FRENCH FLYERS LAND AT DALLAS

COSTE AND BELLONTE LAND AT NEW YORK COMPLETING EPIC FLIGHT FROM PARIS

The Question Mark, flying over Curtiss Field, New York, just before landing. The scarlet sesquiplane made the perilous westward flight in about four hours more than it took Lindbergh to fly from New York to Paris in 1927.

Back-tracking the Lindbergh trail between New York and Paris, Diouonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte completed the first nonstop flight ever made from Paris to New York. It took the daring French aviators 37 hours 18 minutes and 30 seconds to accomplish the feat. Photo shows Coste and Bellonte in the cockpit of their plane at Curtiss Field, New York.

Coste to Start Non-Stop Hop to New York

Frenchmen Plan Good Will Tour Over United States

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 4 (AP)—Diouonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, east-west transatlantic flyers, will start a nonstop flight from Dallas to New York tomorrow morning, Paul Recover, their manager, said tonight. The precise time of the takeoff was not given.

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 4 (AP)—Capt. Diouonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, French air heroes, landed their scarlet transatlantic sesquiplane Question Mark here at 5:29:45 p.m. (C.S.T.) today, capturing the $25,000 Easternwood prize offered for the first successful Paris-New York-Dallas flight.

A huge crowd gathered at Love field gave the Frenchmen a vociferous greeting as they ended their 1,600-mile nonstop flight from New York after 11 hours, 34 minutes and 45 seconds in the air.

Whisked away from the field after brief welcoming ceremonies, at which they made short speeches, over a national radio hookup expressing appreciation for the warm reception, the flyers headed a parade through the streets of Dallas.

Captain Coste said flying conditions over the route from New York had been favorable and no difficulty in completing the hop, which was rather prosaic after the stormy crossing of the Atlantic.

The total elapsed time from Paris to Dallas via New York was 45 hours 52 minutes 11 seconds.

Award Made in New York
Presentation of the $25,000 award won by Coste and Bellonte probably will be made in New York. Col. William Easterwood, Jr., Dallas chewing gum distributor, who is the donor, said in London today that the contract called for a personal presentation either in Paris, New York, or Dallas. He said if the award remained in the United States until he reached this country the check probably would be handed over in New York. Easterwood described the feat of the Frenchmen as "the world's greatest flight."

Before returning to France the flyers will make a good will tour of the United States, including a visit to Washington where they will be received by President Hoover and other high government officials. Under tentative arrangements they will arrive in Washington next Sunday from New York for a stay of three days and be the guests of the president at a white house luncheon Tuesday.

Sponsored by Committee
The itinerary of the good-will tour, sponsored by a committee headed by Charles Hayden, New York banker, and having the approval of the French and American governments, is yet to be announced.

The throng of admirers, estimated in excess of 10,000, many of whom had sore necks from hours of gazing skyward searching for the Frenchmen, could not be held back by the 150 national guardsmen and 50 city policemen as the Question Mark touched its wheels on the ground at Love field.

The plane traveled the full length of the field before it came to a stop. Before Coste and Bellonte could remove their goggles soldiers and policemen were fighting almost vainly to keep the crowd from lifting the flyers bodily from the sturdy craft.

A convoy of six ships, carrying a delegation of welcome and a transport loaded with newspapermen, which left the field hurriedly an hour earlier to keep a rendezvous with the French plane at Greenville, about 50 miles away, did not return for more than an hour later.

Wife Tosses $1,000 Out of Window, Fails to Get Spouse Back

DES MOINES, Sept. 4 (AP)—A $1,000 bundle of currency that his wife tossed in the street in response to offers for information had failed tonight to bring any clues to the whereabouts of James Sheridan, former cigar store owner, who is believed to have been kidnaped.

Mrs. Sheridan revealed today that she had received a telephone call Wednesday night instructing her to drop $1,000 in currency in a secluded street and she would receive a telephone call giving her information regarding her husband.

Without telling police or friends, Mrs. Sheridan did as instructed, but she had received no information to night.

Fear was expressed today that Sheridan had been murdered and his body hidden, since no direct demands for ransom had been made. Sheridan was last seen late Tuesday.

Cedar Rapids Man Dies
CEDAR RAPIDS, Sept. 4 (AP)—Frederick Henry Eilhart, 47 years old, former Cedar Rapids business man, died in New York from injuries received four years ago. He will be buried at Clarence, Iowa, his birthplace, Saturday.

2 Die in Motorcycle Crash
FAIRFIELD, Sept. 4 (AP)—Vern McNeely, 21 years old, and Glen Pamilton, 37 years old, were killed when their motorcycle collided with an automobile driven by Henry Traut of Mt. Pleasant Wednesday night. McNeely died instantly while Pamilton died in a hospital a few hours later.

Paving Completed
AMES, Sept. 4 (AP)—Total paving in Iowa on Sept. 1 was 3,183.25 miles, the state highway commission said in announcing that 205.76 miles were paved last month. The new paving brought the total for the year to 872.05 miles.

800 Reported Dead in Santo Domingo City

Hurricane Apparently Heads for Straits of Florida

SAN JUAN, Sept. 4 (AP)—Governor Roosevelt was informed tonight that 800 were dead in the city of Santo Domingo alone as the result of the tropical hurricane with no part of the interior of the Dominican republic heard from.

(By the Associated Press)
The tropical hurricane which roared up from the Caribbean sea and paralyzed the city of Santo Domingo Wednesday had changed its course last night and apparently was heading for the Florida straits, although with diminished force.

With the dead in Santo Domingo estimated from 200 to 1,000 and so many buildings destroyed that probably 90 per cent of the inhabitants were homeless, communities in the path of the disturbance watched anxiously for the course of the West Indian scourge.

Changes Course
Both the Belen and National observatories in Havana reported yesterday afternoon that the hurricane's course had changed when it began, as it swept over the British island of Dominica, in the Leeward group, then swept northward over the Dominican republic, wrecking Santo Domingo, the capital. It missed the eastern end of the island, containing the republic of Haiti.

Then the storm veered northward and Cuba, which had been in the previous path, breathed easier. But late computations indicated that at least the north shore of Cuba might be touched, likewise the numerous islands of the Bahamas and the Florida Keys. At that time the storm center was placed at 75 west longitude and 22.49 north latitude, or far off the north coast of Cuba and near the beginning of the great Bahamas banks.

Spends Force
Father Gutierrez Lansa, director of Belen observatory, cheered alarmingly over the state convention of his party here today.

Although no direct mention was made of the senior Nebraskan, he received the blanket endorsement of the convention with the rest of the state and national ticket.

A gesture, interpreted by his followers to have been aimed at him, recommending a revision of the primary election laws to permit party endorsement of all state and national candidates, fell by the wayside for lack of support.

When this move failed the convention again became a placid gathering that extolled the merits of President Hoover and his administration, and Governor Arthur J. Weaver.

Senator Norris, vacationing in California, was not heard from by the conventioners by word of mouth from scores of his constituents who were delegates from over the state.

A plea for party unity and the welcoming of all republicans assembled, was sounded by the keynote, who referred to those who supported Senator Norris as "republicans who have defected."

Democrats of Nebraska also assembled in convention here adopted a platform for the November election, condemning the republican national and state administrations, denouncing the new tariff law, demanding tax reduction and pledging cooperation in the enforcement of all laws and unqualified endorsement of their state and national ticket.

Two Held for Theft
DES MOINES, Sept. 4 (AP)—Jack Rasm, 18 years old, and Frank Evers, 21 years old, of Des Moines, were arrested on charges of stealing goods from farmers of Polk and surrounding counties. Police also held a third man declaring the arrests had broken up a hog-stealing ring.

Aged Des Moines Woman Arrested in Death of Girl
DES MOINES, Sept. 4 (AP)—Mrs. Carrie F. Rowley, 69 years old, was lodged in the city jail tonight in connection with the death of Mrs. Helen Pearl, 29 years old, at a hospital here Tuesday. Mrs. Rowley will be charged with murder at the opening of court tomorrow. Al Adams, assistant county attorney and city prosecutor, said after conducting a preliminary investigation.

Hurley Finds River Cities Favor Plans
BROOKHART ON RECEPTION COMMITTEE AT TRI-CITIES
ABOARD ARMY ENGINEERS RIVER BOAT GENERAL ALLEN, Sept. 4 (AP)—An enthusiastic sentiment in favor of the development of the Mississippi river system was found by Secretary Hurley today when he visited the tri-cities of Mobile, Rock Island and Davenport.

Arriving early in the morning from an almost all night run from up river, the secretary's party was greeted by local officials and representatives of local interests supporting the river development.

"They told Hurley that the development would permit the inland shipping by river of coal and iron to the industrial centers and the exportation down the river of agricultural and finished industrial products.

"Favorable Sentiment"
"I found a decidedly favorable sentiment throughout my discussions on the river's development with those representing the tri-cities and their vicinity," Hurley said. "The lock and dam development above the Arsenal Island bridge to deepen the river is, from an engineering viewpoint, the most important project on the upper river and is working toward a completed nine foot channel."

During his visit to the tri-cities, Hurley talked with Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, who was among the receiving officials. They discussed the situation at Clinton wherein the question of construction of the inland waterways terminal is regarded as most important for the inland corporation.

Senator Brookhart told Hurley that he is personally interested in the divergent viewpoints of the opponents and supporters of this project and would go to Clinton in an effort to assist the supporters.

Meets Burlington Officials
After his visit to the tri-cities Secretary Hurley took a speed boat down the river toward Burlington to meet local representatives there, before leaving on an overnight trip to Keokuk, where he will inspect the dam project.

This will be the last halt the party will make before reaching St. Louis Saturday for a three day stay. The Rock Island visit today gave Secretary Hurley a chance to see first hand the greatest problem engineers face in constructing a nine foot channel from the twin cities to the mouth of the Mississippi.

The rapids above Arsenal Island flow over virgin rock that has resisted any attempts at dredging. The only method of control engineers have been able to find is by construction by a dam to raise the water level at this point and sea walls along both banks to prevent overflow. The work, it is estimated, would cost $5,502,000 and would require four years.

Experts on Arctic Focus Attention on Records of Andree's Polar Attempt

Observers Believe Explorer's Diary, Log Will Provide Complete Story of Cause of Epic Disaster

Copyright, 1930, and all rights reserved in North and South America and in Japan by The Associated Press.

TROMSOE, Norway, Sept. 4 (AP)—The diary and log of Salomon August Andree, aeronautical Polar explorer, brought back from White Island where Andree had lain in an icy grave for 33 years, today focused the interest of experts examining the relics of his expedition.

These priceless notes are being guarded with extreme care by experts and their contents have not been divulged. Close observers, however, believe that these various books will provide a dramatic and more or less complete history of the Andree expedition from the time the explorers started away with a balloon until Andree, as sole survivor, landed his poor, wracked frame against an earthy bank near his last stand, and composed himself to die. As he died he tried to shield some of his records with his body so that the world some time might know the story of his adventures. It should be repeated that this is mere speculation, since the outside world has had nothing from Andree's records.

Records Written Concisely
It is believed that the records are written as concisely as possible, with unnecessary details, partly because of frightful torture which the explorers were undergoing and partly to conserve their pencils, and that Andree kept his tragic memoranda to the last. His notes may tell how disaster overtook the balloon wherein the three were trying to fly across the pole. Then came a terrible march across churning ice fields in bitter Arctic cold.

There they were for a time—Andree, Nils Strindberg and Knut Frank—and then something happened to Frank. Perhaps exhaustion overtook him. Perhaps he fell through a hole in the ice into the green waters which swallowed him.

"It needs no diary to tell that Andree and Strindberg struggled on, dragging with them their heavy equipment which they dared not desert, for it meant life and possibly rescue. Obviously they finally came to White Island, where they died.

Andree's notes may tell when they arrived at White Island, and may reveal how long they were able to cling to life after their arrival. They may not have been there long, because no proper camp had been prepared. They may have been too exhausted and numbed.

Strindberg Died First
Experts already have decided that Strindberg died first and that Andree, as sole survivor, landed his poor, wracked frame against an earthy bank near his last stand, and composed himself to die. As he died he tried to shield some of his records with his body so that the world some time might know the story of his adventures. It should be repeated that this is mere speculation, since the outside world has had nothing from Andree's records.

Wife Fears Tommy Abbott, Moran Aide, "Taken for Ride"

CHICAGO, Sept. 4 (AP)—Whether taken for a last "ride" or gone into voluntary exile, Tommy Abbott, a Moran gang lieutenant, is missing.

His wife told his attorneys today that he left Friday in his car. She has not seen or heard from him since.

Abbott is scheduled to appear in court at Rockford, Ill., next Monday on a charge of robbery.

He was arrested in Chicago July 19 after police heard his auto was used in an attempt to assassinate Jack Zuta, later the victim of a successful attempt.

Attorneys checked all authorities in the vicinity today and learned that Abbott is not in custody.

Bank Bandit Pleads Guilty

Dakota Robber Given Twenty-Two Year Sentence

GETTYSBURG, S. D., Sept. 4 (AP)—Pleading guilty to a bank robbery charge before Judge Frank Fisher of Miller today, John Frank Fisher of the trio who robbed the Haven State bank of Hoven of $2,800 Wednesday, was sentenced to 22 years in the state penitentiary at Sioux Falls.

Sentence was pronounced in circuit court here after McDonald had waived preliminary examination earlier in the day.

Harold Bryant, the name originally given by the bandit, was discarded when he was arraigned. He gave no address and refused to identify his two companions, one of whom is dead and the other in serious condition at a Faulkton hospital from wounds suffered in a gun fight near Tolstoy that preceded their capture.

MacDonald told police he had met the two at Monong, N. D., and that it was there they had planned the robbery and stolen the automobile in which they traveled.

Howard Furdy and Eugene Harbold of Tolstoy, wounded as they aided in capture of the bandits, remained at an Aberdeen hospital tonight, but will be released in a day or two. The former was shot in the foot and the latter in the hand.

Seven Boys Return From Arctic Venture

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Sept. 4 (AP)—Out of the north, down from the Arctic circle, came seven stout adventurers here today. Until seven weeks ago they were just so many Chicago boys, but when they arrived with Commander Donald B. MacMillan on the good ship Bowdoin today, they were well seasoned seadoughs, with hearty tales of the far north to tell.

The boys, Bill Thomas, Jim Markham, John Post, Paul Davis, Bud Gruelee, Ed Hoffman and Frank Elliott, all of Chicago, were the group taken by MacMillan on his trip to the north this year.

The entire voyage was without serious mishap, and under the explorer's guidance, the boys acquired no little scientific information.

Nye Leaves for Vacation in Wisconsin

Will Resume Probe of Illinois Campaign Upon Return

CHICAGO, Sept. 4 (AP)—Having announced his determination to continue his probe of Illinois senatorial primary expenditures, "no matter how unpleasant it may be," Senator Gerald P. Nye left today for a short rest in Wisconsin before resuming the work of his senate committee here Sept. 15.

He left after an impromptu two day session of the committee, called to investigate the employment of private detectives by Congressman Ruth Hanna McCormick, republican senatorial nominee, to keep watch on the activities of the committee's investigators.

Refuses Records
At the hearing, the committee heard testimony by W. C. Dannenberg, head of the agency engaged by Mrs. McCormick, that the nominee employed him after the ransacking of files in her farm home at Byron, Ill., and after Dannenberg said, a strange woman had been found in Mrs. McCormick's room at the Drake hotel here. The detective also charged that the committee was not aware of the methods of its investigators, urged them to "investigate their own investigators," and refused to produce his records until his attorney had time to study the committee's powers.

The hearing was precipitated by Mrs. McCormick's statement that she was the employer of investigators whose existence was revealed at Fargo, N. D., and her question: "What is Senator Nye going to do about it?"

Denounce Shadowing
Senator Nye and his fellow committee member, Senator Porter H. Dale of Vermont, have issued statements denouncing the employment of operatives to "shadow them," and declaring that the committee has acted ethically in its study of Mrs. McCormick's campaign expenditures. Before he left today Senator Nye said he had been "shadowed to exasperation" and added:

"Obnoxious as the whole business has been, it has not been without its humorous side and I am now more amused than annoyed."

Riot Rages Between Louisiana Officers

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 4 (AP)—Conflict between city police and state highway officers tonight at a political rally in the interest of Governor Huey P. Long's senatorial candidacy caused a disturbance which was not quieted until a riot squad of city police went to the scene.

Sergeant Lionel Esmond, supervising 15 highway patrolmen directing traffic at Canal street and Claiborne avenue, where the long rally was being held, and eight other men were arrested by city officers.

The clash between the state and municipal arms of authority was caused by disagreement as to jurisdiction.

2 Die in Motorcycle Crash
FAIRFIELD, Sept. 4 (AP)—Vern McNeely, 21 years old, and Glen Pamilton, 37 years old, were killed when their motorcycle collided with an automobile driven by Henry Traut of Mt. Pleasant Wednesday night. McNeely died instantly while Pamilton died in a hospital a few hours later.

A great deal of quiet experimenting is being made with wide film. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer recently created a sensation with the announcement of an over-size celluloid that can be used with but slight changes in the ordinary projectors and machines.

STORY GALEY—1

What was gone before: Francis Ballion, whose wife, Celia, was strangled in her room at night is quizzed by Norse, a police official, after a glove bearing the initials F. B. is found beside the door. Mrs. Ballion had manifested symptoms of mental derangement, and Dr. Ames, who was summoned by her sister, Eleanor Graham, declared her to be in deadly fear of her husband and urged a change of scene. She was murdered that night. Carl Ballion insists that his brother is innocent. An inspection of the house reveals among Francis Ballion's possessions several ancient instruments of torture. When Ballion is found, Norse quizzes him.

Now go on with the story:

"Here are the facts," Norse said to Francis Ballion. "Yesterday, following a dispute with your wife regarding money, you left Greyhound. Last night between the hours of one and three she was murdered by strangling. Your glove was found on the bed. The shadow of a man who wore a hat similar to yours was seen on the house driveway. You have keys permitting your entrance. When called at four o'clock, you had not returned to your club. In addition, it appears that you would benefit financially at her death, and that your relations have been strained for some time. She seems to have been in fear of you, and, on the other hand, you have neglected her. Surely I hardly need point out that, barring contrary testimony, any jury would convict you on this evidence. You are in an exceedingly dangerous position, and it is a matter for your desire as to whether your defense will take. I must warn you besides that anything you say may be used against you."

An Eye For An Eye

Most of Hollywood is laughing at the aftermath of the Rex Lease-Vivian Duncan battle, but Tiffany Studio officials are making wary faces. They are compelled to use a double for Lease in long shorts until his eye has recovered from its connection with the avenging fist of Vivian's brother. Now that everybody's honor is satisfied, I suppose the matter can drop.

Watchful Waiting

Though six months have passed since Mary Lewis, the opera singer, was signed by Pathe, her picture has yet to materialize. Unless I'm mistaken, Miss Lewis even went on a diet to assure that she would have the fashionable Hollywood figure.

and remaining concealed until the family had retired. "True; but how to leave again without lowering the chains or releasing a bolt? They are not accessible from the outside." Norse pointed to the narrow door in the angle of the room. "That way," he said. "On the outside it is studded with iron sufficient to allow purchase for the fingers in closing it. Your problem could be solved that way."

What does that matter?"

"I should think," said Norse, "it was very important." "What matters?" continued Ballion. "Is that the door was opened, that death entered—his dark eyes swept the room—fatal to me, but fatal also to others, perhaps many. And dropping into a half-whisper: 'I feel his spirit as if it were standing here—waiting. What does the rest concern us—I told you it was not I who crossed that threshold.'"

"Another time," returned the detective; "it seems to me we have more immediate business on hand. Mr. Ballion, I have spread out the cards that would be used by a prosecuting attorney. things here I should like to arrange. There is also the question of Celia's burial. If you could do this for me, I should be very grateful." "I will," said Norse, "but you are not to leave the house." There was a knock at the door, and Norse's man, Roose, entered to make his report. "I've found," he said, "some footprints on the gravel just outside there," and he jerked his thumb toward the narrow door. "They were pretty plain, and here are the tracings. Position and direction noted. The gravel is of a peculiar red color, and that might be worth remembering."

Norse glanced at the tracings.

"Very well—anything else?" "This," said Roose impressively, and he laid on the desk something that stirred and uncoiled as if alive. "I heard a sharp exclamation from Ballion."

Looking at this object, I saw that it was a leather strap, looped and provided with a steel hook that served also as handle. Snatching it up, Norse gazed, and then thrust the thing out toward Ballion. "Here," he said, "this would seem to be a specimen from your collection." But the other looked away, his face ashen. "Well, is it yours?" continued Norse.

"Tell us what it is then—you're an expert in such things." He held up the strap between thumb and forefinger, like a dead adder. "Why," said Ballion at last, in a thick voice, "Don't you see what it is! It's a garrote of the Inquisition, the strangling-throat!" There was a moment's silence. "I suppose now," he continued, "you will be inclined to revoke your decision as to my arrest?" But I was amazed at the firmness of Norse's reply. "No, I am not."

"That's strange," murmured the other, and my thought echoed him. "Can it be that you believe me innocent?" "I do." And, as I stared at him, incredulous, Norse added: "It's a question, though, if anyone else would believe it. You shall have your 24 hours. Afterward, I shall be forced to act on the evidence." (TO BE CONTINUED)

Cubs, Hornsby in Lineup, Beat Pirates; Cards Tie Giants for Second Place

'Rajah' Fails to Hit Safely in 2 Attempts

Hartnett Smacks Pair of Home Runs; Kiki Gets Another

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 4 (AP)—Chicago gained a full game on the New York Giants in the National League campaign when two home runs by Gaby Hartnett and one by Kiki Cuyler gave the champions a 10 to 7 victory over Pittsburgh in ten innings here today. The game also saw the return of Rogers Hornsby, Cub second baseman.

Hartnett's first circuit blow came in the sixth inning off Wood with two on base and put the visitors in the game, as they were trailing 6 to 2 as the inning got under way.

Cuyler, former Pirate, tied up the contest with a home run off Wood in the eighth, and a double off the bat of Jess Petty, also an ex-Buccaneer, put the Cubs a run to the good in the same session.

"The Waner act" came to the rescue of the Pirates in the ninth to put across one run and deadlock the tally after two were out. Lloyd doubled and brother Paul tripled.

Swone went in for Pittsburgh in the tenth, relieving French, who had taken the place of recruit Charley Wood in the eighth. After Taylor and Kelly had become occupants of bases through the medium of single Hartnett came to the rescue with his game-winning clout.

The fray was a thriller throughout, featured by long hits and sensational plays. Lloyd Waner made two remarkable catches in one inning.

Hornsby was back in the Cub lineup following a long absence due to injuries. The "Rajah" who said he was still a "bit lame" failed to get a hit. He said he figured he would be all right adding that "when Joe (McCarthy) asked me to go in today I was glad to help out."

The sudden rise of St. Louis to prominence in the National League race is something to talk about. One month ago today they were nine places behind the Robins, then in first place, and six and a half behind the second place Cubs. Today they are four and a half behind the Cubs in first place, and are tied with the Giants for second. The Robins are one and a half games behind the Cards and Giants. This represents a net gain of 10 and a half games on the Robins, and two on the Cubs.

Right now the Cards look like the "hottest" proposition in the senior loop.

But the Cubs are in a commanding position. They have 19 scheduled games to play, with possibly one or two hold overs in addition. Three more with Pittsburgh (and by the way, the Pirates have been forced to leave the Cubs all year long series with both the Robins and Phillies who have been "coupons" to the Bruins all through the 1930 season. The four and a half game lead the Cubs now hold looks like a lot at this time, even though they do wind up the year with Cincinnati, their poison.

The Cubs may not need those games, however.

The Cards, on the other hand, after finishing their current series with the Reds, go to New York, where following a long absence due to injuries, the "Rajah" who said he was still a "bit lame" failed to get a hit. He said he figured he would be all right adding that "when Joe (McCarthy) asked me to go in today I was glad to help out."

Which reminds me that earlier in the year I said that the Robins were too far ahead to fall behind third place. They are worse than I thought.

Two Iowa City would-be golfers were leading a certain tea yesterday when both, at the same time, spied a good ball a little ways off the green. Both dropped for it, and a beautiful wrestling match that would have made Mike Howard's eyes gleam with envy ensued. One finally emerged victorious, and started up, only to see two other golfers approaching down the fairway.

He dropped the ball—sheepishly.

Giants Lose to Boston, 7 to 1

BOSTON, Sept. 4 (AP)—The New York Giants lost ground in the league National League pennant race today, when they failed to connect with the offerings of old Tom Zachary, the Boston Braves winning 7 to 1.

The Giants made nine hits off the former Yankee southpaw, but old Tom was sitting in the pitcher's box, the only run coming as the result of Jackson's triple and Roettger's single in the seventh. Four double plays played an important role in Zachary's victory.

Big Six Averages

(By The Associated Press)

Al Simmons had plenty of chances to improve his big six batting average yesterday as he went to the plate eight times in the Athletic's prolonged game against Boston and he did it to the extent of clouting his thirty-third home run of the season, a double and two singles, improving his mark two points.

Simmons remained six behind Lou Gehrig, the American league leader, who dropped four points as he went hitless in four times at bat, and four back of the big six third place rivals, Chuck Klein and Babe Herman, who again were idle.

Bill Terry, the leader, dropped three points to .407 as he failed in four attempts to hit, while Babe Ruth, the tall ender held his mark at .399 with one hit in three official tries.

IDEAL FIRST BASEMEN

LOU GEHRIG
 YANK FIRST SACKER AND HOME RUN STAR WHO IS HAVING A WONDERFUL YEAR —AND (Below) BILL TERRY OF THE GIANTS' GREATEST FIRST BASEMEN IN THE GAME!

New York's big league teams are marvelously well equipped at first base, with "Memphis Bill" Terry of the Giants and "Columbia Lou" Gehrig of the Yankees in the midst of red letter seasons. At the bat and in the field they dazzle consistently. Terry is threatening to lead the National League in hitting, while Gehrig is pressing Babe Ruth in the race to establish a new home run record. Each seems at the very zenith of his career in every department of baseball.

Terry was such a sandlot wonder at Atlanta back in 1914 that he signed a contract to pitch for the St. Louis Browns when only 15 years old! But the club learned he was too young, the contract was dropped, and later Gehrig had been one of Columbia university's greatest football and baseball lights when he joined the Yankees several years ago after a season as a home-run sensation with the Hartford club of the Eastern league. "Lou" made good from the start, soon serving as a pacesetter for Ruth's homeric efforts.

The "Buster" and the "Babe" are still "the Siamese Twins of Soccer"—the pair who get the most out of that much moot "rabbit" ball.

It looks now as though Terry and Gehrig each will win general recognition as the best first basemen in his respective league for 1930—and "Memphis Bill" is spurred on more than ever with his lead in line for World's Series glory and clout.

Auto Turns Over; Driver Badly Injured

Motorist Says He Was Asleep at Wheel; Brought Here

Millard Bealer, 54 years old, of Cedar Rapids, was brought to university hospital yesterday with a dislocated shoulder and four fractured ribs, the result, he explained, of going to sleep at the wheel while driving.

He was enroute from Tipton to Cedar Rapids before daylight Thursday morning and as he dozed his machine turned turtle and rolled into a ditch by the road. Efforts to stop cars along the highway were futile in the dark and the injured man had to walk along the road until daylight when a Shuerville motorist picked him up and rushed him to St. Luke's hospital in Cedar Rapids.

He was later brought here in order that the injured right shoulder might have care of a specialist. Dr. Dale Cooper, attending physician, said that an open operation will be performed on the shoulder and Bealer may be confined to the hospital for several weeks. The doctor said other injuries were not serious.

Fred Martin Fined $300

Pleading guilty to charges of operating a car while intoxicated Fred Martin was fined $300 and costs yesterday by Judge H. D. Evans in district court. One hundred dollars was suspended on good behavior.

Martin was released on bond of $500 Aug. 18 following a crash the previous night between his car and a street lamp on W. Burlington street. He was fined $25 in police court at the time on intoxication charges.

Hi Yackey Thinks Tipton Slayers Will Be Caught Shortly

The three bandits who on Aug. 8 shot and killed R. G. Sproat, Cedar county vigilante, when he sought to arrest them as they were fleeing from a drug store robbery at Daventon, will be arrested and convicted in the opinion of Hi Yackey, state agent who has been working on the case at Tipton for three weeks.

Yackey added that he believed at least one of the slayers would be arrested and convicted within 60 days. He refused to reveal any of the information he and County Attorney Marion C. Hummel had gathered, merely saying that progress had been satisfactory, according to the Associated Press.
