Wagles Wings

The landing was full of color and quick action. Coming over Roosevelt field, Coste dropped low and wagled his wings in signal that the Lindbergh trail had been backtracked at last, for it was from Roosevelt that Colonel Lindbergh, then an unknown mail flyer, took off on the flight that made him famous three years ago.

Flies Tired

As they slid from the open cockpits to the ground it was plain the flyers were tired. Their feet fumbled clumsily at the rungs of the little ladder and they almost staggered when first they walked. But they didn't get much chance to walk for the crowd was on them, pressing in, trying to shake hands, almost bearing them to the ground.

Tells of Flight

In this little interview Coste told briefly of his flight, of some threatening weather he and Bellonte had encountered, and expressed his gratification at the successful outcome of the venture. He did not say what his plans were now, how long he was going to stay, or whether he would fly back when he was ready to go.

The Daily Iowan's Platform For Iowa City

1. Abolish the soot nuisance.
2. Combat juvenile delinquency.
3. Clean up the river front.
4. Launch a play program.
5. Continue paving activity.
6. Consider new parking rules.
7. Move the interurban station.
8. Grant chain store cigaret permits.
9. Announce new house numbers.
10. Plan new river bridges.

SINCE the time of Rome and even before, no city has been built in a day, or even in a much longer time. Some cities have been fortunate enough to start after the mistakes of others have revealed better ways of building.

Iowa City has progressed a good deal during the last few years, is progressing now. There will be many new things to greet returning students as they begin their return to the University of Iowa campus. But never, no matter how many good things have been done, can a city afford to be satisfied with itself. That attitude is disastrous and eventually fatal. Progress must continue eternally unless decay is to set in.

THE DAILY IOWAN has advocated during the summer 10 different things, five of which have been done. The five which have not been done, for one reason or another, are included in its platform for Iowa City along with five new suggestions.

THE DAILY IOWAN realizes that city finances are limited, and that the taxpayers' interests are first to be considered, but believes that the taxpayer should be interested in getting the most for his money. Doing that means more than receiving in return for his money a city government which merely keeps the wheels rolling. He should also require what improvements can be obtained with the money available.

Not all these can come in a hurry, though some are urgent enough to demand immediate action. The Chicago Tribune agitated for a subway in Chicago for years, with scarcely any disagreement among citizens that a subway was desirable, not winning the battle until this spring.

It will not hurt to touch briefly on the planks in THE DAILY IOWAN'S platform for Iowa City.

With winter, season of heavy coal consumption, approaching, certainly it is high time that something should be done about the soot nuisance. Let the city council—whose members will do well to remember that they come up for reelection in a few months—call in Prof. H. L. Olin of the university's chemistry department and find out how simple it would be to choke off the black cloud of soot which so smudges Iowa City.

Juvenile delinquency does not need much comment, except that minors have too ready access to pool halls and gambling devices, and that they do not have enough other activity to keep them busy.

River front discharges have already been pointed out. City council members seem individually agreed that the garbage dump along the airport road is bad. Let them so agree as a body, officially, deciding at the same time that there are other eyesores along Iowa river.

Now is the time to start work to organize a play program for next spring and summer, when supervised play will again be a crying need. There is also possibility of providing basketball opportunity for more boys this winter. This plank obviously ties in with that on juvenile delinquency.

Continued paving activity is pretty well cared for by city council plans, and repair work on various streets probably will be done nearly as soon as needed.

Police Chief C. F. Benda's suggestions for handling automobiles in the business district and concerning other traffic matters deserve serious consideration.

With the interurban franchise vote a thing of the past by almost two months, surely it is time for the passenger station change. The present building is both an eyesore and a fire menace.

Not to grant chain stores cigaret permits is discrimination. Local merchants do not need discrimination in their favor. They can compete on their merits, demanding only a square deal.

With numerous house number changes in Iowa City east of Summit street, it is a matter of need for many business houses at least to have the revised list. If this is within the city's official province, it would aid merchants and others.

Benton street and Park road bridges are both shoddy, the former being unsafe for heavy traffic, the latter none too safe. The sooner they can be replaced the better, although the city's purse strings must be kept in discreet control.

Remembering the many things for which

Iowa City is to be commended. THE DAILY IOWAN wishes not to fine fault but to point out ways of furthering the progress so well begun. In that spirit this platform is tendered in the consideration of Iowa City's council and its voting citizens.

About Holidays

ONE of the best things Benito Mussolini has done for his native Italy has been to spur Italian efficiency by cutting down the number of public holidays.

Just as life in Mexico has been characterized as one long siesta, so that in Italy could have been as one continuous holiday, with slight intervals of such work as half sobered workmen could do.

That is an exaggerated statement, of course, but Mussolini did take many unnecessary religious holidays out of the calendar and turn them into days of production which would strengthen Italy's economic position among nations.

The United States has no similar problem. For one thing, there is no religion in common, no occasion for overmany holidays for that or other reasons. The country is new and has not accumulated these things very extensively. Probably the only unnecessary holiday is Armistice day.

And there is less of the paternalistic about both state and church here. United States citizens have been brought up in a land where each must strive largely for himself after reaching maturity, frequently before. There is no need for a dictator, none for anybody to prescribe how many holidays there shall be.

Working hours are, on the whole, decent, and there is for a great share of labor a chance to rest one day a week. If anyone does not know how to make best use of his free time, it shows up eventually in his working hours and he loses out. U. S. competition lets the pressures of necessity shape the habits of its working public to a larger extent than this freedom can be found elsewhere.

After all, it is for the best that "evolution" should have its way unrestricted by any regulations except those necessary for the protection of individuals in the mass.

Pipe Line Contracts

Farmers have been asking about the contracts that are being offered by different concerns that are laying pipe lines across Iowa. Our advice is to read the contract over carefully, and if there do not seem to be all the features needed to protect your farm, ask that these be added. In going over the contracts with representatives of pipe line companies, we find that they are quite willing to include in their contracts special provisions of this type.

Look out for the following points: If there are tile lines on your farm, see that the contract covers their repair and replacement in case the installation of the pipe line damages them. See that telephone and telegraph lines are run along the highways instead of across the farm. See that the route of the pipe line is specified so that orchards, ornamental ground or buildings will not be damaged.

These points should be covered. Note also whether you have special needs that require other clauses. On the whole, the pipe line companies seem to be trying to be fair and to meet all reasonable suggestions.

TOMORROW—HONORING THE POTATO

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood

By HARRISON CARROLL
HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 2.—What motion pictures have had the greatest box-office titles?

I have questioned several important film executives on this point. Harry Lang, of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, suggests "The Cock-Eyed World," "The Way of All Flesh" and "The Big Parade."

Harold B. Franklin, head of West Coast Theatres, names "The Thief of Bagdad," because it brought the whole picture to the mind at once, and was typical of Douglas Fairbanks; "Flesh and the Devil," because it suggested the allure of Greta Garbo; "What Price Glory," because it implied all the heroism and fullness of war, and "Our Bushing Brides," because it is so typically youthful.

John Considine, general manager of United Artists, picks "The Birth of a Nation," "The Miracle Man" and "What Price Glory?" Carl Laemmle, Jr., of Universal, likes "The Big Parade," "Seventh Heaven" and "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

Choosing titles is taken very seriously at all the studios. Employees are asked to submit several for every picture they see in previews.

There are some very odd "don'ts" to be remembered. For instance, no title with the word "Mother" in it has ever been successful. "Marriage" is another taboo. Liquor is another.

One of the principal things to be avoided is a title that people might not be able to pronounce. Hence "DeLasse" was changed to "Her Private Life" and "La Marseillaise" to "Captain of the Guard." I still remember the argument about the proper pronunciation of "Cythera."

Hard-Hearted
Lou Enger tells the story of a starving actor who met a prosperous friend in a restaurant. The friend was sitting down to a bill of juicy steak.

"Say," inquired the actor, "you're not going to eat that steak alone, are you?"

"No," replied the friend, "with potatoes."

Incidentally, the word that this picture is to start in a few days with Maureen O'Sullivan playing opposite Charles Farrell settles a moot question.

It's been up at the studio that Janet Gaynor would be put into the role since her reconciliation with Fox.

Sheik Arriving
A genuine sheik is on his way to Hollywood to be technical adviser on "Ben Hur."

Herbert Brenon met him in Morocco and signed him to work on the picture.

The sheik is a Riff, and participated in the rebellion against the French rule. His name is Abdouham Ben Mohammed Khoubarik. May the composing rooms be with me in getting this name into print.

Do You Know
That under-water cameras were used by RKO to photograph salmon for "The Silver Horde."

That on Jan. 1, there were more than 25,000 picture houses in the United States, of which 9,000 were wired?

For the first time in its existence, Mrs. Cora Fulton, has been elected president of the Wichita, Kan., school board.

A NEW YORKER AT LARGE

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK.—John K. Winkler has acquired a certain eminence and no little fame for his biography of John D. Rockefeller and, quite recently of J. Pierpont Morgan.

But Winkler had to lose his job of newspaper reporting before he achieved his reputation. Maybe that fact can be used to support the dogma of newspapermen that one benefits by getting fired every now and then.

In so far as there is such a thing as a star reporter, Winkler was a star man on a Manhattan newspaper. His were the most desirable assignments during his newspaper days.

Of course there was reason for it. Assignment of Winkler to a story assured the editor a competent covering, regardless of what the story was. This reporter's range of interests and fund of knowledge was, and is, extraordinary.

Nor was it the sketchy knowledge of many things which characterized so many reporters. He pursued these interests during his leisure hours. An enviable capacity for making friends also served him valuably.

Not only could he wring from Gerald Chapman confidences the condemned murderer would vouchsafe no other reporter, but he likewise was able to coax revelations out of other prominent persons.

In the light of his subsequent success, Winkler perhaps should be pictured as a plodding fellow, a bloodhound, when hunting a story and a recluse bent over enlightening books at evening. He wasn't quite that.

Indeed, Winkler's mode of operation bothered his associates and excited their envy. They regarded him as something of a lucky prima donna, a suspicion generated largely by a tale of a photographer who once accompanied him on a story.

Impressed by the city editor with the importance of the story, the photographer joined Winkler at the railroad station. The reporter was ranked in the approved country club manner, his golfing things slung across his shoulder.

Together the two repaired to the country and took up quarters with a charming and hospitable couple, who encouraged them to relax and discouraged them from frowning themselves about the story. At Winkler's suggestion, the photographer took pictures of a random golfer or two.

Several days later, certain of discharge, the camera carrier was shipped back to the office by Winkler. When he glanced at the first edition of the paper, he beheld Winkler's name signed to an exclusive story, his pictures made on the golf links illustrating it. He was too dumb to inquire just where it came from.

Score Evened
Some sort of upheaval suddenly deprived Winkler of his job. Immediately the magazines began to feature his personality sketches, scores of them. Then the biographies.

Early in his free-lancing career Winkler enjoyed a savory revenge. While working on the celebrated Stillman divorce story, he was in a position to perform services for Effi Stillman. In payment of these, Mrs. Stillman, when she became reconciled to James A. Stillman, disclosed the details exclusively to him.

He, exacting a promise from her to ignore all cable messages abroad a Europe-bound liner, made her good by at the pier and sold for $1,500 the exclusive story to the paper which had fired him.

British Police Grand Jury Defeat Rebel Hindu Force May Probe Black Shirts

CALCUTTA, India, Sept. 2 (AP)—After a sharp battle police today arrested several men believed to be leaders in the raid on Chittagong last April 18.

The raiders, 100 in number and well armed, killed seven men, burned and looted the Chittagong police armories and escaped into the hills pursued by Gurkha troops under British officers. Several times officials believed capture of the leaders was imminent, but not until they received news that the fugitives had taken refuge in Chandernagore, a French possession, did they make definite progress.

Obtaining special permits from the French authorities, the police besieged a house where the men were hiding. Much shooting ensued, but no report of casualties has been received here.

The hunt for the raiders was prosecuted tenaciously because the sortie against Chittagong was considered one of the boldest moves of the nationalists in their campaign against the British. Chittagong is a river port in Bengal and was garrisoned by native volunteers and native police men. Two armories in the town contained several machine guns and around 100 rifles. Officials said most of these weapons were destroyed by the fire, but they indicated a hot pursuit in hope of recovering those stolen.

President Reviews March of Soldiers of National Wars

BALTIMORE, Sept. 2 (AP)—For the second time in a year, President Hoover came to Baltimore today to review a military parade and for two hours watched 15,000 or more veterans of the nation's wars, augmented by regular forces, tramp before him.

The feature of the thirty-first annual encampment of the veterans of foreign wars, the parade, wound past the stand in which the president and civil military dignitaries sat.

Regular army, national guard, marine corps and naval units led today's parade through streets deep lined with spectators.

One unit from Wisconsin dragged a little wagon in which rested a beer keg and several empty bottles and jugs, bringing applause from the throngs around the reviewing stand.

The president came to Baltimore at noon to be the guest at luncheon of Mayor W. F. Broening at the Maryland club, which was attended also by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, Senator Phillips Lee Goldenouch, Brig. Gen. Snedley D. Butler of the marine corps, representatives of several foreign embassies and city officials.

I. Mirikitani Tells Way to Improve Landscape Beauty by Water Garden Installation

The following article is one of several which will appear in the Daily Iowan from time to time dealing with Japanese landscape architecture and oriental gardening ideas. The author, I. Mirikitani, is a native of Japan who has lived most of his life in Hawaii where he has specialized in gardening. He is now studying for a degree in the university college of medicine.

Add Water Gradually
After the roots are planted, water is added gradually to fill the pool until there are 12 inches of water over the surface soil. The method of planting is important because the roots of a number of lilies once planted will spread over the whole pond and intermingling in such a way that weaker growing ones die out. The stronger growing varieties such as Nymphaea odorata, Rosa, Carna, and Alba should be planted no less than six feet apart. The leaf surface of the plants varies with the strength and vigor of the plants.

Good Site Needed
In the planning of a water garden the ground should be gone over carefully and a site chosen where a good supply of water either from a natural stream or from an artificial source can be provided. Persons with limited space can not hope to have a large pond with irregular contour and a slow stream by its side and with an artist's subtlety.

Excavation of Soil
After a level has been obtained the soil should be excavated to a depth of about two and a half feet. This will permit four inches of clay on the bottom, eight inches of soil and a foot and a half of water. If the soil is sandy nature through which the water would drain, some means must be employed to avoid waste and provide against reduction of the temperature by frequent change of water.

Coste Lands After Flight From Paris

so he was ushered in after due apologies. Both men were burned by sun and wind when they arrived, for their ship was an open cockpit plane, the first of that type ever used for an Atlantic flight.

They are both men of long experience in the air, though Bellonte did not become a pilot until about a year ago. But now he is a mechanic, navigator, radio operator and pilot all in one.

Flyer at 16
Coste has flown since he was 16, having left a Gascon farm to cast his fate along the far reaches of the sky. He was a war ace and later achieved many sensational feats in civil life, cheered by the world.

Coste is a small man, considerably smaller than Bellonte, and is known to the historians of France as "doudou," a diminutive contraction of the first part of his first name. He was greatly impressed by the courage of Nungesser and Coll and saddened by their death. He named the plane in which he crossed the Atlantic the first time—that was the south Atlantic on his way around the world, "The Nungesser-Coll."

And so his flight completed today meant something more to him than just a new page in the history of aviation, just an achievement that no one had ever been able to accomplish before. It meant, too, that

What has gone before: Celia, wife of Francis Ballon, is strangled at night in her room. She had previously shown signs of mental derangement, and her sister, Eleanor Graham, had called her to be in deadly fear of her husband and urged a change of scene. Before anything could be done she was murdered. Dr. Ames and Nurse, a detective, find a glove marked with the initials F. B. beside the body. While attempts are made to locate Francis Ballon, his brother, Carl, reaches the scene.

Now go on with the story:
In the revulsion that followed I felt sick, physically sick, as though un-leashed spasm to an apparent, yet monstrous, conclusion. The air of the room seemed foul and poisoned. My thoughts had been reflected on the features of Ballon and of Eleanor, who now joined us. Only the face of Nurse retained its usual calm, through I saw his lips tighten.

"So," he remarked, "and can anyone tell me if he has ever seen a glove like this?" In the possession of Mr. Ballon?
Neither Carl nor Eleanor answered. "You don't have to speak," continued the other, "though obviously your silence means yes. You will have to testify later, at all events."

It was Eleanor's voice that broke the silence. "Of course, there's no use putting off. He wears that kind. The glove is Francis Ballon's I think." Then faintly: "I'm going to my room. Would someone mind helping me? I believe..."
Then I realized fully how great her strength had been.

One of the servants, whom I knew later as Anne Roderick, took charge of Eleanor at the door of her room. "She'll be right enough in a moment," whispered Anne. "She never gives up."
There came a ringing of the telephone outside. Nurse answered it, and I could hear him say: "He's there, eh? You've informed him? Very well."

The shadow deepened on Carl Ballon's face. Somewhere a clock struck five.
Francis Ballon: what kind of man he was, where he had been during that last night of October—this had become the supreme issue. To Nurse and myself, except for his portrait down stairs, he was still merely a name. There was nothing, it seemed to me, we could do but wait for his arrival.

On this score, however, Nurse held a different opinion. "I don't know when he'll be here," observed the detective, "but I hope he'll be here, because that will give us time."
"For what?" I asked. "For two things: first, to look at his collection; and secondly, to talk about him with Carl, if he's willing, and Miss Graham, if she's able, and Senator Hesta."

The end of the room was reserved for a separate collection, the nature of which appeared at first glance obscure. I supposed it to be a number of kitchen utensils, rudely fashioned of wrought iron, and vaguely wondered that these should be brought in contrast with the exceedingly rare and beautiful objects nearby. There were several metal pitchers, a brazer with iron rods of various lengths, a chopping-knife, a large wooden block with a handle, such as is used in pounding meat, three or four small hammers, a cart-wheel, some contrivances of wood and leather, and the like. Near-by stood a strangely shaped bench covered with a rug, and against it, as if mislaid from the center of the room, leaned a two-

And I should not," returned the other. "I'm willing, though, to tell anything you could find out elsewhere. Besides, all I know is perfectly innocent."
"Now," Nurse continued, "what I want to know, if possible, is the state of Mr. Ballon's fortune. I remember that his wife inherited large means. Did he have property of his own?"
"Certainly," replied Ballon. "About 10 years ago, he made several millions in oil lands."
"Do you know anything in regard to your sister-in-law's holdings? When her father, Gordon Graham, died, I recall that he left his two children about five millions. Is that true?"
Carl shrugged.
"I know nothing definite about it."
"What I am getting at," said Nurse, "is this: Could your brother have reached a point where Celia Ballon's death would have benefited him financially? I have to be inconsiderate, you see. He threw out a hand in a gesture of apology, and I noticed how receptively delicate it looked. The nervous hand of a writer or musician. 'His collections here,' continued Nurse, "doubtless involved a great expenditure—not to speak of the house. And there is one collection everyone has heard of, and of which I find not a trace—namely, his collection of precious stones. Now it's conceivable that even his resources have been drained."
"It's conceivable," admitted Carl. "Was Celia Ballon's property in her own name?"
"It was, but Francis managed it as her agent."
"At her death, I suppose, a part would revert to him and a part to Eleanor Graham?"
"I believe it would."
Nurse leaned forward.
"In addition, do you know of anything further—personal property, jewels, life insurance—by which her husband would be the beneficiary at her death?"
Carl Ballon hesitated. "There was," he admitted slowly. "Life insurance for a large amount taken out by Celia not long ago. It was in favor of Francis."
"And this amount?"
"Was for two hundred thousand, I believe."
Nurse sighed again.
"That's all for the present, then—except this: You did not know where your brother was at 3 o'clock this morning; but had you seen him perhaps last evening?"
"I had not. I was at a club banquet, which was over very late. Then I came home."
A knock interrupted us, and one of Nurse's subordinates entered.
"Mr. Ballon and I have just arrived, Captain Nurse, and he insists on speaking with you at once."

NEW YORK, Sept. 2 (AP)—The world's four greatest maritimes are engaging in a titanic commercial struggle for the lion's share of the great transatlantic steamship tourist trade.
Germany, England, France and the United States have each spent and are spending countless millions to lure the majority of tourists from the other three.
If the race is to the swift, Germany has victory in the palm of her hand with her two rotor greyhounds—the Bremen and the Europa. These sister ships have broken all existing records for ocean crossing.

Iowa Railway & Light Has Power Fight

Rochester Dam Project Conflicts With Plan at Muscatine

(Special to The Daily Iowan)
CEDAR RAPIDS, Sept. 2.—A stiff fight for the privilege of exploiting the power possibilities of the Cedar river between the Iowa Railway and Light and the Cedar Bluffs was waged in a secret hearing before the state's executive council at Des Moines yesterday.

The Iowa Railway and Light corporation of Cedar Rapids asked permission to build a power dam, costing between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000, at Rochester.

The Federal Construction company of Muscatine, objecting to this project, entered a petition asking permission to put through a $15,000,000 enterprise which would divert the Cedar river at Muscatine into the Mississippi at Muscatine.

Divert Cedar at Moscow
The Muscatine plan, which was first investigated more than 70 years ago, would include a dam and canal at Moscow to shunt the water of the Cedar and a reservoir dam to Cedar Bluffs for the purpose of storing water for droughts and leveling the bed of the river between those two points.

Sutherland C. Dows, vice president of the Cedar Rapids power firm, said yesterday that the proposed dam at Moscow, if allowed, would be begun within a year and completed within three years. It would furnish between 5 and 10 per cent of the company's yearly output of power.

While the Muscatine company's plan is feasible from an engineering standpoint, it has not been believed practical from a financial standpoint by several large midwestern utility firms, Dows said. He also expressed doubt as to whether it would be acceptable to property owners along the lower Cedar.

"Interference"
The Federal construction officials believe that a "high head" or steep incline and hence much additional power will be gained by diversion of the waters at Moscow. They contend that the Rochester dam would interfere with their plan.

Members of the Muscatine firm include J. M. Kemble, S. G. Stein, N. Barry, J. R. Reuling, and B. Layton. Amos Kemble, father of John M. Kemble, reported on the original survey, which have been checked and found accurate by George T. Baker of Davenport, civil engineer and president of the state board of education.

Faculty Man Survives
Prof. Andrew H. Holt, of the college of engineering, has been in charge of survey work on the Rochester project during the last two months. From Rochester to Cedar Rapids is 50 miles by river, 30 miles as the crow flies. Property owners a mile each way from the river have been listed on a map 15 feet long by 30 inches wide which has also been abstracted.

Additional local interest attaches to the possibility of competition in Iowa City for the United Light and Power corporation from the successful group in the Cedar river fight.

Mrs. Knowlton Dies Tuesday

Mrs. Hapsalonia Ann Knowlton, 78 years old, died at the home of her son, G. C. Knowlton, 417 E. Bloomington street, at 6:30 p. m. yesterday after a week's illness. Mrs. Knowlton's home is in Ireton but for the last six years she has spent the fall and winter months with her son here.

Surviving her are the son at whose home she died, a brother, George Edwards in Sioux Falls, S. D.; a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Rubado, in Colorado, five grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren. Her husband preceded her in death 19 years. She is a member of the Lutheran church.

The remains will be at Oatouts funeral home until tonight when they will be sent to Ireton for burial.

Carbon Monoxide Gas Discovered in Capt. Page's Blood

CHICAGO, Sept. 2 (AP)—Discovery of carbon monoxide in the blood of Capt. Arthur Page, Jr., led health commissioner, Arnold Kegel, to express belief tonight that the gas may have been responsible for the marine corps flyer's fatal crash at yesterday's national air races.

Dr. Kegel based his opinion on the report of William D. McNally, health department toxicologist, that a sample of the captain's blood, taken before he died and about three hours after the accident, contained 0.47 per cent of carbon monoxide.

Convict Fails in Second Try for Freedom

LEAVENWORTH, Kans., Sept. 2 (AP)—Hayes Van Gorder who once gained liberty from the federal penitentiary with forged court documents, attempted unsuccessfully to escape prison today on a spurious writ of demanding his presence in federal court at Duluth, Minn.

Warden Thomas B. White said the purported writ received in an envelope bearing the return stamp of federal court at Duluth bore the forged signature of Judge William A. Cant, attested by forged signatures.

Recalling Van Gorder's escape on a similar ruse in March, 1929, the warden telegraphed the Minnesota court and learned that no summons had been sent for the 54-year old prisoner, who is serving various sentences aggregating 21 years for forging postal money orders.

Van Gorder was ready to leave the prison with a guard when the hoax was discovered.

Subsequently taken to an isolation cell and stripped, Van Gorder was found from a search of his person, a handkerchief, a dummy revolver, handcuff keys, loose change and a razor blade.

A quantity of ground pepper and tobacco found on him was to be used, prison officials believed, to overpower the guard, who would have accompanied him to Duluth.

Van Gorder's successful escape from the prison was effected by a writ of habeas corpus and three orders ostensibly from the United States circuit court of appeals at Topeka. He and Richard Van Eschen, under sentence from St. Louis, walked out of the prison after officials received the paper through the mail, later discovering they were not genuine.

Van Gorder was arrested less than three weeks later at Milan, Mo., for raising several 10 per cent money orders to 90 cents, and was back in prison a few days later.

Later he was tried for the murder of his father-in-law in Albia, Ia. The trial resulted in a hung jury.

Crooks Asks for Injunction in Fight to Keep Crossing

FT. DODGE, Sept. 2 (AP)—C. H. Crooks, receiver for the Ft. Dodge, Des Moines and Southern railroad, today filed suit for an injunction to restrain the Illinois Central railroad from denying the interurban line the use of its crossing at Rockwell City. A temporary injunction previously was granted by Judge H. E. Fry of Boone.

The Ft. Dodge, Des Moines and Southern has been using the crossing more than 25 years, paying more than $4,600 annually for operation and upkeep, the receiver's petition said.

The railroad recently was notified by the Illinois Central of its intention to rescind the contract for the interurban's use of the crossing and to prevent the F.D.M.S. further use after Sept. 1.

Crooks maintains that $4,600 per use of the crossings by one train daily is exorbitant and requests the injunction to insure the interurban's use of the crossing until a new agreement may be made.

Gun Saves Bandit's Life But Puts Bullet Hole in Owner's Chest

OMAHA, Sept. 2 (AP)—An empty cylinder in Bob Ridenour's gun saved the life of a bandit today and put Ridenour in the hospital with a severe bullet wound in his chest.

When Ridenour grabbed the gun from a side pocket of his automobile after the bandit had boarded it, he jammed it into the bandit's side and pulled the trigger. The hammer snapped harmlessly on the empty chamber.

The bandit dropped the knife he was brandishing and with a quick jerk twisted the gun from Ridenour's hand, turned it on the driver and pulled the trigger. This time the hammer fell on a loaded chamber, the bullet passing through the right side of Ridenour's chest.

Leaping from the car, the man jumped into a machine driven by a confederate and escaped.

DRAPERY DEPARTMENT

Our interior decorator, Perry G. Rawland, has just returned from the East, where he spent the summer studying at the NEW YORK SCHOOL OF INTERIOR DECORATION. He was intimately associated with such eminent decorators as Louis Boucher, Watterson Lowe, Marion Pelton and Paul Frankl.

From them he gleaned many new decorative ideas and an insight into the technique which gives the work of New York decorators that distinctive air of smartness.

Due to his numerous visits to the METROPOLITAN MUSEUM OF ART, where he made a special study of the English and American periods of decoration, he is able to advise with excellent discrimination as to the authenticity of antiques and other period styles.

We are now able to offer to our thousands of customers a service that is unique to this section of the country. Special announcements and information will appear each week from our Drapery Department.

Root Pitches 3 Hit Game Against Reds

Errors Pave Way for 3 Bruin Runs in First Inning

CINCINNATI, Sept. 2 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs today accomplished something they had been unable to do since last April—win a baseball game in Cincinnati—Charlie Root pitching a three hit performance which subjected the Reds to an eight to two defeat. The game closed the National league season here and the Cubs won eight of the 11 games on their home grounds against the champions.

Chicago scored three runs on only one hit in the first inning. Two errors, a walk and Taylor's triple figured in the scoring. Hartnett and Cicciello hit home runs, the former's being his twenty-ninth circuit of the year, which scored Root ahead of him in the fifth. Not a man reached first off Root until the fifth inning.

Giants Blast Phillies, 18 to 5

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2 (AP)—Smashing out 25 hits, including six doubles, a triple and two home runs, the New York Giants slaughtered the Phillies today in the series final, 18 to 5. The victory allowed the Giants to keep pace with the Chicago Cubs and to gain a half game on the third place St. Louis Cardinals, who were idle.

The Phillies banded out seven doubles, making a total for the two teams just one short of the league record of 14, set by the Giants and Brooklyn in 1914.

Fred Fitzsimmons hurled the entire game for New York. Score by innings: R. H. E. New York 4-0-0 6-0-0 18-2-3 Philadelphia 1-0-0 0-0-0 5-3-1

Braves Infield Hits Beat Robins

BOSTON, Sept. 2 (AP)—The Braves took advantage of away Brooklyn's mistake today while Ed Brandt did not make any in his pitching and the result was that Boston gave the Robins a 6 to 0 shutout in the final appearance of the flock here this season.

Boston made only six hits for its six runs and only hit the ball inside the infield once. Brandt allowed the Robins only four scattered singles.

The Braves won the game in the first inning, scoring three runs off Dazy Dwyer without getting the ball past the infielders. Brandt did not make any in his pitching and the result was that Boston gave the Robins a 6 to 0 shutout in the final appearance of the flock here this season.

Ed McCardell Loses Labor Day Tourney to Ames Professor

NEWTON, Sept. 2 (AP)—Norman Clark of Ames professor in chemistry at Iowa State college, won the championship of the second annual Labor day golf tournament sponsored by the Newton country club by defeating Ed McCardell of Newton, 1 up, this afternoon.

Trailing at close of the first nine by two holes, the Ames golfer overtook the University of Iowa star on the sixteenth green to even the match. Clark proceeded to annex No. 17, the match closing with No. 18 being halved.

Other results of final matches were as follows: second flight, Franklin O'Connor of Newton defeated J. L. Lindsey of North English, 3 and 2; third flight, C. C. Cammack of Newton defeated A. M. Callister of Newton, 1 up in 19 holes; fourth flight, Hugh Little of Prairie City defeated W. Hekerson of Newton, 4 and 2; fifth flight, Carl Fought of State Center, won by Roy Hough, Newton by default.

Sport Shorts

by "Baldy"

Now that football season is almost here, anecdotes should be in order. First, it seems that when Len Small was governor of Illinois it was his custom to attend one pigskin contest each year at the University of Illinois. On this particular occasion, there were two slightly-well, anyhow, they were befuddled from some cause or other—alumni in the stands. When the first gun of the governor's salute was fired, one of the other "menah that?" His buddy told him. A moment later came the second. Then the first remarked "What happened? They mish him first time?"

That could never have happened here. We don't fire salutes.

If Burt Ingwersen makes much out of the coming hand of hopefuls this year—I've said that before, but here's what I'm getting at. No team is better than its substitutes, as has been said before, and right now it looks as if we weren't going to have any subs. Books are comparatively plentiful, but with football as she is played now, linemen are needed in abundance. For instance, if Burt does one of 'em gets hurt, what will happen? Outside the end, there is practically no position where an experienced man can be sent in.

Burt has three good ends: Gus Mastrogary, Biggy Rosquist, and George Rogge. But Rogge and Rosquist have had scholastic difficulties, and Mastrogary has a trick ankle, so that's not so hot.

Take the tackles. There's Wendell Benjamin and 'Bugs' Ely. No coach could ask for more, if he was thinking only of his starting lineup. But what if one of those boys gets incapacitated? With a great burden in both of offense and defense placed on the tackles in the modern game, supermen are required to go through a tough eight game schedule without tripping. Neither of our boys are supermen. Both good, yes. But can they stand the continual pounding they will get before Nov. 22 is all over?

Maybe some likely sophomore will come along to take a relief post. But sophomores are usually green and liable to err. Vince Schlesner was an exception, but this year we have no Vince.

Grover Higdon is the only major "I" guard returning. And Higdon has had his light well hidden under a bushel of more powerful flames for the last two years. Freddie Roberts, Danny Myers, and John Hartnett could carry the guard duties very well, but they were all huskies of the first water. Higdon is a good man, and will make a plenty good enough starter, but can he stand the pounding?

If Burt is hard put to find another regular for the position, how is he going to locate two or three reserves?

And centers. Ed Dolly, Rock Island sophomore, is the leading candidate at present writing. Dolly was an all-state pivot man in high school, but whether he will go good or hot his year in varsity competition is another matter. Mark Magnusson, who last year was rated as one of the best in the conference, was rough and needed polishing as a sophomore. Eddie Rawal, Bob Zupke's great sophomore of last year, is an exception, but is Dolly a Kawai? Time will answer.

Baker Damage Suit Against Medics Goes Before Federal Court

MUSCATINE, Sept. 2 (AP)—Transfer of the $500,000 damage suit brought by Norman T. Baker, owner of radio station KNTT and the Baker institute, against the American Medical association to the federal court at Davenport was agreed to today by Mayor Herbert G. Thompson, one of Baker's attorneys.

The request for a transfer had been made before District Judge C. L. Ely by attorneys for the medical association.

Judge Ely on Monday will hear the trial of the application of the state of Iowa for a permanent injunction to restrain Baker and four of his associates from continuing to operate the Baker institute. The state contends Baker and his associates have not complied with the statutes on licensing physicians.

"TEMPERED" BY TIME

BILL TILDEN—VETERAN COURT ACE WHO TRIUMPHED AT WIMBLEDON THIS YEAR AND WHO HAS BEEN OUR TOP-RANKING STAR FOR A DECADE!

Elizabeth "BUNNY" RYAN—ANOTHER GREAT TENNIS VETERAN, SHE IS THE BEST DOUBLES PLAYER IN THE GAME TODAY!

Time has taken much of the steel temper from William Tatum Tilden's physique and put it in his disposition. This week he is defending his American singles championship with nerves more frayed than ever. That bodes ill for Bill, what with the very youthful Sid Wood, Vines and others scampering up the tennis courts which Tilden still rules with a scepter that seems a shadow rather than a racket.

Rising almost to old-time heights at Wimbledon where he won what is equivalent to the world's championship, Tilden faltered just enough in the Davis cup matches so that France retains that trophy. Events abroad, however, revealed no American as potent as 'Old Bill' when he is right. English critics and the French, too, marveled at this Old Master who showed such flashes of greatness when touched at the term of his tremendous career.

As real champions finally falter or pass—and Tilden merits fame, perhaps as the greatest of all tennis masters save Karel Kouzel, the professional—there are sharp pulls at fan heartstrings. Especially when the falling idol is such a wholesome, fiery gamester as the scorching Bill. We hate to see 'em pass!

In striking contrast to "Big Bill," who writes so much as rude galleries and faint temperamental him, is Elizabeth "Bunny" Ryan, unquestionably the greatest of all woman doubles players. Of course, she is not exposed to the raucous rasping such as made Tilden quit at Rye a few weeks ago when a few high-hatted hoodlums heckled the limping lion of the courts. "Bunny" is of a sunny disposition and too veteran a campaigner to become riled easily or otherwise.

In the doubles, either teamed with a woman or a man, Miss Ryan usually is a most potent factor in winning at Wimbledon or elsewhere. "Bunny" still is a formidable player, but it is late in her forte. Her calm, congenial temperament accounts largely for her long court career.

At that, Tilden lasts (and may chiefly last) because of the fiery spirit that seems to burn him (and others) up so often.

SPORT BUG NOVELTIES

Now that fall is approaching, let's consider what the summer of 1930 will be most memorable for in sporting lines. Singer's knockout of the speedily collapsible Mandelli; Berg's hairline victory over Chocolate? Another Tilden win at Wimbledon? Or more French triumph in the Davis Cup match? The overshadowing rise of Ferns Carnera as a championship ringer personality despite the powerful opposition of certain American ring rulers? The pennant drives of the Athletics, the Cubs and the Giants, with Babe Ruth's stirring efforts to surpass his all time home run record? Or, after all—

Will this summer be chiefly remembered by sport bugs because it marks the birth of miniature golf and a serious trial of night baseball?

Go where you will in the United States, a few miles' journey will bring you to one or more tiny golf links where thus far the simple spring is the only employed. Last spring, you could not find 50 of these pygmy courses (excepting private putting greens) in all America. Today there must be 50,000 of them.

The putter is surely replacing the baseball bat as the symbol of popular athletic activity in the United States. While the miniature variety resembles regular golf about as much as parlor ping pong does championship tennis, the putting lure should

Racine's Win, 11 to 3 From Odd Fellows

With reinforced lineups, the Odd Fellows and Racine's baseball teams played a nine inning exhibition at City park Monday.

Smith, recruited by Racine's for the occasion, allowed the lodges five hits and three runs, while his own team was clubbing out enough safe blows to tally 11 times. Smith was also the batting star of the game, getting four safeties out of four trips to the plate, while his battery mate, Elmo Nelson, had a perfect day with two hits in two times up.

Irving Nelson started for the Odd Fellows, but was relieved by Kraus in the sixth. Neither hurler was able to check the Racine onslaught.

Rogge, Odd Fellow backstop, led his team's attack with two hits in four appearances at the plate.

Indians Drop Browns, 4-3, in 11 Innings

ST. LOUIS, MO., Sept. 2 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians, by defeating the Browns 4 to 3 in 11 innings here today, made a clean sweep of the four game series.

The Indians led the score in the eighth frame and won in the second extra stanza when Hodapp's single sent Porter home with the fourth run.

Federal Judge Rules Against Conviction of Former U. S. Official

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 2 (AP)—Federal Judge Fred H. Norcross today directed the jury in the trial of five high ex-government officials charged with accepting bribes in liquor cases to acquit C. T. McKinley, former assistant U. S. attorney.

Judge Norcross ruled the vigorous prosecution of Roy Olmsted, once "king of the liquor runners" of the Pacific Northwest in January, 1926, constituted in the $12,000 bribe of withdrawal from any conspiracy.

The judge took under advisement a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal of R. L. Fryant, former dry agent.

Authorities Doubt Strawberry Point Bandit Confession

ELKADER, Sept. 2 (AP)—Doubt that James Ryan, 57 years old, was a member of the gang which robbed the Union Trust & Savings bank at Strawberry Point, June 24, was expressed today by Clayton county authorities.

Ryan was quoted by officers of Carlyle, Ill., as confessing that he participated in the $12,000 holdup.

Sheriff Chris I. Larson went to Carlyle to investigate today but before leaving said he did not believe Ryan was an active participant in the robbery. He said all of the three men who entered the bank were young, whereas Ryan was old.

promote tremendously increased interest in real golf. It is interesting to speculate on how great this effect will be.

As to night baseball, reports still conflict on its merits. A few minor league teams are strongly endorsing it. In some of the big league cities, where fan interest is unsatisfactory, there is talk of trying it. Enterprising semi-pro clubs, notably in Brooklyn, N. Y., are prospering through drawing crowds to cool, well-illuminated diamonds. But the majors, and this includes players as well as managers, are skeptical.

Most important objection is that in most big cities the games would have to start too late, because artificial illumination is ineffective until complete darkness rules, and for most of the summer the sun does not set until after 8 p.m. The after-glow, or twilight, is such that games could not be called under favorable white light conditions until around 9 p.m., and most fans (or their wives) would not like midnight homecomings.

At any event, 1930 brings the idea of night baseball to national attention, just as it does that other phenomenon of baby golf. You may remember that long after 1930 sports events are forgotten.

Moose Take Second Place in I.-I. Loop

Iowa City's Moose I. and I. league baseball team climbed into second place in the loop standings, only one full game back of the leading Leas outfit by virtue of a pair of week-end victories.

The talented Muscatine outfit appeared here Sunday, and with a team made up partially of Musky players and local pickups, were defeated by the Antlers 9 to 2.

Monday, at Riverside, the Moose got ample revenge for the facing received at the hands of Lane Tree here a few weeks ago. With a new battery, the Moose, Lane Tree was handed a 13 to 4 defeat, and slid down to fifth place, with three victories and five defeats.

The Antlers are now in good position to capture the league pennant for the last half of the split season, and if they come through will meet Durant, winners of first half, in a championship series.

Fl. Dodge Schools Play at Night

FT. DODGE, Sept. 2 (AP)—Fred Cooper, athletic director of Ft. Dodge schools, today announced that both the high school and junior college would play games at night this fall. The lights have been ordered installed in time for the opening game, Sept. 26. Nine night games will be played here, Cooper said.

Man Who Robbed Local Telegraph Office Caught in Des Moines

Driving Same Chrysler Car as Used Here

Sheriff Frank L. Smith Leaves to Bring Man Back

A man who gave his name as Donald Lyon, 25 years old, of Bloomington, Ill., was arrested last night in Des Moines for the holdup and robbery of the Western Union telegraph office in Iowa City last Wednesday. Sheriff Frank L. Smith of Johnson county left at 5 o'clock this morning for Des Moines to return the man.

Lyon was arrested in the residential district of Des Moines driving a blue Chrysler coupe such as was noted by a passerby when he robbed the local office. The car was stolen from Dr. Lester B. Cavins of Bloomington. The motorcycle officer who made the arrest said he recognized the number on the car.

Lyon told capital city police he had been a telegraph operator and had been out of work, according to the Associated Press. He said he had just arrived in Des Moines when he found and told police he was hungry and glad to be in custody.

The robbery of the local office, 110 E. Washington street, occurred about midnight last Wednesday and the bandit, unmasked, took $17 from the till while holding Lorayne McCune, who was in charge of the office, at the point of an automatic. He walked into the office as she was checking receipts, wrote on a telegraph blank, "Hand over what money you have and don't scream," and emphasized his demand with the gun.

He escaped going west in the Chrysler coupe and persons passing noted it had an Illinois license of not more than four numbers.

City, County Officials Get Tear Gas Guns

City police and county officers have been equipped with new tear gas guns, similar in appearance and manner of carrying to large size fountain pens. All officers on beats and in answering calls will carry these guns which shoot a stream of blinding gas more than 12 feet and cause temporary blindness from 20 minutes to half an hour.

The guns carry a single cartridge resembling a long 22 caliber blank and are fired by a trigger projection along the barrel. Officers already have tear gas cartridges for their revolvers and also have hand gas bombs.

Miss Dondore states that Elmira is a liberal arts college, first to be founded for women in the United States, having celebrated its seventy-fifth birthday this year.

Car Thieves Nabbed Here to Face Judge

Trio Appear in Cedar County Court at Tipton Today

(Special to The Daily Iowan)

TIPTON, Sept. 2.—Three Chicago youths, arrested by Iowa City police Monday when apprehended with a car stolen from Durant, will probably be arraigned in Cedar county district court at Tipton Wednesday, on car theft charges, according to Sheriff C. H. Elwood of Tipton.

The trio have agreed to plead guilty before Judge John T. Moffitt, according to Sheriff Elwood, but sentence may be delayed until word comes from their parents in Chicago. The boys are all minors, ranging from 16 to 18 years old. Two have been paroled from Chicago from previous unlawful acts.

The boys, John Wanda, Tony Martin, and Ralph Starnell were nabbed by Iowa City police when former officer Don McComas noticed them operating a car without a license. Iowa City officers believe they had taken one car in Chicago and driven it to Durant where car trouble forced them to abandon it and take another.

Two Big Fish Plus Plea for One Kiss Makes a "Sucker"

A couple of carp made a sucker out of George Cottigo.

Now George is past 60 years old; hails from Cedar Rapids, and should know better.

George snagged the two carp in Iowa river and decided to sell them. Alas! A pretty young woman at a W. Court street house had no money and didn't want 'em anyway.

But George wanted to get rid of the fish.

"Give me a kiss and they're yours," said George, and grabbed her arm.

George lost his fish, was fined $1 and costs, and told to leave town by Police Judge C. L. Zager yesterday.

FT. MADISON, Sept. 2 (AP)—N. L. Cooper, who soon was to have been retired on pension by the Santa Fe railroad, was found dead in the river here Tuesday. Officers started an investigation to determine the manner of death.

County Gets $1,143 From School Fund

Johnson County Ranks Eighteenth of 99 Counties

Johnson county will receive $1,143.90 in the semi-annual distribution of the permanent school fund interest, totaling $108,483 for the state, according to announcement made yesterday by J. W. Long, state auditor.

The fund is apportioned on the basis of residence of 713,830 Iowa school children. The amount of interest turned back to the counties for the whole year is $216,966, or slightly more than 30 cents per pupil.

Investments in the permanent school fund total $4,777,255 and bring a net income to the state of 4 1/2 per cent annually. Johnson county received the eighteenth largest refund of the 99 counties.

Polk county received the largest apportionment, according to the Associated Press, with $7,625.57. Other high counties are Woodbury, $4,459.81; Linn, $3,545.54; Pottawattamie, $3,049.35; and Scott, $2,857.71. The county receiving the least is Clarke with $437.90.

Among the counties are the following: Black Hawk, $2,793.58; Boone, $1,398.31; Carroll, $1,056.82; Cerro Gordo, $1,742.58; Cherokee, $73.10; Clinton, $1,827.02; Dallas, $1,168.07; Des Moines, $1,472.78; Dubuque, $2,685.22; Hamilton, $948.01.

Jasper, $1,442.99; Johnson, $1,143.90; Lee, $1,687.36; Wapello, $1,637.36; Webster, $1,824.59.

Five Fined on Peace Charge

Two More Will Stand Trial After Fracas Sunday A. M.

Five sun bronzed hands fished in five overall pockets for money yesterday to pay fines assessed by Police Judge C. L. Zager on pleas of guilty to disturbing the peace.

Two other lads, similarly charged, elected to stand trial at 2 o'clock this afternoon, their bondman and the father of one intimating that the case would be appealed to district court.

Those who pleaded guilty were Reynolds Prybil, route 6; W. F. Frauenholz, 1226 E. Duvenport street; Thomas Lynch, route 8; Howard Stimmill, 315 E. Harrison street, and L. Lusksey, 115 Rochester avenue. The latter driver of an automobile in which three of the seven boys were riding, was fined $10 and $2.95 costs.

The other four were assessed $5 and $2.95 costs.

Harry Gould, driver of the other car, was released under $50 bond on a charge of disturbing the peace. Frank Patera, route 7, was released under $50 on a peace count, at the instance of his father, Frank Patera, and G. H. Bobbell, who stood bond for both the youths.

Arrest of the seven was made early Sunday morning following their return from a Saturday night dance at Newport. Residents living near Gilbert and Fairchild streets had complained of profane language and scuffling after one car had stopped because of a flat tire.

Discovery of a bottle described as "unlabeled liquor" in the rear of Gould's car led to a second charge against him, violation of intoxicating liquor laws. He was released on $1,000 bond to stand trial at 3 o'clock this afternoon with County Attorney P. B. Aolsen prosecuting.

Because he was driving a car licensed to another man without transfer to indicate his ownership, Gould may be faced with a third accusation.

Former students of Oklahoma A. and M. college are forming organizations in every county of the state.

Car Crash Victim's Funeral at 2 o'clock Today at Oathout's

Funeral services for Mrs. John Campbell who died Sunday in London, Canada, from injuries received in an auto crash, Aug. 22, will be at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Oathout's chapel with the Rev. Floyd Lambertson officiating. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Mrs. Campbell, whose home is nine miles west of Iowa City, was injured when she stepped from a parked car into the path of a moving auto. She is survived by her widower, John, two daughters and a son, at home; and her father and step-mother in Wales, British Isles.

New Kresge's Store Opens Here Today
