petersen, White to Give Book Reviews Over WSUI Today

The book review broadcasts from WSUI will be continued this afternoon at 2:30. William J. Petersen, G of Dubuque, will review "Rafting on the Mississippi," by Charles Edward Russell, and "Raft Pilot's Log," by Walter A. Blair. Both these authors are Iowans. Several war books will be reviewed by Roland White, A4 of Marengo.

This series of broadcasts is sponsored by the school of journalism. The programs are presented every Wednesday afternoon. Members of the faculty and students make up the book review staff which Prof. Frank L. Mott has formed.

Members are: Professors Ernest P. Kuhl, B. V. Crawford, and Nellie S. Aurner of the English department; Professors F. J. Lazell, and F. L. Mott of the school of journalism; Prof. John Ely Briggs of the political science department, and Mrs. Velma Critz Stout, instructor in journalism.

Student members of the staff are: William J. Petersen, G of Dubuque; Wanda Montz, J4 of Arlington; Helen L. Loomis, A3 of Burlington; Roland White, A4 of Marengo, and Milton Lomask, J3 of Des Moines.

Draw Picture of Murderer

Jury Completed; Father of Slain Man Talks

CHICAGO, Jan. 7 (AP)—Two pictures were painted today of Samuel Howard Dorr, insurance salesman, on trial for murder.

With the electric chair sketched in the background, the state drew a picture of a "remorseless, mercenary killer." The defense painted Dorr as a "peacemaker, whose relation with the wife of the dead man was purely platonic," and a killer in self defense.

Dorr is charged with the murder of William O'Brien, a street railway employee, fatally wounded on the morning of Nov. 20. Mrs. Genevieve O'Brien, the widow, was indicted with Dorr, the state contending she and Dorr plotted the murder to remove O'Brien and to collect $7,800 in insurance, $5,000 of which Dorr sold him.

The jury was completed and opening statements concluded before the noon recess, but with the resumption of court clashes between counsel, over the admissability of O'Brien's dying statement, in which he named Dorr as his assailant, were frequent.

Through Donald O'Brien, father of the slain man, the state brought the statement into the record as the with the dying man at a hospital. father recounted his conversation The elder O'Brien told the jury of his son's recital of the events leading up to the shooting.

Judge Harry Miller overruled defense objections to the line of testimony and the story was admitted as evidence.

Fugate Mob Slayers in Jail; Keeper Faces Conspiracy Charges

JACKSON, Ky., Jan. 7 (AP) — Four of eight defendants accused of participating in the mob slaying of Chester Fugate, were committed to jail without bail today after they and the other four had been indicted for murder and conspiracy to murder.

Fugate was removed from the Breathitt county jail and shot 14 times by a mob Christmas morning, and in a death bed statement named six alleged members of the mob. In addition to these six, former Jailer S. L. Combs and his son, Lewis Combs, were indicted on conspiracy charges.

The six men indicted for murder were all kinsmen of Clay Watkins, for whose murder Fugate was being held in jail. They are: S. J. Watkins, brother; Lee Watkins, nephew; Benton Howard, nephew; Allie Watkins, son; Earl Howard, and L. K. Rice, sons-in-law.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Jan. 7 (AP)—Cash wheat trade was moderate today. Prices eased with futures showing 1 to 2c loss as compared with previous sales. Shipping sales amounted to 15,000 bushels; deliveries on January contracts 20,000 bushels; receipts 13 cars and cancelled warehouse receipts for shipment 50,000 bushels of No. 2 hard. Export business in all positions reported very small. Bids were mainly below the market.

Spot corn showed activity and strength. All grades gained in the May futures. The basis was called ½ @1½c higher and prices steady to 1½c better. Shipping sales amounted to only 48,000 bushels and receipts to 93 cars. Country offerings to arrive small.

Ordinary to poor quality oats ruled steady to ½c easier in prices but choice was in demand and firm. The basis ruled unchanged to ½c higher. Shipping sales were 22,000 bushels and arrivals 17 cars. No country offerings to arrive.

Mark Woods Says Duty of Pershing to Oppose Nebraskan

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 7 (AP) — General Pershing, despite his statement from Washington today announcing he did not "seek" office and that he would not consider entering politics in Nebraska, remained, in the opinion of Mark Woods, a potential "draft candidate" in opposition to Senator Norris.

Answering the general's telegram, Mr. Woods had this to say: "While I know General Pershing has not and would not seek any public office, I have felt that should he become convinced that a large majority of the people in his home state of Nebraska want him to represent them in the senate, he would lay aside his own choice in the matter and accept the call."

Ramblers Invade Cedar Rapids Tonight; St. Pat's Play St. Joseph's Cagers

St. Mary's to Continue Race for State Title

St. Patrick's Quintet of Parlor City Blocks Way

With a string of seven straight victories behind them and the Parochial school championship of the state as their goal, a weakened St. Mary's basketball team will take the floor against St. Patrick's of Cedar Rapids in the Parlor City tonight.

Although the Ramblers might be given a slight edge on account of a better record, they will meet a team fighting to comeback after a poor start, and more than anxious to start their comeback against a team which has won for itself the reputation of being one of the outstanding Catholic aggregations of the state. Also the local quintet has not been showing up as well as before the holidays, a comparatively weak Waterloo team holding them to a close score until a last quarter spurt. Coach Sueppel will also be handicapped by the illness of "Dutch" Knoedel, star center who has a bad cold and may not be able to start. This would be a serious loss as the rangy center is the key man of the team and has been one of the high point men in every game.

One bright spot in Coach Sueppel's outlook is the bolstering of his reserve strength which has been a weak point with him all year. Kohl, reserve center, has improved considerably and may start tonight, while Healy, a guard, who has seen some action in several contests is looking better all the time. Another addition to the squad is Leroy Grimm, another promising guard, who has started to workout, and played a good game against Waterloo after being inserted for Shay who went out on personals. Seeman, a flashy forward, will be eligible next semester.

The probable lineup:

ST. MARY'S		ST. PAT'S
Fay	F	F.... Lockwood (c)
Gaulocher	F	F..... Hogan
Kohl	C	C..... Mallory
Grim (c)	G	G..... Hayes
Shay	G	G..... O'Hara

Alumni Nip U. High in Snappy Tilt

An alumni quintet defeated a scrappy university high five yesterday afternoon by a score of 17-9. Both teams played tight defensive games, neither outfit attempting many long range shots. The floor work of the U. high five was commendable, but they were unable to penetrate their opponent's tight defense who had a decided advantage in size.

Messner drew first blood with a dribble in shot near the end of the first quarter after a rather hectic opening period. Thomas opened the second quarter with a nice close in shot but Jones retaliated with a field goal to again give his team the advantage. The teams battled on even terms the remainder of the period, the half ending with a tie score, 6-6.

Van Epps replaced Fairchild at guard in the Blue and White lineup at the beginning of the second half. Jones made a close in shot following the tip off and the alumni five maintained a safe lead the remainder of the contest. Both teams played careful ball the third period which was featured by the erratic shooting of the former stars.

Blackmer, crack center of a year ago, was held to a single field goal, but he apparently had lost his basket eye for the time being as he missed a number of rather easy attempts. Jones and Messner played splendid floor games and proved a clever pair of ball handlers.

Thomas led the Blue and White scorers with six points. Dill was the only other U. high cager to tally, but this does not mean that the high school players did not play a good game for they presented a smooth working combination that promises to cause plenty of worry to rival teams when the regular season opens. The Handymen have improved their offense during the vacation and are expected to present a strong aggregation when they oppose Mt. Vernon Friday night.

K.C.A.C. INVITES TRACK TEAMS

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Kansas City Athletic club mailed out invitations to its annual indoor track meet Feb. 8 in Convention hall. Members of the Big Six, the Missouri Valley conference, the Kansas and Central conference and all Missouri colleges were invited.

If MacDonald Smith, one of the world's better golfers, wins the $10,000 Los Angeles Open this week, many fans will second the motion that this event hereafter be named after him. For "Mac" has won it twice in succession and is a favorite to again lead the brilliant field entered in California's Riviera classic. In 1928 and 1929, "Mac" revealed invincible class at Los Angeles and, though he has played general high grade golf elsewhere, he never even approached Riviera form.

"Mac" Smith's success at Los Angeles Open recalls many of the pet victory tournaments of other noted golfers. Walter Hagen, for instance, has won the British Open four times; Leo Diegel, the Canadian Open, on a quartet of occasions; and Gene Sarazen, both the Miami and Miami Beach Opens, three times running.

Over the stretch of many years, Hagen has played brilliantly, even when he failed to reach the heights, in British Opens. Sir Walter likes to pick the historic cradle of golf for his links masterpieces. This year "The Haig" will try to achieve his fifth British triumph.

John Bull need not despair, for Hagen probably will not win the "blomin' Hopen" in 1930; Mr. Robert Tyre Jones, of Atlanta, Ga., U. S. A., having announced that he will enter it.

At that, the canny "Haig" should make his supreme effort this spring to beat the great "Bobby" and, incidentally, fill that old familiar British Open cup with bitters for sporty old John Bull.

No matter how doleful or fair his fate in other events, American Professional Champion Diegel always thrills and usually triumphs in the Canadian Open and, of late, the A. P. G. A. annual championships. That most elusive of golf's psychic allies—confidence—has not of late betrayed Leo when the American Pro or Maple Leaf titles were at stake. He fairly masters those classics.

Tradition is growing that as soon as Gene Sarazen steps on a Miami links, all his conceded golfing genius comes to its own. The air seems to give him, at least near Biscayne Bay, the inspiration of a Jones, the poise of a Hagen, the brilliancy of a Diegel and the mechanical perfection of a Horton Smith.

If Sarazen should maintain his Miami pace in the National Open—well, that is but one of the "ifs" that make the favorite victory events of the golf stars so intriguing to those who speculate on luck, etc.

This and That in Sports

by Walter T. Hanson

On the University of Iowa track mixer that will be held Thursday evening comes a tale that dates back to 1918, when the first one was held. The fact that it was held that year brought about an unbroken string of friendly get-together sessions for the trackmen. That first year found only two men, however, who reported for the mix. That year a captain was to be elected, and as the story goes, it was a deadlock for the honored position as pilot, each getting a vote. Whether each man voted for himself, or the other fellow, might bring a humorous means of passing off the tie vote in a cheerful way. Prof. H. J. Prentiss, of the anatomy department, was chairman. The following year something had to be done about drumming up more interest in the meeting of athletes, and letters were sent out to all interested to pledge to come to the meeting. The result was much better and some 125 responded and the mixers have continued since that time.

The 1930 track season is the tenth anniversary of George Bresnahan's arrival at Iowa, and what a record he has made as a coach in this period. Few coaches can show a more successful era than the Iowa mentor, and his reign can be appreciated and credited to his skill at handling the material at hand. Since arriving in Iowa City in 1920 to take over the Hawkeye track squad he has made many friends, and they make up a long list of names of men in all walks of life. Ten years have gone by, and one can hardly consider it as such a long period, as so many things have happened, and such a fine array of athletes have been trained under the former Wisconsin athlete, who received his early training under Tom Jones, veteran coach at the University of Wisconsin.

Eric Wilson, dash star; Chan Coulter in the distance runs, Charley Brookins in the hurdles, and Harold Phelps in the five mile event, were the first Olympic stars that George Bresnahan started to fame, and how these aces performed has been listed in the history of an institution. Since that time many others have been added to the list, included George "The Great" Baird, Eddie Gordon, Frank Cuhel, and a number of others who also gained fame in track.

The approaching baseball season can be visualized, if not by the weather, by the fact that Coach Otto Vogel has placed a call for battery men for Saturday. When the universities and colleges get back to facing facts, athletics will be on a higher level, and these facts rest on the topic of summer baseball. What institution in the conference has not a certain group of men who have played baseball in the summer for money, and the matter of hurling charges at certain Iowa baseball players finds the topic most embarrassing to a number of athletic chiefs in the midwest. As long as baseball is the clean wholesome sport that it is, and furnished a popular demand, it will find that the players wil participate, and the matter of picking merely two or three individuals in one institution, and evading the issue in other schools may give the critics a certain satisfaction, the many would welcome the rules of amateurism being revised to a more sensible place in the American sporting world.

Ruth Refuses $75,000 Bid From Yanks

Bambino Wants More Mazuma With Three Year Contract

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (AP) — Ten years to the day after he signed his first Yankee contract, calling for $10,000 Babe Ruth today nonchalantly rejected an offer of $75,000, the salary paid the president of the United States. At a conference with Jacob Ruppert, president of the American league baseball club, and E. G. Barrow, its secretary, the home run hitter shook his head when it was suggested that the club would be willing to pay him $150,000 for a two year crop of home runs.

Ruth countered with a proposal that he affix his well known signature to a contract calling for $85,000 annually for three years. This suggestion, Colonel Ruppert emphatically vetoed, declaring that the club would not agree to a three-year contract at any terms, although Ruth pointed out that he had just closed a three-year contract at $70,000 a year.

Matter of $10,000

The matter rested with a difference of $10,000 in money and a year in contractural limits. Yankee officials said that they had made their "top offer" to the Babe and the next move must be made by the player. Ruth said he would leave Saturday for St. Petersburg, Fla., training camp of the Yankees.

The big slugger's comment on the $75,000 offer was that it was "not enough" while Secretary Barrow insisted it was generous, perhaps to a fault.

Exhibition Tilts

The big outfielder brought up the question of exhibition games and the club was understood to be willing to make a stipulation limiting the number of exhibitions in which Ruth should be called on to participate. This the Yankees planned to do in any event as the wear and tear of the extra contests on the slugger's legs were regarded with apprehension last year.

Although he has played 10 years in a Yankee uniform, Ruth has had only three contracts in that time. When his release was purchased from the Boston Red Sox for a price reported to have been $125,000, he had a holdover contract calling for $10,000 a year. This the Yankees took over and he played in 1920 under its terms. For 1921 he had a contract calling for $25,000 and he was signed in 1922 to a document running for five years at $52,000 a year. He then jumped to the forefront of high finance in baseball by signing for three years at $70,000 a year.

Cloggers Get New Step; Best Clickers to Give Exhibitions

Not Christmas bells, alarm clock bells, or locomotive bells, but a simple step called "bells," formed the keynote of the 50 cloggers, who held their workout yesterday, under the direction of Coach Aaron Kipnes.

Kipnes selected the 19 most competent men, and from these the first exhibition will be given between halves at the Drake basketball game next month. They were urged to spend outside work on the steps, as the "best man" gets the privilege of performing before the public. Today marked the two-thirds mark in the completion of the routine, and work will be rushed in the next two weeks so that the entire routine may be completed.

Indians Will See Changes

Carl Lind Slated for Shortstop; Hodapp at Second

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 7 (AP)—A long suffering frontiersman once feelingly and historically remarked that "the only good Indian is a dead Indian."

Seven slightly profane baseball aggregations of the American league were repeating this phrase during the final stages of 1929—with varying degrees of dismay and sorrow—as the Cleveland Indians ruined chances for higher ratings in the final standings.

There will be a few new faces in the 1930 Indian lineup. One or two major shifts, however, are among the pre-training camp castings. Carl Lind, for instance, has an inside track on the shortstop job left vacant by the release of Tavener. Hodapp, who took up Lind's place at second when Carl was out because of illness, has the job pretty well sewed up.

The rest of the infield will include Fonseca at first and J. Sewell at third base. Much of the success of the Indians in 1930 hinges on the ability of this stellar infield to maintain its hitting and fielding power.

With Ferrell and Hudlin and Miller ready to take regular turns in the box the Indians are well set from a pitching standpoint. Then too, a great deal is being made of Clint Brown, young righthander who won 21 games for New Orleans last season. Holloway and a youngster by the name of Shoffner are not to be taken lightly when they face the plate.

Jamieson, who is no longer young, will probably occupy the bench the greater part of the season while Dick Porter cavorts in the left garden. Averill and Falk complete an outfield that is expected to rate high in the league.

Alex Hooks, Bob Seeds and Johnny Gill are rookies who are expected to see plenty of service. Gill set a two base hit record in the Eastern league while with Albany last season.

St. Patrick's Cagers Meet Ft. Madison

Local Court Serves as Scene of Tilt Tonight

The St. Patrick's high school basketball team will oppose a team representing St. Joseph's of Rock Island in their fourth start of the season tonight. The game will begin at 8 o'clock on the local floor.

St. Pat's has been successful in outscoring but one of its three opponents to date. In their first start they were nosed out by St. Mary's of Moline by a 16 to 15 count. Their old rivals St. Wenceslaus of Cedar Rapids outscored the Irish 17 to 15. The Green and White showed better form in their last game to leave St. Patrick's of Cedar Rapids on the short end of a 15 to 8 count.

Coach Lew served his candidates a comparatively light drill last night in preparation for the Rock Island invaders. Lew concentrated most on the improvement of the defense which was weak in the scrimmage with the alumni Sunday. He believes that his offensive is working more smoothly now than it has to date and expects the Irish to score more points than they have in their previous conflicts.

Lew will probably start the team which has been working together regularly all season, composed of Kelly and Spratt at forwards; Dvorsky at center; and Megan and Captain Welch at the guards. Wilkinson, a guard, and Dreckmann, a forward, have been pushing the regulars for their posts of late and will undoubtedly get a chance to show their form tonight.

A preliminary game will be played by the St. Patrick's Midgets team.

BASKETBALL RESULTS

Diamond Candidates Report to Vogel for First 1930 Instruction

Five catchers and 11 pitchers reported to Coach Otto Vogel's headquarters in the fieldhouse yesterday in response to a call issued for battery men.

Intensive workouts will begin Saturday at 2:30 p.m. when the men who turned out yesterday will report for the initial practice session. There are still open places for both pitchers and catchers, and any men "feeling the urge" are requested to report Saturday, Coach Vogel announced yesterday.

Those listed on yesterday's turnout are: Carl J. Nelson, of Des Moines, Elmo Nelson of Clearfield, E. Heiserman of Hawkeye, E. Groepper of St. Louis, and Lyman Case of Grinnell, catchers; Floyd Mitchell of Rock Island, Alfred Ziffern of Rock Island, John Carlsen and Oakley Carlsen of Clinton, Cusack of Oxford, N. Seldin of New York, N. Y., J. Ingraham of Rochelle, Ill., F. Schaub of Ottumwa, Herbert Lubart of New York, N. Y., J. Welsh of Iowa City, and V. Holmes of Sioux City, pitchers.

Nation's Best Golfers Match Clubs Today

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7 (AP) — Having clubbed their way through the "small money" and minor tournament, the pick of the country's golf stars tomorrow will begin their trek down the real "pathway of gold"—the $10,000 Los Angeles open whose 72 holes medal play will attract the most imposing field since its inaugural in 1926.

The huge entry list will seek qualifying honors over seven courses other than the scene of the championship play—the Riviera country club course.

While most of the noted figures of the game are on the exempt list because of previous showings several outstanding stars will be required to match strokes in the scramble for qualifying places. These include Johnny Farrell, former open champion; Joe Turnesa, of New York, member of last year's American Ryder cup team; William Mehlhorn, New York, and Johnny Dawson, brilliant amateur from Chicago.

Approximately 8,000 gallons of gasoline are used every week at the Western Air Express at Los Angeles.
