Lynch Freed by Unknown Kidnap Gang

Friends Pay $75,000 for Release of Chicagoan

CHICAGO, Aug. 27 (AP)—A gang of kidnapers released John J. Lynch early today after holding him for a week, leaving officials to guess at their identity and whether their ransom demands had been met.

Lynch, part owner in a horse race news bureau, disappeared last Thursday evening while enroute from his Chicago office to his summer home in Lake Geneva, Wis. He drove up to the house at 4:30 a. m. today in his own automobile, possessed of a seven-day growth of beard and a ravenous appetite.

"I am not going to make a complaint to anyone," he said after a brief rest, arguing that ransom demands of $250,000 had been refused to the last cent.

$75,000 Bought Freedom

But associates in the turf world, which has known Lynch for 20 years or more, circulated the word that Marty Gullfoyle and other friends got together $75,000 and turned it over to an agent for the gang in Chicago yesterday noon, in exchange for his release shortly after last midnight near Kankakee, Ill., 50 miles to the south.

Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney's office, reiterated that $50,000 had been paid and continued his search for "Scarface" Al Capone, boss of Chicago gangsters, on a charge of compounding a felony. Capone, Roche said, dickered with the kidnapers and aided in effecting Lynch's release, thus becoming a party to the crime. He accused "ex-convicts and some St. Louis men."

Greeted by Wife

Mrs. Lynch, prostrated during most of the week's interim, greeted her husband as he drove up in the early dawn, with apparent relief. Lynch assured her he was in good health and spirits and ordered "lots of ham and eggs."

"I was driving north toward Wisconsin last Thursday when a car crowded me off the road," he said. "I got out, my glasses were knocked off and I was covered by seven men with sawed-off shotguns. Three or four more cars trailed us. A gunnysack was thrown over my head. After a 30-minute drive I was held at a cottage until night and then driven six or seven hours to the house where I was held captive."

Lynch Well Fed

The gang treated him well, he said, and fed him regularly but kept his head covered. The meals stopped coming yesterday noon.

"I said to them, 'why take me?' they said, 'your friends like you pretty well and they'll lay it on the line.' I told them they had the wrong man but they laughed and said, 'Don't worry, we read the papers.'"

When asked "what about Capone," Lynch would only say, "Well, what about him?" He said he was not threatened and that his only instruction when released was to keep his eye-bandage on for 10 minutes. When he removed it he drove to a crossroad and found himself near Kankakee. He turned north, bought gas and oil for his car and drove to the home of an unidentified friend in Chicago. His friend drove him as far as Lake Geneva and let him go home alone.

Fairfield Men Make Guilty Pleas to Court

FAIRFIELD, Aug. 27 (AP)—Dan Buckner, 27, today pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault with intent to commit a statutory offense against two Fairfield girls. He was taken to Ottumwa for sentence by the district judge.

J. E. Moore, Jefferson county farmer, whose home yielded officers almost 35 gallons of alleged liquor Wednesday night, today pleaded guilty to illegal possession of liquor and was taken to Ottumwa for sentence.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27 (AP)—Ray Trumble, Rockford, Ill., middleweight, scored a two round knockout over Jimmy Miller of Louisville, Ky., in the eight round final bout at Shrevebridge stadium tonight. Trumble weight 158 pounds, and Miller scaled 156 1-2. John Rich, Cleveland welterweight, pointed Howard Jones of Louisville, in the six round semi-final.

New Mexico Sheriff Nabs Two Suspects in Post Office Theft

CLOVIS, N. M., Aug. 27 (AP)—Sheriff R. M. Williams today held two men in connection with the robbery of the Gorman, S. D., postoffice recently. They gave their names as Earl Beavers and Clifford Crockett.

Sheriff Witherspoon arrested them on the Clovis-Texico highway this morning after Deputy Sam Hoffmann telephoned from Texico that they had attempted to cash a money order at the Texico postoffice.

Searching the car in which the men were riding, the sheriff found a pad of postoffice money orders, two dating stamps and an ink pad. Five money orders had already been filled out and about half of the pad had been used.

Gandhi Makes Bombay Train "On The Fly"

Races Down Slopes of Mountains From Hill Shack

SIMLA, India, Aug. 27 (AP)—Wearing his cobwebby shawl and loin cloth, Mahatma Gandhi entered a small American automobile tonight and made a wild dash from his hill shanty on the slopes of the Himalayas through 100 miles of twisting dangerous roads to the railroad station at Kalka.

With only a few minutes to spare he caught the Frontier Express which will take him to Bombay, where he will embark Saturday morning on his way to the round table conference at London.

Conference Changes Mind

An understanding with Viceroy Lord Willingdon on the points at issue between the government and the nationalists resulted in his decision to go to London, and resulted also in that breakneck ride down the mountain side.

The Mahatma defied an ordinance forbidding night driving through the Himalayan forest in order to catch his train. He had only two hours for the trip over the dangerous roads, and so he whizzed past startled policemen without a pause.

Few Teeth Chatter

His few remaining teeth chattered as the small car bumped along, and with his shaved head and odd dress he looked anything except an international figure of great power.

Small groups of adherents shouted, "Long live our Saviour!" as he boarded his train.

"I know my followers will remain at peace while I am gone," he said, "and it is my prayer that I may bring them permanent peace and a happier future."

Oil Stove Starts Fire

OTTUMWA (AP)—Fred Lowenbur, 17, lighted an oil stove, put on some water to heat, then went to bed in the absence of his parents. He awakened to find the house aflame, but he escaped with slight burns. Outbuildings also were burned, the loss being set at $5,000.

Confess Robbery

CLINTON (AP)—Robert Wucherpfennig, 19, and Fred Scudder, 23, of Clinton, confessed to authoring the robbery of $35 and a watch at a Camanche restaurant Saturday.

Work Hard and Live Long

Ozark Centenarians Agree That's Secret of Longevity; Won't Marry Again

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP)—If you would live long, work hard. That's the advice of Thomas N. Kemp and Benjamin Hodges, who both say they have lived 118 years by following this simple recipe.

Kemp's parents died when he was a boy. Since the age of 8 he has been working regularly, and still labors on his small Ozark farm.

Although their homes for the past 50 years have been scarcely 15 miles apart, "Uncle Tommy" and "Uncle Ben" never met until this summer.

When they did, they sat for hours in the shade of a small peach tree and talked about the happenings of a century ago.

Uncle Ben, a rugged looking six-footer despite his years, was born in England, coming to this country when he was 15.

Uncle Tommy is a native of Tennessee. He isn't quite as spry as he is used to be. Injuries suffered 95 years ago when a stagecoach rolled down a mountainside are beginning to slow him up.

Neither venerable gentleman has ever worn glasses, but Uncle Ben confesses that lately his eyesight "scatters" so that he can't see well after dark. He solves this problem by going to bed at nightfall.

Both centenarians are tanned and unburned from their life outdoors. Both have been widowers for many years, and refuse even to discuss a second try at marriage.

Four Convicts Kill Selves as Escape Fails

Prisoners Kill Doctor, Wound Guard, 2 Trustees

MARQUETTE, Mich., Aug. 27 (AP)—Six men were dead tonight as the result of an attempt by four long term convicts to escape from the Michigan branch prison here today.

The sixth, Frank Oligschlager, a trustee, died shortly before midnight.

MARQUETTE, Mich., Aug. 27—Four long term prisoners, frustrated in an attempt to escape from the Marquette prison, today shot and killed the acting prison physician, wounded a guard and two trustees and then ended their own lives when they were cornered.

Warden James P. Corgan, prevented a general prison riot, ordering all the convicts to their cells after three of the four who planned the escape barricaded themselves in the industrial building shortly after 8 a. m. carrying two guards as hostages, and demanded they be allowed to go free.

The physician again at the outset of the escape attempt, was Dr. A. W. Hornbogen, consulting surgeon and acting prison doctor in the absence of Dr. L. L. Youngquist.

One Lifer

The four persons who shot themselves were Andre "Tony" Germano, Toledo, O., sentenced to 35 to 50 years for wounding a Birmingham, Mich., patrolman; Leo Duver, Detroit, serving a life term for armed robbery; Frank Hohler, Detroit, serving 30 to 50 years for kidnaping, and Charles Roseburg, Detroit, serving 30 to 40 years for armed robbery.

A deputy assistant warden, Joe Cowling, received a flesh wound; a trustee, Leo Polger, was wounded in the shoulder by a stray shot, and Frank Oligschlager, a trustee who acted as head nurse in the prison hospital, was wounded in the abdomen and probably will die.

Germano Leader

Germano, according to guards, assumed the leadership.

He appeared in the hospital shortly after 8 a. m., complaining of pains in the abdomen. As Dr. Hornbogen began to examine him, he drew a gun and shot the doctor through the heart. Duver and Roseburg then appeared. Oligschlager attempted to seize Germano's gun and was shot in the abdomen.

The convicts ran into the rotunda, fired two shots at Warden Corgan and Deputy Warden William Newcombe, and forced the keeper King, both the warden and his deputy to hand over the keys to the building. The keys were handed to the building by the prime minister with Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, at the prime minister's residence, No. 10 Downing street. The breakfast was interpreted in government circles as a gesture of Anglo-American friendship during the present British emergency.

No Good Will

No good will was forthcoming for the MacDonald ministry from labor ranks, however. The gathering clouds of opposition broke late today in a bitter manifesto denouncing the national government in the strongest terms and including the charge that private banking interests precipitated Britain's crisis and caused the change in government.

The manifesto, which is an open declaration of war on the national government's economy program that is aimed at saving the country from a $600,000,000 budget deficit, was issued jointly by the trades union congress general council, the national executive committee of the labor party and the consultative committee of the parliamentary labor party.

Issue Calls for Support

Looking toward the general election, the labor organizations issued a call to all their supporters, to strengthen their ranks both by numbers and money for victory at the polls.

The labor manifesto contended an unnecessary panic had been created in Great Britain and a national economy program forced upon the country by the dictation of domestic and foreign bankers.

On Verge of Bankruptcy

Nothing could be farther from the truth, said the manifesto, that the assertion that Britain is on the verge of bankruptcy.

"Four thousand millions of pounds (about $20,000,000,000) of British capital are invested abroad," the document states.

NEW YORKERS PROTEST CRIME IN ANTI-GANG RALLY

Manifesto Says Crisis Brought by Foreign, Home Bankers

LONDON, Aug. 28 (Friday) (AP)—The London Daily Herald, labor party organ, said this morning it was "able to announce" that neither Prime Minister MacDonald nor Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, would seek re-election for parliament at the next general election.

LONDON, Aug. 27 (AP)—Ramsay MacDonald's new national government was repudiated this afternoon by the whole British organized labor movement, but continued to grapple with the national financial crisis throughout a crowded day.

The prime minister began the day by having breakfast with Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, at the prime minister's residence, No. 10 Downing street. The breakfast was interpreted in government circles as a gesture of Anglo-American friendship during the present British emergency.

No good will was forthcoming for the MacDonald ministry from labor ranks, however. The gathering clouds of opposition broke late today in a bitter manifesto denouncing the national government in the strongest terms and including the charge that private banking interests precipitated Britain's crisis and caused the change in government.

Borax King's Injuries Fatal in California

Oakland, Cal., Aug. 27 (AP)—Francis M. "Borax" Smith, early day California mining and real estate magnate who made a fortune almost overnight when he discovered Borax in Death Valley, died of an Oakland hospital today of injuries received in a fall at his home here three days ago.

Smith, who was 84, once possessed a fortune estimated at many millions. As he invested heavily in real estate and traction company and Nevada mining companies, Smith's wealth diminished and when he died only a small portion was reported left.

Probably the most colorful part of his career was in the early days, when he drove "twenty mule teams" to transport the borax from Death Valley to rail heads at Barstow and Zabriskie.

During his life time Smith was reported to have lost and regained several sizeable fortunes.

DES MOINES (AP)—Muscatine county authorities have asked Budget Director Oscar Anderson for permission to levy an emergency tax of $32,000.

Youth Becomes Focal Point Friday in State Fair Hubbub

DES MOINES, Aug. 27 (AP)—Friday will belong to youth at the Iowa state fair. Older folk later will have their days and their interests at the 77th annual Iowa exposition, but now the youngsters are the focal point of attention.

All of Iowa's bountiful wealth is typified in the exhibits of every kind. In their placing today — the second and final preparation day — young people took an important part.

Quarters Taxed to Limit

County booths filling a goodly portion of a huge structure were being put up by young people; in the cattle barns boys and girls were most in evidence among the baby beaves and hogs and sheep that are taxing quarters to the limit.

Bronzed, stalwart farm boys, a little bewildered away from the familiar sounds and odors of the cattle, were all in their element around the huge cattle barns where today their charges were led into the judging ring.

Boys Rating Friday

Friday scoring will begin in the baby health contest, boys will demonstrate improved methods of agriculture. Boys and girls will finish their judging contests and, in front of the grandstand, children will have their own party, with circus acts, other entertainment, and refreshments. The girls' 4-H contest will begin.

Tomorrow's program is largely de-

Green Looks for Increased Unemployment

Labor President Says Total Will Reach 7 Million

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—An estimate that the unemployment total will reach 7,000,000 this winter came today from President William Green of the American Federation of Labor as Walter S. Gifford, national relief director, went ahead with plans to prevent distress.

Green said August had seen a slight gain in employment but that this was only a seasonal improvement which would "not lessen our winter problem." He estimated there were 5,100,000 jobless on Aug. 1.

"Even allowing for the temporary fall gain in employment," he said, "we will have some 2,000,000 more to provide for in addition to the five million now out of work."

Shorter Hours

"There is only one way to lessen this number of unemployed; for industry to keep men at work by shortening work hours and dividing

Colorado Governor Refuses to Comply With Bryan Request

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug. 27 (AP)—Governor A. M. Clark today declined the request of Governor Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska to close the Mitchell irrigation ditch which originates in Wyoming and supplies western Nebraska farms.

"We seem to be unable from information here to verify the need or advantage of closing the headgate at the Mitchell canal diversion on the North Platte river," Governor Clark wired in reply to Governor Bryan's request.

Yesterday Governor Bryan asked that the ditch be closed because he said its waters had never been adjudicated although they had been used since 1890. He said use of the ditch was hindering agriculturists with prior appropriation rights from getting water to which they were entitled.

Hoover Dines With Mellon, Bank Heads

Discussion Centers on General Business Situation

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—Men familiar with "the general business situation" talked of it with President Hoover last night over the dinner table in the stately dining room of the White House.

One was Secretary Mellon, just back from Europe, whose governorship was Eugene Meyer, whose governorship of the federal reserve board puts him in a position to know the very latest news in the banking world.

The others came from the New York financial center—William C. Potter, president of the Guaranty Trust Co.; Charles S. McCain, chairman of the board, and James T. Lee, a director of the Chase National bank; and George W. Davidson, president of the Central Hanover bank.

Discuss General Situation

Beyond the fact that "the general business situation" was the topic no information on what happened was forthcoming either at the White House or the treasury. Mr. Mellon and Mr. Meyer declined to discuss the meeting. It was said in an official quarter, however, that impending treasury financing was not discussed.

The White House disclosed the dinner took place after questioning. The first guest list, made public by Theodore Joslin, one of the president's secretaries, an hour after the first news of the dinner was available, did not contain the name of Secretary Mellon. The fact that he was present was not learned until the middle of the afternoon.

Confers Often in White House

Many of the president's important conferences have taken place in the seclusion of the presidential quarters of the White House, instead of in the executive offices.

Most of these was the one at which Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, consented to head the president's unemployment relief organization. Two conferences were held with Gifford, both at the White House breakfast table. At the time he consented to head the relief organization that conference was described as one dealing with the "general business situation."

The four New York bankers came to Washington after dark and left for New York immediately after the dinner was over.

Farm Bureaus Ask Stable Corn Price

FARRAGUT, Aug. 27 (AP)—Farm bureaus of five townships in Fremont county today petitioned the federal farm board to buy corn at a fixed price, without regard to its policy on wheat purchases.

Harry Munson, president, and Ray Teachout, secretary, signed the petition drafted at the annual farm bureau picnic here.

"Herbert Hoover" Takes Off

DUBUQUE (AP)—The new Inland Waterways corporation towboat, Herbert Hoover, left for Moine, on the first lap of its trip to New Orleans, its home port. Officials feared some trouble because of the low stage of the Mississippi.

Leaves $5,000 to St. Ambrose

DAVENPORT (AP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Kahl's will left $30,000 to charity, including $5,000 for St. Ambrose college students, and the rest for a trust fund for four daughters and other relatives.

WEATHER

IOWA—Generally fair and cooler Friday; Saturday fair.

One Dead as Gales Sweep Through State

Hits Hard in North, East Parts; Worst at Clear Lake

(By the Associated Press)

Storms that swept northern and eastern Iowa Thursday brought death to one person, injury to several others and caused heavy property damage.

Bessie Rist of Algona, an invalid, was killed when a tornado struck Clear Lake during the afternoon. Miss Rist was struck on the head by a falling timber.

Cottage Wrecked

A Mrs. Nolan of Ames was injured when her cottage near the lake was wrecked, and a Mr. Peterson was injured when a timber from the White Pier dance pavilion struck him.

The dance hall itself was scattered eastward for two blocks and part of it was hurled against the Park theater, tearing out half of the west wall. The Princess, excursion motor launch, was overturned and sank 300 feet from shore. Many wires about the city were blown down.

Amusement Park Hit

The wind at Clear Lake tore across Bayside amusement park. Roofs were torn from buildings and the roller coaster was overturned. Boats were tossed ashore and trees in the state park uprooted. The 40 cottages forming the Outing club were badly damaged, and the roof of the Central dining hall was torn off.

The wind missed the Lake Shore hotel, but demolished White Pier a block and a half away.

Rains Halt Fair Program

At West Union, high wind and rain interrupted the Fayette county fair program. Tents were blown down, trees uprooted and four automobiles damaged.

Fairfield reported heavy rain and some hail. Hundreds of windows were broken by a hail storm at Lamont, 146 of them in the Lamont consolidated school. Gardens were ruined, corn flattened, and roofs of dwellings heavily damaged.

Lightning Storm Here

Dubuque reported a 36-mile an hour wind with 1.24 inches of rain. One house was struck by lightning. Iowa City reported rain with thunder and lightning.

At Walberg, a hard rain fell but no damage was reported. A barn was blown down near Huntersville, and Sheffield was damaged by the wind. Waterloo reported rain, Cedar Rapids experienced an electrical storm. The old Magnus brewery, struck by lightning, was destroyed at an estimated $3,000 damage. Marango had more than half an inch of rain.

The cupulo of the Farmers elevator was torn down at Klemme, and telephone and light service crippled temporarily. Fallen trees cluttered the main street, many of them falling against buildings.

Ship Rescues Twelve After Plane Plunges

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Aug. 27 (AP)—Twelve persons were rescued from the fog-enshrouded waters off Gloucester early tonight after a pan-American airways amphibian plane, bound from Halifax to Boston, plunged into the sea and sank before their eyes. One passenger, unidentified, was missing.

The fishing schooner Nova Julia, feeling its way into the port, came upon the nine passengers and three members of the crew as they clung desperately to a storm-tossed pontoon, the only part of the huge ship to stay afloat.

W. L. Esmer, of Boston, the pilot, risked his own life in several dives below the surface before he was able to release the rubber boat, while the 11 others, including three women, managed to keep from sinking.

All except one of the 13 occupants escaped from the cabin. The only one not able to get out was an aged man, who, they believe, went down with the ship.

Nine of the party were taken to a hospital, suffering from minor bruises, shock and immersion.

About Iowa Coal

IOWA economists and others interested in the welfare of the state have long preached and will continue to spread the gospel of keeping Iowa money at home. Nevertheless, the great majority of consumers is interested in the practice only as a pleasant theory when he finds that he can get more for his money in some other state. Most buyers steadfastly ignore the fact that their actions are apt to react unfavorably in the long run.

Many an Iowan has consistently purchased higher priced coal from far away fields in the belief that he is buying a superior grade and avoiding a smoky chimney, synonomous in his mind with local coal.

Yet now a group of Iowans, not on the receiving end of coal company profits, have banded together to show consumers that they may gain by using coal mined in this state. Among them are Prof. Hubert Olin of the University of Iowa and O. R. Sweeney, head of the chemical engineering department at Iowa State college. And this group is not using the "Keep Iowa Money at Home" plea, but is prepared to show that Iowa coal is as good as other coal.

Professor Sweeney has found that Iowa coal, under proper combustion conditions (and these are within the reach of any household), will burn freely with less smoke than most of the coals with which it is in competition, and with more heat units per dollar than any coal which can be shipped into most shipping points within the state.

Professor Sweeney advises gentle treating of the furnace fire to avoid clinkers, and warns against banking the flames with ashes at night. Careful handling, he promises, will produce better results all the way around than most bituminous coals. He specifically mentions Illinois coal.

Professor Sweeney advances yet another reason for using Iowa coal that should carry considerable weight, once the myth of the product's inferiority has been thoroughly exploded.

He argues wisely that the salvation of the agricultural states lies in higher prices for the farmer and lower prices for manufactured goods by building up of a manufacturing system to supply the needs of the state and consume its agricultural products. The basis of a manufacturing system is raw materials and power. If Iowa coal is used in sufficient quantities it will be put on a paying basis and will become cheap enough to provide low priced power for a giant manufacturing system for years to come.

Thus consumers may be perfectly satisfied that they are getting good coal for their money, and at the same time will be aiding Iowa's economic future.

The Liberty Party's Function

MOST persons who noticed that "Coin" Harvey, 80 year old free silver campaigner, has been nominated for the presidency by a new "Liberty party, merely laughed at the radical demands of his platform. Or perhaps they felt some resentment at the enthusiastic attempts of the Arkansas convention to heckle the established parties and to fog up the whole political horizon with a hat full of more or less outlandish issues.

It is true that Harvey and his cohorts are demanding revision of the monetary system, government ownership of public utilities, freedom from taxation, and a five year moratorium on private debts.

It is likewise true that outside of the party circle no one can be expected to take its demands very seriously, or worry too much about them. Many whom Harvey would seek to benefit by his plan would not relish relief in that form even were it forthcoming.

Yet only the hopelessly narrow will be too intolerant of the newly born "Liberty" party. Rather, the country should welcome it, noisy, boisterous and radical as it may become. For the history of American political progress has for its chapter headings the birth of new parties with apparently hopeless crusades on their hands.

For as a new party develops it is bound to attract first those who are forever seeking a change, then others who were dissatisfied with the existing order, until finally the group begins to wield a small, but keenly felt vote.

The result has always been the modification by the leading parties of their platforms to call the wanderers back into the fold, a sort of compromise is effected, the good is absorbed and the bad automatically becomes impotent. Thus new political factions tend to stir up sluggish blood and keep politics from decaying.

Thus the Coin Harveys of the world have a definite place in society, one which should not be scorned too severely by those conservatives who are unwilling to become smug.

Heinz's 58th variety, out almost a year and doing well, is tomato juice. Ain't prohibition grand?

Youth Employment

(From the New York Herald-Tribune)
Many times in the course of this depression labor has pointed out that time has a way of adding to the burden that society has to carry during a protracted industrial slump because it is all the while maturing boys and girls. A great army of them leave the schools every year to compete with their elders in the hard struggle to find and hold jobs. A high percentage of them find nothing to do and either squander their time at their parents' expense or get into trouble at the expense of the community at large. The obvious remedy is to keep as high a percentage as possible in school as long as possible.

There can be no question in the minds of parents, social workers or police that the half-grown boy or girl is better off in school than idling about the streets and applying youth's ingenuity to the problem of keeping amused. If it is generally conceded that schooling is worth what it costs the community there should be no doubt in the minds of the employers of labor that if prospective young job hunters can be kept at their studies another year or so the money spent on their training by the state and on their keep at home is not unproductive.

For these various reasons the evidence which the local city colleges are bringing forward in support of demands for larger appropriations should be welcomed as proof of a helpful tendency on the part of the young people to stay in school and should not be deplored because of the additional expense. New York City College exhibits an increase of nearly a third in its enrollment. Brooklyn and Hunter Colleges show lesser but still note-worthy additions to their rolls, and these figures are symptomatic of a tendency noted in many other parts of the country. Just as it is better for the community with funds for relief to finance work for an unemployed adult than to support him in idleness, so is it far better to provide every young person who will accept it with tuition that will keep him out of mischief and enhance his usefulness than to let him invade the labor market.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

Hundreds of jobs are being rejected in southern Texas, supplying one of the most absurd anomalies of the unemployment problem. While cotton raisers are seeking men to pick a huge crop their offers of work are met with refusals by white men, who will not "degrade" themselves, so they say, by such menial labor. Such work, they assert, is for Negro and Mexican help. But they? Never—they would rather become hoboes—and so they have.

The big guns at Washington, with all their planning, can do little to overcome that Southern spirit of prejudice. Those Texans would rather roam about the country, supposedly in search of work, living upon the land or sympathetic landowners, than earn an honest living in the cotton fields. In times of stress, Russian women work in the factories and machine shops, Chinese women plough and work knee deep in rice fields, but to hundreds of able bodied American men, a comparatively refined job is disdainful, under certain conditions. It's hard to see their point of view.

An American woman in Russia was discovered recently to be a "great menace" to the Soviet government and was immediately ordered from the country. She had been living there quietly with her engineer husband, until she told a little joke about Stalin in an American publication. It went something like this: A Jewish boy swimming in the Black sea suddenly heard a cry for help. A man was struggling near him in the water. The youth swam over and effected a rescue. "Name me your greatest desire and it shall be granted," said the man when he had recovered consciousness. I can give you anything you want. I am Stalin."

"You are Stalin?" cried the boy, startled. "Yes," said the man, proudly, "I am Stalin. Name your desire and you shall have it." "Well," stammered the boy, gulping, "if you are Stalin—if it's all the same to you—just don't tell anyone it was me that saved you." That, the American woman explains in her book, is the story in a nutshell of Stalin's autocratic power and his profound unpopularity with the non-communist masses. Yet we hear he's doing wonders.

Thirty young men, who have never wielded a night stick or worn a blue uniform, are the backbone of the New York city police department in the drive to clean up the underworld. They, more than any others of the 19,000 members of the force, are expected, by their boring from within methods, to effect the big coups. These 30, looking much like high school boys, are known to few on the police staff except their immediate superiors; they keep away from the police stations; and they travel alone on their perilous missions.

One of them died recently, and on his deathbed gave the names of his assassins, against whom indictments were recently voted. Their job is many times more perilous than that of the patrolman or detective. Once found out as a spy by the particular gang to which he has become attached, the secret service man is subject to the worst torture that the underworld knows. He has just about the most thankless job on the entire force. If ever New York's gangs are cleaned up, silent honors go to these youngsters.

Women will never be able to solidify into one political group, says the executive secretary of the women's division of the Democratic national committee, because there are too many different types. For instance, some dabble in politics for the fun of it, others for the sensation, still others as materialists with a dubious sense of ethics, and some self seekers.

Coming from a woman, that is quite a statement. Most men probably agree. But now that all women may vote and many of them do take as much interest in politics as their husbands, if not more, why not a women's party? It isn't impossible to imagine several thousand women getting together and taking a stand on some of the problems of the day that affect them as much as they do their husbands and boy friends. Even if they did turn the sessions into bridge games or afternoon teas, they would be establishing something they could all get together on.

KINDLE FLAME AGAINST GANGS

POLICEMEN WALTER J. WEBB & EDWIN V. CHURCHILL

NEW YORK — "And a little child shall lead them..."
A nonchalant public... an age of irresponsibility in public officials... a largely conciliatory judiciary... and what do you have? Nothing more, but surely more than enough, than what has been happening in every metropolis of the nation. The sharp staccato of machine gun fire, dead and dying policemen, gangsters, innocent bystanders and last, but all-powerful, mere babies.

Where nothing, not even the St. Valentine's Day massacre of seven hoodlums in Chicago, aroused public opinion to the fighting pitch of accomplishment in the past, the wanton slaying of two babies in New York within a month of each other has brought Mr. Citizen to the realization that it may be his son or daughter who will be sacrificed to the underworld reign of terror if steps are not taken immediately to burn out of the cancer eating at American homes and ideals.

War on New York's criminal elements on a scale never before attempted has been launched by a coalition of Gotham law-enforcing machinery and the justice-dispensing hand of Uncle Sam. The civic government, in hand with the police department, officials of the department of justice, the internal revenue bureau, has declared war on the gangs, bandits and hoodlums which have made the streets of New York unworthy of any song and thoroughly unsafe for any person.

Where rampant crime, flaunting of the law and frequent slaughter of policemen in the performance of their duty did not cause a ripple in the mind of the blasé public, the merciless shooting down in New York of two babes, a lad of five years and a beautiful little girl of only 3 1/2, has turned the tide of righteous indignation against the hair-triggered gunmen with such force that their doom is forecast.

Uniformed policemen, an easy target for crime-crazed morons, and naturally in a more hazardous occupation than most individuals, must be ready to face death at any moment. They know the risks and they enter their profession with their eyes open to its dangers. The average citizen, thinking in such a vein, has come to feel that the death of one officer, more or less, is of slight

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON
WASHINGTON — There were more than 13,000,000 American sports fishermen and hunters on the job during 1929.

That was one of the first findings of the senate's special committee on wild-life resources, which has been at work about a year.

It is a good, round figure. Presumably it includes both President Hoover and former President Coolidge. They have been the foremost fishermen around these parts since Grover Cleveland set that presidential fashion.

But the senate committee has also discovered that, many as may be those who take rod or gun in hand and hie to the outlands, they are as nothing compared to those "who have a deep-seated love of nature," with or without any interest in shooting and fishing.

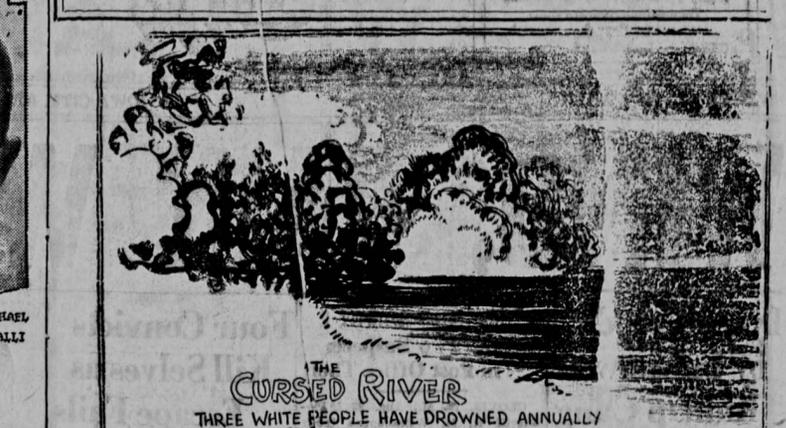

The committee sets the total of American outdoor recreationists of this type who visited the wilds in 1929 at 45,900,000.

Just think of that! Now do you wonder that presidents have heretofore found it good politics to be pictured in the news reels whipping a trout stream? Not President Hoover, of course. He was doing it many, many years before a presidential bee stung him.

Senator Walcott of Connecticut actually presented the report; but it was Senator Harry Hawes of Missouri, that intimate friend of the black bass, that lover of just plain, everyday dogs, that writer of books about all these matters — and incidentally, author of the special committee inquiry proposal — who did the work. Senator Walcott said so.

The senators, from whatever sources, have collected imposing statistics about the economic aspects of sport-loving America. The nation's 1929 bill for sporting arms and fishing gear is put at $90,000,000; with $550,000,000 more for "outdoor

EXPLANATION OF YES-TERDAY'S CARTOON

The miracle of the cross: The "Miracle of the cross" happened near Montpelier in the famous Chateau Thierry sector which was the scene of embittered fighting in the spring and summer of 1918. The ancient church was utterly wrecked, but none of the thousands of shells touched the crucifix at the entrance. Amidst the ruin and desolation caused by heavy bombardment the image of Christ alone escaped unharmed.

This suggestion won a prize in the recent "Believe it or Not" radio contest for George J. Anderson of 411 Chesapeake avenue, Newport News, Va., who took part in the famous drive of July 1918 and who was one of the first to view the miracle.

After all, Marlene Dietrich may not appear in Emile Zola's "Nana." Josef von Sternberg tells me he is running up against almost insuperable censorship problems. The screen is recognizing the appeal of the Macabre.
At Paramount, Irving Pichel is scheduled to play Hugh Walpole's sadistic hero of "The Man With Red Hair." And Frederic March will recreate the horrible transformation of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.
At Universal, James Whale, one of the more distinguished directors, is about to start "Frankenstein." As you may know, this is the story of a young scientist who robs graves and patches up the body of a man, intending to create a super being, but by mistake, gets hold of the brain of a criminal. When electrocuted, the creature life, it turns out to be a monster with the strength of 10 men.

Playing the monster will be Boris Karloff. If you saw "The Criminal Code" you will recall him as the convict who shaves Walter Huston. Remember? Huston asked him: "What are you in for?" And he replied, chillingly: "For cutting a man's throat."
Mae Clarke plays the girl in "Frankenstein" and several of the "Diabla" cast will be seen.

"I Do" Still Popular With Iowa Alumni

Announce Marriages of 3 More Former Hawkeyes

"I will" may be a good motto for an individual, but "I do" is found to be more popular when used by two people, as evidenced by marriage announcements of three more former Hawkeyes.

The marriage of Chloe Carson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Carson of Toledo, and Arthur E. Skelley, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Skelley of Monticello, took place Tuesday at the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Skelley is a graduate of the University of Iowa, where she affiliated with Phi Mu social sorority. She was director of physical education in the schools of Monticello and Grand Island, Neb., and for the last year has been head of the women's physical education department at Simpson college.

Mr. Skelley is the plant superintendent of the Franklin Equipment company at Monticello, where the couple will reside.

Cora Elaine DeHaal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter DeHaal of Armore, S. D., became the bride of Wilson W. Towne of Waubay, S. D., son of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Towne of Brandon, Wednesday at the Central Christian church at Waterloo.

Mrs. Towne attended Huron college at Huron, S. D.

Mr. Towne is a graduate of the University of Iowa, and is a member of Chi Kappa Pi, social fraternity, Theta Tau and Tau Beta Pi, engineering fraternities. He is associated with the sanitary engineering department of the state of South Dakota at Waubay, where the couple will reside.

Vincent-Hull

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Helen Hull of Chicago, to Claire Vincent, of Chicago. The ceremony took place July 21.

Mrs. Vincent is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hull of Maquoketa. She graduated from Maquoketa high school, and received her B.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Iowa. She has been employed by the Donnelly Brothers printing company in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent will make their home in Chicago where Mr. Vincent is employed.

New Cabinet Denounced by Labor Groups

"Britain is still one of the greatest creditor countries, we are still adding to our national assets."

The manifesto says the phrase "equality of sacrifice" has been invoked as justification for cuts in social expenditures but no comparable sacrifice so far has been demanded from the wealthier sections of the community.

Part of Bigger Crisis

It contends that the present British crisis is essentially part of a bigger crisis and that the policy of the labor movement for national reconstruction of the problem of debts and reparations, provides the only basis for the restoration of credit and the reestablishment of world prosperity.

While denouncing the national government's economy program, the manifesto indicates labor's alternative program, which would include mobilization of the vast British investments abroad just as British investments in the United States were utilized during the World war.

Seek Special Tax

Other economy measures suggested are temporary suspension of the sinking fund, a special tax on fixed interest-bearing securities, and a con-

Cannon, Jr. Drew Checks on Political Fund, Says Expert

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—The senate campaign funds committee listened today to the story of how Edwin C. Jameson, New York capitalist, gave $65,300 to Bishop James Cannon Jr., as head of the anti-Smith Democratic committee in the 1928 campaign and to the report of its expert, Basil Manly, of what happened to most of that sum.

The committee room was thronged with intensely interested spectators as Manly testified the records showed Bishop Cannon opened six new banking accounts during the campaign and from one of these in which he put more than $68,000 in "political funds," he withdrew on his own checks $28,278.

$17,450 in Personal Account

Manly said that of this $28,278 the checks were traced to show that $17,450 was put in the bishop's personal account in the American National bank of Richmond. He said $528 was used to curtail a note on a bank at Blackstone, Virginia; $5,000 was spent for a certificate of deposit in the Citizens Bank and Trust company, of Blackstone, and $5,300 for another interest bearing certificate from the bank of Crewe, Virginia.

The hearing, held in the senate office building next to the capitol, took on a school atmosphere with Manly explaining his charts. Using a pointer, he spoke in a slow drawl of the inter-weaving accounts, diagrammed so neatly.

Cannon Counsel Objects

Many in the crowded committee room leaned forward on their seats to catch his words. Their attentiveness contrasted with a seeming indifference on the part of the Cannon counsel. The latter belied this appearance on occasion by sharply objecting to the procedure.

Object was futile, Senator Nye crisply overruling it by saying, "proceed, Mr. Manly." As chairman, he held the central position at the long committee table at the room's end. On his right sat Senator Wagner, Democrat, New York, and next to him Senator Dale, Republican, Vermont. Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, sat nearest to the chart on Nye's left.

Reads Statement

When Jameson took the stand he read a statement asserting that he contributed to the solicitation "and in collaboration with the Republican campaign committee."

Got Money in Person

The bishop came personally to his New York office for the contributions which were usually given in $10,000 lots, he continued. On October 19, he said, the bishop came for the last of the $50,000 and got an additional $8,000—a total of $18,000 on that day. Of this sum $10,000 was in cash and $8,000 in a cashier's check.

Senator Nye read correspondence from Bishop Cannon to Blackstone, Virginia, bankers just prior to October 19 saying he expected to have between $15,000 and $20,000 of funds of the Newspaper Supply company of Virginia shortly and asking about the purchase of certificates of deposit.

Rejection of National Government's Economy Plan

Rejecting the national government's economy plan, which is described as "improvement of the workers," the labor manifesto concludes with an appeal to "the masses of the people and all men and women of good will to stand firm against the new government and to rally to the aid of the labor movement in its defense of the national interest and its constructive efforts toward a new social order."

Babe Hunt Whipped

BOSTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—Stanley Poreda, Jersey City heavyweight, gave Babe Hunt, Ponta City, Okla., a severe 10 round battering here tonight in the Argonne A.A.'s feature contest. Poreda's lusty two-fisted hooks opened several cuts on his lowering opponent's face and gave him the honors in all but one of the 10 rounds. Poreda weighed 202 and the Oklahoman 191 1/2.

Green Looks for Increased Unemployment

available jobs among all, this with a guarantee of work to the minimum force in each plant, would be an immense bulwark against business depression this winter."

Green said 18.4 per cent of the federation's membership were out of work in August as compared with 18.8 in July; 18.2 in June and 17.1 in May.

He estimated that about 12,000 found work in August as industrial employment improved, but about 40,000 farm workers were laid off at the end of the July harvesting season, making a total gain of approximately 80,000 jobs.

"Only Seasonal"

"This very slight gain in employment," he said, "cannot be interpreted as a change for the better for it is only seasonal. We may be grateful that a few hundred thousand of the five millions out of work will find temporary jobs in industry in the next two months. But this will not lessen our winter problem."

"By November we will have some 500,000 farm laborers out of work and this number will double before the winter is over. If industry lays men off at the usual rate, we may expect some 1,200,000 to lose their jobs between October and January."

The federation leader said the biggest gain in employment during August came in the textile industries where nearly 30 per cent of the unemployed went back to work. Gains were noted also in the manufacturing and shipping industries, he said.

Unemployment on Increase

Unemployment was still on the increase in some industries, however, he pointed out, including printing where the number out of work was three times what it was a year before and in building where joblessness had reached the unprecedented proportion for summer months of 51 per cent.

While this summary of the situation was being given by Green, Gifford was proceeding at his office in the commerce department building with plans for a national drive for relief funds beginning Oct. 19.

Hoover Looks Into Charge of Third Degree

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—President Hoover today lent the spur of his backing to a federal investigation of the reported use of third degree brutality by national capital policemen.

While the justice department swung its machinery into action, however, the chief executive issued a warning that the police should not be "prejudged on the allegations of criminals themselves."

The president himself arranged for federal participation in the inquiry bringing District of Columbia officials and Acting Attorney General Thomas D. Thatcher together for a conference after he had listened to reports that men had been beaten and kicked by members of the force.

Writing to Thatcher today he said he was glad to approve the department's action in according to the request for aid, but added it should not be overlooked that "Washington has an able and devoted police force."

Women Pilots Set Pace in Cleveland to California Derby

BARTLESVILLE, OKLA., Aug. 27 (AP)—Women pilots in the Santa Monica-Cleveland handicap air derby may or may not be better flyers than man entrants, but in any event the bird women still continued to set the pace as 50 planes landed here to spend the night.

Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, demure Long Beach, aviatix, who led the racers into Bartlesville attributed the better score of women flyers to wrong calculations. She believed handicaps for some of the ships had not been computed correctly.

The derby contestants will begin taking off at 9 a.m. tomorrow for Jefferson City, Mo. They will spend tomorrow night at East St. Louis, Ill.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 27 (AP)—Mrs. Abigail Stapleford Allen Lott, who eloped last October with George Lott, Davis cup tennis star now defending his doubles championship at Brookline, Mass., today filed suit for divorce. John Brocaccio, 35, once arrested in connection with two killings, was shot in the back a short distance from his home. He refused to identify his assailant. One bullet found its mark but probably without fatal effect.

Simmer Seeks McFarlane Job

Will Run for Lieutenant Governor's Post in Primary

LENOX, Aug. 27 (AP)—Speaking before a farmers picnic, Rep. Leonard Simmer of Ottumwa tonight announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for the lieutenant governorship in the June primaries.

The first candidate for the post held by Lieut. Gov. Arch McFarlane of Waterloo, Simmer had been mentioned as one of several members of the 44th general assembly likely to make the race.

Favors Special Session

Simmer announced he favored calling a special session of the legislature as soon as the interim tax committee created by the recent session had a definite program to report.

He contended that if the report was not made until the next regular session it would be too late to accomplish its purpose, asserting that "now is the time a remedy is needed."

Advocates Gross Income Tax

He also advocated a gross income tax and the elimination of mandatory tax levies which he said were imposed on the counties. Belief was expressed that relief from the present depression would come "only when the tax burdens are properly adjusted."

Four States Tighten Fire Fighting Lines

MISSOULA, Mont., Aug. 27 (AP)—Bodies of four forest fire fighters were discovered late today near Waldron creek, west of Choteau, regional forest service headquarters here was advised. The bodies were not immediately identified, but they were presumed to be those of four of the five men missing from a crew at the Lewis and Clark national forest.

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 27 (AP)—

Fire lines were tightened in four states tonight as men sought to control forest conflagrations which for the time being offered no serious threat to life or property.

The drive against more than 150 blazes was continued in Idaho, Washington, Montana and California.

A dozen "undesirables" were ordered out of the fire zone around Placerville, Idaho, and were hauled to Boise in a truck under guard of a national guard officer who gave them instructions on arriving in Boise to "stay out."

Federal foresters mobilized all available leaders today to direct nearly 10,000 men on the fire lines in north Idaho, eastern Washington and Montana.

Smith Loses Opener 3-2; Welch Wins

English Gets Perfect Average in 11-4 Triumph

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 27 (AP)—A smashing eight run attack in the eighth inning won the Pittsburgh Pirates 11-4 today after they had eked out a 3-2 decision over the Chicago Cubs in the first game of the rain-sprinkled double header.

Brame started the fatal eighth by walking English. Then the Cubs made seven straight hits before the slaughter was halted. English took the batting honors of the contest with two singles, a double, a triple and a walk for a perfect average.

Sweetland and Spencer fought out a tight pitching duel in the first game, Thevenow bringing home the Pirate's winning run on Phillip's fly to Barton after tripling in the fourth with two on.

Crabtree also hit a home run in the sixth inning. The Phillies used four pitchers, Jim Elliott finally getting credit for the win, his fifteenth of the year.

Grid Squad to Average 180 Pounds

Nearly half of the candidates for the University of Iowa's 1931 football team weigh between 180 and 200 pounds, while the average weight of the entire squad stands at 180 pounds.

According to the summary made by the department of athletics yesterday, more athletes are placed in the weight range of 190 to 200 pounds than in any other one division. There are 15 in this class while 12 rank between 180 and 190 pounds.

Five prospective Hawkeye grid-ders exceed the 200 pound mark. Chief of this group is Glenn L. Baker, a Davenport sophomore who will bid for a tackle post, who weighs 215 pounds and is 6 feet 4 1/2 inches tall.

Bill Rule of Boone, who will begin his intercollegiate career as a halfback candidate, has the distinction of being the smallest of the group, weighing but 145 pounds and standing only 5 feet, 6 inches in height.

Women's Golf Champ Loses to Mrs. Hill

HIGHLAND PARK, Ill., Aug. 27 (AP)—Mrs. George Tyson of Kansas City failed to ride over her "hill" of golf today and lost her prized western women's championship.

The conqueror in an exciting quarter-final duel that kept a large sized gallery straining from start to finish was her famous home-town Jinx, Mrs. O. S. Hill, who proved to be just too steep a hill to overcome at the finish today.

All square at the end of 17 striking holes, Mrs. Hill ended the tussle on the final green by batting in an eight foot putt for a birdie four. Mrs. Tyson, 10 feet away from the home plate with three shots, missed her try for a birdie down a side hill route by about three feet, but Mrs. Hill calmly but surely dropped her's for the hole and the match.

Mrs. Hill, who took up golf for her health eight years ago, was joined in the semi-final bracket by two experienced campaigners of note, Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, and Mrs. Leona Pressler of San Gabriel, Cal., and 18 year old June Beebe of Chicago.

Coach Ray Morrison of Southern Methodist University, whose 1930 team held Notre Dame to a 20-14 score, says his 1931 air-minded club will be the best ever.

Sportively Speaking

By Bill Rutledge

The number of postponed fights within the last week on the excuse of threatening weather leads one to suspect that promoters are looking forward to a day when they could schedule a bout, and then if a large crowd did not appear likely, simply to postpone or call off the match.

The three bouts which have been indefinitely postponed are the Victorio Campolo-Ernie Schaaf, Charley Retzlaff-Joe Schyre, and Tony Canzoneri-Henry Perlick battles.

The Cardinals have as sweet a pitching staff as one could wish for—Jess Haines, Wild Bill Hallahan, Paul Deringer, Burleigh Grimes, Flint Rhem, and others. Still the A's at least have their equal in Lefty Grove, Rube Walberg, George Barnshaw, Lefty Mahaffey, Walter Hoyt.

The Philadelphiaans must be awarded a decided edge in hitting, which is the most important consideration in a short series. Pitching has upheld the St. Louisians in their league's flag chase.

The Gabby Street crew cannot match the clouting effectiveness of Al Simmons and Jimmy Fox. Superb hurling will be the Cards' only hope of bringing the world crown back to the National league.

BIG SIX

(By the Associated Press)

Things were quiet along the big league batting front yesterday, only two of the six leaders getting into action. Chuck Klein of the Phillies, now third in the National league race, had a good day with a double and single in five trips, but was unable to gain a point on the leader, Vaghi Davis, who was idle. Eddie Morgan of the Indians, standing third in the American league, lost a point when he made only one hit in four attempts against St. Louis.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 27 (AP)—Wesley Ferrell won his seventeenth game and Earl Averill hit his twenty-eighth home run of the season as the Cleveland Indians defeated the St. Louis Browns in the series opener today 11 to 1.

Ferrell struck out nine batters, allowed only four hits, made two hits to drive in three runs, and scored twice himself. Dick Coffman, who last Sunday shut out the Philadelphia Athletics to end Lefty Grove's phenomenal winning streak at 16 straight, was charged with the defeat, suffering a 7 hit and 6 run attack in the second inning.

Averill hit his home run, with two on base in the second inning.

Independents Play Muskies Here Sunday

After their walloping at the hands of the undefeated Williamsburg nine here last Sunday, the newly organized Iowa City Independents will make their second appearance this Sunday in the hopes of getting a victory.

They have booked a game with the Muscatine Muskies. This will be the first appearance of the Muskies here this summer. They had a game scheduled with the Twilight league all-stars, but that game fell through.

Local fans will have a chance in this game to see how the dusk loop players might have stacked up against the Muscatine outfit as the new team is made up mostly of stars picked from Twilight squads. In addition outstanding players of other clubs in the city are included. Lloyd Rogers and Mort Koser are in charge of the Independents.

Coach Ingwersen to Celebrate Thirty-Third Birthday Tomorrow

Tomorrow Burton A. Ingwersen will celebrate his thirty-third birthday. Although one of the youngest in age, Coach Ingwersen is of the "older" coaches in years of service as a Big Ten football mentor.

This fall the Hawkeye coach will enter his eighth year as head of the football staff at the University of Iowa. In years of coaching experience in the Western conference he is exceeded by only A. A. Stagg of Chicago, and Bob Zuppke of Illinois.

With the completion of this fall's season Ingwersen will have seen 20 autumns of football. He played four years as a Clinton high school tackle, three years of varsity football and one as a freshman at Illinois, four years as an assistant coach at his alma mater in addition to his career at Iowa.

Bryant, Ia., was his birthplace, having been born in 1898, but most of his boyhood was spent at Fulton, Ill. Wishing to attend an accredited high school, he went to Clinton, but chose the University of Illinois for his higher education.

SPORT RECOLLECTIONS

"Trudie" Ederle Won International Applause as First Woman Swimmer to Cross the English Channel; To Try Again

(This is the eighth of a series of stories on notable sport occurrences.)

BY BILL RUTLEDGE

Five years ago Gertrude Ederle was one of the shining lights of the sports kingdom. Today she is almost forgotten in the vanguard of 1931 stars.

She attained the apex of her glory August 6, 1926 when she conquered the English channel in record time to be the first woman ever to swim the channel and to smash all previous marks set by men.

The fame that engulfed her soon began to ebb. After her feat the entire world sang her praises. It was predicted that her mark would stand assaults for years to come and that Trudie's fame would never perish.

Gradually she lost her hearing after having swum the channel until she has become almost totally deaf.

Now Instructor

Before her descent Miss Ederle went on vaudeville tours and played in the movies. Since then she has been an instructor in swimming at a New York city pool.

She has announced that she intends to re-swim the channel, this time from the English to the French side, reversing her former course.

To the accompaniment of a jazz band aboard the tug that escorted her as she swam, Miss Ederle failed in her first attempt at swimming the channel.

Battles Storm

The next summer she entered the channel waters at Cape Griz-Nez, France and after 14 hours and 31 minutes of swimming through icy currents and buffeting a storm, she waded out of the water at Dover, England.

A party of friends aboard the tug Alsace talked and sang songs as she swam. She had a light breakfast while swimming on her back. At noon she ate a chicken dinner. Late that night a storm broke loose as she neared her goal.

She was advised to give up but refused to do so. She battled waves and winds until the shore was reached.

Young Amazon

Miss Ederle was called a "modern young Amazon." She was the daughter of a well-to-do butcher on New York's west side. Steaks and roasts were often her fare and she developed into a strikingly strong and powerful girl.

Her first strokes were learned when she was eight years old. In a women's 100-yard dash race at the People's Palace pool at Jersey City she defeated several prominent swimmers. She was invited to join the New York Women's swimming association at New York city, where she would receive expert training.

Record-Smasher

When she was 17 years old, "Trudie" was acclaimed as "the greatest girl swimmer the world has ever known." This was in 1924 after she had annexed five national championships, taken 10 world records, which does not include the nine world marks set up in 60 foot pools.

By the next year Miss Ederle had smashed every known women's swimming record from 100 to 800 yards. In both short and distance swims she was supreme. Records of every dimension were splintered and shattered in exhibition tours around the country and to Honolulu, and Bermuda. "Trudie" had the speed for dashes and the stamina for the distance swims.

Marks in Discard

The first swimmer to cross the channel had been Capt. Matthew Webb of England on August 24-25, 1875. His time exceeded 23 hours. It was not until 36 years later that William Burgess finally succeeded after many failures. Five men had swum the channel before Miss Ederle.

Since then Trudie's time has been surpassed by both men and women channel swimmers. Her former swimming records have been shoved into discard.

The new golf ball hasn't hurt Bobby Jones' game. He recently carded four 66's in a week.

Postpone Bout Again

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Threatening weather this evening caused the second successive postponement of the Charley Retzlaff-Joe Sokrya heavyweight bout at the Queensboro stadium. Weather permitting, the Duluth slugger will meet Sokrya over the 10 round route next Tuesday, a week after it was originally scheduled to be held.

A new trophy will be offered at the annual field trials of the South Carolina for hunters' association, Oct. 13-15.

Barnes, Sutter Upset Vines, Gledhill Team in National Net Meet

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 27 (AP)—Striking a deadly mixture of lobs and drives, Bruce Barnes, Austin, Tex., and Clifford Sutter, New Orleans, today provided the national doubles tennis tourney with its first major upset by gaining the semifinal round at the expense of Ellsworth Vines, and Keith Gledhill, the sensational Californians. The scores: 4-6, 10-12, 8-6, 6-3.

A heavy afternoon shower fell on Johnny Doeg and George Lott and halted their even battle with Sidney Wood and Frank Shields, U. S. Davis cup singles stars. As a result, the finals will be put over until Monday.

The Wolves of the Water-Front by Edgar Wallace

Synopsis of Pleading Instalments Inspector John Wade, of the London police, while trying to run down a criminal gang known as the India Rubber men, sees Lila Smith, a lodging house slaver, gorgeously dressed and in the company of an elderly man. Wade follows her to a deserted house where she resumes her Cinderella garb. Later a Chinaman, seen by Wade in the same house, is murdered. The India Rubber men descend on Wade and seize a ring found on the dead man. A minor matter takes Wade to a ship, the captain of which was attacked by a mysterious woman named Anna. He recognizes the captain as Lila's escort, and is satisfied that there is a connection between the ship and the India Rubber men. By chance, he meets in London a river front idler who, according to his wife, had gone to sea. That night Wade barely escapes death when the gang raids his home.

he's inherited money—" "He hasn't exactly inherited money," interrupted the lawyer carefully. "There is a trust fund from which he draws an income. In a year, the principal will go to him. The terms of the trust may be found among the records at Somerset House. A client of ours, who was a cousin of Lord Sinford, died five years ago and left a fortune—an extremely large fortune," he added emphatically. "The money would ordinarily have gone to him—elsewhere. I don't think I can tell you more than that, except that the trust was established for a person who is now dead, and it cannot be distributed until the twenty-first anniversary of that person's birth." "Can you tell me the name of the person who established the trust?" "Well, as I've remarked before, you'll find the particulars at Somerset House. I can only say that Lord Sinford draws his income from what is known as the Pattison trust, which administers the affairs of the late Lady Pattison, the grand-aunt of Lord Sinford." As Wade stroked back to Scotland Yard he asked himself why Sinford, if he was the recipient of a comfortable pension, should bother himself with the India Rubber men. On impulse, he called a cab and drove to St. James's street. The hall porter told him that his lordship had just come in. "What name shall I give his lordship?" asked the porter. "Wade," said the inspector, after a moment's thought. He believed that Lord Sinford would not dare refuse an interview, for fear of arousing suspicion. His surmise was right, for the answer came: "Show Mr. Wade up."

This lordship was very alert and on the defensive. "Well," he asked, with some impatience, "what do you want, Mr. Wade? I can give you exactly three minutes." "I require exactly four," said Wade coolly. "You're a friend of Captain Aikness?" "He sprang the question without preamble, and saw the man flinch. "Aikness? He was my father's friend many years ago. He is in South America now." John Wade nodded. "You're able to vouch for his integrity?" "His lordship wriggled uncomfortably. "I can't vouch for anything," he snapped. "I knew—er—my father knew Mr.—Captain Aikness. Surely it was an act of civility to pay him a visit on his ship... A very nice man, charming!" "And Miss Lila Smith—do you find her charming, too?" Lord Sinford started, at the mention of Lila's name. "Did you find Anna charming, too?" persisted Wade. "I don't know whom you mean," Sinford said sullenly. "I mean the woman who was staying in your house at Maidenhead, and who was brought to London in a car. You bought clothes for her, Lord Sinford?" He walked closer to the man. "If this Anna is taken out of the Thames in the clothes you bought, you'll have a very unpleasant hour when you meet the coroner." Sinford seemed incapable of speech. "I know what you're thinking," John Wade continued. "You're saying to yourself that nothing can happen to this woman, and, at the same time, you're realizing that it is quite likely something may happen." Lord Sinford was not a rooster. His heavy face twitched spasmodically. "I really don't know what you're talking about," he said. "I know nothing of Anna—was that the name?" Here Wade drew his bow at a venture. "Does Anna benefit under the Pattison trust?" he asked.

The arrow struck. Sinford's eyes opened wide in horror. "Pattison trust?" he repeated shrilly. "What do you know...?" "I was just wondering. That's all." Wade picked up his hat. "What do you know about the Pattison trust?" "Everything," said Wade, in his blandest manner, and left. Inspector Elk was in his dingy little office when Wade reached Scotland Yard. "I've got everything set for tonight's little visit," said Elk. "Three launches will patrol the river and close in on the wharf on signal. Thirty-five picked men will surround the Mecca to search for a dangerous criminal who was seen making for the wharf. No search-warrant; everything to be done in a gentlemanly manner, by kind permission of the owner of the house." Wade nodded. "That seems good to me. Is there any news of Golly, by the way?" "None whatever." "What about the Chinese inquiry?" "There's nothing to it. The very last Chink is accounted for this side of Tibury. The chief's put you in charge of tonight's party. Are there any further instructions?" "No, I don't think there's anything," said Wade. "I'd have been a bit worried, if the girl were there. But, fortunately, she won't be." Elk sighed. "If we could only stop good-looking detectives from falling in love!" he said, and Wade did not pursue the subject. "Golly must be found," he said. "He is the key that will open a lot of cell-doors." "He's at the Mecca. If I was a betting man, I'd bet on that," said Elk. Wade cut short his musings. "Elk, do you remember the night of the bank robbery in St. James's street? I believe that the India Rubber man escaped up the river on a fast boat?" Elk nodded. "I believe the boat was lying on the shore side of the 'Seal of Troy,' and was, in all probability, swung inboard when I was going in the direction of Greenwich." Wade continued. "A couple of derricks could have put it under hatches in ten minutes. It's probably on the ship now, unless they've thrown it overboard. I've cabled our South American agent to inspect the ship the moment she touches port." Elk filled his pipe and puffed for a long time. "Lila Smith's the mystery," he said. "not the 'Seal of Troy.' It was plain to any one that the 'Seal of Troy' is a receiver's den. I'll bet she's got workshops on board—here, I'll show you something." He opened a drawer of his desk and drew out a sheet of paper, in the center of which was pasted a cutting from a newspaper. "The record department dug this out of a Lancashire paper three years ago." John Wade read: "George Seeper, the jeweler, who was sentenced to eighteen months' hard labor for fraud, is in Buenos Aires, in the employ of a steamship company. He has made several voyages to England." "And here's another one—an advertisement," said Elk, producing a second paper, with the rubber stamp of the record department. "Very interesting," said Wade. "I've checked this up," said Elk. "The 'Seal of Troy' was in London when the advertisement appeared, and shortly afterward Seeper went to South America. How many replies do you think they got for that ad? Thousands. And how many of those fellows were Dartmoor old-timers?" Wade rubbed his chin thoughtfully. "It seems a dangerous proceeding."

If Aikness is the head of the rubber gang, he'd hardly place himself at the mercy of an ex-convict." Elk smiled pityingly. "A fellow like Aikness wouldn't think twice about keeping these fellows under lock and key. We've been making inquiries, especially about Seeper. He's got some relatives in Peebles, and they've never heard from him since they got a letter saying he'd been offered a good job. He's been in England once or twice, according to this report, hasn't he? Well, he's never been seen by anyone, or heard of, though his old mother gets a money order regularly. He's got a life job, that fellow, on the 'Seal of Troy.' You can bet that every bit of jewelry that's taken aboard that ship is broken up by him before it's there an hour." (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Eighteenth Instalment As John Wade turned the corner of the street leading to the Mecca, he heard some one call his name. He looked about and saw Lila beckoning to him. "Don't go any farther, Mr. Wade. They are waiting for you." "At that moment something struck him in the leg, and he half-ran, half-fell into a doorway. Leg gripped his arm and dragged him down the steps toward the river and into a skiff. "They knew you would come alone," she breathed. He felt curiously faint and, when she had pushed him into the little boat and gained the middle of the river, blood was streaming from the wound in his leg. After he had applied an emergency bandage, he saw the police launch approaching, and he hailed it. The police boat picked them up and sped to the nearest station at full speed. Wade questioned Lila as to her reason for fearing an attack on him, and urged her to tell him all she knew, but she shook her head. "I can't tell you. I mustn't tell you. Only I was so afraid for you that I ran out to stop you." "Somebody knew I was coming to the Mecca and coming alone? Is that what you were going to say?" She did not answer. "And they arranged a little ambush for me? Mrs. Oaks knows all about it?" "I can't tell you," she said, and began to weep. He looked at her keenly. "You heard something that made you run out into the street; you thought somebody was going to kill me. Was it Golly you heard talking?" She stared at him, startled. "Golly? I thought he was at sea—Isn't he?" He evaded the question. "You never know what Golly is doing," he said lightly. "Well—we'll have another talk later on. For your own safety, we're going to keep you with us for a while." Lila was taken to the home of a detective sergeant and placed in the care of his wife. It was here that Mrs. Oaks came, after cross-examination by Inspector Elk. She was more than annoyed to find John Wade present, and a little disappointed, too, for the rumor was about that John Wade had been "caught" by the India Rubber men. "A flesh wound, my dear," said John Wade cheerfully. "I wish you'd tell all my friends that I hope to be very active in a day or two. And Lila will stay here under police protection, so you may as well run along home." He saw the ghost of a smile in the girl's eyes as Mrs. Oaks went out, and he grinned in response. She said: "You're going to ask me why I was in the street. Why I dropped that note when you left the Mecca—and a lot of other questions—and I'm not going to answer them." John Wade drove back to the police station. He boasted of hobnobbing about, but he had practically no pain from his wound. At any rate, the report that he received from the officer detailed to shadow Lord Sinford made him forget any discomfort he felt. On the first and the fifteenth of every month, according to the report, Lord Sinford received a sealed envelop that bore the name of a firm of solicitors—Latter, Knight, Zee-land, and Brude, of Lincoln's Inn Fields. Wade knew Brude, and he lost no time in calling on him. "I'm going to put my cards on the table, Mr. Brude," he said. "I'm engaged in a search for the India Rubber men, of whom you may have heard." The lawyer nodded. "Even I have heard of them," he said. "Naturally, I must investigate every clue," Wade continued. "Lord Sinford is an associate of people who are suspected of being in close touch with this gang. Up to a few years ago he was a very poor man, but recently his fortunes changed, and now he receives an allowance through you. It's important that we know the source of his income." "His income is a legitimate one," said Brude. "It is true that he receives funds from us. Whether he gets any other money is outside my knowledge; but we are not his lawyers. We merely act for certain executors."

113 Suits Totaling $17,992.50 Filed Against Union Pledges

Attorneys for Rapids Firm Bring Actions

Stark Company Needs Money to Pay for Second Unit

With 113 suit petitions totaling $17,992.50 in the process of being filed at the county court house, the attempt of the Theodore Stark Construction company to collect on pledges made out to the Iowa Memorial Union has taken concrete shape.

Previously, Perrine and Keyes, attorneys for the construction company, had issued 145 original notices of impending suit but private settlements and indications of willingness to negotiate outside of court have reduced the number until only the 113 filed will be brought to the September term of court docket.

The petitions were brought to the local court house by the Cedar Rapids attorneys Wednesday afternoon but due to the number not all have yet been placed in the file for September hearing. Assignment on the docket will take place after Sept. 11, the last day for filing cases.

Reason for Action

Explanation of the action of the construction company is contained in the petition itself. It is alleged that the Iowa Memorial corporation, a non-profit organization, accepted the pledges in good faith and, relying upon them for future funds, proceeded with the erection of the Union, "expending large sums of money thereon, and incurring large liabilities, and otherwise duly performing all the terms and conditions on their part."

Theodore Stark and company were the contractors who erected the first unit of the Union building, consisting of the river room, sun porch, main lounge, studio theater, radio station, and director's offices.

Pledges Turned Over

Then, on Jan. 23, 1926, the contract for the second unit of the building was let to the Stark concern. At that time the Union had on hand pledges due to the amount of $480,000. These were turned over by agreement to the construction company as security for payment of the first unit on which was still owed some $49,000 dollars. The Union corporation also agreed to turn over all future pledges secured and all collections on pledges due to the Johnson County Savings bank which was made trustee. Moneys collected, over and above an operating expense remittance of $400 monthly were to be used by the bank to apply on interest and principal of the Union debt to Stark.

With the pledges as collateral and an additional $50,000 received from the Triangle club for perpetual lease on club room space, the second unit was erected. This unit contains the women's lounge, main lobby, the Triangle club rooms, and houses the Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., and Union grill.

First Unit Cleared

Payment of pledges has cleared the first unit of debt but approximately $180,000 is still owed the contractor for the second unit. It is in an attempt to secure this money that the Stark Construction company has brought suit against individual pledge endorsers.

While Iowa City is the focus of the largest number of suits brought, over 200 others suits have been begun, emanating from the Cedar Rapids law firm alone, and extending through all western Iowa. In addition, around 600 other attorney firms, retained by Craven Shuttleworth, who is in charge of the construction company's action, have begun other suits throughout the mid-west and even as far away as New York.

Also Ask Interest

In addition to suing for the face value of the pledges or the amounts still to be paid on some, the petitions ask for 6 per cent interest from the time of the last payment and for costs of the court action. Local persons and firms being sued are:

Rotarians on Annual Picnic Laugh at Rain

Rain failed to dampen the spirits of Rotary club members, their families, and friends at the annual club picnic held yesterday afternoon and evening at Linder's boathouse a mile north of Iowa City.

The picnic started at 2:30 p.m., with a program of games and athletic events. Despite lowering clouds, the picnicers remained outside, although some confusion was caused as latecomers surmised that the group might have changed plans and gone to the park pavilion because of the weather. They were set aright and all arrived in time for the buffet dinner at 6 p.m.

Roy Loudon, Rotary district governor, was the honor guest. Approximately 50 persons attended. Evening entertainment was abandoned because of the rain.

Reed Warns Farmers of Hog Cholera

DES MOINES, (Aug. 27 AP)—A warning against hog cholera was sounded today in the weekly crop and weather review of Charles D. Reed, director of the weather bureau here.

"Hog cholera outbreaks are becoming more numerous than usual and rapidly approaching an epidemic," he said. "Vaccination is being resorted to, but too late in many cases. Since more than one-fourth of the commercially slaughtered hogs of the United States come from Iowa, the nation's meat supply is threatened."

He said a "skilled, concerted, and strenuous" effort is needed to curb the menace.

Corn ear worms also threaten Iowa's farm output, he said, declaring that in some localities as much as 90 per cent of corn ears have been attacked and that one half or more of the ears in most parts of Iowa are infected.

Seventy-Three Year Old Pioneer Citizen Dies Here Yesterday

George Ackerman, 73, 814 Newton road, passed away at his home in Iowa City yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock following a lingering illness.

He was born here May 11, 1858. For many years he farmed near Oxford, coming to Iowa City 20 years ago. He was a member of Eureka lodge No. 44, I.O.O.F., and was affiliated with the Christian church.

He is survived by his wife, Carrie Ackerman; two daughters, Mrs. Melvin Brown, Cedar Rapids, and Mrs. Ernest Drake, Tiffin; one son, Clyde, Iowa City; and five grandchildren.

The body is at Oathout's funeral home pending funeral arrangements.

Funeral for Davis Today

Funeral service for John Davis, 32, North Liberty farmer who died at a local hospital Wednesday following an operation, will be held at the Oathout chapel this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in Unity cemetery, located southwest of Iowa City. The Rev. Ira J. Houston, Congregational minister, will officiate.

A survey in Brownsville, Tex., showed every motorcar parked in the business section costs taxpayers $7.20 a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Whipple Van Ness Jones in their honeymoon suite in Chicago after choosing an elopement and justice of the peace instead of a church wedding, with orchids and soft music. They explained that they slipped away from their parents' summer homes at Oconomowoc, Wis., to Waukegan, Ill., where they were married. Mrs. Jones was Miss Mary Sue McCullough of St. Louis, heiress to the $51,000,000 fortune of the late John I. Beggs, utilities magnate. Mr. Jones, a 21 year old Harvard student, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Jones of Milwaukee. Blessings of their parents followed them.

Find Ancient Skeleton Near Council Bluffs

Remnants of past life in Iowa, a complete skeleton of a man and a large tooth of a prehistoric mammoth, together with ancient pottery, found in the southwestern part of the state, may be scrutinized by University of Iowa scientists.

The objects were unearthed on a farm in the vicinity of Council Bluffs at a point where other relics have been discovered within recent years.

Information received here states that rains exposed the skeleton and tooth in the same soil stratum, perhaps indicating that the man and beast lived in the territory at the same time.

It is likely that Arthur K. Miller, expert in paleontology and geology who will join the university faculty next month from Yale, will study the remnants. Professor Miller, best known in scientific circles for his classifications of skeletal remains of past life, will take the position in the department of geology left vacant by the death of Prof. Abram O. Thomas.

$600 Cost of Year's Study at University

No outside work for self-support will be necessary for the young man or woman who has access to $600 to $800 for a year's study at the University of Iowa.

This is shown by surveys conducted by Robert E. Rienow, dean of men, and Mrs. Adelaide Burge, dean of women, and applies to students registering in the colleges of liberal arts, education, or commerce.

Depending upon his taste for luxuries, the man may restrict his expenditures to $600 or may boost it to $800 or more, while the woman can live comfortably for an average disbursement of $750.

Largest item in the budget is room and board, amounting to about $325. Residents of Iowa will pay $96 for tuition in liberal arts, commerce, education, and graduate, while the professional college fees range from $106 in engineering and pharmacy, $128 in law, to $192 in medicine and dentistry.

Mrs. B. M. Hogan, 80, Dies at Home of Son Here Thursday

Mrs. B. M. Hogan, 80, died at the home of her son J. F. Hogan, R.F.D. No. 6, yesterday afternoon following an illness of six weeks.

Surviving her are three sons: T. M. Hogan, Toledo, Ohio; Edward Hogan, Amery, Wis., and James F. Hogan, Iowa City. Her husband and four other sons preceded her in death.

The body is at Hohenschuh mortuary pending more definite funeral arrangements.

Announce Birth of Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Freyder, 113 River street, announce the birth of a daughter yesterday morning at the Mercy hospital.

Kansas Driver Hurt in Wapello Fair Race

ELDON, Aug. 27 (AP)—J. H. Livingston, race driver of Topeka, Kan., suffered a fractured leg and crushed shoulder in a trot event at the Wapello county fair race track here today.

He was the victim of a runaway horse which had thrown its driver, Ed Berry. E. L. Daggett of Ottumwa, a spectator, and Berry were slightly injured.

75 Per Cent Want Repeal, Says Pastor

DAVENPORT, Aug. 27 (AP)—Gangsters and racketeers are the only moral result of the eighteenth amendment, the Rev. Dean Rowland Phillips of Trinity cathedral, Episcopal, told the Davenport Kiwanis club here today.

The clergyman said he voted in favor of the amendment but that he now was one of the greatest foes of the prohibition law.

"My interest in this question is not along economical or political lines, but as a moralist," he said. "I am voicing only my opinion and not that of the Episcopal church."

"The law is never going to be enforced because 75 per cent of people do not want it enforced. Among them are the best people in the land. Teach Americans how to drink, what to drink and how much to drink and you have the answer to the liquor question in the United States."

"I am against prohibition because it has put the United States in a state of siege with armies patrolling its borders."

Four Convicts Kill Selves as Escape Fails

tated a note to Arenz which read: "The men have officers and inmates in dormitory under guns and also a bottle of explosive. They are ready to shoot minute door opens. They want big gate opened and have auto come inside and take them out. Want warden to come in and drive them out with his car. Officer Charles Arenz has plenty of explosives."

The note was thrown out a window for the warden.

Use Bullets, Bombs

Warden Corgan's answer was a barrage of bullets and tear gas bombs.

The guards held a hostages said that as the third tear gas shell exploded, one of the trio called out: "I guess she's all up, boys."

Immediately, they said, they heard the three discussing suicide. Roseburg, they said, shot himself first, then Germano leaned over and fired a shot through Roseburg's head, apparently to make sure of death. Germano then shot himself. Duver fired another shot through Germano's head, then turned the gun on himself. When Arenz and the other guards were able to open the doors, the besieging officers found the three dead on the floor.

A few minutes later gunfire broke out in the "E" wing of the prison, and guards and state police rushed there. They found Hofer, the fourth convict, slumped on the floor, a gun in his hand. Robert Fingle, a guard, said that Hofer had fired at him, and having missed, turned the gun on himself.
