Missing Man Returns After Long Waiting

Bilbrey Takes Assumed Name Under Threat of Bandits

Found working under an assumed name on the Raymond Fenstermaker farm near West Liberty late this afternoon, Marion Bilbrey, Glasgow, Ky., truck driver, missing since Oct. 5, was on his way home tonight. Mayor W. L. Mackey and Marshal George Hines of West Liberty are driving Bilbrey to the Kentucky city.

Bilbrey, working under the name of Walter Johnson, readily admitted his identity when approached this afternoon, and expressed eagerness to get back home. Hines, however, was requested by the sheriff of Glasgow to return Bilbrey to that city and consequently accompanied him on the trip.

Disappeared Oct. 8
Bilbrey disappeared Oct. 8. His truck was found next day near Red Rolling Springs, Tenn., splattered with blood and bearing bullet marks.

He told officers today that three bandits held him up Oct. 8, bundled him into the back of his truck and drove toward some unknown destination. Some place in Illinois, he believes, the trio staged a filing station holdup. On Oct. 12, he was put out of the car a short distance from West Liberty, he said. They gave him $5 and a revolver. The trio instructed him at the time to keep his identity secret for two weeks and not to communicate with his home during that time. Bilbrey said he was ordered to assume the name of Walter Johnson.

Wife Receives Appeal
The Kentucky sheriff had followed the instructions to keep his identity secret. The search for him was focused on West Liberty yesterday, when his wife received a letter asking her to send him railroad fare.

A search for him yesterday having proved futile, Marshal Hines today located Bilbrey after recalling that about Oct. 12 he had found a job on the Fenstermaker farm for a stranger who applied to him for work.

Reading Says England Still True to Jews

LONDON, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Jewish telegraphic agency says the Marquis of Reading admonished the British government not to "create the impression all over the world that it had played false to the Jews," in the House of Lords today immediately after the reading of the King's address.

"I am desirous to impress the government that this is not a question merely between the Jews and the Arabs, but a question of British honor," he said.

Speaking of Arab and Jewish equality, Lord Reading continues, "The one would controvert the statement that the religious liberties of the Arabs must be respected as well as those of any other section of the population. Nevertheless when the government once stated it pledged itself to establish a Jewish national home it should not be at liberty in later years to take action which produced the impression among many who were interested all over the world that the government had really played the Jews false."

Bruce Todd Hovers Close to Death After Being Shot in Head

CHICAGO, Oct. 28 (AP)—Bruce Todd of St. Paul, brother of Kay Todd, wealthy insurance broker of that city, continued to hover near death today. The 28 year old man was found in the washroom of a nightclub early this morning with a bullet wound in his head immediately after employes heard a shot. A .38 caliber revolver was lying beside him.

Todd was identified by papers found in his pockets and in the room at the hotel where he registered Oct. 25. Details as to his family connections were furnished by H. E. Carney, Jr., son of the former owner of the Carney Cement company of Mankato, Minn. A note addressed to Carney, asking that he call him, was found in Todd's room.

Carney said Todd was here on insurance business and that he was in good spirits when he visited the nightclub several nights ago. Night club attaches said Todd was a frequent patron.

BANKER HELD FOR RANSOM

Murgage (lower right), volunteer American Legion guard, examining telephone wires at Yocum home which were cut by kidnapers.

Kidnapers of Yocum Wait for Ransom

Wife of Banker Works Alone for Return of Husband

GALVA, Ill., Oct. 28 (AP)—One little corner of the veil of mystery that has shrouded the disappearance of Earl Yocum, wealthy banker of Galva and Aurelia, Ia., was lifted today revealing the certainty that he was kidnaped and is being held for ransom.

Mrs. Yocum, who has elected to try single-handed to bring about her husband's return, confirmed the common belief that he was seized by abductors Saturday night and was being held as hostage. The details she kept strictly to herself.

Mrs. Yocum held steadfastly to her determination to keep the whole matter to herself, presumably fearing harm to the banker if she did not follow the instructions of the kidnapers. "The amount of ransom is known only to myself. I have not and will not take any other person into my confidence," she told reporters. "I am handling the situation myself the best I know how."

"I do not know when he will be released and I have nothing to say regarding any arrangements for his release."

"I have not said I would pay the ransom and I will not say now."

Authorities Drop Search
And there the whole case rested. County authorities, who suspended their search for the bank head yesterday, said it was useless to try to do anything unless Mrs. Yocum told them the contents of the two letters she has received since his disappearance supposedly written by her husband at the command of the extortionists.

Yocum disappeared Saturday night after being accosted by two strangers in front of his estate.

Wilkins, Polar Explorer, to Speak on Arctic Adventures

In his lecture, "Flying the Ends of the Earth," to be given at 8 o'clock tonight in Iowa Union, Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins, polar explorer, will outline his plans for submarine exploration in the arctic. The expedition, which will probably embark next summer, is to be equipped with a submarine especially prepared with the recently developed hatches for underwater escape.

Craft U. S. "Gift"
The craft is a "gift" of the United States navy—that is, Captain Wilkins will pay the government a rental of one dollar a year and will return the boat at the end of six years in order that it may be scrapped in accordance with international agreements.

King George Reads First Labor Paper

Grave Court Business Follows Opening of Session

LONDON, Oct. 28 (AP)—King George read from the throne in the House of Lords today, his first address ever prepared by labor ministers to deal with the problems of the British empire.

In the shadows behind the bar, which separated him from the colorful actors in the royal procession, stood the laborite prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald, who with his colleagues, put the words of the royal pronouncement into the monarch's mouth.

The king opened parliament with Queen Mary at his side, with the ceremonies of which London through the centuries never has tired. In the clear resonant voice familiar before long illness, he mentioned the speech. Ambassador Dawes Present
The old time company of peers in their ermine and scarlet robes and perusses, gowned and bejeweled, produced a highly theatrical effect.

The soviet ambassador was garbed much like Ambassador Dawes, of the United States. In formal evening dress, Tom Henderson, controller of the king's household, once a ship's carpenter and Ben Smith, treasurer of the royal household, once a taxicab driver in London streets, wore their attire as if born to such occasions.

In this "peaceful revolution" was another change to the modern. The perusses wore their shimmings, trailing gowns very long. Ankle length dresses were the rule, just revealing silver slippers.

The ceremony in the house of lords lasted only 20 minutes. Then the king took his queen by the hand and the procession retraced itself to the royal coach which rolled back through crowded streets to Buckingham palace.

The serious business of parliament began in debates based on the government's program as announced in the king's speech.

Officials Get Auto Greeting

Missouri Contributes to Formal Opening of New Pavement

MASON CITY, Oct. 28 (AP)—In 231 minutes today, a message of greeting from the governor of Missouri to the governors of Iowa and Minnesota was carried by automobile to Iowa.

The contribution to the formal program opening the 600 mile stretch of paving linking the three states, on Jefferson highway.

The message, brought by W. A. Hopkins, president of the old interstate trail, was delivered to Governors John Hammill of Iowa, and Theodore Christianson of Minnesota, as they stood on their respective sides of the state line.

They came from the red, white and blue ribbon, a taping of which marked the opening of the interstate trail, now a part of the Jefferson highway.

Hopkins traveled 244 miles along U. S. highway 65 to deliver the message, arriving here at 9:51 a. m., having averaged 63.37 miles an hour.

Canadians Attend
Caravans of automobiles, bearing hundreds of motorists from Iowa and Minnesota, witnessed the cutting of the ribbon and saw Governors Hammill and Christianson unveil a bronze tablet to commemorate the opening of the longest north and south paving in the middle west. The tablet was mounted on a concrete monolith.

The undertaking, according to Wilkins, will not be so hazardous as one would ordinarily suppose. The polar ice, he says, is not continuous, there are many gaps, and the thin ice may be broken through from underneath without damaging the submarine.

Invited by Senate Board
An account of his adventures and projects at the two poles will comprise the greater part of Sir Hubert's lecture. He will illustrate his experiences with slides and moving pictures taken by himself.

Officials Rush Plans to Give Jobless Help

Government to Place 228,490 Workers on Payroll

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP)—The campaign to rid the jobless horde of want in the lean winter months advanced with definite strides today as the federal government made plans to create more opportunities for work and outside agencies began functioning to relieve local distress.

Announcements of the government's action coupled with reports from different sections of the country of the steps taken by voluntary organizations greeted Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the president's emergency committee for employment, upon his return late today from New York.

Post Office Increases Roll
Plans of the post office department to place 228,490 additional persons of its payroll during the Christmas holiday season beginning Dec. 13 were outlined by Postmaster General Brown. In this manner about $6,720,000 will be distributed to needy breadwinners, President Hoover having previously signed an executive order waiving civil service qualifications of workmen in order to make the widest distribution to the most destitute.

Three New Hospitals
General Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans affairs, said the veterans bureau would award contracts within a few weeks for hospital units costing $7,000,000, which would provide work for 4,500 men. The hospitals are to be located at Indianapolis, Ind., Waco, Tex., Camp Custer, Mich., and additions are to be undertaken at Northport, Long Island, Somerset, N. J., and Tuscon, Arizona.

Bids were opened today for a $5,270,000 office building for the house of representatives in Washington as another employment measure.

R-101 Disaster Inquiry Begins

Jowitt Reveals Broken Elevator Cable in Airship

LONDON, Oct. 28 (AP)—Causes of the disaster which overtook the British dirigible R-101 resulting in the loss of 48 lives, were discussed at the opening of Britain's formal inquiry into the catastrophe today.

The first session of the court furnished several surprises. One of them came when Sir William Jowitt revealed that a cable controlling the elevator in the airship had been broken in the wreckage.

Oil Engines Too Heavy
Another was his disclosure that experimental oil engines in the ship weighed eight tons more than originally planned, 17 tons as against 9.

Sir William also said a possible cause of the tragic end of the world's largest flying craft might have been due to some error in the working of its altimeter.

Sir John Simon, presiding at the inquiry, added to Sir William's conclusions the statement that "some failure from the ground to send information" might have influenced the fate of the R-101 which exploded and burned at Beauvais, France, Oct. 5.

"Striking Dramatic Feat"
The government investigator said it was impossible to determine at present whether the elevator cable he referred to had broken before the crash.

A discussion of why the flight to India was attempted three weeks ago followed. Sir William said "there probably is no doubt that Lord Thompson, air minister killed in the disaster, thought it would be a striking, dramatic feat to accomplish a flight to India and come home in safety, while the imperial conference was sitting."

LECTURES ON ARCTIC

Captain Sir George Hubert Wilkins will speak on his Arctic explorations in the second university lecture of the year tonight at 8 o'clock in the main lounge of Iowa Union. His subject will be "Flying to the ends of the earth" and will be illustrated with motion pictures.

Doxsee Gives Summation of State's Case

Mrs. Miner Asserts Finding of Letter in Slipper

ANAMOSA, Oct. 28 (AP)—The case of Albert Hartwig, aged Olin farmer, on trial before a jury in the district court of Judge Atherton B. Clark for an alleged part in the killing of Edward Miner of Olin, is expected to reach the jury tomorrow afternoon.

The surprise of today's proceedings came when the defense offered no testimony to combat that of the state that Mrs. Tilda Miner was the author of letters attributed to her deceased husband, one of which epistles Mrs. Miner asserted on the stand yesterday, she found in a slipper at the Rockwell City reformatory where she is serving a life sentence for an alleged part in the killing.

Handwriting Experts Take Stand
The state introduced W. C. Hanning, president of the Cedar Rapids business college and a handwriting expert, who testified that in his opinion all three notes supposed to have been written by Miner were the work of his wife.

Hanning was closely cross questioned but the defense was unable to shake his testimony as to how he arrived at the conclusion that Mrs. Miner wrote what has become known as the "Cinderella slipper note."

It was expected that the defense would introduce a Cedar Rapids handwriting expert who compared the three purported notes with Miner's known handwriting and pronounced them written by the same person. Another surprise was created when the defense suddenly rested at the conclusion of Hanning's testimony.

The defendant admitted receiving a note from Mrs. Miner in which she requested him to buy poison for her but denied he had read it, asserting that he could not read or write any language except German.

He admitted that he had frequently visited the Miner home when Miner was not present, but asserted it was always for business reasons and made no attempt to conceal his visits.

The highlights of Hartwig's testimony was his denial in emphatic language of a conversation attributed to him by Ray Purcell, deputy sheriff, when he was taken to Solon last summer to visit his banker.

$5,270,000 Low Bid for New Washington Legislatorial Offices

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP)—Bids for an addition to the House office building were opened today, with the Consolidated Engineering Co., of Baltimore bidding $5,270,000, lowest of 29 construction companies competing.

The new structure, which will rise just north of the present white marble building facing the right wing of the Capital, will have office space for about half the members of the House. It is a part of the mammoth beautification plan, which involves an outlay of $115,000,000 over a period of forty years.

U. S. Hears Shaw Praise Science King

Radio Carries Dinner Talks Clearly to New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—Three thousand miles across the Atlantic the voices of George Bernard Shaw and Professor Albert Einstein came to the western world today, almost as distinctly as though they had traveled only a few yards.

They spoke at a dinner given in honor of Einstein at the Savoy hotel in London by the joint British committee for the promotion of the physical and economic welfare of eastern Jewry.

Shaw in a speech that kept his British audience chuckling most of the time, introduced Einstein and proposed a toast to him as "the greatest of our contemporaries."

Einstein responded in German. "Shaw pleased Einstein among 'the men who are great among great men.'"

"Napoleon and great men of his sort," he said, "were makers of empire. But there is an order of great men beyond that. They are the makers of universes, and their hands are unstained by the blood of any human being on earth."

Universe Makers Rare
"They are very rare, these makers of universes. I can go back 2,500 years and name them on my two hands."

He then named eight, among whom were Aristotle, Copernicus, Galileo, Newton, and Einstein, adding as he finished, "and you see I still have two fingers vacant."

Commission Hears Pleas for Changes in Straw Hat Tariff

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP)—Conflicting pleas for higher and for lower duties on straw hats were made today before the United States tariff commission.

Opening the first public hearing under the altered flexible provision, the commission heard straw hat importers, urge a slash of 50 per cent in present rates. At the same time domestic manufacturers, joined by labor leaders, asked more protection.

Tomelo Angelon, commercial attaché of the Italian embassy, said the straw hat duties levied by the Smoot-Hawley act had so decreased exports from Italy "as to forecast a complete shutting off of any legitimate business in that article from Italy to the United States."

Pleading the cause of labor, M. J. Flynn of the American Wage Earners Protective association, attacked the holding of tariff hearings at this time "as contributing to unrest."

Blast Buries 29 Oklahoma Coal Miners

Lower Levels Contain Fate of Sought-for Imprisoned

McALESTER, Okla., Oct. 28 (AP)—Fighting deadly after-damp and handicapped by debris, rescue crews continued efforts tonight to reach lower levels of the Wheatley number 4 mine, where a blast last night entombed 29 men and killed William Donley, working at the mine mouth.

Lessie Rosso, working with Donley, was injured when he was hurled against the tippie. John Moore, a rescue worker, was taken to a McAlester hospital unconscious. Several of the 61 men, most of them from neighboring mines, forming the rescue party, were overcome by gas.

Some May Have Escaped
A report that reached the engine house late today that bodies of four men had been sighted on the sixteenth level, was discounted tonight.

Possibility that some may have escaped the terrific blast, which was heard two miles away, and the coal damp that followed, led workers to redouble their efforts to break through rock falls, restore ventilation and reach the levels where the men were trapped.

A group of seven who went into the shaft this afternoon, returned to the surface after three hours work to report they believed they had been within about 400 feet of the victims.

Emergency Methods Used
Three falls of debris had been bridged this afternoon to permit rapid removal of any of the men found alive. A half dozen ambulances waited near the mine mouth. An emergency hospital had been set up on the ground.

Ventilating fans were kept in operation to clear the mine of gas as barriers after barriers were penetrated.

Some of the more optimistic said there was some hope for the men if they had closed the ledge doors. The force of the blast appeared to have occurred higher in the mine than where the men were at work and the force usually went upward, they said.

A company of national guardsmen arrived late today and assumed guard duty, which American Legion members here undertook last night.

Relatives of the victims who have stood at the mine entrance since the detonation, anxiously awaiting word of their loved ones, began drifting to their homes as reports spread that the men could not be reached before tomorrow.

T. W. Wheatley, manager of the mine, collapsed as he started to assist rescue workers. Throughout the day he sat in the engine house, staring at the floor. He had a premonition, he said, that an explosion was to occur, and he was thinking about it at the time he was notified at his home of the disaster.

Royal Couple Brave Adriatic Storm on Yacht Trip to Sofia

CORINTH, Greece, Oct. 28 (AP)—After having braved an Adriatic storm of sale proportions, the Bulgarian royal yacht, Czar Ferdinand, bearing King Boris and Queen Giovanna, tonight had safely passed through the canal of Corinth.

The newly wedded royal couple are enroute to Sofia, where on Thursday a civil marriage is scheduled to be performed.

This marriage, Premier Liptchoff is understood to have said, will take place at 10 o'clock in the morning and will resemble more closely the orthodox marriage form than a simple benediction.

The royal yacht was caught by a violent gale while the couple were crossing from Brindisi to Varna, Black Sea port. After being out of touch with the world for hours, due to atmospheric interference, the Czar Ferdinand radiated shortly after 3:30 o'clock, that the royal honeymooners were in stilled waters.

Baby Austin Calls Duke Wellington's Bluff on Fast Trip

Duke Wellington of Davenport and his Moon straight eight have nothing on Leonard Meade, E4 of West-ern Springs, Ill., and Wendell Sunleaf, A1 of Geneva, Ill., when it comes to driving.

Wellington drove from Davenport to Iowa City Sunday, a distance of 92 miles, in 47 minutes. Mead and Sunleaf drove to Chicago Saturday in a baby Austin owned by A. B. Cummings, E4 of Ute, averaging from 35 to 40 miles per hour and spending the amazing sum of $2.15 for gas and oil on the 515 mile round trip.

In spite of the fact that the Austin motor is small enough to make a practical generator for the Moon motor, it did its duty and pulled the miniature car under street caps and between milk wagon horses' legs without a mishap.

It is not known how long the men rode with their trunk-size vehicle on the baggage carriers of larger cars, but they made the trip on $2.15 worth of gas and oil and a nickel's worth of the rubber slip exploring the lower atmosphere of the highway.

Allbee Talks at Swisher

Democratic Candidate Objects to Politics in Business

State and national issues were discussed by Gus Allbee, Muscatine attorney, and G. A. Kenderline, of Iowa City, at the initial democratic rally of the 1930 campaign for Johnson county held in the town hall of Swisher, Monday night.

Mr. Kenderline is democratic candidate for supreme court. Allbee cited instances to show the increase of taxes during the past three years and also stated that "through acts of the legislature, taxation power has been taken from local authorities."

More Local Government He asked for a strict economy of state affairs and reduction of state expenses, which consequently would mean a reduction of taxes. Mr. Allbee pleaded for more local government and criticized what he termed "a growing bureaucracy in the government."

Kenderline Speaks Mr. Kenderline spoke of the democratic stand in national affairs of today. He said that the democratic party in this campaign is laying emphasis on repeal of the present existing tariff law and the enactment of a tariff which would provide a fair measure of equality between European manufacturers and our own.

Mr. Kenderline also referred to the farm problem and business depression, asking that we have "less business in politics and less politics in business."

Candidates Attend Dr. W. L. Bywater, county chairman, spoke briefly of the local political situation with a review of the democratic candidates for county offices attended the rally. The next democratic rally will be held at Solon tomorrow evening with W. J. Keefe, of Clinton, speaking in behalf of B. M. Jacobsen. Mr. Jacobsen is candidate for representative to congress from the second district.

Wire Failure Causes Fear for Kanchow

HONG KONG, Oct. 28 (AP)—Failure of communication by wireless with Kanchow, a city of 250,000 population in Kiangsi province, caused fear here today that it had fallen to communists who have occupied the city of Kian since Oct. 5.

The local government station's calls to Kanchow went unanswered, leading to the belief reds had interfered with the Kanchow station, which is within the city walls.

Kanchow is in southern Kiangsi, four days march from Kian. The former city has only 1,000 troops in its garrison. At Kian, recently, red leaders intimidated to Bishop Magnani and Father de Jennis, Catholic missionaries that they planned to invade southern Kiangsi.

At Kanchow there are 13 foreign missionaries, six are American Catholics, five British and two German protestants. The Americans are all priests of the Vincentian order.

A report from Shichow, northern Kwangtung province, today said the American priests, John McLaughlin of Brooklyn and Edward Young of Jamestown, N. Y., who had been stationed at Nanantu, Kiangsi, left there Oct. 9 en route to Canton.

Borah Leaves Own Campaign Field to Aid Norris, Schall

BOISE, Idaho, Oct. 28 (AP)—Sen. William E. Borah left tonight for Lincoln, Neb., with plans to assist Senators George W. Norris of Nebraska and Thomas Schall of Minnesota, in their campaigns for reelection.

He advised the Associated Press of his intentions in a brief message from Pocatello. "I feel," he said, "it would be selfish not to assist these colleagues."

Senator Borah announced he would return to Idaho about Monday. The departure of Senator Borah from the field of his campaign for reelection left his friends without question of the senator's assurance he would be returned to the senate by a big majority.

ALBIA, Oct. 28 (AP)—Floyd Crandall, 29, coal miner shot early Sunday at the home of Howard Crankstock of Hamilton, was operated on at a hospital here today but little hope was held for his recovery.

Sheriff Edgar Clark of Marion county spent two days carrying on his investigation at Hamilton and said tonight he expected to make an arrest within a few hours. He refused to name Crandall's assailant.

Crandall was shot in the right side at close range purportedly as the result of trouble between him and another man over a girl. The fight first started, witnesses said, when Crandall was struck over the head with the butt of a gun.

Desclos Says New Forms in Art Copy Human Feeling

"New forms of art lead education" was one of the vital statements made by Prof. Auguste Desclos in his lecture on "The last 25 years in French art" at Iowa Union yesterday afternoon. "This period," says M. Desclos, is marked by a movement in painting from realism to idealism, a tendency of artists to be stirred by life as revealed to him, through the play of his imagination rather than by the sight of life around him."

This distinction, of course, is not definite, but has been a gradual change. In the second half of the 19th century art was distinctly realistic in tendency. No religious, historical, or mythological subjects were used. Painting at that time was almost entirely confined to landscapes, still-life, portraits, corresponding to the general feeling of the public.

This in turn gave rise to the study of naturalism and impressionism, and by the end of the century the reaction toward a more idealistic, artificial view of life had set in.

Modern School Arises "Out of this new way of expressing feeling emerged the school of painting of this generation. Needless to say it not only attracted great attention, but also called forth severe criticism from the public.

"The artists of the new school were affected by remote things in art, such as Byzantine and Romanesque painting, and native African art imported into France. In all, their work was seen the influence of these things.

"The first productions under this influence were merely experiments, but as the movement progressed the public became more accustomed to it, and at the present time most of the works of the impressionists are legible to the public."

M. Desclos stressed several characteristics of the painting of the present day school. "The ethics of these painters is devoted to style and construction, to fit nature into the scheme of design regardless of the distortion which this requires.

Artists Love Color "Color is their very life," said the art critic in mentioning another of the outstanding characteristics of the school, which in his opinion will rank as one of the greatest in the history of art.

In the opinion of M. Desclos, Paris is the center of the artistic world today, and the French school is the most important in quantity, quality, and originality.

Recognition

IN THE monotonous routine of the regular academic year, students and faculty alike often become dulled to the meaning of the contacts with men of genius, talent, and international prominence in specialized fields which are possible on the university campus as nowhere else.

Probably few realize the importance to the campus of a man like Philip G. Clapp, professor and head of the department of music, who has brought honor to the university and personal prominence to himself by his appointment as a judge in a 'composers' contest under the auspices of the Juilliard school of music, New York city.

There will be two other judges of the contest who enjoy an international reputation, Rubin Goldmark and Albert Stossel, both of New York city. That an Iowa professor has been selected to serve with such a distinguished company speaks for itself.

Iowa Insurgents

PROBABLY the best spokesman for democratic views in the nation is Claude G. Bowers, quoted in these columns this morning. Bowers is to some extent justifying the paradoxical feat performed by Senator Smith W. Brookhart in running republican and voting democrat.

Senator Dan Steek, who is up next week for re-election, can to some extent have his apparent inconsistency justified on similar grounds. First Iowa democratic senator since the Civil war, Steek was elected by conservative, standpat republicans who would not submit to backing Brookhart. The ballot was rather against Brookhart than for Steek.

If the peculiar nature of his constituency really reflected state opinion, Steek has done well at Washington as an echo of conservative republicanism, except for some measures on which his vote must be otherwise to retain traditional democratic alignments. He has been a better republican than Brookhart, though not a better senator.

Opposed to this anomalous figure is Congressman Lester J. Dickinson, whose election is conceded by most experts in political matters. Dickinson's stand on the tariff is contrary to the best interests of agricultural Iowa. He comes nearer in some respects to representing the growing dominance in Iowa of mercantile and manufacturing interests. Yet he has been so outstanding in the house of representatives and seems to have such strong convictions that the course he lays out in the senate should be one in which Iowa citizens can put their trust.

Brookhart supported Dickinson in the June primary. Although the latter's victory is attributed somewhat to "superior control of the machine," there is no doubt Dickinson won many votes as an individual, more of a leader than a follower.

Dickinson leans somewhat to Brookhart's insurgency, and perhaps realizes the force which sent the "wild man" back into the senate against strongly organized opposition. To the extent that he shares Brookhart's views, however, he has tempered them with a tact which the senior senator from Iowa lacks. He is less roughshod, more effective, more intelligent. He may be more given to compromise, certainly more to furthering republican interests.

Assuming the election of Dickinson, with much of the support Brookhart has had and much also of that which Steek used to defeat Brookhart, it can be anticipated that he will be more of a democrat than Steek, more of a republican than Brookhart, and possibly more of a senator than either. The latter depends on whether he subordinates his initiative and conviction too much to that of politicians—the party. He will be a better senator if he is not too good a party man.

It is not wholly because of these things, or because Dickinson is regarded by Time as one of the 15 most popular, most potential representatives that he will be elected Monday, but also because since the Civil war many Iowa voters have had the bad habit of casting their ballots republican with no more mental effort than it takes to find that party's candidate on voting materials at the polls.

The irony of it is that obedience to this constituency may deprive Dickinson of his chance to become the first senator since Kenyon who could command whole hearted respect from the intelligent members of both political parties.

Student Morality

THE newcomer at the university must, as a rule, submit to a considerable change in environment. For the first time in his life he is away from the guiding influences of the home and he is the possessor of freedom hitherto unknown.

For the person who is not strong willed, this condition is fraught with danger. The ordinary person regards his entrance into the collegiate sphere as an epochal event of his life. He feels that it is necessary to make a radical change, and herein lies the menace.

It is often thought necessary to scrap the existing system of morals. Things that were right or wrong at home do not hold in the university is often the thought of the freshman with a slight disposition towards light headedness. He feels that it is necessary for him to assert himself as he has never done before. Consequently he begins a campaign to prove that he is not a misfit in his new social order.

Smoking and drinking now take on a new significance. If these habits have not already been formed they are speedily acquired. Going to church is not to be thought of, that is a pastime suitable for children and old women. Rules were made to be broken. Examinations must be cribbed, notebooks must be copied, traffic laws must be broken. The old order has changed for the new, grand and glorious freedom.

All of which is bilge of the most nauseous character. Entrance into the higher fields of education is indeed a worthy step forward. But the beginner should not lose sight of the fact that standards of proven worth are as potent in college as elsewhere. Common sense, common honesty, and a diligent application to duty are factors of advancement, irrespective of the place in which they are found.

And Reprieve for Bud. One of the monotonous things about marriage is that there is no time off for good behavior. —Hartford Courant.

We won't vote Job the title of the world's most patient and long suffering man until we know how he would have reacted to a flat tire on a cold night. —Ohio State Journal.

The Voice of the West

(Claude G. Bowers in The New York World)

Viewing the repeated triumphs of the insurgent-democratic coalition, the conservatives attribute this to a sort of individual diabolism. Journals like the Philadelphia Public Ledger and New York Herald-Tribune see in it nothing but the perversion of professional wild men. The former talks of "a little group of wild men," of "dictatorial blocks," of "inexcusable delay." The latter speaks of "inveterate factionalism" and "guerrilla warfare for personal objectives." Mr. Borah and Mr. Norris, according to this view, are indulging an egotistic mania at the expense of orderly lawmaking.

This idea of private willfulness overlooks one of the plainest facts in the political history of the last generation. If there is any group which represents the views of a solid and permanent constituency it is precisely this insurgent group. Go back six years and what do we find? We find the conservative republicans berating the senators of the so-called farm bloc—the senators who demanded the farm duties in the Fordney bill, the Packers Control bill, the Federal Land Bank bill, and the Grain Exchange bill. They included Senators Capper, Kenyon, McNary, Norris, Kellogg, McCormick, Borah, and the elder LaFollette. They represented substantially the same states which appear behind the insurgents today: Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, Illinois, Wisconsin, Idaho, and Oregon. Go back as far as 1909 and what do we find? We find the assault on the Aldrich tariff led by such insurgents as Senators Beveridge, Bristow, Cummins, LaFollette, Dolliver, Dixon, Clapp, and Bourne. Again substantially the same states appear: Wisconsin, Kansas, Illinois, Minnesota, Montana, Iowa, and Oregon.

The insurgents, in brief, represent the agricultural producers of the west, and their alliance with the democrats is a natural alliance with the agricultural producers of the south. The progressive stand on the tariff has been a fairly consistent stand ever since Cummins broached the "Iowa Idea" in 1901 and the elder LaFollette went to the senate in 1905. Their position on the control of industry and on assistance to agriculture has been consistent throughout the same period. To say that Mr. Borah, Mr. Brookhart, and Mr. Norris represent mere windy individualism is to ignore one of the great controlling factors in our political history. It can be traced in almost unbroken course from Populist days. The insurgents and their democratic colleagues are above everything else the voice of six million farmers. What has wrecked many a high industrial tariff is not the personal idiosyncrasy of a few western senators, but the aroused conviction of the northwest and west. Anyone who doubts the vigor of this conviction need only read the angry utterances of Wallace's Farmer, the Kansas City Star, the Minneapolis Tribune and similar organs. This protesting voice cannot be heard in the house, tied hand and foot by its rules, but it is expressed all the more decisively in the still unfettered senate.

The industrial east has blocked the west on the equalization plan and debenture; the agricultural west tried to block the drive of eastern interests for the tariff increases. It is neither accurate nor prudent for the Herald-Tribune to say that the country always defeats insurgents and bloc politics. The west has a way of taking apparent defeat and later achieving victory. Its "radical" demands of the nineties, apart from the currency, were all written into law under Roosevelt and Wilson; its special agrarian demands of the next decade were written into law in the farm bloc measures under Harding. Nor is it quite just to dismiss the present situation by saying that both the farming west and the manufacturing east are selfish and ought to be defeated. They are both selfish, but with a difference. The westerners are seeking to redress an economic and social balance that has swung heavily against agriculture, while the interests behind Mr. Reed and Mr. Bingham are seeking to tip the balance still further. The least the east can do is to recognize that there agrarian insurgents speak for an important constituency and a far-reaching cause, and give them a hearing. Their case is one for understanding, not for abuse.

Membership in a fraternity or sorority does not affect the morals of college people, according to a survey made of Greek letter societies from coast to coast. The fraternity song that runs "O, it's not for knowledge that we come to college, but to raise Hell while we're here," doesn't apply to members of these social groups today—if it ever particularly did. However, listed among the drawbacks of the fraternity system, is "establishment of an unfair political influence in campus activities"—which statement would seem peculiarly applicable at Iowa.

Dr. Alfred Adler, eminent Viennese psychiatrist, says that Americans make poor fathers, being good monetary providers but giving their children little understanding, sympathy, and companionship. Perhaps father is not always to blame. Considering the constant demand made upon his pocketbook, is it any wonder that he often must consider himself as merely a source of revenue? A slight attempt by son or daughter to get acquainted with the paternal side of the family might bring out the fact that Dad is a "good egg" in more ways than one.

A dog at Atlanta, Georgia, has been highly praised for its courage in remaining on the top of a building for several days with no food or water but without howling to attract attention of people on the street to its plight. Would a man be particularly complimented for Spartan bravery if, when his affairs were in a bad way, he refused to seek willing assistance, close at hand? We imagine that he would be termed "dumb" instead. But then, we judge lower animals more charitably than our fellows.

A couple happily married 69 years attribute marital bliss to mutual sense of humor. It took more than love to carry them through. They had to be able to laugh at their own mistakes and those of their partner. It might lessen the alarming number of divorces materially if some sort of test could be applied to couples before the wedding ceremonies which would give an index of how well they could take a joke. Those having a laugh percentage of zero should hesitate before they leap.

Henry Gives Economic Talk to Kiwanians

Speaker Tells of Two Periods of History at Luncheon

"Profits and dividends must be made subordinate to the human personality," stated the Rev. Harry D. Henry, pastor of the Methodist church, at the Kiwanian club meeting yesterday noon.

The Rev. Mr. Henry compared the first and last periods of history in the last five hundred years. He designated the earlier period, from the time of peasantry and royalty in Europe and up to the industrial revolution in England, as the "Mother Hubbard" period of economic history. The later years, including the present time, were known as the "Derby Hat" period.

The speaker said that the advance of modern machinery was suffocating human personality. He compared the two periods and the standards of living. "Precautionary measures must be taken by manufacturers to protect the laborer and the stockholder, and keep the price of their products low enough for the convenience of the buyer while still allowing for a reasonable margin of profit," he said.

Guests at the luncheon were Prof. C. Lapp of the department of physics, Prof. Homer Cherrington of the college of commerce, D. C. Abrams of Iowa City, and Kiwanian Frank Carroll of Fort Collins, Col.

A moving picture showing the historic story of the friendship of Damon and Pythias will close the afternoon portion of the program.

The public is invited to attend this meeting at which all Pythians and many of the present and past grand lodge officers of Iowa will be present. D. Steck Gives Political Talk at Burlington

Reelection Candidate Advocates Another Referendum

A referendum on whether the eighteenth amendment should be repealed was advocated last night by Senator Daniel F. Steck, democratic candidate for reelection, at a rally held at Burlington. Although Mr. Steck's pronouncement on the prohibition question was one of the first from state candidates on this question, it was in line with the platform adopted last June at the democratic state convention.

"People Should Decide"

"Whether the majority of our people are satisfied with conditions and wish them to run along as they have been, or if we should do it, Senator Steck said. "All of us have opinions which we would like to express on the subject. This is a government of and by the people, and whenever there is a difference of opinion as to any law, the people have a right to settle it."

Duty to People First

"Regardless of the personal opinion of any senator or member of congress, it is his plain duty to give the people an opportunity to decide controversial questions."

Mr. Steck asked what difference it made whether or not he disapproved of the eighteenth amendment. As a senator he considered it his duty to vote for a resolution permitting the people to decide the question for themselves.

Fresh Shower Passes

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 28 (AP)—Coach Bob Zuppke's revised varsity lineup showed signs of power tonight in a drill against the freshmen but was woefully weak against forward passes. The yearlings tossed passes all over the practice field in a light scrimmage and nearly every eligible yearling was on the receiving end of at least one of them.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—Mrs. Joseph B. Long, wealthy Chicago widow, paid a forfeiture value and penalty of $9,495 today for jewelry and merchandise which she failed to declare on her arrival last Friday aboard the liner Bengueria.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 28 (AP)—Charles Engle, infanter, was released outright today by the Pittsburgh Pirates to the Ft. Worth club of the Texas league. Engle was secured from Memphis in the 1929 draft and he has played second base, third base, and shortstop for the Buccaneers.

Missing Man Starts Back to Kentucky

WEST LIBERTY, Oct. 28 (AP)—Marion Bilbrey, Glasgow, Ky., truck driver, who said he was kidnaped by three men Oct. 1, was on his way home tonight accompanied by Mayor Walter Mackey and Marshal George Hines.

That Bilbrey was in West Liberty was disclosed by a letter mailed from here to his wife. He wrote off today the name of Walter Johnson, which he claimed his abductors told him to take, and prepared to return to his wife and two children.

Bilbrey said he was "taken for a ride" because he talked back to three men who stopped his truck and took his money near Glasgow. "He took dollars, he was dumped from an automobile here two weeks ago and instructed not to get in touch with his home for two weeks."

He said he hushed corn on the farm of Raymond Fenstermaker near West Liberty and with his wages and $5 he said his abductors gave him, he had enough to return to Kentucky.

Marshal Hines telephoned the Glasgow sheriff, who asked him to accompany Bilbrey. The latter said he was strapped to the rear seat of the automobile during part of the trip to Iowa, and charged that his captors robbed a filling station in Illinois.

Vatican Aids Military Show of Mussolini

ROME, Oct. 28 (AP)—Italy showed the world today the "youthful strength" to which Premier Mussolini referred in an address in which he ushered in the eighth anniversary of fascism.

The blackshirt militia stirred to patriotism all over the country by the Duce's words "unmasking a warlike Europe" marched in every city and village.

Moving columns gave an inkling of what Mussolini meant yesterday when he promised that two years hence the tenth anniversary of the fascist march on Rome would witness the greatest military concentration there in 3,000 years.

Scores of fighting planes dropped over the capital this afternoon while the chief of state here and his ministers elsewhere officially opened hundreds of public works which fascism has built to give employment and to develop the country's economic strength.

The Vatican participated. Cardinal Sincero, standing beside the Duce, blessed a military banner which Mussolini presented to a group of war wounded. It was the first time a prince of the church has in such a public manner identified himself with fascism.

Mr. Jacobsen knows the needs of the farmer, workman and business man and will do everything in his power to serve his constituents and will not be dictated to by the "selfish industrial East."

Fairbanks Signs Al Bork in Main Event With O'Dowd at Legion Show

Nashua Pug's Great Record Adds Interest

Green-Millis Bout Big Attraction to Local Fight Fans

Al Bork of Nashua has been signed to replace Hescadro Montello in the main event of the American Legion fight show tomorrow night. Matchmaker "Doug" Fairbanks announced yesterday.

Bork has a good record over the state with wins over Vale Felegano and Pep Jennings, state flyweight champion, whom he has defeated twice in the past month. He will outweigh Bobby O'Dowd of Cedar Rapids, the other headliner, between four and five pounds.

Fans Like Green

Although "Doug" has been having trouble lining up his two top events, the Buddy Green-Mixer Mills affair still seems to be the center of attraction around local fight circles. Both boys have been making a lot of conversation about what they expect to do to each other, with verbal honors about even.

Although Buddy has improved his boxing considerably since he first began showing in local rings, the Lone Tree wildcat is still a slam bang battler, and opposed to Mills who also likes to wade in and trade punches with hopes of landing first, anything may happen.

Thorington Agon

Orley Thorington of Lisbon, who lost to Hard Oil Lehr of Waterloo a few weeks ago in Cedar Rapids, will be out to get back the decision. Lehr says he expects to put Orley out this time. It will be the third time the two boys have met. Last time both hit the floor.

Harvey Carothers of Moline meets a good leather slinger in Jimmy Hamilton of Cedar Rapids in the other six rounder of the program. Both are good boxers with enough punch to do damage.

To complete the card, Fairbanks has matched Battling Cross, who won his first start here a month ago, against Young Pomeroy in a four round curtain raiser.

Bobby O'Dowd of Cedar Rapids, who meets Al Bork of Nashua in the main event of the American Legion boxing show in the legion building tomorrow night. O'Dowd has met some of the best boys of the state at his weight, and has a good record of wins.

Coach Works Reserve Ends for Saturday

Hay Probably Will Not Play; Rogge Still on Sidelines

With prospects of Gus Mastrogay being the only first string end available to face the Titans, Coach Barton A. Ingwersen yesterday gave two reserve winemen, Ray Story and Eugene Clearman, an intensive tackling drill.

Jim Hay, who received a shoulder injury in scrimmage last week, was not in uniform yesterday, and will probably be lost for the game, physicians announced. George Rogge, another veteran wingman, was in uniform, but his injured leg kept him out of scrimmage. He will probably see action at Detroit, however.

Varsity Scrimmage Frosh

The varsity took its last scrimmage session of the week against the freshmen, with Jack Warrington and Randolph Hickman registering the most consistent gains for the regulars. Although the varsity was able to gain at will in midfield, the rhine line stiffened and repelled the thrusts when their goal line was endangered.

In the aerial game, the varsity's attack was not successful to a marked degree. Freshman backs intercepted many of the heaves, and with reports of a strong pass defense by the Detroit team, the Hawkeys will probably resort to a running attack in the game Saturday with the Titans.

Wickhorst Works Line

As usual, Line Coach Frank Wickhorst had the centers, guards, and tackles in his private school at one end of the field, trying to whip them into shape to stop the reputed Detroit running attack.

Irish in Light Drill as Loria Shapes Men for Rock Island Tilt

St. Pat's took a day's layoff to recuperate from their 6 to 0 triumph over Immaculate Conception of Cedar Rapids. Coach Lou's Loria stressed the need of drive in the back-field and the knack of ball carrying in last night's practice.

The drill session was brief but strenuous, the Irish mentor taking up new passing plays and signal drill, followed by a short scrimmage. The Green and White director then pointed out errors made in the scrimmage as well as in the game last Saturday.

Emanuel, star center for the Irish, is recovering from an injured arm hurt in last week's practice. The husky Shamrock played a spectacular game Saturday in spite of his arm being in a splint. So far all men have reported for practice regularly, with the exception of Spratt, who was injured in the Wilton Junction game Oct. 16. Spratt played Saturday and will be in the lineup in the next game.

St. Pat's have a long rest before their next game, when they invade St. Joseph high, of Rock Island, Ill. The scrappy Irish will spend the next two weeks in correcting errors made in previous games. Coach Loria plans on introducing some new formations to his proteges in an effort to continue the winning streak.

Poor Hoosiers to Meet Irish

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 28 (AP).—Coach Pete Pyle today began retooling his Indiana lineup for the hopeless game with Notre Dame. MacDonald, guard, was given a berth

The hill and dalers specialized on sprint work yesterday in preparation for the time trials over the three mile course this afternoon, Thursday and Friday will serve as easy conditioning days with chances of rest before the coming four mile dual with Grinnell.

Due to an unexpected conflict, the date of the barrier race has been changed from 11 o'clock Saturday, to Friday afternoon at 4. The race is usual with start and finish on the drive directly south of the field house.

Close Duel Expected

Iowa fans will have the opportunity Friday, of watching what promises to be an exciting and evenly matched dual between two well balanced teams. Grinnell, although not having competed against the number or caliber of teams that Iowa has, showed signs of team strength by easily vanquishing Coe Oct. 18. The Pioneers, led by two outstanding hill toppers, Howard McElrath and Walter Secor with a first and second, were able to cop the meet 19 to 37.

Thus far eight men have signed up for the handicap race to be run over a nine tenths mile course Saturday at 3 o'clock. This will provide an added attraction to those who come early before the Iowa-Grinnell run at 4. Coach George Breesnahan urges all freshmen and upper classmen without major experience to enter the race and try for the gold, silver, and bronze medals and 10 ribbons that will be given to place winners.

Committee Appointed

The cross country club sends a special invitation to men in the quadrangle, fraternities, and elsewhere, to come out and participate in the meet. The joint committee appointed to handle the handicap race are: varsity: Emil Trott of Iowa City, Tom Kelly of Parnell, and Howard Wickley of Pomeroy; and freshmen: Joe Pfeiffer of Chicago, E. J. Henderson of Independence, and Leo A. Campisi of Rockford, Ill.

The second cross country club dinner will be held Sunday Nov. 2 at the Iowa Union. All members wishing to attend are requested to make reservations with Emil Trott.

Gallant Fox Retires to Kentucky Stables

PARIS, Ky., Oct. 28 (AP)—Gallant Fox, 3 year old champion of the thoroughbred world and the American turf's greatest money winner, today returned to the scene of his birth, Bourbon county, where he will be retired to the stud.

The champion, accompanied by his owner, William Woodward, New York city, Dr. E. A. Caslick of Paris, and a corps of attendants arrived in a special car and was placed in a special horse van and taken to A. B. Hancock's Claiborne farm, one mile from Paris, where the champion was foaled three years ago last spring.

The big son of Sir Galahad III, Marguerite stood the trip from New York well, his veterinary said.

Methodist Stars Out as Acid Test Nears

MT. PLEASANT, Oct. 28 (AP)—Iowa Wesleyan's hopes of eliminating Penn college from the Iowa conference football race received a setback today. Charles McAvoy, quarterback, and Emmet Barton, tackle, failed to report for practice, both being confined to their beds with severe colds.

Lloyd Dresser, end, was back in uniform, however, after having been out for a week with the flu.

Hall took McAvoy's position in today's practice session with Barry at Barton's tackle. Cullers, who has been playing Dresser's end, continued to show fine form in a long defensive drill given the squad by Coach Glen Bingham.

On the varsity, Spanuth was shifted to center and Rascher was sent to tackle. Three "varsity" teams faced the freshmen, who were armed with Notre Dame plays, in a scrimmage today.

Little Hawks Crush Touted Scrub Eleven

Regulars Wallop Third String in Snappy Scrimmage

Coach George Wells sent the Little Hawk gridders through a tough scrimmage last night as they started intensive preparation for the coming tilt with Grinnell, Saturday.

The regulars were sent against the third team in the scrimmage since the later outfit had beaten the second string eleven. However, it took Captain Bud' Wright and company just 15 minutes to make the score 21 to 0 in favor of the regulars at which time Coach Wells called a halt to the proceedings.

Come Down a Notch

The third team is not so confident of its powers this evening. At the start of the contest it looked as if the under dogs were going to come through and make it tough for the top notchers. A few minutes of this was enough and the first string settled down to work.

Cleatus Stimmel and Lawrence Burr were still on the sidelines with injuries and Vic Curry is ineligible again. The remainder of the first string is in condition. Stimmel and Burr will be ready for the tussle Saturday.

Grinnell Doped Strong

Grinnell comes to Iowa City with an impressive record. Although they have lost several close contests it has been the breaks of the game that beat them. They unexpectedly stopped the Little Hawks last season and held them to a tie 6-6. This year the local gridders are out to avenge the near defeat of last season.

After the scrimmage Wells gave the Red and White warriors a long signal drill, introducing several new plays and polishing up old formations.

Little Frosh Practice for Coming Tilt

While the first string frosh gridders scrimmaged the varsity yesterday afternoon, the Bears and the Cyclones went through a light drill.

The workout opened with a short punting practice, and then a short scrimmage was held. The fourth game of the little frosh grid series will be played tomorrow afternoon between the Bears and the Cyclones, who played a scoreless tie last week.

As both teams have beaten the Wildcats, tomorrow's winner will probably meet the Lions, first frosh team. The Bears are pinning their hopes on Capt. Bill Rule, fleet footed quarterback. Rule has done most of the ball carrying for his team, and he is expected to keep up his work against the Cyclones.

Bennie Shine is the man that will be called on by the Cyclones to get yardage when most needed. Shine played great football in his two appearances. Lester Glick, Cyclone captain, will be in there directing his team.

"Too Stiff Program" Says Buffalo Doctor

FT. WORTH, Tex., Oct. 28 (AP)—Football and basketball as a part of a physical education program for high schools is "positively silly," Dr. Charles A. Keene of Buffalo, N. Y., told delegates to the American public health association convention at a child hygiene section session today.

Dr. Keene said schools were offering education programs too strenuous for the growing boy or girl and programs which they could never use after they left schools.

Glen Thistlethwaite concentrated on the passing attack but it did not work to suit him.

Dempsey Named Official

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 28 (AP)—Officials of the Atlanta Baseball and Amusement corporation announced today that Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, would referee the Stibling-DeKuh boxing match here Nov. 11.

Sportively Speaking

By Bill Rutledge

Over at the field house on the basketball court a wiry, rubbery little man—young but gray haired, his face seamed with worry and distress—runs among an assortment of cage players fairly pleading with them as he coaches them.

The memory of last year's basketball debacle haunts Rubbery Rolie Williams, but he'll bounce right back this season with a much stronger quintet.

His cage five will be the most improved team in the country. No foolin'. Of course, he has the advantage in that there is more room for improvement in the Iowa team than any other quintet, bar none.

Rolie isn't making any pretensions he might find difficulty in fulfilling, but he says sincerely and without hesitation that the Hawkeys will win more games than they did last year, when Iowa whizzed along at a 139 clip winning three of 17 games and none of them Big Ten contests.

Fans have the kindest feelings for Rolie because he has suffered many severe jolts since becoming head cage coach. His team was wrecked last year after the first game had been played, by the Ineligibility Limited. He had only a scrape-up outfit to finish out the schedule.

The players now practicing at the field house will represent Iowa in the practice games. But they'd never stand the gaff of a Big Ten campaign. By the time conference competition gets under way, rugged grid men will be playing basketball for Iowa.

Whatever happens to Iowa in the conference will be surprising, because no one knows what will happen. Two things are certain, however. That no member of last season's misfit quintet will be able to hold a position on this year's team that the Hawkeys will not be mid-levelers as last year, but players of regulation size.

The leading cagers now on the football squad are Randolph Hickman, John Warrington, Alex Rogers, George Rogge, Chuck Williamson, Bob Loufek, Christian Schmidt, Tullio Dellavedova.

Jim Figg, who was hastily made eligible to play center the second semester, couldn't mix basketball and studies. He was all right in basketball, but some how or other he just couldn't make a co of going to school. Bobby Spradling is ineligible and no one seems anxious to get him eligible. Joe Mowry, the wild and hard fighting but erratic forward, is back. Sam Epstein, Adolph Ahrens, Dutch Reinhardt, Marshall Reigert, Harry Barger, and others are on the squad.

Rolie plans to build up the team from rock bottom. Nearly all the players will be sophomores. The trouble with soph is that they lack the steadiness and poise of seasoned campaigners. They are prone to get rattled when the breaks go against

Hooks and Jabs by "Baldy"

And I might say, double crosses. The life of a fight promoter is no bed of roses, popular opinion to the contrary. "Doug" Fairbanks, local fight entrepreneur, has had a lot of trouble in the last few days. First Battling Albie, of Cedar Rapids, scheduled to meet Harvey Carothers of Moline, in a six rounder, complains of tooth trouble, then can't agree to terms, and finally says he may quit the fight game. "Doug" quit him, and got Jimmy Hamilton.

A curious coincidence is that Albie, who has appeared on four or five consecutive fights in the Parlor City, has been omitted from the next card there.

Next Hescadro Montello breaks his arm in training, and won't be able to appear against Bobby O'Dowd in the feature event. "Doug" got a good boy to replace him, but had trouble in doing it. A telephone booth was his office for several hours yesterday.

Al Bork of Nashua, who replaces Montello, has twice beaten Pep Jennings, state flyweight champion. He must be good. Vale Felegano is another of his victims.

Hanley Pleased With Wildcat Pass Attack

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 28 (AP)—Northwestern, apparently satisfied with its running attack, drilled on its famous passing game today in a stiff scrimmage and it looked as potent as ever.

Captain Hank Bruder, back after an attack of small pox, pleased Coach Dick Hanley with his great kicking and was regarded as a sure starter against Minnesota Saturday. Coach Hanley shifted Gonya from tackle to end because of the injury to Dick Fencil, one of the reserve ends.

Yunevich Returns to Boilermaker Eleven

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 28 (AP)—Purdue expects to face Illinois with its strongest lineup since the opening of the season Saturday. Alex Yunevich, the Boilermakers' hard so will all the rest of the regulars, barring new injuries.

Coach Noble Kizer excused his regulars from hard work today after cautioning them about over-confidence. He intimated he would use two complete backfields against the Illinois, one for speed and another for power.

them and all becomes confusion. No "athletes" in Iowa will have a better team this year than last.

Date Changed for Dual Run

Iowa Races Pioneers Friday; Exhibition Run Added

The hill and dalers specialized on sprint work yesterday in preparation for the time trials over the three mile course this afternoon, Thursday and Friday will serve as easy conditioning days with chances of rest before the coming four mile dual with Grinnell.

Due to an unexpected conflict, the date of the barrier race has been changed from 11 o'clock Saturday, to Friday afternoon at 4. The race is usual with start and finish on the drive directly south of the field house.

Close Duel Expected

Iowa fans will have the opportunity Friday, of watching what promises to be an exciting and evenly matched dual between two well balanced teams. Grinnell, although not having competed against the number or caliber of teams that Iowa has, showed signs of team strength by easily vanquishing Coe Oct. 18. The Pioneers, led by two outstanding hill toppers, Howard McElrath and Walter Secor with a first and second, were able to cop the meet 19 to 37.

Thus far eight men have signed up for the handicap race to be run over a nine tenths mile course Saturday at 3 o'clock. This will provide an added attraction to those who come early before the Iowa-Grinnell run at 4. Coach George Breesnahan urges all freshmen and upper classmen without major experience to enter the race and try for the gold, silver, and bronze medals and 10 ribbons that will be given to place winners.

Committee Appointed

The cross country club sends a special invitation to men in the quadrangle, fraternities, and elsewhere, to come out and participate in the meet. The joint committee appointed to handle the handicap race are: varsity: Emil Trott of Iowa City, Tom Kelly of Parnell, and Howard Wickley of Pomeroy; and freshmen: Joe Pfeiffer of Chicago, E. J. Henderson of Independence, and Leo A. Campisi of Rockford, Ill.

The second cross country club dinner will be held Sunday Nov. 2 at the Iowa Union. All members wishing to attend are requested to make reservations with Emil Trott.

Van Epps Bests Koehn in Close Duel; Sig Chi Third

Shattering all previous records, Charles Van Epps, Phi Kappa Psi freshman, carried off first honors in the annual interfraternity cross country run yesterday afternoon by covering the 3.19 mile course in 3:48. Van Epps was a former University high school track star, last year finishing fourth in the half mile run at the National Interscholastic indoor track meet in Chicago. He ran a brilliant race yesterday over the Pinkline course and nosed out Don Koehn of Delta Tau Delta by a yard at the finish stripe. Art Wentworth of Sigma Chi was third.

Sig Chi's Third
Led by their speedy pledge, Phi Kappa Psi placed four other runners in the first 20 to cross the finish line and clinched the first place team trophy. Delta Tau Delta took second place with Sigma Chi a close third. Phi Gamma Delta, Delta Upsilon, and Delta Chi finished fourth, fifth, and sixth respectively.

The following are the first ten men who won individual honors: Van Epps, Phi Kappa Psi, first; Don Koehn, Delta Tau Delta, second; Wentworth, Sigma Chi, third; McCulley, Sigma Chi, fourth; Mitalvsky, Sigma Chi, fifth; Liddle, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, sixth; Meyer, Delta Upsilon, seventh; Graber, Phi Delta Theta, eighth; Nelson, Delta Chi, ninth; Rinard, Phi Gamma Delta, tenth.

Record Entry
Twenty fraternities entered 471 runners in yesterday's contest, the largest entry list in the history of the sport, according to Coach E. G. "Dad" Schroeder. About 375 men actually took part in the race as compared to the 300 participants of last year. A chilling wind swept across the baseball diamond as the large swarm of Greek marathoners shivered and shook, waiting for the starting gun. At the explosion a stampede, not unlike a herd of Texas steers, galloped across Pinkline golf course and disappeared around the new stadium.

True to their word, the interfraternity athletic council placed judges at every turn to disqualify any short-cutters and a ten minute time limit was enforced on all finishing runners. According to Coach Schroeder, the race was the largest and most exciting in the history of the annual jog and a credit to the fraternities entered.

Representatives of the schools in the Junior Hawk basketball league met at Youde's inn Friday to discuss plans for the coming season. The rules governing the league were revised and an advisory board consisting of P. M. Ball of U. high, W. E. Beck of City high, and Supt. Snodgrass of Wellman was elected. According to C. D. Miller of Iowa City junior high, competition will be keen and a number of games will be played before the champion team will be decided. The schedule of games will be announced soon.

BIG SHOTS IN "BIG 10"

DALLAS MARVIL - NORTHWESTERN'S 200 LB. TACKLE READY FOR KILL!

Purdue, 1929's "Big Ten" champions, suffered an upset early this month when beaten by Michigan, 14-13, and it may meet another defeat Saturday at the hands and feet of Illinois. The latter are mighty but most experts tabbed Northwestern, early in the season, "the best team in the Middle West." And those Wildcats from Evanston, Ill., loom now as one of the nation's most powerful teams even without the services of "Hard Luck" Hank Bruder.

Purdue's Boilermakers rightfully boast of a powerful punch but, it looks at this writing, as though the Illini will beat them this season. However, last year's "Big 10" champs should make the game close and 'twill be no real upset should they wallop Illinois Saturday.

As to Northwestern, it seems to have that most vital detail of a great football machine—a strong, alert line that charges hard and fast either on offense or defense. So good is its front wall that it seems folly to single out any individual in it, but Right Tackle Dallas Marvil appropriately could spell the final syllable in his last name with an "e." "Dal" is one of those linemen that coaches like to dream about and produce every now and then. "Rip 'em" Riley, the Purple's other tackle, practically is on a par with Marvil. Lee Hanley at quarter, Pug Rentner at full, Reb Russell and two or three others constitute a fast backfield which is all the faster because of that potent, punching, pounding line. Captain Bruder has been kept out of many games with everything from a broken ankle to smallpox. He is about the unluckiest star in grid history. However, Northwestern is so powerful even Bruder's loss has not spoiled the team. The Wildcats will claw Minnesota at Minneapolis, Saturday.

Purdue will hurl its banging and bombing backs—Yunevich, Purvis, Pope, et al—with the vast Van Bibber leading its line—against Bob Zuppke's Illini.

The Boilermakers with a new coach, Noble Kizer—and having to replace such 1929 all-Americans as "Best" Welch, Glenn Harmon, and Elmer Sleight—shape up strongly despite that one-point Michigan upset. Their line is composed of stellar veterans and they will test Illinois to the limit.

Milo Moore Injured; Handy Searches for More Ball Carriers

With Capt. Milo Moore on the sidelines yesterday as the result of an injury, the University high grid squad answered admirably to Coach Handy's plea to keep up the old fight in the face of adversity. The team was full of pep throughout its drill. Moore bruised his arm in scrimmage Monday, but it was considered of little importance. However, yesterday he followed the team's workout with his arm in a sling, and it is not known whether or not he will be able to play against West Branch Friday. His absence from practice will prove a serious handicap to the Handymen's hopes of victory.

With the main cog in his running game disabled, Coach Handy devoted most of yesterday's drill to the opening up of his attack. An aerial offense intermingled with lateral passes occupied most of his attention, as he attempted to offset the loss of his backfield ace. Wyjack, Young, McCoy, and Nicola worked back of the line which remained intact. Wyjack did most of the passing with all of the eligible men on the receiving end. The play worked well, and many times the regulars went through the scrubs for long gains. Wyjack, Nicola, and McCoy stood out on offense in the scrimmage, while Young and Lenz proved bulwarks on defense.

Grapplers Impress Veteran Mat Coach

Candidates for the varsity wrestling team are showing plenty of the qualities necessary for a good team. If scholastic standing, the buzzboo of all collegiate coaches, does not cut too heavily into the squad, Coach

Mike Howard should have a winning team this year.

Nine men reported for workouts last night. Burton Dull, 145 pounder, was very impressive against White, former Cornell 175 pounder. Basil Deegan, 115 pounder, was matched with Larry Mueller, of the same weight. Sam Erhardt, 125 pound sophomore, took a double dose, first going to the mat with Howard Norris, 145, and then taking on Smith, 145 pounder. Ed McComb grappled with Huff, another 135-pounder. Claude Pezer, veteran 125 pounder, also indulged in a short workout.

Laughing Boy

By Oliver La Farge

(What Has Gone Before) Laughing Boy meets Slim Girl at a ceremonial dance and falls in love with her because she is different from any other squaw he has ever known.

His family advises him not to go with her, but after he loses his money and horse, Slim Girl persuades him to go with her to her home. She will get him much silver to work with and horses to breed, she tells him.

Slim Girl, who has been educated by the Americans, has copied many of the Americans ways. She has the ability to please white men.

Now and then she goes to the town for an afternoon. She tells Laughing Boy she goes to help the minister's wife. She goes to spend the afternoon with a white man. He gives her money, and with this money she is able to keep herself and Laughing Boy. But always she is anxious to learn the Indian customs and the Indian songs, and she is hungry for the life that she has put behind her.

(Now Go on With the Story)

VI

Her triumph was real and urgent, but now was no time for indulging it. She walked back to the fire circle as though from her waiting place apart, she had just seen the countess returning. It was time to go to bed; she found her place on the sheepskins beside the hogahn. It was stuffy and warm in there save for a faint draft of air in under the blanket that closed the door and out the smoke-hole, and a coldness that seeped through the ground from outside, where the finger-tips of one hand had touched the floor.

That is how he feels, then. All mine. I can do anything. Ya, Wounded Face! Then, if I am so sure of him, why not come to live here? It is dangerous there. What a strange fear when I am most sure I can do as I want. I give it up. Huh! We have almost a thousand dollars in ten months, counting the horses he has now. Everything is going perfectly. George eats out of my hand. I am strong.

She was becoming drowsy and making pictures. There was a story she remembered faintly, how Nanyezegani did not kill the Hunter People. An allegory; her Slayer of Enemy Gods could not kill them, either. She could do away with them. I have seen more than you and all you people. I know more. I shall lead you on the trail.

I, Slim Girl, Came With War.

CHAPTER XIII

They rode away from To Takal in gay company—Bay Horse and Bow's Son, Tall Brave and Ties Napornas and his wife, and half a dozen others, men and women, returning towards To Tikahn, Teshital, and Seinsidesah. It had turned sharply cold, the ponies went well; they played and raced, showing off their jewelry and best clothes and horsemanship—all young people. Bay Horse smoked on a dead twig, blowing out clouds of breath.

"So my new magic! I take this twig, and it is a lighted cigarette." "Ei-yei, Grandfather, see if you can swallow all your smoke."

They came to the foot of the slope leading to Gomullu To trading post. A man said, "Let us go buy some crackers and canned fruit."

"It's too cold. Some coffee would be good, I think," said Bay Horse. "Maybe Yellow Mustache will give us some," Laughing Boy said. "Why did he not come to the dance?"

"Yellow Mustache is not there any longer; he has gone to Chiezbuto. The man there now is called Narrow Nose."

"What is he like?" "He is no good. When we put things in pawn, he sells them before we can buy them back. He is small; inside himself, he is small."

"He tries to be smart with us, but he is not good at it. His word is not good."

"He thinks we are fools. He ought to look at himself."

Laughing Boy broke into the chorus of information—"Wait a moment!"

He rode over to Jestling Squaw's Son and whispered in his ear. His friend smiled.

"I am thinking about coffee. I can make him give us all coffee free. I think. Who will bet?"

"I know you," said Bay Horse. "I won't."

Bow's Son whispered to Slim Girl. "He is like this. They are like this, those two, when they are together. They are not for nothing, their names."

"I will bet two bits, just to make a bet," Tall Brave said. A stranger offered fifty cents. Laughing Boy gave each of them his stake.

with sides six feet high, and the L-shaped one-story house of stone and adobe with a corrugated iron roof. Around it was nothing green, nothing varied, just sand and rocks, some tin cans, part of a rotted blue shirt. There was no relief. In summer the drenching sun searched out its barren walls; in winter the wind was bleak around it. It was just something, dumped there, a thing made by man, contributing nothing, in the midst of majestic desolation. Beyond its level were red-brown cliffs, dull orange bald-rock, yellow sand, leading away to blend into a kind of purplish brown with blue clouds of mountains for background. This did not belong; it was crushed and empty.

Besides the ones belonging to his own party, Laughing Boy noted two other ponies hitched by the corral. He made his fast with a bow-knot, the animal being rather unenterprising and not having learned how to untie them. He looped the reins over the saddlehorn and sauntered to the door of the store, trailing the bride carefully, and adjusting his recently acquired hat. It was a stiff-brimmed felt, with the crown undented and the string tied under the chin, Indian fashion, becoming him well. He gave it a wicked slant.

The store was a square room with a counter around three sides; in the fourth the door and a small window. Another door in the back led to the rest of the house. Now the room was rank with tobacco smoke and the heat of an iron stove. The Indians lounged along the counter, leaning on it with their elbows, talking or staring at the goods on the shelves. He recognized the owners of the two ponies—Stinks Like a Mexican, an old rogue with his hair cut short to the level of his ears, who had worked for the railroad, and Long Tooth, the policeman from Ties Napornas.

He stood in the door. Bow's Son regarded him blankly. "Where to, tell?"

"To To Takal, for the dance." "The dance is over; we come from it."

"Where from, tell?" Tall Brave asked. "Chizal."

"That's far!" "Yes. You tell, where do you live?"

"Ties Napornas."

He drifted to the far end, where the trader sat, feet on the counter, chewing listlessly. The man was partly bald, with drooping, pepper-and-salt mustaches and a stupid, narrow face. He looked stony and ignorant, not bad.

An unsuccessful dry farmer, he had bought a poor post, sight unseen, and come out to make quick money from the ignorant Indians. Somehow it didn't work. They fooled him and exasperated him until he strove frantically to outcheat them, and that didn't work either.

He had no idea of how to attract their trade, nor of how to circumvent their sharpness. It was always like this. Two men had been there since he opened the store in the morning, making one nickel purchase, and now none of these others wanted to buy. They just wanted to talk. They thought he was running a God-damned club.

Laughing Boy sprang against the counter, clicking a quarter against his teeth. His face was vacuous while he studied the ranks of tin cans. He thought idly that it was six months since he had been in a store. It was too bad Yellow Mustache was gone. Yellow Mustache would have welcomed him, and probably given him some candy.

"What kind of candy have you?" He spoke in the baby-talk Navajo that they use with Americans.

"Round-coff-ones, hard-clear-ones, and brown sweets."

The man was not really at home even in the trade languages. He was a little hard of hearing; it hampered him in learning.

"How much are the round-coff-ones?"

"Two for a yellow."

Laughing Boy examined his change carefully, and put a dime on the counter. "Give me a blue's worth."

The trader let four gum drops roll toward the customer. "Give it to me," Laughing Boy held onto it. "Haven't you any twisted-sticks?"

"No."

"I don't want those." He put his money back in his pocket. "Give me a smoke."

Narrow Nose eyed him for a moment, as though he would like to see him shrivel. Policy was policy, it sold a half-empty sack of Stud and some papers along the counter.

"Match, brother-in-law." "You have some." He pointed to the Indian's shirt pocket. "I need those."

Barnard Man Lectures on Classic Poem

'Aeneid National Poem' Subject for Talk of Professor

Prof. Charles Knapp of Barnard college, Columbia university, introduced by Prof. Roy C. Fickinger, head of the Latin and Greek department, as "one of the leading classical scholars in this country and one whose influence is widely felt," lectured on "The Aeneid as a National Poem" yesterday afternoon in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Professor Knapp emphasized Vergil's love of Italy and said that the Aeneid, because of its national quality, was called a history of the Roman people.

Aeneas Accomplished Purpose
"Aeneas accomplished the very things which the Roman race was destined to achieve," said Professor Knapp in showing that the poem is an exemplification of the career of Rome.

Professor Knapp compared Vergil's work with Homer's and quoted the statement that "Vergil imitated Homer by imitating him as a rival and not as a disciple."

Knapp is Editor
"The main purpose of the Aeneid is to celebrate the growth of the Roman empire and Roman civilization," said Professor Knapp in closing.

Professor Knapp is making a series of lectures in the middle west. He has been editor of the Classical Weekly for 23 years and has written extensively in the field of classical subjects.

Lapp Speaks on Results of X-ray Studies

Prof. Claude J. Lapp of the physics department was in charge of the weekly physics seminar Monday at 4 p.m. Results of using gratings in the study of X-ray were reviewed.

Until 1925, it was revealed at the seminar, the longest X-rays measured were 25 Angstrom units and the shortest ultra violet waves measured, 135 Angstrom units. Workers up to that time had not been able to close this gap of 2 1/2 octaves.

Prof. A. H. Compton of the University of Chicago and Prof. Puocenti of Italy independently suggested that properly ruled optical gratings might be employed for the study of this unexplored region. Their suggestions have been followed by Thibaud of France, Sodermann of Sweden, Wetherly and Faust of Pennsylvania, Cork of Michigan, Doan of Chicago, and others.

This gap has now been entirely closed through the use of the optical gratings.
