A Real Improvement

ALTHOUGH apparently but a slight change in schedule has been made, freshman registration at the university this fall will be immeasurably simpler than it has been before.

One of the most forbidding features of going to school, even for seasoned upperclassmen has been the complicated procedure of registration with the physical and mental exhaustion attendant.

Each year the university has taken steps to simplify this process, until now a student finds himself duly registered with a minimum of waste time or motion.

Improving the process for freshmen has included the setting up of a special program of orientation in an effort to make the university appear more friendly and humane than a bustling institution would be apt to impress a bewildered newcomer.

Yet this very end has long been defeated by the annual lineup of first year students on the day set apart for them to obtain their registration materials. They were forced to wait in line for several hours, often under disagreeable weather conditions, in order that they might obtain registration numbers giving them first chance at desirable courses.

The only advice available to them was contained on printed slips until, with class schedules made out, they held perfunctory consultation with a few overworked "advisers" just before registering.

Now the line has been abolished in favor of an assembly where ushers may pass out materials while freshmen receive oral instructions without being herded in one door and out another; the incoming group will be divided into small sections with an adviser assigned to each for a schedule consultation the evening before registration. Thus students will have expert, friendly advice on registration problems and other difficulties, a feature lacking before this year.

The move should do much toward forming that important first impression, instilling the right spirit at the start, and creating proper faculty-student relations.

Why Machine Guns?

ALTHOUGH it would doubtless be difficult if not unwise to prohibit altogether the manufacture of small arms for public use, it seems almost incredible that gangland is allowed to longer have the machine gun as its ally.

Manufacturers of machine guns can scarcely carry on their operations under cover, and rigid enforcement of regulations concerning the sale and registration of these arms would be an effective way of keeping them out of gangland's reach.

A private citizen scarcely needs a machine gun to protect his property or hunt ducks, and many another type of gun would afford more enjoyable practice in marksmanship. There is scarcely any reasonable excuse why machine guns should be available for anyone except the organized militia or police. If these guns were carefully destroyed after they had become worn out so that rebuilding would be impossible, if careful check were made of the distribution of these weapons from factory to final purchaser, racketeers would soon be without their services.

The government could easily forbid the manufacture of any type of machine gun except under federally approved order, thus virtually eliminating promiscuous distribution.

The government should seize upon this opportunity to obtain a potent advantage in its fight with the lawless.

The Favorite Sons Parade

THE VARIOUS sections of the country are grooming their "favorite sons" for the 1932 presidential campaign. The qualifications of this or that man as presidential "timber" are being discussed by the politicians and through the press. Already the preliminaries are being fought on the program of which the party nominating conventions next spring will be the "windup."

preciate color in its aspirants to office? Reed has had a try at securing nomination before. Both Lewis and Murray have had striking success in gaining political support and position in smaller circles.

There are few who expect the next president of the United States to come from this trio, or from the number of others, now being admired in their respective states. But those states will take pleasure in giving their candidates the complimentary vote of confidence that goes with the position of "favorite son." And the whole country will take interest and delight in viewing the parade of those sons on the convention floors.

What would a circus be without its side-shows? What would a presidential campaign be without its favorite sons?

$92,000 a Difference?

UPON READING of the Iowa farmer who suddenly fell heir to $92,000 and remarked that the sum would make little difference to him or his family of nine children one might be impelled to ask a question. Namely: Who is this man that declares so glibly that his life will not be changed by the sudden acquisition of riches? Is he merely shortsighted or is he the sort of man who knows whereof he speaks and still is in earnest? Does he, perhaps, plan to hoard his goal, longing to spend it the while he clings to his quiet rural life? Or will he indulge himself and his family in the hundreds of fancies they have long craved, only to make them forever dissatisfied with what formerly meant happiness? Does he really know how to accept his fortune without turning his small world on end? If he does, he is one in a million, but he would be wise to try it before asserting, "it will make no difference."

Relatives of a California veteran have received word from the War Department that he died (1) at Chateau Thierry, (2) at St. Mihiel, and (3) in Texas. In the meantime the veteran himself goes cheerfully ahead paying premiums on his war risk insurance.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

College seniors have been found to be little wiser than freshmen by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, in a survey of Pennsylvania colleges. The report showed, among other things, that the senior recognized only 61 out of 100 words in familiar use by educated persons. The graduate was pictured in the survey as a person who had reached the peak of his knowledge in his freshman year and has added few, if any, words to vocabulary while in college.

The integrity of the report may be beyond question. Nevertheless it spends its effort upon minor ingredients of a college education and fails to mention the benefits in regard to mental development and learning capacity. Most curricula are aimed at preparation for some specific kind of life work. It seems incredible that four years of study that includes both general and special courses fail to make impression on the student's mind.

Unless people are prepared to resist the combined evils of economic difficulties, easy divorce problems, and loss of religious faith, says Clarence A. Barbour, president of Brown university, the country may face a crisis during the next year. He ventures that a certain inward faith born of religious beliefs may keep up the courage of those who would be otherwise crushed by the combination. Faith certainly is necessary, but action is the greatest requisite to eliminate the conditions he mentions.

The kind of faith displayed by a southern woman gospel worker, who allowed herself to be bitten by a rattlesnake to test the healing powers of her belief, is probably the type alluded to by Mr. Barbour. After more than a week without medical assistance she is preparing to resume her preaching, her faith apparently having saved her life. If most people put the same amount of belief in their own abilities to overcome ordinary problems as they do in the powers of the supernatural, what a happy world this would be!

Despite the pressure of New Jersey high government officials to quash the action against Ruth Jayne Crammer, being held for shooting a state senator recently, she will go before the courts to air what promises to be a real "scandal." Miss Crammer, it appears, has been on the payrolls of the state of New Jersey for the last three years, although she lives in New York. Checks made out by the senator to the woman on the state's pension fund, "for services rendered the chairman," were found after an investigation.

But scandals involving our renowned politicians are becoming too common to startle the masses. They will probably just chalk it up as "just another mistake" and vote for him again at the next election, if he runs for anything. Taxpayers are becoming so used to seeing their funds misused and hearing about it from federal committees that they are wont to charge it to expenses and let it go at that.

After seeing her three sons and three daughters educated at American universities and placed in responsible government positions, a Chinese woman died the other day in Shanghai. Harvard university, Wellesley, and Georgia Wesleyan contributed to the advancement of her children, who had been reared in the Christian faith, into leadership of Chinese affairs. She saw to it that their American training would fit them to the careers she had planned for them.

Not all the Chinese, it appears, are backward, nor are they all embedded in the retrogressive traditions of their country as some historians would have us believe. But persons like this one, whose foresight led her to adopt western standards for her children, are in the minority. Similarly to the situation in India, where ages of caste oppression has restricted the light of learning, China needs leaders who recognize the importance of education for the masses.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON — Resignation of Don Carlos G. Davila as Chilean ambassador in Washington, due to exigencies of the revolutionary situation at home, served to take out of the Washington diplomatic corps a man whose coming helped solve a very serious Pan-American problem.

Davila was a vital figure in the final adjustment between Chile and Peru of the Tacna-Arica dispute, which was the most threatening possible war cloud of the western hemisphere for many years.

As a newspaperman in diplomacy, Davila attracted considerable attention when his appointment was announced. Latin-American governments do not run to diplomatic appointments of that sort. And once he got on the job in Washington, the ambassador displayed habits probably fixed upon him early in his newspaper career.

Habit His Taskmaster

Usually Washington newsgathers on the "diplomatic run" know that they are not apt to find ambassadors, ministers, counselors or even first secretaries at their desks until well along in the morning. They are not often in their offices after tea time, short of some crucial emergency.

Davila had a different method. He could rarely be found until well into the afternoon. If you wanted to talk business with him, night was the best time. He worked at night and slept during the day. That was a habit acquired on a morning newspaper and never cured.

When Davila came to Washington, the Tacna-Arica matter was in a worse tangle than it had ever been, due to failure of the attempt to settle it through a (plebiscite) commission decreed by the president of the United States as arbitrator.

Washington had gone to the extreme of naming General Pershing to head the original commission. The glamor of his war service made his appointment, and his acceptance—a very exceptional one.

The Seventeen-Doomed Mosque of the Camel—The Djama Negu (Mosque of the Camel) in Tripoli, stands on the spot where Anan al Hab Hanum, the Prophet's Mother-in-law, is reputed to have spent a night. The Mosque more properly commemorates the presence of the venerable lady's saintly camel, and the curious dome to the number of 17, which surmount the temple, resemble the camel's humps in shape. The position of the Mother-in-law of the Prophet is exceptional in the high regard in which she is held by the faithful. The lot of the common run of mother-in-law is an enviable one in the East.

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — With her vacation just begun, Ann Harding isn't devoting many thoughts to pictures these days. The studio, on the other hand, must go right on worrying about her next vehicle.

I think it will be a story called "Prestige." Johnny Farrow wrote the continuity before he left for Tahiti. Ann's role would be the wife of a young diplomat who is given his first assignment in a penal colony in French Indo-China. The couple's struggle to resist the demoralizing influence of the climate and of their surroundings furnishes the drama.

As the dialogue still has to be written, "Prestige" is in an embryonic stage. The star likes it, though, and her wishes are pretty close to law at R-K-O-Pathé. Doubtless studio officials are breathing a sigh of relief that Ann and Harry Bannister are not to take a long vacation trip in their plane. Harry's job in "Suicide Fleet" effectively blocked this idea. With him working, Ann will spend her time at home. The Bannisters are that way about each other.

Six More Alumni, Former Students Journey to Altar

Kiesau-Klemer; Galley-Miller; Jacobs-Stover; Robinson-Bostwick; Bradley-Skewis Marriages Take Place

Regardless of where a young man's fancy may turn in spring, reports of late summer and fall marriages indicate a trend of more serious thoughts as the seasons progress. Six more former students and graduates of the university are added to the list of those who have spoken their nuptial vows.

Mary Klemer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Klemer of Fairbault, Minn., and Donald Kiesau of Waukon, were married at 4 p.m. Monday at Fairbault. The ceremony was read before a fireplace banked with flowers in the living room of the bride's home.

Jack Host of Chicago, and Betty Klemer, sister of the bride, attended the couple. Following the ceremony, a luncheon was served to 30 guests at the Klemer home.

Mrs. Kiesau attended Carleton college at Northfield for two years, and graduated from the University of Iowa in 1929. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority, and has been secretary to the director of the Art Institute at Chicago.

Mr. Kiesau graduated from the University of Iowa in 1927, and has since been employed by the American Telegraph and Telephone company in Chicago. He is a member of Delta Sigma Pi fraternity.

Following a two weeks trip in northern Minnesota, the couple will be at home in Chicago.

No Charges Filed Against Suspects in Washington Slayings

CHARITON, Aug. 18 (AP)—No charges yet had been filed against George Young, 59, and his son, Robert Young, 29 who are held here in connection with the slaying of two Washington county officers, Sheriff J. H. Smith of Chariton, said tonight.

William Bailey, Washington night watchman, last night failed to identify either of the men as the person he saw fleeing from the office of Sheriff Fred Sweet and Marshal Aaron Bailey after the slayings June 26, 1930.

No new witnesses had seen the prisoners today, Sheriff Smith said, and results of fingerprint comparisons had not been received.

Plano, Lincoln Want Winkler

LANSING, Mich., Aug. 18 (AP)—Gov. Wilber M. Brucker, after hearing testimony that Gus Winkler had been identified in bank robberies in Lincoln, Neb., and Plano, Ill., today deferred his decision on Winkler's proposed extradition until Thursday morning.

Identified in Plano
D. C. McWhirter, state's attorney of Kendall county, Illinois, told the governor that Winkler had been identified as one of three men who robbed a Plano bank several months ago.

The Illinois official said he could produce eight witnesses who could identify Winkler as one of the robbers.

Nebraska was represented by Emory J. Smith, Chicago lawyer who acted as special counsel for the Lincoln bank, and Sheriff Claude Hensel of Lincoln.

Linked With Robbery
Smith told the governor that Winkler had been positively linked with the Lincoln robbery through months of investigation conducted by himself, the "Secret Six," Chicago suppression organization, and police. He declared Lincoln had "a knock out case" against Winkler and added that, should Winkler be returned to Lincoln for trial, it was probable that much of the two and a half million dollar loot would be recovered.

Medics Plan Fair Display

Hospital Administrator to Direct Showing of Exhibit

Exhibits of the university hospital, the school of nursing, and the college of medicine will constitute the university's medical display at the Iowa State fair this year.

The exhibit is being presented under the direction of Robert E. Neff, administrator of the university hospital.

Hospital Equipment
Included in the display from the hospital will be plaster of paris casts demonstrating various types of deformities which the orthopedic service treats; orthopedic corrective appliances made at the brace shop of the children's hospital; X-ray films, chosen particularly for their interest to the layman, to show the service of the X-ray in diagnostic treatment; and various items of hospital equipment.

Nurses Exhibit
The exhibit of the school of nursing will illustrate the career of a professional nurse, in the fields of public health, Red Cross, and institutional nursing.

Iowa Officers Check Slaying to Link Man With Bank Robberies

DES MOINES, Aug. 18 (AP)—Possibility that Harry Morris, found slain yesterday near Red Wing, Minn., was one of the robbers who held up the Emmet County State bank at Estherville in 1929 was being checked today by Iowa officers.

James Riden, chief of the state bureau of investigation, ordered State Agent Ray Scott to go to Red Wing in an attempt to identify him as one of the bandits who obtained $2,700 in a holdup of the Estherville bank Aug. 30, 1929.

Record Convocation Closes Greatest Summer Session

Revealing again the state's traditional emphasis upon education, enrollment and graduation totals have reached new heights at the University of Iowa in an era of depression and unemployment, for tomorrow evening a record convocation will close a record summer session.

Degrees indicating that they have improved their minds in preparation for better times rather than sought jobs in overcrowded fields will be granted to 291 men and women, it is announced by Prof. Frederic G. Higbee, director of convocations.

Records Broken
It is the third consecutive ceremony that the record for number of awards has been broken. At the June commencement, the diplomas and certificates totalled 1,070; in July, the first term of summer session closed with 216 candidates on the roster.

The August mark is the highest for any ceremony in the 31 year history of the university's summer session, breaking the record of 247 established in August, 1930.

195 Advanced Degrees
Advanced degrees will go to 195 scholars. The 128 candidates for the master's degree alone surpass the entire number of higher award winners of July, and the 37 doctor of philosophy candidates exceed all previous marks.

Goes to Hospital Once in 20 Years

Every 20 years Charles W. Borts, bricklayer, of 500 Reno street, goes to the hospital—perhaps. At least he has established something of a record for appearing at a regular interval.

Aug. 16, 1911, he was struck on the head by a brick which fell from the wall of a building on which he was working. Yesterday he fell through a part of the scaffolding at the Rohrbacher sanitarium, spraining an ankle and receiving numerous bruises, which confined him to Mercy hospital. He was not seriously injured.

Issue Hunting Law Booklets

Teeth Defects Hindrance to School Child

Defective teeth handicap 85 percent of Iowa's children upon entrance into the first grade, often impeding physical and mental development, it is reported by Dr. Thomas A. Gardner, director of the University of Iowa's bureau of dental hygiene.

In some cases the defect is no worse than badly stained teeth, but often the trouble ranges to more serious evils such as cavities, abscesses, and crooked teeth.

How influential are the teeth upon proper physical condition is shown by the fact that heart disease, infected tonsils, and frequent colds are traceable to diseased "baby" teeth, according to the university man.

Dr. Gardner, who last week reported that in 1930-31 the university bureau was responsible for dental corrections in 86,468 pupils of 68 counties and 380 cities, has recommended that corrections be made before the child enters school.

Ruffing's Hit Nearly Wins Tilt in Ninth

Teams Miss Victory in Regular Nine Innings

DETROIT, Aug. 18 (AP)—The Tigers and the New York Yankees both missed victory by inches in the nine regular innings of their ball game today before Detroit finally came through to a 5 to 4 triumph in the eleventh.

Detroit bunched four hits, three for extra bases, off Charley Ruffing in the fourth and held its 3-2 margin up to the final frame. Then Ruffing came close to winning his own game when he poled one of Earl Whitehill's offerings into the bleachers for a home run with a man on base. The Tigers drove Ruffing from the mound in the same inning to score the tying run.

In the eleventh, Tom Bridges, who had replaced Whitehill in the tenth, led off with a single, Roy Johnson sacrificed and Charley Gehring drove home the winning run with his fourth hit of the game, a double to center.

Lou Gehrig, played his one thousandth consecutive game for the Yankees, failed to hit.

Two Helens Easy Victors in Net Meet

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 18 (AP)—California's crack delegation, led by the one and only Helen Wills Moody, matched strides with the British brigade today as stars of the women's tennis sphere marched through the second round of the forty-second annual championship tournament at Forest Hills.

A check-up at the close of the second day's play showed the field of 16 survivors lined up as follows: Great Britain seven; California, five; Atlantic seaboard, four. Although she had her hands pretty well filled today in disposing of Mary Greif, Kansas City, Queen Helen the first remained a top-heavy favorite to win her seventh national title despite the strong showing of the British contingent.

Miss Greif supplied the gallery with its greatest thrill of the day when she fought Mrs. Moody a ding-dong battle for 38 minutes before succumbing, 6-2, 6-3.

Helen Jacobs, California's No. 2 threat, moved into the third round with ease, defeating Virginia Rice of Boston, 6-0, 6-2. Betty Nuthall, whose crown they all covet, disposed of Clara Greenspan of New York, 6-4, 6-0.

Two members of the American seeded list, Mrs. John Van Ryn of Philadelphia and Marjorie Morrill of Dedham, Mass., failed to survive the second round.

Jimmy McLarnin, Billy Petrolle Ready for Thursday's Bout

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (AP)—Ready for their "rubber" ten-round battle at the Yankee stadium Thursday night, Billy Petrolle and Jimmy McLarnin went through their final workouts today.

It will be the third time the two slugging welterweights have met with honors all even, Petrolle upset the dope in their first bout, winning the decision, but McLarnin came back to outpoint the Fargo Express in a return fight.

Both fighters are near their best fighting weight and probably will enter the ring weighing about 142 pounds.

Kreevich, Rightfielder Sold to Chicago Cubs

DES MOINES, Aug. 18 (AP)—Mike Kreevich, star rightfielder of the Des Moines western league ball club was sold today to the Chicago club of the national league. He will report to the Cubs at the close of the western league season, Sept. 23.

The transaction was completed by E. L. Keyser, president of the Des Moines club, and Jack Doyle, Cubs scout, who came here yesterday. The purchase price was not divulged.

Sportively Speaking

By Bill Rutledge

Speculation on the Iowa-Pittsburgh game tilt has already begun to fill the air. The Panthers will begin sharpening their claws for their assault on the Hawkeyes Sept. 8, a full week before practice opens here. A warmup tilt precedes their invasion of the midwest.

The Panther eleven will be made of the same players as of last year with the exception of the quarterback and one half-back.

Pitt has no advantage in the number of returning letter men, however. Coaches Burt Ingwersen and Jock Sutherland will both have 12 award winners back. Indiana will have eight regulars and 15 letter players to form the nucleus of the Crimson outfit that appears here Oct. 17 for the Homecoming attraction.

Regulars of last season who will report to Coach Ingwersen Sept. 15 are Capt. Oliver Hansen, Edward Dolly, Nelson Tompkins, Randall Hicman, and Jerry Kriz. Marcus Magnusson, varsity center in 1929 is returning.

To follow in the footsteps of the great Knute Rockne is the task of Coach Heartley "Hunk" Anderson at Notre Dame this fall. Marchmont Schwartz, the sensational fullback, will be back with the Irish. Jack Welch, Frank Carideo's understudy last year, is slated to get the quarterback post.

Dick Henry (no relation to the Northwestern mentor), who was a backfield reserve the previous season, and Lada is another probability for the Irish backfield.

Looking forward to better teams and bigger crowds, the University of Southern California has enlarged its stadium at Los Angeles to seat 105,000. With it has come a reduction in the price of seats.

Gehrig's string of consecutive games started back in 1925. His first full year with New York. He did not play every game that season, but did not miss a clash in the next five full seasons and has taken part in every game of the 1931 campaign.

Gehrig is still more than a full season short of the major league record, set by Everett Scott with the Yanks and the Boston Red Sox. Scott played 1,307 games for the two teams before he finally missed one in 1925.

SPORT RECOLLECTIONS

Norwegian Immigrant Boy, Knute Rockne Becomes Greatest Grid Coach of All Time; Starred as End at Notre Dame

(This is the fourth of a series of stories on notable sport occurrences.)

By BILL RUTLEDGE
The process whereby football was transformed from a scrawny little sport into the robust giant of today was brought about largely through the influence of the late Knute Rockne.

The grid game had been a brutal sport. Sheer strength and force were the sole factors involved in playing. Speed and shiftiness counted for nothing.

Such modern elements of the game—the forward pass, shifts, and strategy—were unpracticed.

Dorais-to-Rockne

Rockne was one of the first outstanding pass-receiving ends in the history of football. He received all-American attention on the Notre Dame teams of 1910, '11, and '12.

Quarterback Gus Dorais was his partner in a forward pass combination that startled football fans. They were days of grid depression at Notre Dame. The Irish had never been prominent. Difficultly was encountered in booking contests with the leading teams.

Finally after the squad had partially disbanded in the season of 1910 Army, which has always had one of the dominant eleven of the country, agreed to engage Notre Dame.

Coach Jess Harper rounded up his players and took them East. Dorais kept flinging passes to Rockne and the Irish pulled one of the most astounding upsets of that era of football.

The dual position of assistant football coach and instructor in chemistry at Notre Dame was held by Rockne after his graduation. For eight years he lectured on valences, oxides, atoms, and the like. From the testimony of his students, he was as smart on the rostrum as he was on the field.

Becomes Head Coach
Harper decided that he had enough of coaching and retired in 1918. Rockne was elevated to the post of head coach.

But a great many other duties were attached. Rockne was not only coach, but trainer, treasurer, and director of athletics as well.

In his first seven years as the Irish mentor Rockne's teams played 64 games with a record of 57 won, three tied, and four lost.

His most famous contribution to grid history and the pride of his career was the "Four Horsemen" backfield of 1924.

Bitter Loss to Iowa
One of the bitterest losses a Rockne eleven suffered was the defeat at Iowa's hands in 1921. Rockne said he was "ashamed to return to South Bend" after the Hawkeyes had eked out a 9 to 7 victory.

Undoubtedly his greatest team was that of last fall. The 1930 Irish tornadoed through the most severe schedule of games that could be drawn up without a single reversal. The mammoth crowds that turned out to watch Notre Dame's games are an everlasting tribute to Rockne's genius. When he took up the reins at the Irish institution, gatherings of less than 2,000 were witnessing the encounters from the wooden bleacher seats of old Cartier field.

ROCKNE RECUPERATING

After the Irish had gone through their strenuous schedules, Rockne went down to Miami Beach, Fla., to spend the winters and build up his health. He is shown above with his son.

Record Setting Crowds

The mightiest throng that ever saw a football contest—123,000—watched Rockne's men humble a powerful eleven from Southern California at Soldier's field in 1928. Last year more than 110,000 braved a cold, heavy drizzle to see the Irish trim Army 7-6.

"The Bald Eagle of Notre Dame" was born at Voss, a hamlet of Norway, more than 40 years ago. He was christened Knute Kenneth Rockne. His father was a maker of fine carriages. His father's desire to exhibit his carriages in the World's fair at Chicago in 1895 brought the Rockne family to this country. His father was given an award for his carriages.

On "Tricky Tigers"

The family took up residence in the Logan Square neighborhood of Chicago's west side. Rockne played his first football in vacant lots with neighborhood boys. His first starring role was with the "Tricky Tigers."

They played the Hamburg boys for a championship of some sort or another and the playing became so riotous that a police sergeant came to the scene.

Young Knute joined the Barefoot Athletic club. He explained that his nose was not flattened in one of those rough and tumble neighborhood games, but in a baseball contest. The encounter was so close that the teams had gone into an extra inning. An argument arose, bats began to swing and not over the plate, and someone whacked Knute over the nose.

Star Track Man

Rockne was a crack quarter miler and 880 yard runner on the track team of Northwest Division high school team. He ran Chicago Junior A.A., Irving Park A.C., Central Y.M.C.A., and Illinois Athletic club teams.

Knute desired to go to the University of Illinois but he did not have the funds. He became a mail carrier and later a dispatcher.

He had a thousand dollars saved up when two of his childhood pals urged him to go to Notre Dame with them.

He went with them and obtained a job to earn part of expenses as janitor in the chemical laboratory.

In his first year Rockne made a letter in track. His second year he was on the football team.

Benny's suggestion that Flo use the money offered to finance a trip to Reno had an effect that he had not expected.

Her grief increased in intensity and volume. He stared at her in utter amazement. He had always hated to see her give way to tears. It invariably reduced him to a state of abject and helpless misery. Now he took a quick step toward her.

"Flo, is—there anything besides the matter of money that worries you—I mean—has anyone—" He floundered and looked at her helplessly.

"Money!" she sobbed wildly. "Money! Did I say anything to you about money? I don't want money."

"Tell me, Flo," he pleaded earnestly. "If there's anything that I can do for you—anything at all, I'll be glad to do it."

She was crying so vehemently that she could not answer. He frowned and ventured to say:

"If you're crying this way because that fellow, Winston, has done something, why, I'll—Now you just tell me."

"No! No!" she cried heatedly. "I tell you that I never want to see Alexander Winston again. And I mean that."

"Well, then, what do you want?" asked Benny desperately.

And Flo, through a shower of tears and a series of deep sobs, wailed:

"I want my husband, I do. That's what I want."

"Who—me?"

For several seconds Benny stared at her, incredulous. He just couldn't believe his ears. Then, dropping his new hat on the floor, he flung himself down beside Flo and attempted to encompass both her and the wriggling, happy pup in a frantic embrace.

Ten minutes later, when he had deposited a disheveled, but starry-eyed, Flo on the divan, Benny strode happily over to the telephone and called the office of B. B. Hummel. The booking-agent himself answered the phone.

"Say, fella," he shouted genially. "do you remember that big offer you was telling me about the other day?"

There was a note of triumph in his voice that just couldn't be suppressed.

And over the wire Hummel's voice replied:

"Sure I remember making that offer—two weeks of the big time at fifteen hundred smackers a week. Am I right?"

"Well, is that offer still open?" Benny queried.

"Any day that you'll sign on the dotted line I'm ready to close the deal," said B. B. Hummel fervently. "But what about a partner, Benny?"

"Oh, don't worry about that," said Benny, trying to speak carelessly. "I got a partner."

"Yeh?" said Hummel, with a bit of skepticism in his tone. "Is she any good? Can she dance?"

"I'm telling you she's the best there is," said Benny wondering humbly what he had done to deserve all this good luck.

"What's her name?" demanded Hummel. "Do I know her?"

"The name of the act," said Benny, swelling with pride and beaming in Flo's direction, "is Darrell and Sloane. How do you like that?"

He grinned more broadly than ever when he heard the booking-agent yelp:

"Flo? Are you telling me that she's back with you again, Benny? Why—say—if that's the case, the office will pay you two thousand smackers a week! maybe more."

"That's good here," Benny told him. "Now when do we open?"

And B. B. Hummel, his heart running over with joy at the thought of the commission that this deal would net him, answered:

"Next Monday ain't any too soon, I'd say. How does that suit ya?"

Benny's answer was a little incoherent, but Hummel took it for assent. Flo had come over just then and had interrupted the business conversation by putting her arms tight around Benny and drawing his glowing face down to hers.

"Do you want to know what I think?" she asked the adoring Benny, her blue eyes smiling happily. "I think that you're the grandest man in the whole wide world!"

And Benny grinned and said:

"Who—me?"

Corn Tumbles Upon Report of Crop Rise

CHICAGO, Aug. 18 (AP)—Staggered by an authoritative unofficial estimate that the nation's corn crop now promises to total more than 2,800,000,000 bushels, corn and oats tumbled today. December corn contracts, representing the new crop, fell to 38 5/8 cents a bushel, the bottom most price since 1900. Rev. Garrigues Talks Before Kiwanis Club

Brotherhood Makes for Good Business, Tells Group

Brotherhood, confidence, and friendliness, in the long run, make for good business, the Rev. C. C. Garrigues, pastor of the Christian church, told members of the Kiwanis club during their weekly luncheon yesterday at Hotel Jefferson.

"Creation," stated the speaker, "is universal and not a chaos. The diversity of individuals melts into a unity as a group. There is much in society any one criticise. Greater opportunity is not the duty of finding fault or of tearing down this opportunity, but of encouraging and approving goodness.

"It matters little whether a man is a physician, professor, lawyer, mechanic, or ditch digger. Each has a high object in forwarding fellowship in that through contacts with individuals, he is able to forward the real welfare of the community."

In answer to the question of what one is actually trying to do, he stated that the great objective is in trying to make contributions to real folks.

"Let us make man in our image," the speaker said, "by making the whole of society really better, which goes to cultivate a broad, deep, satisfactory, and profitable kind of living."

Roosevelt Challenges Hoover on St. Lawrence Power Issue

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (AP)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, a possible Democratic presidential candidate, today brought his water power theories into bold relief as he made public his recent letter to President Hoover, considered by many as the probable Republican nominee.

Simultaneously the governor's advisers said he would turn thumbs down on Tammany Hall's demand that the Democratic state comptroller be given the same power in making an investigation of alleged corruption in upstate Republican cities as is granted to the Republican-controlled Hofstadter committee in its inquiry into the Democratic government of New York city.

Without comment, the governor at Albany gave out the text of the letter he sent to the president on Aug. 10 asking whether the federal government had entered into secret negotiations with the Canadian government over New York's St. Lawrence river power project on the international border.

The power issue is one of the governor's pets. It figured prominently in both his gubernatorial campaigns, when he charged that Republicans sought private rather than public development of the St. Lawrence, and stated his theory that the "vast water power of the country should be developed as state resources, for the primary benefit of the citizens of those states."

While in office Mr. Roosevelt has repeatedly demanded more "teeth" in laws governing utility corporations and has sought lower utility rates for small consumers.

Cooling Rain Slightly Aids Corn Growth

DES MOINES, Aug. 18 (AP)—Thundershowers over several parts of Iowa cooled temperatures today but were of doubtful value to crops in the state.

Creston was deluged between four and five o'clock today by 1.81 inches of rain, accompanied by a heavy wind and hail. In the hour temperatures dropped from 81 to 63 degrees.

At Boone it was "raining hard," and Davenport, Clinton, Des Moines, and Ottumwa had varying amounts of precipitation.

Weather bureau officials said the value of the moisture lay in helping corn ears fill out and saving potatoes, cucumbers, and commercial tomatoes that had not been killed by drought or insects.

There is little prospect, weather men said, of a general rain, although the forecast was for unsettled conditions.

A. H. Winters, state sanitary engineer, said that heavy rains might cause death of millions of fish in Iowa streams because low water levels had allowed sewage and industrial waste to accumulate below the larger cities.

Iowa City Changes in 50 Years From Manufacturing Community Into Educational Center of State

In only 50 years time Iowa City has changed from one of the leading manufacturing towns of the state to its educational center. As recently as 1880, there were 30 manufacturing establishments in Iowa City, employing from 12 to 100 men each.

Of the three breweries, which provided work for the greatest number of men, the one owned by John P. Dostal was the largest. It was located at Gilbert and Market streets, and had a capacity of 25,000 barrels yearly.

The Iowa City Grape Sugar company was a particularly active business, employing 100 men and running 24 hours daily, in two shifts. The products for the first year comprised 12,000 cases of grape sugar, glucose, and corn syrups.

Because of a shortage of grain, the Iowa City Alcohol works suspended operations in 1882, but resumed activities the following year, with an average consumption of 800 bushels daily. Practically all of the products of this company were exported to Spain.

Nation's Crack Pilots in 10 Day Meet for New Records

CLEVELAND, (AP)—A 10-day carnival of speed will test America's prestige in sporting aviation.

Fleet man-made birds are being groomed for an assault on records at the national air races to be held Aug. 29 to Sept. 7 in Cleveland.

The greatest test is being saved for Labor day, the last day of the annual classic, in the running of the high speed, free-for-all Thompson trophy race.

Speeds upward of 250 miles an hour are predicted by air race officials, who say it is probable that in the one-mile qualifying dashes the world record of 278.48 miles an hour for land planes may be broken.

Doollittle to Compete Among the entrants in an early listing are Major James H. Doollittle, former army flyer and Schneider cup winner in 1925, who will pilot a plane underwritten by a group of Cleveland sportsmen, Lou Reichers, of Arlington, N. J., and Harry Williams, Louisiana, millionaire.

Robert Hall, an aircraft engineer at Springfield, Mass., will have a special Gee Bee racer for which he claims at least 270 miles an hour; and San Francisco sportsmen are expected to enter one or two models.

The race will be run in 10 laps over a 10-mile course, for a purse of $15,000.

Races For Women Flyers For the first time the "lady birds" will have a high speed event to themselves in a free-for-all of the Cleveland pneumatic aéro trophy over five laps of a 10-mile course.

Two handicap derbies from the Pacific coast, one of them for women flyers, and a fee-for-all mixed derby over the same course will form part of the program.

Military flyers, except for national guardsmen, will be missing from competition completely for the first time, but special navy and army air corps squadrons will give demonstrations.
