Public Works Bills Unable to Win Approval

Final Action on Relief Bills Postponed to Next Week

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—Final congressional action on legislation to relieve drought-stricken farmers and the unemployment situation has been put off until next week due to opposition in the house to the senate's stand on both matters.

The house today refused to accept senate amendments to the $118,000,000 emergency public work appropriation bill, and plans to consider its own $30,000,000 drought loan fund bill Monday in preference to the $60,000,000 one of the senate.

Senate amendments prohibiting the president from interchanging allocations of funds under the emergency appropriation and limiting employment to local workers drew house opposition in both parties. An amendment to make the fund available until expended also is opposed.

Farmer Tells Weird Tale of Five Slayings

Story Reveals Wiping Out of Family in North Dakota

WILLISTON, N. D., Dec. 12 (AP)—A halting, tangled tale by a 22-year-old farmer, told piecemeal and with unexplained variations and gaps, tonight revealed the slaying of an entire family near Schaffer, N. D., but left the identity of the slayer and a motive for the crime obscure.

Bodies of four of the victims and parts of a fifth, all members of the Albert E. Haven family, were recovered yesterday, while search for a sixth, that of Mrs. Haven, was being pressed tonight after the young farmer, Charles Bannan, had told officers where they were buried.

Bannan told a weird story of how the family was slain by Mrs. Haven with a hammer during a sudden fit of insanity, and said he helped her bury the victims, but a short time later admitted that her body, too, was buried on the farm. Despite this, the youth steadfastly declined to admit he was responsible for the slayings.

3,000 Troops Rebel; Clash Starts in Jaca

Premier Calls Session to Halt Progress of Revolt

MADRID, Dec. 12 (AP)—Military revolt, long expected in Spain as the result of political dissension, broke out today at Jaca, near the French frontier. At least 3,000 troops there rebelled, turned their guns on the town, and defied the government of Premier Damaso Berenguer. The revolt also was spreading to nearby towns.

The premier, after an emergency meeting of the cabinet, announced that the situation was in hand and that the rebels were fleeing to the French border, 30 miles away.

In the meantime, various unconfirmed rumors reaching Madrid characterized the revolt as important and said Major Ramon Franco, Spanish "ace" aviator who was recently imprisoned for disobedience but escaped, was one of the leaders.

The garrison at Jaca, said to be one of the strongest fortresses in northern Spain, was variously estimated at from 3,000 to 6,000 infantry, men and artillerymen. Jaca is in high country near the Pyrenees and commands the base of one of the passes into France.

Second Iowa Grocer Slain

Sioux City Man Fights Bandits; Slugged, Fatally Shot

SIoux CITY, Dec. 12 (AP)—Northwest Iowa and adjacent parts of Nebraska and South Dakota were being combed tonight in a search for the bandits who fatally wounded Louis Friedman, 36, in an attempted holdup of his grocery store, this morning.

Friedman was slugged with a blackjack and then shot when he attempted to fight off the two bandits, one of whom he apparently recognized.

The pair entered the store about 8:30 a. m. and drew revolvers, covering Friedman and Rufus Davis, a customer.

"Stick 'em up, Louie; we know you've got it," one of the bandits told Friedman. The grocer seized the man by the throat and attempted to strangle him.

The bandits entered an automobile which was parked across the street and escaped. It was believed that a third member of the gang waited in the car.

One of the bandits was described as about 6 feet tall, slender and about 30 years old. The other was about 5 feet 7 and weighed about 140 pounds. Both were well dressed.

Friedman is the second Iowa grocer to be killed in attempted holdups this week. Thomas Risk, Cedar Rapids, was slain by a bandit Monday night.

Dr. Wm. Malamud Talks on Psychoanalysis at Lecture

By MAC NOWLIN

If a student when he has to attend a lecture and is prompted by his subconscious instincts to go home and sleep should comprise between duty and insinuity by coming to the lecture and sleeping there—that might be the beginning of a neurotic state.

Such was an example used by Dr. William Malamud, last night's Baconian lecturer, in his discussion of "The present status of psychoanalysis" at 7 o'clock in the chemistry auditorium.

The point he was exemplifying was the conflict between the "id," the subconscious instincts, and the "super-ego," the environment, presided over by the ego or reason. In this case the ego decided to satisfy the environment, but it yielded to the instincts, and "the super-ego was fooled" in the end.

This conflict, Malamud said, is the basis of all neuroses, and neuroses he emphasized, comprise the field in which psychoanalysis has its inception, and in which its principles are most readily seen and have been oftenest proved.

French Vote on Ministry

Dissolution Threat Stirs Group to Act; Steeg Supported

PARIS, Dec. 12 (AP)—President Gaston Doumergue today took the big step of parliamentary dissolution out of the glass case in which it has been since 1877 and the warring political parties of the chamber of deputies, suddenly pacified, agreed to grant at least a measure of support to a cabinet headed by Senator Theodore Steeg.

As a result, M. Steeg told the president tonight that he would probably have his ministry ready for presentation at the Elysee palace some time tomorrow forenoon.

It was the eighth day of the ministerial crisis brought about by the overthrow of the Tardieu government in the senate December 4, and the 15th cabinet resignation during the seven years of M. Doumergue's presidency. Parliamentarians were seriously considering the possibility of a dissolution and new elections.

The president let it be conveyed to the leaders of the thirteen groups in the chamber that unless a cabinet were formed tonight he might have to "take definite measures." This was immediately interpreted as meaning that parliament would be dissolved under article five of the French constitution.

Within an hour the leaders of three small groups of the center and right center called upon M. Steeg and informed him they were ready to cooperate.

House Passes Boulder Bill

Appropriate $400,000 to Howard University for Library

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—The interior department supply bill carrying $15,000,000 for work on the Boulder canyon project during the next fiscal year was passed by the house today after a provision prohibiting pay increases to classified employees had been removed.

The bill appropriates $68,554,106 for all departmental activities, an increase of $5,642,482 over current appropriations. An effort by Representative Douglas, Democrat, Arizona, to block the appropriation for Boulder Canyon dam was defeated.

Controversy over the measure, the second supply bill passed by the house this session, centered on the federal pay provision and a $400,000 appropriation for a library at Howard university, a local negro institution. Representative De Priest, Negro Republican, Illinois, defended the library appropriation.

The library appropriation was sustained by 128 to 85.

Representative La Guardia, Republican, New York, led the successful opposition to the amendment of Chairman Wood of the appropriation committee prohibiting salary increases to interior employees under the classified service act. La Guardia won on a record vote of 169 to 115. The senate appropriation committee has stricken from the treasury-post office bill the same limitation on pay increases.

Delegation of Fellow Jews See Einstein

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—Albert Einstein descended today from the plane of abstruse mathematics to make a social rally from his ocean liner suite in New York harbor and to receive a delegation of fellow Jews on his ship.

With his wife and two other members of his party the scientist went ashore to a luncheon given in his honor by Adolph Ochs, publisher of the New York Times. The luncheon was entirely private.

He was presented with a volume of the golden book of the Jewish national fund, containing the names of those who gave money to the Palestine fund in his honor. In responding to the presentation address of Menachem Ussishkin, president of the world Jewish national fund, Dr. Einstein expressed the hope that he would be able "to work for my people the rest of my life, as well as for science." His second visit to the United States in ten years will take him to California Monday.

J. Cummings Gives Speech

Teacher Gives Relation of Art to Physical Education

"To have people experience a kind of pagan rapture in expression is the purpose of physical education," said Janet Cummings, instructor in physical education for women, speaking on "Art and its relation to physical education" at the physical education assembly in the women's gymnasium at 9 a.m. yesterday.

"Emotion is experienced through bodily activity," she said, "and by bodily activity we show emotional enjoyment. If we understand this psychology, we can understand the relation of art to physical education. We as educators should realize that there is a creative instinct in everyone. Practical education is the learning of awareness to that instinct; aesthetic education is the re-learning of awareness."

"Art is in the image of man," she concluded, "if there is a greater feeling for it, there will be a greater appreciation of it."

Stiles Talks on Credit at Local Bureau

Asks Credit Corporation to Keep Trade in Iowa City

"When a man walks over the threshold into your store, you've an investment in that person," declared C. O. Stiles representative of the national retail credit association at the meeting of the Iowa City credit bureau at the American Legion dining room last night, which was attended by 75 persons.

"As a merchant in Denver once said," he continued, "There are three things to find out about a new customer. Will he pay? Can he pay? Can he be made to pay? Credit bureaus serve this function."

Outlining the history and growth of credit bureaus he pointed out that today, 1,200 cities have retail credit associations. These associations serve 180,000 business and professional men in 10,000 towns. On their records they list the names of 60 million people.

"Credit," Mr. Stiles explained, "is the power to grant goods or services upon the promise to pay on a specified date in the future. The fundamental need of a successful credit system is to have a report of all customers, good, bad and indifferent."

Speaking of the local bureau, Mr. Stiles commented: "You have an efficient secretary and a good setup, and you only need better cooperation among the members of the organization."

"It is human nature for people to trade in a larger city. You can't stop this practice, but you can reduce it by treating the good credit customers in your territory as the merchants in the big cities do."

With a final plea for cooperation among merchants Mr. Stiles concluded his talk.

Archeologists to Meet Here for Conclave

Annual Gathering Will Unfold Stories of Antiquity

Antiquity's fragmentary tables, findings to which are laid bare by the pick and shovel of the archeologist, will be interpreted at the University of Iowa, Dec. 29, 30, and 31 when scores of the nation's leading experts in this science of past centuries gather for their annual conclave.

From long-buried cities and from ancient burial grounds of both the old and the new world, these members of the American Institute of Archeology have extracted the relics of vanished peoples.

Vases from ancient Greece, amulets, objects from the tombs of Egyptian rulers, coins from Rome, Corinthian burial relics, implements of peace and war discovered in the Americas—those are some of the articles from which the archeologists reconstruct the picture of old races.

45 Registered for Fencing; Expected Larger Enrollment

Forty-five men have registered in the fencing classes, which are under the direction of Ernest G. Schroeder, director of physical education. This is slightly less than last year's number, but Coach Schroeder said that more electives have registered this year, and that more interest is shown in the art.

The work so far has been in the nature of preliminary workouts, with jumping and stretching to toughen the leg muscles. The guard position, and thrusts and charges have also occupied some of the time of the fencers, and masks are furnished the swordsmen, and there is plenty of equipment for additional registration. The class is open to all university men except freshmen. Although fencing is no longer a varsity sport, a tournament is held each year to pick the best swordsmen, and medals and trophies are awarded the victors. Classes meet on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 3 p.m.

U. S. Officers Now Hunting "Big Game"

Open Season in Gang Preserves After Indictments

CHICAGO, Dec. 12 (AP)—The government started the "big game" of the gangland preserves today. Open season on Capone was proclaimed from two sides, a federal grand jury returning new indictments against Ralph, eldest of the four brothers, while public notice was being served on his better known brother, Al, that his presence is desired in federal court Monday.

George E. A. Johnson, United States district attorney, issued the invitation for "Scarface Al" to attend a "command audience" before Judge James H. Wilkerson at 10 a. m. next Monday.

Just what the city's number one "public enemy" will do about the that hour, for his attorney professed to know nothing of his whereabouts.

The district attorney said he would ask forfeiture of Capone's $5,000 bond, posted two years ago on a contempt of federal court citation, if he fails to show up. And if he does—the fixing of a date in January for the delayed contempt trial is only one annoyance planned for him.

His income taxes may come under official scrutiny at that time, and the police have waited weeks for an opportunity to serve one of a batch of vagrancy warrants.

Ralph Capone, already under a three year prison sentence for evading income taxes and free pending appeal, was indicted today by the federal grand jury on a prohibition conspiracy charge, noting 400 sales of liquor. With Ralph were indicted 17 others, employes of the two resorts.

Sheriff Nabs Man Charged for Desertion

Returning to Iowa City yesterday, Ed E. Brown was arrested by Sheriff Frank L. Smith on a child desertion charge. Brown is being held in the county jail pending further action by County Attorney F. B. Olsen.

Brown was indicted by the grand jury in the November term of district court in 1926 on a charge of child desertion. Appearing in district court on Aug. 29, 1927, Brown pleaded not guilty to the charge and was released on his own bond of $1,000 with the condition that he pay $20 a month to the clerk of court for the support of his children.

Failure to comply with the decision of the court and leaving the county and state led County Attorney Olsen to ask the court for a warrant for arrest of Brown, with the result that Brown was arrested on his return to Iowa City. Brown has nine children, who with his wife, live in Iowa City.

"In America students pay to take physics, but in Russia they are paid for taking it," said J. Frenkel, professor of theoretical physics at the Polytechnical Institute of Leningrad, after he had given a graduate lecture to physics students and faculty members yesterday. "This plan gives all students an equal opportunity," he said.

In speaking of physics in general, Professor Frenkel said that he anticipates fundamental changes to take place in the future. He said that physics in Russia is progressing rapidly and that the number of students taking the subject has practically doubled in the course of the last few years.

Major Denies Murder Guilt in Testimony

Agents Give Evidence Against Shepard in Court Trial

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Dec. 12 (AP)—A statement alleged to have been made to department of justice agents by Major Charles A. Shepard prior to his arrest for the alleged poison murder of his wife was pronounced against him in his murder trial late today as Grace Brandon, the government's star witness, left the witness stand after two days of testimony.

In the statement Shepard was quoted as saying he had never discussed divorce with his wife and that nobody had ever come into their lives to cast a shadow on their marital happiness.

Further, the army medical officer was quoted as declaring he never had obtained any bichloride of mercury from the dispensary at Ft. Riley, Kan., where Mrs. Shepard died in 1929.

This statement was in direct conflict with testimony in the trial by the Ft. Riley army pharmacist that Shepard drew supplies of mercury on several occasions about the time Mrs. Shepard was stricken with the fatal illness.

Application of Bowery Club Strikes Snag

Board of Adjustment Receives Protest of Neighbors

Much interest was displayed in the discussion of an application by the Bowery club made at a meeting of the Iowa city board of adjustment held in the city hall yesterday, and asking permission to establish indoor and outdoor miniature golf courses, with a tea room, lunch and soft drink parlor in a block in the Lyons addition.

About 40 persons appeared at the meeting, and several petitions of objection were filed by owners of property adjacent to the block in question, which was formerly occupied by the Delta Chi fraternity, L. C. W. Clearman, representing the Bowery club, stated that the project was "technically inside the law." W. L. Jackson, representing the property owners, protested that its establishment "violates the intent, purpose, and spirit of the zoning ordinance."

The board adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning, to consult with Will J. Hayek, city solicitor, on the legal aspect of the situation.

The property was under discussion last August, when a petition to the city council for its inclusion in the business district was filed. Petitions of objection were made at that time by many property holders in the vicinity, and action on the matter was indefinitely postponed.

Self-Education

THE things the student learns without a teacher are often the things he knows best. There have been many distinguished men who taught themselves far more than they received from any teacher. Leonardo Da Vinci and Benjamin Franklin are excellent examples. William Carey, the eager idealist who had his books on his bench beside him while he cobbled shoes and became one of the greatest linguists of his time might be mentioned here.

There are numerous experiments being tried in self-education today. Antioch has the so-called "autonomous" course. Harvard's student reading period after the close of class recitations and before the beginning of examinations, and in many colleges the endeavor to develop student initiative through special honor courses is being encouraged.

The student who comes to Iowa to educate himself will find books, laboratory facilities, athletic opportunities, and stimulating situations far in excess to those his mother and father enjoyed, and if he manages to avoid the popular student attitude that says to the professor, "Well, here we are; now let us see if you can put yourself and your stuff across," he can absorb a wonderful education.

Compacts vs. Socks

THE brain-reckoning season is here again. Once more the time has arrived when the women of the country burden their minds with heavy decisions between lounging robes and elegant lighters, tooled leather bill folders and novel ash trays. Not that it really matters—they always end their Christmas shopping tours by buying green shirts, red ties, and blue socks for their male relatives and friends.

And the men are ruining their minds, casting sidelong glances at windows displaying lacy underwear and pajamas, wondering if such gifts would be appreciated or only cause an indignant uplifting of penciled eyebrows. But conventions, or lack of originality always cause the man to purchase finally, on December 24, a pile of sweet perfume, a box of silk hose, five pounds of chocolates, or an expensive compact containing a poor grade of powder and rouge.

The best thing Santa Claus could leave in thousands of American homes is an approved list of useful, appropriate, original gifts for both sexes.

Congressional Economy

CAN the people stand an increase in taxes? Senator William E. Borah favors an increase of 2 per cent on the income tax rates paid in 1928 and a 3 per cent increase over the 1929 rates. If this session of Congress is to authorize rash expenditures the next one must increase taxes. It is only a plain problem of mathematics, and what Congress does it will do with its eyes open. The trend at present in Congress is toward heavy expenditures. The deficit is already estimated to reach something like $355,000,000.

Strictest economies must be followed by Congress and to do this, as President Herbert Hoover declared, the cooperation of both parties in absolute necessity. A return of prosperity that will increase the government's revenues is anticipated for early next year, but Congress should not depend on this to a great extent and should do everything possible to avert the necessity of raising the taxes.

If the government wants to enlist the help and cooperation of the people at this time of depression it must make only the appropriations that are absolutely necessary, keep those within the budget, and make them in proportion to their true worth. After all Cicero was right when he said, "Economy is the greatest revenue."

Sport or Business?

GENE TUNNEY, according to his own testimony in a trial now concluded, made $1,742,282 for being heavyweight champion. Others undoubtedly made that and more in connection with his contests. Each fight in itself was a big business, showing how completely commercialism has captured the sport.

Boxing, especially prize fighting, has an attraction for most people. Human beings have an instinct within themselves that admires physical prowess. This instinct has been prevalent down through the ages. Reading of the Old Testament illustrates the tribute paid the victor of physical combat in the days of this period. Gate receipts of a heavyweight championship fight tell the story of the thousands of moderns who like prize fights, and thousands, who would not attend and denounce it as brutal, like to read accounts in the paper or see it shown on the screen.

Boxing, with no greater elements of brutality than football, is and has been a leading sport. But whatever favorable arguments prize ring devotees may advance, it must be admitted that most of "sport" has been taken away from boxing through the thorough commercialization of prize fights. Fights are not promoted for the prime purpose of seeing who can win—it is the money in the game. Not only is it the livelihood of the fighter and promoter, but it has been carried to extreme of shrewd business transaction. Not all of Tunney's money came from fighting. Prize ring popularity paves the way for various other methods of capitalizing on the public—advertising, movies, speeches, news articles, and the many channels open to a fighter basking in the limelight.

Thus prize fighting has passed from a sport to a business. Tunney conquered, gained his pile, and retired from the ring. No consideration was given to the public who supplied his aim. Love of the game was not predominate with Tunney, it was business.

Mass Education

IS MASS education right? The United States educational system advocates equality in education: that every child shall have the same opportunities for learning. Yet by this same policy educators are lowering standards and making a farce out of the heights of education which a few years ago were not within reach of every individual who could afford to buy a textbook.

By educating a great mass of people with the same pattern, American schools are destroying individuality and tending to standardize "culture." Not all persons are fit for the same education. The basis for all learning must necessarily be the same, but the standardization should stop there.

Education is for the purpose of fitting people with the tools to use in the economic system of today. Each person has a different status in society, so that only personal training can benefit him in his relationships with other members of that society.

Technical training is gaining over cultural education, and specialization is finding a large place in the colleges of today. Before education can be complete, however, there must be a weeding out of those individuals who are in the wrong niche.

About Immigration

DOES Immigration add to the already distressing problem of unemployment now occupying a goodly share of attention in congress and among social welfare organizations?

Senator Reed is of the opinion that it does, and for that reason believes that it should be curtailed during the present period of depression.

One thing is certain; an influx of foreign workmen who do not understand the English language and are not skilled in American ways, at a time when native citizens are unable to find employment, will most certainly lead to complications. Either these men must join the army of unemployed or else take the few existing jobs at a much lower salary than the present wage scale.

If the former be the case, it will mean another element of unsatisfactory citizens within the country's borders. Unable to find work and unable to acquire the much dreamed of money for which they came to this country, they will become bitter towards the United States as a country of false promise.

If, on the other hand, these immigrants do secure employment at the lower wage, it will give rise to a hatred for all foreigners among the jobless American citizens.

Opponents to restrictive measures say that such a move would incur unfriendly attitudes among other countries. However, if exclusion were made universal, with no partiality as to race or nationality, solely on the strength of existing labor conditions, there is little reason to believe that any misunderstanding should arise.

"Better" Poison Alcohol

CHEMISTS, it seems, have discovered a new way of rendering industrial alcohol undrinkable without making it poisonous.

A new product, alcotote, which is derived from California and Mexican petroleum, gives to the alcohol a taste and smell similar to spoiled eggs and garlic. And the product can't be distilled out.

However, certain limitations will restrict a universal use of this new discovery.

Imagine if possible, one of the smartly dressed men of the younger set, with his hair neatly slicked down with a tonic made from alcotote alcohol; or the family car after a long hard pull, when its radiator had been filled with the product.

No, it seems that those who insist on drinking everything that they can get down will have to be protected with something less odiferous.

The old poison, wood alcohol, which is added to the industrial alcohol has the advantage of nearly the same odor of grain alcohol. It may be distilled out, but the remaining product is oftentimes dangerous if taken internally.

FRANZ Hinkler lives in Arad, Rumania. Bad teeth sent him to his dentist. Dr. Dentist removed two bridges. "Now pay your wife's $60 bill due me if you want these bridges replaced," said the artful dentist.

Examination Schedule First Semester, 1930-1931

Saturday, January 24, 8:00 A.M. to Saturday Noon, January 31, 1931
The regular program of class work will be suspended, and the following semester-examination program substituted for it. Classes will meet for examination in the rooms in which they have been regularly meeting (except classes in French 1 and 3, and speech 1, as shown at number below). The Program Committee directs the attention of both students and instructor and professors to the regulation that there is to be no deviation in the case of any examination, from this schedule—except as authorized by the Committee, on the student's written petition filed in ample time, supported by the recommendation of the department concerned—to provide relief from an excessive number of examinations within a single day. Deviations for the purpose of getting through earlier will not be permitted.

Classes (except in Freshman English, first and second year French, and speech, (N.B. below), whose first meetings occur:
Monday at 8, meet for examination Thursday, January 29, 10-12
Monday at 9, meet for examination Thursday, January 29, 8-10
Monday at 10, meet for examination Monday, January 26, 8-10
Monday at 11, meet for examination Tuesday, January 27, 10-12
Monday at 1, meet for examination Friday, January 30, 8-10
Monday at 2, meet for examination Saturday, January 31, 8-10
Monday at 3, meet for examination Saturday, January 31, 10-12
Tuesday at 8, meet for examination Friday, January 30, 10-12
Tuesday at 9, meet for examination Tuesday, January 27, 8-10
Tuesday at 10, meet for examination Saturday, January 24, 8-10
Tuesday at 11, meet for examination Monday, January 26, 2-4
Tuesday at 1, meet for examination Wednesday, January 28, 8-10
Tuesday at 2, meet for examination Thursday, January 29, 2-4
Tuesday at 3, meet for examination Saturday, January 24, 10-12

The first meeting of the class means the first lecture or recitation period in courses having both lectures and recitations, and laboratory periods; or, in case of courses involving only laboratory periods, the first clock-hour of the first weekly meeting. For example, chemistry 1B meets for lectures 7:30 to 11. The first meeting is, consequently, Tuesday at 11; and the class will meet for examination Monday, January 25, 2-4, according to the foregoing table. Again physics 125 meets twice each week, T, F, for a three-hour laboratory exercise, 1-4. The period for examination is, therefore, Wednesday, January 28, 8-10.

N.B. All section of freshman English will meet simultaneously in the rooms designated below, Saturday, January 24, 2-4 P.M.

"Odd" classes, whose first or only weekly meetings occur on Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays, or Saturdays; or which meet "as arranged"; will be assigned for examination at either one or another of the following three periods, as announced to each such class by the instructor in charge of the class:

Monday, January 26—10-12
Wednesday, January 28—10-12
Tuesday, January 27—2-4

It should be borne in mind that there is possibility of announcing two or more "odd" classes for any one or more of these three periods available for "odd" classes. Therefore, in connection with any such announcement it would doubtless be well for the instructor making the announcement to ascertain whether any member of his class is already under appointment for

Senator's Death Brings Hoover to Truce With Senate

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—Hostilities between President Hoover and the rebellious senate quieted down today as the death of Senator Overman of North Carolina brought a truce.

Senate Republican leaders turned to the ambitious task of bringing about a new cooperation movement on relief legislation with the understanding that before Mr. Hoover strikes out again at their recalcitrant members he will confer on strategy.

The administration forces have made it plain that they did not like the tactics employed by the president in accusing those who sponsored relief legislation outside his program of "playing politics at the expense of human misery."

Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, who has been striving to smooth over the senatorial feelings and at the same time to bring about a closer cooperation between the White House and senate, issued a statement tonight saying the Republican leadership and the president are not divided.

Georgia School Boy Wins 10 Round Decision From Sioux City Fighter

Pounds Sioux City Boxer to Win Decision

Strib Fights Cautiously to Beat Iowan in Bristling Bout

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY
CHICAGO, Dec. 12 (AP)—Fighting a cautious, tricky battle W. L. (Young) Stribling, the pride of Georgia, defeated Tuffy Griffiths, Sioux City, Ia., heavyweight aspirant, in a bristling 10 round contest in the Chicago stadium tonight.

Stribling, overwhelming favorite to conquer Griffiths, perhaps by a knockout, was forced to use all of his sharpshooting boxing skill to outscore the gritty midwesterner. The Georgian, with his flashier skill, managed to win six of the 10 rounds but only after he was extended to the limit by the shifty, dangerous puncher from Iowa.

Decision Unanimous
The decision, which was unanimously agreed upon by the two judges and referee, Ed Purdy, may result in making Stribling the choice of the National Boxing association and the heavyweight champion of the world. Prior to the battle, General John V. Clinlin, president of the National Boxing association and chairman of the Illinois Athletic commission, declared that Max Schmeling of Germany, the titleholder, had failed to defend his crown within the prescribed six months limit, and that it was up to the N.B.A. to name the winner of the Griffiths-Stribling bout as the association's titleholder. General Clinlin, however, must obtain the approval of other member states and communications asking for their assent will be sent out tomorrow.

Stribling Boomed
When Stribling proclaimed the winner, the verdict was greeted by a chorus of boos and then a round of cheers by most of the 15,000 spectators. The experts agreed, however, that Stribling was entitled to the verdict as he won five or six of the rounds, while Griffiths won a shade in three sessions with two rounds being evenly fought.

Stribling, a great favorite because of his one round knockout of Otto von Porat here a few months ago, started out as if he intended to repeat that triumph against Griffiths, but found the Iowa youngster an elusive target to shoot at and an opponent as full of fight as a wildcat.

Tantalizing Lefts
Griffiths never let up throwing his left hook and he banged away in close range with both fists to the body. The Iowan, however, was unable to score decisively with his rights to the head but was able to crack Stribling with tantalizing lefts to the face that broke up many of the Southern's well intended attacks.

Stribling used a stiff left to the face in the early rounds, but from the third round on he began to batter Griffiths with terrific right hand blasts to the body, which he alternated between the heart and stomach.

Neither fighter was in any danger at any time despite the fierce exchanges, but the most damaging blow probably occurred in the ninth round when Stribling nailed Griffiths on the chin with a savage right uppercut. The punch jarred Tuffy for an instant, but he had the presence of mind to grab Stribling's right arm and clinch.

No Quick K.O.
Stribling, in the meantime, slugged Tuffy with a half dozen left hook before Tuffy tied him up completely. After this flurry passed, the Iowa boxer never was in danger and fought back courageously all the way.

If Stribling had any idea that he would score a quick knockout, over Griffiths he soon lost it. In fact, the fast moving Tuffy earned a slight shade in the first round by virtue of spearing the Georgian with a volley of lefts and holding his own at the rough battling in close quarters, with the crowd cheering him on with every punch he landed.

After the first session, Stribling began to box more carefully and won the next three or four rounds by superior boxing and ring generalship.

Dogged Fighting
The sixth and seventh rounds, which found both boxers fighting doggedly, might have been called even, but Griffiths, flashing a new burst of speed moved ahead in the eighth round. In this session, Tuffy began plugging for the body and tried repeatedly with his right to the head. Stribling found himself forced to the defensive.

The ninth round, in which Stribling made his major bid for a knockout victory when he landed a vicious right uppercut, was clearly the Georgian's.

Stribling was guilty of some unnecessary roughness in the battle, especially in the clinches. Griffiths complained to the referee on several occasions when Stribling belted him on the back of the neck with "rabbit punches."

Griffiths caused a surprise by weighing more than the Georgian when he tipped the beam at 180 pounds with Stribling scaling 184 3/4.

Sportively Speaking

By Bill Rutledge

I certainly hope that no nation chooses this afternoon to attack the United States, for all the Navy officials and the complete Army staff will be attending the Army-Navy football game and the R.T.C. regiments do not meet this afternoon. Our illustrious Secretary of Navy, Charles Francis Adams, heads the list of dignitaries. Commander Booth of the Salvation Army will also be present.

Efforts nothing short of desperate have been put forth to make the charity game a rousing success.

The public has manifested extreme diffidence in this type of contest. A scanty 17,000 saw the Colgate-N.Y.U. charity game in the Yankee stadium last Saturday. A meager turnout saw the Detroit-Loyola charity fray at New Orleans. Citizen promoters of the Cadet-Midshipmen clash have striven to overcome the customer's reticence.

After a season of much excitement over Notre Dame, the sport pages have been clear for the game and the romantic ballgame connected therewith.

If one takes literally the pre-game stories emanating from West Point and Annapolis, he would be forced to the conclusion that Army would be better represented if the game was played in a hospital ward and that the principal Navy players will need crutches to hold them up.

The Army list of cripples includes about five players. Navy has reported about six casualties.

Congressman Fred Britten of Illinois and Hamilton Fish of New York turned the game into political capital. Their voluble agitation that has extended over several years was instrumental in forcing Army to acquiesce to the battle. The original proposal for this particular contest came from Paul Gallico of the New York News. He suggested the game in a wide open letter to none other than our benign President Hoover.

With his customary procedure, the former West Branch resident called Gallico to the White House for a conference. It was thought that the president would appoint a commission of prominent sportsmen to investigate the possibilities of the game. Then one day came the official report that the game would be played.

Navy enthusiasts took up the suggestion from the outset. This put the Army in a delicate position. The hostility arising from eligibility disputes had fixed a breach between these "natural" rivals. Relations were severed in 1927. This afternoon they will be renewed for the first time since that date.

With its only loss of the season the 7 to 6 defeat from Notre Dame, Army has a splendid record.

After winning practice games, the Navy team went into a coma, from which it did not fully emerge until last Saturday, when the Midwesterners thoroughly whipped Pennsylvania, 25 to 0. Coach "Bill" Ingram is expected to turn loose a midweight welterweight named Kim. Being about the lightest and fastest player on the field, he may run circles around the big brawny Cadets. Army has nothing to gain in winning, while Navy has everything to gain.

Little Hawk Cagers Take Light Workout on Basket Shooting
Iowa City high school's cagers took a light workout in their gymnasium yesterday afternoon. The drill consisted of basket shooting.

Cleatus Stimmel, missing Little Hawk center, turned out for practice yesterday for the first time since Wednesday.

The major part of yesterday's scrimmage was given over to the group that has been cut from the main squad. This outfit of some 20 basketballers has one practice a week and a three hour session Saturday morning.

Red and white squad will hold a regular drill session today.

"Tappers Better This Year" Says Kipnes
"I think that the tappers this year are better than those in last year's classes, and the attendance so far has been good," said Aaron Kipnes, who has charge of the clothing classes in men's physical education division.

The registration in the four classes has reached 120 to date. The three elementary classes have been learning the fundamental steps including the half break, break, kick outs, the single draw backs, and the bells.

Men who have had one year of clothing are admitted to the advanced class. The section has been spending the time on the buck and wing, half breaks, the time step, the break, and two sets of the "buffalo," in addition to the draw back and the twist.

St. Pat's Defeats St. Mary's of Ottumwa 13 to 11 in Sparkling Contest

Saints Gird for Next Two Cage Games

St. Ambrose Quintet to Engage St. Mary's Here Monday

St. Mary's Ramblers resumed their workouts on the hardwood floor last night in preparation for two of the St. Ambrose of Davenport, and St. Mary of Clinton will journey here next Monday and Wednesday. Both teams are undefeated this season.

St. Ambrose, the first opponent, has an unusually strong outfit. They defeated Clinton high school by a score of 22 to 11 in a game, in which they did not allow the losers to cage a field goal until late in the third quarter. As a nucleus for the team, Astin, an all district tournament forward, is back along with Foley, a guard, and a flock of other experienced material. All of them have been forged into a combination which should force the Supleman to do their best.

Not Disheartened
The Ramblers are not disheartened over the fact that they have dropped two successive contests, due to last minute spurts by their opponents. They have and will continue to face some of the best high school basketball combinations in this part of the state, and their inexperience has told against them. Coach Supleman is giving all of his men a chance in preparation for the future.

St. Mary's is working on new offensive and defensive tactics, and these promises to be some shakups in the lineup before next week's contests. A long basket shooting drill was engaged in last night, and this was followed by a discussion of the mistakes made in the Immaculate Conception game.

Seek Speedy Attack
Coach Supleman has decided that speed is essential to his small quintet, and this will be the keynote of the next few drills. Speed in breaking, in passing, and in drive will be emphasized.

Since Drizhal's fine showing in recent contests, he, along with Morrison and Bradley are engaged in a real battle for the guard posts. Rittenmeyer has also displayed a big improvement, and threatens to break into the regular lineup.

Youngerman Cops Honors in Fall Event
Wesley Youngerman walked home last night with first honors in his credit and a gold medal in the varsity section and first over all in the eighth annual weight triathlon which was staged on Iowa field Thursday and Friday afternoons. Youngerman's low total score was four points.

Wayne Massey, who won first in the shot put event Thursday afternoon, came in for second laurels in the contest with a score of eight points.

Moore Leads Fresh
Tom Moore, competing in the freshmen section of the triathlon, also carried away a gold medal for first place in that section. Moore and Parker Bennett tied for first honors in the freshmen section with nine points each. Moore was awarded the gold medal and blue ribbon after winning a tossup. Lumir Kouba was next in line in the freshmen standing with a score of 11 points.

Yesterday's events were confined to the hammer throw. Youngerman copped first in the varsity section when he hurled the ball and chain 132 feet and 11 inches. Kouba drew first honors in the freshmen section with a distance of 96 feet and seven inches.

Martin Praises Marks
Coach Thomas Martin stated that the marks were much better than usual, and that the freshmen competition was evenly matched in all three events. Coach Martin also said that the weather for the work was the best he had ever experienced in his connection with the fall weight triathlon.

Work out on the weights will continue on Iowa field for one week. After the holidays the squad will move to the field house. Shot put and javelin men will work indoors throughout the balance of the winter, while the hammer and discus men will practice on Finkbine field.

Battalino Bats Chocolate for Close Verdict

By EDWARD J. NEIL
MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—Christopher "Bat" Battalino, the none too highly rated champion of the featherweights, came into the big town for the first time tonight and proved himself before a crowd of 17,000 by whipping the fading Kid Chocolate in a furious 15 round defense of his title. It was the third straight defeat for the slim Cuban Negro who a year ago was considered invincible in the 125 pound class.

An under dog in the betting, hardly rated the equal of the flashy "Keed," no matter how far the Cuban had gone back, Battalino got up off the floor after a count of nine in the first round to chase Chocolate the rest of the way, presiding eternally at his body, and in the end gain the unanimous decision of two judges and referee Arthur Donovan. The big Christmas fund crowd that had made Chocolate a 2 to 1 favorite, booted the decision lustily.

It seemed at the start that Chocolate, a striking picture of swift movement, straight punching ebony fighting man, would make short work of the youngster who won his title in his home town of Hartford, Conn., from Andre Routsis a couple of years ago and has been beaten several times in overweight matches since. After maneuvering the clumsy Battalino into position, Chocolate lashed a left and right to the champion's chin and Christopher hit the deck.

He seemed to take the count of nine more as a precautionary measure than from any damage done by the punches and he came up full of fight. From that moment on the champion never gave Chocolate a minute's rest, storming continually into him, bobbing before him with elbows wound around his head, refusing to let the Negro step for another of his straight, sharp punches.

The Associated Press score card gave Battalino an edge in eight rounds with Chocolate, by his sharper, cleaner punching, carrying off the margin in seven. The champion's rally toward the close of the battle, when he ground Chocolate down by his body bargages and won the eleventh, twelfth, thirteenth, and fourteenth rounds in a row, seemed to swing the balance to the crownholder.

Sacrifice Fly Ruled Out by Baseball Head
NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—The sacrifice fly was legislated out of existence today by baseball's joint rules committee.

Present on when a batter lifts a lofty fly to the outfield and enables a runner to advance a base he will not be credited with a sacrifice and he will be charged with a time at bat.

Proponents of the change insisted the sacrifice fly had no place in the rules. They pointed out that in most cases batters had no intention of lifting a high fly to the outfield so the runner could advance a base. Instead most of them were swinging for home runs.

There being no sentiment on the other side, the rule was adopted. Another important change limits the runner to two bases when the ball bounces off the playing field.

The National league rule saying that a ball shall be judged fair or foul where it last leaves the playing field and not where it is last seen was given American league approval and thus becomes a standard regulation.

Sixteen of the university's best wrestlers will be pitted against each other at the fieldhouse this afternoon to determine which men will wear the crowns of all-university champions for this year. Most of the contestants swept through the elimination rounds with little or no trouble and are as a whole, in good condition.

"The fans will get their money's worth," Coach Mike Howard said yesterday while commenting on the finals. "These men are all out to win, and will be giving everything they have to take the championships."

Peer's Scissors Punish
Larry Mueller's rally into the 125 pound class from his usual 115 pound proved disastrous when Peer pinned him last night in 9:06. Peer applied a punishing body scissors which cut his man down and then slapped on a half nelson to subdue his scrappy opponent.

Carl Larsen gained the right to finals by tossing Frank Duffitt with a body scissors in 1:33. The bout was fast and Larsen won by outspeeding his husky rival.

Freshman have been eliminated from all but the 115 pound and the heavyweight classes. Thomas Stevens will represent the first year men in the flyweight division and Howard Orvis is scheduled to vie for honors as a heavy. Orvis will meet tough opposition in Oliver Sansen, football captain-elect. Sansen, while inexperienced has shown plenty of natural ability and may be looked on as a comer.

Finals Start at 2:15
The first match of the finals will get under way at 2:15 this afternoon. Coach Howard will referee the matches, and so, under the new A.A.U. rules, will award decisions. Plans have been made to accommodate all fans who wish to witness the matches.

Medals will be presented all first and second place winners. A small charge will be made at the door to help defray the cost of the awards.

Coach Sees Hopeful Future for Gymnasts
With only one man lost through graduation, and with the addition of 18 freshmen to the regular squad, the gymnastic team of Coach Albert Baumgartner has prospects for a successful season.

The first meet will take place on the home floor on Feb. 14, when the Chicago gymnasts will vie with Coach Baumgartner's acrobats. Feb. 21, the Iowa team will journey to Wisconsin, where a triangular meet between Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Iowa, has been arranged. Some time in the middle of March, the gymnasts will participate in the annual conference meet.

Regular practice for varsity men is being held each night, and Coach Baumgartner has high hopes for a good team.

Tilton Asks Parcel Post Rates Increase
WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (AP)—Citing a parcels post deficit of $15,570,730 last year, Assistant Postmaster General Tilton urged adoption of the 5 per cent increase in parcel post rates proposed by Postmaster General Brown to the interstate commerce commission.

He issued a statement saying the postoffice department was helpless to deal with the deficit.

Handball Play Organized
A handball tournament for Iowa City business men is now being organized to take place in the American Legion gym within the next month. They will meet every evening from 7 to 7 o'clock. If a sufficient number are interested, a volleyball tournament will also be started.

By TED VOSBURGH
NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—A unique athletic episode marking the greatest service ever rendered by the game of college football to the cause of charity will bring together the football teams of the United States Naval and Military academies at the Yankee stadium tomorrow before a crowd estimated at 70,000.

The ranks of those who will flock to the Yankee stadium to see the ancient rivalry renewed in the interests of the public good after a three year break were swelled by a last minute ticket boom.

No rain is predicted for tomorrow but the final workouts of the Army and Navy squads were held on wet fields in a steady drizzle which made the gridiron soggy.

No Definite Lineup
Not since 1927 have the Army and Navy met on the gridiron. Neither Coach Bill Ingram of the Navy nor Ralph Sasse of the Army was able to announce a definite starting lineup.

Coach Ingram's problem was a strategic one. He was still undecided as to whether to start Kirm and Hurley, who have been his most effective backs, or to hold one or both in reserve.

Close followers of the Navy predicted that if the Middles' starting lineup contains both of these speedy boys it will indicate that Ingram has determined to shoot the works at the outset in the hope of getting the jump and piling up a winning margin in the first few minutes.

High Priced Seats
The spectacle tomorrow will get under way early with the corps of cadets scheduled to march at 11:15 and the regiment of midshipmen to appear shortly afterward in their part of the parade.

In the crowd will be numerous notables from Washington including the secretaries of war and navy.

Coach Ingram's problem was a strategic one. He was still undecided as to whether to start Kirm and Hurley, who have been his most effective backs, or to hold one or both in reserve.

Regular practice for varsity men is being held each night, and Coach Baumgartner has high hopes for a good team.

Wearing The GREEN

One of the three Iowa City students to make the freshman basketball squad is Lee Mathes. Lee reaches six feet in height and his rangy build is one of the factors that makes him the basketball player that he is.

Lee spent his prep days at the public high school here and received five letters during his career. On the hardwood court he was used at forward and center and played each position equally well. He was on the squad for two seasons and made letters both years.

Under the tutelage of Walter Knox, Mathes was developed into a capable end. When George Wells stepped into the position of head coach, Mathes proved one of his best linemen. Lee received two letters in football. Track was also one of his activities. He ran the hurdles and gained a place on the mile relay team during his last year of high school competition.

At present Mathes is registered in the liberal arts college, but is undecided as to his major.

Frosh Romp Over Varsity

Williams Not Satisfied; Koser May Replace John Berger

Another long scrimmage was dishd out to the Old Gold cagers yesterday afternoon by Coach Rollie Williams. The Iowa mentor was not pleased with the initial performance and is striving to improve the Old Gold attack before the Bradley Tech battle Monday night. Coach Williams has been stressing a lighter man to man defense, more snappy and accurate passing, and better timing of tip and out of bound plays.

Rogers and Koflow appear at present as certain starters but Berger may be relieved by the speedy Mort Koser. Koser and the veteran Morvy have been improving of late and are bidding for regular jobs. Lauer and Millhollin constitute the relief forces for Riegert and Reinhardt, but neither is expected to see a great deal of action.

Bradley invaded the Iowa stronghold last winter and carried home the bacon after a furious battle. The Peoria five does not boast any giants as the Billiken quintet did and thus neither team will have a decided advantage on tip-off plays or rebounds.

Captain Galtz and Steiner are the only veterans in the Bradley starting lineup. Failure of the regulars to down the crack freshman hoopers has given Coach Rollie the blues, but it must be remembered that this year's frosh are about as sweet a bunch of ball handlers as have been in the green jerseys for some time.

Hawkeye Cagers to Meet Notre Dame
Notre Dame's basketball team definitely will play the University of Iowa quintet on the Hawkeye field house court March 14, it was announced Friday by Coach R. F. Williams.

It was originally proposed that the Irish and the Hawkeyes meet in a charity game, the proceeds of which were to be used by the local Lions club to relieve poverty-stricken families.

Due to official conference opposition to charity games, however, plans were changed so that the South Bend athletes are to appear in a regular contest on the Hawkeye intercollegiate schedule.

The game will close the Old Gold season, following a week after the Hawkeyes meet Purdue in the final game of the Big Ten series.

Boy Seriously Wounded
HORNICK, Dec. 12 (AP)—Jay Coover, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Coover, will look in no more cutverts for rabbits. Jay looked in one end of the culvert and a companion in the other. The companion saw "rabbit's eyes" in the culvert and shot. Jay is in a serious condition with a bullet wound in his eye.

Locals Force Visitors Into Center Shots

Captain Dvorsky Stands Out as Best Cager on Hardwood

The Irish wouldn't be denied last night and a 13 to 11 victory over a highly rated St. Mary's of Ottumwa team was the result. St. Mary's was good but St. Pat's was better. Displaying a defense that was so impenetrable that the visitors were unable to score during the entire first half. The Shamrock quintet played smart basketball all the way, breaking through only occasionally themselves but forcing the opposing cagers to take shots from mid-court or not at all.

Every member of the St. Pat's team was displaying a superior brand of basketball with the passes going true, the guarding timely and the famous Irish fight sticking out all over.

Fast and Furious
From the opening whistle the battle was fast and furious. St. Mary's at the start of the fray displayed a slow breaking offense but switched to speedy play when close guarding repeatedly mangled their attack. St. Pat's started fast but when the visitors showed a defense only slightly inferior to their own, changed to a more deliberate attack.

The Irish scored first on a pretty follow-in shot by Spratt but were unable to add to their total until midway in the second quarter when the same range forward battered another in on the same ypa of play. Scoring attempts from then on proved fruitless until just as the gun cracked for the half Captain Dvorsky of the Irish emerged from a mass of struggling players to flip in a one handed shot from the side.

Influriated, St. Pat's again led by Dvorsky, crashed through for a pair of baskets to lead 10-5 with five minutes to play. Link of the visiting aggregation immediately made it 10-9 by sinking a pair of buckets in rapid succession despite Irish attempts to kill as much time as possible.

Then with both teams fighting desperately for possession of the ball, Megan sank a dribble-in shot, only to have Hess of St. Mary's duplicate his performance a few minutes later. With but a minutes to play Doran of Ottumwa fouled Dvorsky who took advantage. The gun, a few seconds later, ended the fray.

In a preliminary to the main fracas St. Pat's midgets nosed out the Iowa City Cubs 8 to 6.

Money for Nothing

By P. G. Wodehouse

What has gone before:
Twenty-second instalment
John Carroll is in love with Patricia Wyvern, who, until very recently, has looked upon him with scant favor. A quarrel between John's uncle and Patricia's father has complicated the situation. John has just returned from London, where he and his cousin, Hugo, were sent by their uncle, Lester Carmody, who was eager to get them out of the way. Hugo has prevented, as he believes, the burglarizing of his uncle's home. He does not know the facts of the situation, which are these: Dolly and "Soapy" Molloy have converted Uncle Lester to the idea of a fake burglary to explain the disappearance of valuable heirlooms that he wants to turn into cash and is prevented by law from selling. They call in Chimp Twist, a crook, who poses as a health expert, to do the job. The second attempt is successful. The butler catches a glimpse of the burglar and tells John it was Twist.

Mr. Molloy was still strolling beside the moat when John arrived. He greeted him with his usual bluff kindness. Soapy, like John a half-hour earlier, was feeling amiably disposed toward all mankind this morning.

"Well, well, well!" said Soapy. "So you're back? Did you have a pleasant time in London?"

"All right, thanks. I wanted to see you."

"You've heard about this unfortunate business last night?"

"Yes. It was about that. . . ."

"I have never been so upset by anything in my life," said Mr. Molloy. "By pure bad luck, Dolly and myself went over to Birmingham after dinner to see a show, and in our absence the outrage must have occurred. I venture to say," went on Mr. Molloy, a stern look creeping into his eyes, "that if only I'd been on the spot, the thing could never have happened. My hearing's good, and I'm plenty quick on a trigger. Mr. Carroll—pretty quick, let me tell you. It would have taken a right smart burglar to have gotten past me."

"You bet it would," said Dolly. "Gee! It's a pity. And the man didn't leave a single trace, did he?"

"A finger print—or it may have been a thumb print—on the sill of the window, honey. That was all. And I don't see what good that's going to do us. You can't round up the population of England and ask to see their thumbs."

"And outside of that not so much as a single trace. Isn't it too bad! From start to finish not a soul set eyes on the fellow."

"Yes, they did," said John. "That's what I came to talk to you about. One of the servants heard a noise and came out and saw him going down the staircase."

"If he had failed up to this point to secure the undivided attention of his audience, he had got it now. Miss Molloy seemed suddenly to come all eyes, and so tremendous were the joy and relief of Mr. Molloy that he actually staggered."

"Saw him?" exclaimed Miss Molloy.

"Sus-saw him?" echoed her father, scarcely able to speak in his delight.

"Yes. Do you by any chance know a man named Twist?"

"Twist?" said Mr. Molloy, still speaking with difficulty. He wrinkled his forehead. "Twist? Do I know a man named Twist, honey?"

"The name seems kind of familiar," admitted Miss Molloy.

"He runs a place called Healthward Ho about 20 miles from here. My uncle stayed there for a couple of weeks. It's a place where people go to get in condition—a sort of health farm, I suppose you would call it."

"Of course, yes. I have heard Mr. Carmody speak of his friend Twist. But . . ."

"Apparently, he called here the other day—to see my uncle, I suppose—and this servant I'm speaking of saw him and is convinced that he was the burglar."

"Impossible, surely?" Mr. Molloy seemed still to be having a little trouble with his breath. "Surely not very probable. This Twist, from what you tell me, is a personal friend of your uncle. Why, therefore . . . Besides, if he owns a prosperous business . . ."

John was not to be put off the trail by mere superficial argument. Doctor Watson may be slow at starting, but once started, he is a bloodhound for tenacity.

"I've thought of all that. I admit it did seem curious, at first. But, if you come to look into it, you can see that the very thing a burglar who wanted to operate in these parts would do is to start some business that would make people unsuspecting of him."

Mr. Molloy shook his head.

"It sounds far-fetched to me."

John's opinion of his sturdy good sense began to diminish.

"Well, anyhow," he said, in his solid way, "this servant is sure he recognized Twist, and one can't do any harm by going over there and having a look at the man. I've got quite a good excuse for seeing him. My uncle's having a dispute about his bill, and I can say I came over to discuss it."

"Yes," said Mr. Molloy, in a strained voice, "but—"

"Sure you can," said Miss Molloy, with sudden alacrity. "Smart of you to think of that. You need an excuse, if you don't want to make this Twist fellow suspicious."

"Exactly," said John.

He looked at the girl with something resembling approval.

"And there's another thing," proceeded Miss Molloy, warming to her subject. "Don't forget that this bird, if he's the man that did the burgling last night, has a cut finger or thumb. If you find this Twist is going around with sticking plaster on him, why then that'll be evidence."

John's approval deepened.

"That's a great idea," he agreed. "What I was thinking was that I wanted to find out if Twist has a cold in the head."

"A kuk-kuk-kuk . . ." said Mr. Molloy.

"Yes. You see, the burglar had. He was sneezing all the time, my informant tells me."

"Well, say, this begins to look like the goods," cried Miss Molloy gleefully. "If this fellow has a cut thumb and a cold in the head, there's nothing to it. It's all over, except tearing off the false whiskers and saying, 'I am Hawkshaw, the detective!' Say, listen. You get that little car of yours out and you and I will go right over to Healthward Ho, now. You see, if I come along that'll make him all the more suspicious. We'll tell him I'm a girl with a brother that's been whooping it up a little too heavily for some time past, and I want to make inquiries, with the idea of putting him where he can't get the stuff for a while. I'm sure you're on the right track. This Twist is the villain of the piece, I'll bet a million dollars. As you say, a fellow that wanted to burgle takes a look at these parts just naturally would settle down and pretend to be something respectable. You go and get that car out, Mr. Carroll, and we'll be off right away."

John reflected. Filled though he was with the enthusiasm of the chase, he could not forget that his time today was ear-marked for other and higher things than the investigation of the mysterious Doctor Twist, of Healthward Ho.

"I must be back here by a quarter to one," he said.

"Why?"

"I must."

"Well, that's all right. We're not going to spend the week end with this guy. We're simply going to take a look at him. As soon as we've done that, we come right home and turn the thing over to the police. It's only 20 miles. You'll be back here again before 12."

"Of course," said John. "You're perfectly right. I'll have the car out in a couple of minutes."

He hurried off. His views concerning Miss Molloy now were definitely favorable. She might not be the sort of girl he could ever like, she might not be the sort of girl he wanted staying at the Hall, but it was idle to deny that she had her redeeming qualities. About her intelligence, for instance, there was, he felt, no doubt whatsoever.

And yet it was with regard to this intelligence that Soapy Molloy was, at this very moment, entertaining doubts of the gravest kind. His eyes were protruding a little, and he uttered an odd, strangled sound.

"It's all right, you poor sap," said Dolly, meeting his shocked gaze with a confident unconcern.

Soapy found speech.

"All right? You say it's all right? How's it all right? If you hadn't pulled all that stuff . . ."

"Say, listen," said Dolly urgently. "Where's your sense? He would have gone over to see Chimp, anyway, wouldn't he? Nothing we could have done would have headed him off that, would it? And he'd noticed Chimp had a cut finger, without my telling him, wouldn't he? All I've done is to make him think I'm on the level and working in cahoots with him."

"What's the use of that?"

"I'll tell you what use it is. I know what I'm doing. Listen. Soapy, you just race into the house and get those knockout drops and give them to me. And make it snappy," said Dolly.

As when on a day of rain and storm there appears among the clouds a tiny gleam of blue, so now, at these magic words "knockout drops," did there flicker into Mr. Molloy's face a faint suggestion of hope.

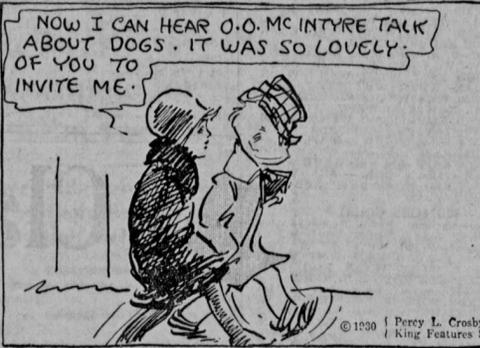

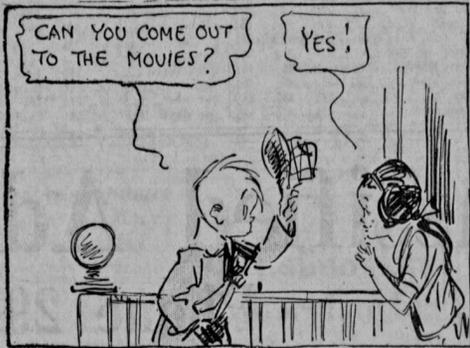

"Don't you worry, Soapy. I've got this thing well in hand. When we've gone, you jump to the phone and get Chimp on the wire and tell him this guy and I are on our way over. Tell him I'm bringing the knockout drops and I'll slip them to him as soon as I arrive. Tell him to be sure to have something to drink handy and to see that this bird gets a taste of it."

"I get you, pettie," Mr. Molloy's manner was full of a sort of awe-struck reverence, but, nevertheless, it was tinged with doubt. He had always admired his wife's broad, spacious outlook, but she was apt, sometimes, to overlook details.

"But, pettie," he said, "is this wise? I mean, supposing you do put this fellow to sleep, he's going to wake up pretty soon, isn't he? And, when he does, won't he raise an awful ruck?"

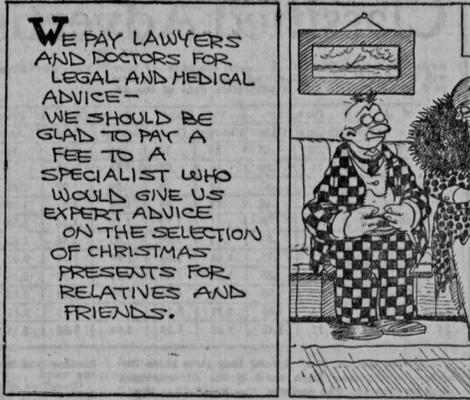

"I get you, pettie. I don't know what sort of stuff Chimp keeps over at that joint of his, but he's probably got assistants and all like that. Well, you tell him to tell them that there's a young lady coming over with a brother that wants looking after, and this brother has got to be given a sleeping draught and locked away somewhere to keep him from getting violent and doing somebody an injury. That'll get him out of the way long enough for us to collect the stuff and clear out. It's rapid action now, Soapy. Now that Chimp has gumbled the same by letting himself be seen, we've got to move quick. We've got to make our getaway today. So don't you go off wandering about the fields, picking daisies, after I've gone. You stick round that phone, because I'll be calling you before long.

"Honey," said Mr. Molloy devoutly, "I always said you were the brains of the firm, and I always will say it. I'd never have thought of a thing like this myself in a million years."

It was about an hour later that Sergeant-Major Flannery, seated beneath a shady elm in the garden of Healthward Ho, became aware that he was in the presence of Youth and Beauty. Across the lawn was walking a girl who fell into that limited division of the sex that is embraced by the word "bip-pin." Her willowy figure was clothed in some clinging material of beige color, and her bright hazel eyes twinkled in a ready, cheerful, susceptible bosom, a ready chord. He rose with easy grace, and his hand, falling from the salute, came to rest on the western section of his waxed moustache.

"Nice morning, miss," he belted.

It seemed to Sergeant-Major Flannery that the girl was gazing upon him as on some wonderful dream of hers that had unexpectedly come true, and he was thrilled. It was unlikely, he felt, that she was about to ask him to perform some great knightly service for her, but, if she did, he would spring smartly to attention and do it in a soldierly manner while she waited. Sergeant-Major Flannery was pro-Dolly from the first moment of their meeting.

"Are you one of Doctor Twist's assistants?" asked Dolly.

"I am his only assistant, miss. Sergeant-Major Flannery is the name."

"Oh? Then you look after the patients here?"

"Then it is you who will be in charge of my poor brother?" She uttered a little sigh, and there came into her hazel eyes a look of pain.

"Your brother, miss? Are you the lady . . ."

"Did Doctor Twist tell you about my brother?"

"Yes, miss. The fellow who's been . . ."

He paused, appalled. Only by a hair's breadth had he stopped himself from using in the presence of this divine creature the hideous expression "mopping it up a bit."

"Yes," said Dolly, "I see you know about it."

"All I know about it, miss," said Sergeant-Major Flannery, "is that the doctor said he was expecting a young lady to arrive with her brother, who needed attention. He said I wasn't to be surprised, if I found myself called for to lend a hand in a roughhouse, because this bloke—because this patient was apt to get violent."

"My brother does get very violent," sighed Dolly. "I only hope he won't do you any injury."

"Does he think that's going to do him?"

"You wouldn't take it, would you?"

"Who, me, miss? Take money to betray my trust, if you understand the expression?"

"Whatever he offers you, I will double. You see, it's so very important that he is kept here, where he will be safe from temptation, Mr. Flannery," said Dolly, timidly. "I wish you would accept this."

The sergeant-major felt a quickening of the spirit as he gazed upon the rustling piece of paper in her hand.

"No, no, miss," he said, taking it. "It really isn't necessary."

"I know. But I would rather you had it. You see, I'm afraid by brother may give you a lot of trouble."

"Trouble's what I'm here for, miss," said Mr. Flannery bravely. "Trouble's what I draw my salary for. Besides, he can't give much trouble when he's under lock and key, as the saying is. Don't you worry, miss. We're going to make this way long a different man. We . . ."

"Oh!" cried Dolly.

A head and shoulders had shot suddenly out of the study window—the head and shoulders of Doctor Twist. The voice of Doctor Twist sounded sharply above the droning of bees and insects.

"Flannery!"

"On the spot, sir."

"Come here, Flannery. I want you."

"You stay here, miss," counseled Sergeant-Major Flannery paternally. "There may be verience."
