Men Behind the News

Charlie Chaplin Heads Paderewski's List of Movie Favorites

Editor's Note: This is another of a series of stories dealing with the little-known side of famous personalities who figure in the news. Tomorrow Hubbard Keavy, one of the Associated Press correspondents in Hollywood, will write on Greta Garbo.

By LEONARD S. KIMBALL

(Copyright 1931, Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, May 14 (AP)—Millions have thrilled to the genius of Paderewski, but when the old master of the piano wants entertainment he goes to a good movie. And to him a good movie is not one of a heavy drama. He likes a hearty laugh, so comedies are his favorites, particularly those of Charlie Chaplin. Now and then he likes a western picture, not the dime novel sort, and occasionally he selects a war picture.

35,000 Miles in 6 Months
Last November, Paderewski passed his seventieth birthday, yet he appeared this season on one of the largest concert programs he has ever attempted. He traveled 35,000 miles in his private car in six months, making 80 concert appearances.

His energy is the marvel of those who know him. He retains it by the most meticulous care of his health. The piano is virtually his only exercise and those who doubt that playing the piano is exercise would be amazed if they could see the muscular development of his arms and shoulders.

Genius No Primrose Path
Paderewski is a believer in the precept that genius is founded on hard work. "When a man stops working, he begins to fade away," is a frequent remark. He practices from three to five hours a day with the same vigor that he puts into his concerts.

Contrary to popular belief, he does not have what some would call "musical hands." His fingers are short; some artists would describe them as stubby. Nor are they insured for the fabulous sums frequently reported. He carries a moderate amount of insurance on them.

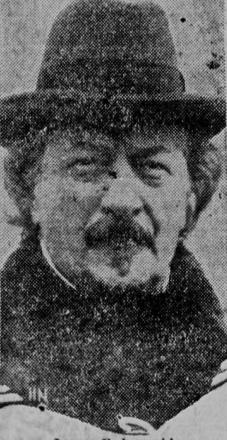

But the greatest joy of his life did not come from the piano. When Poland, his native country, won her independence, the highest ambition of his life was realized. In the historic part he took in that victory, he spent his entire fortune. But money is only a means to an end with Paderewski and the moderate income he now has fully satisfies him.

He has an unbounded admiration for Woodrow Wilson and this summer at Poznan, where he made his political debut, a great statue in bronze, done by the sculptor, Gutzon Borglum, will be dedicated as the gift of the pianist to Poland that his homeland may remember "the great American."

His Staff—His "Family"
His staff on his private railroad car affectionately call him "the boss"; to his face, "Mr. Paderewski." When dinner time comes, they must all be at the table promptly to eat with him. He regards them as his family.

This year, however, it is not like the family of old. For the first time in 32 years, Mrs. Paderewski is not with them. She is ill at their estate in Switzerland and there is an expression of sadness about the old master.

Britain Sets Tentative Date for Conference

London Discussion May Be Attended by India Chief

SIMLA, India, May 14 (AP)—Viceroy Lord Willingdon, responding to Ramsay MacDonald's request that he terminate the continuing uncertainty in Indian affairs, today convened a miniature round table conference which provisionally agreed upon a date in early November for the convening of the second round table conference on Indian affairs in London.

While the white-robed and stately Mr. Gandhi held an umbrella over him, Gandhi addressed a large gathering of nationalists in the heavy rain, plainly indicating his intention to go to London for the round-table conference.

"If as a result of that conference," the mahatma said, "we can not get self-government, it is our ill luck."

"If our efforts for a permanent settlement fail, we must be ready for a fresh struggle against England."

He pleaded with all the people of India, of whatever race or religion, to unite in a unanimous demand for self-government, declaring that otherwise his visit to London would be useless.

Pope to Broadcast Address for Labor Groups Anniversary

VATICAN CITY, May 14 (AP)—Arrangements for the radio broadcast of the address of Pope Pius XI tomorrow were completed tonight.

The pope's address, which will be directed to the 10,000 workers who are here celebrating the anniversary of the labor encyclical, "rerum novarum," of Pope Leo XIII, will also be broadcast to most of the civilized world.

The pope is expected to begin to speak at 6:30 p.m. (10:30 a.m. C.S.T.). He will speak 10 minutes in each of three languages, Italian, French and German.

The address will be rebroadcast in the United States and other countries, and following upon the pope's address an English translation and description of the scene will be given by Msgr. Francis Spellman of Whitman, Mass.

Army Air Force Makes Final Dash in Huge War Maneuvers

DAYTON, O., May 14 (AP)—Favored by ideal flying conditions in all parts of the country except the east, the army air force tonight was poised for its final hop to Dayton and a war with an unnamed foe.

Not all the planes which started the trek for Wright field were ready to make the final dash, scattered groups having landed here during the day. The first contingents to arrive were national guard and observation planes which will form the 22nd provisional observation group. It will be the first time the national guardsmen have been called to cooperate with the regular army on such a large scale.

36 Pursuit Planes
While most of the planes made their scheduled advances on Dayton today, 36 pursuit planes from Mitchell field were held up by bad weather. The intrepid army flyers of the Mitchell field group made one attempt to get away, but were forced to return because of rain and a low ceiling.

With all of the planes due here not later than noon Friday, staff officers who will direct the huge war maneuvers which include the defense of Chicago, Detroit and the east coast, were making detailed plans for the activities.

Kentucky Jury Charges Five With Murder

Mine Operators Report Trend Towards Normal

HARLAN, Ky., May 14 (AP)—Charged with murder in connection with the gun battle last week that cost the lives of four men, William H. Hightower, president of the Everts coal miners union, was arrested late today at Everts and brought to jail here.

He was the fifth man to be charged with murder in connection with the battle. All were indicted by the special grand jury investigating disorders which caused 400 state troops to be sent here.

Hightower was arrested when he went to Everts to try to arrange bond for the other four men. His arrest caused considerable excitement, but no disorder in Everts, where the labor disorders have centered. Yesterday Hightower issued a statement criticizing Governor Flem D. Sampson and the troops' program. He accused the governor of having failed to keep a promise made when the troops were sent here that strikebreakers would not be allowed to enter the coal fields. He claimed the troops are partial to the mine operators.

He also said that unless aid was received soon, unemployed miners would begin to "help themselves."

Mine operators tonight reported a definite trend towards resumption of normal operations.

Railway Workers Riot After Election in Egypt; 18 Dead

CAIRO, Egypt, May 14 (AP)—Coincident with parliamentary elections, striking railway workers rioted today and engaged in clashes with troops in the shops and streets.

The government reports said that five rioters were killed and 40 injured but the first aid society said 18 were dead and 147 were hurt. Between 4,000 and 5,000 workmen went on strike last night and started disturbances which resulted in today's sanguinary conflict.

Troops apparently had the situation in hand tonight but the mobs still were threatening.

Jury Fails to Identify DAVENPORT (AP)—A coroner's jury failed to determine identity of the driver of a car in which Harry Wilkes was riding when the latter and Mrs. Florence Sanders were killed in a collision. Mrs. Sanders was riding with Elmer Kundert, who severely injured.

Charles H. Johnston to Serve as Business Manager

After nearly five hours of deliberation, John W. Henderson, 33 of Des Moines, was elected editor of The Daily Iowan by the board of trustees of Student Publications, Inc., at a meeting held yesterday.

Charles H. Johnston, 31 of Birmingham, was elected business manager. Henderson has served as managing editor of The Daily Iowan since June 1, 1930, and was previously assistant campus editor, business associate, night editor, and reporter.

He is affiliated with Delta Upsilon social fraternity, and Sigma Delta Chi, honorary journalistic fraternity.

Johnston has been a member of the business staff of The Daily Iowan since last September, acting in the capacity of classified advertising manager. He is a member of Acacia fraternity.

Senate Accuses Hoover of Failure to Lower Tariffs

WASHINGTON, May 14 (AP)—Senator Hull said tonight substantial lowering of Hawley-Smoot tariff rates would require 125 years at the rate of revision previously employed by the Hoover administration through its flexible tariff powers.

The Tennessee, in a statement through the Democratic national committee, said it "is now patent" the president in conjunction with the tariff commission will not lower rates appreciably, and added:

"The flexible provision instead of 'taking the tariff out of politics' only involved it all the more in politics, especially during the meeting of the U. S. chamber of commerce and international chamber of commerce."

Hull said the flexible provision apparently excites "deep seated fear among so-called business leaders" and that presumably the two meetings "were possessed of the constant apprehension they might incur the to the units moving out on Jessup parade for the Governor's day program. It is serious discussion of national problems were undertaken."

R.O.T.C. Students to Prepare for Review on Governor's Day

Regularly scheduled classes in military training will not meet today or tomorrow in order that the R.O.T.C. cadets may have opportunity to get their uniforms in shape for the Governor's day review tomorrow afternoon.

Assembly for the infantry and engineer companies will be sounded at 1:30 p.m. in the armory, preparatory to the units moving out on Jessup parade for the Governor's day program. Regular classes will be held next week for the first and second year basic coursesmen to clean their rifles and turn in their uniforms.

What, No Skates? And With Walking So Crowded, Too

MCGREGOR, May 14 (AP)—The local "boy friends" were resting today after sultry action to the words of "walking my baby back home."

It was "Old Man River" himself that left them stranded one and one half not so little miles from home at the Marquette Docks at midnight when the rudder of the excursion steamer J. S., on which they spent an evening of dancing, broke.

Other groups of excursionists from Prairie Du Chien and Marquette had been on the trip, but they were brought home before the rudder broke.

At 2:30 this morning the rudder had not been fixed and the boys and girls from McGregor, about 600 of them, set out over the railroad right of way for at "three o'clock in the morning" they were still on their way. And as dawn was breaking they straggled home to anxious parents.

Plane Wreck Causes Delay in Jap's Flight

TOKYO, May 14 (AP)—Self Yoshihara, attempting a flight from Tokyo to San Francisco, damaged his airplane today, and the flight will be delayed.

Fog, which concealed the volcanic peaks of the Kurile islands and made flying over the sea hazardous, forced the young Japanese to descend off the coast of Shimushiro island while flying from Shana toward Muroran bay.

For four hours Yoshihara drifted on the ocean and when aviator and seaplane were picked up by the steamer Hokuho Maru, the plane was found to be badly damaged.

The Hochi Shinbun, Tokyo daily newspaper, sponsoring the flight, radioed Yoshihara to remain at Nemuro, northern Hokkaido, until the arrival of a new plane in which to continue the flight. The pilot has flown 835 miles from Tokyo since May 4.

F. Murphy Opposes Economy Program

WASHINGTON, May 14 (AP)—Returning today from a tour of Indian reservations and reclamation projects in southwestern states, Representative Frank Murphy of Ohio said he did not believe much money could be saved in the operation of the interior department under President Hoover's economy program.

Murphy, who probably will be chairman of the interior subcommittee of the house appropriations committee if the Republicans organize the house, promised the cooperation of his committee, however, in the president's program.

W. Strong Entrusts Stock to Executors

CHICAGO, May 14 (AP)—Disposition of the late Walter Anson Strong's controlling majority of stock in the Chicago Daily News was entrusted by the publisher's will to the discretion of his three executors.

The will was filed for probate today, leaving one third of his estate to Mrs. Strong and the remainder in trust to the widow and children. The estate was valued at not to exceed $2,500,000.

Son Born to Hess Family
Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hess became the parents, May 5, of an eight and one-half pound boy, Herbert R. Hess, Jr.

H. G. Langdon Will Talk for College Men

Education Association to Hear Student From Iowa

Representative of the men of all American colleges and universities, Herschel G. Langdon of the University of Iowa will speak June 29 at the convention of the National Education Association in Los Angeles.

Choice of the University of Iowa to furnish the man speaker for the program, "Youth Views Education," was made by officials of the association, headed by President Willis A. Sutton of Atlanta, Ga.

Langdon, whose home is in Gilmore City, will be one of four representatives on the program, the other being a high school girl from San Francisco, a high school boy from Memphis, Tenn., and a college girl from Goucher college of Maryland.

Achieves High Record
The Iowa man is an example of a student who can work for self-support and yet make a distinguished record in scholastic and extracurricular activities. Langdon operated a linotype machine to earn money while in the university, yet so high was his classroom average that he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary fraternity.

Three years ago he won the championship of the Northern Oratorical league, and in 1929 was a member of the Iowa debate team which toured England for a series of arguments with British universities. He also spoke in numerous middle western intercollegiate debates.

To Receive Law Degree
At the June commencement, Langdon will receive the juris doctor degree in law as one of the finest scholars in the college. He was awarded the bachelor of arts degree in June, 1930.

Among the other activities and organizations of Langdon are: A. F. L., senior men's honorary organization; Delta Sigma Rho, honorary forensic fraternity; Phi Delta Phi, law fraternity, and Acacia, social fraternity. During the last year he has served as case editor of the Iowa Law Review.

Donham Advocates Large Scale Work for Unemployment

ST. LOUIS, May 14 (AP)—Dean Wallace B. Donham, of the Harvard graduate school of business administration in an address here today advocated large scale government work to relieve unemployment and prevent adoption of the dole system.

Speaking before the Associated Harvard clubs and the St. Louis chamber of commerce, Dean Donham said society must provide "either work or doles."

Business, he said, is powerless to cure the unemployment situation quickly.

"Capitalism is on trial," he said, "and on the issue of this trial may depend the whole future of our western civilization."

Mrs. Hoover Speaks Words of Dedication

WASHINGTON, May 14 (AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover today dedicated the north porch of the Washington cathedral.

In a ceremony broadcast over the net work of the National Broadcasting company, Mrs. Hoover laid the first stone and said:

"In the name of the national women's committee of the Washington cathedral, I declare the first stone of the north porch duly and truly laid. May God bless us and prosper the work of our hands upon it."

Boy Unloads Wilkin's Ten Tons of Victuals on Dock

NEW LONDON, Conn., May 14 (AP)—The grocer's boy rang Sir Hubert Wilkin's bell today and shouted:

"Here's them victuals you ordered. All ten tons of them, where do you want 'em put?"

"Oh, just drop them on the dock; we'll take care of them," was the answer.

So the grocer's boy and dozens of assistants unloaded on a pier near the submarine Nautilus many sealed containers.

Briand Urges Pan-European Organization

Commission Meets at Geneva to Study Proposals

GENEVA, May 14 (AP)—Fresh from his defeat in the presidential election at home, Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, tomorrow will resume his efforts to lead European statesmen toward his ideal of a European economic union.

On the eve of the reconvening of the commission for studying the proposed Pan-European union, observers were of the opinion that the veteran French minister faces a formidable task.

Relations Unimproved
It is pointed out that relations between European governments have in no wise improved since the commission last met in January. In addition the economic depression is still being felt as it was four months ago.

The much discussed proposal for an Austro-German customs accord is one of the important matters to come before the meeting. Dr. Julius Curtius, German foreign minister, will present his country's side of the project.

German Proposal
It is understood the German delegation reached Geneva with plans to push their proposal vigorously and willing to see the issue placed before the permanent court at the Hague.

However, the general economic problem is likely to occupy more of the commission's time than the Austro-German matter. The British are understood to be prepared to emphasize the need for concerted relief measures and a delegation from soviet Russia is coming to participate in this part of the discussions.

Maxim Litvinoff, soviet foreign minister, and his Russian delegation are expected here Saturday. They will not participate in the first part of the discussions which will deal with the constitution, organization and methods of work of the commission. However, they will have time for the debate on the European economic situation.

Accident Fatal to Lintz of Richmond

GRANDVIEW, May 14 (AP)—Edwin Lintz of Richmond, Ia., was killed in an automobile accident near here today.

Week's Riots End; Cabinet Gets Control

King's Summer Palace Seized; Valued at $750,000

MADRID, May 14 (AP)—The government is "highly pleased" with the extent to which order has been restored in Spain following upon the week's riots, Minister of Interior Maura announced tonight and the cabinet has decided it will not be necessary to meet again until Monday.

A long cabinet session was held tonight. A commission was named to study the Spanish agricultural problem, including the matter of the cultivation of the large estates which are now untilled.

Revise Navy List
As an economy measure all admirals and the captain general were eliminated from the navy list and it was announced they would probably be retired or transferred to other posts.

The summer palace of former King Alfonso at San Sebastian was formally seized by the government tonight, following upon the decision last night to impound his possessions pending an investigation. It was estimated to be worth approximately $750,000 and was a gift from the people of San Sebastian to the former king's mother, Queen Maria Christina.

$2,000,000 Damage
Damage to church property at eight of the principal riot centers outside Madrid was estimated tonight at approximately $2,000,000.

The harassed Republican cabinet met in a lengthy session tonight to consider means of preventing a recurrence of the disorders and incendiarism which have terrorized Spain for four days and to determine the punishment of the guilty.

The outbreaks apparently have subsided. Catholics returned to their churches today for services commemorating the ascension of the Savior, one of the most important observances on the Catholic calendar and a national holiday. Business and industry of every kind were at a standstill. All large churches in cities and towns were packed with worshippers.

Army Remains Loyal
The government sees one most agreeable feature in the situation—the army remained loyal to the republic. For the first time the government has confidence of military support. The troops obeyed the republic's orders implicitly.

Isolated instances of looting and the destruction of church property occurred today, but otherwise the operation of martial law seems to have restored order. Many arrests continued among monarchists, communists and hoodlum elements. Fires continued burning or smoldering in some places.

Abandon Monasteries
Many, perhaps most of Spain's nearly 5,000 convents and monasteries have been abandoned or are being abandoned by monks and nuns. They have taken refuge in private homes and most of them refused to return even when local authorities have guaranteed their safety.

In such cases, provincial officials have placed government seals on the closed doors, established guards, and appealed to the people to respect the unoccupied property. Some think the clerics will return soon.

Blame Monarchists
President Alcalá Zamora told the press today he believed the disturbances were "coincidences" between monarchists and socialists, he had no proof, he said, but he was certain both the monarchists and extreme lefts wanted to discredit the republic and took advantage of the situation in recent days to do so.

Asked why the fires were not prevented by authorities, he said:

"The principal reason was the surprise of the thing, complicated by the fact that there are so many convents. It would have required an entire army to watch every church building."

Fire Force Inadequate
As to why the fires were not extinguished once they were started, he said:

"That was not easy. Everything was a surprise. As soon as the mob started one fire it went somewhere else and started another. Therefore the fire department force was insufficient. There was negligence by some authorities. They will be punished."

President Alcalá declined to discuss the government's plan to prosecute former King Alfonso except to say the attorney general was investigating whether Alfonso was connected with recent monarchist movements which officials believe led to the outbreaks.

And you owe it to yourself to take advantage of this unusual opportunity to learn, at first hand, the correct ways and means to beauty as well as the correct make-up to enhance the beauty that is naturally yours.

It's scientific—this advice—and it is given you gladly, freely, for the asking—and for as long an interview as you require.

Student Union Board Plans New Library

500 Books to Appear in Collection on Sun Porch

A library at Iowa Union is being planned to provide recreational reading for students. The student union board in cooperation with the library committee, composed of John Potter, D. B. of Morning Sun, chairman; Prof. Milton E. Lord, director of university libraries, and Catharine Wright, G. of Des Moines, is working on the plans.

A portion of the sun porch is being partitioned off to make a reading room free from noise. Iowa Union is planning on furnishing the room with comfortable chairs and lamps. The student union board is contributing a fund to make it possible to keep the library open under supervision of an average of 13 hours daily.

Incorporate 500 Books
The space available at Iowa Union permits only 500 books to be incorporated into the collection. Of the books that will constitute the original group, only those will be retained which prove their value. The remainder will be replaced from time to time by other books.

The choice of copies to be placed on the shelves is not being made with a view to constituting a collection of the best books, but to include books upon the basis of whether or not they will be read. From a suggestive list of 1,200 titles, professors and graduate students are helping to advise as to which books will prove the most beneficial.

Fiction Included
The collection will be composed of fiction, short stories, essays, and criticism, plus poetry made up of anthologies, individual poets, fairy tales, myths and folk lore, dramas, philosophy, psychology, religion, economics, sociology, political science, education, fine arts, history, biography, science, travel, sports, humor and satire, and children's books. The contents will include a great deal of pictures.

All freshman speech students may attend the dinner and the contests afterwards, Harry G. Barnes of the speech department, who is in charge of the program, said yesterday.

Four contests will be held in different places immediately after the dinner. Eight students are entered in the reading contest, nine in the speaking contest, and eleven are in the four-crews in the play contest. Two teams will debate.

These entrants are survivors of 200 students chosen from 1,000 freshman speech students to participate in section competitions.

Review of Berkeley Square

By RICHARD ZINSER
Ghosts from the eighteenth century lived, loved and hated as they haunted the stage of the university theater last night and Wednesday night during the current production by the university players.

With their usual audacity, the players gave John Calderston's romantic comedy, "Berkeley Square," its first amateur production. With the rapid transitions in time and characterization but without the aid of the usual change of setting, "Berkeley Square" brought out some of the best acting and directing of the year.

Heien Hansen, head of the costume crew, and Lucy Barton of the theater staff deserve a large share of the praise for their practically faultless costuming of the production. The cast also proved equal to the yards upon yards of silk and lace, hoops, knee breeches, and snuff boxes of Queen Anne's day. Each character wore his or her costume with a professional nonchalance that bespoke more than one costume rehearsal.

Thorsen Credited
D. Russell Thorsen was hard pressed at times to maintain a faithful characterization of Peter Standish, a modern young American who suddenly finds himself living in the London of 1784 among his ancestors who he has assiduously read about and worshipped. Thorsen, however, handled the transitions of the character admirably and may be credited with a performance of the most difficult role of the season.

Feminine honors were divided between Priscilla J. Morrison and Evelyn R. Bowman as the Misses Pettigrew. Both played with their usual ease and understanding. Throughout the play they maintained the necessary contrast between the characters of the two sisters, one loving and understanding their course.

Lee Consistent
Warren Lee gave his usual consistent performance in the part of Mr. Thristle, manipulating his snuff box in the best manner of the day. Always adept with comedy lines, he made the most of the dry humor of his gentle English character.

Edward H. Kyvig as Major Clinton wore a scarlet uniform with made up for a shortage of histrionic ability. Virginia Wingert was perfectly at home as the Duchess of Devonshire, acting in her usual accomplished manner but occasionally sacrificing clear enunciation for manner in her delivery of lines.

Richard Maibaum, always a forceful actor, breezed on and off as the inebrated Duke of Cumberland adding the alcoholic touch to the Pettigrew's ball. Marguerite Rehder and Irwin Moore had minor roles as Miss Barrymore and Lord Stanley.

1928 Scenes
In the 1928 scenes Cora Jensen appeared as Mrs. Barwick, a housekeeper. Aurin Lee Hunt as the ambassador gave a sympathetic enactment of the role but lacked the air of a diplomatic statesman. Gwen Minish played the part of Marjorie Frant the fiancée of Peter Standish.

The ramifications of plot and character found in Calderston's fanciful piece taxed the directorial abilities of Herbert Butterfield who did remarkably well with the unique problems confronted in a play such as "Berkeley Square."

Homeboy Unsung

Seven cities warr'd for Homer being dead, Who living had no roof to shroud his head. —Heywood.

CHARLES Spencer Chaplin, dean of American cinema comedians, has given his opinion of the English public. He believes them "The biggest hypocrites in the world" and says they love only wealth and fame, caring for nothing but the material things in life.

Chaplin's success has been phenomenal and is well known; he raised slapstick comedy to new heights and became rich and famous almost overnight.

Realizing the futility of even succeeding there, he embarked one day on a boat to the United States. For awhile he played in cheap burlesque in New York city, but he tired of that and hearing of a new industry in California, moving pictures, he entrained for Los Angeles and upon arriving sold himself as a comedian to a pioneer picture concern.

Chaplin's success has been phenomenal and is well known; he raised slapstick comedy to new heights and became rich and famous almost overnight.

To popularize his latest picture he went abroad and included England in his itinerary. Here he was welcomed with cheers of acclaim and festivity and pompous displays were prepared.

Chaplin was impressed, but first and last he is an honest man. He saw the change, the coldness turned to effusive delight, the cold shoulder become a warm welcoming bosom, and he saw his people for the first time as they really were.

For Mass Production

TABLET above the main entrance to the office building and laboratories of the Ford Motor company, at Dearborn, Mich., bears the following inscription: "Mankind passes from the old to the new on a human bridge formed by those who labor in three principal arts—Agriculture, Manufacturing, and Transportation."

The Ford Motor company is the greatest individual enterprise in the nation's newest and most dynamic industry, successfully pitting the gas engine and its accoutrements against trotters, heels and ox-teams and eagle wings.

When Ford was busy hiring new engineers to help him build his new car he threw thousands of his workers out of work for more than a year. He provided no way for them to make a living.

That mass production is a beneficial thing there is no doubt. Nevertheless it has created a greater problem in unemployment than the country has ever seen.

dustries have not yet worked out the problem when it comes to lay-off. What happened at the Ford plants and to the Ford workers was packed with meaning as to how much security, humanly speaking, we have contrived in our industrial civilization; and, more especially, how precarious mass production proves to be as a basis for livelihood.

If mankind has passed from the old to the new as the tablet above Ford's doorway states and he finds that in the new he is no better off, perhaps worse, than he was before, why should he stay in the new? Why not go back to the old or find some other method. Must all human suffering be endured just for the sake of transportation?

Seasonal and cyclical unemployment are said to be part of our inevitable social system and is being slowly remedied. But to throw a nation into such a condition just for the sake of some few individuals' fancies is a gross injustice.

A New Word

ARE you a "booksneaf"? If so, beware, some one is liable to call you by this name before a circle of your friends and then think how embarrassed you will be.

Your identity has been known for a long time. You have been the bane of poets and scholars, of libraries and homes. But your correct cognomen has never before been identified. Now, however, you are to be called a "booksneaf."

It is to Paul W. Stoddard of the department of English of the Bulke high school at Hartford, Conn., that the world at large is indebted for this contribution to the English language.

No longer will he who searches for a wanted book and finds it missing be at a loss as to what to call his borrowing friend. "Booksneaf" should roll off the tongue. And any "booksneaf" who is really honest at heart will surely try to return some of those books, if only for the sake of the children.

A new instrument is a combination of the violin and the saxophone. We were afraid somebody would think of this.

Discussing suicide among college students, Madame Galli Cerei says students of music never commit suicide. She might have added, however, that sometimes their neighbors do.

Monkey Sense?

None of the anthropoid apes can emit musical sounds. But, on the other hand, none of them try to.

A 14 year old schoolboy has been expelled because his teachers claim that he is incapable of telling the truth. If this young man doesn't mend his ways he will likely end up in the weather bureau.

Somebody's Been to a Trial

Middle age is when one begins having trouble deciding whether the things he recalls having happened actually did or not.

The man who tries to dodge his obligations usually finds the detour much rougher than the road.

The Other Side

TO THE EDITOR: Directions for registration were criticised in an editorial in the Thursday edition of THE DAILY IOWAN. The writer placed the blame for the difficulty in registration upon copious complicated and untranslatable statements and footnotes.

Without a doubt instructions could be made simpler. They could follow the "I see the bird; the bird is in the tree; the tree has green leaves" styles. That would be a compliment to the intelligence of the diploma carrying high school graduates, conquerors to be of the world.

Why shift the blame? The reason that registration is difficult is that persons are too lazy or will not read and follow directions.

Second Semester, 1930-31 Thursday, May 21, 8:00 a.m. to Thursday, May 28, 4:00 p.m., 1931 The regular program of class work will be suspended, and the following semester-examination program substituted for it. Classes will meet for examination in the rooms in which they have been regularly meeting (except classes in French (2) and (4), and speech (2), as shown below). The Program committee directs the attention of both students and instructors and professors to the regulation that there is to be no deviation in the case of any examination, from this schedule—except as authorized by the committee, on the student's written petition filed in ample time, supported by the recommendation of the department concerned—to provide relief from an excessive number of examinations within a single day. Deviation for the purpose of getting through earlier will not be permitted. Classes (except in freshman English, first and second year French, and speech), N.B. below, whose first meetings occur: Monday at 8, meet for examination Wednesday, May 27, 10-12; Monday at 9, meet for examination Wednesday, May 27, 8-10; Monday at 10, meet for examination Saturday, May 23, 8-10; Monday at 11, meet for examination Monday, May 25, 10-12; Monday at 1, meet for examination Thursday, May 23, 8-10; Monday at 2, meet for examination Thursday, May 21, 8-10; Monday at 3, meet for examination Thursday, May 21, 10-12; Tuesday at 8, meet for examination Thursday, May 23, 10-12; Tuesday at 9, meet for examination Monday, May 25, 8-10; Tuesday at 10, meet for examination Friday, May 23, 8-10; Tuesday at 11, meet for examination Saturday, May 23, 10-12; Tuesday at 1, meet for examination Tuesday, May 26, 8-10; Tuesday at 2, meet for examination Wednesday, May 27, 2-4; Tuesday at 3, meet for examination Friday, May 22, 10-12.

For example chemistry (2B) meets for lectures in the rooms in which they have been regularly meeting (except classes in French (2) and (4), and speech (2), as shown below). Again, physics 128 meets twice a week, TF, for a three-hour laboratory exercise, 1-4. The period for the examination is, therefore, Tuesday, May 26, 8-10.

EXPLANATION OF YES-TERDAY'S CARTOON

Moulai-Idriss—The sacred city of the Mohammedans: Idriss I, the patron saint of Morocco, who died in the ninth century while inhaling the deadly fumes of a phial of perfume sent to him by his kinsman the Calif Harun al Rashid, was buried at Djebel Zerhoun, at the place which now bears his name, Moulai-Idriss. The green-tiled tomb of the saint, known as the Zaouia of Moulai-Idriss, is one of the most sacred spots in the Mohammedan world. In 1400 years the town of Moulai-Idriss, a tumbled mass of houses clustered around the sanctuary of the saint, has never sheltered an unbeliever within its walls overnight. The precinct of the temple was forbidden ground to me. The stern countenance of its guardians discouraged even a glimpse of the famous tomb.

Hammouch Ben Hadji ran 70 miles in one night: During the French conference with the Rif delegates in Oudjda in April, 1926, Abd el Krim, chief of the Rif, dispatched the 67 year old Hammouch Ben Hadji with this brief message to Si Mohammed Azekerie, his representative, "No peace without autonomy." The old Rif warrior covered the distance of 70 miles between sunset and sunrise in a single night. I have seen the rough terrain over which the old warrior traveled, and considering his advanced age I believe this to be a most remarkable marathon feat.

Tomorrow: "The man who read 140,000 books."

According to one clause in the formal faculty action providing for a special semester examination program. "The instructor may use the examination period as he sees fit, provided he holds the class for the full period. He may have an oral or a written examination, or both, or neither. He may continue regular work or he may use the time for review, or for any phase of his work which may seem to him desirable at this time."

PROGRAM COMMITTEE, H. C. DORCAS, secretary.

Letter to the Editor

To the editor of The Daily Iowan: It seems that the state in operation has taken upon itself the appointment of a one man office, viz., that of chief engineer of the whole and its "Highway" commission at Ames, Iowa, over which he has absolute control or enforcement.

Whether or not it might be in his own domain, leaning somewhat toward intolerance, in instances, commanding and demanding of the different quarters and sections in and likewise through its arbitrary rulings in many cases that are absolutely out of line with the community in which operations are taking place, and are willing to listen to.

Sir Thomas Lipton Wins White Ensign

LONDON, May 14 (AP) — Sir Thomas Lipton, 81 year old British yachtsman, today was elected a member of the Royal Yacht Squadron and henceforth the coveted white ensign will fly over his "Shamrock."

The ensign is the exclusive emblem of the royal navy and several squadrons. All other yachts of Britain must be content with the "duster" of the merchant fleet or, in special instances, the blue ensign.

Many British people were asking today, however, why the man who had done more for British yachting than any other should not have been accorded the honor of membership in the squadron years ago.

The Royal Yacht Squadron, of which King George V is admiral, is one of the most exclusive clubs in the world. Sir Thomas was born in a Scotch tenement house and achieved wealth and prominence in the business world as a "self made man." This fact, it was believed might partly answer the question, although some of old heads in west end clubs were speculating as to whether Sir Thomas' long exclusion might not also have been due to the fact that, in former days at any rate, the very nature of his business made it necessary to placard Britain with Lipton signs.

Some of the older aristocratic members of the squadron, it was said, could not stand the shock of being even indirectly associated with such a blaze of publicity.

Engineers to Entertain 80 From Ames

Members of the engineering faculty of Iowa State college at Ames will be entertained tomorrow by the faculty of the college of engineering. Eighty Ames men are expected.

Alternate yearly visits to each school by the faculties were begun three years ago. Golf will be played early tomorrow morning for those who arrive tonight, and from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. tomorrow the visitors will be taken on an inspection trip of the engineering buildings and other buildings on the campus.

A luncheon will be held at Iowa Union with Irving B. Richman, prominent author of Muscatine and a university graduate, as the speaker. After the luncheon a series of kitchenball games will be held by faculty members of the two schools.

There will also be discussion of the proposed organizing of a tri-state society for the promotion of engineering education, in which Iowa, Minnesota, and Wisconsin are interested.

The committee in charge of the day's events consists of Prof. E. B. Kurtz, head of the electrical engineering department, Prof. George J. Keller of the mechanical engineering department, and Prof. E. E. Kirtledge of the transportation engineering department. Other committees are those for registration at Iowa Union, reception, transportation, program and luncheon, business, and games.

Women Start Program to Beautify City

Trees, Plants to Adorn American Legion Surroundings

With Mrs. H. C. Harshbarger, the garden section of the Iowa City Woman's club is beautifying the grounds surrounding the American Legion community building. Funds for the project were earned by the club through a small fee charged at the annual community flower show and sale of perennials during the year.

Willow Types Selected

Natural setting has been considered in the landscaping, with the trees and uneven topography utilized in the improvements. A curve of golden willow, colorful throughout the year, will form a screen for the railroad tracks. Clumps of laurel willow relieve the brown and yellow hues of the willow.

Pines for winter effects have also been selected. Color will be obtained with flowering shrubs of tartan honeysuckle, shad, wild plum, native rose, lilac and Hawthorne. The bank near the building will be held in place with barberry bushes. Only native plants have been selected to insure hardiness.

Lambert Plans Project

Poppy seed from Flanders fields have been furnished by the American Legion to make gifts of brilliant color through the foliage. Prof. W. J. Lambert of the college of engineering has laid out the survey and furnished blueprints of the project.

Mrs. Harshbarger is a graduate of the college of landscape architecture of Cornell university.

Omaha Club Pays $7,500 for Rescue of Wrong Woman

OMAHA, May 14 (AP)—The "rescue" of the wrong woman in the swimming pool of the Omaha athletic club pool by a husky guard today cost the club $7,500, when a district court jury ruled in favor of Mrs. Samuel Blackwell, 62, who had sued for damages on the ground that she suffered severe back and side injuries in the "rescue."

Mrs. Blackwell had sought $25,000 damages. She testified that she was a good swimmer and had been in the pool with Mrs. Andrew Kopper, Omaha, when Mrs. Kopper appealed for aid.

She said she started to swim to the floundering woman, at the same time shouting for help.

Guard Merrill Greenlee, she testified, seized her instead of Mrs. Kopper and despite her protests "rescued" her.

British Build No Warships

MacDonald Cites Policy of Nations to House of Commons

LONDON, May 14 (AP)—The British government will build no more airships for the present, Ramsay MacDonald told the house of commons today, but the R-100 will be retained as a "sort of experimental ship."

The debate and the prime minister's statement was the first occasion on which the house has discussed the nation's airship policy since the R-101 disaster. Mr. MacDonald prefaced his speech by saying that the catastrophe made it obvious that the policy must be reviewed.

As he saw it, he explained, there were three alternatives—to go on building airships, to scrap everything, or to take the middle course by maintaining a scientific experimental interest in lighter-than-air craft without engaging in new construction.

The government proposes to follow the last course, and the R-100 will be reconditioned, the Cardington air center will be maintained and the mooring masts at Montreal, Kapachi, and Lamalla, will be retained as the "nucleus" of Great Britain's airship activities. The maximum annual cost of this program, Mr. MacDonald said, will be about $700,000.

Sir Samuel Hoare, air minister in the last conservative government, and Sir John Simon, who wrote the R-101 report, expressed complete approval of the prime minister's announcement.

Michigan Nine Plays Hawkeyes in Return Game on Iowa Field Today

Vogelmen to Stab at First Big Ten Win

Star Wolverine Hurler Not Slated to See Action

Depending on his hitters to come through against Michigan this afternoon, Coach Otto Vogel is hoping that his Hawkeye nine will realize its first Big Ten triumph of the season. The Wolverines walloped the Iowa team at Ann Arbor, 12 to 5, and the Hawkeyes are primed to avenge the trouncing.

Will Hold Star Hurler?

One break for the Vogelmen is that Verne Compton, star hurler on the visiting squad, will probably not work today but will be saved for the game with the leading Illinois nine tomorrow at Urbana. McNeal and Kleider, reserve pitchers, are expected to do the slugging work. Diffley will complete the Wolverine battery.

Hudson, speedy halfback and captain-elect of this year's Michigan eleven, will play first base and is the invaders' leading hitter. Norman Daniels, high-scoring center fielder, will lead the Wolverine cage team, will hold down the keystone bag. Tompkins, center fielder, is captain of the Michigan aggregation.

Sportively Speaking

By Bill Ruedge

The Hawkeyes battle the Wolverines at Iowa field this afternoon. . . . Triangular track meet at Wisconsin tomorrow afternoon. . . . The Derby tomorrow. . . . Cards and Athletics leading their respective leagues. . . . What else matters in sportdom?

A sip of the nectar of victory this p.m. would constitute the first lucky break the Iowa baseballers have rated in conference competition this year.

National leaguers may be loafing these days, but they will have to make up for the work they have lost when doubleheaders are in order this summer. Most managers are too willing to call a game off. The slightest pretext is usually enough, because a doubleheader on a good hot summer day will draw a larger crowd than a half a dozen contests these days.

The Athletics seem to have moved back into their old quarters in first place in the American league for an extended stay. Their consistent victories have warranted off the challenges of the Yankees and the Senators.

The Senators are enjoying a profitable stay in Cleveland. The Indians have been stumbling and slipping down the percentage columns in a veritable tailspin. Six losses in a row and no relief in sight!

Tables were turned yesterday by the seventh place Bostonians. The Red Sox, who are supposed to curl up before determined opposition, didn't do that yesterday. They stepped out and nudged a 5 to 4 victory from the Tigers.

The Yankees are behaving like the Yanks of yore. Of course, their rivals have been the tallend St. Louis Browns, but a triumph over them counts as much as the defeat of any other team on the circuit.

Pleas Guilty

DES MOINES (AP) — Pleading guilty to a charge of transporting a stolen automobile from Minnesota to Iowa City, Lawrence E. Gobel was sentenced by Judge Charles A. Dewey to a year and a day in the reformatory.

MICHIGAN BRINGS CAPTAINS

CAMPUS CAGE CONTESTS

Ed Morman's Fox club quintet copped the championship of the independent basketball tournament last night, defeating the sharp-shooting Comets by a score of 27 to 18. The game proved a battle royal from the very start and the canny Fox did not hold a safe lead until the final minutes of the game when Larry Benson, elongated center for the champs, went on a scoring spree that netted eight points to the winners.

With John Ebert tossing a pair of uncanny long tosses the Comets were ahead of the Fox club, 5 to 4, at the close of the first period. Larry Benson, Floyd Mitchell, and Frosty Davidson countered baskets for the champs in the second period and were leading at the close of the stanza, 15 to 10. Lefty Rath sank two long baskets in the final period but the close guarding of Don Arriago and Frosty Davidson held the Comet offense away while Benson sewed up the battle with four successive counters.

Both teams played a great brand of basketball and the game was a thriller. Benson, Arriago, Davidson, Mitchell and Carroll were the main bolts in the Fox club lightning. Rath, Voltmer, Brice, Ebert, Lyons, and Peterson were the fast moving members of the Comet quintet. Ed Morman was also manager of last year's Fox club five which was defeated in the finals of the 1930 tournament.

28 Hawkeye Tracksters in Badger Meet

Will Engage Wisconsin, Chicago in 3-Way Carnival

Led by Captain L. D. Weldon and accompanied by Coaches George Bresnahan and Tom Martin, 28 Iowa track and field men leave by automobile for Madison this afternoon at 2 o'clock to tangle with Wisconsin and Chicago in a triangular meet tomorrow.

The Hawkeyes have had but one chance to prove their mettle outdoors when they overwhelmed Chicago on May 2 but Wisconsin has downed Notre Dame and last week was only a point and a half behind Ohio State for first place in a quadrangular affair.

It is Iowa and Wisconsin that will battle for first place as the Chicago team is too weak to produce anything but a distant third position. Both the Badgers and the Hawkeyes look for about seven firsts apiece, with the hosts slightly favored for the largest score because of a more evenly balanced team.

Old Gold will be represented by two to four men in each of the 15 events, throwing considerable strength into the 100 and 220 yard dashes, the high and low hurdles, the broad and high jumps, and the javelin and hammer throws.

The men to make the journey include Robert Adamson, Paul Conway, Clarence Hubbard, Everett Ferguson, Calvin Hoskinson, Gordon Lagerquist, Stuart Skowbo, Fremont Isaacs, Myrel Naylor, Harold Klewin, Emil Troit, Howard Wickey, Everett Handorf, Bud Willet, La Rus, Thurston.

Walberg Helps Athletics Win Sixth Straight Encounter

CHICAGO, May 14 (AP)—Rube Walberg held the Chicago White Sox helpless in all but the sixth inning today and won his fifth victory of the season, 5 to 2. It was the sixth straight win for the Philadelphia Athletics and kept them in first place.

Vic Frasier started for Chicago but Al Simmons' homer in the fifth with Cochrane on base brought Ted Lyons into the game in the next inning. Lyons, doing his first pitching of the year in Chicago, held the Athletics to one run in the last four innings.

Simmons' home run was his sixth of the year and placed him first in the American league circuit blows.

U. Hi Cinder Team Meets Lyons Today

University high-speed track outfit is in for plenty of competition when they tackle Lyons high in a dual meet on Iowa field at 11 o'clock this morning if the records of the two teams in the district meet means anything. The Blue and White totaled 25 1/2 counters while the visiting aggregation scored 24 1/2.

Further district meet comparison finds that in 12 events both schools entered they split even, each winning six from the other. To make the outcome of the affair still more doubtful, Van Phillips, the locals' quarter mile champion in the district meet, will not run in his specialty today, since Coach Carpenter is saving him for the state meet at Ames tomorrow.

Phillips will compete in both the discus and javelin events, however. He placed fifth in the javelin at the district meet, and has been crowding 100 feet on his attempts with the platter.

Except for Phillips, Carpenter will put his entire team on the field for the meet, relying on consistent strength in all events to put out a win. Lyons depends on their all-around man, A. Smith, for a good share of their points.

Intramuralities

Behind Carroll's tight pitching Sigma Chi took the measure of Phi Epsilon Kappa yesterday afternoon, 5 to 3, in a hard fought kittenball contest. Carroll not only was in hurling form but also sent a steaming triple into the field with the bases loaded to bring in the winning tallies. Mitchell and Voltmer were outstanding for the Athletics.

Saturday, May 16, is the closing date for all entries for the annual river swim and interfraternity canoe race. The canoe race is always the classic event of the year and interest is considerably increased by the marathon river swim, which will provide plenty of thrills for swimming fans. Athletic managers are urged to enter their canoe team immediately. A special race is being planned for all non-fraternity men who enter the event.

Marnette Wins Pistol Match
Firing an average of 85 points Thomas Marnette finished with top honors in the annual Seaboard and Blade national championship pistol match which was fired on the down-stairs range in the armory yesterday. Bernard Gibney was a close second with 83 points, and Keith Weeber was third with a count of 81.

The Wrist Mark

by J. S. Fletcher

Synopsis of Preceding Installments

Col. Engelen, formerly governor of Southmoor, is murdered. An investigation by a nephew, Sifton, Engelen, and his law clerk, Johnson, reveals that during the colonel's time at Southmoor, two prisoners, Snelling and Hardie, escaped. The theory is that the colonel had killed the men and that they killed him. A former warden, Millwaters, who was engaged to help in the investigation, is also murdered. Capt. Shoreham, of Southmoor, gives a description of the escaped convicts. Snelling had a birth mark on his right wrist. Young Engelen recalls that Sanderson, on whose estate the colonel's body was found, wears a broad bracelet on his right wrist. The question arises — Is Snelling Sanderson? Johnson thinks he is, and that Hewitt, his butler, is Hardie. When an attempt is made to verify this belief, it is found that both men are missing. John Oates, Sanderson's chauffeur, tells of taking his master and a man unknown to him on a mysterious drive the night of the murder. A townsman, Francis Silverstein, tells Johnson that Sanderson was the head of a financial swindle, and suggests that the colonel was murdered because he threatened to expose the fraud. He is also convinced that a farmer named Beckett, who had known Sanderson very well, is one of the former prison wardens through whose treachery the two convicts escaped. Capt. Shoreham sees the man and identifies him as Settle, the ex-warden. Johnson sets out for Starrick Priory, Settle's farm.

Twenty-First Installment

After he stepped from the train at Barrowsburgh station, Johnson was lost to his associates at the Castle Hotel for the space of twenty-four hours. Of his whereabouts, his doings, Engelen knew nothing; nobody, indeed, knew anything but Johnson himself. And later, when these events were matters of the past, and Johnson was forced into an undesirable leisure, he wrote down what did happen to him during his disappearance. Here, then, is Johnson's story:

"It was fourteen minutes to eight, summer time, when I left the station at Barrowsburgh. I went through the woods to the edge of the moors that stretch away to the northwest of Wraisdale. It was eight o'clock when I came to the moorland, and I had more than a good hour's full light before me and another hour of twilight after it in which to cross country that I had never seen before. Even reckoning the distance at seven miles — a very liberal allowance — I had two hours in which to reach Starrick Priory before Settle, supposing he left Hartington punctually at nine o'clock, could get there. That suited my plans — I wanted to make a preliminary inspection of Starrick Priory before its tenant came on the scene.

"Why was I going there at all — and alone? Because I had got it into my head, immediately after hearing Shoreham's assertion that Beckett, the farmer, was in reality Settle, the ex-warden, that the solution of our problem would be found at this farmhouse. The sudden revelation of Beckett as Settle seemed to me the one thing which had been lacking, the one thing wanted to fill a certain gap. Settle was, without doubt, the man who had been fetched, it seemed impossible to discover, but I fancied it had something to do with Col. Engelen — possibly Settle had a hand in that affair, might be the actual murderer. And I hadn't a doubt that Settle was the man with whom Millwaters had come to see in Hartington; the man with whom Millwaters had business — probably he was the man who murdered Millwaters.

"I figured it out like this:—Settle, as warden at Southmoor, played an active part in arranging the escape of Snelling and Hardie (Millwaters I conceived to be an absolutely innocent party in that affair); and had, no doubt, been highly paid for his services. But here he was again, in close proximity to the man he had helped to set free — was he blackmailing Sanderson, or had Sanderson helped him as part payment for the help he had afforded Sanderson in the past? Anyway, there was the fact — Settle was here, and Silverstein had seen him and Sanderson together, more than once; in some way, Settle was mixed up in this affair and I was going to know how.

"But I had another notion — that Sanderson and Hewitt had made their escape through the old town Hall and the title I had no doubt. But where did they go after getting away? I had seen how easily they could — unobserved — cross the river, take to the woods beyond, and gain the moors. But where then? They had disappeared as completely as if they had been disintegrated into so much dust? Were they hiding at Starrick Priory?

"The answer was another notion. I had got after hearing where Settle, as Beckett, lived, and getting Silverstein's description of the place. It was out of the way. Beckett lived alone. There would, doubtless, be ample opportunity for hiding two men. It seemed to me that if I myself had been wanting to get away from Barrowsburgh, I should first have taken refuge in this wild country, made my way through the wildest part of the hills to the other side, met at some solitary trysting place a trusted friend with a car, and thence sped away to, say, Liverpool. And it was my strong suspicion that some such plan as that had been or was being followed by the two missing men.

"It was a glorious evening, that, and those moors were a delight to cross. From setting foot on the moorland edge until I had left at least five miles of heather and twig behind me, I never saw roof or chimney. But, at last, I came to the edge of a deep ravine. It fell right away from my very feet at the spot where I struck it, and one quick glance showed me the place I sought.

"Lest there should be any eyes watching from that place I dropped instantly into the thick heather and took a long look at the house. It needed but one glance to show me that this was just the place to which anybody wishing to escape observation or, indeed, capture, would be only too glad to turn. Beneath me, as I faced due west, was a deep ravine, running north and south; the southern extremity debouched on Wraisdale; the northern terminated in the hills. A wilder, more gloomy, sunless place than that ravine I have rarely seen; it was so situated, and its sides were so overhanging and precipitous that the sun's rays could only penetrate its recesses when the sun itself was due south, and then, of course, only for a very short time. Its sides were thickly covered with masses of pine and fir; here and there rock jutted out; deep down in the innermost recesses a narrow stream made its way towards the river in the distance.

"But it was not so much at this ravine and its natural configuration that I looked as at the pile of buildings which rose on a spit of flat land in its very gloomiest part. I knew that to be Starrick Priory. It lay immediately beneath me; I could almost have dropped a stone on its roof. And my first thought of it was that this was the most forlorn and desolate place I had ever seen. It was a miserable, derelict thing; more forlorn, I think, than is the skeleton of a once brave ship, found rotting on some lonely coast. There was a tower that had once been a bell tower, but it was now half-fallen; the nave of the church had lost its roof; the transepts were just crumbled masses of masonry; here and there tumbled and shapeless heaps marked where the conventional buildings had stood.

"My impression was — and it was strengthened when I presently came to closer quarters with it — that the farmhouse had been built, with masonry taken from the church and cloister, very soon after the Priory had been dissolved and dismantled; for it looked as decrepit as the Priory itself. Its buildings, abandoned of the ruined tower on one side and on what had probably been the cloister on another; they were of considerable size; far too big, I thought, for a small farmer to live in. And after I had looked long and carefully at them, I came to the conclusion that just then, at any rate, there was either no one in the house, nor anyone anywhere about it; that if there were people down there they were keeping strictly hidden.

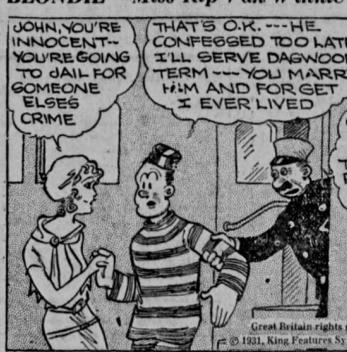

"If I had not known anything about this matter, I should have said that Starrick Priory, as a farmstead, was at that time untenanted. There was no smoke, not even a wisp from any of the queer, twisted chimney stacks. The windows had that black, blank look which you only see in empty houses. I could see right into the fold at the side of the house; there was neither cow nor pig to be seen in it; even at that distance I could see that it was empty of the straw that accumulates in such a place when used. There was a paddock beyond, but not a horse, nor a donkey in it; a strip or two of meadow behind that in the narrow bit of land where the ravine widened to the valley, but no sheep there. And I noticed another significant fact — there were no fowls anywhere about house, or yard, or buildings. Over everything hung a dead silence.

"So much for the house and its immediate surroundings. I wanted to know, next, how it lay in regard to the neighboring village of Starrick, in case I had need of police assistance. According to the map, Starrick lay somewhat to the west of the Priory, but from the east bank of the ravine there was not a sign of it — indeed, from that point, I could not see a trace or indication of a human dwelling in any direction. Still, the map could not err; Starrick, of course, lay about a mile from the Priory, and straight in front of me, but hidden by the west wall of the ravine. Searching that side of the depression, I eventually became aware of a track that led from a corner of the farm buildings and gradually rose along the shelving banks of the little stream until it disappeared 'round the shoulder of the high ground to the east. That, I doubt less, was the way from Starrick Priory to Starrick village; doubtless, too, it was the way by which Settle, alias Beckett would come home. I was beginning — having got my bearings — to wish he would come and let me get to work. But I wished far more to know if he would come to an empty house or to one that harbored men I wanted to find.

"The sun sank beyond the high range of distant hills; the twilight came and gradually faded to dusk; the dusk melted towards such partial darkness as you get on a summer night in high latitudes. As soon as I thought it safe to do so, I made my way down the side of the ravine until I reached a point on the bank of the stream exactly opposite the house. There I hid again and waited for what seemed a long time before I heard a sound. Then, at last, a sound came — the sound of horse's hoofs and of the creaking of wheels; finally of the opening of a gate. That was Settle, or Beckett, arriving in the yard before his front door.

"I heard various sounds after that — the unyoking of the horse — Settle moving about in the stable — Settle crossing the yard towards the house. Then came the loud banging of a door — Settle had gone into the house. And, following the bang,

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — More recognition is given these days to cameramen, but they still are comparatively unsung heroes.

With the development of the amateur movie cameras, the public is taking the initial step towards correcting this injustice. Some of the best-known cameramen are receiving as many as 100 fan letters a week, asking technical questions. If an unusual effect appears in a picture, it is the signal for a barrage of inquiries.

These range from the simplest to the most complicated matters of technique. Double exposure (fade-ins, cloud effects and back lighting are favorites. Another baffling effect to amateurs is what the industry knows as the "moving dolly shot." Many amateurs walk in toward the photographic subject and cannot understand why their pictures are lumpy. In the studio, of course, evenness is obtained by the camera being bolted to a moving dolly.

John Arnold, president of the American Cinematographers' society, is a leading figure in the cameraman's battle for recognition.

"Why shouldn't we get credit?" he asks. "Who makes it possible I heard a bolt drawn with a harsh grating noise.

for stars to build reputations for beauty and ability? A star can give a rattling good performance, but if she is badly photographed it becomes mediocre in the eyes of the public."

GABIE AGAIN
This year's phenomenon is Clark Gable, who is soaring toward stardom at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Brought out here by Stage Producer Louis Malcoon to do "The Last Mile," he got into the films, and has been furiously juggled ever since, from heavy roles to leads. He played the gambler in Norma Shearer's "A Free Soul," and he will be Greta Garbo's lead in "The Fall and Rise of Susan Lenox." Now they've assigned him to play Willie Berry's pal in "Sea Eagles." Incidentally, Berry is in good shape again after his recent illness.

STARDOM WAITING
After being almost overlooked by Warners, Marion Marsh is now headed towards stardom. Warners have just assigned her to her fourth part this year, the lead opposite Frank Fay in "Mr. Hercules." Previously she has done "Svengali" and "The Mad Genius" opposite Barrymore and "Five Star Final." When she has had a little more experience the studio plans to make a star of her, and only a few months ago she languished under one of those sign-and-forget contracts. It took a local state appearance in "Young Sinners" to wake the studio up.
