Attendance at Water Works Meet Doubles

Dr. Milford E. Barnes Tells of Far East Water Supply

The second day of the Iowa water works convention came to a close last evening with a dinner at Iowa Union. The attendance was double that of the first day, having increased to more than 75.

Bruce E. Mahan, director of the extension division, acted as toast master. A welcome was extended to the members of the conference by Dean C. C. Williams of the college of engineering, after which Dr. Milford E. Barnes, head of the department of hygiene and preventive medicine, spoke on the water supply problem of the Far East. Dr. Barnes spent some time in Siam before coming to the university and spoke from experience, using pictures to illustrate his talk.

The water works superintendent's responsibility in the matter of fire protection was discussed by Harry J. Corcoran, chief engineer of the Iowa insurance service bureau in Des Moines. Max Levine, professor of sanitary bacteriology, Iowa State college, reading a paper on the control of algae, and F. A. Nagler, professor of hydraulic engineering, spoke on the methods of measuring water at the waterworks plant. George J. Keller, general manager of the Iowa city water works corporation, conducted a tour through the local plant.

Pre-Vacation Festivity Ends in Six Parties

Feature Formal Dinner Dances, Sport, Radio, Rushing Parties

With the anticipation of Easter vacation predominating among students this week-end, five societies and fraternities will entertain at parties this evening and tomorrow night before starting on the last week preceding vacation. Formal dinner dances will be given by two of the groups, and a sport, radio and rushing party will be featured.

Streamers, balloons, and tennis decorations will be used at the Alpha Xi Delta chapter house which will be turned into a race track for their sports party to be held Saturday night. A huge horseshoe will form the background for the grand stand orchestra. Chet Ogden's programs will be in the form of betting lists.

A prize will be given during the evening for the fastest runner. Ada E. Culver, Fred J. Laska, Prof. and Mrs. O. K. Patton, and Prof. and Mrs. George D. Haskell acting as judges.

Radio Party

Shirley Jean Brooks, A2 of Belmont, Joanne Coppage, A3 of Stanton, Darlene Grant, A3 of Orient, Frances Kaufman, A3 of Iowa City, planned the party.

An informal radio party will be held at the Phi Beta Pi chapter house tonight. Chaperons will be Dr. and Mrs. A. S. Fout, Dr. and Mrs. Chester J. Miller, and Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Brown.

Kappa Kappa Gamma will entertain at a spring rushing party Saturday evening, beginning with a dinner at Red Ball Inn and climaxing with a dancing party at the chapter house which will be decorated with balloons for the occasion. Programs will be of colored parchment. Canvas serendipities will furnish the music.

The committee planning the party will consist of Dorothy Martin, A3 of LeMars, Mae Gibson, A4 of Cedar Rapids, and Eleanor Hoffman, A4 of Okaloosa. Chaperons are Mrs. J. J. Large, Prof. and Mrs. Clyde W. Hart, and Mrs. and Mrs. Don Animent.

Thetas Give Formal

The formal dinner dance at which Kappa Alpha Theta will entertain tomorrow evening will assume the form of a spring garden party. Pastel shades will be used in carrying out the decorations, and sweet peas will be the predominant spring flowers in the table appointments. The programs will depict a couple before an arbor and they are of parchment painted with pastel colors.

Shim Barber's orchestra will furnish the music. Chaperons will be Dr. and Mrs. N. F. Miller, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Moore, and Grace B. Paick. The committee in charge of the party includes Marion Pascual, A3 of Bedford, Rebecca Scholtes, A1 of Greenfield, Frieda Rankin, A2 of Keokuk and Virginia Droz, A1 of Washington. Delta Chi fraternity will give a formal dinner dance tomorrow. The dinner will be served in the Legion dining room and the dance will be held in the chapter house. Floral decorations featuring spring flowers will be used extensively. Music will be furnished by Bernie Schultz's orchestra. The programs, in black and white, portray a couple in formal attire standing before the entrance of a house resembling the Delta Chi chapter house.

Prof. and Mrs. C. W. Thompson, and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Shellady will serve as chaperons.

Delta Upsilon will entertain at an informal radio party at the chapter house Friday night, and at a formal dinner dance Saturday night at Red Ball Inn.

Decorations for the latter affair will consist of an archway leading to the ball room covered with green vines and flowers. Surrounding the dance floor will be trellises covered with verdure. Ferns and palms will carry out the spring theme. Streamers of green garlands will be hung across the ceiling.

Bernie Lowe and his Hotel Ft. Des Moines orchestra will furnish music for the dance.

Prof. and Mrs. F. H. Potter and Prof. and Mrs. Charles W. Gray will chaperon the Saturday affair. Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Berne will be chaperons at the radio party.

Will Stevens Uses Nature for Subjects

Paintings, Pastels of Outdoor Painter on Exhibit at Union

The sheltered bits of woodland, the dense foliage in the heart of a forest, the wide sweep of water—these are the subjects of the paintings by Will Henry Stevens, landscape painter, now being exhibited at Iowa Union by the Arts association of Iowa City. Eighteen oil paintings and 27 pastel sketches are included in the showing.

Mr. Stevens is a member of the art faculty of Tulane university, New Orleans, and has served as decorator at the Rookwood Pottery. He is director of the Natchitoches Art colony in Louisiana, and also an instructor at the Texas Artist's camp at San Angelo, Texas. One of his paintings won the Foulke prize in 1914 and other examples of his work are hung in galleries at Des Moines, the University of Oklahoma, and Shreveport, La.

Richness of coloring and careful delineation of light and shadow is stressed in his pastel sketches, none of which are given titles. A spry little sketch, full of lightness and delicacy, is the gray-framed woodland scene showing a tiny winding stream as seen from a wooded knoll on whose freshly budding foliage the sun makes variable patches of yellow and green. That he is primarily an outdoor painter is evidenced by the pictures he is showing here.

Among the oils, "Clearing at Morning" is frank evidence of the artist's interest in atmosphere with its myriad roseate dabs of light made by the rays of early morning sun in a densely wooded forest.

Mr. Stevens' reaction to the spiritual significance of nature is shown in the oil painting "The House with a View," a sketch of an utterly isolated hut huddled at the foot of the blue-grey bulk of towering mountains.

The other oil paintings on view are "The Glow," "Woodland," "Wind Ridden," "Sunlight in the Cypress," "A Solitude," "Cypress in Autumn," "Monday," "Boat and Bayou," "Wind in the Willows," "House Boat," "Greening Willows," "Street in 'Furroll,'" "Swamp Maple," "River Bank," "Mountain Pool," and "Misty Woods."

Mrs. H. F. Wickham is chairman of the exhibitions committee of the Arts association. The showing will be open until May 1.

Nurses Hold First District Dinner Meet

McGurk Leads Toasts; Program Features Songs, Play

Seventy-five members of the fifth district of the Iowa State association of Registered Nurses were present at the initial dinner meeting at Red Ball Inn last night.

The tables were decorated with bowls of spring flowers and tapers. Pastel Easter eggs, embedded in nests of smilax, formed the centerpiece. The guests found their partners by matching ornamented eggs.

Community singing, led by Toineke Balkema, U of Orange City, preceded the dinner and interspersed the toast program, which was presided over by Blanche McGurk of the university hospital. Grace Van Eevera of Davenport, president of the Iowa association, extended greetings from the state council. The state president-elect, Evelyn Crane of Cedar Rapids, spoke of the plans and suggestions for the coming year. Cooperation of the fifth district was assured by the new president by Ella De Camp of Cedar Rapids, district president.

"The Future of Nursing" was the subject of a playlet presented. The closing number featured a radio novelty boosting the national conven-

"Horse Play" Straw Votes

THAT the recent straw votes on prohibition conducted by a number of universities and the Literary Digest prove practically nothing may be seen from the recent statements made by two heads of mid-west universities.

Pres. David Kinley of the University of Illinois characterizes the poll as "horse play" and the statement that a majority of men at school drank as "unqualifiedly false."

"People who think college students vote seriously on a question of this kind do not know college students," Dr. Kinley said. "We have had but one discipline case for liquor drinking in a year and no other case within the past two years. It is ridiculous to suppose that general drunkenness such as alleged would escape the notice of university officers."

At the University of Michigan, Pres. Alexander G. Ruthven does not take much stock in the recent vote either. Like Dr. Kinley he does not believe that students vote seriously on this matter and that it is a thing which only the few wets take to heart. At Michigan conditions are better since prohibition than they were before, says Dr. Ruthven.

Each of these statements bear out the fact that the straw votes are merely good promotion stunts which arouse only the interest of the hopeful wet. They do not prove that prohibition is a failure nor do they seek to get a representative vote on such a controversial issue as prohibition. The dries are willing to let things ride until the time comes for them to become restless and then a different result on such polls will be noted. Instead of the campus going wet it will go dry and the same is true throughout the United States.

Too Much Education?

A MILWAUKEE teacher, addressing a meeting of the Milwaukee Women's City club, recently made the declaration that American colleges are handing out too many degrees. Some 250,000 young people will be graduated from colleges and universities this year, she complained, and the college graduate is becoming a drug on the market. She added the statement that the day may soon come when a bachelor of arts degree will not be worth a snap of the fingers.

This complaint is not new. Critics along the same line have been heard rather often in the last few years. But it is worth looking at only for the reason that it represents so completely an erroneous conception of what a college education ought to be.

A college, after all, is not primarily a place where a young man can be taught how to get ahead in life. Except for the technical and professional schools, it is not greatly concerned with the earning power of the people it sends out into the world.

It is the process of living, rather than the process of earning a living, with which college deals. A graduate may become a millionaire, or he may never in his life rise above a salary of $50 a week; either way, the college has done its job if the graduate's life is richer, fuller and freer because of his college training.

For if there is one thing on earth which any college worth its salt does teach, it is that success in life does not at all depend on the amount of money one is able to make. If that concept is wrong, then Harry Sinclair, Babe Ruth, and Al Capone are more illustrious citizens than such a scientist as R. A. Millikan.

All of this is rather elementary, of course, but it is worth repeating, since the complaint of this Milwaukee teacher expresses a rather common misconception.

It is undoubtedly true that a great many young people spend four years at college without really absorbing the lesson that the college is supposed to impart. To them, a college degree is valuable only as an open sesame to some good job, and if it fails to function in that way, they have wasted their time. But to the young man or woman who has fully experienced the broadening influence that a college education should give, a criticism like that one quoted is the last word in pointlessness.

Determination

YOU'VE heard the story about the super-salesman who could sell anything to anybody and who, when disgusted with life, tried to jump into the river. He was stopped by a policeman who sought to convince him of the disastrous folly. Both went for a walk around the block to talk things over and then the two came back and jumped off the bridge together.

Then you've certainly read of the effective suicide that a newspaper man committed not so long ago. Feeling that he no longer could battle life's problems, he drank poison, slashed his wrists with a razor, stabbed himself in the heart with an ice pick, and then to make certain of death, jumped off from the twentieth story of a building.

But you haven't heard of the man who for 15 years had been unable to walk. He traveled about by means of a wheel chair. Recently he wheeled himself 18 miles to an ocean pier at Long Beach and dropped determinedly into the brine . . . a suicide.

Yet, if you think but for a moment of the determination to die as exhibited by these men, you will come to the conclusion that life's problems would offer feeble resistance if those men put that determination in the right direction.

U. S. Oil Production

THE statistical report recently issued by the department of commerce shows that 1,005,598,000 barrels of crude petroleum were transported from producing oil companies in the United States during 1929. It is believed that actual production may bring the total to 1,006,000,000 barrels, an increase of 104,500,000 barrels, or 12 per cent, over the 1928 output.

The world's production of crude petroleum last year amounted to 1,488,604,000 barrels, of which the United States produced 67.6 per cent.

The responsible producers of crude petroleum of the nation have been working towards a program that would permit of the greatest efficiency in production as a rational conservation measure. Irresponsible producers who enter a field with the object of producing and selling as much oil as possible in a short period of time, irrespective of supply and demand or the effect on the market of the U. S. natural resources, have hindered this movement to the detriment of the nation.

The public is slowly coming to understand that the oil industry is voluntarily working to protect a great natural resource. This means that the industry has accepted a tremendous obligation in seeing that public confidence in the sincerity of its objective is not shaken.

Real Leadership Needed

UNITED action by municipal and civic bodies, in cooperation with state and national authorities, provides the logical approach to a solution of the growing problem of traffic congestion, resulting in a vast annual toll of deaths and injuries, according to a committee of the national conference on street and highway safety.

The automobile accident problem, in the opinion of Lewis A. DeBois of the national bureau of casualty and surety underwriters, has reached a stage where it cannot and will not solve itself. "There must be aggressive leadership among citizens and civic organizations, adequately supporting and co-operating with public and police authorities, and campaigning for careful driving, reduction of accidents, protection of children, and aged persons, and cutting down the volume of traffic law violation," he says.

Millions of motorists break traffic laws which are difficult to enforce because they are out of date. This causes disregard of more important traffic regulations. As a result, thousands upon thousands of people die annually in accidents that are largely preventable.

Modernized traffic laws for both pedestrians and automobiles, sanely and fairly enforced, seems to be the only alternative.

Remember the Giver

IT IS such a simple thing to walk into an instructor's office and with a little friendly chatter ask him to give a recommendation to accompany applications for positions. But what about this time next year?

Suppose the position accepted doesn't prove satisfactory and we shirk or loaf on the job. Yes, we are doing ourselves the greatest injury, but back of us has come the word of one who had faith enough in our ability to recommend our work. The next time his word will not carry so much weight for we have cheated on it. The next time he will not place so much faith in what has seemed to be promising ability.

Of course, all cases are not like this and there are those students who achieve far greater success than the instructor predicted; their work exceeds his recommendations. But in these weeks of seeking positions and requesting recommendations why not remember you are accepting something to live up to? The recommendation sets a standard or goal for your work. No one wants to recommend a quitter and in so doing have his judgment of ability lose its value; so add to the word of thanks for a recommendation, the determination not to cheat on the name of the one who gives it.

A New National Park?

IF THE present plans succeed there is a possibility of having a new national park added to the many beautiful and numerous ones around the Rocky mountains.

John D. Rockerfeller, Jr., has recently purchased with the aid of others 35,000 acres in Jackson Hole county of Wyoming. The plans are that this land will be turned over to the government for a national park. It would adjoin the Grand Teton National park, south of Yellowstone.

This plan is a splendid one and should prove to be a very successful enterprise. It would aim to preserve some of the old west in its natural, picturesque, rugged beauty.

The Big H

Little SINS

by KATHARINE BRUSH

SYNOPSIS
Gay Leonard, young, beautiful, spoiled daughter of fortune, is loved by Alan Pomeroy, an athletic, worthwhile, young man. She is fascinated by Jerry Davis of questionable reputation, and has been forbidden by her family to see him. Jerry meets Dolly Quinn, working in a shop by day and a cabaret by night to earn enough money for art lessons. He becomes interested in her.

Gay calls him up and tells her mother she is going to meet Alan. Mrs. Leonard learns that Gay has gone to Jerry's rooms and phones her husband. Gay finds another girl and a man with Jerry and the man tells Jerry's meeting with Dolly, rousing Gay's jealousy.

She rallies Jerry and he admits that he has never even tried to kiss Dolly. Gay's father arrives, tells Jerry what he thinks of him, and takes Gay away. The family takes her to Palm Beach.

Meanwhile, Dolly, with Jerry's aid, has gotten a job as theater usher. She enjoys it and starts to save $200, refusing to take a penny from Jerry. She meets Nick Standish, a reporter from the Star, and they become real pals. Jerry takes Dolly out a great deal, asks her in a panic if she is going to marry Nick. She reassures him and tells him the great news that she has been chosen as one of the five girls to enter a beauty contest in Atlantic City. He begs her to give up the idea; Gay comes back and accepts an invitation for a lively house party near Atlantic City.

Mrs. Matheus, her hostess, admits that she would like to see Gay marry Alan. Now go on with the story:
Alan Pomeroy had a whole heart to give to Gay. No fragments worth mentioning had been chipped off and lost to the lesser loves of the average gentleman's teens and early twenties. In college they had called him a "woman-hater." The epithet was figuratively but not literally applicable. Alan never hated women; he simply preferred men, just as he preferred outdoors to indoors, pipes to cigarettes, old clothes to new. He was essentially a man's man, until he met Gay. After that he was Gay's man, if she wanted him.
He had loved her rather terribly and painfully for two years; but it seemed to him now that until a week ago when she returned from her long stay in Europe, he had not known at all what love was. In a week the most astounding change had taken place; in an instant, really, for his memory dated it as simultaneous with his new first sight of her.
He had met her at the boat. He had stood on the pier, jostled by officials and photographers and reporters and families and other stupid meaningless people. And she had come smiling down the gangplank to him. Like a light. Like a flower. Like the essence of a dream. Like spring.
He had chortled, holding her hands. "Gee, Gay! Gee, I'm glad to see you!" He realized that now, angrily, he would have spoken with the tongues of angels, had found no words but those trite words, in which the shopkeeper beside him was greeting his beefy red buyer.
Later he had said, "I'd forgotten." And stopped.
"Hm?" Her silver voice.

was neither jealous of it nor afraid of it.
Jane was an exception because she was shrewd. She had long ago decided that to be Gay's intimate was safer than to be Gay's foe. She was nearly as pretty as Gay and equally popular, and she played in the same playground; hence it had had to be either one thing or the other.
They kept each other's secrets and eschewed each other's suitors and got along very nicely. There had been, to be sure, a few regrettable episodes notably the episode of the blond young Englishman, discovered by Jane only to discover Gay (after which they "didn't speak" for months). But usually their relation were of the most amicable; and they missed each other badly when they were not. Unbelievable though it may seem, exceedingly gorgeous young ladies are often lonesome, especially prior to five in the afternoon.

Jane was very dark, with long hair which she bound in bands around her sleek small head, and eyes of jet set rather wide apart. She used no rouge, but wore down heavily with a lipstick, so that her mouth resembled a poppy petal in snow. Vivaciously from one of her credo. She held that a girl was a kind of glorified clown in the circus of the universe, whose mission was to entertain. Accordingly, she entertained; and only Gay and a few others were aware that this exuberance of spirits was not a part of Jane, but a thing she flung on and wore like a child's toy drum.

She was utterly without it now. She achieved her evening toilet in gestures incomparably limp and lackadaisical, appearing throughout the process to be on the verge of a complete collapse. Once, semi-clothed, she flung herself flat on the day bed and lay there, her hands hanging like dead hands over the sides. "Nothing," she said in answer to Gay's solicitous inquiry. "Just recharging batteries, that's all."

The room was balmy with the scent of sachet and of perfume and of the corsage bouquet, gift of Windy Grant to Jane, waiting in a box on one of the window sills. Lacy things and chiffon things—all the gossamer armor of these warriors of the heart—lay strewn around. The dinner gown straight from the Rue dela Faix with which Gay would shortly adorn herself spilled a green-and-silver water over the foot of a bed. And Gay in a skimpy silver slip sat on the bed's edge, pulling stockings like breaths of mist well over her knees and securing them with wreaths of satin rosebuds.
"You'd better get moving," she advised. "I hear people starting down already."
"That isn't people," Jane responded drowsily. "That's Helen Havermeier, who's heard that the early bird catches the worm."
"Worms are men."
"Men," corrected Jane, "are worms."
She rose a moment later and, sighing, stumbled over to the dressing table. She began to brush her hair in long clinging strokes. Gay thought, watching her, "I believe I'll let mine grow this fall." This was the unflattering reaction of all bobbed heads to a display of Jane's abundant tresses.
"Tell me some more," directed Jane.
"I've told you everything I can think of."
"The whole story? What about the heart interest?"

Iowa Squad of Seventeen Players to Start Invasion of Southwest Today

Missouri to Meet Iowa in First Tilt

Vogel Leads Hawkeyes Against Tigers Tomorrow

Marking the first test of the 1930 edition of Coach Otto H. Vogel's University of Iowa baseball team, the Hawkeyes will face the University of Missouri tomorrow afternoon. Seventeen members of the Hawkeye baseball squad will entrain this afternoon at 4 o'clock to open the sixth annual southern training jaunt.

The Iowa squad comprised of the following men will make the trip, including Harold Rath, Joe Mowry, and Mort Koser, outfielders; Carl Nelson, Reg Hildreth, Jimmy Kenny, Capt. Charles Stebbins, and Lawrence Redquist, infielders; Elmo Nelson and Marlon Chance, catchers. Seven pitchers make up the Iowa mound staff, including John Ingraham, Al Ziffren, Oakley Carlson, John Carlson, Ed Groeper, Harmon Mitchell, and Nate Seidin.

Lead by Coach Vogel, the Iowa squad will be attended by Dr. L. P. Ristine, medical supervisor, and Charles Gallher, business manager of athletics. Edward H. Lauer, director of athletics, has been forced to change his plan to accompany the Hawkeye baseball team, due to the pressure of business.

Final Drill Today
Just before the Hawkeyes entrain for the southwest this afternoon, Coach Vogel will send his men through the final drill on the Iowa diamond. The plan for a practice session starting at 2 o'clock this afternoon will taper off the preliminary work of the Old Gold baseball team and will end shortly after 3 o'clock.

The probable starting lineup against the Missouri Tigers tomorrow should be Rath, left field; Kenry, second base; E. Nelson, catcher; Mowry, centerfield; Stebbins, first base; C. Nelson, third base; Koser, right field; Hildreth, short stop, and Ziffren, pitching. Only Rath, Mowry, Carl Nelson, and Captain Stebbins are letter men of a year ago.

Recruits Fill Places
The Iowa team will be made up largely of recruits in the initial test against the Tigers. The trip will find the Hawkeyes playing eight games. After playing Missouri at Columbia tomorrow afternoon, the Iowans will make their headquarters in Texas for a week, being booked against the Texas Aggies Monday and Tuesday, going from there to Austin to meet the University of Texas Wednesday and Thursday, then to Ennis, to face the Southern Pacific shop team Friday, and the M.K. and T. shop team at Denton Saturday.

The final game of the jaunt is with Concordia Seminary at St. Louis, Mo., Monday, April 21. The Hawkeyes will open their home schedule on April 26 against the Iowa State Teachers.

An Iowa squad never has had an unsuccessful spring training trip. In the five previous years, the Hawkeyes have won 65 per cent of their games, the count standing at 19 victories, 10 defeats, and one tie. Old Gold teams have played in Mississippi, Louisiana, Missouri, Kansas, and Texas. Coach Vogel introduced the spring jaunt to Iowa baseball six years ago, when he joined the Iowa coaching staff.

Indians Vary With Geographic Location, Alexander Declares

"The Indians of the great north-west, of the forest regions, of the great plains, and of the prairie region are as different as the various European civilizations," stated Prof. Hartley B. Alexander at a university lecture in the chemistry auditorium last night.

To distinguish the four groups, the speaker commented on the homes, dress, and personal appearance of various tribes. These differences resulted from climatic and land conditions acting through 12,000 years. Professor Alexander believes that similar physical conditions will result in varied civilization among American people of today.

SPORT BUGHOUSE FABLES

Once upon a time, and it was not so long ago, a real Sport Bug paid $10, or maybe $15, to see Phil Scott win on a foul from Otto von Porat in the second round at Madison Square Garden. Hardly warmed up, the tall Norwegian let go a wild punch that might have felled a fly off Phil's hip, had one been resting there. Scott sank with the anguish of the ages, crossing his eyes, while pallid pain. That low blow seemed light, so Referee Jack Dempsey sought to persuade Phil to continue—but why prolong the agony? The Sport Bug was satisfied when going home, because he had been privileged to witness one of modern boxing's most celebrated scenes: The swooning Swan of Swat doing his not-so-stupid stuff.

Scott's Van Porat exit was so heart-stirring that the Sport Bug then went all the way to Miami and paid a quarter of a yard ($25) to see Phil pull the same thing with Jack Sharkey in a hip-bruising role. The dear-ol' bug got his money's worth—when with the English camp, enacting his famous foul scene, the United States heavy king emitting tears, and "Lime-light Lou" Magnolia glorifying his favorite role of super referee.

But the Sport Bug has still more fight thrills to enjoy during the 1929-30 fight season. He had been charmed by "The Dying Gladiator"

Burlington Retains Wingfield as Pilot

KEOKUK, April 10 (AP)—Suspension of Henry Wingfield, manager of the Keokuk baseball team, will not cause his removal, directors of the club said today.

Wingfield, who was given permission to work out with the players this spring, will return as manager July 15 when his suspension ends. Meanwhile a temporary pilot will be employed.

Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis imposed a 90-day penalty on Wingfield on a charge of attempting to assault an umpire last season. He served some of the suspension last fall, and the remainder will start with opening of the Western association schedule April 25.

Strong Winds Hamper Hawkeye Grid Session

A wind that amounted to almost a hurricane interfered with the spring football practice on Finkbine field yesterday afternoon.

Only 16 men reported for drill, and as a result Coach Burton A. Ingwersen had to be contented with a dummy scrimmage.

Meltzer worked at center, Cochran, Akins, Tompkins, Boyd, and Everest alternated at guards, Samuelson, Stutzman, and Dellaaveda worked at the tackles, and Childs and Wilson were at the ends. Warrington, Slavik, Kriz, McQuern, and Tousey took turns in the backfield. These men practiced the timing of cut-back, reverse, and fake plays.

Big League Teams Dip Into Trades

Cards Send Roettger to Giants; Receive Two Players

By BRIAN HELL (Associated Press Sports Writer)
NEW YORK, April 10 (AP)—Bartering in the baseball marts of the National League has gained momentum as the opening of the season approaches. Today the New York Giants gave an infielder and outfielder, Eddie Farrell and George Fisher, to the St. Louis Cardinals for the sensational announcement that Burleigh Grimes, one of the league's star pitchers, had been transformed from a Pirate to a Brave of Boston.

The exchange of talent between St. Louis and New York will be regarded as one of the ideal trades that "will help both clubs." Manager McGraw is understood to have been on a search for weeks for an outfielder who hits right-handed while the Cardinals have been woefully short of reserve infield material. Roettger hits right-handed and Farrell is a capable infielder for utility purposes.

Fisher may be headed for the minors—possibly Rochester—for the Cardinals do not need outfielders.

Roettger was a fractious sensation in St. Louis in 1928 until he suffered a broken leg July 4. He had not fully recovered last year, but reports from the south this spring had him in shape. Farrell, former captain of the University of Pennsylvania team, joined the Giants after leaving college, was traded to the Braves last year, and last season came back to his first baseball love in another trade.

The end may not be in sight in the trading. Suggestions from players—not officers of the Braves—have been that Grimes may not pitch for the Bostoners after all, a belief existing that another trade may be in the making.

If Grimes is to be used in another deal, Cincinnati may be his eventual landing place. The Reds need pitchers and have plenty of infielders. Boston has an outfielder playing third base. The Hawkeye brigade has three basemen.

Pittsburgh, in getting Percy Jones, has helped remedy a weakness in left-hand pitching to offset partly the loss of a righthanded ace, Jones won seven games and lost 15 games for the Braves last year.

MISS HALSEY VISITS FRIEND

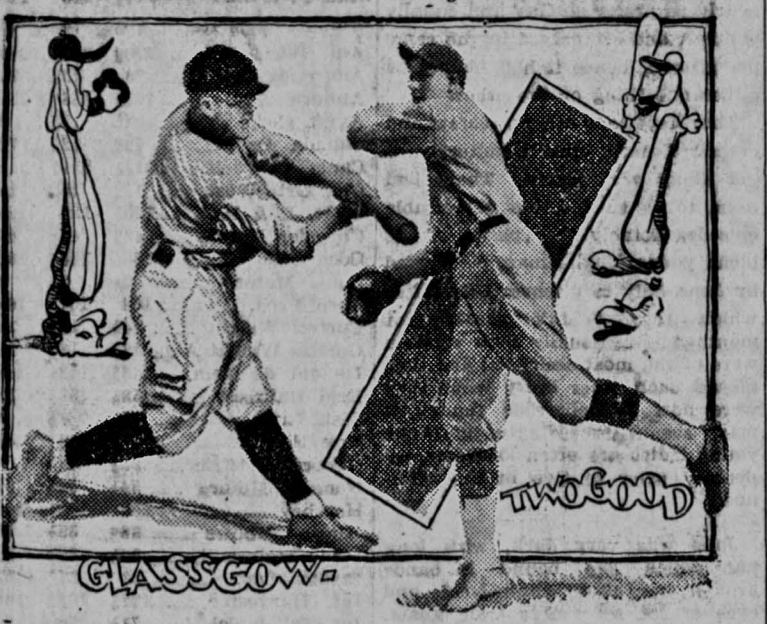

Elizabeth Halsey, head of the department of physical education for women, who has been on leave at the University of Michigan, will come Saturday afternoon to spend her spring vacation here. She will be the guest of Prof. Frances Zull, head of the home economics department. Miss Halsey will be accompanied by Laurie Campbell who has charge of the teachers' training work in physical training for women at the University of Michigan.

FOUR SAVED

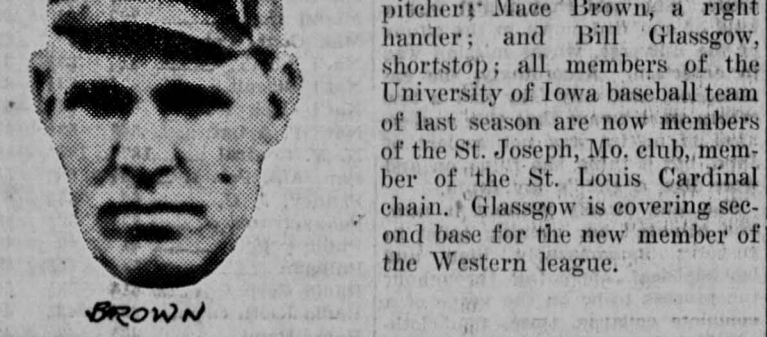

CLARDINDA, (AP)—Four persons were saved from burning to death beneath their overturned automobile by passengers on a Clarinda-Omaha bus. J. M. Cochran of Council Bluffs, Mrs. Fannie Johnson, his sister, and Mrs. A. C. Ettersen and her 2-year-old son were taken to a Shenandoah hospital.

CEDAR RAPIDS, (AP)—The Iowa Railway Light company plans for erection of an eight story building to cost $300,000. It will be completed by autumn.

HAWKEYES HELP ST. JOSEPH CLUB

Forrest Twogood, left handed pitcher; Mace Brown, a right hander; and Bill Glasgow, shortstop; all members of the University of Iowa baseball team of last season are now members of the St. Joseph, Mo. club, member of the St. Louis Cardinal chain. Glasgow is covering second base for the new member of the Western league.

BROWN

QUAD LIGHTS

Quad athletics face a busy week-end with a swim meet this afternoon at 4 o'clock, and the start of the wrestling meet in sight.

The tank meet has attracted a large number of entrants, and some very close races are expected. Men winning first or second place will receive medals.

Each section will send out its best array of performers in an effort to cop the quad swim title which is now held by section A. Section A, last year's pace setter in winning events, has only the cross-country run to its credit this year, and will fight desperately to retain the water crown.

Other sections having seen the A supremacy fade, will fight all the harder to gather in these laurels.

Events in the swimming meet will be 110-yard free style, 220, 60-yard back stroke, 60-yard breast stroke, 160-yard relay, and 120-yard medley race.

When the swim meet is out of the way, the Quad grapplers will strut their stuff.

A large number of men have entered the meet.

Section captains have been busy lining up their men, and each section is on its toes, ready to make the men from the opposing section bite the proverbial dust.

Men winning first place will receive gold medals and those winning second place silver medals.

On the heels of the wrestling tournament will come the annual baseball classic. Each section will be represented by one team. Already ready the "Babe Ruths," "Ty Cobbs," and "Walter Johnsons" of the quad have signified their intentions to play.

Last year there was no time left to have the baseball tournament, so there will not be a defending champion, but the four sections are all eyeing the baseball cup with hopeful eyes.

Woman Fractures Wrist in Accident

Mrs. F. L. Lewis, 630 Melrose avenue, suffered a fractured left wrist when the auto in which she was riding in Cedar Rapids Wednesday night was struck by one driven by Leonard Altmeier of that city.

Events in the swimming meet will be 110-yard free style, 220, 60-yard back stroke, 60-yard breast stroke, 160-yard relay, and 120-yard medley race.

Six Homers Aid White Sox in Win Over Giants, 14-8

FT. WAYNE, Ind., April 10 (AP)—Six home runs were made by the Chicago White Sox today in defeating the New York Giants 14 to 8. The Sox got 16 hits off Hub Pruett, Ray Lucas and Ralph Judd. Willie Kamm, Carl Reynolds, Dave Harris, Bud Clancy, Chick Atney and Smead Jolley contributed the circuit drives.

Frank Henry held the Giants in check until the eighth, when a five-run rally drove him from the mound and Hal McKain took up the work. The Giants made all of their 12 hits off Henry, one of which was a home run by Bill Terry.

Scouts to Swim in City Meet Saturday

An Iowa City Boy Scout swimming meet will be held at the field house tank Saturday at 10:30 a.m., according to Paul McGuire, scout executive.

The scouts will be divided into three classes according to their ability to swim, the waters, splashers, and swimmers. Some of the events will be the back stroke, breast stroke, and free style, and diving.

Prizes will be awarded the winners. The judges will be Arthur Peterson and Reynold Jurgensen, life guards. Several of the scout leaders will assist in the contest.

Drop Washington Contract for Day

George Washington was removed from the eye football schedule to make room for a test to be played October 18, with the first Western engagement to be played by Director E. H. Kellogg, Boston A. Kellogg, Boston rector.

Washington D. C. was willing to cancel the turn for a home-and-away with the Hawkeyes on here in 1931 and a return Washington in 1932.

This shift leaves game card, containing contests for the home team to Purdue, 1929; Johns Hopkins, 1929; November 15 and November 22, both games to be played at Washington.

The Boilermaker team in Iowa City next year (Iowa City A. and M. college being carried over previous Saturdays).

Track Introduced at Iowa by Slattery Boys in 1889

BY WILLIAM BARON In the secluded corner of a field house trophy case, dusty, yellowed with age, lies a small pamphlet. On its faded cardboard cover are the words "First Annual Field Day, Iowa Interscholastic Athletic Association."

Track Introduced at Iowa by Slattery Boys in 1889

As the zero hour approached, there was great excitement in Iowa City. Business men donated money for the purchase of medals and a silk umbrella was selected as the champion's prize. Elizabeth Schaeffer, the popular daughter of the university's president, was appointed to crown the victors with their laurels.

Holman's Restaurant Goes Into Hands of Creditors

Depression After Fire Chief Cause

Holman's restaurant 124 E. Washington street was put into the hands of creditors yesterday, to be temporarily managed by Lou Kaufmann, 230 E. College street acting for all persons concerned.

Failure to meet obligations was ascribed by creditors yesterday as due entirely to unavoidable business depression following in the wake of the $12,000 fire which gutted the Holman establishment Sept. 15, causing the firm to close for a period of four months.

The liabilities were estimated by George Falk, president of the Johnson county bank as being in the neighborhood of $10,000.

Immediate steps will be taken to sell the restaurant, it was announced by John Koza of the Koza and McCollister company. "We will assume temporary management of the business," Mr. Koza said, "in the event we are unable to secure a buyer, we will be forced to close it." Mr. Koza is chief creditor.

Not having had an opportunity yet to make definite plans, John Holman, former proprietor, said yesterday that he had no intentions at present of filing a bankruptcy petition.

Zager Sentences Two on Charge of Disturbing Peace

Two men received sentences in Judge C. L. Zager's police court yesterday. Each appeared on a charge of disturbing the peace and was given the option of a $25 fine or 30 days in the county jail.

William Hickman who was arrested on a charge of disturbing the peace had his choice of paying the fine or receiving the jail sentence. C. C. Breneman signed the information.

W. Roberts was the second person to face charges of disturbing the peace. He also received the choice of the fine or sentence and elected to pay the fine.

Telegraph Company Remodels Old Plant

The Western Union Telegraph company moved to its temporary quarters at 121 S. Clinton street, yesterday afternoon. Officials of the company stated that they expect to be in the temporary quarters from three to four months, while the old building at 110 E. Washington street is being remodeled into an up-to-date plant.

Marengo Woman Dies Here Mary Frawley, 58 years old, of Marengo, died yesterday morning at a local hospital. The body was sent to Marengo last evening by the McGovern funeral home.

When You Ask for Your First Job—

WILL you be able to say that you have had the necessary business training? Or will you have to admit a lack of practical knowledge and enter the "school of hard knocks"?

Every college man has two roads open to him: the trial and error method of attaining business leadership involving years perhaps of delay; or the business education method which provides in much less time that training the business world demands.

Which road do you choose? Babson Institute offers you the direct route. In a thorough and intensive nine months' course, you can learn the principles of Finance, Management, Production, and Distribution. More than that, you can learn how to use this knowledge; so that when you apply for your first position you can say:

"Yes, I have had the necessary business training!"

Send for Booklet We invite you to send for our booklet "Training for Business Leadership." It tells how many other young men, like yourself, have been prepared for business at Babson Institute and how you, too, may be equipped to fill eventually an executive position. The booklet is free. When you have read the booklet, pass it on to your father and ask him what he thinks of this practical instruction in business fundamentals. New terms open March 29, June 28 and September 24.
