

WINTER STORM SWEEPS MIDWEST

Quake Strews Death, Havoc; 100-150 Dead

Injured in Japan May Reach 900; Fires Cause Loss

TOKYO, Nov. 26 (AP)—An earthquake stretched a belt of death and destruction across the northern part of the beautiful Izu peninsula early today with a toll of dead and injured mounting steadily as fragments of the disaster story emerged from the stricken area.

The chief of police Shizuoka prefecture which includes the Izu peninsula, estimated the quake dead at between 100 and 150, while the number of injured was likely to bring the total casualties to 900.

65 Dead in Numazu
The chief of police at Numazu reported 165 dead in the Numazu police district alone, including 37 killed at Nirayama, eight miles southeast of Mishima.

An accurate tally of the dead was impossible owing to destruction of communications throughout the peninsula.

The fate of a large portion of southern Izu was still undetermined, while reports from such important centers as Atami, Ito, Nagaoka and Shuzenji were meager.

Although first reports designated Mishima as the center of the quake zone, that railway junction appeared to have suffered less than resorts to the southward.

Daily Shocks Felt
At many places fire followed shocks, greatly increasing material losses. At the village of Nakazato, near Mishima, 10 persons were killed and 50 injured. At another nearby village, Numazu, one was killed, one injured and fire broke out.

The quake apparently was the climax of a series which have been felt recently on the northern part of the Izu peninsula. The Mishima region has experienced an average of 300 minor shocks daily since Nov. 10 including a fairly severe quake yesterday afternoon.

The Izu peninsula is noted for its hot springs, many of which are centers of popular resorts.

Two Million Available for War in Year

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—A potential army of 2,000,000 available within a year if the United States should become involved in another war was held today by Gen. Charles P. Summerall to be necessary for reasonable security.

This statement was made in the annual report of General Summerall, who recently retired as army chief of staff. The general described the report as his "farewell to the army" after 42 years of service.

The report reviewed in detail the wars in which the United States has participated and stressed the importance of adequate preparation.

"The American effort in the World war," he said, "must always stand out as the most remarkable example of the improvisation of an army in the course of a war recorded in the military history of the world."

"We cannot base our future defense upon the assumption that the armies of allies will assure us the time required for the preparation of our military effort," he added.

Graduate of '72 Gets Phi Beta Kappa Key

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (AP)—It is never too late to be elected to Phi Beta Kappa, Wenzel Raboch has found out after 57 years.

Raboch, now 76 years old, was graduated from City college in 1872, standing second in his class. He wondered why he had not been chosen by the golden key fraternity which honors those college graduates distinguished for singular honor; but he was too proud to inquire, and too busy supporting a family.

He went west. He became an accomplished musician and professor of music at the Theosophical university, Point Loma, Calif., today he stood in the office of Benson Lewinson, a lawyer, and was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (AP)—Guest of honor tonight at a dinner of the English-speaking union of the United States, Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador, called the relations between Great Britain and America the most pacific in the history of their separate political existences.

"Only a few years after the establishment of your own independence we endowed Canada with representative institutions," he continued. "South Africa had free self government only five or six years after the end of the Boer war—Australia in the forties."

Mayor Plans Million Dollar Coupon Lure

Thompson Schemes to Attract Shoppers to Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 (AP)—Mayor William Hale Thompson's million dollar lure to the shoppers of the central states began to take tangible shape today while Chicago still regarded his scheme with varied reactions.

On the eve of his departure for a fortnight's rest at a downstate sanatorium, the mayor disclosed his preliminary plans for the offering of $1,000,000 worth of prize coupons to patrons of Chicago stores and asked railroads of the central and western passenger associations to cooperate in enticing buyers to the metropolis with week end excursions.

Thompson proposes that "merchandise buy coupons and give one with each 25 cents worth of merchandise sold during the three or four months running of his 'prosperity drive.' Each coupon would represent a chance to win awards of $100,000, $50,000, $25,000 or one of 16,500 prizes of $50 each. The campaign was scheduled to begin Dec. 1.

To advertise the scheme the mayor said billboards would be posted in all important towns within a 500 mile radius of Chicago, including Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and Illinois.

Mayor Gets Inquiries
He told the railwaymen he has received letters from as far as San Francisco asking where the writers should trade in Chicago in order to participate in the coupon chance. He added that his corporation counsel had assured him the plan was legal and does not constitute lottery.

The leading State street stores thus far have not voiced their approval of the scheme. Editorial comment in the press has been divided.

Board Gives Rebuke
The south park board, serving by the governor's appointment, delivered a rebuke today in refusing Mayor Thompson permission to erect 50 foot glass towers on the lake front in view of Michigan boulevard. The mayor had planned to have the coupons deposited in the towers to exhibit the daily progress of the sale.

Judge Walter P. Steffen had ruled that any plan conducted by private interests under pretense of public service was illegal.

Shrader Tells How to Wrap, Mail Parcels

"Wrap your Christmas packages securely," warned Postmaster Charles C. Shrader yesterday. "Parcels containing articles easily broken or damaged should be marked fragile and parcels containing articles likely to spoil in shipping should be marked perishable."

Care should be taken in wrapping that all sharp points and edges should be guarded to prevent damage to those handling the packages and to other mail.

No packages more than 84 inches in length and girth combined will be accepted, Mr. Shrader said. The maximum for delivery in the first, second, and third zone is 70 pounds, and for other zones, 50 pounds.

Packages should be fully addressed, with a copy of the address enclosed. All postage must be prepaid.

Due to the 200 per cent increase in mail during Christmas season, those who wish their packages to be received on Christmas day must mail at least 10 days before Christmas day. A special delivery stamp will insure their delivery on that day if mailed at the proper time.

High Waters Still Menace Foreign Cities

Belgium Gets Worst Blow; Paris Short of Water

LONDON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Rowboats splashed through the streets of Parisian suburbs tonight, men worked long hours to repair the broken dikes along the rivers of Belgium, and the rain still pounded down on a Europe already suffering heavily from disastrous floods.

Belgium felt the heaviest blow. Her crops were ruined, her livestock drowned in great numbers, her fields were under water and thousands of her people temporarily homeless.

Water Floods Hospital
The big hospital at Namur was flooded and the sick were carried to the topmost floors. The old battlefields around Neuport were inundated, and the dunes protecting the lowlands from the French to the Dutch borders were broken in many places.

The situation in Paris was acute. The Seine, already high above its normal levels, continued to rise, pouring water into the suburbs and seeping into the city itself. Pumps were working all day long and although metropolitan transportation facilities were not interrupted the city was on guard for any emergency.

Juvis in Trap
The important town of Juvisy found itself in a trap with the river Orge rising on one side and the Seine menacing from the other. Paris put itself on short water rations, for the normal supply had been fouled by mud and there was no means of bringing in additional supplies of bottled water.

Holland's problem was still serious, with the River Maas as the greatest threat. The German Rhine was still at flood, but it was believed that the worst was over for Germany. In England the rains continued in some sections, but the menace of serious floods appeared to have passed.

Italy-Russia Make Supply Combinations

ROME, Nov. 25 (AP)—Fascist Italy and communist Russia marching hand in hand to new international commercial heights by a combination of vast supplies of raw materials with modern manufacturing machinery were foreseen by observers today.

They predict this as the probable outcome of the conference at Milan yesterday between Foreign Minister Dino Grandi and Maxim Litvinoff, Russian commissar of foreign relations.

These observers held Italy is not afraid of dumping; in fact that she is anxious for cheap materials. Russia, which last August entered into an agreement with Italy for the purchase of $10,000,000 worth of Italian manufactured goods in 1930-31, was now seen as preparing to use Italy as an outlet for raw materials.

Wheat Situation Serious
Economists pointed out that receipt of Russian orders will keep the factories of Italy busy while she is preparing for development of a Latin American trade, on which she is said to have her eye. These economists hold that only by a rebirth of Italian trade and industry can she regain sound financial footing.

The only possible snag to cooperation between the two countries is the wheat situation. At present levels Russian wheat is so much cheaper and the Italian grain supply still small that it is considered possible Italy might reserve restrictions until the home grown crop is larger.

Basils Still Products
Although there has been no official statement, the newspaper Giornale d'Italia, which is often officially inspired, points out that Russia, despite its industrialization program, remains one of the most important producers of raw materials.

It holds differences between fascist and soviet regimes count for nothing, declaring "regimes are internal affairs of each country."

Haynes Plans 8,215 Miles in Road System

DES MOINES, Nov. 25 (AP)—Col. Glenn C. Haynes, secretary of the Iowa Good Roads association, today outlined a proposal to enlarge the Iowa primary road system to 8,215 miles and to pave the entire system within 13 years.

He said the program was discussed with legislators who were here Saturday for the good roads banquet. The plan, Haynes explained, is contingent on the passage by the legislature and the voters at a special election of the constitutional amendment for a $100,000,000 state road bond issue.

Should that be approved next spring, the plan would be presented at once to the forty-fourth general assembly, Haynes said.

The proposal would add 1,415 miles to the primary road system, with every town of 150 population or more located on a primary highway. The program would call for the paving of 5,000 miles and graveling of 1,800 miles by the end of 1933.

After that time, Haynes said, there would be no more requests for bond issues, but the pay-as-you-go plan would be followed.

Snow Storm Causes Local Smash-Ups

Railroad Wires Down, Only One Line in Operation

Old man winter was formally ushered into Iowa City yesterday by a southeast wind and a two inch snowfall which blanketed the city.

Rock Island railroad officials said that all of their wires were down between Marengo and Grinnell and that they had only one wire in operation through here. All trains were behind schedule except those of the interurban which were running on time last night.

Many Cars Damaged
More than 162 cars were towed in by local service stations, damages being confined to broken wheels, fenders and other body damages. The accidents being caused in several cases by the snow packing on the street forming a thin layer of ice.

The hills on Jefferson and Washington streets by the campus where many accidents occurred were lined by spectators. Several smash-ups were reported on the hill leading to the university hospital.

Although there were 162 accidents no one was reported injured.

Lowest Temperature 20 Degrees
The Northwestern Bell Telephone and the Iowa City Light and Power companies reported their services were not interrupted by the raging storm.

Temperatures reported by Prof. John F. Reilly, government weather observer, showed the lowest registered to 20 degrees at 7 a.m. This raised to 23 during the day and dropped again to 25 last night.

Successor to Davis Meets Disapproval

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Opposition of the American federation of labor to the appointment of William N. Doak as secretary of labor was expressed today to President Hoover by the federation president, William Green.

Doak, whose appointment to succeed Secretary Davis after the latter resigns to become a senator Dec. 1, has been considered likely, in legislative circles, to be a federation member and that he would also oppose him.

Green said the federation felt the secretary of labor should come from federation ranks, since he thought the organization representative of the labor movement in the United States.

Los Angeles Grand Jurors Probe Mayor

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25 (AP)—The grand jury, resuming its investigation into charges brought against the administration of Mayor John C. Porter, issued subpoenas today indicating the probe would spread to Hollywood affairs. Porter was born and reared in Leon, Ia.

Orders for the appearance a week from today were issued for Henry Berliner, identified with one of Hollywood's noted cafes, and city councilman Virgil Martin. Grand jurors declined to indicate on what they would question the men.

Among the witnesses today were F. J. Hart and A. W. Taylor, officers of the Western Oil and Refining company, and S. F. Rosenberg, official of another minor oil concern, and his wife.

Reports were current the three men had been called upon to identify checks given to the Porter election campaign fund two years ago.

Cold Wave in South Strikes Sunny Dixie Unaccustomed Blow

ATLANTA, Nov. 25 (AP)—One death had been attributed tonight to the cold wave that swept into the south last night, bringing snow and freezing temperatures to portions of most Dixie states.

A man known only as "Riley" was found frozen to death in a shack along the Ohio river near Ludlow, Ky. He was the first victim of winter weather in northern Kentucky where the mercury dropped to 23 degrees.

The coldest point in the south was the peak of Mount Mitchell in western North Carolina, where a temperature of zero was recorded at 7 a.m. today.

The cold wave spread as far south as the Gulf coast. The mercury dropped two degrees above freezing at Pensacola, Fla.

Partly cloudy and colder weather was forecast generally for the southern states tomorrow, with snow expected in Tennessee and Kentucky.

Relief Plans Face Public Welfare Men

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Unemployment and drought relief measures were put at the top of the proposed public welfare cooperation program today by senate Democratic leaders.

In talking over their plans for the session, the Democratic leaders said their aim was to reverse the economic depression, and they gave notice to the administration that they expected the same cooperation for their policies in this direction as President Hoover has asked of the minority party.

Robinson Remains Loyal
Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, in initiating the informal party conferences upon his return to the capital, said he would seek to avoid an extra session in the spring. He added:

"Readiness to cooperate in the passage of the appropriation bills and emergency measures in no sense implies support on my part of the policies of the Republican party or approval of its record."

Republicans Busy on Relief
Republican chiefs who are busy framing unemployment and drought relief measures reiterated their vows of cooperation and sent word to the Republican Independents that they are willing also to seek votes on the legislation the latter are demanding.

Senator Fess of Ohio, the Republican whip, joined Senator Watson of Indiana, the party leader, in favoring measures demanded by Senator Norris of Nebraska, a leader of the Republican Independents.

"In the degree that the program will permit," said Fess, "Controversial subjects that have been before the congress for long time should be voted upon, especially if it would prevent a special session. I think the country's welfare demands a respite from agitation incident to legislation."

Lewis Calls U.S. Writers Not Serious

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (AP)—"American authors don't take their work seriously enough; they have a tendency to become a bit abashed in the presence of washing machines and carburetor magnates," Sinclair Lewis told a gathering of writers tonight.

The first American winner of the Nobel prize for literature was guest of honor at a dinner given by the F.E.N. club. He said for Stockholm Saturday to receive the Nobel award.

Writing celebrities from throughout the country were present, with Will Irwin as master of ceremonies and Fanny Hurst and Alice Duer Miller in the seats of honor at Lewis' right and left.

The novelist's speech, which was broadcast, was a gentle reproach to writers for their part in educating the American reading public.

"It isn't the fault of the public that Babe Ruth is more eagerly read after than James Branch Cabell," he said. "It's our own fault, for almost any of us would love to sit down and break bread with Babe Ruth—if he break's bread."

Police Arrest Trio in Connection With Teacher's Abduction

FT. MORGAN, Colo., Nov. 25 (AP)—Three men were arrested at Windsor, Colo., late today for questioning in connection with the disappearance of Miss Enid Martcott, 24 year old Wiggins school teacher a week ago last Sunday. The three, Tom Schopf, 18, William Heeb, 18, and Arthur Gray, 22, were held incommunicado at the Morgan county jail here tonight.

Sheriff R. A. Johnston said the stories of their activities from the Saturday preceding the teacher's disappearance until last Thursday showed some variances. He planned to question the men further tonight.

The sheriff did not say, however, what relation the arrest of the three youths bore to the search for the missing teacher.

Authorities say they are convinced the teacher was abducted shortly after she stepped from a Denver train at Wiggins Sunday night, Nov. 16.

Sub-Normal Temperature Covers Area

Mercury Drops to 16 Degrees, Blizzard Hits States

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 (AP)—One storm crowding at the heels of another gave the middle west a biting dose of winter today and the prospects of a white, but cold, Thanksgiving.

The central states had not yet recovered from the cold snap that headed for the Atlantic coast last week when another one swept in from the northwest to outdo its predecessor with lower temperatures and a more general snowfall.

Temperatures considerably below normal and a steady snowfall spread over most of the region including the upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys and the great lakes. High winds in the western portion of the area made up for any lack of snow.

Cold Expected to Last
The weather bureau expected the cold to last until after Thanksgiving holiday but predicted that the snow would stop sometime tomorrow.

Chicago and northern Illinois were covered by snow that fell nearly all day. In the metropolitan area thousands of homeless unemployed sought shelter as the mercury dipped to 16, the lowest of the season. Warnings were issued to Lake Michigan navigators during the afternoon telling of a snow and wind storm due over the lake.

Iowa Blizzard "Crazy"
In Iowa the blizzard was described as "crazy" with a blizzard apparently on the way one moment and clearing skies the next. South Dakota telephone companies warned of a new cold wave rushed to complete the repairing of telephone lines torn down in last week's storm. Aberdeen was still without long distance lines, six days after the previous storm. Unconfirmed reports from Scatterwood, Ia., region in South Dakota said thousands of pheasants, killed by alet last week, were being picked up by the wagon loads.

A strong northwest wind swept Nebraska, reaching a maximum velocity of 51 miles at Lincoln. Roofs were blown off telephone lines torn down, signs and windows wrecked, and snow piled into large drifts to delay train and motor travel.

It snowed steadily in North Dakota and Minnesota and a strong wind in the former state started drifts that threatened to isolate many communities.

New Actress Takes Stage on Broadway

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (AP)—Another Barrymore, comely and tall and nineteen, came to Broadway tonight—the first new stage recruit of her famous theatrical family in 27 years.

Ethel Barrymore Colt, on the stage of a theater named for her mother, shared with that mother the applause of a first night audience which gathered not only to see the stage-coming of the daughter but to see Ethel Barrymore in the role of a Negro woman.

The play, a dramatization of Julia Peterkin's 1928 Pulitzer prize novel "Scarlet Sister Mary," was less the thing than the appearance of a leading actress of her time in blackface and the debut of a fifth generation of the Lane-Drew-Barrymore stage line.

She was thrilled, she said, to be on the stage and her mother was glad that Ethel II, having decided for herself, had chosen the stage for her career.

Royal Colors to Attire Cast of New Play

University Theater to Give Shakespeare Dec. 2, 3, 4

Royal purple and gold for the king! Silver and rose for the queen! Rich greens and reds and blues for the court ladies and gentlemen! Costumes of brocaded velvet, of satin and lace, cloth of silver. Costumes of soberer woollens and rough homespuns. Costumes for royalty, nobility, and peasantry.

Lucy Barton, costume director of the university theater, and her assistants are designing, cutting, busting, fitting, material of every quality and color as they build the wardrobe for "Love's Labour Lost," university theater production of Dec. 2, 3, and 4.

There are pleadings and farthingdals for the ladies, slashed doublets and hose for the gentlemen. The ladies will wear boned bodices and the gentlemen a beard or mustache and one pearl earring. Both wear fluted ruffs at the neck and in some cases at the wrists.

Costumes are being made for the blue coat boys who are not actually of the cast, but who are essential to the tradition of the Elizabethan stage. There were no curtains for the stage in the time of Shakespeare.

Blue Coat Boys for Stage When it was necessary for a chair to be moved between scenes, small boys dressed in blue coats, short blue knickers, and yellow stockings moved it.

Miss Barton has been assisted by her class in stage costuming. The costume crew for the play consists of Warren Lee, A4 of Iowa City; Fressa Nickle of Des Moines; Lois Griffey, G of Denver, Col.; Frances Figert, A3 of Marathon; and Dorothy Beek, A3 of Blanchard.

Dill Believes Gorilla Story "Impossible"

"It is impossible," said Homer R. Dill, museum director, yesterday when asked his opinion of the animal, reported as a gorilla, roaming about the country south of Red Oak.

"It is my opinion," he continued, "that a gorilla could not live in Iowa. The authentic records of live gorillas in this country are few. So far as I know, there are no circuses that have ever actually had a live gorilla on exhibition. In cases where they have been reported with circuses they have always proved to be either chimpanzees or orangs.

It is exceedingly doubtful if either of these animals could live long in the wild state in this part of the country. "So valuable an animal as a gorilla which had escaped would certainly be traced until recaptured.

"It might be possible for some species of baboon to live for a time in Iowa. The average person could not distinguish between any of the larger monkeys. Any large ape is usually called a gorilla by the uninitiated. I think it would be safe to say that it would be impossible for a gorilla to be found as is reported."

Kansan Tells Geologists of Canyon Trip

An expedition through the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, termed by the United States geological survey "one of the most perilous ever undertaken by government engineers" was described by Prof. Raymond C. Moore, chairman of the department of geology at the University of Kansas and Kansas state geologist to geology students in chemistry auditorium yesterday at 4 p.m.

Professor Moore's talk was illustrated by colored slides and motion pictures, showing the rapids and jagged rock formations through which the expedition, of which he was geologist, travelled.

The party of 10 men was sent out by the United States geological survey to obtain accurate information relative to the geology of the canyon and in particular to ascertain the possibilities of hydraulic power development.

Last night, seniors, graduate students, and the faculty of the geology department held a banquet for Professor Moore at Iowa Union.

German Finds Americans Make "Wonderful Progress"

"I am impressed by the hospitality of your people, and by the wonderful progress they have made in so short a time," is the essence of the opinion of America expressed by Emil Meynen of the geographical institute of the University of Cologne, Germany. He is in Iowa City gathering data in his research work among the Pennsylvania Germans which he is carrying on as a fellow of the Rockefeller foundation.

Feels at Home "Sitting here, I do not feel that I am in your country," he added glancing about the Historical society library, and expressing himself with the precision and the ready gesture of one speaking in a language not his own. He was surprised that the university could have been so well established in the "few years" of its existence.

The Pennsylvania Germans of the west he finds more progressive and alert to modern trends than those liv-

Thanksgiving Vacation

THE normal first reaction of a student who considers the fact that Thanksgiving vacation is but for a day is resentful objection.

If the choice were simply between vacation and no vacation, without effect on anything else, the administration would gladly grant the extension of a holiday. But the choice is not so simple.

The university operates on a short year, already cut to the bone for the total number of class days. A week has been cut off the end of the spring semester from what it used to be, and the period between summer session and fall semester has been made a length which will give year around faculty members a decent vacation. Everyone realizes that the university starts reasonably late in the fall.

The minimum days of class attendance must be squeezed into the period remaining between opening and closing dates. Otherwise university credits would not be acceptable elsewhere, and the economic value of education here would be lessened. Otherwise the quantity of knowledge obtained would be made less, giving the student less return on his parents' investment.

Vacations are essential to a rounded school year for all work and no play affect Joe College as much as they do Jack Prep. Regarded as most important by university officials is that at Christmas and New Year's, made as long as possible to provide a real vacation for all and to permit students from greater distances to enjoy the holidays at home.

The remainder is fairly evenly distributed among the two semesters. It is possible during the second of these to bunch most of the time for leave into spring vacation. Because of Armistice day, Homecoming, and Thanksgiving—all necessarily holidays under present conditions—it is impossible for the university to give also a day and a half extra at Thanksgiving time.

Extra time now would mean loss of equal time from the Christmas holiday, aiding fewer students at the expense both of themselves and of those who live too far away to benefit.

It may not be especially pleasant to be away from home Thanksgiving day, but students who live in Iowa should consider those who get home only once during the year, if then. They might also remember that they are grown up now and can afford to endure being away from home a little longer than when they were at the apron strings age.

Stage Censorship

BISHOP Manning in an address before the Episcopal Actor's Guild condemned the "filth, rotteness, and degeneracy of the New York stage today." The prelate predicted that censorship of stage and screen must come unless producers clean up conditions now prevalent.

Censorship is not the solution to improving the tone of future productions, New York tried that with Mae West's Sex, with the result that it received all the more publicity. Something forbidden has an added lure and when Miss West took the play to Chicago, the free publicity she had gotten over the censorship row packed the theater.

Public opinion demanding cleaner and more wholesome plays is the best way to gain the desired end. Channing Pollock has shown that the public does like and will patronize clean plays even in New York.

"Red" Cagle's Decline

ONLY a year ago, Christian "Red" Cagle was riding on the heights of popularity following his sensational playing in the backfield for the Army football team. His name was consistently mentioned on the various all-American teams just as it had been the year before. Almost immediately after the close of the football season, Cagle's popularity began to wane.

First came the announcement of his secret marriage, which resulted in his immediate dismissal from West Point. Cagle was then offered a position as head coach at Mississippi A. & M. college at a reported salary of $3,600 annually. Not finding coaching to be the same job as playing, Cagle has been able to mold only a mediocre team.

Last week Cagle announced that he would return to the playing end of the game to play professional football. The president of Mississippi A. & M., however, has stated that he will not release Cagle from his contract, saying that he could see no use in hiring a football coach and then allowing him to resign before the most important games of the year has been played.

It hardly sounds like the popular conception of a hero to quit the game just because he isn't producing a winning team. What seems more likely is the call of commercialism. With a star of Cagle's reputation on its team almost any professional football eleven would become a real drawing card. In consequence, it is probable that a contract has been tendered the great Cagle far better than the agreement under which he is now working.

Regardless of why he did it, the willingness of Cagle to quit his job at a critical time has done much to undermine the high conception the sporting public once had of him. He may go on and win more glory in the professional game, but it would have been better if he had not adopted the tactics he has used.

Grape Juice and Beer

AL CAPONE has ordered that no grape concentrates shall be sold in Chicago on penalty of death. The edict troubles California grape juice industries.

Representatives of the California industries are said to have gone to Chicago to study the situation.

The concentrated grape juice is capable of fermentation, and therefore would be rival product of Capone's beer racket.

And while the grape juice makers are visiting Chicago, Capone himself is reported to be in California, where he is keeping detectives busy.

Threats of violence have been made, kidnapping plots have been alleged, and the row grows more involved.

It is a peculiar controversy, characteristic of the modern regime—intricate business organization and racketeering. Here is a difficult problem, this task of keeping peace between the dispensers of illegal beer and the sellers of legal grape juice for illegal use.

The outcome will be interesting to watch.

"Buy Now"

AS A PRACTICAL approach to the unemployment problem through sales promotion and the resulting need for replacement production, the "Buy now" campaign idea is rapidly gaining national momentum. The first campaign was organized by the Philadelphia chamber of commerce. Newspapers featured the campaign editorially and advertisements carried "Buy now" copy. Shop windows, trolley cars, subway and railway stations displayed "Buy now" posters. The same appeal was broadcast over the radio and film trailers also carried out the same idea.

Some of the large business houses that had been skeptical at first came in with wholehearted support as the campaign got underway. Union labor organizations met and passed formal resolutions urging member support.

While definite results of this campaign can not be accurately measured, evidence of its effectiveness is not lacking. Merchants generally feel it has produced an average of 15 to 20 per cent extra business. It has helped employ additional men and women, in the same stores that previous to the campaign were discharging as many as 150 to 200 a week.

Philadelphia has received more than 500 inquiries from American and Canadian cities asking for particulars as to the organization of its "Buy now" campaign. The merchants agree that to produce satisfactory results in such a campaign the values must be exceptional, sales methods must be aggressive and then stock carried by the stores must be ample.

The Other Side

(Below is a letter regarding the recent German universities debate which through mistake failed to appear yesterday).

To the editor of The Daily Iowan:
I am really amused by the "aftermath" of the German debaters.

That delegation headed by Count Blumenthal, have come to the United States merely for propaganda: That the universities are encouraging debate I quite understand; if they want to back German or any propaganda it's none of my business but it is amusing to notice it just the same.

Professor deKiewiet and Professor Tapper have taken an active part in the discussion. The former a professor of history, the latter a professor of philosophy. Professor deKiewiet has told you that the gold reserve in the "Banque de France" can serve as a whip for Germany. Well is this not a wonderful thing after all? Is it not better to use such a whip than to use the whip Kaiser Bill used in 1914, or the one Signor Mussolini is threatening to use? If France has reestablished her financial affairs and is again holding her own on the world market we should congratulate her and not blame her for it.

As to the "formidable taxing of the Germans," do you know that out of 100 dollars taxes paid in Germany only 15 go to war reparation. The German baron has certainly forgotten to mention that. If we compare those 15 per cent to the amount other countries pay, not only for pensions but for devastated regions we will see that Germany is having not such a "raw deal" after all and that the Young plan is the best that can be had just now.

Of course Professor Tapper considers this with the attitude of a philosopher as he did in the past years, Professor deKiewiet considers it with the attitude of an economist, and as to my poor little self, having been in the turmoil, being a native of a country who has not yet been accused of starting the World War (but who knows if some professor will not discover that yet), I consider all this discussion with the amused eye of the man who has paid and who might be paying with his own blood for the mistakes and the heated discussions of "strategies on chambers." I am prejudiced and I know it, the others are prejudiced but they don't know it.

And when all is said, it won't be the discussion of the German debaters that is going to change the matters of international affairs, and it probably is better so.

Very truly yours,
Adolphe-Jacques Dickman.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

Three touchdowns on passes in four minutes: With but four minutes to play, when Bend and Seaside were playing in the finals for the state football championship of Oregon in 1925, a pass from Loomis to O'Brien resulted in a touchdown. After the kickoff Loomis brought the ball to Bend's 40 yard line, and on the next play passed to O'Brien for another touchdown. Seaside kicked off again and Loomis ran the ball down to Bend's 40 yard line a second time, and for the third time Loomis passed to O'Brien for a third touchdown. It was Bend's game, 19-0.

The Only Place $37.50 is Written on These Suits is on the Price Tickets

Before you try them on—and before the mirror they have all the ear and eye marks of $50—and if you'll delve into the fabrics and tailoring you'll still stick to the $50 estimate.

Frankly, it's a new value to greet $37.50. Hart Schaffner & Marx planned it especially to unlock stubborn purses and to make men who don't feel like buying change their minds and appearances.

All set for rush alterations so that the men who change their minds today can be changed in appearances tomorrow too.

Jackson also asks that the claim be established against the funds retained by the defendant, Johnson county and its board of supervisors, from the contract price of construction work.

Blizzard Battles Harriers in Tenth Annual Finkbine Cross Country Run

Pfeiffer Wins Turkey Trot; Snow Retards

21 Brave Chilly Blasts for Coveted Prizes and Honors

Blinding flurries of snow, powered by a breath taking windy gale could only impede the gritty yearling thin-clads as they trudged and coasted the snow laden Finkbine course in yesterday's tenth annual Hawkeye cross country run. Off to a slow start but again the master of his own race under the severest of circumstances, Joe Pfeiffer, Iowa's coming distance star, again stepped into yearling hill and dale fame by coping the one and nine-tenths mile classic in 11:20. In a great comeback, E. H. Anderson paced into second place, trailing the Windy City lad to the top by 100 yards in 11:41.

Snow Hides Runners

As the first of the 21 entrants who braved the chilly weather sluffed through the drifting snowbanks for the sprint to the tape, the blinding storm cloaked them from visibility until within a few yards of the finish.

Bucking the wind in the forefront of the race, the green clads were sapped of a costly share of their reserve energy. The trek up long hill in the snow for home wearied the pack, until at last hitting into the gales on the crest, the harriers were able to coast, steadily increasing the pace to the finish.

The annual Hawkeye run is sponsored by the Hawkeye Cross Country club. Prizes offered were well worth the energy put forth by the participants.

Pfeiffer Wins Turkey

The broken and scattered prizes to the individual, the Hawkeye Traveling cup, a Thanksgiving turkey, and a gold medal; second, a goose and a medal; third, a duck and medal; fourth, a rooster and medal; fifth, a hen and medal; and the following five places, medals.

The order of finish and time of each contestant was: first, Joe Pfeiffer (11:20); second, E. H. Anderson (11:24); third, K. E. Voss; fourth, L. A. Campbell; fifth, R. W. Spafford (12:19); sixth, G. R. Knight (12:29); seventh, R. J. Henderson (12:24); eighth, T. L. Stevens (12:35); ninth, E. O. Schnoebelen; tenth, C. M. Cline (12:55); eleventh, R. J. Mitvalsky (13:05.5) thirteenth and fourteenth (tie), F. S. Folwell and J. W. Mitchell (13:06) fifteenth, L. G. Olson (13:06.5); sixteenth, G. L. Nelson (13:07); seventeenth, Robert Gulbraith (13:17); eighteenth, R. O. Bateman (13:21); nineteenth, W. P. Burton (13:52); twentieth, D. M. Comfort (14:56); and twenty-first, Fred Sloan (14:58).

Intramuralites

"By ED" A blanket of snow again held up the crucial game of the final round robin tournament for the kitten ball championship in which Kappa Sigma will attempt to finish its long period of competition with a clean slate at the expense of Alpha Tau Omega.

Both Coach "Dad" Schroeder and your columnist are crossing their fingers and praying for a bit more of that welcome Indian summer.

Fraternities have until tonight to get their entry blanks and $4 entry fees in to "Dad" Schroeder at the field house for the interfraternity basketball tournament. The list so far includes only 24 fraternities and is the smallest in several years of competition for the popular court title.

Quad Sidelines

"By MEL" Section C held its first basketball practice session last night at the field house. The rough weather must have been too much for the men as only seven were on hand when Dale Flitsch, acting coach, opened the session with a short talk on some of the high lights of last year's C teams.

"The C teams finished at both ends," said Flitsch. "The lightweights waded through all opposition to win the Quad lightweight championship, while the heavies were beaten in all their starts. This was due more to lack of practice than ability and this year we're going to have practice every night," he continued.

The men went through a short warming up period and tried shooting for the baskets. Another session is booked for tonight. All men eligible for section C basketball are asked to appear at this practice and see Flitsch.

Those who appeared were: Is Liberman, Rudy Keiler, Clare Halverson, William Shaffer, Paul Armstrong, Ellis Paul, and Dale Flitsch.

4 More Heed Mentor's Call for Tanksters

Four more men have responded to Coach David A. Armbruster's call for swimmers. Two have reported to the varsity, and two more to the first year crew.

Hans P. Nyholm, a winner of a silver award in '28 for diving, has reported. This brings the diving contenders to four. John Fields, a promising free style and breast stroke swimmer, is also with the varsity paddlers.

John McConnaughey has joined the freshman splashers. He comes from a California school. John Hands, a Davenport man who has polished the waters of the Mississippi with Boyd Liddle for a number of years, is helping the frosh in the free style events.

The swimming mentor has his men concentrating on swimming on Monday, Wednesday, and Fridays, while on the other days polo serves for the afternoon workout. The divers are working daily with a weekly check-up Tuesday from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m.

Athletic managers are urged by "Dad" to enter a team this year and to get their team entry in immediately.

The tourney will be divided into sections again this year and teams will then play a final round robin schedule of games. Division winners will then play a final round robin schedule to determine the tournament champion. Trophies will be awarded the section champs as well as the tourney winner. The fate of the prospective class B tourney will rest in the hands of the athletic managers when they meet to decide on further fall policies.

Those men whose names are given will continue to report for freshman basketball until Dec. 1, when the final squad of approximately 35 men will be selected. Those who are not on the picked squad will then be formed into a league which will play regular games, so that any man with ability who was overlooked when the squad was picked will still have a chance to make the varsity freshman squad.

"Silly Symphony" A Cartoon Comedy

Sportively Speaking

By Bill Rutledge

Now is the time when athletic boards look back in retrospect over the past season and decide whether present coaches will be retained. Most Iowa fans consider that Coach Ingwersen did well enough under the circumstances to warrant his retention. In fact, it does not appear that any changes in the coaching personnel of the Big Ten will be made.

The distant article of the avil chorus was heard at Wisconsin and Indiana a few weeks ago, but now it has died away.

Badger followers were deeply dismayed over the one-point loss to Purdue and scoreless tie with Ohio State. They were soothed to some extent by the victory over the Gophers. Coach Pat Page was slated to join the army of unemployed, but when his Hoosiers tipped the Boiler-makers, 7 to 6 for the old oaken bucket—the first time in history Indiana had won it, the biggest upset of the season, Hoosier rooters have been so gleeful over the win that they've forgotten about firing Page.

Coaches Amos Stagg of Chicago and Bob Zupke of Illinois are too firmly entrenched in the positions to be dislodged by the poor showings of their teams this fall.

Dick Hanley of Northwestern and Harry Kipke of Michigan, whose eleven wound up in a tie for the conference championship, are as sure of their coaching posts as an evolutionist is that man descended from the monkey. Kipke redeemed himself after the dismal record of the 1929 Wolverines. Hanley enjoys great popularity at NU.

The glitter of Ohio State's season performance was not obtained from Big Ten contests. The Buckeyes pleased their fans with inter-sectional triumphs over Navy and the Pitt Panthers.

Noble Kizer's position at Purdue is not in jeopardy. His first year as head coach, his team lost only two games, both by the point after touchdown. Minnesota did not come up to usual standards. Coming after Doc Spears puts Coach Crisler in a tough spot.

I'm quoting again from the

St. Pat's High Begins Court Drill for 1930

article "The Professor Sees the Game" that appeared in Scribner's Magazine for October, 1928.

"But as the professor realizes, the coach's path is not all strewn with roses. For the coach must with great consistency, win.

"A professor, if he be a man of some learning, of reasonable industry, of decent character, may retain his job even if he is no howling success as a teacher of his subject. A coach, though he work like a devil and have the character of a god, is not wanted if he cannot teach his pupils to win.

"The university is tolerant of a poor teacher in anything but football. It would take a bold individual to suggest that the university should be tolerant of poor teaching in football rather than in anything else."

Now is the open season for grid banquets. The chamber of commerce feted the Little Hawks at their regular noon meeting Monday. The Kiwanis club had as its guests yesterday Coach Ingwersen, his staff, and his squad.

Six Major Lettermen Boost Irish Hopes for Success

With 14 candidates, including six major lettermen and four minor letter winners, reporting, St. Pat's has started practicing for the 1930-31 basketball schedule. The Irish open the season against the alumni Dec. 7. The coach for the Green and White

Sherby high take third place in the southwestern Iowa district meet last spring. He has plenty of stuff on the ball and is the hero that is not often seen—a hard hitting pitcher.

At the close of basketball season, Ed will don the heavy shirt sleeves and start hurling the pill for the Old Gold yearlings. He is a pledge to Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

squad has not been announced yet, but at present, the football coach, Louis Loria, has been filling the position.

Welch Only Loss
With only one man lost by graduation last year, the Shamrocks will start the season with an experienced outfit. Johnny Welch, last year's captain, will live a vacancy in the lineup, although the incoming freshmen have been doing well in "B" team activities.

A long scrimmage constituted most of last evening's practice session. Wilkinson looked well in a guard position, while Meegan dropped the ball through the hoop several times. Emanuel was slightly injured in the practice scrimmage.

Letter Men Return
The major letter men returning are: Spratt; Wilkinson; Dvorsky; Weil; Kelley; Meegan. The minor letter aspirants are: Emanuel; Scannell; Glenn; L. Donahue. Walter Donahue will probably be seen in the lineup because of the reputation he brings from St. Ambrose, where he formerly attended. Other men seeking to lay claim on a position are: Pooler; Welch, a brother to last year's captain; Hildebrandt; Wicks; Pomey.

Men's Sports Program Out

Schroeder Maps Wide Choice for Frosh, Sophomores

With the apparent arrival of winter, Ernest G. Schroeder, director of men's physical education, has mapped the elective winter activities of freshman and sophomore students. A medical examination, muscular ability test, and the beginner's swimming test, have been given to all new men. The fall program consisted of work in three practical lines: tennis, golf, and swimming.

Swim Test Required
Following is the elective winter schedule for men registered in physical education 1, and all persons are required to transfer by Dec. 1. Elective winter swimming, Tuesdays and Thursday at 3, and Wednesday and Friday at 3. Sophomores on varsity squads that are in winter competition will be excused from the regular classes.

Wesleyan Will Have Entire Strength for Parsons Encounter

(MT. PLEASANT, Nov. 25 (AP)—With Charlie McAvoy, quarter, and Jim Davidson, guard, both off the injured list, Bradshaw back at end, and Parks at the safety post, Iowa Wesleyan tonight presented its at longest lineup since early this season. Should Wesleyan triumph in the traditional battle with Parsons here Thanksgiving day it will be assured of at least a tie for Iowa conference honors. If Simpson downs Penn, Wesleyan will hold a clear title.

Money for Nothing

By P. G. Wodehouse

Seventh Instalment
(Synopsis of Preceding Instalments)
Hugo Carmody, who thinks he knows a great deal about women, proposes marriage to Patricia Wyvern on behalf of his hapless cousin, John Carroll. Neither Patricia, nor John appreciates his willingness to help, although, at the time, he is giving them a supper-party, to which he has invited "Dolly Molloy and her father."

The respite afforded to their patrons' ear-drums by the sudden cessation of activity on the part of the Buddies proved of brief duration. Men like these ex-colleagues, who have really got the saxophone virus into their systems, seldom have long lull intervals between the attacks. Very soon they were at it again, and Mr. Molloy, rising, led Pat gallantly out onto the floor. His daughter, following them with a bright eye as she busied herself with a lip stick, laughed amusedly.

"She little knows!" John, like Pat a short while before, had fallen into a train of thought. From this he now woke with a start to the realization that he was alone with this girl and presumably expected by her to make some effort at being entertaining.

"I beg your pardon?" he said. "Even had he been less preoccupied, he would have found small pleasure in this tete-a-tete. Miss Molloy—her father addressed her as Dolly—belonged to the type of girl in whose society a diffident man is seldom completely at ease. There hung about her like an aura a sort of hard glitter. Her challenging eyes were of a bright hazel—beautiful, but intimidating. She looked supremely sour of herself."

"I was saying," she explained, "that your girl friend little knows what she has taken on, going out to step with Soapy."
"Soapy?"
It seemed to John that his companion had momentarily the appearance of being a little confused.

"My father, I mean," she said quickly. "I call him Soapy."
"Oh?" said John. He supposed the practice of calling a father by a nickname in preference to the more old-fashioned style of address was the latest fad of the Modern Girl.

"Soapy," said Miss Molloy, developing her theme, "has two left feet." She emitted another little gurgle of laughter. "There! Would you just look at him now!"
John was sorry to appear dull, but, eyeing Mr. Molloy as requested, he could not see that he was doing anything wrong. On the contrary, for one past his first youth, the man seemed to him enviably efficient.

"I'm afraid I don't know anything about dancing," he said apologetically.
"At that, you're ahead of Soapy. He doesn't even suspect anything. Whenever I get into the ring with him and come out alive, I reckon I've broken even. It isn't so much his dancing on my feet that I mind—it's the way he jumps on and off that stays me. Don't you ever hoot?"
"Oh, yes. Sometimes. A little."
"Well, come and do your stuff, then. I can't sit still while they're playing that thing."
John rose reluctantly. Their brief conversation had made it clear to him that in the matter of dancing this was a girl of high ideals, and he feared he was about to disappoint her. If she regarded with derision a quite adequate performer like Mr. Molloy, she was obviously no partner for himself. But there was no means of avoiding the ordeal. He backed her out into midstream, hoping for the best.

the stillness a sudden voice that breathed Vine Street in every syllable.

"Ladies and gentlemen," boomed the voice, proceeding, as nearly as John could ascertain, from close to the main entrance, "will you kindly take your seats?"

"Pinched!" breathed Miss Molloy in his ear. "Couldn't you have bet on it?"

Her diagnosis was plainly correct. In response to the request, most of those on the floor had returned to their tables, moving with the dull resignation of people to whom this sort of thing has happened before. Enjoying now a wider range of vision, John was able to see that the room had become magically filled with replicas of the sturdy figure standing beside Mr. Baermann. They were moving about among the tables, exchanging with an offensive interest the bottles that stood thereon and letting down epigrams on the subject in little note-books. Time flies on swift wings in a haunt of pleasure like the Mustard Spoon, and it was evident that the management, having forgotten to look at its watch, had committed the amiable error of serving alcoholic refreshments after prohibited hours.

"I might have known," said Miss Molloy querulously, "that something of the sort was bound to break loose in a dump like this."

John, like all dwellers in the country as opposed to the wicked inhabitants of cities, was a law-abiding man. Left to himself, he would have followed the crowd and made for his table, there to give his name and address in the sheepish undertone customary on these occasions. But he was not left to himself. A moment later it had become plain that the dashing exterior of Miss Molloy was a true index to the soul within. She grasped his arm and pulled him commandingly.

"Snap into it!" said Miss Molloy. "The 'it' into which she desired him to snap was apparently a small door that led to the club's service quarters. It was the one strategic point not yet guarded by a stocky figure with large feet and an eye like a gimlet. To it his companion went like a homing rabbit, dragging him with her. They passed through; and John, with a resourcefulness of which he was surprised to find himself capable, turned the key in the lock."

"Smooth!" said Miss Molloy approvingly. "Nice work! That'll hold them for a while."
It did. From the other side of the door there proceeded a confused shouting, and somebody twisted the handle with a good deal of petulance, but the law had apparently forgotten to bring its axe, and nothing further occurred. They made their way down a stuffy passage, came presently to a second door, and, passing through this, found themselves in a backyard, fragrant with the scent of old cabbage stalks and dish-water.

Miss Molloy listened. John listened. They could hear nothing but a distant squealing and tooting of horns, which, though it sounded like something out of the repertoire of the Collegiate Buddies, was in reality the noise of the traffic in Regent street.

"All quiet along the Potomac," said Miss Molloy, with satisfaction. "Now," she added briskly, "if you'll just fetch one of those ash-cans and put it alongside that wall and help me around that chimney and across that roof and down into the next yard and over another wall or two. I think everything will be more or less lark."

A little later John sat in the lobby of the Lincoln Hotel in Curzon Street. A lifetime of activity and dizzy hustle had passed, but it had all been crammed into just under 20 minutes, and, after seeing his fair-companion off in a taxicab, he had made his way to the Lincoln, to ascertain from a sleepy night-porter that Miss Wyvern had not yet returned. He was now awaiting her coming.

She came, some little while later, escorted by Hugo. It was a fair summer night, warm and still, but, with her arrival, a keen east wind seemed to pervade the lobby. Pat was looking pale and proud, and Hugo's usually effervescent demeanor had become toned down to a sort of mellow madness. He had the appearance of a man who has recently been properly ticked off by a woman for Taking Me to Places Like That.

"Oh, hullo, John," he murmured, in a low, bedside voice. He brightened a little, as a man will who, after a bad quarter of an hour with an emotional girl, sees somebody who may possibly furnish an alternative target for her wrath.

"Where did you get to? Left early to avoid the rush?"
"It was this way..." began John. But Pat had turned to the desk, and was asking the porter for her key. If a female martyr in the rougher days of the Roman Empire had had occasion to ask for a key, she would have done it in just the voice Pat employed. It was not a loud voice, nor an angry one,—just the crushed, tortured voice of a girl who has lost her faith in the essential goodness of humanity.

Sophie Braslau Gives First of 1930-31 Programs

Sophie Braslau, contralto, who will open the 1930-1931 concert series with a recital Sunday at 3:30 p.m. in Iowa Union, was the only vocal soloist chosen by Toscanini in his first four seasons with the New York Philharmonic orchestra to sing the role of the gypsy in De Falla's "El Amor Brujo."

Miss Braslau, of whom H. T. Parker wrote in the Boston Transcript "Rich of voice, keen of musical mind, quick with feeling, warm with protecting imagination—a vivid figure in American concert halls," was born in New York city of Russian parents and received her musical education in the United States.

"Patchwork Girl of Oz" to Live Again in Dramatization of Old Story Book Romance

A quest for a six leaf clover, a gill of water from a dark well, the left wing of a yellow butterfly, a drop of oil from a live man's body, and three hairs from a woody's tail brings adventure to Ojo and his companions in the "Patchwork Girl of Oz."

The play, an adaptation of L. Frank Baum's book of the same name, will be presented in the studio theater in Iowa Union Friday at 4 p.m. and Saturday at 1:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. It is the first of a series of four plays for children to be given in connection with the children's theater program under the direction of Dawn Dunton Steele, graduate assistant in speech.

Fairy Country Portrayed
The scene of the play is the fairy country Oz, "where anything can happen." Dr. Pipt, a crooked magician, by means of a magic powder brings to life Scraps, who has been made of a crazy quilt. At the same time a liquid petrification turns Ojo's Uncle Nunkie to a stone. In order to save him from this fate Ojo sets out on a quest for certain ingredients for a magic potion.

Scraps and the transparent glass cat who is proud that one can see her pink brains work, and her ruby heart beat, accompany Ojo in his travels. When they discover that they can't pull the hairs out of the woody's tail, they take him along. The travelers meet many peculiar people. The Wise Donkey and the Foolish Owl, who live together by the side of the road; the Scarecrow, who compares notes on stuffing with Scraps; the Tin Woodman, resembling the robot men; and an animated saw horse, who fights the woody.

Court Notables Present
They also meet distinguished members of the court, Ozma, the ruler of the land of Oz; the Wizard of Oz;

Bowman, A3 of Marshalltown, Wilma Price, A2 of Oskaloosa, Beulah Curry, A1 of Adel, and Eunice Howell, A1 of Iowa City, Tottenhots.

Any person who will deposit a fixed sum each day in the First National Bank may enlist this Friend of Friends and feel sure it will not desert him when help is needed.
