What Will Germany Do?

Employ Loans to Tide Over Small Towns Hardest Hit.

Editor's note: Germany now has her moratorium. What will she do with it? This is the third of a series of stories giving the industrial problems which German leaders must solve.

BERLIN, (AP)—American tourists returning from Germany this summer doubtless will be asked by all their friends:

"What did you see of the distress among Germans which brought affairs to such a critical pass and led President Hoover to propose a 12-month moratorium and reparations holiday?"

No Distress Apparent
If the returning tourists are conscientious they probably will reply that they saw very little distress among the population—at least very little more than they could see at home.

Such a reply would be entirely faithful to the facts easily observed during a brief stay in Berlin and several still briefer visits to other tourist towns and cities. But nevertheless the reply would be misleading.

Worst in Obscure Towns
In the first place, an imminent financial crash doesn't warn the man on the street that it is about to happen. And in the second place, Germany's greatest human distress is not in Berlin or in communities which practically live off the tourist traffic, but in obscure little villages and industrial towns.

For example, Glashutte, Saxony, is a little industrial town south of Dresden specializing in the manufacture of precision watches, chronometers and other precision instruments.

The bread-winners of Glashutte therefore may be classed as skilled workers of a type rather above the average. The population is 3,147 and there are in all 800 households. Of these 800 households 500 are living today off the unemployment dole or community aid, with more and more burden falling on the community because federal unemployment insurance takes care of the jobless worker only for the first 26 weeks of his joblessness.

Only three households out of every eight are able to say "well, we still can earn our living."

"At End of Rope"
Consequently mayors of such towns telegraph appeals to Chancellor Brüning such as "we are at the end of the rope," or "unless something happens soon our community will collapse."

Glashutte is not an isolated case. There are hundreds of German towns in the same predicament. Those in which only one worker out of four is unemployed consider themselves lucky.

To help these towns to tide over the present industrial depression is one of the chief hopes of German leaders in utilizing the breathing spell coming from President Hoover's plan.

Order Families to Vacate
DAVENPORT (AP)—Occupants of five houses along the Mississippi on the site of the proposed sea wall for the nine-foot channel dam were served with notice to vacate by Major Gen. Glen E. Edgerton, chief of the army engineers at Rock Island.

High School Players Repeat Presentation of Captain Applejack

"Captain Applejack," presented by high school dramatists last night in the natural science auditorium, will be repeated tonight by a partially changed cast.

The cast for tonight's production will be: Ambrosia Applejohn, Robert Barrick, Iowa City; Lush, James Jones, Cleveland, Ohio; Poppy Faire, Eleanor J. Davis, Oelwein; Mrs. Agatha Whatcombe, Barbara Busse, Atlantic; Anna Valeska, Helen Kramer, Marengo.

Tokyo Flight Foiled; Men to Try Again

Texan Aviators Storm Bound at Nome, Alaska

NOME, Alaska, July 10 (AP)—Storm bound here after the failure yesterday of their attempt to complete a non-stop flight from Seattle to Tokyo, Reg L. Robbins, and Harold S. Jones, Texan aviators, were resting today and planning another try.

No Flying at Nome
A few hours after they landed their white monoplane Fort Worth on the beach at Solomon, 30 miles east of here, almost half the way to Tokyo, rains, fog and winds, which contributed to the forced abandonment of the flight, shut in around Nome and stopped all flying.

Although downcast over the sudden dashing of their hopes yesterday, the flyers, who came here from Solomon with their refueling crew three hours after the forced landing, immediately began laying plans for a second attempt.

Consider Larger Motor
A larger motor, which would permit them to carry a heavier load of gasoline supply, may be installed in the Fort Worth, they announced. The monoplane, which has only a 225 horse power engine, behaved perfectly until 300 gallons of gasoline had been taken aboard through the hose from the refueling ship. The bumpy air prevented them from emptying the two planes steady enough to maintain contacts during the refueling operations.

U. S. Bows to Mexicans for Second Time

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—For the second time in a few weeks the United States was preparing tonight to express regret to Mexico for treatment of Mexicans in this country by state authorities.

The state department virtually completed drafting a reply to Mexico's protest at the arrest of Adolfo G. Dominguez, acting consul at Chicago, for contempt of a municipal court. Earlier in the day a report was received from Governor Emmerson of Illinois.

The Chicago incident was one of a series which aroused critical comment in Mexican newspapers recently.

On June 8 the American government expressed regret for the slaying of two Mexican students by deputy sheriffs at Ardmore, Okla.

More recently Ruben C. Pardo, a Mexican, was fatally shot at San Diego by federal immigration inspectors. The immigration bureau is now awaiting a report on the shooting.

Dominguez was arrested Tuesday charged by Judge Thomas Green of the Chicago municipal court with contempt of court following his appearance on behalf of a Mexican citizen.

The Illinois governor reported today that Judge Green had expunged the order against the consul to remove any possibility that his action might be considered unfriendly to Mexico.

Council Gets Resignation of Katzenmeyer

Second Ward Alderman Protests Paving Program

George Katzenmeyer, second ward alderman, presented his resignation from that position to the city council last night. The resignation, to take effect at once, was accepted by the council.

In quitting the post, Katzenmeyer declared that he was unable to fall in line with the paving program which most of the councilmen favored. He has been known as an advocate of economy.

First Time in Office
Katzenmeyer is a newcomer in the local political field. He has served on the city council only little more than three months, having taken the office last April.

The resignation was made through a letter to the mayor and aldermen as follows:

To the honorable mayor and city council of Iowa City, Iowa, Gentlemen:
I am hereby tendering my resignation as a member of the city council to take effect at once. In making this resignation I wish to express my appreciation to the voters in the second ward and the confidence which they placed in me, which was responsible for my election.
In the brief time that I have served, I only supported measures which I thought would be to the best interest of the tax payers.
Due to the fact that the majority of the council are inclined to want more paving, with the property owners carrying the burden, I feel I cannot serve further in this office.
George Katzenmeyer.

Katzenmeyer's resignation was the only matter of importance to be brought to the attention of the city council at last night's meeting. However, some interest was aroused over the long pending purchase of a furnace stoker for the city hall. On a motion to instruct the mayor and city clerk to enter into a contract with the Crescent company, a tie vote resulted. Mayor Carroll broke the tie in favor of the motion. The Crescent company had presented a low price on the stoker.

To Examine Governments
Three aldermen, Sherck, Mercer, and Ayres, will embark upon a survey of the local government of Johnson county under appointments made by Mayor Carroll last night. The survey is to be undertaken in conjunction with the Iowa League of Municipalities, and has as its object the reduction of the costs of local governments without impairing their efficiency.

A petition to install a 500 gallon oil tank at 404 E. Bloomington street was granted to William Boyce.

Defer Cigarette Permit
Uncertainty was evidenced in action taken on the petition of the Economy Cash grocery for a cigarette permit at 101 S. Clinton street. The city engineer was ordered to comply with the request of P. C. Jeans to make a survey in Block J, Chataqua Heights, for the purpose of establishing the location and level of the street.

Taking final action on an agreement entered into with the state previously, the council passed a resolution vacating Blynton road, north of Grand avenue.

Close Offices Saturdays
The offices of mayor, city clerk, and city engineer, will be closed on Saturday afternoons during the remainder of July and August. This action was taken upon the initiative of Alderman Sherck.

Reports accepted and approved by the council at last night's meeting included those of the city nurse, city treasurer, airport manager, and the city engineer on all recently completed paving and sewer work.

The council adjourned until July 24.

Promise Best Rum for Divorce Colony

RENO, Nevada, July 10 (AP)—Expressing relief to get away from New York "and all its jealousies," Belle Livingston, famous night club hostess, is all set to give Reno a thrill. She arrived here late yesterday and today said she was making arrangements to open a "small place" where the divorce colony may gather for "a cocktail hour" and a game of chemin de fer or baccarat.
"We'll have the best liquor in America, too," Belle related, "but I'll not handle it myself. The others can do that."

Demo Leader Opens Attack to Cut Tariff

Watson's Challenge on Question Accepted by Robinson

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 10 (AP)—Senator Robinson, Arkansas, Democratic senate leader, today answered a challenge of Senator Watson, Indiana, Republican senate leader, by announcing that "an earnest effort" will be made to reduce tariff rates when congress convenes in December.

Senator Watson last night challenged the Democratic leader to "assume the leadership in a fight to make a 'serious revision' of the present tariff law."

Aim At Tariff Reduction
"I feel justified in replying," Senator Robinson said here today, "that when the congress convenes an earnest effort will be made to reduce tariff rates, which, in the sound judgment of business men and economists have tended to restrict foreign markets for American products and to inspire retaliatory measures on the part of foreign countries."

Commenting on the Democratic leader's statement, Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, one of the authors of the Hawley-Smoot tariff act, said in Salt Lake City that he did not think a revision of the tariff would be made at the coming session of congress.

Flexible Provision
"Under the flexible provision of the present tariff act, either reductions or increases can be secured, upon specific items, without disturbing our whole financial and business structure," Senator Smoot said. The Utah senator called upon Senator Robinson to state what specific duties the Democrats proposed to reduce, "and in what amounts."

Iowa to Take Part in Hearing Freight Rate Appeal Evidence

DES MOINES, July 10 (AP)—Through representation on committees Iowa will participate in the preparation and hearing of evidence on the 15 per cent interstate freight rate appeal, Fred Woodruff of the Iowa railway commission explained.

Upon his return from a meeting of western state commissioners at Kansas City, Woodruff said Iowa had agreed to be represented by a cooperative committee of commissioners from seven states, who will sit with the interstate commerce commission.

Commerce Counsel J. H. Henderson of Iowa, in addition, is chairman of a legal committee and other Iowans will serve on committees to gather evidence.

Ames Has Claim on Rudy Vallee's Wife

AMES, July 10 (AP)—This city has a claim on the new Mrs. Rudy Vallee, formerly Fay Webb. She was born here 25 years ago as Fay Miller. With her mother, Mrs. Minnie Miller, she moved to Santa Monica several years ago.

Mrs. James Miller, her grandmother, now lives here and a cousin, Ferne Clark, is a resident of Boone, Boone.

Kansas City Star Sticks by Service Policy as Doherty Files 12 Million Libel Suit

Newspaper Does Not Intend to Swerve From Campaign for "Fair" Gas Rates; Charges Personal Gains

KANSAS CITY, July 10 (AP)—A $12,000,000 libel suit filed today by Henry L. Doherty, utilities magnate, was met by The Kansas City Star with the statement that the newspaper would not swerve from its campaign "to get fair gas rates for domestic consumers in the cities of Kansas and Missouri."

"The Star does not propose to be intimidated into any letup in its fight to force a reduction of rates to a fair level as determined by the constituted authorities of Kansas and Missouri, the public service commissions," the newspaper said.

Declared Action Only Bluff
"It is common tactics to bring libel suits in order to bluff off aggressive newspapers that are fighting the public's battles,"

Doherty, head of the Cities Service company, which through various subsidiaries supplies natural gas to Kansas City and other municipalities of Missouri and Kansas, alleged The Star had libeled him personally in a series of articles attacking rates and methods of his companies.

In addition to today's $12,000,000 suit, Doherty's representatives here said other damage actions would be brought against The Star.

Seeks Damage for Stockholders
The nature of the forthcoming litigation was not disclosed, but Doherty announced in New York several days ago he had instructed his attorneys to seek damages in behalf of the stockholders of the Cities Service company.

Sale of the company's curb stock, except the first preferred, has been ordered stopped in Kansas by the state securities commission and Doherty blamed The Star and Governor Harry Woodring, whom the utilities magnate described as "a tool" of The Star, for instigating his action, which Doherty is combatting in the courts.

Former Iowa Justice Dies of Pneumonia

CARROLL, July 10 (AP)—Bronchial pneumonia today caused the death of Judge Ben L. Salinger, 71, former judge of the Iowa supreme court. Although he had been in ill health for several months he had worked in his office until noon Thursday.

A native of Germany, Judge Salinger came to this country with his parents in 1871. After a short residence in Clarksville, the family moved to Chicago, but returned to Clarksville where he attended the public schools. He also was a student at Cornell college in Mt. Vernon and read law in Waverly, Webster City and Spencer.

At the age of 21, he was naturalized in Carroll and shortly after was admitted to the bar. After practicing for 15 years in Manning, he moved to Carroll. He was elected to the supreme court bench in November 1914.

He is survived by his widow, two sons and a daughter.

Trial Witness Kills Self to Avert "Tell All" Story to Jury

NEW YORK, July 10 (AP)—An hour before he was to have testified today, Traugott P. Keller, star witness in the state legislative committee's investigation into city affairs, committed suicide by jumping beneath the wheels of a subway express.

Keller, chief engineer of the dock department, who had been questioned secretly for three days, had volunteered to "tell all."

The whole story of bribes he had received for giving certain companies preferential treatment, and of bribes split with other city employees, he had pledged to lay before the committee.

He went to his office this morning and then started for the inquiry chamber. He entered the subway station at Bowling Green. As an express roared in, he threw himself onto the tracks.

Vote Power Plant at Lenox
LENOX (AP)—Citizens here voted, 469 to 168, to build a municipal electric and power plant costing not to exceed $100,000.

Reduce Gas and Light Rates
SIOUX CITY (AP)—The Sioux City Gas and Electric company announced the reduction of rates, effective Aug. 1, which will reduce the cost a total of $100,000 a year for Sioux City residents.

250 Convicts Live in Ease by Paying Guards, Says Paper

NEW YORK, July 10 (AP)—The Sun today said that 250 swindlers, bootleggers and other federal felons, sentenced to the Atlanta penitentiary, are housed in barracks at Ft. Wadsworth, Staten Island, enjoying comparative luxuries they procured by improper money payments.

The newspaper said the convicts outnumbered the soldiers at the fort and that they are lodged in quarters formerly used by army officers, obtaining them by "payments to persons in authority for transfers from Atlanta."

An investigation of the condition is in progress.

There are no cells in the Ft. Wadsworth barracks, no bars on the windows and no sign of a prison except the uniformed civilian guards. Work is practically unknown.

Child Copies Book Heroes, Says Sayers

Librarian Conference Opens With Four Lectures

TODAY'S PROGRAM
Senate Chamber, Old Capitol
9:30 a.m.—Address: "Can people read what they like?" Prof. Douglas Waples, University of Chicago; "Making your community library conscious," Georgia G. McAfee, Lima, Ohio.

10:30 a.m.—Discussion: "The buying of books for personal reading."

The aviator of tomorrow is the small boy who reads about Lindbergh today, providing that the book he reads catches his imagination, in the opinion of Mrs. Alfred H. P. Sayers, formerly of the children's department of the New York public library. Mrs. Sayers spoke at the opening session of the twelfth annual library conference yesterday afternoon.

"The librarian must know her books and be able to present them in a picturesque manner," she said.

Ames Librarian Speaks
Letha M. Davidson, of the Ames library, spoke on children's reading in the second address of the afternoon. A children's room in the library, with inviting surroundings, easy books and easy things to look at, stimulates the children's reading interest, without his observing the stimulation, she told her listeners.

"Nothing must come between the child and the book," Miss Davidson advised. "Danger comes in too much reading stimulation. The stimulation must be done quietly and unobtrusively."

Describes Reading Courses
Nathan van Patten, director of the Stanford university library, described the reading courses in use there to stimulate reading interest in students. Love of reading is easily instilled, he said, adding that browsing among books turns naturally into reading.

Western students read less than those in the eastern schools, in the opinion of Mr. van Patten.

Prof. Milton E. Lord, director of the university library and head of the library school closed the afternoon program with a description of the student library unit at Iowa Union.

Gunman Fails in Effort to Put Shot Racketeer on Spot

NEW YORK, July 10 (AP)—While nurses covered in fright, five gangsters fought inside a Brooklyn hospital today for the life of "one-armed Tony" Mongno, wounded beer racketeer.

With luck and numbers on their side, Tony's four friends won and tonight he was alive, survivor of two attempts by foes to kill him.

Police searched Brooklyn byways, expecting to find the body of the lone gunman who invaded the hospital to finish the beer man off.

He missed completing his errand of assassination only by chance, police believed, for after slipping by guards at the door, he missed the number of the room where Mongno lay recovering from wounds suffered in a bungled attempt to put him on the spot last Tuesday.

No Difference Which Elected, Says Senator

"Hoover's Moratorium Means for Stock Speculation"

UNIVERSITY, Va., July 10 (AP)—Asserting that both major parties in the United States have come under a single financial control centered in New York, Senator Smith W. Brookhart tonight told the institute of public affairs that until this control is broken it makes little difference which party wins an election.

In his address the Iowa Republican referred to the Hoover debt moratorium plan as a means of promoting stock speculation. The transportation and federal reserve acts were attacked as examples of the use of bi-partisan control to serve special interests and actions on questions of the tariff, power control and agricultural relief. All were subjects for his criticism.

Both Represent Monopolies
"There is little difference," he said, "in control of the Democrats by John J. Raskob and of the Republicans by Robert H. Lucas. Both represent predatory monopolies of the country and both set up political machines to attain the same end. Most issues that are fought out between them are sham battles and when they really want to accomplish something of importance, they get together and declare it is not a political subject."

Need Bi-Partisan Fighters
After citing alleged examples of combinations of the parties in the interests of financial dictators, Senator Brookhart said "the question in coming national conventions will be whether or not men can be nominated to fight this various bi-partisan scheme in one or both parties. If the people fall in both parties, then it matters little how the election may go. If a candidate is nominated in either party who will fight for the rights of the people upon all of these great questions, he will elected by an overwhelming majority."

Cites Transportation Act
The transportation act was cited by Senator Brookhart as an example of the result of a bi-partisan combination which "gave seven billion dollars of watered value to railroads and a rate of return upon all of it greater than the ability of the American people to produce."

"The federal reserve act which collects surplus credit of the country in New York for speculative purposes likewise was put over by partisan support," he said. "Later, when the federal reserve board planned a general deflation of the country and of the farmer in particular, every member of the board was a Democrat but they called in class A directors and the advisory council, and a large majority of these were Republicans. Then all together they planned and put on the most devastating deflation that ever happened in the history of our country."

Demos Support Republicans
"When we come to the tariff question, we also find in reserve enough Democrats ready to support reactionary Republicans in passing the most offensive tariff law to the countries of the world that we have ever passed."

"When we get to the power trust, they shout 'there is no trust.' Then its big leaders spend vast sums to elect United States Senators in the Republican party and to become a candidate for president in the Democratic party." In this connection specific mention was made of Owen D. Young.

Parsons College Will Use Clubs as Dorms

FAIRFIELD, July 10 (AP)—Parsons college officials announced today that the college intends this coming year to use as general dormitories the Elizavir, the Empyrean sorority and the Alpha Kappa Chi, Zeta Theta Gamma and Omega Kappa fraternities houses.

Dr. Clarence W. Green, president of the school, said that the five buildings have been the property of the college and this action does not mean that these organizations are unwelcome on the campus, as they will exist as before.

Dramatic Writer Killed

CINCINNATI, Ohio, July 10 (AP)—Carl B. Adams, 31, dramatic critic of the Cincinnati Enquirer, poet and author, was killed instantly today in an automobile accident near Lexington, Ky. His skull was fractured and neck broken.

Country Club Members to Visit Grinnell

Dinner to Follow Golf Matches; Women Get Invitation

A number of Iowa City Country club golfers will journey to Grinnell tomorrow where they will meet the club team there in the annual exchange matches between the two cities. Thursday morning a special invitation was extended to the women members to make the trip.

The 18 hole matches will be played in the afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock. Those making the trip from here will be entertained at a dinner following the play. Special entertainment will be accorded those not participating in the golfing.

Members from here who have made plans to attend are: Tom Harris, club professional; Fred McChesney, Herbert Ries, C. E. Bloom, Martin Shoupe, W. J. Harter, Vern Pales, C. L. Updegraff, Fred Kent, Clifford Palmer, Harold Hands, Weldon Gipple, Harry Bremer, Glen Griffith, Ed Rate, Fred Seaman, C. L. Parsons, and George Prohwein.

Two silver cups were awarded to women members of the Country club yesterday at Burlington. In the team play competition Mrs. Harold Hands, Mrs. Henry Walker, Mrs. George Koser, and Mrs. J. Hubert Scott were awarded a cup for one year by women members of the Burlington Country club. In the approaching and putting contest the local women won the engraved cup for another year. At the end of that time, another match will be played to decide which club will possess the cup.

Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Hands and Mrs. J. Ned Smith for best score with handicaps. In the blind bogey tournament which was played in the afternoon, honors went to Mrs. Walker and Mrs. Smith.

Women members of the Iowa City Country club will be hostesses to women members of the Burlington Country club July 31.

Carnation Rebekah Lodge 376 Installs Officers for Year

Carnation Rebekah lodge, No. 376, held installation of officers at the regular meeting last night in the I.O.O.F. hall.

Mary Kolarik, inside guardian; Mrs. Ray Wagner, outside guardian; Mrs. Mable Fitzgerald, financial secretary; Mildred Foster, recording secretary; and Eleanor Ballard, treasurer.

Refreshments were served during the social hour which followed the program. Mrs. Kriel acted as chairman of the refreshment and program committee.

Mrs. P. C. Coast Honors Visitor

Bess Portwood of Greenwood, Miss., was honored at a breakfast at 10 a.m., Thursday at the home of Mrs. Preston C. Coast, 122 E. Church street. Other out of town guests, who are in Iowa City for the summer were Mrs. Jack Funk of Evanston, Ill., and Mrs. Helen Darrough Gay of Ft. Worth, Texas.

Due to cheaper food and better buying power over 1930, western turkey production is expected to show a marked increase this year.

Personal Notes

Jack R. Vollersten, who will be a sophomore law student in the fall, visited in Iowa City yesterday. He returned to his home in Davenport last night.

James Carroll, who will graduate from the college of law next June, and Louis Carroll, graduate of the college of law, returned to their home in Davenport yesterday afternoon after a brief visit in Iowa City.

H. F. Willenbrock and Fred Cavanaugh of the Willenbrock Auto company went to the sales meeting at Cedar Rapids last night.

Mrs. Emma Ahrens 222 E. Bloomington street, is spending the summer in California.

Mrs. Elsie Forrest of the child welfare department at State Teachers college, Cedar Falls, came yesterday to visit the child welfare department at the university.

F. P. Peck of the United States immigration service offices at Marine City, Mich., is visiting at the W. D. Moreland home, 222 1-2 E. Washington street.

Dr. and Mrs. M. H. Brinker of Oklahoma City, Okla., are visiting friends in Iowa City for a few days. Dr. Brinker graduated from the college of medicine in 1930, and has been stationed during the last year as an intern at St. Anthony's hospital in Oklahoma City.

Jeanette Williams, '31 of Williamsburg, is visiting Myrtle Anderson, secretary of the college of commerce, this week end.

Hoover Flays Short Sales of Speculators in Wheat Operations

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—Into the growing controversy over government wheat policies, President Hoover tonight hurled a vigorous condemnation of short sales by speculators.

Such activities, he said, have but one purpose, and that is to depress prices. In addition they rob the farmer of his rightful income, the president added, and tend to destroy returning public confidence.

His denunciation was addressed to a "limited number of speculators" and not intended to refer to legitimate hedging operations.

Visiting Instructor in Dramatics Began Study of Stage While in Canadian Prep School for Boys

If anyone should know America it is Eugene C. Davis, director of the all state high school players, for Mr. Davis has studied in Canada and traveled all over the United States.

Mr. Davis began studying dramatics when he entered the boy's preparatory school at Woodstock, Ont. He continued his study at the University of Manitoba where he gained his M. A. degree.

By playing under Barrett H. Clark, play reader for the Theater Guild, in Chataqua, N. Y., and in the American Academy of Dramatic Art at New York City, Mr. Davis gained more training. Working in the Pasadena playhouse under Gillmor Brown, the producing director of the playhouse, gave him still more experience.

In his years of acting in all parts of the United States, Mr. Davis has played in every form of play, from light comedy to Shakespearean drama; from "Grumpy" in the play of that name to Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice." Other plays in which Mr. Davis has taken part are: "Lightnin'"; "The Toy Maker of Norumbeg"; "The Tempest"; "As You Like It"; and "Buddy Pulls the Strings."

Colonel Gaw Says Chicago World's Best

CHICAGO, July 10 (AP)—A bona fide Kentucky colonel who boasts that he came here 21 years ago with "only a puppy dog and a stick of licorice to kill my appetite," is Chicago's first "official greeter."

From the licorice stage, the new greeter, Colonel George D. Gaw, has risen through business to a position of wealth and influence, which, he said, he felt he owed to the goodness of Chicago.

Col. Gaw said today, Chicago was the world's best city and he was eager to advertise its virtues far and wide.

Col. Gaw will have at his disposal a snow white automobile and two snow white motorcycles for police outriders to escort the city's distinguished guests.

The car and motorcycles are expected to arrive next week and on their official maiden trip, Col. Gaw will take Mrs. Lou Gaw, of Owensboro, Ky., his mother, about the city to see the sights.

His welcomes to the city's guests, he said, would be anything but "high hat," as he termed it.

"I can speak only English—but I can smile and be courteous in every language," he explained.

Senator Admits to Foreign Query on Smoot-Hawley Bill

MEDICINE PARK, Okla., July 10 (AP)—Senator Elmer Thomas, Democrat, of Oklahoma, confirmed today the statement of Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, that he had communicated to foreign nations the provisions of the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill in advance of its passage with a request for information as to how the legislation would affect foreign trade.

Senator Thomas claimed that results of the tariff bill since its passage "justified my action."

Limbs Burnt, Boy Staggered to Gas Station

NEW YORK, July 10 (AP)—A youth who staggered critically burned into a Bronx filling station today set in motion a police investigation of crime they described as one of the most brutal in recent annals.

The victim, Spencer Fox, 21, related a story of having been lured to a cottage, drugged and set afire in bed. Before lapsing into unconsciousness he cried:

"They're after me! They tortured me because I wanted to tell the truth!"

Detectives worked on several theories, one of which concerned a statement of the youth made to employees of the gas station, that he had been set afire in a bungalow of Louis Raffi, who had not been located.

Raffi, according to Fox's statements, agreed to hire him as a soda dispenser. The Raffi bungalow is a half mile from the filling station where Fox collapsed. Physicians said the flesh was virtually all burned off the boy's arms and legs and they couldn't see how he walked that distance.

Syndicate of Bankers to Aid City of Detroit

DETROIT, July 10 (AP)—Organization of a syndicate of bankers and industrialists to lend Detroit $50,000,000 with which to meet short term obligations coming due by Sept. 15 was underway tonight.

Plans for organization of the syndicate were announced by City Controller G. Hall Roosevelt, who said the industrial units in the group would be the Fisher Finance corporation, the Chrysler Motor corporation and the Packard Motor Car company. Mr. Roosevelt said the Ford Motor company also might enter the syndicate.

U. S. Accepts Bid to Geneva

American Government to Send Strong Support

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—America added active impetus to the world disarmament movement tonight by wholeheartedly accepting a formal invitation to attend the league of nations general disarmament conference next February.

On instructions of President Hoover, the American government dispatched a note to the secretary general of the league, indicating full participation by the United States. "The acting secretary of state of the United States of America has received," the acceptance read, "the note of the secretary general of the league of nations dated June 13, 1931, in which, pursuant to a resolution of the council adopted on May 22, he extended an invitation to the American government to participate in the general disarmament conference to be convened at Geneva February 2, 1932."

"The American government is happy to accept this invitation and welcomes the opportunity for cooperating with the other nations in a common effort to reduce the menace and to lighten the burden of armaments under which the world is suffering."

The problem of the American representation at the Geneva conference has not yet been settled, officials said tonight. Frank B. Kellogg, former secretary of state and now justice of the world court, has been mentioned as a possible chief of the American delegation. Hugh S. Gibson, American ambassador to Belgium and close friend of the president probably will be selected for a post on the delegation, officials said.

Racket Murder Toll Totals 24 in County

CHICAGO, July 10 (AP)—Cook county's 1931 gang and racket murder toll was increased to 24 today with the slaying of Frank Callendo and Frank Palko, alleged beer flat owners.

Three persons were arrested by police in connection with the Callendo killing. They are: Mrs. Mary Hall, his admitted common law wife, Frank Schultz, aged caretaker at the slain man's place, and Clarence Stojak, a patron. All three, police said, has been seen at the flat at various times during the night.

CAR KILLS FOUR. John J. Driscoll (above), of Jamaica Plain, Mass., has carved a record of tragedy with his automobile, according to authorities. Driscoll is said to have killed four persons in four accidents with his car in recent years. He is shown leaving court, where he appeared from a two months' jail sentence imposed for his latest fatal crash in which a woman was killed.

In Chicago they stand on cakes of ice to keep cool. Or at least Traffic Policeman James Brennan does. He is shown atop a cake of ice on one of Chicago's busiest corners.

TOO WARM? HERE ARE SOME WAYS TO KEEP COOL. Hot? Who wouldn't be with the mercury soaring to around the 100 mark? But New York's millions are finding a way to keep cool. They flock to the beaches. The above picture showing a section of the hundreds of thousands of bathers at Coney Island proves that. This is a typical Sunday crowd.

At Coronado Beach, Cal., they beat the heat wave by going aquaplaning. Steve Patrick is holding Mrs. D. W. Heath who in turn is supporting Mary Sullivan.

TO SEARCH FOR LOST ENEMY. With the announcement by General Umberto Nobile, famous Italian aviator and explorer, of his forthcoming venture into the frozen Northland in search of Captain Roald Amundsen, who was lost while seeking survivors of the ill-fated Italia disaster in 1928, another chapter is added to the peculiar relations that have existed between the two men. Close friends during the brilliant exploit of the airship Norge when, with Lincoln Ellsworth, they flew across the North Pole from Spitzbergen to Alaska, events which followed the flight made them bitter enemies. When disaster overtook Nobile's Italia expedition, despite the enmity which existed, Amundsen was quick to fly to the relief of Nobile. That attempt to help his enemy was the last ever heard of the great Norwegian explorer. Now there is hope that he may be alive, based on the story of an American explorer, Anthony Fiala, who said he left a stock of provisions on Rudolf Island in a previous expedition and that he had told Amundsen of the cache. Nobile believes that if Amundsen is alive he will have found his way to the store mentioned by Fiala, and it is there that he will seek the man who was once his friend. It is a strange story of two avowed enemies each risking his life for the other. If that be proof of enmity, the world could get along with a little more of it.

FLYING THEIR WAY TO FAME. Two beauties of the footlights, who are to be starred in the films, are shown as they boarded a plane at New York for a trans-continental flight to Hollywood and fame. They are Irene King, of Kansas City, and Nona Mozelle, of Dallas, Texas. Miss Mozelle already has been engaged to appear in a new Fox picture.

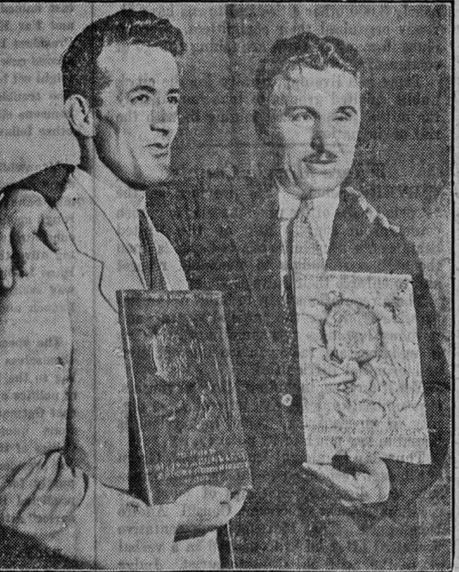

Never before in circus history, has an individual star attracted as much attention from the public, as Tom Mix, the principal feature of the 1931 Sells Floto Circus. Mix, for 10 years was one of the biggest draws in moving pictures. During the past two seasons he has established himself as the premier star of circuses. He comes here with Sells Floto for an afternoon and night exhibition on July 15th.

NOT BACKWARD. Mary Carlton, formerly of New York, was the first entrant in a "perfect back" contest to be held in Los Angeles.

NOT A GOOD BOY. Because Violet Walker, 19, really did not look very much like a husky male hitch-hiker, her dream of transporting herself in that modern manner from Buffalo, N. Y., to Texas was spoiled by a vigilant Philadelphia policeman. When haled before a magistrate with her two bonafide boy companions, Violet, shown as a "boy," said she ran away from home when her husband deserted her.

RUDY AND HIS BRIDE. Rudy Vallee, the crooning idol, and his bride, the former Fay Webb, movie actress, who were secretly married Monday night in West Orange, N. J., posed for this picture in New York Thursday morning. The news of the marriage did not leak out until Wednesday night.

VET FINDS NEW ART IN GLASS. Harry A. Clanton, World War veteran of North Carolina, has discovered a new glass decorating process which has been described as revolutionary. An accidental explosion of chemicals that splattered a container with a marvelous pattern of variegated colors enabled Clanton to work out the new system. Two vases treated with the novel coloring process were brought to the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C., where an official said he had never seen anything before like the remarkable color work. Clanton is shown with the vases.

SINGS 'MID DISHES. There have been singing chefs and songsters in the bathtub, but here's a dishwasher beset with a harmony complex. Jack Beauvais, 21, of Hyde Park, Mass., a dishwasher in a Cambridge five-and-ten store restaurant, is said to be on the brink of a remarkable career in song. Hailed by critics as the youth with the "million-dollar" voice, Jack (above) is making his debut in radio.

CONSUL RELEASED. Adolfo Dominguez (above), acting Mexican consul in Chicago, was released on his own recognizance after his arrest for alleged contempt of court caused an investigation by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson of Illinois.

BOY OF 15 FACES MURDER TRIAL. Varner Corry (right), 15 year old Chicago schoolboy who admitted he shot a policeman to death, is shown with his defense attorneys in court. The policeman's widow has demanded that Corry be tried for murder.

A City Responsibility

THE UNITED States government is spending millions of dollars to make the bicentennial celebration of George Washington's birthday, from February 22 to Thanksgiving day, 1932, the greatest affair of its kind in the history of the country.

A commission has been established which is preparing and disseminating vast amounts of information on George Washington in addition to suggesting programs for local celebrations. The nation wide affair will not be held in any one place but will be composed of local celebrations scattered throughout the country.

Little has been done in Iowa City to date, although local patriotic organizations will doubtless carry on George Washington programs during most of next year. No city commission has been established, nor has the city as yet taken any official cognizance of the national plans. It is not too early for Iowa City to begin work on the project as nearly 3,000 other cities and towns have already organized their committees. Service clubs in many of them are taking charge of community plans.

There is a live opportunity for the city's public spirited groups to take immediately the initial steps toward joining in with the rest of the nation.

Where Morale Counts

SEVERE penalties are provided in the penal codes of the various states to punish contempt of court. Most of the United States' efficiency in its courts depends upon the ability of judges to command respect and to enforce their rulings.

These regulations help to build up an impressive front for the judicial system, and in many instances this same impressiveness is an important factor in ironing out civil and criminal difficulties.

Yet if anyone, including Mexican consuls, is permitted to defy with impunity the dignity of an American court the system is bound to lose much of its potency.

Thursday Municipal Judge Thomas Green of Chicago responded to international pressure and dismissed contempt of court proceedings against Mexican Consul Adolfo Dominguez. The Mexican representative was cited after he had engaged in a verbal altercation with the Chicago jurist. Judge Green said in dismissing the case (his statement was forwarded to the secretary of state's office) that the proceedings were quashed "to remove any possible belief that my act was any indication of my feeling toward Mexico or the Mexican people or was intended to create any unfriendly relations between the two countries."

It seems quite unfair that for the sake of maintaining delicate international relations a foreign agent should be permitted to violate the law or be shown special privileges that would not be extended to an American citizen. Harmonious relations with Mexico are all important, but there should be some machinery to dispose of cases of this nature that would not involve a strain on diplomatic ties.

Special hearings with Mexican representatives sitting in might prove feasible, but some sort of discipline should be forthcoming for Consul Dominguez. Upholding the morale of United States courts is difficult enough without permitting contempt cases to go altogether unscathed because of international complications.

Women in Business

IN A NEW book, Mad Money, by Rex Beach, women are pictured as having shown the effects of the market crash much less than men. The modern woman merely applied makeup to hide signs of emotion, while men generally soft-shoed about with appropriately haggard faces. The book does not indicate whether the reason lies in the fact that men still outnumber women in business by a vast majority.

Yet women are going to play a great part in the financial world of the future, Mr. Beach insists. They have not taken their freedom with half as much intoxication as poo-pooing mankind would like to believe.

Women's freedom has increased immeasurably since the war and promises to keep right on. After all, there are few reasons why women cannot compete with men on an equal business. She may retain her fictional characteristic as "the weaker sex" but physical strength takes a back seat to mental dexterity in the business world.

If Mr. Beach speaks the truth, woman has fewer illusions about her own invincibility than has her male competitor, and the stock market is much more comfortable for the operator who is stripped of illusions. There is room in Mr. Beach's theory for speculation as to whether there would have been any Wall street inflation and therefore a Wall street collapse had women held the reins.

Probably the correct conclusion is that women appear adept at business because they are new to it and it to them, and that they have not yet been broken to the mold, rather than that they will display increasing power in increased contact with the commercial machine.

Hay Fever and Rubber Tires

WHAT MAY prove a boon to automobile owners in the near future may spell tragedy for hay fever sufferers. As Thomas Edison's experiments in obtaining rubber from giant goldenrods progress the once hazy possibility becomes a fearsome reality.

Goldenrod and ragweed, two of the most provocative plants to the delicate nasal passages of the hay feverite, are now the subject of complaint and resolution to extinction on the part of organized hay fever patients throughout the United States. If the government should decide to avail itself of Edison's offer to make use of his development, an emergency to the proportions of drought relief and debt proposals would result.

Since a national problem would most certainly arise and an astonishingly large proportion of taxpayers be affected, and as long as there is more than one way of exterminating a cat, the government might better stick to its old methods of obtaining its rubber, unless it first makes certain it can confine the goldenrod raising to restricted areas.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

Dr. Susan Kingsbury of the Bryn Mawr college department of social economy and social research offers an interesting angle on the world's economic situation, one that is, however, impracticable. Her remedy would include "muddling" along until one group is led to resist the depression at the expense of other groups; developing a well planned economic program; and third, opening up the markets of Asia and eastern Europe by raising their standards of living.

Great Britain will tell Dr. Kingsbury that her last named project is unfeasible, in that Asiatics and Far Easterners are stolid, stagnant races. President Hoover will inform the professor, in the second case, that he has exactly that idea. Anyone might set her to rights on her first named measure. The trouble with "muddling" along, waiting for someone else to do something, is the danger of the other fellow doing exactly the same thing.

Meanwhile, Germany swings into action by earmarking some $46,000,000 to repay loans from German banks that helped the government over some rough spots last month. As a result the banks can concentrate on reviving industries instead of keeping alive the government. At the same time, Dr. Hans Luther, president of the German reichsbank, was seeking a loan of about $480,000,000 from French and English reserve banks.

The speed with which all nations are aligning themselves with Hoover's moratorium is gratifying to the initiator, at least, but also to students of politics everywhere. Skeptics have already forecast Germany's inability to pay next years reparations quota, the moratorium notwithstanding. Critics of the Hoover administration have charged the president with devising the debt postponement purely for selfish reasons. Others have already predicted Hoover's platform based on the "world savior" attitude.

But no matter what the outcome finally evolves itself into, Hoover will justly go down in history as one of the most diplomatic presidents that ever lived, who had the entire world at his feet, and who gave every country under the sun a new opportunity to get back on its feet, through an exercising of real executive ability.

The New York Daily News says that wealthy New York convicts have "purchased" summer transfers from the penitentiaries at Atlanta and Leavenworth to brighter and sunnier confinement in army detention camps. In that case it would pay such patrons of our better prisons to save the money they might expend trying to obtain a parole or for bribing their way out of their cells and take advantage of the opportunity to get a real vacation at the government's expense. Now, if such conditions actually exist, as the News declares, it might be well for the government to ship some carloads of nice, new boulders for the boys to play with. That might take the cheer out of blue skies and sunny weather for the striped suit elite.

The skeleton of a boy, moldering to dust after 10 years of imprisonment in an air shaft in a Muncie, Ind. high school, was identified as that of a 16 year old orphan who disappeared in December 1922. That reminds us of a fantastic tale of the man imprisoned in an ice pack, whose wife waited 70 years until, as scientists predicted, his body would shift with the formation to a certain spot. She lived at the designated location until the phenomenon occurred and was astonished and bewildered to find her 20 year old husband's body in a perfect state of preservation, while she was a decrepit, wrinkled woman of 90. That, in turn, arouses speculation about the possibilities of monkey glands and what a funny world this would be if rejuvenation was practical.

Il Duce and his Fascist organization will stand behind a drastic armaments cut at Geneva next February if his promise to Secretary of State Stimson holds. That and peace are the two objectives of Italy from now on, he implied in their interview recently. It is an entirely different Mussolini, it seems, who says, "Peace will lead to economic recovery," from the oppressor of Catholic principles in the church-state imbroglio. And it becomes more and more enigmatical to probe this seeming diplomatic anomaly after his most recent edict prohibiting Fascists to affiliate with Catholic Action societies.

Within a year it will be possible to make regular transatlantic flights with almost complete safety if a projected series of sea dromes are constructed according to schedule. Every 350 miles between the United States and England, one of these structures will be anchored in the deep. That will do away with the uncertainty of weathering midocean storms to the extent that a "jitney" line could clean up on the proposition.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRK SIMPSON

WASHINGTON—One man who knows nothing whatever about where, how or when the Hoover debt and reparations holiday plan originated has been discovered.

He is the Hon. Jim Watson of Indiana, Republican leader in the senate.

"Hoover alone is responsible," Senator "Jim" Watson declares, probably regretfully denying rumors that the idea might have been his.

GERMS OF IDEAS

Another senator, however, a French one, De Jouvenel, thinks former Senator Sackett of Kentucky, now ambassador to Germany, was the actual proposer, having been worked on by German statesmen. M. de Jouvenel, however, admittedly was just guessing.

Mr. Hoover himself has not indicated, formally or informally, how the project originated. Yet even as Senator Watson was issuing his regretful disclaimer out in Indiana came cable reports from Belgium that did throw a bit of light on the matter.

Ambassador Hugh Gibson said: "I was present when the scheme was germinated in the president's mind." There you are, an authoritative confirmation for the Watson notion that nobody but Hoover thought up the idea. But Gibson went further. "Alarming news picturing the situation in Germany brought about his decision," he added.

What news? How transmitted? Maybe there is something to M. de Jouvenel's idea about Sackett's share in it all at that. He was over about then.

But whatever the facts about its inception, there is no escape from the conclusion that the Hoover plan is a unique as well as perhaps the most important peace-time incident in American history to date. Think it over.

For one thing, no previous diplomatic negotiations of anything like the importance of the Mellon-Laval conferences in Paris were ever so openly conducted.

Anybody with an adequate short-wave radio receiver could, and no doubt did, listen in on Mellon radio-phone exchanges with Washington as the conferences proceeded.

"OPENLY ARRIVED AT"

Obviously, to avoid garbled accounts, prompt publication of the substance of what was said was necessary. Talk about "open covenants, openly arrived at." Even passing of senate treaty debates in secret does not measure up to that. Gibson said also that if President Hoover had been "vote chasing" he might have done something else. That may be. But if any other

First Marriage License in County Granted in 1839; Total Now 20,457 Issued by 21 District Court Clerks

The first marriage license to be issued from Johnson county's first court house was recorded June 21, 1839, over 92 years ago. The country was still young and Iowa was a territory.

The license was issued to Elijah Ershon and Sarah Harris, both of Johnson county, by Luke Douglas, Johnson county's first clerk of the district court. The couple was married by Justice of the Peace William Abby, June 23, 1839.

The first court house was located in the town of Napoleon, three miles south of Iowa City, from 1838 to 1842. The town was later sold to Mr. McCallister and is now a farm. Since that time there have been three other court houses. One was built in 1842 on the present site of the Johnson county court house. The next to be built was constructed over the foundation of the previous one. The building that is now in use was constructed in 1899.

The first marriage regulations to be used in Johnson county are contained in the following marriage license that was copied direct from the one used in 1839.

"Territory of Iowa; Johnson county: To any person legally authorized to solemnize marriage:

$1,200 Given for Emotional Effects Study

A money grant of $1,200 extending to Feb. 1, will be used in continuing the research on emotional effects of motion pictures in connection with children which is being carried on under the direction of Prof. Christian A. Ruckmick of the department of psychology.

Notice that the grant, which is from the Payne foundation fund, will be extended for next year has just been received by Professor Ruckmick.

The experimental studies for which the money will be used to determine what kind of episodes in motion pictures particularly appeal to children. While the child watches the picture, his emotional reactions are recorded by an electrical apparatus furnished with electrodes upon which the boy's hands are placed.

Sponsoring investigations in many large universities, the Payne foundation aids in promoting various studies concerning the effects of motion pictures. "Does Infant Hear When First Born?" Discussed by Irwin

"Does an infant hear when first born? For over a century there has been controversy on this question," Orvis C. Irwin of the department of psychology and child welfare stated in a psychology lecture last night in the chemistry auditorium. It had been generally accepted that the infant does not hear at birth, Mr. Irwin said.

This view was based on the fact that the inner ear of the infant is not fully developed at birth, its middle ear being filled with liquid instead of air as in the case of the adult. "However," Mr. Irwin went on, "there is excellent evidence that it can hear, in that its sense organs are complete."

An infant shows little pain in its lowest extremities; it responds to light stimulus in the same way that it does to sound; it has a well developed taste; it responds to colors; and about half of the infants studied in the laboratory responded to odor stimulation. Mr. Irwin said these and many other results were the findings of studies carried on here.

Delegates of Psychology to Meet Today

Room E105, east hall, will be the scene of an investigation of the project method of psychology teaching this morning as representatives from colleges and junior colleges gather for a half day's conference.

The meeting, which is under the direction of Lonzo Jones of the department of psychology, will convene from 9 to 12 o'clock.

Round table discussions will feature the program, beginning with a symposium in which teachers who have used the project method will speak. Practical classroom methods will be informally discussed and the classroom experiment demonstrated by Donald A. Rothschild, staff lecturer in psychology.

A lecture on "A restatement of the main principles involved" will be given by Dean Carl E. Seashore of the graduate college. Contributions by way of reports, questions, and suggestions are expected to stimulate the meeting. A conference luncheon will be held at Iowa Union at 12:15 p. m.

Iowa Elopers Held for Robbing Hitch Hiker in Wyoming

CHEYENNE, Wyo., July 10 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Chambers, believed to have eloped at Hancock, Ia., Sunday, and Earl Butterbaugh, 18, also of Hancock, were held for investigation here today.

The trio was arrested after a hitch hiker reported he had been held up on the highway near here yesterday. Sheriff George J. Carroll said the description of the hold-ups tallied with that of the prisoners.

Butterbaugh said they had stopped a hitch hiker but denied they held him up or took anything from him.

The hitch hiker could not be located today and it was expected Mr. and Mrs. Chambers and Butterbaugh would be released.

Athletics Go 14 Innings to Overcome Yankees 8-6; Gehrig Hits Homer

Lou Wallops Homer No. 22 to Tie Score

Earnshaw Holds Yanks Scoreless for 5 Innings

NEW YORK, July 10 (AP)—For the seventh time this season the New York Yankees engaged in an extra-inning conflict today and for the sixth time they went down in defeat as the Philadelphia Athletics beat them out, 8 to 6, in 14 innings.

Max Bishop's triple in the fourth, a wild pitch by Ed Wells, Al Simmons single and a triple by Jimmy Foxx gave the champions their margin of victory. Big George Earnshaw, who relieved Walberg in the seventh, held the Yankees scoreless through the five extra innings.

The first two Yankees up in the fourth hit safely, but Earnshaw forced the next batter to pop up and then struck out the next two to end the contest with a flourish.

But for Lou Gehrig, the A's would have won in the regulation time. Two Yanks were out in the ninth when Babe Ruth singled and Gehrig deposited his twenty-second home run of the year in the right bleachers to tie the score, 6 to 6.

Sportively Speaking

By Bill Rutledge

When either George Earnshaw or Lefty Grove trot into the pitcher's box for the Athletics, their opponents might as well give up. Put those two fellows on any major league team and their mates could begin to plan on how they would spend their world series money.

Not only can they hurt their own games to victory, but they're ready at any time to rescue a companion pitcher in distress.

Yesterday afternoon Rube Walberg got himself in a jam at the Yankee stadium. He was pitching along nicely until the ninth inning. He got his signals mixed up and threw a home run ball to Columbia Lou Gehrig and the lead had been working to protect was swept away. At this critical point Earnshaw rushed in and the Yanks might as well have tucked away their bats for the day. The only reason that the struggle was extended the five overtime innings was because of the tardiness of the Mack men in obtaining a run or two. As far as George was concerned, he could go home as soon as his mates blasted out a few hits.

Since the Twilight league has been converted into a thrilling nip and tuck race, home town baseball teams of neighboring teams have been clamoring for games with the league teams. Racine's, Academy, Bremer's, and the Odd Fellows are seldom without a Sunday game.

An attractive intra-city conflict will be staged Sunday afternoon at the new municipal field with the Hotel Jefferson nine, under the tutelage of Joe Gerber, and the Moose, under N. J. Alexander's guidance. The public is invited and will not be assessed an admission price. Your face will be your pass, and it will not be punched, as they say.

Pauba, Vogel Will Pitch at Athletic Field

The only game scheduled for a local diamond tomorrow will be an all Iowa City affair when the newly organized Hotel Jefferson team and the Moose meet at the municipal athletic field at 2:30 p.m.

Joe Gerber, organizer and manager of the hotel aggregation, stated yesterday that his probable starting battery will be Coach Otto Vogel, university baseball mentor, on the mound, and Elmo Nelson behind the bat.

Pauba will start in the box for the lodge outfit, with Myers as a battery mate, according to the plans of N. J. Alexander, Moose manager.

The all-star lineup that is to be on the field for the Jeffersonians, including such men as Irving Nelson, Gordon Frange, "Pops" Harrison, McKeever, George Poerge, and Wesley Flala, in addition to Elmo Nelson and Coach Vogel, is expected to give the lodge outfit a real battle. The lodgemen will use practically the same team as the one that downed Racine's in a 10 to 0 contest a short time ago.

England Wins Right to Play U. S. Team

Iowa Fans Look to Hickman to Star on Hawkeye Eleven

Junior Halfback Likely Old Gold Mainstay in Autumn

(This is the first of a series of articles on outstanding prospects for the Iowa football team this fall. Other articles will follow.)

By BILL RUTLEDGE

Those who predict a rosy season for the Hawkeye football team next fall are counting heavily on Randall Hickman.

The Charlton halfback is a close acquaintance of Mr. Iowa Grid Fan, who saw him trample the Cornhusker line, pound away at the Penn State forward wall last year and exhibit grid versatility in passing, punting, and tackling.

A Better Hickman

A better Hickman is being planned for this autumn—a Hickman who will dart off tackle, sweep around end, hurl passes accurately and do all sorts of things that you can cheer about.

When Randall dons his grid regalia and reports for practice September 15 it will be his fourth season of drill on Iowa field. He appeared twice with the rank of a sophomore, but the first time he was taken down with pleurisy after a several weeks and had to drop out of school.

Tremendous Driving Power

His yardage average for the entire season was 4.6 yards every time he carried the ball from scrimmage. The record is one of the best in Old Gold football annals.

The most conspicuous of Hickman's qualities on the gridiron is his tremendous driving power. Less prominent but none the less important were his tackling, punting, and passing.

HICKMAN HALFBACK

charging into the Cornhusker defense he had accumulated 162 yards in 25 tries.

Stokes Factory Furnace

While he was out of school he systematically set about to prepare himself for football responsibilities on the University of Iowa, eleven. Bothered by a short wind, he stoked a factory furnace for two months to strengthen his chest and improve his wind.

He played his most brilliant game last year against Nebraska. After four quarters of wild and fierce

Highest Bidder to Get Art Shires in Milwaukee Auction

MILWAUKEE, July 10 (AP)—Louis Nahin, president of the Milwaukee Brewers baseball club, today said Charles Arthur Shires, first baseman, would be sold to the highest bidder at the close of the current American Association season.

Nahin said he had received bids for the player from several clubs, including the Boston Braves, the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Philadelphia Nationals.

When Shires was brought from Washington this spring it was generally predicted he would appear next season with the Browns at Sportsman's park in St. Louis. Nahin said he regretted losing Shires, whose consistent batting strength has aided the Brewers considerably this year.

England Wins Right to Play U. S. Team

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, July 10 (AP)—England won the right to meet the United States team in the inter zone finals of Davis cup play by defeating Czechoslovakia in the doubles match today after winning both singles yesterday.

The United States team, with victories over Mexico 5-0, Canada 4-1 and Argentina 5-0, will face the Englishmen in the Roland Garros stadium in Paris July 17-18, and 19.

Kansas City Youth Wins Tennis Title

OMAHA, Neb., July 10 (AP)—Richard Lewers, Kansas City, today won the mid-west junior tennis championship by defeating William Kiley, Kansas City, 12-10, 6-2, 6-3, in the middle states tourney.

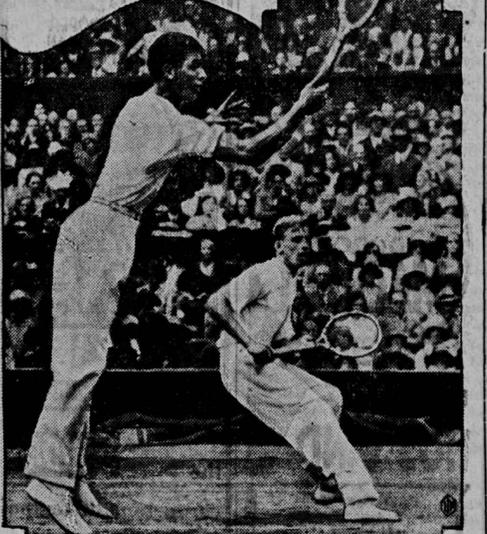

In the men's singles, John Tatom, Omaha, defending champion, advanced to the finals by defeating David Davis, 6-1, 6-4, 6-3. Paul Halpine, Omaha, became the other finalist by defeating Ralph Powell, Omaha, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3, 9-7.

Bonnie Miller, Los Angeles, entered the women's finals by defeating Anita Curry, Omaha, 6-0, 6-2. Mrs. Major Faris, Omaha, also reached the finals, defeating Alice Frazer, Minneapolis, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2.

The championship match in the women's doubles, scheduled for today, was postponed until tomorrow. Miss Miller and Alice Keogh, Omaha, will play Mrs. Art Scribner, Omaha, and Miss Frazer in this match.

Vance Blows Up; Brooklyn Loses, 4 to 3

Braves Rally to Score Winning Runs in Big Eighth

BOSTON, July 10 (AP)—Subdued by Dazzy Vance for seven innings, the Braves came to life after two were out in the eighth to drive the Brooklyn ace from the mound, score three runs and defeat the Robins, 4 to 3, in the second game of the series.

A double by Moore, who had replaced Urbanski at third base after the latter had been knocked unconscious chasing a foul into the grand stand, started the Braves' rally.

A pass to Worthington, Sheely's single and Schumlerich's double to right scored the tying runs. Quinn, who relieved Vance at this juncture, purposely passed Spohrer to get to Maguire, and the Braves' second baseman came through with a single off Bissonette's glove to score the winning run.

Lefty Ed Brandt pitched the distance for the Braves to score his eleventh victory of the year.

Slow Interest Manifested in Stock Trade

Undercurrent Favorable as Closing Prices Look Upward

NEW YORK, July 10 (AP)—Speculative interest in the stock market was nominal today, although the undercurrent of sentiment seemed favorable and quotations closed higher.

This may have been due to the fact that prices held out stubbornly against an irregular early decline, even in the face of a 141,000 ton decline in the steel corporation's backlog.

See German Credit Wall street apparently took it for granted that Germany would get her long term credit.

German bonds were heavy in the morning, but rallied when the market learned that Great Britain had informed the international bank she was waiving reparations payments due from Germany next Monday.

U. S. Steel's unfilled tonnage statement exerted virtually no influence on stocks. A decline had been forecast but the actual drop was larger than anticipated and the market's willingness to ignore what looked like bearish news helped the afternoon recovery.

Bethlehem Steel, whose dividend is regarded as somewhat uncertain, was easy and both American Can and National Biscuit closed with small losses.

H. L. Stimson Satisfied With Visit to Italy

ROME, July 10 (AP)—Eminently satisfied by his talks with Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, Colonel Henry L. Stimson, American secretary of state, will leave tomorrow by automobile to spend a few days in the mountains before proceeding to Paris.

Colonel Stimson said his talks with the Italian cabinet members had "furthered one purpose I had in coming to Europe—that is to form my own impressions concerning conditions here."

The secretary did not comment specifically on the disarmament feature of his discussions with Signors Mussolini and Grandi, but the premier made it clear that that question was gone over in detail and that Italy and America were harmonious in their desire to get the maximum results from the disarmament conference to be held next February.

After contact with the modern Italy, as personified in the premier and the foreign minister, Colonel Stimson spent his last evening here visiting ancient Rome. At noon the secretary was honored guest at a farewell luncheon given by Foreign Minister Grandi.

Woman, Five Men Rob $15,000 From South Dakota Bank

YANKTON, S. D., July 10 (AP)—Posses tonight were searching for five men and one woman who this afternoon robbed the American State bank here of $15,000.

The bandits, on entering the bank, forced all employees and customers to lie on the floor. James Lloyd, president of the institution, who was slow in carrying out the order was struck on the head with a revolver, but was not seriously hurt.

The bandits scooped up all cash readily available and fled in an automobile bearing a Minnehaha county license. One witness said they were headed northward.

Yankton city and county police immediately formed posses and set out on the bandits' trail. Bank officials said the loss was covered by insurance.

New Wheat Crop Sends Price Down

CHICAGO, July 10 (AP)—Enormous arrivals of new domestic wheat, with prospects that the largest movement would continue heavy for several weeks, led today to fresh breaking of low price records.

The market fell to the bottom-most level since 1894, outdoing yesterday's tumble to below any drop later than 1896. Today's minimum for July wheat, representing the 1931 crop, was within 2 1/2 cents.

The United States government crop report issued after business had ended was a surprise to most traders, the official estimate on winter wheat being materially above expectations, whereas spring wheat was smaller. The official total on all wheat was 12 million bushels less than looked for.

11 Iowans Held on Bonds for Liquor Violation Charges

PEORIA, Ill., July 10 (AP)—Eleven Iowans pleaded not guilty today to prohibition law violation charges and were held in bonds by Federal Judge Louis FitzHenry to face trial.

The defendants and the bonds set are Jack Wall, $15,000; Edward Lathrop, $10,000; Keith, and Mike Talario, $2,000; Nick J. Coin, his son, Jack Coin, Harry Puscas, Louis Springer, I. G. Lucchessi and Ralph Knight, $5,000, and Florence Ozias, $2,500. Knight lives in Muscatine, Ia., and the others at Davenport.

The defendants were arrested Wednesday by federal agents in Muscatine and Davenport along with 30 others. Many of these seized, officials said, already were under indictment in liquor conspiracy cases which soon will be tried.

Farmers of western Missouri grew $2,000 acres of potatoes last year.

Synopsis of Preceding Installments
Commander Drake Roscoe of the United States navy is trying to break up a criminal band known as the Zones, directed by a chief who is called "Head Centre" and who is said to look like Napoleon. With the aid of Dr. Stopford, Roscoe makes his investigations. Deputy Commissioner Burke of the police department locates the headquarters of the Zones, but the criminals have been warned and have escaped. New headquarters are immediately set up. After a daring raid which nets them millions, the Zones operatives turn to politics. Roscoe suspects Bronson, a candidate for the governorship, of being in league with the Zones. He takes John Wilberforce Wright, Bronson's rival, against who the activities of the Zones are at present directed, and Peter Champion and Page Sutton, two wealthy men who have also been attacked, to Champion's yacht. Burke and Ned Regan, a private detective, are also on board. Roscoe feels that there is no safety on land, but that the sea offers a refuge. However, an effort is made to destroy the yacht. When this is foiled, Roscoe goes to Bronson's home. There he is made prisoner and taken to the underground headquarters of the Zones.

Twenty-Seventh Instalment

"I'm not satisfied," Ned Regan declared explosively.
Deputy Commissioner Burke swung back in his chair, starting up at the speaker. "Neither am I," he growled.

"I rather gather," said Dr. Stopford, the third man in the commissioner's room, "that Regan, although he saw Roscoe come out of the Bronson abode and drive off with some bloke unknown, isn't satisfied that he's safe."

"Well!" cried Regan. "Where has he gone? Why doesn't he report back? Answer me that."

"Commander Roscoe," Burke replied sourly, "is in charge of state operations against the Zone group. It's no part of his job to report to you—or to me. This crazy idea of yours about Bronson is giving you a temperature."

"Likely enough," Regan growled. "But when you remember that Solke, your own right-hand man, was one of the bunch—and Partington, and a few more—why not Bronson?"

"He was interrupted by a knock. "Come in," Burke called.

Police Captain Markham came in. "No news of Commander Roscoe," he reported.

Burke swung around and glared. "Has Mr. Bronson moved out?"

"No, Chief—not at all evening!"

"Listen," Ned Regan broke in, "just to oblige me, because I'm crazy and got a bad headache; have Markham call at the Bronson home and insist on seeing Bronson. Say you're anxious about his safety."

"What's gained?" Burke asked. "I'll be satisfied," Regan told him, "if Bronson is there."

"You've got me guessing," Burke confessed.

"Like enough. But I'm open to lay a thousand dollars to one that Bronson isn't there!"

"He was seen to go in, Mr. Regan," Markham said, "and he hasn't come out."

"Then go and talk to him!"

Deputy Commissioner Burke, cigar at a very odd angle in his grim mouth, studied the speaker curiously. He had a healthy respect for Ned W. Regan. He knew that his compatriot could see much farther in the dark than any member of official Headquarters. He had proved it in a dozen brilliantly conducted inquiries. There must be something in this instance on seeing Bronson.

Burke turned again to Markham, and:

"Do as Mr. Regan suggests," he ordered. "Daly can take over in your absence. Use what brains you've got and be back quick."

"Any other instructions?"

"Sure—Start!"

view of that awe-inspiring subterranean cavern leaping from a vast cavern downward to unknown and greater depths.
In a high-backed Spanish chair ornamented with stamped leather, behind a long table, a woman sat watching him. She wore a black, mediaeval robe and a silk half-mask.
"Commander Roscoe," she said, "I expressed a hope a year ago that some day we might meet. I added that I trusted I should win. Do you remember?"

"That was my first introduction to X Ray," Roscoe answered. "It did."

"My hope is realized. Don't you think, fully?"

"It looks that way."
There was a short but very eloquent silence, then:

"If I have your wrists freed," the woman went on, "will you give me your word to attempt no violence?"

"No," said Roscoe promptly. "The masked woman smiled. "You have nothing to gain. No man, unguided, could find his way under those falls and around the lake."

"I agree with you," he answered quickly. "But there must be another way . . . Duchesse."

He had counted on this stroke: the expression on his brown face betrayed the fact. He was tense as he watched for its effect. In that green light he seemed unnaturally pale.

The effect he looked for did not come. Momentarily, he doubted—wondered—questioned.

Then the woman stood up, walked around the end of the table and faced him. She dropped the mediaeval robe and unfastened the silk mask.

Beneath her robe she wore a simple sea-green gown. Her long, unfathomable eyes looked into his.

"I knew you would recognize me," she stated calmly. "It was inevitable."

"This was a night of revelations. Great Head Centre was the Duchesse de Greuze!"

"I suppose," said Roscoe, and laughed dryly, "I am privileged, because my hours are numbered?"

The duchesse leaned back against the table, resting her slender hands upon its edge, and:

"You can make your own choice," she answered softly. "I have a goal upon which I keep my eyes steadily fixed. You have tempted me to glance aside. I am strong. So are you. Together, we should be unassailable."

Roscoe stared, met her unwavering look, and understood.

"Thanks," he said—but not mockingly. "Let's talk about something else. Would you care to be so kind as to give me a cigaret and light it for me?"

The Duchesse de Greuze hesitated for a long moment. Then from the table she took up a box. Selecting a cigaret she lighted it, and then gave it to him.

"Drake Roscoe," she said, "you are a brave man, and a clever one. But this is your Waterloo. Why not make the best of it?"

"I must try to," he returned, and smiled.

She turned aside; then:

"No doubt you are interested in your peculiar surroundings, and she continued, now speaking as a hostess making conversation. "These caves were discovered by a man named Flynn nearly five years ago. He was digging a pit in his garden—I don't know for what purpose—and he literally fell into one of the three known entrances. That was a long way north of here, in the Bronx area. This original entrance is now closed."

"She was acting—wonderfully. Roscoe took his cue from her."

"Flynn appeals to me," he declared. "Tell me more about him."

"He is remarkable. Alone and unaided, except by guide lines and a torch, he explored miles of the caverns and charted them. He passed the great falls and penetrated to this vault. I may add that he is an old sailor. This may account for his skill and courage."

"Sailors are notoriously mad," Roscoe muttered.

"They are also dense—and obstinate!"

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood
By HARRISON CARROLL

By HARRISON CARROLL
HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—A screen original, "O'Shaughnessy's Boy," will be Jackie Cooper's first vehicle for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

The story is by Malcolm Stuart Boylan, who came into a nice piece of luck with the deal. His manuscript had been kicked around for four years without a bidder. Now he gets one checking with Harvey Gates on the screen adaptation.

Jackie's role in the story is that of a little boy who is adopted by an elephant trainer in a circus. Their adventures under the big top offer varied opportunities for the talented young hero of "Skippy."

No director is chosen as yet.

Coal Leaders Called Today for Meeting to Settle Differences

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—Labor leaders of a bituminous coal industry were summoned today to a conference here to supplement yesterday's meeting of mine operators.

The gathering will take place next Monday. It is intended as a further effort to find a common ground on which all interested elements of the industry may be called together for a discussion of its ills.

Secretary Doak issued today's call. He notified John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and asked him to bring to Washington any labor men he wished.

In Nebraska more than 13,500 boys and girls are enrolled in 4-H club projects.
