TOPEKA, Kan., Dec. 20 (AP)—Louis H. Kimmel, former president of a Topeka Packing company, was acquitted by a jury late today of a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of Roy Kramer, vice president of the concern, last March.

The actual killing has been confessed by Virgil Pointer, packing plant "handy man" who testified he was induced by Kimmel to kill Kramer. Pointer has not been tried.

As motives for Kimmel's alleged connection with the slaying, the state advanced the packing concern's collection of $30,000 life insurance it carried on Kramer's life and Kimmel's purported jealousy of Kramer's attention to a woman in their employ.

A saving of $75,000 a year in the government's telephone service has resulted from the work of the bureau of standards.

Cooper Announces Premier News Events of Year 1930

The ten biggest news events of the year 1930, according to Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, were: Andree, Coste and Bellonte, Bobby Jones, Gandhi, the Lindbergh baby, the Columbus penitentiary fire, the American drought, planet X, King Carol, the Burning of Dirigible R-101.

"Selecting the ten biggest news events of the year is like selecting the ten most beautiful women or the ten greatest paintings," says Mr. Cooper in an interview published today by The American Magazine. "The choice depends upon one's taste, environment, and emotional tendency. Probably not one person in 10,000 will agree with all the selections I have made. I believe, however, that in any competently selected list of ten, five of my choice would have to appear."

The world of sports is recognized only once in Mr. Cooper's list—in the worldwide interest stirred by Bobby Jones' winning of the four major golf championships. The importance of women readers in the world news is stressed by the inclusion of the Lindbergh baby in his "Big Ten." Science scores in the selection of Planet X, and indirectly also in the choice of the Andree story as the outstanding news event of the year.

Andree Story Biggest
"In my opinion," says Mr. Cooper, "the solution of the Andree mystery, which the white silence of the Arctic yielded up after 33 years, was easily the biggest news event of 1930. In some respects I rank it as the greatest story of the kind the world has ever known. There never has been one quite like it. Scott was lost in the Antarctic, but he was found a year later. In the Andree mystery, a whole generation elapsed. Came a whisper of the North. Harpooners had discovered the remains of an old boat and a boat-hook protruding from a mound of snow and ice under the wall of a mountain. Skulls and bones of three men! A chance discovery made possible only by the unprecedented melting of ice on White Island.
"Almost equally alluring and satisfying was the second big news story on the list. Do you recall how many successful attempts were made before the first complete non-stop westward flight over the Atlantic was achieved? Six unsuccessful attempts in three years, and nine lives lost. Then

KENT COOPER Entered Service, INDIANAPOLIS, 1916

Coste and Bellonte.

"As to the third event on my list, Bobby Jones is one answer to the question. What makes a big news story? When someone does something that has never been done before, the event has the lure that grips us. Never before had any player won the four major golf championships of the world—the British Open and Amateur and the United States Open and Amateur. Bobby did it. At the age of 28 he now stands above them all. Champions of the future may equal, but not surpass his mark. There are very tangible standards to measure Bobby's place in the news last year. By a wide margin, he inspired more words of cable news than any other one individual.

Ghandi in India
"The civil disobedience revolt of Mahatma Gandhi in India is Number 4. A little crooked-legged man with small eyes, long nose, ears standing at right angles, and peculiarly shaped skull, the idol of millions, a leader who is not domineering, and a saintly character, Ghandi preaches resistance without violence. For us in the West, that is a contradiction in terms. Amazing spectacle! Millions in revolt and signifying their determination to resist by fallen arms.

"My fifth selection is the most interesting baby in the world,—whose father through a single event, in the space of 36 hours, made himself the best known man in the world. Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., is aviation's first baby. Never before has the birth of a child to a private citizen evoked such interest on the part of the whole American public.

"The next two news events on the list are in the nature of disasters. Is it possible to conceive a more horrifying fate than that which befell convicts in the Columbus penitentiary when a fire, started by some of their number as a means of escape, burned more than 300 of them to death in locked cells on the night of April 21? A fire so hot that it melted the very bars which restrained them!

"The great American drought was by far the worst in our history, making victims of hundreds of thousands. In all, fifteen states were hit. It caused a loss of a billion dollars and threatened the existence of a million families.

"Next on my list is the announcement from Flagstaff, Ariz., on March 13, that a new planet had been discovered four billion miles from the sun. This was big news in the biggest sense. A great mystery of the beyond had been solved. The drama of it was that, years before, a great mathematician and astronomer groping in a region three billion miles away had calculated that the planet existed and had predicted its discovery.

"Next on my list is King Carol. Who would have thought that he could ever return to the Rumanian throne? That event came at a time when the popular movements of the world were all in the opposite direction—away from the monarchial. Perhaps, for that reason, it interested us all the more. As though to emphasize the thought that here was a chapter from medieval history, or a Balkan novel, actually came to life, newspapers all over the world were putting out extra editions to tell eager readers that the impossible had happened and Carol, the romantic, once again was king.

Tragic Destruction
"The destruction of England's dirigible R-101 was a news event of the most terribly enthralling and tragic sort. It exceeded in horror the worst previous airship disaster, that of the French dirigible, Dixmude, lost over the Mediterranean number of dead and in the loss of the ship, but especially because the death list included the cream of her aeronautical talent, the British Empire suffered a stunning blow."
Mr. Cooper explains that with the exception of the first two events on his list, he has not attempted to name these biggest news events in the order of their importance. He excluded the Naval Treaty, and the Paris Conference on the Young Plan because they lacked "that alluring spontaneous element" which he regards as a primary feature of the biggest news events.

Henry Fund Scholarships for 2 Nations

"Earnest hope and desire to cement the bonds of friendship between the British Empire and the United States" is the motive for the establishment of the Charles and Julia Henry fund scholarships for American and British subjects who, by this plan, may study in either of two of the leading universities of the other country.

The fund is administered by 12 trustees appointed by the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, Harvard and Yale. These trustees will choose the candidates for the scholarships.

The candidates are required to possess serious interest in developing the opportunity they are given by the award, and must show sufficient intellectual maturity to assure their profiting of the experience.

These appointments will be made not later than April 18, 1931. Both men and women are eligible and may apply for candidacy for the award at either of the two American universities named.

Welsh Gets 20 Days
Mike Welsh charged with intoxication was given a choice of 25 fine or 20 days in the county jail by Police Judge Charles L. Zager in the police court yesterday. He took the jail sentence. Glen Bradley was fined $1 and costs on a charge of using the streets for storage.

For a similar reason he excluded the news of prohibition, which ran like a serial through the year. If the space given to any particular subject were the main test, he says prohibition would unquestionably stand at the top.

State Health Service

FOR 15 years the college of medicine and its great laboratories have been enabled to continue their service to the state through legislation providing for approximately the present status of this health institution.

No better testimony to the result could be had than a recent publication by the Oxford university press: 'Universities American English German' by Abraham Flexner.

As investigator of medical education for the Carnegie foundation, Mr. Flexner 22 years ago mercilessly criticized the situation in Iowa. In this book just off the press he has a high compliment to pay the present university hospital and college of medicine.

Partly as a result of Flexner's recommendations 22 years ago separate units of medical education at Keokuk, Des Moines (Drake university), and Iowa City were consolidated into one institution of greater potentialities. Another at Sioux City died a natural death. Today there is but one such institution in the state, drawing in facilities upon the best the state can give in concentrated effort.

So it is that after 22 years Mr. Flexner writes:

'West of the Mississippi, beginnings and strivings are also in evidence at several state universities. Excellent facilities with admirable equipment and steadily increasing support have been established at Washington university (St. Louis), and at Iowa City; but in a region consisting of 20 states, inhabited by 26,107,571 persons, there are few other facilities comparable with those above named.'

Selecting the University of Iowa in connection with an assertion that 'a medical clinic of solid university character exists in 10 or 12 institutions' in the United States, Mr. Flexner has given the citizenry of Iowa something to think about.

That a project of such dimensions is essentially not only a cause for pride but an asset to the commonwealth is obvious from the nature and purpose of the undertaking. That it is in competent hands anyone sufficiently acquainted with the University of Iowa can affirm. The chief need now is for citizens of Iowa through their governmental representatives to continue the work they have so nobly begun.

Get That Auto License

ANNOUNCEMENT from the county treasurer's office that the auto license department, handled by Allan Rarick, will remain open during the noon hours of court house days until Dec. 31 should be a hint to the wise.

Perhaps fewer persons have cars than last year, but the drop off last year's registration figures at this time certainly does not indicate on the other hand that anybody has learned a lesson from standing in line or paying a penalty last year.

In this case it isn't a matter of doing something in behalf of the state, which obligingly adds an extra hour to the court house day. It's a matter of saving valuable time and valuable money by getting licenses while the getting is good.

Those to whom this hint is sufficient will prove themselves wise.

Intoxicated Drivers

IF THERE is one menace to the public which should be visited with the iron hand of the law it is the drunken automobile driver.

Men may differ as to their views on the best way to handle the liquor traffic, some championing prohibition and others maintaining that other control of the traffic is preferable, but all thinking persons, regardless of their views on prohibition, are agreed that the person who drives an automobile while intoxicated should be visited with the severity of the law.

There is little to be said in extenuation of such an offense. The hazards of traffic, either on the highway or on city streets, are numerous enough when drivers are in full possession of their faculties and know what is going on about them and when their brains are not befuddled with liquor.

Those hazards are increased a thousand-fold by the injection into the setting of the drunken driver. If it were only his own safety which was menaced by the intoxicated man at the wheel the situation would not be of such concern, but the drunken driver threatens the life and limb of everyone else and becomes a public enemy and a public threat.

It is a fact that the law against driving motor vehicles while intoxicated is better enforced than almost any other regulation having to do with the liquor traffic. It is so enforced for the very obvious reason that the hand of every man is against the intoxicated driver, and favors the enforcement of the law against him as a matter of protection to the public. It is noticeable that many men who advocate a partial return of the old liquor traffic are quite outspoken in their condemnation of the drunken driver. It is one situation upon which all are agreed.

On Slangue

MUCH to the surprise and it might be added, disappointment, of many, oddities of expression—better termed slangue—was not of American birth. In fact, slangiana was born on the European continent about the time Columbus discovered America.

Having a very disreputable origin among roving gypsy rogues, it was perpetuated by racketeering clans and thieves in England. The crisp tang of the new lingo added so much flavor to expression that it became ardently used and ballyhooed by the English sporting fraternity and found a permanent place in every newspaper.

Stimulated by this unobtrusive debut in England, the patter received an enthusiastic welcome among criminal classes and the sporting element of America. It has gradually taken on a more refined tone and folks never think of any baseness when some demure little maiden shouts, 'we just had a loop,' or 'I look to have a shirl.'

The whole truth of the matter is that few have a diversified vocabulary and hence have to resort to slangue to make themselves clear and 'interesting.'

'Anyhow, it's a beaver of a racket and don't let any cadger bluff you into thinking differently. Gotta go now.'

Delay on the World Court

Perhaps it is just as well that the consideration of the world court protocols should go over until the next session of congress. There would not have been time for a thorough discussion at the short session, and there would have been pressure to get the question out of the way with inadequate consideration.

The more thoroughly the matter is discussed, and the better the country understands the court and its relations to European politics and the league, the less likely the senate will be to vote in the light of sentiment rather than of reason.

A Wise Conservatism

Antiprohibitionists in Washington had not summed up their attitude, but most heads of national wet groups in other cities were conservative in comment.—Washington dispatch on the New Jersey judge's decision that the eighteenth amendment was not legally adopted.

On the whole they seem wise. In view of the fact that all the 17 amendments previous to the eighteenth were adopted by the state legislatures just as the eighteenth was, and in view of the further fact that the eighteenth amendment already has been upheld by the supreme court, we should say that no distillery could float bonds at this time based on the expectation that the opinion of the very learned Judge Clark of New Jersey would in due time become the law of the land.

No Amateur Stars in Football?

Bobby Jones has been named winner of the Sullivan memorial award as America's outstanding amateur athlete during 1930. He deserves it and no one will criticize the award committee's selection. The medal is to be dedicated annually to 'the athlete who by his performances and by his example and influences as an amateur and a man has done most during the year to advance the cause of sportsmanship.' Certainly his performances during the 1930 season make Jones stand out head and shoulders above all other American amateur athletes. His amateur status never has been questioned, and he generally is looked on as the apotheosis of good sportsmanship.

The peculiar feature of this Sullivan honor award is that no amateur athlete gained a place among the first ten through exploits on the college football fields, polo, track, tennis, and swimming placed stars among the leaders, but gridiron heroes were notably absent.

Is it possible that college football—generally recognized as America's greatest amateur sport—fell so far below par in 1930 that even its shining lights were not of first magnitude? Or has commercialism impregnated college football so thoroughly as to preclude consideration of such men as Carideo and Fesler as members of the group from which Jones was selected? If the latter is true, the time has come for the long expected house cleaning in collegiate athletics.

Examination Schedule First Semester, 1930-1931

Saturday, January 24, 8:00 A.M. to Saturday Noon, January 31, 1931 The regular program of class work will be suspended, and the following semester-examination program substituted for it. Classes will meet for examination in the rooms in which they have been regularly meeting (except classes in French 1 and 2, and speech 1, as shown at number below). The Program Committee directs the attention of both students and instructor and professors to the regulation that there is to be no deviation in the case of any examination, from this schedule—except as authorized by the Committee, on the student's written petition filed in ample time, supported by the recommendation of the department concerned—to provide relief from an excessive number of examinations within a single day. Deviations for the purpose of getting through earlier will not be permitted.

Classes (except in freshman English, first and second year French, and speech), (N.B. below), whose first meetings occur:

Monday at 8, meet for examination Thursday, January 29, 10-12 Monday at 9, meet for examination Thursday, January 29, 8-10 Monday at 10, meet for examination Monday, January 26, 8-10 Monday at 11, meet for examination Tuesday, January 27, 10-12 Monday at 1, meet for examination Friday, January 30, 8-10 Monday at 2, meet for examination Saturday, January 31, 8-10 Monday at 3, meet for examination Saturday, January 31, 10-12 Tuesday at 8, meet for examination Friday, January 30, 10-12 Tuesday at 9, meet for examination Tuesday, January 27, 8-10 Tuesday at 10, meet for examination Saturday, January 24, 8-10 Tuesday at 11, meet for examination Monday, January 26, 2-4 Tuesday at 1, meet for examination Wednesday, January 28, 8-10 Tuesday at 2, meet for examination Thursday, January 29, 2-4 Tuesday at 3, meet for examination Saturday, January 24, 10-12

The first meeting of the class means the first lecture or recitation period in course having both lectures and recitations, and laboratory periods; or, in case of courses involving only laboratory periods, the first clock-hour of the first weekly meeting. For example, chemistry 1B meets for lectures T Th at 11. The first meeting is, consequently, Tuesday at 11; and the class will meet for examination Monday, January 26, 2-4, according to the foregoing table. Again physics 125 meets twice each week, T, F, for a three-hour laboratory exercise, 1-4. The period for examination is, therefore, Wednesday, January 23, 8-10.

'Odd' classes, whose first or only weekly meetings occur on Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays, or Saturdays; or which meet 'as arranged'; will be assigned for examination at either one or another of the following three periods, as announced to each class by the instructor in charge of the class: Monday, January 26—10-12 Wednesday, January 28—10-12 Tuesday, January 27—2-4

It should be borne in mind that there is possibility of announcing two or more 'odd' classes for any one or more of these three periods available for 'odd' classes. Therefore, in connection with any such announcement it would doubtless be well for the instructor making the announcement to ascertain whether any member of his class is already under appointment for examination in some other class for the proposed period. To be sure, it is possible to have examinations in more than one class at any of these times—if no student is a member of more than one of these classes.

According to one clause in the formal faculty action providing for a special semester examination program, 'The instructor may use the examination period as he sees fit, provided he holds the class for the full period. He may have an oral or a written examination, or both, or neither. He may continue regular work or he may use the time for review, or for any phase of his work which may seem to him desirable at this time.'

Explanation of Yesterday's Cartoon Mrs. Edwards of Long Branch: When Mrs. Edwards, who is now past 80 years of age, was a little girl, she ran a needle into her right foot while playing barfooted. The needle broke in two, and part of it was not recovered from her foot at the time. Two years later a red, itching spot appeared on her left ankle, and an attending surgeon removed the still shiny-as-new needle. It had worked itself through her body without causing any pain or doing her any harm.

CHILLS AND FEVER SUPERINEBRATION

She laughed intoxicatingly and called to him in an intoxicating manner, "Come big moment let's dance." "What about your escort," queried the leary Phi Gam. "Who cares," she smiled intoxicatingly. Her red lips and blue eyes, her whole gorgeous being, were nearly intoxicated. However, he thought she might be a little intoxicated herself. "Come," he swept her intoxicating figure into his arms and they floated into the sea of dancers. Slowly she lifted her small beautiful face to his. Quickly he caught her breath; she was NOT intoxicated; not even the slightest tang of liquor; just her own sweet intoxicating self. At last he had found her, the girl of his dreams, the one girl who could be intoxicating without being intoxicated. —The Girl In Green

MERRY CHRISTMAS ECONOMIC VIEWPOINTS

The department store Santa Claus may be a little lean this year but they're just as numerous as ever.

STYLES FOR MEN My dear Chills—

I am perplexed, confounded, dumfounded, or just damn dumb, and come to you for enlightenment. A fair used upon being interrogated as to the extent of the hilarity, familiarity, and other emotions that were engendered, aroused, enjoyed, and indulged in by the participants at a recent "house festivity," coyly replied, "It was perfectly breathless." Friend Noah defines the word "breathless" as "out of breath" and the word "pant" as "excess of breath." Now I ask you, a pastmaster in lexicology, would it be proper to term the aforesaid jollification a "pantless party"? Yours for more and better knows. —Bill

There are two kinds of people who are keeping this country from snapping out of this well known business depression as it should. They are those persons who go about sobbing. "Business is shot to pieces," and the country is going to the dogs," and those equally inane individuals who say, "Oh, things aren't so bad as they seem. Everything will turn out all right."

City Unites to Give Food, Clothing to Needy on Christmas Day

V.N.A., Social Service, Red Cross Serve

Yuletide Spirit Manifest in Homes of Poor, Unfortunate

By H. CLAUDE PEER

Cooperating with the Social Service league, the Red Cross, and the Visiting Nurses association, the lodges, schools, churches, religious organizations, dairy men, business firms, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and private individuals are now aiding and planning to give the needy of Iowa City a merry Christmas.

Christmas Baskets

Cash donations, clothes, fruit, canned goods, toys, coal, milk, and vegetables are being given to the social organizations for families. Twenty individuals have obtained from the Social Service league names of one or more of those in need and are providing for them on Christmas.

The Red Cross has received from the students of University high school more than 15 bushels of potatoes, eight cases of canned goods and several boxes of toys. Money has also been sent to them for the buying of clothes and food to distribute among the families they are aiding.

Will Give Milk

The Visiting Nurses association, through the cooperation of physicians who recommend the cases and the City Milk Inspector, Charles G. Sample, who has secured the aid of the dairies, is distributing 60 quarts of milk a day.

The milk has been donated by the dairy men from their surplus to the physicians to need milk and are unable to buy the milk.

More than 1,500 toys received at the Garden theater in collaboration with the Boy Scouts, are being repaired and distributed by manual training students at Iowa City high. The Girl Scouts have been collecting toys and repairing them for children on Christmas.

Get 200 Boxes

The food received at the Pastime theater yesterday at its special show was given to the social organizations for distribution. Approximately 200 boxes of food were received.

Two hundred dollars in clothes is being given by a local clothing store instead of the candy as was the custom in the past. A local coal company this year is giving half tons of coal under the direction of the Social Service league instead of mailing out Christmas cards.

Bakeries Cooperate

Several bakeries have for some time been giving bread, rolls, cakes, and doughnuts to the Social Service league for distribution. Others plan to make special gifts at Christmas time.

The Christian organization gave $12.50 to the Social Service league which has received several donations enabling them to reach and aid more families. With the money given to them they are able to reach special cases where they do not have the equipment available.

Churches are giving special parties this week to collect toys and food. Lodges and noon luncheon clubs are cooperating with the organizations in distributing food, baskets, toys and are giving their time in helping in the work.

Four Deeds Go on File at Courthouse

Four deeds were filed at the courthouse yesterday. Two were warranty deeds, one quit claim, and the fourth a warranty deed vesting entire title in the survivors.

Joshua C. Breuninger deeded to Nettie Miller the undivided one half interest of the grantor in and to the south 10 acres of the southwest one half of the southeast one fourth of section 23 of township 79 north of range six.

The quit claim deed of J. C. Fesler and Cloe S. Fesler to R. A. Fesler, Zetta Kennetick, Violet Smith, Zella Hirt and L. J. Fesler relinquished 215 and 208.9 acres, respectively, in township 81.

George A. Stoner and Clara M. Stoner in a warranty deed gave to Chris Leidich lots in township 81. In a second warranty deed vesting entire title in the survivors was given from Chris Leidich and Ethel Leidich to Clara M. Stoner and George A. Stoner.

In the second act at midnight the toys awake and begin celebrating their annual feast. The oldest doll recalls she was once granted three wishes. Because Tina has been kind to her and because of her love for the toy maker, she sacrifices her three wishes for them.

The third act finds the wishes being fulfilled, and Tina gains a father and a home. Between the acts kindergarten A gives folk dances, and the first and second grades gave "The Bunny Family."

Methodism Came to Iowa City With Pioneer Settlers

(This is the seventh of a series of articles on the local histories of the Iowa City churches. An article on the Presbyterian church will appear next Sunday.)

By BETTY JACK

Methodism in Johnson county dates from the "Iowa River Mission" established in 1836 to include western civilization from the Mississippi river to the Iowa boundaries.

Not until May, 1839 did the territorial legislature appoint the capital commissioners. The site chosen as the capital, and named Iowa City, was at this time covered with brush and trees, and on it was a single cabin occupied by Matthew Teneick.

In Mr. Teneick's cabin, the Rev. Joseph L. Kirkpatrick preached the first Methodist sermon in the fall of 1839. It is believed that this was the first gospel service preached in Iowa City. However the church was not officially organized until the following year by the Rev. Bartholomew Weed.

Ward Heads First Class

This first Methodist class with C. R. Ward as its leader consisted of 12 members. "Mrs. Cole (the mother of Mrs. Teneick), C. R. Ward and wife, John Horner and wife, John Parrott and wife, Mrs. Gardner, Mrs. Hawkins, A. T. McElwaine, Isaac Bowen, and B. M. Horner."

The first quarterly meeting was held in Mr. Berry's schoolhouse, the first school house erected in Iowa City. Other services were held in Mr. Teneick's home, Mr. and Mrs. McElwaine's home, grandparents of Mrs. Edwin Weber of Iowa City, and the two school houses, Mr. Berry's and Mrs. Anson Hart's on Iowa avenue, where the Christian church now stands.

Church Built in 1841

When the Rev. George B. Bowman was sent to Iowa City as pastor in 1841 he organized a board of trustees to build a church. One of their first resolutions was "that we will immediately proceed to build a Methodist Episcopal church in Iowa City, 34 feet wide, and 44 feet long with doors and windows so arranged as to answer ultimately for a parsonage or a seminary."

Still reading from old records, it is possible to see that the first church was even larger than that planned by the trustees, being about 45 feet by 60 feet long. The money for this first church was obtained from local subscriptions and from the money solicited by the Iowa City pastor in the east. It was a "well built and handsomely seated church, with two entrance doors in the south end, two aisles, four tiers of seats and an altar and pulpit in the north end, all of most substantial workmanship. This first church costing about $5,000, was built in 1841.

Fire in 1884

An extension of 40 feet was built on the main building in 1862 during the pastorate of the Rev. A. B. Kendig to accommodate the increased congregation. Until 1884, when the church was badly burned the building was unaltered. But after the fire, the entire church save the walls was rebuilt and remodeled, at a cost of $8,000.

American Association Votes to Accept Draft Proposals of Major Leagues

Breaks Stone Wall of Minor League Stand

Loop President Hickey Says Acceptance Immediate

CHICAGO, Dec. 20 (AP)—The battle line of the minor leagues, thrown together as a stone wall in their fight against the major leagues over the draft question, broke at a strategic point today.

The break came in the American association sector when a majority of that eight-club league voted to surrender to the demand of the majors by accepting the draft plan. It was the first break in the fight, which had threatened to disrupt all business relations between the big and small brothers of baseball.

Five Clubs Accept

President Thomas Jefferson Hickey of the American association, one of the leading leagues opposing the universal baseball draft, said that five clubs in the league had voted to accept the major league proposal on the subject, two had rejected it while another club was still to be heard from. The question of final acceptance or rejection was carried on by a mail vote.

Immediate Acceptance

"Naturally, the outcome of the mail vote means that the American association will accept the draft proposal of the major leagues immediately," President Hickey said.

Under the terms of the proposal, the majors agree not to draft any player until he has had at least four years' experience in the minor leagues, except college players recruited directly from colleges, and to pay a minimum price of $7,500 for each selected player.

Looks Bad for Minors

The action of the American association was regarded as a death blow to the minors' fight. The circuit, one of the "big three" of the minors along with the Pacific coast and International leagues, has been one of the largest contributors of major league talent for years. Clubs belonging to the league are Louisville, Columbus, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Toledo, Kansas City, and Indianapolis.

Cubs Charter 31 Exhibition Baseball Tilts

CHICAGO, Dec. 20 (AP)—Manager Roger Hornsby and his Chicago Cubs have mapped out a vigorous program for their 1931 spring training trip. The program, announced tonight carries a schedule of 31 exhibition games with seven clubs, including seven contests with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The first squad of batters and rookies will leave Chicago for Catalina Island, Cal., Feb. 14, four days earlier than last season and will be joined a week later by the second contingent. Twenty-four days will be spent on the island after which the team will come to California's mainland for its long string of exhibition games.

Six games will be played with Los Angeles from March 13 to 19; four with the Pirates at San Francisco, March 20 to 22; one with Oakland, March 23; seven at San Francisco, March 24 to 29; three with Pittsburgh at Los Angeles, March 30 to April 1; two with Los Angeles, April 2

Wesley Fesler Gets Award as Most Valuable Big 10 Player

TWO MASTERLY MACS

Two more of the vast "Mac" clan loom high indeed in sport realms as the current year nears its conclusion. Joseph V. McCarthy, newly appointed manager of the New York Yankees, is busily engaged in planning for the 1931 baseball season; while Capt. John McEwan is still being congratulated for the marked success of his Holy Cross football team.

"Joe" McCarthy was named to succeed "Bob" Sharkey as pilot of the Yanks soon after the Chicago Cubs appointed Rogers Hornsby to succeed "Mac." The latter took charge of "Wrigley's Wrecks" in the fall of 1925 after they'd finished last in the National league. In 1926 and 1927, the Cubs were fourth; in 1928, they were third, and in 1929 they won the pennant but lost the World series to the Athletics when a combination of the sun, "Hack" Wilson's eyes, and pitching blow-ups ruined their efforts. Last year, the Cubs finished second. Then "Mac" was dropped because, as Owner Wrigley expressed it, "we want to win a World series." Soon afterwards the Yankees secured

Buckeye Star Carries Most of Ohio Play

All-American End Also Plays in Backfield on Offense

CHICAGO, Dec. 20 (AP)—Wesley E. Fesler, Ohio State's great all-around football star, has been selected as winner of the 1930 Chicago Tribune football award, awarded annually to the most valuable player in the Big Ten.

Fesler, an all-American end, not only played the flank position during the recent season, but at the close of the campaign was doing the Buckeye punting, passing, and most of the ball carrying, and signal calling, along with playing a great defensive game. He is the first Ohio State player to receive the award.

Cougar Grid Team Fixes Pass Defense

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 20 (AP)—Twenty five Washington State football players and the retinue that attends a big time game, dropped in on Portland today on the way to Pasadena and the New Year's classic with Alabama.

Champions of the Pacific coast conference, the Cougars expect to have the hardest game of the season with the much-touted Crimon tide of Alabama, undefeated in the Southern conference.

Coach Hollingsby was not discussing methods of attack today. But others said he had prepared a pass defense, strengthened the forward wall and worked up the aerial and ground defenses.

The Cougars have gone through two weeks of hard practice and will get more of it before the game.

Hawk Basket Shooters Get Light Session

Iowa's varsity basketball team, preparing for the third game of the season with Creighton Tuesday night at Omaha, took a light basket shooting drill in the field house yesterday afternoon. In the absence of Coach Rollie Williams, Dr. Leonard P. Ristine, medical adviser, took charge of the workout.

Creighton is reported to have another strong team this year, and although the squad as a whole is in good shape, the coaches evidently feel that limbering up exercises will do more to keep the team in shape for the game than hard scrimmage sessions. Glen Millhollin, forward, is still handicapped by knee injuries and may not be able to see service for several weeks yet.

Alex Rogers and Dutch Schmidt, football men, are beginning to get

1930'S RING STANDOUTS

While everyone knows that—good or bad—Primo Carnera was the year's most talked-of boxer (and still is, for that matter), his critics have been so avid and severe that most of the public still considers him either as a mere freak or a downright fraud. Admittedly, he's still rather green, and decidedly "in wrong" with most of the "boys" who would public opinion on boxing, so in picking the ring standouts of 1930, the Sport Bug limits them to Justo Suarez and Billy Petrolle, two real crowd pleasers.

Suarez soared into fistic notice soon after arriving from the Argentine last summer when he decisively whipped Joe Glick and three or four other lively second raters. His strong Spanish following was enhanced by many of New York's fight regulars. The hard working Justo became so popular that, when he barely held the veteran Kid Kaplan even a couple of months ago, he got the decision. Prior to that he had been reported officially for hitting low in a bout which he won and had been suspended for 30 days.

Midwest Squad Adds Players

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Dec. 20 (AP)—Ernie Chastin and Charles Hall, members of the 1930 Illinois football squad have been added to the midwest all-star squad which will play against southwest teams in the annual Dixie classic at Dallas, Tex., New Year's day. Charles Brubaker, University of Indiana quarterback, has withdrawn from the squad.

Wolverines Troupe Pennsylvania, 46-22

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 20 (AP)—Michigan overwhelmed Pennsylvania 46 to 22 tonight in a basketball game which started with a rush of scoring by the home team. The defeat was the third for Penn on the western trip.

Hunter Takes Lead

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 20 (AP)—Willie Hunter, Montebello, Cal., pro and former British amateur champion, climbed into an early lead in the second round of Pasadena's $4,000 open golf tournament today with a par 71, which gave him 148 strokes for 36 holes.

Eligibility of Two Cage Men Questioned by Oklahoma

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 20 (AP)—Dr. F. C. (Phog) Allen, athletic director and head basketball coach at the University of Kansas, said tonight William and Kenneth Johnson of Oklahoma City, layhawk sophomore cagees whose eligibility is challenged by Oklahoma, would be withheld from competition, pending investigation.

Allen said Dean George C. Shand, Kansas city representative in the Big Six conference, had telephoned from Lawrence, leaving to him the decision whether the Johnson brothers would play against the Missouri Tigers in an exhibition game in Kansas City tonight.

No Professional Record

The Kansas coach said Dean Shand had been told in a telephone conversation with Oklahoma City that there was no record the Johnson boys played with a Y.M.C.A. team there last Dec. 26.

Oklahoma charges such competition violated a Big Six rule forbidding competition of athletes on outside teams.

E. H. Gill, manager of a team in the Oklahoma City Y.M.C.A. league, said the name of Johnson appearing in the lineup of a game last January 1 was that of Clarence (Skinny) Johnson, older brother of the Kansas sophomores.

Brothers Withdraw

Gill added that the younger brothers had been nominated to participate, but had obtained, 15 minutes before play started, a ruling from Oklahoma university that

Carideo Undecided About Purdue Job

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 20 (AP)—Frank Carideo, Notre Dame quarterback, it was recently intimated, would make an announcement today as to whether he would accept an offer to assist Noble Kizer in coaching the Purdue university football team next season.

Carideo departed for Los Angeles, however, without disclosing his future plans. He is to play with the Notre Dame all-stars at Los Angeles next Saturday. Before leaving South Bend he indicated he would take his time about making a decision on any coaching job that may be offered him.

Crimson Tide Drills for Washington State

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 20 (AP)—The University of Alabama football team practiced here today and then continued on its way westward to meet Washington State at Pasadena, Cal., New Year's day.

Coach Wallace Wade ran three squads through brisk scrimmages and the husky Crimson Tide were perspiring freely when they took to the showers. Everybody seemed to be in fine shape and Wade said he regarded the New Year's contest as a "toss up."

Giants Buy Pitcher

MEMPHIS, Dec. 20 (AP)—Roscoe Shepherd, right handed pitcher, has been sold to the New York Giants, Tom Watkins, president of the Memphis Southern Association club, announced tonight. The sale is optional and the price was not announced.

caused them to believe pay would affect their amateur standing. He said they did not compete.

Dean Shaud said his investigation would continue. He was quoted as saying at Lawrence that he thought it inadvisable to play the brothers before the investigation is completed.

Echo of Turnout

The charges made public today echo the turnout in which the Big Six was engulfed recently over the eligibility of James A. Bausch, all-around athletic star at Kansas.

The conference faculty council last October at a meeting in Columbia charged Kansas with recruiting and subsidizing athletes. Among the terms of later agreement was the Kansas athletic board's promise to abide by the conference eligibility committee's ruling.

Kansas Wins From Missouri

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 20 (AP)—The University of Kansas basketballers provided a pre-conference view of their strength tonight in defeating the University of Missouri, 40 to 26, in an exhibition game.

Major Colleges, Universities Look for New Gridiron Coaches for 1931 Season

Wray, Price Affairs Cause Much Interest

Wade Leaves Alabama for Duke; Dehart Not Signed

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (AP)—As the result of shakeups already effected or in the process of taking place, at least a dozen major colleges and universities will have new head football coaches in 1931. It will mark one of the biggest turnovers in gridiron history, with such pillars of the past and present fame as Harvard, Princeton, California, Pennsylvania and Alabama feeling the effects of reorganization in football leadership.

Many Named, But—
Because of the turmoil involved, the shifts at Pennsylvania and California have attracted national interest. Candidates to succeed Lowry Wray at Penn and "Nibs" Price at California have been nominated with considerable abandon.

The race is still understood to be wide open in both instances. Unless some unforeseen hitch develops, Wallace Wade will transfer his responsibilities from Alabama to Duke next year, succeeding Jimmy Dehart. Both had great 1930 seasons, with Wade's last Alabama machine now on its way to Pasadena for the New Year's classic.

Frank Thomas, assistant Georgia coach, already has been signed to replace Wade at Alabama and Dehart is going elsewhere. Dehart Gets Attention Dehart's ability attracted considerable attention outside the Southern conference. His friends have heard he may be approached shortly during the coach convention in New York with an offer that would move him up into the front ranks. The jobs at Princeton, Harvard, and West Virginia also have been filled. Bill Roper's successor at Jungletown is Al Wittmer, former assistant coach. Harvard, similarly, has elevated "Lightning Eddie" Casey, former all American half-back, to succeed Arnold Horween. Ira Rodgers will be replaced by Earle Nicks at West Virginia.

Workman Quits Ames
Iowa State, Gonzaga and Clemson have vacancies to fill. Noel Workman resigned at Iowa State after his team lost 16 straight. Josh Cody quit unexpectedly at Clemson.

Of the coaches who took over new jobs this year, outstanding work has been turned in by John McEwan at Holy Cross, Lou Little at Columbia, Jimmy Phelan at Washington and Clarence Spears at Oregon.

Sportively Speaking

The local prep games Friday night present two extremes in basketball. The Little Hawks' tussle with Dubuque, which might be termed exhibit A, was a splendid example of a one-sided game, with the superiority of the winners so marked that they scored field goals almost at will. The St. Pat's athletic and verbal fight with Immaculate Conception, exhibit B, was a scrap between two evenly matched quintets with the slightest break determining the outcome.

Did St. Pat's win or lose to the Cedar Rapids five? It's your guess. In my opinion the least that the erratic referee could have done was to have let the score remain tied or call an over-time period.

Parlor City fans, who attended in hopes of seeing a riotous fray, saw that and a rhetoric duel that would shame our own verbose congress. Coaches Gaylor and Kelly flew into a tantrum at the presentation of victory to their opponents and argued well, night an hour before a gallery of fans, who cheered or booed according to their convictions.

The Hawklet's loss was indeed a blotch on their record. Captain Westmark scored the few goals. Perhaps it should not be too harsh or hasty in my judgment for Dubuque has one of the best prep cage outfits in the state.

SPORTS CHAMPIONS OF 1930

As the year 1930 draws to a close it has brought to light the outstanding athletes of the world who have again won their names in the annals of fame. The United States polo team met and defeated the quartet from Great Britain and retained supremacy of the world. Stella Walsh of Cleveland, established herself as the greatest woman runner in the world. Raymond Ruddy, of New York, whose remarkable feats gave him the clear title to the cognomen "World's Champion Swimmer," Billy Arnold, is again the speed champion. Frank Wykoff, sensational coast sprinter set a record in the 100-yard dash. Casper Oimen, of Canton, S. D., whose supremacy in the world of skiing is unquestioned, Commodore Harold S. Vanderbilt, at the helm of the Enterprise retained the American cup in the United States. Franco Georgetti, established his claim to the world's bicycling title. Gallant Fox, the champion racer of the year. Hack Wilson, mighty outfielder of the Chicago Cubs, set a new National League mark for home runs with 56. Jake Shaffer, whose skill may be inherited from his father, won the world's 18.2 ballline billiard championship. Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics were easy winners of the world series. Gar Wood is still the speedboat king. Bobby Jones, the perennial golf champion, astounded his warmest admirers by winning the British open and amateur and the national open and amateur golf championships in one year. Frank Carideo, brilliant quarterback of the Notre Dame football team is hailed as the best football player in the United States. Seventeen year old Helene Madison of Seattle, Wash., established herself as the champion mermaid of 1930. Larry Shotwell, established his claim to the world's bowling championship. Jim Londos, hailed as the world's wrestling champion. Glenna Collett retained her title as champion of the women golfers of America. John Hope Does, the young Californian, astounded the tennis world when he won the national singles. The Cornell university crew set a new mark on the Hudson by winning the Poughkeepsie regatta. Max Schmeling, the young heavyweight fighter from Germany, took the heavyweight title from the United States to the Patherland when he was declared champion of the world, after being fouled by Jack Sharkey. Betty Nuthall, brilliant English girl tennis player, won the national tennis championship of the United States, thus taking to a foreign country another title. Tony Canzoneri, young Italian prize fighter, upset all fistic dope when he knocked out Al Singer, then the newly-crowned lightweight champion of the world and acquired the title in one minute and six seconds of fighting.

Baer Doesn't Worry About Schaaf Loss

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (AP)—Max Baer, the curly headed wolf from the coast, looked out through one good eye upon the boxing world today and saw plenty there to widen his normal grin of satisfaction. A youngster just up from the ranks—and a beaten fighter at that—stood for a day at least with the fistic world at his feet.

Metropolitan fight writers to the finest welcomed him as one of the finest who could be induced to come to Wisconsin. The grid mentors that rank above Thistlethwaite are too well satisfied where they are to move.

Two former pupils called on their old teachers Friday in the Big Ten, bringing their basketball teams with them. At Purdue Coach Ward "Piggy" Lambert's Bollermakers added more fuel to the fire of their hopes for retaining the conference championship this season. They walloped Washington university, 42 to 24, using 17 players. The invaders were coached by Don White, who learned the cage game from Lambert.

Illinois did an artistic job of whitewashing Miami (a college in Ohio not Florida) by the score of 40 to 17. The Miamians were coached by John Maurer, who played basketball with the Illinois university under Craig Ruby, present coach, and was captain one year.

Wisconsin dedicated its new gymnasium Thursday night with an impressive 25 to 12 triumph over Pennsylvania. The new gym replaces the musty old bandbox armory that was called a firetrap last year. Coach Meanwell's troupe known as "Meanwell's Midgets" showed basket making talent. The midget Badger forwards hosed through the Quaker defense for goal after goal.

Another item from the same source: Wisconsin athletic board made a lukewarm recommendation to the board of regents to retain Glenn Thistlethwaite as head football coach, by a vote of 6 to 4, after a prolonged debate.

There's no need of worrying about Thistlethwaite so much as Wisconsin. The Badger mentor can snare a good coaching job easy enough, but Wisconsin won't be able to obtain a coach of his ability for there is not a coach his equal on the list of those

Single Soldier Holds 2,000 Troops at Bay

PERPIGNAN, France, Dec. 19 (AP)—A Senegalese soldier, barricaded behind the steel doors of a concrete vault at Ft. Dusearrat, was holding 2,000 troops, gendarmes and policemen at bay as darkness fell tonight.

The Senegalese suddenly went amuck at noon, shooting and killing three soldiers and wounding two. Then he took refuge in the subterranean vault.

The manner in which Baer and Schaaf, by their clouting tactics, enthused a crowd of 10,000 in the Garden has eliminated for the time being all thought of the disappointing veterans who have been cluttering up the heavyweight picture for several seasons without producing a thrill.

Max Schmeling and his arguments with the New York state athletic commission were forgotten and no one seemed to care again whether or not Jack Sharkey ever got another shot at the heavyweight championship.

The stage seems to be set for the youngsters, gambling kids who like to fight.

Wearing The GREEN

Making the frosh squad as a center, John Rolleston of Perry has been used frequently by Coach Jack Skien at that position on the first string. John gained his basketball experience while playing on the Perry high school quintet.

During his high school career he earned three letters at the pivot position and was captain of the team during his senior year. In his final year of competition John was named honorary captain and center of one of the sectional teams and was given honorable mention on the Des Moines Register's all-state team. He was also named on the Dallas county basketball team for two seasons and selected as captain his final year.

John did not confine his athletic activities to the hardwood court in high school for he earned two letters as an end on the football team. He plans to concentrate his efforts in basketball while at Iowa and indications point toward his winning a numeral with the frosh squad this season.

John plans to enter business after majoring in commerce at Iowa. He is a pledge of the Sigma Nu fraternity.

Twenty-Ninth Instalment
Synopsis of Preceding Instalments
Dolly and "Soapy" Molloy, crooks who pose as rich Americans, know that Lester Carmody wants to turn his heirlooms into cash, but is prevented by law from doing so. They suggest that a fake burglary be staged to do the trick. He agrees, and they engage Chimp Twist, a crook who poses as a health expert, to carry out the details. They plan to double-cross both Carmody and Twist and get away with the loot. Chimp does the job, but is seen by the butler, who tells Carmody's nephew, John Carroll. John, knowing nothing of the plot, and fancying himself in the role of detective, goes to question Twist. Dolly accompanies him, and not only has him doped and locked up in Twist's sanatorium, but also gives Twist knock-out drops. Then she phones "Soapy" to seize the loot, which is supposed to be concealed in Carmody's house, and meet her in London. But Carmody has sent the stuff to the baggage office of a nearby station. "Soapy" stumbles on this fact, and also learns that the claim ticket is on John's person. He dashes for Twist's sanatorium. Twist and John have recovered from their knock-out drops, and John is fuming, because his imprisonment has caused him to miss an engagement with Patricia Wyvern, who has just begun to look with favor on his suit. When he learns the truth about the robbery, he dashes for home.

you, hasn't it?" said John. And, for the first time since this interview alive to the fact that in his nephew's manner there was a subtle something that he did not like. This might, of course, simply be due to the circumstance that the young man's chin was bristling with an unsightly growth and his eyes red about the rims. Perhaps it was merely his outward appearance that gave the suggestion of the sinister. But Mr. Carmody did not think so. He noted now that John's eyes, besides being red, were strangely keen. Their expression seemed, to his sensitive conscience, accusing.

"By the way," said John, "Bolt gave me this ticket yesterday to give to you. I forgot about it till it was too late."

The relatively unimportant question of whether or not there was a peculiar look in his nephew's eyes ceased to vex Mr. Carmody. All he felt at this instant was an almost suffocating elation.

"Oh, yes," he heard himself saying. "Bolt left a bag for me at Shrub Hill Station."

"He did?"

"Give me the ticket."

"Later," said John, and put it back in his pocket.

Mr. Carmody's elation died away. There was no question now about the peculiar look in his companion's eye. It was a grim look. A hard, accusing look. Not at all the sort of look a man with a tender conscience likes to have boring into him.

"What—what do you mean?"

John continued to regard him with that unpleasantly fixed stare.

"I hear you have offered a reward of a thousand pounds for the recovery of those things that were stolen, Uncle Lester."

"Er—yes. Yes."

"I'll claim it."

"What?"

"Uncle Lester," said John, and his voice made a perfect match for his eye, "before I left Healthward Ho I had a little talk with Mr. Twist and his friend Mr. Molloy. They told me a lot of interesting things. Do you get my meaning, or shall I make it plainer?"

Mr. Carmody, who had bristled with the fury of a parsimonious man who sees danger threatening his cheque-book, sank back into his chair, like a balloon coming to rest.

"Good!" said John. "Write out a cheque to Colonel Wyvern."

"Colonial Wyvern?"

"I am passing the reward on to him. I have a particular reason for wanting to end all that silly trouble between you two, and I think this would do it. I know he is simply waiting for you to make some sort of advance. So you're going to make an advance of a thousand pounds."

Mr. Carmody gulped.

"Wouldn't five hundred be enough?"

"A thousand."

"It's such a lot of money."

"A nice round sum," said John.

Mr. Carmody did not share his nephew's views as to what constituted nice and roundness in a sum of money, but he did not say so. He drew his cheque-book from its drawer. He supposed that he ought to be feeling grateful to the young man for not hearing him with reproaches and recrimination, but the agony of what he was about to do prevented any such emotion.

It was as if some malignant fate had brooded over him, he felt, ever since this business had started. From the very first, life had been one long series of disturbances. All the expense of entertaining the Molloy family, not to mention the unseemly Ronnie Flat. The car going to and fro between Healthward Ho and Rudge at six shillings per trip. The five hundred pounds he had to pay to get Hugo out of the house. And now this appalling, devastating sum for which he had just begun to write his cheque. Money going out all the time! Money, money, money. . . and all for nothing!

He blotted the cheque and held it out.

"Don't give it to me," said John. "You're coming with me to Colonel Wyvern's house, to hand it to him in person, with a neat little speech."

"I'll tell you," said John. "Very well."

"And, after that," said John, "you and he are going to be like two loves birds." He thumped the desk. "Do you understand? Love-birds."

"Very well."

There was something in the unhappy man's tone as he spoke, something so crushed and forlorn that John could not but melt a little. He paused at the door. It crossed his mind that he might possibly be able to cheer him up.

"Uncle Lester," he said, "how did you get on with Sergeant-Major Flannery at Healthward Ho?"

Mr. Carmody winced. Unpleasant memories seemed to be troubling him.

"Just before I left," said John. "I blacked his eye and we fell down stairs together."

"Down stairs?"

"Right down the entire flight. He thumped his head against an oak chest."

On Mr. Carmody's drawn face there hovered for an instant a faint flickering smile.

"I thought you'd be pleased," said John.

Colonel Wyvern hitched the celebrated eyebrows into a solid mass across the top of his nose, and from beneath them stared hideously at Jane, his parlor-maid. Jane had just come into the morning room, where he was having a rather heated conversation with his daughter, Patricia, and had made the astounding statement that Mr. Lester Carmody

Behind The Scenes IN HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL
HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 20—An unusual case in Hollywood is the career of Mary Duncan. Ballyhooed extensively by Fox, Miss Duncan didn't click as was expected, and faded out of the picture. By all rules she should have stayed out.

Within the last few months, however, she has been making a new start. Universal signed her for "The Diplomat" and now Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will use her in "Moral and intellectual damages," said John. "Good heavens!" said Colonel Wyvern.

With a sudden movement, he tore the paper in two, burst into a crackling laugh, and held his hand out.

"Good Heavens!" he cried joyfully. "Do you think I want money? All I ever wanted was for you to admit you were an old scoundrel and murderer, and you've done it. And, if you knew how lonely it's been in this infernal place, with no one to speak to, or smoke a cigar with . . ."

Mr. Carmody gazed at his old friend in awe. Long as he had known him, it was only now that he realized his true nobility of soul.

"Wyvern!"

"Carmody," said Colonel Wyvern, "how are the pike?"

"The pike?" Mr. Carmody blinked, still dazed. "Pike?"

"In the moat. Have you caught the big one yet?"

"Not yet."

"I'll come up and try for him this afternoon, shall I?"

"He says 'Yes,'" said John, interpreting.

"And only just now," said Colonel Wyvern, "I was savaging my daughter, because she wanted to marry into your family!"

"What's that?" cried Mr. Carmody, and John clutched the edge of the table. His heart had given a sudden, ecstatic leap, and for an instant, the room had seemed to rock about him.

"Yes," said Colonel Wyvern. He broke into another of his laughs, and John could not help winking where Pat had got that heavenly tinkle of silver bells that served her on occasions when she was amused. Not from her father's side of the family.

"Bless my soul!" said Mr. Carmody. "Yes," said Colonel Wyvern. "She came to me just before you arrived and told me she wanted to marry your nephew, Hugo."

More and more Mr. Carmody was feeling that he had been forced into playing a part to which he was not equal. It was obviously that, at this point, he should register astonishment, and he did his best to do so. But the gasp he gave sounded so unconvincing to him that he hastened to supplement his words.

"What! What are you saying? Doctor Twist?"

"But . . . But . . ."

"Show them in, Jane," she said.

"I will not see that old thug," said Colonel Wyvern.

"Show them in, Jane," repeated Pat, firmly. "You must, Father."

Mr. Carmody did not share his nephew's views as to what constituted nice and roundness in a sum of money, but he did not say so. He drew his cheque-book from its drawer. Money, money, money. . . and all for nothing!

He blotted the cheque and held it out.

"Don't give it to me," said John. "You're coming with me to Colonel Wyvern's house, to hand it to him in person, with a neat little speech."

"I'll tell you," said John. "Very well."

"And, after that," said John, "you and he are going to be like two loves birds." He thumped the desk. "Do you understand? Love-birds."

"Very well."

There was something in the unhappy man's tone as he spoke, something so crushed and forlorn that John could not but melt a little. He paused at the door. It crossed his mind that he might possibly be able to cheer him up.

"Uncle Lester," he said, "how did you get on with Sergeant-Major Flannery at Healthward Ho?"

Mr. Carmody winced. Unpleasant memories seemed to be troubling him.

"Just before I left," said John. "I blacked his eye and we fell down stairs together."

"Down stairs?"

"Right down the entire flight. He thumped his head against an oak chest."

On Mr. Carmody's drawn face there hovered for an instant a faint flickering smile.

"I thought you'd be pleased," said John.

Colonel Wyvern hitched the celebrated eyebrows into a solid mass across the top of his nose, and from beneath them stared hideously at Jane, his parlor-maid. Jane had just come into the morning room, where he was having a rather heated conversation with his daughter, Patricia, and had made the astounding statement that Mr. Lester Carmody

THE ULTIMATE REBUKE.

One of the pre-view hounds reports that a certain picture was so bad that the operator walked out after the third reel.

TEAMED AGAIN.

Those who enjoyed the picture, "Laughter," will find satisfaction in the news that Harry D'Arrast, the director, and Donald Ogden Stewart, the dialogist, are again to collaborate on "Week-End."

New York saw this Austin Parker comedy last season.

It will be made into talking film at the Paramount Long Island Studio.

I NOTE THAT—

The talkies are responsible for a new vogue of the "Pig-Latin" of our childhood. Some one said "am-gary" in the picture and the fad was started. Cecil B. DeMille has a volume of 5,000 selected letters received about his picture, "King of Kings." Eddie Quinlan is in town after a personal appearance tour in the East. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., has had a birthday. The Duke of Sutherland is a visitor at Pickfair. Harry Brand, the publicist is back at home, recuperating from his third operation this year.

School Costs in Iowa Take Large Jump

Increase More Than 45 Million in Last 29 Years

DES MOINES, Dec. 20 (AP)—The cost of Iowa's public school system has jumped from $3,028,919 in 1900 to $55,799,503 in 1929, according to a bulletin issued today by R. C. Williams, research director for the state department of public instruction.

The report on school expenditures and taxes was prepared in accordance with a recommendation of the last legislature. The facts obtained in the survey will be presented to the forty-fourth general assembly for consideration.

Williams said that district school taxes in 1929 totaled $46,557,266, or 45.14 per cent of the total levy. The figure represented an increase from $4,988 per cent in 1915.

The report showed that nearly 95 per cent of the funds to pay the costs of elementary and secondary school education in the state must be raised by direct taxation. The district tax is about 92 per cent of the total.

Better Schools

"We have been providing more and better schools under a system of financial support which has not kept pace with other developments," Williams said.

"Basing our revenues for public education primarily upon tangible property, a large part of which is engaged in a relatively unprofitable industry, has made it difficult for people to finance the types of schools they desire their children to have."

Taxable property behind each child in school township and rural independent districts is about four times as large as for cities, according to the bulletin.

A comparison of millage rates disclosed that first and second class cities have the highest millage levies for school purposes. The average figure is three times that for school townships, where the levy is slightly less than for rural independent districts.

The millage levy in consolidated districts was shown to be twice that of strictly rural districts, and less than that of towns and villages.

The cost per pupil is highest in consolidated schools, Williams reported, with districts maintaining one-teacher elementary schools next in line, followed by cities and towns. The per capita cost in the four upper grades of a group of schools is nearly twice that of the elementary grades in the same schools.

The report indicated that 85 per cent of expenditures are for operating costs, with half of all payments going for teachers' salaries. Operating expenses were shown to have increased slightly, but costs for buildings and equipment have declined.

Iowa's average per capita cost in 1927-28 for public school education was $107.85, compared to $105.80 for the United States, according to the bulletin. Iowa teachers' salaries average considerably below the national figure, however.

Lazell Leaves for Meeting of Journalists

Prof. Fred J. Lazell, of the school of journalism, will leave tomorrow for Boston where he will attend the nineteenth annual convention of the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism, and the meeting of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism.

The meetings will be in session over a period of three days, during which time the attendants will attempt to gain more knowledge of what is expected of graduates of schools of journalism.

Several of the leading newspapers of the country will be discussed. The meeting of the two organizations will tend to bring about a better understanding between the instructors in journalism and the editors of large newspapers.

The main speakers on the program are: Fred F. Shedd, editor of the Philadelphia Bulletin; Harold B. Johnson, editor of the Watertown, N. Y. Times, and M. V. Atwood, associate editor of the Gannett newspapers, of Rochester, N. J.

"Alcoholic Drink in Modern Society," Theme for Contest

"Alcoholic drink in modern society" will be the general theme of the essays written by contestants in the National college essay contest being given by the Intercollegiate Prohibition association.

Any undergraduate of any college or university in the United States is eligible to enter the contest.

The purpose of the contest is to increase the interest and intelligence in the problem of alcoholic drink in modern society. The papers can not be over 2,000 words in length and must be entered before March 31, 1931. A bibliography must be included.

The essays will be judged on clearness of thought and originality.

W. A. Sheaffer Sees Prosperity for 1931; Cooperation, Optimism

FORT MADISON, Dec. 20 (AP)—Cooperation and the practice of sound business principles would bring prosperity back during 1931, in the opinion of W. A. Sheaffer, president of the Sheaffer Pen company.

"The year 1931 will depend a great deal on what we make it," Mr. Sheaffer said. "If we, as a state and as a nation, do the constructive things that will put people to work and will bring better returns from the products of the Campaign to Merge Labor Groups Opens

Plans Would Present Solid Front of Wage Earners

CLEVELAND, Dec. 20 (AP)—A new campaign was in progress tonight to affiliate the major railroad labor brotherhoods with the American federation of labor to enable organized labor to meet its future problems with a "solid front" of 3,500,000 members.

Negotiations to this end, instituted by William Green, president of the federation, were disclosed today by Alexander F. Whitney, president of the brotherhood of railroad trainmen, when he announced the appointment of a trainmen's committee to confer with a committee from the federation.

Federation Important

In the belief of many labor leaders, the proposed affiliation of the brotherhood and the federation is one of the most important undertakings in the history of organized labor in this country.

Thus far, the negotiations with the trainmen's brotherhood are the only ones revealed, but labor leaders are confident the plans will include similar proposals to the brotherhood of firemen and engineers and the brotherhood of railway conductors. Together with the trainmen, they have a membership of approximately 500,000.

Should an agreement be reached during the next several months, the proposed affiliation will be submitted to the federal convention probably in October next year.

Lack Cooperation in Past

In the past, the almost utter lack of connection between the big four brotherhoods and the federation has kept them from enjoying the supporting strength of each other.

President Whitney seemed optimistic over affiliation possibilities today. "I don't think there are any insurmountable obstacles in the way of agreement," he said. "Time has brought about a better feeling and I think there are possibilities for an affiliation."

The committee appointed by President Whitney to confer with the federation's representatives, consists of James A. Farquharson, legislative representative; S. R. Harvey, assistant president, and President Whitney.

sol, and will not reduce wages but keep all the people employed that we possibly can, and will radiate optimism and practice sound business principles, 1931 can be a very prosperous one indeed.

"There never was a time when there was any more money available for good legitimate business of all kinds. The Mississippi valley has a wonderful future before it. We have the advantage over other countries that are on an export basis. It is possible for us, by reducing acreage a very slight amount where necessary, to put all products of the farm on a domestic basis at a much higher price than could be obtainable on an export basis."

Banker Flays U.S. Federal Reserve Unit

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 (AP)—Broad criticism of the federal reserve system for its financial policies and its attitude toward reparations under the Versailles treaty, was placed before the house today by Chairman McFadden of the banking committee.

McFadden asserted international bankers took charge of Versailles treaty negotiations and as a result the "bonds afterward issued are tainted with illegality."

"It was 'inconceivable,' he said, that the government would allow the sale of these bonds and the fact that it did was due wholly to the influence of a powerful group of international bankers. He charged there was to close an association between the federal reserve bank of New York and international bankers and

"economic experts to whose control that bank has been abandoned. 'America's foreign financial policy,' McFadden said, 'should be fixed by the federal reserve banks by the federal reserve board at Washington and not by one of the 12 coordinate federal reserve banks.'"

"The industrial stagnation in this country today," he added "is largely due to the distrust of the people in the foreign policy of our government and in the financial policies of the federal reserve system."

Representative Ramseyer, republican, Iowa, said he doubted the wisdom of Americans investing in reparations bonds.

Ten tons of tomatoes to the acre were produced in some parts of the Corvillo, Wash., district this season.

The seed industry of Oregon has reached an estimated $1,700,000 annual business volume.

Virgil Wine, Monitor, Wash., grower harvested 148 boxes of apples, loose pack, from two trees.
