France Gains First Victory of Naval Meet

Given Precedence Over Italy; Will Discuss Tonnage First

LONDON, Jan. 27 (AP)—France today gained a technical victory on a point of procedure for the formal agenda of the five power naval disarmament conference after a meeting of the chief delegates at Number 10 Downing street.

What actually happened was that after nearly three hours of keen discussion, the delegates endeavored to settle part of their disagreement by invoking the alphabet, and under its auspices France, by precedence over Italy, was granted the right to propose discussion of the French plan for limitation of naval armaments by total tonnage instead of by categories of ships.

This is expected to produce a compromise on the global tonnage proposals satisfactory to all the powers. Meanwhile, Italy's desire to plunge into the question of maximum and minimum fleets for each country must wait.

Stimson Dislikes Delay
Secretary of State Stimson admitted that today's meeting, which lasted far past the hour for lunch, had proceeded more slowly than he desired.

For the Americans and the Japanese it was largely a day of watchful waiting while the European delegates maneuvered in a maze of technicalities relating to Franco-Italian problems, including naval parity.

It remains for the British government to add a realistic disarmament touch to the events of the day by announcing the cancellation of construction orders for two 10,000-ton cruisers, the Northumberland and the Surrey.

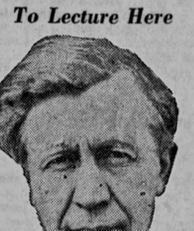

Suspension Announced
Suspensions of construction of these ships was announced by Prime Minister MacDonald after he started on his American trip last autumn, and the admiralty's order of the day simply makes suspension absolute.

Outside the conference rooms, the Americans and the Japanese chiefly devoted themselves to denying various reports and rumors.

In quick succession of an American spokesman assured questioning correspondents first, that nothing had been done in London to settle the 20,000-ton difference in cruiser tonnage still existing between Britain and America in parity estimates, second, that the question of an increased cruiser ratio for Japan has not been discussed by the American delegation in London, and third, that the proposed Mediterranean security pact, concerning which many rumors have been current since the conference started, has not been taken up with the American delegation.

Japs Await Actual Work
The Japanese spokesman said today he wished emphatically to make public the fact that the Japanese have no special desires about the order of items on the agenda.

Treasury Department Denies Investigation of Prohibition Agent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—Assistant Secretary Lowman of the treasury today defended J. F. J. Herbert, prohibition administrator at Helena, Mont., as "capable and efficient."

Lowman's comment was drawn by charges in the senate today by Senators Wheeler, democrat, Montana, and Borah, republican, Idaho, who objected to Herbert's transfer from Baltimore to his present Montana assignment. Both senators said it was their information that Herbert was under investigation by the department of justice.

"Col. Herbert was transferred because the bureau felt that a reorganization of the Baltimore district was necessary for the good of the service and to obtain better cooperation from the United States attorney in that district," Mr. Lowman asserted.

"So far as the treasury department is informed, no investigation has been made of Colonel Herbert by department of justice agents," Lowman said.

Herbert was transferred recently from Baltimore to the northwestern district. His assistant at Baltimore, J. C. Quinn, has been dismissed.

Liquor Case Delayed Because of Death of Key Witness; 102 Held

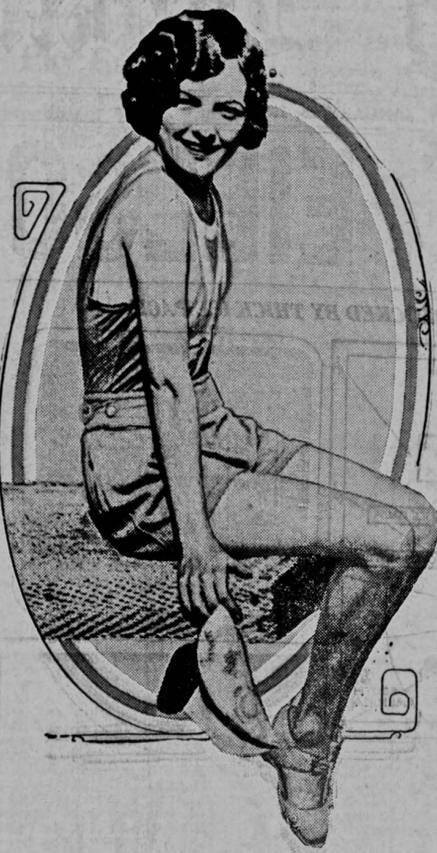

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 27 (AP)—Postponement until tomorrow of the opening of the Pottawatomie county liquor conspiracy case, involving 102 defendants, today gave the federal government additional time in which to meet the exigency created by the death Saturday night of Marion Fuller, former chief of police at Earlboro, who was regarded as the prosecution's key witness.

Circumstances of Fuller's death were under scrutiny of federal authorities as they reexamined their case. Herbert K. Hyde, assistant district attorney, said the government's case largely hinged on Fuller's testimony, which was to have been the first offered.

Fuller is said to have made a death bed statement, which, it is reported, will be introduced in the trial.

Movement to Lower Rayon Tariff Fails

Wheeler Leads Debate in Senate; Loses by 52-23

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—With wide swaths in the ranks of democrats and republican independents, the senate beat back three democratic attempts today to lower existing tariffs on raw products used for rayon clothing and voted for the slightly higher protection proposed by the republican regulars.

The debate, lasting all day, centered around an attempt by Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, to eliminate a provision calling for a minimum rate of 45 cents a pound on single and grouped rayon filaments and yarns the basic products of the growing rayon industry.

After a lengthy speech in which he charged that the majority of the domestic rayon manufacturers were dominated by an international "price fixing trust" with headquarters in London, Wheeler lost in his efforts to lower the duty, 52 to 23.

Fourteen democrats, chiefly from rayon centers in the east and south, and 38 republicans were against him, while 11 other democrats, 10 republicans and the one farmer-labor senator, Shipstead of Minnesota, supported him.

Senator Wheeler estimated that the 45 cents a pound minimum would be equivalent to an ad valorem protection of from 80 to 112 per cent.

Colleagues Angered
He charged the American Viscose company, controlled by British interests and America's largest rayon producer, and the Dupont rayon interests were sending "lobbyists" to Washington to work for higher tariffs.

He added that the domestic manufacturers had failed to produce production cost figures to enable the fixing of a proper tariff and said the viscose company had made $31,000,000 net profits in 1928; the Dupont mills $8,224,951, and the Industrial Rayon corporation $1,608,027.

Wheeler angered some of his democratic colleagues when he said democrats who stand for fair tariffs would be fooling the people if they voted for the committee rates. Senator Trammell, democrat, Florida, said he did not propose to let the Montanan speak for the party or have it "measure its standards" by Wheeler's.

At this point, Senator Simmons, North Carolina, arose to say the democratic platform stood for a "competitive tariff."

aid the federal farm board in outlining Iowa's participation in a livestock marketing program were named today by Gov. John Ham-mill.

Milo Reno, president of the Iowa
farmers union, issued a statement,
however, declaring his organization
would enter into no more discussions of marketing unless Iowa farm groups may name their own committees. He said the farmers union resented the appointment of a committee by the governor.

Persons named by Hammill to the committee, which was appointed after a conference of farm leaders
here last week, are as follows:
Charles E. Hearst of Cedar Falls, president of the Iowa farm bureau federation.

Milo Reno of Des Moines, president of the Iowa farmers union.
Reno said his organization will not permit its cooperative marketing associations to "be made a cat-paw of politics."

"We do not intend to enter further discussions of this problem so long as they are directed by Governor Hammill," he added.

Reno's statement declared Hearst, Eape and himself and proposed to Governor Hammill that the cooperatives name their own committees,
but that the governor had rejected
the suggestion.

Hammill said today he had been asked to name the committee at last week's conference, and that all the groups which Reno said were protesting were represented.

March 10 Set
for Iowa Night

National Iowa night, commemorating the eighty-third anniversary of the University of Iowa's founding, will be celebrated March 10 by aluni groups throughout the country.

Locally, the affair will take the form of a banquet and the speaker will be Raymond M. Hughes, president of Iowa State college.

The date tentatively set for Feb.
25, just 83 years to the day since the first general assembly of Iowa founded the state university, was shifted by Frederic G. Higbee, alumni secretary, and President Walter A. Jessup.

All proceedings will be broadcast
by WSUI, but since the station was crippled by the frequency change
made by the federal radio commission, scant hope is held that many of the alumni groups will be able to hear.

Therefore, all groups will have a printed copy of the entire program,
to be reproduced in case radio reception fails. This plan has been executed at the four previous celebrations, with good results.

In 67 Iowa counties, a state university alumni unit is functioning, and there are 30 such organizations in out-state cities, representing more than 15 states. Each unit will be invited to participate in the program.
Last year, 71 groups observed the occasion.

For eight years after its establishment on Feb. 25, 1847, the university existed only upon the official documents of the general assembly. It was in March, 1855, that the institution first held classes, with an enrollment of 124 students.

Hardy's Lecture in Medical Magazine

An article of interest in the January issue of "The Journal of the American Medical Association," was one which told of an address delivered Jan. 24 at Chicago by Dr.
A. V. Hardy, professor and acting head of the department of hygiene and sanitation at the University of Iowa.

Dr. Hardy's talk, which was on the topic of "Undulant Fever,"
was the sixth annual Ludvig Hekton lecture of the Billings foundation
sponsored by the Chicago Institute of Medicine.

The lecture, which is an annual event, was given in honor of Dr.
Hekton of the institute. Every year some one who has done work on a medical problem of general interest is asked to lecture on the problem.

Sister of Late John Murphy Contests Million Dollar Will

CHICAGO, Jan. 27 (AP)—Mrs.
Sarah Carroll, sister of the late John B. Murphy who was vice president of the Kohler company, has brought suit in superior court contesting his million dollar will and charging that Murphy, his first wife, and two sons were put to death mysteriously. Mrs. Carroll accused May W. Dunn Murphy, the second wife, of responsibility for the deaths.

Murphy died in November, his two sons, John B. Junior and Hallett M.
Murphy having died previously.
Murphy was vice president of the company, headed by Gov. Kohler of Wisconsin, for twenty years.

The bill filed in superior court last Friday and made public today alleges that the deaths of Mrs. Rose Murphy, Hallett Murphy, John B.
Murphy, Jr., and Mr. Murphy were "caused by wrongful and skillful acts of Mrs. May W. Dunn Murphy."

The second Mrs. Murphy, the bill charges, married Murphy for his money and treated him brutally,

beating him into unconsciousness,
both before and after their marriage.

The bill recites that Murphy was mentally incompetent at the time
the will was signed.

Mrs. Murphy was 50 years old when her husband died. She and Murphy had been living together,
he under her control, before the first Mrs. Murphy died, according to the bill. It set forth that the funeral of Mrs. Rose Murphy was held privately with the second wife in charge of arrangements, information concerning the woman's death
being suppressed and relatives
barred from the services.

Second Wife Executor
Murphy was 71 years old at the time of his death. His entire estate, estimated at $1,000,000 or more, was left to the second Mrs. Murphy and she was named executor. The witnesses were A. M. Martin and Mary Lillian Kent, the latter Murphy's secretary. It was dated March 6, 1925, and was filed for probate Jan.
25, 1929.

Mrs. Carroll charges in her suit that Murphy did not sign the will of his own accord and that the witnesses were tools of the second wife.
Mrs. Murphy is accused of having dictated and signed the document.

Views in Letter
Mr. Mitchell's views were contained in answer to an unidentified private citizen who had called attention to inquiries being made by a justice department agent concerning candidates to a United States marshalship.

Saying the investigation was under his direction, the attorney general defined his purpose as "to obtain all the information that is available about any candidate which bears on his qualifications for the post and his probable efficiency."

At the hearing, Representatives Cochran, democrat, Missouri, and Stone, republican, Oklahoma, had inquired whether dry agents should not pledge themselves to abstain from liquor drinking.

"No Liquor Drinking"
Mitchell wrote that he believed
"that no man who makes a practice of drinking intoxicating liquor or who has definite or pronounced views in opposition to prohibition, belongs, during this administration,
in any post having directly to do with the prosecution of cases under the national prohibition act."

With the receipt of the Mitchell letter, Chairman Williamson of the committee, announced that hearings had been closed and the committee would go into executive session tomorrow to perfect the bill for submission to the house, probably late in the week.

Neff Praises
Facilities of Local Hospital

Says Medical School
Attracts Attention
of World

"The university hospital with its medical laboratories attracts the attention of the whole world," said Robert E. Neff, administrator of the hospital, at the chamber of commerce luncheon yesterday. He spoke on the "Services rendered by the university hospital."

The facilities of the University of Iowa medical college were described as being the best in the country in the way of organization and care of patients, teaching and research. Mr.
Neff explained that the American Medical and the American Hospital associations instructed visitors who were interested in hospitals and medical colleges to come to Iowa City and to observe this institution.

"One of the major problems at the present time is that of accommodating the waiting list of 1,116 patients," Mr. Neff said. He explained that this problem is due to insufficient funds, although $1,000,000 is appropriated yearly.

Every county in Iowa was represented in the 8,047 patients that were treated last year. The average stay at the hospital of each patient was 12.3 days, and the basic rate for state patients was $3.50.

Eighty-five per cent of the patients last year were state patients.
Another 10 per cent were cost patients, who pay the same rate charged state patients. The remaining five per cent were private patients, who pay the hospital rate and also the fees of the attending physician.

Girl Orders New
Superspeed Boat

LONDON, Jan. 27 (AP)—Miss Betty Carstairs, completing arrangements to challenge the motor boat speed kings of the world in the Harmsworth trophy race at Detroit
this summer, has ordered a super-speed boat and obtained permission from the air ministry to use two of the secret aero-engines built for the Schneider cup contest.

These engines will develop more than 2,500 horsepower, and speeds well over 100 miles per hour are expected. It is planned to test the boat on Lake Windermere before shipping it to America.

Bristol Says
Wholesaler's
Place Secure

Popular ideas to the contrary, the wholesaler performing economical service to store and factory does not face elimination from the merchandising picture.

Prof. William F. Bristol, of the University of Iowa bureau of business research, has drawn this conclusion after a study of the situation.

Upon the actions of the wholesaler themselves rests the answer to the question of elimination, Professor Bristol declared. If they can perform their services at a minimum of cost, they will continue to exist.

Wholesaler's organizations now are in the throes of radical changes, according to Bristol, shifts brought about by the inroads of chain and department stores, and retailers' buying organizations together with pressure of the manufacturers.

Here are several of the changes recounted by Professor Bristol: meeting competition by manufacturing brands of their own; simplification of lines to weed out unprofitable items, organization of retail store chains
to obtain a regular volume of sales, group buying, and formation of cooperative wholesale establishments.

The slogan, "Buy direct and save the middleman's profit," widely broadcast as a business-getter, means something to the consumer only when the wholesaler-retailer combination costs less than performance of similar distribution acts by one agency.

MASTER OF MONEY

By Roy Vickers

What has gone before:

Alan Brennaway, 35 years old, and handsome, has made a fortune in Mexico. He loves Shirley Dane, young society girl, and, upon his return to New York, proposes to her. She refuses, saying she loves someone else. At a reception, Alan meets Mr. Cymax, financial shark, whom he distrusts. Later he receives a mysterious card that Roger Kelton, young lawyer, with whom Shirley's inheritance is invested, is bankrupt. Roger admits it is true, blaming his late father's swindling, and stating that his chief creditor is the girl to whom he is engaged. Going over the list, Alan notes Shirley's name and realizes she is the girl Roger meant. Alan lends Roger half a million dollars, taking as security mine stock which Roger warns him is worthless. Next day, Shirley's engagement to Roger is announced. Roger asks Alan to be best man, but he refuses. Alan's physician advises a complete rest. Shirley is married in June. After the honeymoon, she and Roger go to live in Roger's New York house. Alan, longing to see Shirley, leaves Vermont.

Now go on with the story:

CHAPTER XII.
Marriage, she would admit to herself, was pleasant and even interesting. She had expected to find it absorbing and the plain fact was that it was not absorbing. Sitting at breakfast some few days after their arrival she looked across the table at Roger looking through his paper. She herself had suggested some weeks ago that he should read the paper at breakfast, but had been startled at the grateful eagerness with which he had adopted the suggestion.

"Roger," he looked up. "Tell me quite frankly—it won't hurt—do I look a fright in the morning?"
Roger smiled indulgently.
"You ask that because you have just come to the conclusion that you think you must be less interesting than the newspaper."
"As a matter of fact," she answered gravely, "I was more or less serious. Of course I don't really think I look a fright, but—"
"Lovely child! Can't you understand that I simply dare not take any notice of you in the morning or I would never go to the office?"

That, thought Shirley, was very pleasant. It meant nothing, but it was good love manners. Alan, for instance, could not have said that to save his life. That reflection made her add:
"I wrote to Alan the day before yesterday and told him we were here."
"Did you?" he echoed, and she saw that he was displeased.
"Jealous?" she taunted.
"Yes, darling, jealous of every man that breathes, with the possible exception of Alan Brennaway. But—need we invariably keep him posted of all our movements?"
Shirley perceived that there was something behind the remark, and being inexperienced in wifehood dressed the matter.
"Out with it," she challenged.
He mimicked non-understanding.
"You've got something against Alan," she elucidated. "When I made that arrangement with Mr. Clifford about taking his place you were pleased. But when I pointed out afterward that Alan was staying a few miles away, you became suddenly grumpy. Wouldn't it be rather a good idea to get to the bottom of it, now that we are talking about it?"

Roger tossed away the paper.
"I've no objection whatever to Brennaway," he said precisely. "I think he is one of the best fellows alive and I'm very glad he's your particular friend. But—if there is something that is fidgeting me—it has nothing to do with his personality."

"Fidgeting you?" she echoed.
"It's one of those things that—" he broke off—well—he hardly exists when one tries to put them into words yet they rattle you. It's difficult to be clear. You remember we agreed that we would make it a cast-iron rule that I should not gossip to you about shop. Once you begin with an interesting little item that seems of no importance, where are you going to end?"

"I don't know where you're going to end," said Shirley solidly. "But you've begun by suggesting that you've got professional knowledge of something against Alan."

"Nothing of the kind! . . . Oh well, I shall have to give you the substance of it." He waited for her assurance but she gave none. "Some weeks before we were married—shortly after his return—Brennaway came to my office. My father used to act for his father and I believe the firm has done a little business for him. Of course he's a big man now with—many ramifications. He wanted me to go to Macedonia."

"Whatever for?"
"In connection with a mining scheme he is interested in. As a matter of fact my own father was interested in it too. It would mean my being out there at least six months—it's a dog's hole of a country. Besides—we were going to get married, so naturally I wasn't keen."

There was a note of petulance in his voice that mystified her.
"But he could easily have found another lawyer. Why didn't you just thank him and remind him about me?"

"For a moment he did not answer. "It wasn't quite as simple as you seem to imagine," he said defensively. "To begin with, Brennaway believes a good deal in that mine and I don't."
"He knows all about mines."
"The mine may be all right but there are difficulties in the way that I should have to overcome—negotiating with the government, and so on. Of course it was awfully decent of him to give me the opportunity—at least, he believed it was. I don't think there is anything in it because, well—after all, it isn't my forte to negotiate with comic-opera governments. You see, in the special circumstances—well, he's your old friend, and all that, I did not like to give him an outright 'no.'"

"Do you mean that you said 'yes'?" prompted Shirley.
"Upon my word, I don't know whether I said 'yes'—unequivocally," Shirley noticed that he was floundering—trying to carry the situation with a show of frankness. "But you know what a forceful chap he is. At the time I may have been led to think a good deal more of the project than I now think after much consideration."

The word "forceful" lingered. She had never thought of Alan as forceful. She had thought of him as strong, reliable—a man who would always know whether he had said yes or no and abide by his word.

"We left it that I should let him know when you and I had made our plans. There's nothing in it, of course—I mean nothing that we need to get rattled about, but he is such a forceful chap."

"Why didn't you tell me about all this before?" she asked.
"Oh, I don't know—one doesn't talk about such things on one's honeymoon."

"It affects our plans. If you have got to be away for six months, why have we come here? What's the use of our making plans for Vermont?"

"Of course there is that side of it, which I admit I hadn't considered. Perhaps I ought to have mentioned it before. But let's leave that, dear-est. Do you want me to go to Macedonia?"

Shirley smiled without mirth. She had already noticed the tendency of her husband to flinch from a direct question about his own conduct. She was familiar, too, with his trick of attempting to disarm criticism by blaming himself. Nevertheless, she did not want him to go to Macedonia. Alan should have had more sense than to offer him a job like that.

"I don't see how you can," she said impatiently. "We made a good start at Southampton and if we are not going to follow it up—"
"That's just exactly what I feel about it," said Roger fervently. "Apart from the fact that I don't believe that I should be able to pull it off when I get there—as you say, it would spoil everything—my going away just now."

"I suppose I should come with you if you were to go?"
"Oh, no. He made that quite clear. It's a hopeless country for an American woman."

"Well, that would complicate matters still further. I can't think why Alan should have suggested it. If you would rather not tell him you can't do it, I'll tell him for you!"

"It's lovely of you to offer," he answered. "But, my dear little girl, it would be absolutely fatal. If I have not literally betrayed a client's confidence, I have discussed part of his affairs with you. It would ruin me."

"What nonsense! Alan wouldn't mind, when it's only me."
Kelton was unexpectedly agitated.
"He may be a very old friend of yours, but I can't take liberties with him on that account," he stammered. "I don't say that he would take venal measures, but I would lose caste in his eyes—and you wouldn't have that, would you, dear-est?"

Shirley did not answer. She had divined enough of the negotiations to be quite sure that Roger had already lost caste with Alan.
Instantly she veered round in defense of her husband. Alan was much, much older, and he certainly had a bulging manner. He bullied you when he liked you, when he was only meaning to be pleasant.
"I'd forget all about it, if I were you, Roger. I should think Alan probably has by now." She rose from the table. "I'm going to see about that paneling this morning."

Little Hawks, University High Primed for Annual Cage Contest Tonight

Handy's Men Set to Stop Hawklet Star

Wellsmen Handicapped by Loss of Glick, Soucek, Fry

University high will invade the Iowa city high gymnasium at 7:30 tonight in one of the feature battles of the local cage season. Both teams are on edge for the important struggle and the long rivalry between the two schools will be renewed in what promises to be a hard fought contest.

Neither team has made a very impressive record thus far, but tonight's battle will find more than records at stake, for supporters of both teams are predicting victory for their respective schools.

Coach E. R. Handy gave his men a long skull practice yesterday afternoon and he has his team keyed for the crucial game, as a victory for the Blue and White will give them the confidence that they have lacked against previous opponents. The Handy men are in good condition for the Little Hawks. Coach Handy told his men that the rough Hand contest was no test of strength for neither team played consistent basketball.

The U. high defense is set on stopping Moffitt, Red and White scorers, who is expected to bear the brunt of the Iowa City attack. The Wellsmen will no doubt be handicapped by the loss of Glick, Soucek, and Fry, but their reserve forces are stronger than that of their rivals.

The Blue and White hoopers have muffed a large number of their free throws and Coach Handy urged his proteges to take more time on their gift shots. The U. high quintet has not lost a game on their home floor and neither team has won a game on a foreign court, but Coach Handy has keyed his men to a fighting pitch for tonight's battle that will make them a worthy foe for the Little Hawk aggregation.

The pole vault has drawn Canby, Albright, Larsen, Schmidt, Null, Stetzel, and Vance.

Simpson to Sprint for New York A. C.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (AP)—The New York Athletic club announced today that George Simpson, of Ohio State university, the only sprinter on record to run 100 yards in 9.25 seconds, will compete in the N. Y. A. C. games at Madison Square Garden, Feb. 17.

As opponents for Simpson in a special 60-yard sprint, the management hopes to bring together such speedsters as Jimmy Daley, Holy Cross, national and intercollegiate indoor sprint champion; Kries, Cleveland, A. C., Kent, Colgate; Boyle, Penn; Hussey, N. Y. A. C.; and Furth, New York university.

GRAPPLER FISCHER WINS

CHICAGO, Jan. 27 (AP)—Charles (Midget) Fischer, claimant of the world middleweight wrestling championship, tonight defeated Emil Barbola, of Milwaukee, in straight falls. The first fall came in 36 minutes, and Barbola conceded the second in 2:15.

PHIL SCOTT TO TRAIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (AP)—Phil Scott, British heavyweight who meets Jack Sharkey at Miami, Fla., Feb. 27, will leave for the southland tomorrow to start training. He will be accompanied by his English manager, Charlie Rose, and a trainer, Eddie Johnston, brother of Jimmy Johnston, his American manager.

BASEBALL'S PET BALLYHOO

These are the days when baseball stars put the salary slug on those poverty-haunted citizens known in sporting circles as magnates—i.e., team owners and club officials. The incomparable Babe Ruth—one of the greatest individual star attractions of all times—is being hawked out as a hold-out by the leather-lunged secretary of the New York Yankees, richest club in the game.

All other hold-out situations are mere slugs compared to the one and only Babe in his own Oliver Twist drama. "Lefty" O'Doul, Philly slugger, who waxed so mightily last season, and "Ves" Ferrell, 329 slugging sensation of the Cleveland Indians, at this writing are insisting on far more dough than has been offered, but their protests are of minor public import compared to what may prove to be Ruth's final thunder at the pay window.

Hugo Otopalik Paints Rosy Picture for Mat Art Future

AMES, Jan. 27 (AP)—Hugo Otopalik, coach of wrestling at Iowa State college, today predicted that wrestling in the next few years would rank on a par with other sports in high schools and colleges of the midwest. A pioneer in the wrestling coaching field, Otopalik painted a rosy picture of the future for the mat sport.

He feels, he said, that wrestling is more nearly the ideal sport for the mass of students than any of the other forms of athletics which now hold the center of the stage. It makes no difference what the size of the athlete, he pointed out, for the mat sport appeals to the youth of slight build as well as to the husky lad.

Growing Attendance

Otopalik sees in the constantly growing attendance at wrestling meets in the Big Six conference and throughout the midwest a rapidly increasing interest in the sport. He believes the teams turned out now are far superior to those of a few years ago, and adds that the number of schools sponsoring wrestling as a part of their intercollegiate or interscholastic athletic program is far greater than formerly.

More and More Popular

"Because of its nature and the opportunity wrestling affords for a man of any size or weight," he declared, "it has grown to be a more popular sport every year and is destined to become more so each season. It is one of the most interesting sports to watch and the clean game which has developed away from the professional field has brought it into great popularity in every athletic conference in the country, particularly in the midwest. High schools rapidly are adopting it as a competitive sport."

During the last year alone, Otopalik said, 15 Iowa high schools have inaugurated wrestling teams. Over in Nebraska, a dozen schools now are competing in the mat sport whereas a few years ago almost none were in existence. In Kansas, plans are being made to interest more and more schools in the annual high school wrestling tournament, while in each of Oklahoma, Indiana and Ohio, an increasing number of high schools are taking up the sport. State and divisional tournaments are becoming popular.

High Schools Take Hold

"Wrestling has taken hold in the schools and colleges as no other sport ever did," he asserted, "and the development of it as a sport has

Rifle Teams in Big Nine Exclude Iowa

Hawks Schedule Shoots With 3 Schools Out of Conference

Iowa's rifle team, holder of the national championship, will not shoot in the Big Ten league this year as it has in past years since rifle competition was started in middle western schools. The 1930-31 league schedule for the Hawkeyes, released yesterday by the National Rifle association, lists three schools out in the Western conference on Iowa's schedule. The are University of Southern California, University of Washington, and Texas Tech.

Last year Iowa shot with every member of the Big Ten which had a rifle team. This included all but Purdue and Chicago. These institutions have artillery units. The two years before Illinois was not included, facilities not having yet been provided there.

Divide into Leagues

Whether the schedule had anything to do with Iowa's recent difficulties with the Western conference is not known. The schedules for all rifle teams shooting under the supervision of the National Rifle association are made by the association and individual schools do not have a part in making them.

The plan consists of dividing the country into several leagues and allowing the teams to fire in those leagues as preliminary eliminations. Winners of the various leagues then shoot in shoulder-to-shoulder matches in regional shoots. Scores shot at these regional shoots determine the national champions.

The regional shoot for the Big Ten league was to have been held in Iowa this year, but the new developments may change this.

May Keep Trophy

Disposition of the Wiles trophy, now in possession of the Hawkeyes, also remains unsettled. Iowa has won the trophy three of the four years it has been in competition, and had assumed that it was permanent property of this institution. Minnesota won the trophy the first year it was offered, Iowa getting it the second year, and the last two. It was offered for the team winning the Big Ten league championship each year.

Last year the Hawkeye riflemen won the Big Ten championship, and then went to St. Louis to shoot in the regional meet with the winning team of the Big Six conference. Scores made at this meet were sent to the National Rifle association to be used in computing the national champions. These honors also went to the Iowa team.

QUAD LIGHTS

Quadrangle basketball artists will not indulge their flair for looping baskets until after the exams have been completed. There still remains one game in the second round to be played, that of the section D heavyweights and the heaviest from section C.

The game between these two sections will decide whether or not there will be a three way tie in the heavy-weight ranks. Sections A and B have won four games and lost two games each while the D's have won three and lost two, with one game yet to be played. Section C had the unlucky heavy section this year as their heaviest have lost all five of the games they have played thus far and had fair to lose the remaining game.

If the section C heavies win their last game and the three way tie comes to pass the deciding round will be played the week after exams. After the winner of the heavy-weight ranks has been decided the winning heaviest will meet the light champions, section C for the all-quad championship. The winner of that series will meet the winning fraternity team for the university title.

"POTS" CLARK SIGNS

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 27 (AP)—George "Pots" Clark, athletic director at Butler university, today signed a contract to continue his services in that capacity for three years. The salary which Clark will receive was not announced.

NEW YORK COMMISSION TO CONSIDER WALKER CASE AFTER SUSPENSION

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (AP)—The New York state athletic commission is scheduled to consider tomorrow the case of Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, with the chances great that the 160-pound king will make peace with the sons and daughters of his crown against Rene de Vos, Belgian challenger, in Madison Square Garden March 14.

Walker, suspended here three years ago for failure to defend his title in the specified time limit, aggravated his offenses by failing to appear before the commission when summoned. He has not fought in New York state since winning the middleweight crown from the late Tiger Flowers at Chicago in 1926. Walker's title was declared vacant last year by the national boxing association for inactivity, despite his defense of it against Ace Hudkins in Los Angeles last October.

One of the terms of reconciliation is that Walker shall meet de Vos here on a charity card. A recent ruling of the commission will permit Walker to box once over-weight, provided that he signs for a title match.

BASKETBALL RESULTS

Iowa Wesleyan 36; Parsons 20. Michigan 26; Minnesota 13. Iowa State Teachers 30; Upper Iowa 19.

Feb. 15 Set for Date of American Legion Fight Show

Feb. 15 was set at the next date for the next American Legion fight card by 30 members of the local Legion post at their monthly "chow" last night in the Legion building.

Roscoe Hall and Douglas Fairbanks will again serve as match-makers for the card which the local post plans to make the fastest presented this season. Bouts will be announced in the near future as arrangements are already being made with several fighters.

Illinois Commission Wages Legal Battle With Kearns, Walker

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 27 (AP)—The Illinois State Athletic commission will wage a legal battle to force Manager Jack Kearns and Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, to pay a $10,000 forfeit to the Shriners' hospital for crippled children at San Francisco.

Before agreeing to allow Walker to meet Tommy Loughran for the light heavyweight championship here last year, the Illinois commission forced Kearns to post a $10,000 forfeit with the California commission, guaranteeing that Walker would defend his own title at Los Angeles, preferably against Ace Hudkins. Walker failed to meet Hudkins within the time limit and the Illinois commission ordered the California body to pay the $10,000 to the Shriners' hospital. Manager Kearns stopped the order by gaining a temporary injunction.

First Assistant Attorney General William E. Trautman of Illinois is on his way to Sacramento to represent the state commission, seeking payment of the forfeit money.

PENN MEETS BADGER

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27 (AP)—The University of Pennsylvania varsity and junior varsity crews will meet the University of Wisconsin in a regatta on Lake Mendota, Madison, Wis., May 24, the council of athletics announced tonight. It will be the first time that a Red and Blue crew has gone that far west for competition.

Lenock and Ciek, the league leading team, kept up its consistent battling to take two out of three from the Russell Clothing outfit.

Gordon Upholds Dominance of Negro Broad Jumpers

By HAROLD SCUTTLE
When Edward Gordon, University of Iowa broad jumper, leaped to a first place at the National A.A.U. meet at Denver last July, he upheld the record of the dominance of that event at similar meets by representatives of the Negro race. Defeating Ed Hamer, formerly of Georgia Tech, Olympic champion and world's record holder, Gordon leaped 24 feet 4 1/4 inches to top first place.

The reign of Negro broad jumpers at National A.A.U. meets began with Sol Butler representing Dubuque university in 1920. He leaped 24 feet 8 inches, a record for the meet at the time. E. O. Gourdin of Harvard, former world record holder for the broad jump and the first man to exceed the 25 foot mark, won in 1921.

Hubbard Rules for 6 Years
Starting with the next year, DeHart Hubbard, Michigan's sensational sprinter and broad jumper, ruled the division for six consecutive years. The former world's record holder, he has an unofficial leap of 23 feet 2 1/4 inches to his credit, made in 1927. After a lapse of one year, broken by Ed Hamer's first place with a world's leap of 25 feet 11 1/8 inches in 1928, Gordon of Iowa won his first A.A.U. title last year of a possible string.

Freight Crew Blamed With Trolley Crash

Dim Headlights Fool Motorman; Sees His Error Too Late

(Special to The Daily Iowan) CEDAR RAPIDS, Jan. 27—Investigation into the crash between a passenger car and freight train on the Cedar Rapids and Iowa City railway Saturday night near Konismark, 16 miles south of here, technically placed blame on the crew of the freight train, according to B. F. Winslow, superintendent of the electric line.

Mr. Winslow explained the collision, in which 28 persons were badly shaken-up, in that the freight train dimmed its headlights as it approached the sidetrack and the motorman Clarence Grissold on the passenger car interpreted this as a sign that the freight was already on the siding. Hence he did not slacken speed.

He was practically onto the train when he saw the error and threw on brakes and the reverse but the passenger struck at a speed of approximately 30 miles an hour, according to those on the car. Mr. Winslow denied that block signals had failed to work. C. O. Rogers was engineer of the freight.

TWELVE INJURED

The accident occurred shortly after 9 p.m. and 12 slightly injured were taken to Cedar Rapids St. Luke's hospital. Mrs. Margaret Greer of Anamosa, who suffered a fractured nose, was most seriously injured. Eleanor Pownall of Cedar Rapids, sister of Prof. Fred Pownall of the University of Iowa, had leg bruises and scalded back from broken steam pipes, and Maurice Lawenson, A2 of Onawa, had three stitches taken in a gash on his forehead. These persons were detained at St. Luke's hospital Saturday night but Miss Pownall and Lawenson were dismissed Sunday. Six Iowa City residents and 12 students were included in the passengers on the car.

Herman Strub Dies Following Short Illness

Hold Funeral Services at St. Mary's Church Tomorrow

Herman A. Strub, 77 years old, pioneer merchant of Iowa City, founder and president of the Strub company, died at 5 a.m., yesterday as the result of a paralytic stroke. Although he has been ill for some time he remained active in the store until a few weeks before his death.

Funeral services will be held at the St. Mary's church at 9 a.m., tomorrow and interment will be at St. Joseph's cemetery. The remains are at the family home, 212 E. Market street, where they will be held until the time of the funeral.

Native of New York

Mr. Strub was born April 5, 1852, in New York city, and when he was three years old he came to Iowa City with his parents. He attended the schools here and was also a student of the normal school which was located in Iowa City at that time.

He first went to work in a small store owned by John Wilde on Daventport street. In 1871, Mr. Strub worked in the department store of J. D. Bowers, and in 1877 was a partner in the firm with A. W. Pratt and Walter Lee, and as manager of Mr. Bower's interest when he went to Kansas.

Mr. Strub bought Bower's interest in 1879, and the firm became known as Pratt, Lee, and Strub. With the retirement of Mr. Lee in 1884, Walter Pratt took over his father's share and the partnership was then Pratt and Strub. However, in 1898, when Mr. Strub bought out the entire stock, the firm began on the plan on which it stands at present.

AMES, Jan. 27 (AP)—Karl Hoffman of Ida Grove, Carl Holden of Williamsburg, Ray Redfern of Yarmouth, Eugene Holden of North English, and Gerald E. Pearson of Mitchellville were among the consistent winners today of early awards in the Iowa corn and small grain show being held here in connection with farm and home week.

Officials Bar Candidacy of Hoover Men

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Jan. 27 (AP)—With campaigns for June primaries in the offing, Florida voters were informed today by Attorney General Fred H. Davis that literal application of state election laws would bar from participation as candidates in the democratic party, all persons who voted for Hoover in the 128 general election.

The opinion was expressed in the attorney general's answer to a letter from a resident of Hastings, Fla. The same rule applies, said Mr. Davis, whether the candidates voted for Hoover and otherwise followed the regular list of democratic nominees. Many Floridians voted such a split ticket in November, 1928.

The law has no effect on voters, however, explained J. T. G. Crawford, national democratic committee man for Florida. Any democrat who felt he could not support Al Smith in the general election may come back and vote the democratic ticket at any time, he said.

The attorney general pointed out that a candidate for office on the ticket of any party must take an oath that he or she did not vote for the nominee of any other party, national, state, or county, at the last general election. This means, said the attorney general, that candidates for nomination in the June primary will have to sign a sworn statement that they did not vote for nominees of other parties.

Chicago Seeks Escape From Money Muddle

Board Adopts Measure to Make Survey of Loop District

CHICAGO, Jan. 27 (AP)—Ideas for saving Chicago's and Cook county's exchequers from utter despair were fruitless today while public officials and civic leaders continued their search for a way out of the municipal money muddle.

Silas Strawn, chairman of the "citizens' rescue committee," was in Washington on other business and will return Wednesday the civic situation is expected to remain more or less status quo which finds both city and council virtually "broke."

Meantime a resolution was adopted by the board of review holding that the assessment of property in Chicago's downtown district had not been made on the proper basis. The board has decided therefore, it announced, to make a survey of valuations for assessment purposes.

City and county officials hesitated to comment until they had learned more of the plan, but all predicted that the action, if held valid, would add indefinitely to the 20-month delay in collecting taxes.

More opposition to Strawn's plan for raising $20,000,000 provided that the public officials allow Strawn's committee to supervise its expenditure was expressed today by H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the school board. Caldwell flayed Strawn's committee and the board of assessors for "under evaluation of loop property" and said he would not consent to any measure "which will sacrifice the well being of the schools for a month's salary for teachers or other employees."

Mayor Thompson, asked if he would cooperate with the Strawn committee, said he had not been asked to. He said if the city was asked to take part in the plan, the proper procedure would have to be worked out. He said the city was due some credit for administering its affairs for the last two years without taxes while the revenues were tied up by the unfinished reassessment.

Meanwhile, the 46,000 city, county, and school employees carry on without any pay since Jan. 1, in some instances not since Dec. 15, and wonder when the next check will arrive.
