Declares Need of New Consideration of Reparations

War debts beget reparations, reparations beget dictatorships, and dictatorships beget war. That is the gospel of peace according to Kirby Page, internationalist who addressed a student conference here Saturday and Sunday.

"As long as the rest of the world falls into the easy way of accounting for war by the scrapbook theory—that war is caused by a mad dog quarrel—we are not likely to do the realistic thinking required to prevent war," he told 75 listeners in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Dangerous Situation

Kirby Page was speaking of possible solutions for dangerous world situations, of Germany's in particular. Only by removing the stigma and the burden of reparations can Germany be eased from her present situation, he said.

"We need to have a new conference that will consider both war debts and reparations," he contended, pointing out that the conferences resulting in the Dawes and Young plans dealt with reparations alone.

"We need willingness on the part of the United States, continued Mr. Page, "to stand ready to do what is best to do."

Debts Legal

"But, says the United States government, these debts are legal and we have already been generous. Both of these claims are true. There is no doubt that the obligations are legal. These war debts have been reduced. We have not canceled any principal, but interest payments have been cut materially by drastic reductions of interest rates."

But, in the view of Kirby Page, "we are faced with a situation where you have to be more than generous. . . . I don't think you are going to avoid a German dictatorship unless something is done to lighten her burden."

And even American selfishness dictates such a course, he insisted. "Prosperity in the United States depends upon success in selling goods. If these debt payments are a dead weight strangling life in Germany and Europe and thereby reducing standards of living, that makes their competition with us more intense and reduces their capacity to buy our goods."

Asks Reduction

"That is why we get a president of the nation's largest bank, Chase National Bank in New York, coming out a few days ago for reduction of war debts."

Mr. Page reminded his audience of the Balfour offer made by England shortly after the war in which England said she would collect from her allied debtors only as much as was necessary to pay the United States.

Would money left in those nations through debt cancellation be used in building armies? Mr. Page does not believe so. "Why do they build armies?" he asked. "Is it their ability to spend, do they spend what they can afford? It is because they are afraid not to spend it. There would be less tension and hostility psychologically if the burdens were reduced."

Peace Without Victory

Increasing unrest rising out of the German situation verifies the "peace without victory" speech of President Woodrow Wilson, the conference leader said. The speech "showed that combatants on both sides seemed to think they were fighting for the same things. The only peace that would endure would be a peace without victory. If either side won a conspicuous victory it would impose a crushing peace, sowing the seeds of further trouble."

Because he feels the war would otherwise have ended a draw in 1916, Kirby Page regards the entry of the United States as a possible mistake, though he prefers working for future policies judging past ones.

Compares World Court, U. S. Supreme Court

That the World Court in its underlying statutes has no provision for compelling member nations to provide force for putting decisions into actuality was discussed by Mr. Page as similar to the United States supreme court, which never has used army backing for enforcing its decisions during 150 years of existence.

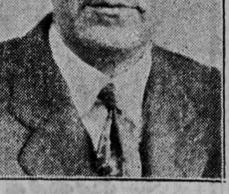

Consent of the governed and the power of public opinion will work in the world as it did in the United States, he believes. "If the League of Nations tries to use an army it will destroy itself," he warned. He cited the opinion of Charles Evans Hughes, onetime secretary of state who is now chief justice of the supreme court.

Where the League of Nations apparently needs force, against a major power, it dare not use it, Mr. Hughes remarked. Against a power too small to resist it does not need force. So the idea of furnishing major power to fight somebody else's wars is, says Page, poppycock.

Olin Tells of Remedy for Soot, Smoke

Chamber of Commerce Hears Professor's Discussion

"Educational work designed not only to spread information relative to correct methods of firing and smoke prevention but to raise the level of civic consciousness to a point where present conditions will be intolerable," was prescribed by Professor Hubert L. Olin of the university department of chemical engineering as a remedy for the smoke evil. He spoke at the weekly luncheon of the chamber of commerce yesterday noon.

In outlining the technique of smoke prevention, Professor Olin said: "There are two essential conditions that govern the burning of any fuel substance, whether it be the wood or coal in your fireplace or the vaporized gasoline in the automobile carburetor: first, it must come into contact with air; and second, it must be raised to the kindling temperature."

In considering the indictment of the smoke evil, the speaker said: "Complaint is made that it defiles our buildings, damages their contents, depresses our spirits, deprives us of the wholesome active rays of sunlight and that it is a constant menace to health in other ways."

Professor Olin told of investigations that have been made relative to the detrimental effects of smoke to health. He showed that in some communities, smoke absorbs as much as 40 and 50 per cent of the total sunlight.

Not Health Menace

"What we may concede," he continued, "is that the smoke evil in a city like ours is not directly inimical to our public health, we cannot escape the conviction that it violates our sense of common decency. An individual may be in the most robust health possible, but if he is carelessly about matters of personal cleanliness he cannot be received in good society. Shall not municipalities be judged sooner or later by the same standards?"

Thursday Set for Auditing of Medical Fund

Investigators to Report Results to Budget Director

Accountants from the state department of the budget will begin work of auditing the university's Rockefeller foundation interest account, Thursday, E. F. Brown, one of the party sent here at the request of Atty. Gen. John Fletcher, said yesterday.

He announced further, after his arrival in Iowa City yesterday afternoon, that no report of his investigation into non-payment of interest by W. M. McChesney, president of the First National bank and university treasurer, would be available before next week. All findings in connection with the audit will be reported to Oscar Anderson, director of the budget, he said.

Complete Annual Audit

Mr. Brown said that he and F. M. Hanson, assistant budget director, had yet to complete their annual audit of the university's books which had begun two weeks ago and was suspended during last week. He declared that a routine accounting would have been made of the Rockefeller fund, but that special attention would be given it following the request of the attorney general for an investigation.

Examination of the Rockefeller account was asked on the ground that a resolution by the board of education waiving payment of $28,782 interest by McChesney on average daily balances of the building fund may have been irregular.

The board of education's regulation regarding ordinary accounts calls for payment of 2 1/2 per cent by the treasurer on average daily balances. The audit this week will attempt to determine whether or not the Rockefeller funds are affected by this ruling.

Saves $30,000

When the board waived payment of interest on the balances it declared in its resolution, April 9, 1929, that Mr. McChesney had been able to save the university $30,000 by handling of the medical donation.

Thomas Farrell, cashier of the First National bank protested on Sept. 28, 1929, against the wording of the resolution in a letter to George T. Baker, president of the board, asserting that the bank has not been compelled to pay interest on the fund under the conditions by which it was handled.

Mr. Farrell wrote: "The bank positively refused to become the depository for this fund under the usual terms. It did not care to accept the responsibility for so large a sum of money, and to assume the obligation of paying interest thereon, and to take its chances of being able to use the fund so as to make it profitable."

Bank Receives Money

"Accordingly, it was arranged that the money as it was received should be turned over to the First National bank for investment in United States securities, and that these securities should at all times be in possession of depositories under a receipt reciting that the securities were the property of the First National bank of Iowa City, Iowa, for the use and benefit of the state University of Iowa, and it was understood that all interest or profit should accrue to the benefit of the state university."

Mr. Farrell urged the board to obligate its resolution so as to avoid the impression that the bank was being refunded interest which it should have paid under the strict letter of the law.

The Rockefeller foundation made its gift of $2,500,000 toward the building of the new medical unit before it was needed for construction. The gift was accepted and a similar amount appropriated by the state legislature in 1925.

The foundation made its first payment of $450,000 Jan. 1, 1924 and completed its gift Nov. 14, 1927.

Pay Expenses

Much of this money was kept on hand to pay current expenses and could not be deposited in the form of government bonds as the remainder of it was. It is this portion of the funds over which arose the question of payment or non-payment of interest by the bank.

Orchestra of University to Give Concert

Program of Beethoven, Wagner Glazunov Symphonies

Symphonies by Ludwig Van Beethoven and Alexandre Glazunov, and a march by Richard Wagner compose the program of the concert given tomorrow at 8:15 p.m. by the university symphony orchestra in Iowa Union. Prof. Frank E. Kendrick of the school of music will direct the concert, one of the events on the 1931 concert series.

Beethoven, music critics claim, brought the classical symphony to its highest power and expressiveness. He was a Prussian, living during the era of the French revolution. Glazunov, whose compositions are in a different style, lived in Russia, composing during the latter half of the nineteenth century.

Wagner dominated music in Germany 60 years ago, when, introducing a new school, he made dramatic fitness dominate the ensemble of text, music and action.

Owners of season tickets and those wishing extra admissions may reserve seats this afternoon in music annex No. 1 from 1 to 5 o'clock and from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. tomorrow.

The program of the concert: Symphony No. 5 in B Minor, Opus 67 Beethoven
Allegro con brio
Andante con moto
Allegro: Allegro (Intermission)
Symphony No. 5 in B flat, Opus 55 Glazunov
Moderato: Maestoso: Allegro

Page Reveals Struggles in Ghandi's Life

Quiet Reform Without Violence Hope of Insurgents

The spectacle of India and Japan's millions endeavoring to overthrow British and local imperialism respectively by peaceable, passive resistance was pictured by Kirby Page at the vespers Sunday afternoon at the Iowa Union.

"Without firing a gun, without resorting to violence in any form, Ghandi is striving to free his country from England's rule and Kagawa is working for democracy in Japan," Mr. Page pointed out that these cases were without parallel in the history of the world.

Essence of Ghandi's Theory

The essence of Ghandi's theory is that a regime cannot govern without the consent of the people. The people are the props of any government, Ghandi reasons. He plans to shake off Great Britain's domination by knocking away these props. He has instructed his followers to boycott British goods and refuse to obey the English rulers.

"He is convinced that in this way India will accomplish what it took a revolution in the United States and a bloody upheaval in France to do," Mr. Page, who has interviewed Ghandi and traveled through India, believes that Ghandi's method will be successful.

"Savior of India"

Ghandi was portrayed as the Christ, the savior, the martyr of India. He is now in jail. Over 65,000 of his sympathizers have been imprisoned by British authorities. Ghandi seeks English persecution; both to himself and the Indian people, as a means of bringing his movement to the attention of the world.

Mr. Page told of Ghandi's 21 day fast in the face of serious sickness as illustrative of his grit and determination. The India leader was pictured a slight man of less than 100 pounds in weight. He is well off but devotes himself to his nationalistic agitation.

Japan Acts Same

Kagawa, Ghandi's contemporary insurrectionist, employs the same methods of resisting the domination of local imperialism in Japan.

He is Japan's most popular writer. His books are the country's best sellers. His writings have netted a fortune, but he prefers to live in abject poverty. He has cast his lot with the impoverished masses of a peaceable and constitutional struggle to secure democracy for his nation.

Visiting the man he regards the reformer of Japan, Mr. Page was shocked at the misery and self-inflicted distress he was suffering. He was afflicted with four serious diseases, and lived in a tiny little room bamboo hut in the poor district of Japan.

Hoover Gets Report From Commission

Wickersham Delivers Liquor Study With Secrecy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Exactly 19 months, and 29 days after embarking upon its task, the Wickersham law enforcement commission today laid its study of the nation's prohibition problem before President Hoover.

The secrecy surrounded and lengthy document, wrapped in an ordinary brown paper envelope, was carried to the White House early this morning by Chairman Wickersham. Almost immediately Mr. Hoover dropped other tasks to begin his study of it.

Days before the long-waited document was placed in Mr. Hoover's hands it became known through sources close to the commission that the majority report of the 11 members, at least, would carry no recommendation for repeal of the eighteenth amendment or modification of the Volstead act to permit wines of beer.

Almost Complete Secrecy

Despite the few words that have leaked out from behind the commission's long closed doors, however, the main portions of both the majority and individual reports have remained shrouded in a secrecy almost unvarying in Washington.

There was a general congratulatory air at the sparsely inhabited commission headquarters during the day, that notwithstanding the nearly two years of deliberations upon a highly controversial subject, the tenor of these agreements and disagreements have been confined mainly to the circle of the 11 members.

More Crime Investigations

Members of the Wickersham committee will reassemble from time to time in connection with the other tasks of crime investigation assigned to them by the president. They believe virtually the entire story of crime in the United States, and the steps that should be taken to improve enforcement against it can be written before July 1.

State Carries 'Gag' Defense to High Court

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Minnesota today filed a defense of its newspaper law with the supreme court.

The statute is under attack before the court in a case brought by J. N. Near, whose weekly, "The Saturday Press," was suppressed under the law in 1927. The Minnesota supreme court held the measure constitutional.

The law was passed in 1925 and provides in effect for the suppression of a "malicious, scandalous, and defamatory" newspaper or magazine.

Henry N. Benson, Minnesota attorney general, in his answer today, argues that the law was an exercise of the police power of the state and that the liberty of the press was not violated, since it was directed at matter that was "malicious, scandalous and defamatory." He added that the statute was only directed at the habitual publication of such matter and did not include incidental or occasional publication. Benson further argued that the "Saturday Press" was a nuisance as defined by the law.

"The Saturday Press" devoted itself largely to attacks on law enforcement officials with graft.

The court has not set a date for argument in the case but has consented to pass upon it.

Hoosier Spurt at Finish Puts Game on Ice

Mort Koser Tops Old Gold Scoring With 8 Markers

By GILBERT SCHANTZ

A fast breaking Indiana university quintet convinced Old Gold fans last night that Indiana is still the home of crack basketball teams as the Cream and Crimson eagles unleashed a powerful attack in the closing minutes to hand the Hawkeyes their second consecutive beating, 28-20. Coach Rolfe Williams' proteges did not play the fine brand of basketball that they displayed against Purdue a week ago, and showed the effects of a strenuous schedule.

Hawkeyes Gain Early Lead

Failure to make good on close range shots cost the Hawkeyes the battle. In the first half the Old Gold hoopers broke through the Indiana defense at will to pile up a 7-1 lead. The Hoosiers soon slowed up Iowa's delayed offense and retaliated with an attack that was at times invincible. They succeeded in gaining a 13-9 advantage only to see the Hawkeyes knot the count at intermission at 13 all.

Coach Everett Dean's men found themselves in the second period and proceeded to crack the Iowa defense in half. Although the Hoosiers were more proficient at hitting the hoop from long range, most of the goals in the second half were made from under the basket.

Koser Iowa Star

Morty Koser, diminutive forward, bore the brunt of the Old Gold attack and accounted for a total of eight points. His two ringers early in the final period gave the Hawkeyes a 19 to 16 advantage to set the stage for the big Indiana rally. Dickey eluded the Iowa defense for a trio of short shots in the barrage that enabled the Cream and Crimson to count 12 markers to a free throw for Iowa.

Miller's charity toss opened the scoring but a pair of followup shots by Rogers and a ringer by Koser sent the Old Gold to the fore. Koser added a gift shot but Dickey quickly cancelled it with another gratis throw. Veller then swished the net with a beautiful layup from near center. Campbell slipped under for an easy goal and Miller followed with a pretty tip-in shot to give the Deamens a momentary advantage. Acting captain, Chuck Williamson, contributed a long basket for his team before Reinhardt fouled Miller as he dribbled under the basket for another counter.

Williamson Knobs Score

Campbell swished the net from the corner of the court to conclude the Indiana scoring the first period. Kotlow, who had replaced Koser, broke through for a nice bucket and Williamson sank a pair of chances from the liberty lane to knot the count a few seconds before the gun barked.

The second half started slow but the Hoosiers dominated the play with their ability to control the tip-off. The Deamens dribbled down and passed into the forwards breaking under the basket for numerous scoring chances.

Free throws by Reinhardt, Rogers, and Koser, and a pair of ringers by the midjet forward constituted the Old Gold scoring the final period. Led by Dickey, husky pivot man, and Daurer, substitute forward, the Cream and Crimson broke past the tired Iowa guards at will in a terrific attack that left the Hawkeyes stalwart dazed.

Dickey Leads Victors

Dickey with nine points and Miller with seven, were the big guns in the winning offensive while Koser topped the Iowa scorers. Inability of the Hawkeye eagles to tally from long range was in a measure responsible for the defeat, but the shooting of both teams was erratic throughout. The game was slowed up by a large number of fouls and both sides were guilty of traveling frequently. Coach Williams sent in numerous substitutes in the waning moments, but the Hoosiers were not to be denied their hard earned victory.

Clara's Case Gets Damper From Doran

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19 (AP)—A judicial damper was placed today on the "hell all" contest between Clara Bow, film queen, and her ex-husband, Delmer DeBoe.

Superior Judge William Doran, presiding in the trial of Miss DeBoe on charges of appropriating $16,000 from Clara's bank account, ruled out "mud slinging" just before the defendant took the witness stand with the asserted intention of revealing more about the actress' "boy friends" and alleged drinking and gambling.

Session Topical

As a result, today's court session was a tepid affair. Under questioning by the defense, Miss DeBoe told of signing checks for a fur coat and for dresses which she said she had purchased with the approval of Miss Bow.

Various other checks were explained in like manner. The prosecution charges the defendant with withdrawing the money from Clara's account for her personal profit and is guilty of grand theft.

Clara Absent

Clara was absent from court, being sick in bed with an attack of bronchitis and nervousness which came suddenly after her short but spirited appearance on the witness stand last week to deny Daisy's alleged confession, detailing Clara's loves, liquor purchases and her falling for poker.

Rex Bell, former cowboy actor and Clara's "boy friend" who Daisy said replaced her as secretary to the red headed actress, was in court.

scored such practices as "gunboat diplomacy," where the flag follows the dollar," costing in the business of "saving" lives and property 10,000,000 lives and $100,000,000 for the World war. Less than 300 Americans were killed in all the submarine disasters, Mr. Page asserted, while 100,000 perished as a result of the war method of "protection."

"They call money spent for army and navy a premium on insurance," he remarked, "which makes the American insurance premium for the next 10 years $7,000,000,000. Even if we had no army and navy at all, who is going to destroy even the premium's equivalent in life and property, let alone the face value?" he said.

"Perhaps the excess is for national honor and prestige," he suggested, and then called attention to evolution in the individual's notion of his honor which had resulted in doing away with the duel, asking if nations ought not to consider similar evolution in their ideas of prestige.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 20, 1931

A Bird in the Hand

BURLINGTON, Ia. (AP)—The first county health unit to come under the provisions of the state law enacted by the last general assembly was organized for Des Moines county here Saturday. Dr. Carl Jordan, assistant professor of hygiene and preventive medicine at the University of Iowa will be in charge.

The unit which will be opened Feb. 1 takes over Red Cross and social service work and the duties of city physician, milk inspector, and school nurse. "It is the plan within a few months to offer a short course in public health work, particularly for the benefit of doctors, with classroom work at the state university and field work here."

An almost identical story could have originated from Iowa City and Johnson county had it not been for an overzealous effort to avoid any program which might cost either government money with municipal elections in the offing. From the national government, $4,000; from the state through cooperation, $3,600 and a building; from the school district, $2,000; from private sources, $250 guaranteed and more certain; from all Iowa several hundreds persons interested in public health to patronize local merchants while in Iowa City—all this available for health work in city and county, and turned down because it might increase the amount spent for their health budget $300!

Friday night the local city council failed to pass the city-county health unit project over the veto of Mayor J. J. Carroll. Aldermen John Piper and Leroy S. Mercer gave as their official reason a desire that the county should vote its $3,000 share first. Aldermen Charles Regan and Leo Kohl had been against the unit from the outset. Aldermen W. L. Bywater, Jacob Van der Zee, and Leo Kaufmann voted "yes."

Saturday the announcement came from Burlington, which had not been a competitor so long as there was possibility of establishing the model health unit in Iowa City. Consequently a moderate sized industry and valuable asset is lost for now.

As a result it is no longer possible to be first, but it is not too late to be among the first if only local authorities learn that money wisely spent is better than money left idle.

Quitting Time

MANY university instructors seem to be unable to dismiss their classes on time. The authorities have definitely and explicitly insisted that dismissal take place on the stroke of the bell, but being human, professors forget. Or perhaps absent-mindedness, that quirk of comic artists, plays a part.

There is no question but that lectures are often interesting and hold the classes spell-bound but when the following class is commencing at the field house in 15 minutes, exactly the time of a brisk walk, anxiety is the principle emotion. If the lecturer would only leave the classroom and run by the side of his disciple across the river and up the hill retrieving lost minutes he would surely vow, between gasps for breath, to ever after dismiss all classes on time.

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray

THE state of Oklahoma recently placed in her gubernatorial chair a gentleman by the name of William H. Murray, more familiarly known as "Alfalfa Bill." Mr. Murray is undoubtedly of the type sometimes referred to as a "member of the old school."

In one of his first public pronouncements after being elected governor, speaking of a proposed swimming pool to be built at the state university, his excellency suggested that the students go swimming in the "crick," that being the place where he used to go.

Now, in his first message to the state legislature, he asks for a general curtailment of state school budgets to have the professors teach eight hours a day, "the same as the plumber and carpenter." Evidently the governor believes the usual working day of the teacher to be a delightful session of two or three hours, imparting casual knowledge to a group of enthusiastic and interested listeners.

of drying hay under the hot summer sun. Continuing along this line, the choice of the people says; referring to the university, "They may give it methods but they cannot make a brain and I would not attempt to improve upon God." Among his other virtues, of which he really has many, there is quite obviously a strain of modesty running through the governor. It was perhaps this feeling that caused him to suggest that the governor's mansion be rented out, and that he be allowed to live in the chauffeur's quarters above the garage.

Unfortunately, there are a considerable number of persons to whom "Alfalfa Bill's" type of reasoning will appeal strongly. It cannot be said truthfully though, that his supporters are of the most progressive type of citizenry. It would seem that the University of Oklahoma and other state schools are in for a lean period, if the wishes of the first citizen of the state are respected.

All in the Family

CARRYING off military honors is not out of the ordinary for members of the Solomon family. Betty Solomon is the second honorary cadet colonel at the University of Iowa. Her father, T. A. Solomon, class of '98, was the first cadet major, which corresponds to the office of cadet colonel now.

Poverty Sharing

PROSPEROUS America will do well to pause for a moment's tribute to the two men reared in the slums of abject oriental poverty such as is unknown in this country, Ghandi of India and Kagawa of Japan.

Locally, the true caliber of these men has just been brought out in its true light by Kirby Page, world traveler and intimate friend of both crusaders, who spoke at vespers Sunday.

Both men scorn luxuries and continue to live in poverty although their names have spread through the civilized world. Both are physical weaklings but mental giants, absorbed in helping others as poor as they, opposed to violence, and determined to love their enemies as well as their friends.

Kagawa, reared in a 6 by 9 foot room, believed near death from tuberculosis and other major diseases for the last 15 years, and nearly blind, still carries on in his campaign to improve the conditions of the poor in his country. His 40 books are among the Japanese best sellers, yet he has refused to improve his living conditions. Ghandi, also a frail man of only 100 pounds, likewise continues to live in the slums as he fights for the freedom of his country.

Search as you may, you will find no one in this country comparable to these men. There are few indeed who can even fathom or appreciate such characters. Those who understand fully can but feel their inferiority more.

The Late Mr. Finkbine, Host

EIGHTY-FIVE University of Iowa students gathered at Iowa Union Saturday night for the annual Finkbine dinner, expecting that a note of sadness would permeate the first of the dinners since W. O. Finkbine's death last summer.

But there was no tedious remorse. The programs read "The late William O. Finkbine, Host." The meeting proceeded in the same inspirational tenor, marked by a touch of humor, that has characterized previous dinners. The spirit of the man who founded the banquets dominated every word that was spoken, despite the fact that a portrait drawn by Charles Atherton Cummings for the university's memorial collection was the only physical evidence of the dead host's presence.

After all, it was probably the greatest tribute that could have been paid the university's benefactor. Few men extend an influence so far above material things that their surviving friends can "rejoice that the man had lived" rather than mourn his death.

Still at Nicaragua

THERE are apparently two potent reasons why the marines are still in Nicaragua. They are precedent and inertia. It has become a custom.

American investments in Nicaragua seem trifling to justify such continued garrisoning of the country with American fighting men, even if economic reasons could justify it. These investments would not support the marines if their incomes were devoted to it.

It is admitted that there is the site of the proposed sea-to-sea canal, which presumably will be built some day. But local disorders do not seem to be harming the site or carrying it away. Whenever the waterway becomes a distinct reality it can be built regardless of the fact that heretofore a few rebels had tramped over the site.

American officials have an excuse for the action. The Nicaragua government says it wants its marines kept there. Americans naturally inquire why U. S. marines should do that government's police work for it.

Apparently Sandino and his rebels are in arms because the marines are there, and they are there because the rebels are in arms. Sandino has sent word to Washington that they will disarm 24 hours after the U. S. state department announces the withdrawal of the marines. It might be sporting, if nothing more, to call the dare.

Examination Schedule First Semester, 1930-1931

Saturday, January 24, 8:00 A.M. to Saturday Noon, January 31, 1931 The regular program of class work will be suspended, and the following semester-examination program substituted for it. Classes will meet for examination in the rooms in which they have been regularly meeting (except classes in French 1 and 3, and speech 1, as shown at number below). The Program Committee directs the attention of both students and instructor and professors to the regulation that there is to be no deviation in the case of any examination, from this schedule—except as authorized by the Committee, on the student's written petition filed in ample time, supported by the recommendation of the department concerned—to provide relief from an excessive number of examinations within a single day. Deviations for the purpose of getting through earlier will not be permitted.

Classes (except in freshman English, first and second year French, and speech), (N.B. below, whose first meetings occur: Monday at 8, meet for examination Thursday, January 25, 10-12 Monday at 9, meet for examination Thursday, January 29, 8-10 Monday at 10, meet for examination Monday, January 26, 8-10 Monday at 11, meet for examination Tuesday, January 27, 10-12 Monday at 1, meet for examination Friday, January 30, 8-10 Monday at 2, meet for examination Saturday, January 31, 8-10 Monday at 3, meet for examination Saturday, January 31, 10-12 Tuesday at 8, meet for examination Friday, January 30, 10-12 Tuesday at 9, meet for examination Tuesday, January 27, 8-10 Tuesday at 10, meet for examination Saturday, January 24, 8-10 Tuesday at 11, meet for examination Monday, January 26, 2-4 Tuesday at 1, meet for examination Wednesday, January 25, 8-10 Tuesday at 2, meet for examination Thursday, January 29, 2-4 Tuesday at 3, meet for examination Saturday, January 24, 10-12 The first meeting of the class means the first lecture or recitation period in courses having both lectures and recitations, and laboratory periods; or, in case of courses involving only laboratory periods, the first clock-hour of the first weekly meeting. For example, chemistry 1B meets for lectures T Th at 11. The first meeting is, consequently, Tuesday at 11; and the class will meet for examination Monday, January 26, 2-4, according to the foregoing table. Again physics 125 meets twice each week, T F, for a three-hour laboratory exercise, 1-4. The period for examination is, therefore, Wednesday, January 28, 8-10.

"Odd" classes, whose first or only weekly meetings occur on Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays, or Saturdays; or which meet "as arranged"; will be assigned for examination at either one or another of the following three periods, as announced to each such class by the instructor in charge of the class:

- Monday, January 26-10-12 Wednesday, January 28-10-12 Tuesday, January 27-2-4

It should be borne in mind that there is possibility of announcing two or more "odd" classes for any one or more of these three periods available for "odd" classes. Therefore, in connection with any such announcement it would doubtless be well for the instructor making the announcement to ascertain whether any member of his class is already under appointment for examination in some other class for the proposed period. To be sure, it is possible to have examinations in more than one class at any of these times—if no student is a member of more than one of these classes.

According to one clause in the formal faculty action providing for a special semester examination program, "The instructor may use the examination period as he sees fit, provided he holds the class for the full period. He may have an oral or a written examination, or both, or neither. He may continue regular work or he may use the time for review, or for any phase of his work which may seem to him desirable at this time."

(Editor's note: The information referred to below was obtained from reputable sources, who have learned nothing since divulging it which changes the facts as they know them. The assertion was made originally as verified information, and without malice toward Mr. Cousins.) To the editor of The Daily Iowan: In your paper of last Sunday, Jan. 11, 1931, there was an article containing a statement that I "was found at home in an unconscious condition and was brought here against my will," which statement is absolutely untrue. Except when naturally sleeping, I have never been unconscious for a minute in my life. I have received several letters about it from people who feel trespassed and think I should correct it. I came here of my own free will, riding with Dr. Jenks of Tipton, Ia. Trusting you will make this correction, Robert G. Cousins

Explanation of Sunday's Cartoon

A Seal Sleeps at Intervals of 1-1 1/2 Minutes: According to observations of the authorities on natural history the daily occupation of the seal is divided between sleeping and procuring food. They huddle together in a drowsy condition for a great part of their time, both day and night. During their sleep the bodies of seals are continually undergoing various quivering and rolling motions, accompanied by twitchings of the paddles, and it has been found that they never actually sleep for more than a minute and a half at a time.

Registration for the Second Semester 1930-31

For students in the colleges of liberal arts, education, commerce, and the graduate college registration for the second semester will be conducted in two separate stages as follows: 1. Preparation of study-lists: Wednesday, Jan. 21, 8 a.m. to Friday, Jan. 23, 5 p.m. 2. The procuring of fee cards and paying of fees: Thursday, Jan. 23, 1 p.m. to Monday, Feb. 2, 5 p.m., excluding Sunday.

For students in the colleges of law, medicine, dentistry, pharmacy, and engineering these two stages will be combined and will not occur before Friday morning, Jan. 30. A little later notices respecting the registration of the students in these professional colleges will be published in The Daily Iowan and posted on the bulletin boards.

The procedure for students in the colleges of liberal arts, education, commerce, and the graduate college is:

- 1. Obtain registration materials (schedule of courses and all necessary registration blanks) at the registrar's office, room 1, university hall, Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 21-23, inclusive. 2. Following the directions given on the first four inside pages of the schedule of courses, and with the assistance of your advisers in their respective offices, arrange study-lists and obtain advisers' approval signatures. Fill the several registration coupons according to directions, as completely as possible. Preserve these carefully until the final stage of registration, which includes the payment of fees; 3. Students in the college of liberal arts who receive defer registration cards should fill all the blank space in all of the registration forms except the faces of coupons 1-5; defer the arrangements of their study-lists until after the outcomes of all their first semester examinations are learned in the offices of the deans of men and women. These defer registration cards will authorize the students receiving them to attend all of the second semester classes for which they believe they should register, for a period of time which will be clearly stated on each such defer registration card. This card should be shown to each instructor concerned so that he will understand that the student presenting it is entitled to attend the meetings of the class during the period specified, though not beyond that period. Such students should finally complete their registration through conferences with the dean of men (men) and the dean of women (women), who will sign the cards when the registration can be completed. A little later The Daily Iowan will publish further explicit directions and suggestions respecting the procedure in the final stage of registration, which includes the paying of fees. H. C. DORCAS, registrar.

CHILLS AND FEVER

AN IOWA PEPYS

Up and shoveling snow most of the morning. Wanted to ask the chemistry professor next door if he was shoveling hydrogen and oxygen atoms in the proportion of two to one or just plain snow like his neighbors, but didn't have ye nerve. While shoveling I did try to reduce the immortal "soul" to scientific terms but with very poor success. And so to dinner thinking that the worst feature of Iowa City's smoke menace is that it makes a nice white blanket of snow look like a fraternity house table cloth in no time at all. Noticed two Sigma Nus rolling a monstrous snow ball and three fair coednas wading out to President's point to get the view across the river in the snow storm. Pleased us to no end to discover that the esthetic is not entirely extinct.

Perusing the latest trade of the C. R. Police Gazette did come to the conclusion that what we need around here is a plain, simple "specialist."

Subscribed to the call of the cinema in the evening and witnessed "Free Love," ye moral of which was, "when friend wife gets some foolish ideas into her head just sock her on the 'kisser." Have been trying to sell that idea to husbands for years, but to little avail. Zuzu Pitts evidently is a reader of Chills and Fever for she did pronounce "isk" to El Toro's taste.

There were two historical Pages in town last week end and curiously enough they both held forth on the same subject, "war."

Kirby Page, world renowned pacifist, denounced war in no uncertain terms and he certainly has the right idea. Miss Anita Page appeared in a movie entitled "War Nurse." If we could feel sure that all nurses would be as charming as Miss Page, we would give Mr. Page the "razzberry" and march off to war tomorrow, single handed if necessary.

Demos Start Fireworks in Political Rally

Rank and File of Party Endorse Nominees for Ticket

By STAN WOODRING
City Democrats rallied to their standards last night but the stubbornness that never fails to characterize the Democratic donkey in political cartoons was absolutely absent as the members harmoniously recited their list of candidates in every city office for the primaries Feb. 23.

City Chairman Glenn Kenderdine presided over the rally of more than 60 party members and endorsements were made in every ward except the strong Republican second where a committee was chosen to select a candidate to oppose the present Republican, Jacob Van der Zee.

Joe Hubub, 302 E. Bloomington, was mentioned as possible candidate and a committee of William Hart Albert, Vost, and J. M. Otto was named to be certain that a candidate from this ward is on the ticket.

Two for Mayor
Mayor J. J. Carroll and Former County Attorney Edward O'Connor were backed in the mayoralty race as was Judge C. L. Zaiser for reelection on the police court bench. William J. Parizek, 817 Fairchild, was named to oppose E. B. Raymond, present office holder, for city treasurer.

William J. White will again be on Democrat lists for assessor while Harry Shulman, 946 Iowa avenue, for 25 years a local resident, but new on political tickets, will seek the park commissioner's office.

Three in Third
Mike McGinn, brother of former first ward Councilman Charles McGinn, will seek nomination in that ward while three names enter the third ward Democratic race. Leo Kohl, present councilman, reentered the race yesterday and Mrs. Anna Bittner, first woman to file, likewise seeks the nomination. Edward W. Sybil, received official recognition as a candidate from the same ward.

Two names are on the fourth ward list, those of Dan Barry, 1129 E. Washington, and Matt Mattes, 516 E. Burlington. Alderman Charles Regan has no Democratic competition in his ward. Lefroy Mercer, present council member, and the Rev. C. Rollin Scherck, received hearty response as candidates for the two alderman-at-large posts. Petitions for all but the candidates for aldermen in the wards must be filed by Friday.

By WILLIAM RUTLEDGE
Sinclair Lewis was regarded as the foremost prophet of a revolt in American letters against industrial society from the pulpit of the Unitarian church Sunday morning by the Rev. Rupert Holloway.

"We are in the grip of this monster called Business, which has usurped the place once held by democracy in the tradition of America. Babbitt shows us America making a god of business. Elmer Gantry shows us America making a business of God." The Nobel prize winner is the leader of a school of writers "carrying on the fight against inhuman values of our industrialized age." That is the meaning of Sinclair Lewis, the Rev. Mr. Holloway declared.

Sell Moral Culture
The line of this social revolt "runs through most of the contemporary American writers. Edgar Lee Masters in his spiritual census, Joseph Hergesheimer in his novel 'Cytherea,' Theodore Dreiser in all his works, Carl Sandburg in his social satires, Sherwood Anderson, Upton Sinclair, and many more are all uttering their gibes at the virtues and sins of an America that exists to sell morales as it sells real estate, to sell Christmas as it sells washing machines, to sell culture as it sells automobiles." The Babbitt author was proclaimed the spokesman of speechless multitudes. "Sinclair Lewis' voice is not his alone. The ideas of an age speak through him." "He is the projection of millions of brooding people in this country who strive to understand the life they are living in an industrial age and a machine-ridden life; and who hunger for significance, for beauty and peace and fulfillment, and have been frustrated in their restless groping."

America Self Conscious
Therein lies the explanation of Lewis' bound to world wide recognition. The Rev. Mr. Holloway asserted, "That is why the uncultivated folk and the intelligentsia unite in acclaiming him a vital ironist instead of a vicious iconoclast."

"Through these writers, he said, "we have come to realize more and more the sober truth regarding our civilization. It is overwhelmingly to the credit of Sinclair Lewis that he made America self conscious regarding the loss of soul under industrial rule. Never again can we rest in complacency. The leaven is working, and it was precisely because the leaven was at work that we produced the prophets of revolt in American literature."

The leaders of this literary insurrection against "the encroaching mechanistic tendencies of the age" are voices speaking their dismay at our civilized plight. That our social life is painfully humdrum, that we suffer from suppressed desires for a larger more humane kind of life, you learn from other literary prophets of the new America.

Critics in Revolt
"The obvious criticism is made that all these critics of life are in revolt against our national tradition of Puritan restraint, and that they advocate ineffective self expression. On that there is little doubt for the time worn guides to conduct—revelation, conscience, reason—have been buried up in the fires of social change. But the revolt derives from another source—it springs out of the utter conviction that life as we live is incredibly poor."

"First in his criticism of Lewis' books, the Rev. Mr. Holloway listed an admittance that "Lewis stays too much on the surface of things; there is no flood of passion let loose to such us into its current. There is no brooding mystery against which Babbitt stands out in his pitiful knowings. You never see 'Main Street' haunted by a beauty it has never felt."

Paints True Picture
"There is the noise, the hustle, the glare, beneath it is the helpless, hush, the spiritual stannage, the dimness and confusion." Democracy has come but enlightenment has failed. The gracious forms of justice, beauty, truth, the daring figures of freedom and love and wonder, do not tread these up-to-date streets and never enter the palatial homes. Here in America the old spiritual fires have gone out and the ashes of democracy warm nothing.

"The reason Lewis, with all his defects, stood out from the ranks of the writers of his age in eyes of so many people was that he spoke to them in the language and with the art they could understand. He translated life into comprehensible terms. That he did not achieve this end for all of us is no discredit to Mr. Lewis."

Blecha and Owens transfer company was awarded the verdict by Judge H. D. Evans yesterday in an action brought against it by the board of railroad commissioners of the State of Iowa. The company was accused in a hearing Dec. 27, 1930 of operating a trucking service between here and Cedar Rapids without paying the tax for motor carriers. A motion made by E. E. Collins for a new trial in his case against the First National bank of Iowa City, the Farmers' Loan and Trust company of Iowa City, W. J. McChesney, president and director of the banks, and Charles M. Dutcher, vice president and director of the banks was overruled by Judge H. D. Evans yesterday. Collins lost the verdict Dec. 30, 1930 in the hearing on his petition which asked judgment against the defendants, saying Dutcher and McChesney had represented him in such a way to a client as to cause the client to discharge him.

University High, St. Mary's Invade Foreign Court to Retrieve Defeats

Handymen go to Marion as 'Under Dogs'

Ed Fairchild's Return Bolsters U. High Defenses

The University high cage squad will journey to Marion tonight to make its fifth attempt to win a ball game. So far this season the Handymen have been beaten by a total of eight points in their first three games and only in the last one were they really outclassed.

Coach E. R. Handy continued to give his charges long sessions of practice on the fundamentals of the sport. Marion has a good team from all reports although it is a little erratic. The team is strong defensively and no large scores have been run up against it. Williams, at guard, is tall and a hard man to score on. Brooks and Curtis, center and forward, are the other outstanding men on the team.

Fairchild Returns
Ed Fairchild is back in the lineup of the Blue and White and should be able to stop a few of the Marion threats. He will work in conjunction with Dill, although Nicola may be given a chance as the result of his good playing against Williamsburg last Friday.

Positions on the forward wall are still a tossup between four players, McClintock, Meintzer, Foster, and Phillips who have all seen service and it is likely they will alternate again tonight. Lew will be pivot man.

Coach Not Optimistic
Coach Handy is not optimistic in regard to the outcome this evening but feels that the team has a chance. The attitude of the boys is that they must win this game.

Friday brings the next conference game for the Handymen when Monticello comes here and on next Tuesday St. Mary's challenges the Blue and White in U. high's second city series tilt.

QUAD SIDELINES

By "Mel"
With the first round robin played, quad hoopers will take a layoff until the beginning of the spring semester, when, on February 2, the section quintets will swing into action again.

The first half of the court tourney saw the section D heavyweights sweep through their opponents for three wins to lead the division. Section A, after losing its first game, came back to take the next two. If the A capers keep up their fight, they'll make plenty of trouble for the leaders.

The C lightweights played their opponents to a standstill, and now are the undisputed leaders of the lightweight division.

The field house will be available for practice the evening of January 22.

Sueppelmen Meet Cedar Rapids Five

St. Wenceslaus Outfit Ready for Locals Tonight

St. Mary's high meets two more tough opponents on the basketball court tonight and tomorrow night. Tonight the Ramblers journey to Cedar Rapids to engage the strong St. Wenceslaus outfit, while tomorrow evening St. Mary's of Waterloo comes here to perform. Both teams hold early season victories over the Sueppelmen, and the latter must show a distinct reversal of form if they are to break away from their losing habits.

St. Wenceslaus has a strong quintet with four veterans from last year. The returning lettermen are Lambert, forward; Wunderlich, center; and Byrnes and Dye, guards. The score of these two teams' previous encounter was 21 to 10.

Eleven Men Make Trip
Coach Francis Sueppel plans to take a squad of 11 men to Cedar Rapids. Those included will be forwards, Seaman, Grimm, Rittenmeyer, Griffin, and Drizhal; centers, Gualocher and Consensus; guards, Bradley, Morrison, Vogt, and Pooler. Carl Seeman and Gerald Pooler are new additions to the personnel of the Ramblers, and should aid them during the rest of the schedule. Seeman showed up especially well last year.

Gold Star on Waterloo Five
The game with Waterloo, which will be played in the Iowa City high gymnasium, should prove quite an attraction from several angles. Not only did the Ramblers play the Waterloo outfit on almost even terms during their previous encounter, which should ensure a good game, but also the upstate quintet brings with it Johnny Lasche, 15 year old runner-up in the state golf meet last year. The lad is said to be as adept in the art of putting the ball through the hoop, as he is at socking the pill straight down the fairway, and at sinking long puts.

Chick Megan Back in St. Pat's Lineup
Spirits rose with a bound at St. Pat's last night as Chick Megan, regular forward, who has been out since the holidays with an infected leg, returned to the squad. The veteran forward's presence is particularly welcome with six games looming ahead of the Irish in the next three weeks.

Gaylor and Kelly, co-mentors, fearful of overworking their squad in the face of the heavy schedule, limited the practice to drill in set-up shots and scoring plays, with very little scrimmage. The team is in excellent shape at present but according to Gaylor and Kelly, St. Mary's of Ottumwa, Mareno, and St. Pat's of Cedar Rapids will furnish their outfit with all the scrimmage necessary in the next eight days.

Dull's Return Boosts Old Gold Mat Stock; Coach Orders Rest

Wrestling Prospects Looked Considerably Brighter to Coach Mike Howard Last Night as Berton Dull, Speedy 145 Pounder Sophomore Went Through a Light Workout, Dull, who Sustained Severe Shoulder Injuries, Plans to Give the Arm a Tryout.

If it responds as it should, the Hawkeyes will be considerably stronger than with the present outfit. L. D. Weldon has been representing the Old Gold in that division thus far, but he lacks the experience to garner many points.

Coach Howard was well satisfied with the performance turned in by the grapplers in the Wisconsin meet. "They were up against a mighty good team," the coach said last night. "It was the little men that saved the day. Mueller, Peer and Amlic gave us the 3 to 0 lead that spurred the rest of the men on."

The wrestlers have been given orders to forget the mat game for the present and turn their entire attention to preparations for examinations.

Minnesota Holds Off Wisconsin Quintet to Win Fast Game

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 19 (AP)—Minnesota defeated Wisconsin, 28 to 26 in a Western conference basketball game tonight before 8,200 fans.

A vicious struggle which increased in hand and fast play as the contest wore found the Gophers repelling a last desperate assault of the Badgers to win. It was Minnesota's second triumph in three games and Wisconsin's third defeat in five games.

The teams, battling on even terms, reached the close of the first half tied with 10 points each.

Capt. Harry Schoening, Don Bondy and Mike Cleusak played brilliantly for Minnesota, with Paul and Nelson leading the Badgers.

Boyd Liddle Enters A.A.U. Swim Meet at Omaha Feb. 6-7

Boyd Liddle, one of the best swimmers Iowa ever claimed, and who holds four mid-west A.A.U. records together with as many for the Iowa pool, announced last night that he would enter the A.A.U. meet to be held at Creighton university, Omaha, Neb., Feb. 6 and 7.

Liddle has been working out regularly with the Iowa paddlers since before the holidays and expects to be in good shape for the meet.

He will be entered in seven events including the 220 yard free style, 300 yard individual medley, 220 yard breast stroke, 100 yard free style, 150 yard back stroke, 500 yard free style, and the low board diving event.

Liddle says that this will be the only meet he expects to enter this year and is therefore concentrating his efforts in order to make a good showing for himself. He will enter the contest unattached as he did last year.

Eleven Kentucky 4-H club boys and girls were awarded medals for outstanding work in raising meat animals.

Tri-City Five Retains Lead in Conference

Davenport kept its lead in the Mississippi Valley conference quite clean as they trounced on the highly touted Grant high team of Cedar Rapids Saturday night, 29-20. Some were of the opinion that Grant might take the Moon coached team down a notch, but last year's state champions won by an easy margin.

Dubuque kept up its basketball record by winning a close contest from Clinton, 19-15. Clinton, it seems, is slipping a trifle. Schwartz and Tracy, Dubuque forwards, continue to show great form and consistency at basket shooting. Peterson, forward, was Clinton's high point man in the Dubuque encounter.

Locals Upset Washington
Something in the nature of an upset was registered when Iowa City high went after Washington high of Cedar Rapids with a vengeance. Both teams had occupied the cellar undisturbed. However, the Little Hawks seemed to have something else on their mind. After the storm had passed, Iowa City was on the long end of a 30-13 count and Washington high journeyed back to the Parlor City still in the cellar.

Coch Rust's men appeared to be rather listless on the court and the Iowa City boys were playing greater basketball than was supposed they could, making it seem a somewhat lopsided contest. However, it is hoped that the Tigers will snap out of it before their next contest and Iowa City should play some real basketball now that they have broken their funk.

Teams Rest Until Jan. 30

Northwestern Five Trounces Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 19 (AP)—Northwestern increased its lead in the Big Ten basketball race here tonight by defeating Michigan 26 to 21.

The Purple gained a long lead in the first few minutes of the game and led 15 to 12 at half time.

Michigan gained the lead soon after the second half started, had a lead of four points at one time but were held without a score for the last 1-2 minutes of the game while Northwestern went on from a 21-all tie to finish with their 5 point lead.

The game had two scoring stars, Reiff for the visitors, and Daniels for Michigan. The tall sophomore forward of the Purple made 15 points while Daniels had 11.

Sportively Speaking

By Bill Rutledge

Mike Howard's delegation of grapplers have found the exit from the confines of defeat, into which they had been thrust in pre-season experting. They have found it in a balanced squad. No one star shines while the others wrestle in the background.

They're all stars from the 118 pound Basil Deegan, who proved his gameness by trying to take on, despite some cracked ribs, his Nebraska opponent, to the new heavyweight Weigle.

Since they mangled Wisconsin no one doubts their prowess. Collectively Mueller, Claude Peer, Paul Amlic, Pat Richter, and Captain Poyner got a toe hold on the Badger outfit and pinned it for a 15 to 11 verdict.

Wrestling, like boxing, satisfies the human interest in combat more than any other sport because of the individualism of the battles. In a wrestling meet as in a program of boxing one man is pitted against another. He wins or loses without any assistance from his teammates. They sit helplessly on the sidelines giving him their moral support.

That is the fundamental distinction between wrestling and boxing and the "game" sports such as football, basketball, and baseball. Personal strife makes the mat sport, to my mind, one of the most appealing forms of athletic competition.

George Hitchcock, Wisconsin wrestling mentor and chairman of the Big Ten Wrestling association, lauds the sport from the grappler's point of view.

"Wrestling," he says, "puts a premium on endurance, speed, balance, and leverage with weight. One can wrestle with great benefit from boyhood to old age. It is a game that can be done as lightly or as strenuously as desired and still bring into action all the muscles and joints of the body."

We won't see much of our prep teams this week, though they will be quite busy. Six games are on the calendar, but four of them are away from home.

The win-less University high five invades Marion tonight. Neighboring towns have strong teams. West Branch and Williamsburg put black marks on the Blue and White record, and Marion is picked to put on another tonight.

St. Mary's play twice in as many days' traveling to Cedar Rapids to face St. Wenceslaus tonight and entertaining St. Mary's of Waterloo here Wednesday evening. These foes will probably stretch the Ramblers' losses to 10 straight. Both have previously beaten them this season. Johnny Lasche, 15 year old golf

Swiss Speedster Arrives in Country

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—Dr. Paul Martin, the little Swiss surgeon who is one of the few runners to have beaten Ray Conger in the last few years, will arrive tomorrow on the liner Bremen to resume his medical studies in New York hospitals and take another turn at the boards.

He plans to enter the Newark A. C. games, Jan. 28, a meet in which Conger is also entered.

The doctor beat the former Iowa in the 1,000 yard run at the national championship in New York last year in 2:12.6.

star comes as the featured member of the Waterloo troupe.

St. Patrick's go to Ottumwa to tussle with the St. Mary's of that city tomorrow night. The Irish will be out to weld the seventh link in their chain of consecutive victories. They'll do it. There's no stopping of those Shamrocks.

"There may be managers of ball clubs who fear that the present hard times will reduce receipts next season, but it has been my experience that when the country is hard hit, baseball prospers," he said today.

"It is not affected by depression. A man will go to see a ball game just to get his mind off his troubles. The only thing that puts a crimp in baseball is war. This depression won't hurt receipts next season. Anyway, I look for times to be better, and when the season opens things, in my opinion, will be a little brighter."

Johnson said he did not approve of the practice of major league clubs maintaining "farms."

University Professors Meet
The American Association of University Professors will meet today at 6 o'clock at dinner in Iowa Union. Following, Prof. George W. Martin of the botany department, will report on the Cleveland meeting.

Snow Causes No Difficulties to Travelers

Six inches of snow Sunday morning did not interrupt the train schedules or cause the blocking of any roads in or around Iowa City. D. W. Crum, chamber of commerce secretary, said that although the snow had been removed from most of the roads and packed down on others, they are still slippery and dangerous.

Show was removed from the streets and sidewalks of the business district by the Iowa City street department Sunday and Monday.

The water content of the snowfall was exceptionally high. Sunday at 7 a. m. the snow measured 3.5 inches with 33 of water. At 7 p. m. there was an increase of 2 inches with 39 of water. Yesterday at 7 a. m. a 2.5 increase was measured with 43 of water.

The lowest temperature registered yesterday was 22, and the highest was 26.

HELP YOURSELF TO HAPPINESS

Thirteenth Instalment
(Synopsis of Preceding Instalments)
Anne Harkness is desperately trying to avoid being arrested on a charge of murder. She was in the studio of an artist, Steve Bernaberry, when he was killed by a model, Carlotta Pascoe, who told the police that Anne was the slayer. In desperation Anne flees. On a train she meets a young woman who says she is running away from her husband whom she married that morning. A wreck interrupts these confidences. Anne is injured and, when she regains consciousness, she is wearing the jewels and clothing of her train acquaintance. She refuses to give her name and is regarded as a victim of amnesia. The husband of her train acquaintance arrives and, seeing Anne with his wife's possessions, demands an explanation. Anne is again silent, and the man says he will hold her as a hostage until his wife returns. This seems to Anne a way out of some of her difficulties. Then he says that she will have to pose as his wife, but that since none of his friends or servants have seen his wife, this will not be difficult. Later she learns that the man is Peter Bernaberry, brother of the murdered artist, and that he had sworn to kill the woman who murdered Steve. Anne's injuries keep her in bed, but she manages to get an appeal for help to Chester Collins, a reporter. He answers that he will "pass by her window." Since Anne is in an apartment, she wonders how this can be done. However, he goes to the roof of the apartment house and lets down a slate on a string before Anne's window. She writes on it a request that he write Carlotta. Peter writes to Carlotta, just as he hauls up the slate, hits him a blow that leaves him senseless, and then robs him, to cover up the attack. Finally Collins comes to and reads the message, but it is not as Anne wrote it. Peter has substituted his own name for that of Carlotta.

It was strange that a family life based on so flimsy and unorthodox a foundation could proceed so smoothly as did that of the pseudo-Peter Bernaberry's during the next ten days or so.

Anne was getting steadily better and could be around more and more. The fact that she had transferred the burden of worrying about Carlotta to young Mr. Collins' shoulders made her feel more at ease. And nothing came of the finger-print message, nothing that she knew of anyway, so she relaxed the tension over that matter, too.

She had a pair of crutches but Peter never let her use them when he was at home.

"The very sight of them gives me the creeps," he said. "My mother had to use them all during the last years of her life. So you won't mind if I carry you down to dinner, will you?"

Far from minding it, Anne found that she looked forward to it. It was so hard to tell whether he was being gentle or merely forbearing that there was a zest in putting the problem to the test.

Sometimes he regarded her with a chill speculation that made her uneasy and almost forced her to scream and to try to tear away a veil of misapprehension that still persisted before his eyes.

Anne knew from the fact that she was still constantly attended either by Nurse Bingham or Julie that she was really a sort of a prisoner—at least, as far as individual effort was concerned.

Because she did not want to force a situation that might prove embarrassing to herself as well as to the hired spies, Anne never gave them the least trouble. There was really nothing she could do until the day arrived when she could make active use of freedom after she got it. There would have to be a swift campaign against Carlotta which could be completed during the very short time that would doubtless elapse between her escapes from Peter's private surveillance until the police could clap her into a real jail on the charge of murder.

Anne knew that she must enter upon the search for Carlotta in much the frame of mind in which an aviator jumps clear of his plane with a parachute on his back. There would be a few sickening moments which might become eternity, if the rip-cord failed to work.

She hugged closely to her breast the comforting thought that Chester Collins was dogging the footsteps of the wayward Carlotta and would be able to lead her to her as soon as the moment for action arrived. That would save a lot of valuable time, she thought, just when every second would have to count. All she would have to do would be to get in touch with Collins and he could tell her immediately where to find the key to the complete solution of her problems. Well, perhaps not the complete solution because that would include the return of her train acquaintance to take up the abandoned personality and duties of Mrs. Peter Bernaberry. But Anne was not sure that being Mrs. Bernaberry was a very serious or annoying problem. It was dangerous in a way, and exciting, but the dangers and excitement were of an interesting kind. She had an idea that life would be very dull without them.

Sometimes Inspector Lavin would drop in on them, Peter and Anne—usually when off duty.

"Steve was my best friend," he explained simply, "and it's pleasant to know his kin. You, Peter, are much like him, like without any definite resemblance at all, while you, Mrs. Bernaberry, are almost exactly the kind of a woman he was always talking about but never could find. Anne rather wished that in the intimacy which had grown up she might also be admitted to the friendliness of first name greeting. But it was obviously impossible for her to tell the police inspector to call her Anne and the real Mrs. Bernaberry's name was Marqua and she could never think of herself as that. Besides it might have aroused an unpleasant reaction in Peter.

Sometimes Anne would find Lavin studying her closely.

"I'm trying to think where I saw you before. It sticks me and I don't like it. No good cop should forget a face, but I've surely got a fog in my mind about yours."

The men would naturally discuss the tragedy and the progress which the police were making toward finding the missing suspect.

"Try not to be too impatient, Peter," Lavin admonished. "Somebody will turn her up when you least expect it."

"Had I better increase the reward?"

"No. Not if you want to find her. Offered five thousand the way you did has put every amateur in the country on the trail and they've gummed up the work of the regular police something scandalous. I'll bet there's been over five hundred suspects arrested, some of 'em as far away as Seattle. It costs money to identify 'em when they're that far off."

"But that's about how far off this girl is," argued Peter.

"Don't you think it," Lavin retorted. "My guess is that she's right here in New York. She was born here, you know, and she's never been anywhere else. She'd be a hick in any other town and they'd spot her in a minute. About two-thirds of police work is just plain patience—being there when the rat sticks his whiskers out of the hole. You mark my words, that Harkness girl is right here under our noses somewhere and some day she's going to make a mistake. It only takes one mistake to land a crook in the chair. And even women go the chair nowadays. You can bet she knows that, too, and that the picture of it ain't any too good even in her pleasantest nightmares."

Anne schooled herself to listen to talk like that without turning a hair. She even took part in the discussion herself. It seemed the natural thing to do.

It was because Anne realized perfectly that her own interest demanded that she stay quietly out of public contact that she did not insist on dismissing the nurse and begin tending for herself, even after she and every one knew that she was perfectly capable of doing so.

This was a great relief to Peter who had been wondering what he could do to keep Anne from leaving the premises after she was able to walk. As long as she was ill, he could explain to all and sundry that his wife was not yet receiving visitors. Fortunately the real Mrs. Bernaberry—Marqua—was a California girl, and her nearest friends and relatives had not bothered any so far.

With one notable exception.

The exception was a young man who said he was Marqua's brother. His appearance quite bore out the claim to relationship. He was blond, too, but not so sleek as Marqua. On his forehead his hair had a tinge of red in it and was unruly. Perhaps it had once been curly and he was teaching it to be different. At any rate, it always looked as if despairing hands had been recently run through it. That was not far from the truth either. The affair of the moment apparently always loomed large to Roger Macklivalne and he was constantly meeting up with some situation that he had to ruffle his hair about. This is doubtless good for the scalp; Roger's tresses were very abundant.

His physical welfare otherwise had also evidently been excellent planned and unsparingly carried out. His proportions were those of right guard on any all-American eleven during the last few years and he handled his rather large physique with ingenuous confidence.

Roger's face had the same permanent discontent that characterized his sister's. This was the discontent of the idealist who falls to find anything that quite comes up to what he expects. It is not exactly a popular discontent such as greedy people feel at not having obtained everything they want. It is rather a feeling of disappointment in God and nature at having done so poorly with the excellent opportunities and materials at hand. And people of that type—the Irish temperament in general—never do much themselves about righting the defects, which they so passionately point out.

His first meeting with Peter was not exactly propitious. He came to the office which Peter maintained in the trading district. That number was in the telephone book. The apartment was a recent addition to Peter's addresses and, besides, the telephone was not and never would be listed for publication.

"You're the Croesus who married Marqua, are you?" he began. Apparently he had no intention of being pleasant. "I want to see her."

"Sorry," returned Peter, though he wasn't, "but you can't."

"Can't? Why not?"

"She has been injured in a railway accident and is not receiving anyone."

"That doesn't apply to her brother."

"It does, though."

"Why?"

"Well, for one thing, the doctor says so. If you want any more reasons," the last Peter enunciated very slowly and distinctly, "they are all because I say so."

This seemed plentifully definite, nothing in the least ambiguous about it.

Nor was there anything to be de-

Behind The Scenes IN HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL
HOLLYWOOD, Cal. —Broadway may see Lupe Velez in the new Al Jolson stage show. The diminutive Mexican star reveals she has a telegraphic offer from Joseph M. Schenck to play the feminine lead, which, incidentally, is the first rumor reaching these parts that Schenck is interested financially in the production. It may be that Lupe will not be able to accept the Jolson engagement, as she has contracted to appear in Cecil B. De Mille's production of "The Squaw Man," at M. G. M. Both the picture and the rehearsals for the musical start next month, it is said. There also is the matter of Lupe's Universal contract, which comes up for renewal in a short time. In addition to these possibilities, Lupe tells of an offer to tour South America, but she is disposed against it because of the distance from Hollywood—Hollywood, I suspect, meaning the tall and attentive Gary Cooper.
