Complete Text of French-U. S. Accord

PARIS, July 6 (AP)—The text of the war debt moratorium accord, approved today by France and the United States, was given out tonight by the French government. It follows:

"After exchanges of views the French government states that it is in agreement with the United States on the essential principle of President Hoover's proposal and on the following propositions which may be expressed thus:

"First—The payment of inter-governmental debts is postponed from July 1, 1931, to June 30, 1932.

"Second—However, the Reich will pay the amount of the unconditional annuity.

"Third—The French government agrees insofar as it is concerned, that the payments thus made by the Reich shall be placed by the bank for international settlements in bonds guaranteed by the German railways.

"Fourth—The suspended payments shall be subject to interest in accordance with the conditions suggested by the American government, payable in ten annual instalments beginning with July 1, 1933.

"Fifth—The same conditions shall apply to the bonds to be issued by the German railways.

"Sixth—On the three points which it is recognized do not concern the United States government, the French government makes the following declaration:

"(A) Concerted action by the principal central banks through the intermediary of the bank for international settlements shall be organized for the benefit of the European countries which find themselves particularly affected by the proposed suspension of payments.

"(B) A previous understanding must be arrived at between France and the world bank for international settlements so that France will only be called upon to complete the guarantee fund provided for in the case of a moratorium under the Young plan by monthly payments equal to the needs of the world bank and as a result of payments effectively transferred by Germany.

"(C) Concerning payments in kind, the various technical adjustments necessitated by the application of the American proposal and the present accord shall be studied by a committee of experts named by the powers interested which shall reconcile the exigencies of existing conditions with the spirit of President Hoover's proposal. France reserves the right to ask the German government for indispensable assurances touching upon the use to exclusively economic ends of the sums by which the Reich's budget will be lightened."

Action Comes After Meeting of Statesmen

Triumph Follows Days of Anxiety, Much Negotiation

Copyright, 1931, By The Associated Press

PARIS, July 6 (AP)—Statesmen representing the governments of France and America drew up and initialed tonight, in the red drawing room of the ministry of the interior, a protocol which, it is hoped, will assure the success of President Hoover's plan for aiding Germany and rehabilitating the financial structure of the entire world.

The fact that an agreement between the two nations had been reached on the Hoover reparations moratorium proposal was announced following a brief conference which began at 9:55 p. m.

At the close of the conference Premier Laval read a communique in which it was stated that the French text of an accord, formulated at a cabinet session this afternoon, had received the approval of Washington. The text had been telephoned earlier in the evening to Washington by Secretary Mellon and Ambassador Edge.

The triumph came after two days of anxiety during which the two nations found it difficult to see eye to eye.

France, the nation which makes the greatest financial sacrifice next to the United States, felt that she must cheerfully maintain what the French call her "sacred right to reparations."

Hoover Concedes Notion
The United States, whose president had conceived the notion of suspending war debt payments due to her, on condition that the allies would relieve Germany from reparations payments for a year, was apprehensive lest the French counter suggestions weaken the spirit and principle of that proposal.

The text of the protocol is brief. It provides that payments on inter-governmental debts be suspended from July 1, 1931, to June 30, 1932.

Germany Pays, Receives
Germany is to continue her unconditional reparations payments, but she is to get them back. The world bank for international settlements is to put these funds immediately into bonds guaranteed by German railways.

France undertakes to secure concerted action by European central banks to come to the relief of other countries of central Europe. It is understood, but not specified, that the American federal reserve bank will join this move.

Chicago Man Will Address Convocation

Judd to Talk Before Degree Winners July 16

Charles Hubbard Judd, director of education at the University of Chicago, will deliver the formal address at the University of Iowa's convocation July 16, it was made known Monday by Dean Paul C. Packer, director of the summer session.

Has Previously Spoken Here
Widely known as an authority in both psychology and education, Doctor Judd will return to the university which in 1923 conferred upon him the honorary degree of LL.D. It will be the second time in three years that he has spoken before a summer session first term convocation.

Before joining the Chicago faculty in 1909, Doctor Judd was a professor of psychology at four universities, including Yale. Sixteen years ago he began his work in the psychology of education, and since then has written seven books on various phases of the subject.
Former President of N.C.A.
The Chicagoan is a former president of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and in 1929-30 was chairman of the American Council on Education.
Convocation ceremonies will mark the close of the first term of the university's summer session. More than 175 degrees and certificates will be granted, with winners of advanced degrees in the majority.

Librarians to Hold Annual Meeting Here

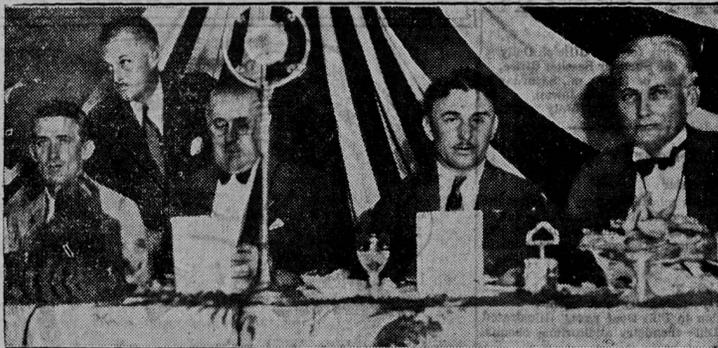

More than 100 librarians will meet at the University of Iowa for their twelfth annual conference July 10 and 11. Speakers from the east and west will deliver addresses and direct round table discussions, as announced by Emma Felsenthal, associate director of the training school.

Nathan van Patten, director of libraries at Stanford university, Palo Alto, Cal., will relate some experiments that have been made in the stimulation of student's reading.
Mrs. Alfred H. P. Sayers of Chicago, formerly of the children's department of the New York public library; Georgie G. McAfee of the public library at Lima, Ohio; and Douglas Waples, acting dean of the University of Chicago's graduate library school, are other speakers from outside the state.

Speakers from the state will be Letitia M. Davidson of the Ames public library and Prof. Milton E. Lord, director of the University of Iowa libraries, who returned last year from European study.

All but three of the victims in 18 airplane crash fatalities in Wisconsin in 1930 were under 30 years of age.

POST AND GATTY FETED AT NEW YORK BANQUET

A parade and noisy acclaim weren't the only honors showered on Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, globe girdling flyers, when they returned to New York. Here they are at a banquet at the New York Athletic club, at which Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut said he would seek a congressional medal for them. Left to right: Gatty, Carl Betts (standing) of Detroit, Maj. Lester Gardiner, Post and Senator Bingham.

Chorus Gives First Summer Presentation

Presenting a program interspersed with instrumental group numbers, the university chorus opened its summer season at Iowa Union last night.

Thompson Stone of Boston, visiting director, conducted the chorus of 100 voices in a group of five numbers featured by Brahms' "Song of Destiny." This was the only accompanied number sung by the chorus.

A chorale by Bach, "Mattins" by Miriam Righter, with numbers by Brechtaninoff, Kastalsky, and Brockway completed the choral program.

Maream Andrews, contralto, sang the solo part in Kastalsky's "God Is With Us." Two members by Haydn, a quartet in G and theme and variations from the "Emperor Quartet" were played by a string quartet. Members of the instrumental group were Louise Rood, first violin; Dorothy Peterson, second violin; John M. Kuypers, viola; and Margaret Tupper, cello.

Former Students in University Visit City Enroute to Oklahoma

Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. White, who attended the University of Iowa last year, left here last night for Des Moines on their way to their home in Oklahoma. Mrs. White received her M. S. degree last June while Mr. White finished his graduate work at the same time.

Mrs. White, formerly Ruth Bennett, went to Cornell university as research assistant in child nutrition, later receiving the rank of instructor. She will continue her work there next year.

Mr. White received honors at Cornell by winning the Schurman prize in philosophy this year. His winning essay was on "Comparison of certain points of view in psychology."

New Mechanical Engineering Laboratory to Open in Fall; Will House Latest Apparatus

The new mechanical engineering laboratories building, which the builders plan to complete by Sept. 15, will contain several pieces of apparatus of most recent design, for instructional, as well as practical purposes, according to a statement issued by Prof. Huber O. Croft, head of the mechanical engineering department.

A 30 h. p. dynamometer, used for testing small pumps and speed reducers, and for absorbing power in small engines, will be installed, equipped with a control panel for governing the speeds of the various devices to be tested.

Will Install Compressor
In the pneumatics laboratory will be placed a three stage double acting air compressor, capable of creating a working pressure of 2,000 pounds per square inch, which will make it possible for machines and other engineering equipment installed in the pneumatics laboratory to be studied and tested at high pressure.

A "Horning" variable compression internal combustion engine will be used for testing automobile fuels at various compression ratios to determine the best results under certain conditions.

Use Wind Tunnel, Fan
For instructional work in the testing and rating of fans, a single inlet 24 inch fan, connected to supply and discharge ducts, will be installed. This will also be used in the aeronautics laboratory for the purpose of supplying air to a small wind tunnel.

To instruct students concerning the use of pumps for feeding boilers, a six inch outside end packed pot valve pump with bronze plungers has been purchased.

A "Timken" bearing and lubricant tester will be used for testing bearing metals and lubricants under such conditions as actually occur in machines.

Heat Treating Apparatus
The heat treatment laboratory will house a battery of 10 heat treating furnaces, equipped with devices for accurately measuring temperatures, which will instruct students in the heat treatment of metals.

For the benefit of students taking laboratory courses concerning power plant engineering, a single stage steam jet air ejector and after-condensers such as is installed on condensers of large steam turbines, has been ordered.

Will Study Sand
A gyratory laboratory and sifter, for use in the study of characteristics of sand used for molds in foundries, completes the list of the larger pieces of equipment.

Scientific instruments purchased for instructional use in the new laboratories include a stroboscope, a temperature recorder which will register temperatures at six different points, a pyro-prod for measuring surface temperatures, and a miscellaneous group of such articles as planimeters, thermometers, and revolution counters.

Montana Graduate to Join University High School Staff in Fall

Helen Waite will take the place of Mary Goodykoontz as instructor in home economics and head of this department at the University high school. Miss Waite will assume her duties at the beginning of the fall semester.

Miss Goodykoontz was married June 13 to Prof. Ralph Barnes of the college of engineering.
Miss Waite is a graduate student of Montana state college and has her masters degree from the Teachers college, Columbia university, New York City. She previously taught at Montana state college practice high school, Bozeman, Mont.

The Beginning of the End

PRESIDENT Hoover's moratorium, a timely prosperity gesture at least, seems now to be on the way to success with word from France that the principles in the plan have her approval.

In short, the United States has taken the initiative in permitting Germany to spend her money on reconstruction, has avoided taking down irritating tariff barriers, and has sacrificed credits to the extent of $275,000,000.

Through the one year international debt postponement Germany, rotting core of the world's finances, will be relieved of payments to the Allies of $400,004,000.

Yet in return for these benefits the United States is going to lose more than $275,000,000, France more than the year's debt of $200,000,000, Britain more than her $86,000,000, Italy more than her $45,000,000 and so on down the line.

For once the moratorium is established the swan song of reparations will have begun, the end of the Young plan will be at hand. Germany will not be able to pay a year from hence or 10 years from hence.

And so, as the leading nations of the world rush joyfully into the moratorium business, let them face the facts frankly, may they read the handwriting on the wall, say goodbye to the Young plan without too much hysteria, and make the best of a bad mess that started in 1914.

Hot weather has induced a tremendous increase in night driving, and with every road a speedway the hazards of motor travel are rapidly increasing.

Iowa has removed its speed limit, working on the perfectly defensible theory that with the modern automobile it is not speed that is dangerous, but recklessness in driving.

Apparently with no speed limit there need be no highway motor patrol, or any organized state police to check motor traffic.

Among the most serious hazards are the inordinately bright headlights which are beginning to infest the highways, apparently without any regulation.

Although deaths from fireworks in the United States over the recent week end totaled only six, or one-half of the 1930 list, fatalities from other causes in conjunction with celebration of the nation's one hundred fifty-fifth birthday set a new high record for recent years.

Among the most serious hazards are the inordinately bright headlights which are beginning to infest the highways, apparently without any regulation.

Cars without rear lights are enough of a menace under ordinary circumstances, but when a driver is blinded by the lights of an approaching automobile, a car ahead without a tail light becomes invisible. Lack of perspective peculiar to observers who are able to see only the car lights at night often results in an attempt by one driver to pass another with a third car approaching much too close for safety.

Obviously such aspects of traffic control are without the province of local officers, a state highway patrol will be the only satisfactory answer.

Italy HAS its gangland—the Mafia, a dread secret society. Italy showed the world the other day what to do about gangsters, and it took the federal government just as it did in the United States to make a feeble start against gang rule by endangering Al Capone's freedom for some three years.

For a series of 43 terrorist murders 15 men were given life by the Fascist government and 109 were sentenced to a total of 1,500 years in prison. Mussolini started to clean up the Mafia in May, 1926. In May, 1929, 150 Mafiosi were convicted. In January, 1930, 170 more were sent to jail. But a few more trials and Italy's organized crime will be gone.

If Sicilian and Italian racketeers can be convicted in Italy why not in Chicago? Or is this really their promised land?

One-third of all the world's mail, says a news dispatch, is handled by the United States postal system. That is probably true, considering that only American business houses take the time and trouble to mail series of circulars and "personal" letters expounding the merits of commodities that only one person out of 1,000 has any use for and one out of 1,000,000 ever buys.

With the aid of colored glass beads, radios, automobiles, and divers other modern knickknacks, the Seri Indians, last of North America's cannibal tribes, are being civilized. That must be gratifying news to islanders in the Gulf of California, where the Seris hold forth. Although in recent years, the cannibals have dwindled in number from seven to two thousand, their prospective meal tickets may now be assured of total extinction of the tribe, if the auto traffic, radio static, and lobster a la Newberg can be depended upon.

Clothes certainly do make the man, Warden Henry C. Hill of Joliet, is ready to swear, even if said man has become accustomed to prison stripes. The other day a slim young man, dapper in a new golf outfit and swinging a masher as if he hadn't a care in the world, walked blithely past two guards and out into the world beyond. Now the warden's son is bemoaning his suit of clothes and golf stick and the warden is looking for a new personal barber. Later it developed that the escaped convict had dined for several months prior to his play for freedom in order to fit the warden's son's perfect 38. The barber-convict may never be apprehended; in which event it will be perfectly alright to get rid of just any golf bug that size.

Roger Wolff Kahn, Otto's son and heir, is all through with jazz orchestras, so he says, his fancy now turning to flying. In the first place, Roger points out, he only became one of the really well paid first class orchestra leaders in the country to show his dad what he could do about making a living. He probably will succeed as an aviator, or almost anything else he takes up. That may be a way Roger has, and it might, on the other hand, as cynics may always be depended upon to demonstrate, another instance of the power of a good name or a reiteration of the old axiom about it taking money to make some.

Suddenly, out of a clear sky, comes President Hoover's announcement that at last he and France have come to terms. Those terms, of course, will be subject to approval by all nations concerned, which process may take another month or two. At least, the chief executive promises the matter will be settled one way or the other, which is, indeed, enlightening. And from the tenor of his statement to the press, it seems that the matter has been decided Hoover's way and all right with the world. They'd better get the moratorium cleaned up within the year, or, first thing they know, Germany won't play with them. She will probably get all peevish about the hullabaloo and declare her own little moratorium without even letting France in on it.

Pope Pius XI comes right back at the Italian government, rather Premier Benito Mussolini, with a slap at coercive methods used by the state in tearing Italy's youth, especially members of Catholic action societies, away from the church and its benign influence on education. "The church of God," says the Pope, "wishes nothing from the state that belongs to the competence of the state," adding that education and the Christian formation of youth, which is within the competence of the church, will cease to be requested. Something ought to be done to bring these two together pretty quickly, because, from the alarming number of new young Fascist recruits, the Pope will have nothing to issue encyclicals about.

Although deaths from fireworks in the United States over the recent week end totaled only six, or one-half of the 1930 list, fatalities from other causes in conjunction with celebration of the nation's one hundred fifty-fifth birthday set a new high record for recent years. That ought to swerve agitation from the anti-firecrackers trail to new safety measures for motorists and bathers. Of the 500 or more persons who lost their lives this year, 161 died in auto mishaps and 181 drowned. That ought to start something; maybe a "stay at home" campaign by the radio syndicates.

A Washington Bystander. By KIRKE SIMPSON. WASHINGTON — The three civilian heads of the war department rather vie with each other in modernism.

Naturally young Trubee Davison, the air secretary, does most of his traveling by air; but he again has a rival in the assistant secretary now Frederick Payne, not to mention the secretary himself, "Pat" Hurley, for that matter.

Time was when Davison and "Jack" MacNider, his former "little cabinet" colleague in the war department, who now is minister to Canada, ran rival charts of their air journeying. MacNider got a lot of fun out of it and an amazing total of air mileage. Payne made a good start with a 4,000-mile air jaunt to Panama, accompanied by Mrs. Payne, about which the Payne family still is talking.

Hurley has introduced something new into his air-going rivalry of the war department civilian chiefs. He plans air-commuting this summer between Washington and Atlantic City, where he has taken a summer cottage.

Still, Davison must lead all other contenders for air-mileage honors among cabinet and "little cabinet" members. He dates back to the original aviation promotion set-up which followed the great controversy of the Coolidge administration that introduced Dwight Morrow of New Jersey to public life.

Just how many air miles Davison has to his credit he probably does not know himself, but he has been places and seen things over the airways. He even campaigned by air for the

The bystander noted with interest that the active and alert Hurley was among the party orators drafted to address the "Young Republican" convention in Washington.

And Mr. Hurley, he recalled, was about the only speaker who went out of his way to pay tribute to Vice President Curtis. It sounded like a Hoover convention mostly.

In view of all the gossip that Hurley is devoutly hoping that Curtis will pick the senate instead of the vice presidency when he does decide his 1932 plans, thereby leaving a possible vice presidential opening for a bright young man from Oklahoma, Hurley's beau geste toward Curtis was impressive.

A LITTLE BIT OF NOTHING

What the scantily-dressed bathing girl of Chicago is wearing this season is brought to you here with our compliments. The only trouble is that Policeman Oscar Bahmfeth is trying to make up his befuddled mind whether or not Mildred Schroeder, star in a current stage production, is wearing enough of a little bit of nothing with her pair of trunks and a brassiere—not to mention the smile.

BEAU GESTE. The bystander noted with interest that the active and alert Hurley was among the party orators drafted to address the "Young Republican" convention in Washington.

And Mr. Hurley, he recalled, was about the only speaker who went out of his way to pay tribute to Vice President Curtis. It sounded like a Hoover convention mostly.

In view of all the gossip that Hurley is devoutly hoping that Curtis will pick the senate instead of the vice presidency when he does decide his 1932 plans, thereby leaving a possible vice presidential opening for a bright young man from Oklahoma, Hurley's beau geste toward Curtis was impressive.

Now what may have inspired it? One idea going about Washington at the time was that the home situation in Oklahoma made it good politics. Mr. Curtis is credited with being very popular there. But he got that as gall, Secretary Hurley for in a militant gesture toward his presumable rival.

Dill to Tell of Trip to Mountains in Talk. Telling of an expedition to Billy Goat pass, made for the purpose of collecting specimens for the university museum, Homer Dill, museum director, will speak tonight in the chemistry building auditorium at 8 o'clock.

The lecture will be illustrated with slides, and is one of the regular series of museum lectures given by Director Dill.

Explanation of Saturday's Cartoon

"Fighting" Fitzgerald, Champion Duelist: George Robert "Fighting" Fitzgerald (1748-1786) descendant of a distinguished Irish family fought his first duel at the age of 14. A life noted for gallantry, recklessness, and continuous duels earned him the sobriquet of "Fighting" Fitzgerald. The number of duels he fought is stated as 112, and 70 of them are reported to have been fatal. In the end he was convicted of accidental murder, and ended his adventurous life on the gallows at Castlebar.

Its large digestive canal makes this tremendous voraciousness possible.

Expression of Religion Lies in Life-Gilkey

The nature of religion cannot be expressed by definition, creed, or church affiliation, in the opinion of the Rev. Charles W. Gilkey, dean of the chapel at the University of Chicago, who gave the address at the summer vesper service held at Iowa Union Sunday night.

The Rev. Mr. Gilkey spoke on "What is spiritualism?" He pointed out that in some one person's living, in a particular instance found in a particular situation, lies the only true expression of religion.

The Rev. Harry D. Henry, pastor of the Methodist church, gave the opening prayer at the service. The audience united in singing a group of familiar hymns.

The service, originally scheduled to take place out of doors on the west slope near Old Capitol, was removed to Iowa Union because of the cool weather.

Rain Lowers Temperature. Rains throughout the state brought cooler temperatures to Iowa City yesterday. The highest degree yesterday was 87, and the lowest Sunday night was 54. At 7 a.m. yesterday thermometers read 62, and at 7 p.m., 78.

NEARLY AS FAST AS A BULLET

Gun powder explodes with enough force to send a bullet on its way in 4-1,000ths of a second.

It takes only a moment more (5-1,000ths) for gasoline to burn in your engine. In this fraction of a second, it must ignite, burn and start the piston downward.

How foolish it is to buy inferior gasoline which will burn slower and fill the engine with carbon and dilute crank case oil. Let us service your motor with premium, split-second gasolines.

18 Cardinals Beat 9 Cubs in Uphill Tilt

Smith Goes Full Route Against Five Red Bird Hurlers

CHICAGO, July 6 (AP)—Two St. Louis doubles after two were out in the ninth inning defeated the Cubs 6 to 5 today in the second of the series. Bob Smith had weathered several storms before this, but the Bruins were unable to get the runs back in the ninth and the series was evened.

Adams opened the ninth by getting a walk, but the next two men went out. Collins knocked a long double to center scoring Adams with the tying run and Roetger doubled to left to score Collins with the winning run.

The Cards used 18 players, including five pitchers. Halpes finished and got credit for the victory.

Elliott Checks Old Robin Mates, 5 to 3

PHILADELPHIA, July 6 (AP)—After having won five straight victories, and having climbed within a jump of second place in the national league, the Brooklyn Robins ran into their former co-trader, Jumbo Jim Elliott, here today and dropped the opener of a three game series with the Phillies, 5 to 3.

Elliott chalked up his eleventh triumph of the year. He allowed only six hits, four of which were crowded into the last three innings.

Gerber Nine Takes Initial Game 7 to 2

Saturday's Results Jefferson 7; Academy 2. Old Fellows 7; Sharon 5 (12 innings). Sunday's Results Old Fellows at Marengo, postponed, rain.

The newly organized Hotel Jefferson baseball outfit, playing in its first game, combined hits with opponents' errors to down the Academy nine 7 to 2.

Academy got its only runs when Irving Nelson, the hotel team pitcher, threw two straight wild pitches. Outside of those slips he pitched a good game, keeping the few hits he allowed well scattered.

Gordon Prange, regular third baseman on the Iowa varsity this year, was the hitting star of the day when he got three hits out of three times up, one of them being a home run with two men on the bases.

Charles "Kootch" Smith was on the mound for the Academy boys. He hurled a good game, but lacked the support that he was used to as four of the regulars were out of the lineup.

The Odd Fellows turned in a 12 inning victory when they downed the Sharon baseball team in the feature game.

Markets Dull as Quotations Show Decline

Smallest Turnover in Stocks Since June 17

NEW YORK, July 6 (AP)—The financial markets were inert and generally featureless today. Sluggishness on the stock exchange was due to the protracted delay in reaching an agreement on the debt question and share values fluctuated irregularly, although the close was lower and the undertone heavy. Domestic bonds acted reasonably well, but Germans sold off.

The 1,000,000 share turnover in stocks was the smallest since June 17. After numerous losses of 2 to 4 points during the early trading, the market regained much of the decline. However, prices sagged again in the last hour and the average net loss was slightly more than a point.

U. S. Steel Drops

United States Steel, which closed last Friday at 105, was down 2 1/4 at its lowest and was never quite able to make up its decline. The last sale was at 103 3/4. American Telephone, after fully recovering a 3 point drop, closed 1 7/8 lower and there were net declines of 1 to 2 in American Can, Bethlehem, Woolworth, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Sears Roebuck, Case, Consolidated Gas, International Telephone, Atchison, Southern Pacific, and Baltimore and Ohio. National Biscuit broke to a new low for the present shares. General Motors and Chrysler at one time showed small advances, closing about steady. Ralls as a group were neglected. Coppers and oils eased a little.

Although Wall Street had not abandoned hope for a settlement of the moratorium issue, it was somewhat concerned by the weakness of the German mark, and by the withdrawals at Berlin which that weakness reflected.

Copper Uncertain

Copper prices appear to be the subject of some uncertainty, while the oil situation was confused by the posting of Tower Southwestern quotations. Preliminary reports said that crude production in California declined moderately last week.

Strength of Belgian, Swiss and Dutch exchanges was attributed to the withdrawal of funds from Germany, which amounted to about $14,000,000.

Money accommodations could be had "outside" at 1 per cent. New dormitories of the California Institute of Technology will have eight rooms equipped with loudspeakers, with the result that an orchestra can be heard simultaneously in the rooms.

with police here. Botroff was arrested there Friday after an exciting chase. Three companions of the pair were released from police custody today.

Prisoners Trample Dudes by 6-5 Count in Kittenball Series

The Prisoners won their first game of kittenball, 6-5, last night on the field house diamond when they changed a tie with the Dudes into a victory during the last of the seventh.

While Wiley was on base, because of an error by George Wells, with the score tied, 5-5, Rubie socked a two bagger. Wiley took a chance and slid home safe.

Lineup for the Quadrant: Rubie, c; Loria, p; Millikin, 1b; Astle, 1ss; Neil, 2b; Hewitt, 3b; Bernard, rf; Snyder, cf; Way, lf; Wiley, 1ss.

For the Dudes: Hank Sievers, c; Voltmer, p; Sangster, 3b; Harry Sievers, 1ss; Lapp, cf; Bedink, rf; Durenberger, lf; Ariagno, 1b; Wells, 2ss; Mitchell, 2b.

The Gypsies now have the lead in the triangle kittenball tournament with two wins and no losses. The Prisoners and Gypsies have each won a game and lost two. The Gypsies and Dudes will battle for the last time tomorrow night on Iowa field; horseshoe games will be resumed Thursday night on the Quadrangle courts.

Wheat Prices Make Record for New Low

CHICAGO, July 6 (AP)—Lowest prices for wheat today since 1896 accompanied arrivals of newly harvested domestic winter wheat amounting to almost 10,000,000 bushels. Dearth of export demand for wheat from North America had a further bearish influence, and so too did fresh refusal by the farm board to change its sales policy in regard to government financed wheat.

Wheat closed unsettled, 14 to 1 cent lower, corn 3/4 off to 3/8 up, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents advance.

Acting as a cushion for the fall in wheat prices was announcement that despite big arrivals from the harvest fields the United States had wheat visible supply had increased but 1,205,000 bushels in the last week. Furthermore, the pressure of hedging sales was less pronounced than had been looked for.

Hurley Approves River, Harbor Fund to Operate Dredges

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP)—Allotment of $185,000 of rivers and harbors funds for the operations of two new dredges on the Missouri river from Kansas City to its mouth was approved today by Secretary Hurley. The funds will be used for the procurement and construction of the accessory plant and equipment of the dredges.

Corn and oats were bearishly affected by fine weather. July corn was an exception, offerings being scarce.

Half Year's Paving Program Completed

DES MOINES, July 6 (AP)—State highway commission records today showed that Iowa has completed almost one-half of its 600-mile road paving program for this year. In April, May and June 266.93 miles of paving were put down.

The secretary also approved an allotment of $70,000 for examinations, surveys and contingencies in the Kansas City district. The Kansas City engineer is engaged in a survey of the Missouri between St. Joseph, Mo., and Sioux City, Ia., to obtain detailed information for the design of the regulating works.

The federal government lost $204 on auctioning an auto seized by Minnesota prohibition agents. The car sold for $12, but the government owed $216 storage.

Synopsis of Preceding Installments
Commander Drake Roscoe of the United States navy is trying to break up a criminal band known as the Zones, directed by a chief who is said to look like Napoleon. With the aid of Dr. Stopford he makes his investigations. A Zones agent, Madame Czerna, makes the acquaintance of Roscoe and Stopford and falls in love with the latter. She deserts the Zones, and Stopford, to insure her safety, takes her to the Steamship Kuritania where he was formerly chief surgeon. Meanwhile, Roscoe has enlisted the aid of Deputy Commissioner Burke of the police department. Headquarters of the Zones are broken up, but are immediately reestablished in another place. Roscoe receives information that a number of Zones members will be present in a theater on the night of a party to be given by a woman known as the Duchesse de Greuze, whom he believes to be a Zones operative. He asks Madame Czerna to attend the theater in disguise and to identify the criminals. He himself is to be a guest of the Duchesse.

The red light in a vault below Manhattan had been glowing steadily for some time, and now:

"Report," directed a smooth voice, "of Sector captain covering apartment at present occupied by ex-Zone officer 2A—Madame Czerna."

"Report to hand," came a reply. "Sector Captain IAI, covering apartment, reports that Dr. Stopford and Commander Drake Roscoe visited at 5:30 p.m. Ned W. Regan joined them at 5:40. Sector captain's observations through glasses several times interrupted because Roscoe, at window of apartment, seemed to have detected glitter of lenses. Timed 5:45. Report ends."

"Report of H. Q. patrol covering lobby."

"To hand. Patrol confirms arrival of Roscoe and Stopford at 5:30 and Regan at 5:40. All remain in apartment. Report ends."

Immediately an order was issued. "Reinforce Group masters with A taxis and H.Q. cars. At least seven must cover. Withdraw two if necessary from theater area. Instruct Zone Officer IB to take over lobby. Advise H.Q. patrol. Roscoe, Regan, and Stopford must be covered to their destinations which must be instantly reported. Madame Czerna will be disguised. She must be identified and reported the moment she leaves the building. Move. Connect chief chemist."

The red light went out. A blue one appeared.

"Laboratory," a voice announced. "Give me the latest reports on cables."

"Everything in order, except Service 5. This will have to be fused from manhole on Forty-ninth street. Plant ready and party under Group master standing by. I suggest protection in case operations are suspected."

"Disconnect."

The blue light went out. A yellow one touched a button. The red light appeared, and:

"H.Q.," a voice reported. "Last order transmitted."

"Concentrate four firing groups," the man in the vault ordered, "in charge of a Sector captain, upon Forty-ninth street between Sixth and Broadway, at half after nine. Group master operating under the chief chemist may require cover for his work. Advise Sector captain in charge that nothing must be allowed to interfere with this. Instruct Zone Officer IA that all Sectors must be open for withdrawal of firing groups, but that central sectors must not be weakened for this purpose. Move. Connect Divisional chiefs in rotation."

That night the Roxane Theater was in a state of siege unsuspected by the crowds that thronged Broadway, hoping for a glimpse of the king, or, at least, of some one of the notabilities attending the gala performance. No less than forty windows commanding aspects of the theater had been commandeered by Deputy Commissioner Burke, and an armed man placed at each. The streets leading to and adjoining the theater area were thick with detectives, and inside the theater, one seat in every twenty was occupied by a police officer.

Deputy Commissioner Burke had made a workman-like job of protecting the royal visitors on the first occasion which seemed to call for such protection. Drake Roscoe, in the manager's office, admitted as much. "It looks to me, Burke," said he, glancing up at the chief of police, "that you can go home and go to sleep."

"I'm standing by," said Burke. "There's five million dollars, real stuff, in this theater tonight. If there hadn't been any Zones, it would have tempted somebody. I'm not looking for murder—unless it's yours. I'm looking for robbery. I won't allow the house lights to be lowered. I've got three men on the switchboards."

"If there was a hold-up in the theater," Roscoe mused aloud, "they'd never make a getaway through the men posted outside."

"I reckon they wouldn't," Burke conceded cautiously. "They'd have to make it under the biggest batch of lights in the world."

When the theater filled, the blaze of jewels from the box occupied by the royal party barely competed with Park avenue.

The historic Greuze pearls were here on the white neck of the beautiful duchesse, so that when Roscoe accompanied her to her box he found himself suddenly the target of a battery of opera glasses.

He had not anticipated being alone with her, but apparently the other members of the party had been unavoidably detained. It did not entirely suit his purpose, however. As he stared down at a distinguished-looking, white-haired lady who surveyed the house through large, tortoise-shell-rimmed spectacles, he hoped that his dazzling companion would not detect the signals.

"Orchestra B, Number 7," signaled Madame Czerna, "Zone officer."

Roscoe noted a thick-set blond man.

"Orchestra D, Numbers 11 and 12, Sector captain and Group master."

So the signals flashed, until fifteen members of the Zones had been identified. Meanwhile the duchesse exchanged nods and hand-waves with numerous acquaintances, some of them known also to Roscoe.

Then the performance to become historic in theatrical annals commenced. Ned W. Regan, known and respected by every crook in Christendom, prowled around the house, checking the dispositions of defending forces. Burke was back-stage somewhere. Nobody knew what to expect. Everybody was keyed up to an almost intolerable pitch.

Burke came out of the stage door and made his way around to the front of the house. Ned Regan was standing in the foyer.

"All clear everywhere," said Burke. "But the place bristles with gunmen. It's the Zones, Ned. But what is their game?"

"That was at fifty minutes after nine. At ten o'clock the Zones moved."

"Carry on according to plan. Disconnect."

"Division C. Four firing groups from Zone 3C concentrated to cover operations on Forty-ninth street. Chief chemist's party arrived. Chief chemist in charge. No opposition thus far. All units at action quarters. Report ends."

"Carry on according to plan. Disconnect."

"Division D," announced a deep, cultured voice. "Speaking from office of Sector captain in charge of Roxane theater. Zone units and state units as reported. Have readjusted position of six operatives. Drake Roscoe has three times left the box of the Duchesse de Greuze and been covered to telephone. Messages in cypher. Ex-Zone Officer Czerna identified. She is in touch by Morse with Roscoe. Two operatives detailed to cover. All units standing by. Report ends."

"Carry on according to plan. Ex-Zone Officer Czerna is not to be removed from the rolls, but must be brought to Headquarters without fail not later than ten-thirty. Disconnect."

At ten o'clock every light in the Roxane theater went out. Burke had just got back to the switchboard below the stage when it happened.

In the theater, pandemonium had broken loose. Women screamed. Nobody knew why. Men shouted. Nobody knew what they said. Then:

"Silence!" roared a mighty voice; and again: "Silence!"

That magnificent harsh voice achieved a momentary triumph. There was a lull, and:

"Keep your seats," Drake Roscoe continued. "There's no cause for alarm."

In flat denial of his assurance, a shrill scream burst from the royal box, then:

"Quick!" the duchesse grasped his hand, and he felt the contact of cool gems. "My pearls! Hide them. I am afraid."

"Right!" said he. "I will do my best. Stay here whatever happens."

"You are going to leave me?"

"I must."

Her long, slim fingers closed on his sleeve, groped upward . . . her arms clung to him.

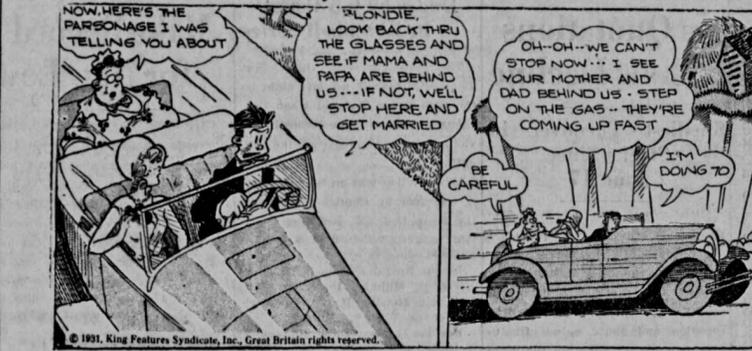

"Stay! I beg of you. I order you to stay!"

"Forgive me! I have my duty. He tore free—and was gone.

Matches, which immediately became extinguished, and some few pocket torches broke the gloom of the big building. Screams of the women became terrible. Then the first shot was fired—somewhere in the balcony. Struggling masses fought for the exits. A torch gleamed suddenly upon the face of a man who wore a black mask. The torch was dashed from the hand of its owner.

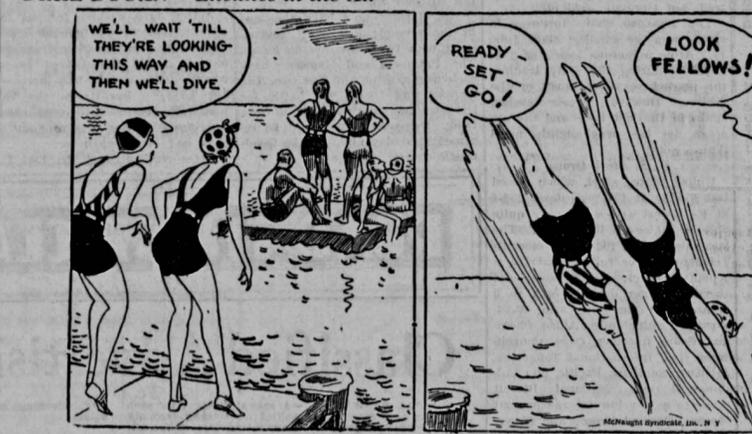

From the back of the theater, Stopford had seen Madame Czerna spring up at the moment that the lights failed. He was half-way to the seat she had occupied now, dazed, bruised, fighting desperately, striving to shelter the women he met, not knowing friend from foe. A ray from a torch shone blindingly on his eyes. He received a sickening blow on the temple—and crumpled

NEW YORK.—In the same theater where "The Green Pastures" is playing is the Times Square office of A New Yorker at Large. So you may understand I felt all atwitter the other night when the King and Queen of Siam came in to see the show.

So modest an appearance do they make that they arrived and departed almost unnoticed by the rest of the audience.

The Siamese monarchs have made themselves unusually popular by their courteous and courtly manners. After a fanfare of a welcome, they have settled into a quiet existence on the Whitelaw Reid estate at White Plains.

The King speaks French, but has some trouble with his English. For recreation he likes to walk about the grounds and chat with the gardeners. He brought his own servants from Siam, so the regular help at the Westchester estate have a vacation with pay.

They did.

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD.—Those few directors who consistently have produced hits are being given no breathing spell by the studios in these troublous times.

With a good deal of work still to do on "The Fall and Rise of Susan Lennox," Robert Leonard has been handed the Tibbett picture by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. And inasmuch as Tibbett only has a few weeks in the summer to devote to film activities, hurry is imperative.

As matters stand, actual shooting will not begin on "The Cuban" for three weeks or more. By this time, Bess Meredith and C. Gardner Sullivan will have the script in shape and Lupe Velez, who is to play opposite the star, will be nearing the end of her vaudeville tour.

Such scenes as can be made without her will occupy Leonard's attention first.

Of course, "The Cuban" will have music. The consensus of opinion hereabouts is that Tibbett and Chevalier can put over musicals, even if this type of film is not in general favor.

Virginia Valli is returning to the screen in "Night Life in Reno," a self-explanatory title. The film is being made at the Tec-Art Studio. And its sponsors hope to get it on the market before the epidemic of divorce stories gets under way.

This will be Virginia Valli's first picture since "Mister Antonio." It also marks her debut as Mrs. Charles Farrell although, of course, she'll stick to her own name. Another actress chosen for "Night-Life in Reno" is Carmelita Geraghty.

Paramount's Frank Heath, so the story goes, received a phonograph disc, a package of fiber needles and an unassigned note asking for an audition of the record. He put it on and a pleasant feminine voice told him of the speaker's screen experience, her work in vaudeville and her hope to play in a picture at the Paramount Long Island Studio. Finally, she introduced herself. It was Ruth Roland.

GETS HER WISH

Since she is almost the first well known player on record to ask for the feminine lead in a Western, it is only fair that Marion Shilling has been chosen to support Tom Keene in "Sundown Trail." Miss Shilling's sensible idea was that she wanted as much experience as possible—any kind. Of course, you recall that Tom Keene is none other than George Duryea. R-K-O-Pathe changed his name to one more suitable for a western star. "The Sundown Trail" company starts to work July 6 at Victorville, which ought to be hot enough, in faith.
