107 Birthdays Quite a Few

But Mme. Davenport Holds Her Own Against Time

By H. BERNARD HOOK
It was her birthday yesterday, she said, but it was just another day for her. She was 107 years old, and she waved her cigarette with the grace of a modern "deb" as she made the statement and unraveled some of the many events of her life that have elapsed since she was driven from Russia in her childhood with the rest of her family.

She is Mme. Charlotte de Gollere Davenport, M.D., graduate of the university of Vienna and the Sorbonne, Paris. Her figure would be the envy of any woman in her 20s; her hair, though almost white, is luxuriant and her own; she still possesses most of her own teeth; her skin is soft and virtually without a wrinkle, and she walks on her toes with a quick, energetic stride. Altogether appearance bespeaks vigor, and that vigor is her stock in trade, for she claims to have preserved her body by beauty secrets for which she has refused thousands of dollars.

If There Be Doubt
"But you don't look a day over 65," the writer asserted dubiously, as he met Mme. Davenport's alert eyes. Promptly she presented documentary evidence from dozens of newspapers published over a period of 15 years testifying to her age and telling how she won applause from large audiences who heard her lectures on "Essentials of Life."

Starting then with a personal card from Admiral Dewey and Mrs. Dewey, she then unfolded a lengthy list of great and near great personages who have been her friends during a lengthy and colorful career. Among them she lists Premier Laval of France, Rupert Hughes, novelist, Alfred Smith, former governor of New York and Democratic candidate for president, President Elliott of Yale, Col. Charles Lindbergh, Rudyard Kipling, Marie of Roumania, and scores of editors, statesmen and philanthropists of a dozen nations.

Explains Longevity
She attributes her longevity to the preparation of her own food, and eating conservatively, riding horseback, since she was forced to learn as a three year old child in St. Petersburg, (now Leningrad). She is not adverse to good liquors when they are available, and although she rolls her own, she does not encourage the American girl to smoke, maintaining that the modern flapper's temperament is incompatible with the use of tobacco.

Conversing in eight languages is part of the day's work for Madame Davenport, who is a French countess by virtue of her second marriage. She explains that she is in the United States now while her third husband's health is recuperating in an Elgin, Ill., sanitarium. The latter was formerly a London editor. She also plays the piano with considerable skill. She took her early training in the art from Franz Liszt, she declares, but deprecated her performance of yesterday by saying that she had not "played much for 50 years."

Eight Time Globe Cirler
Madame Davenport circles eight trips around the world since she left her family estate in Russia as a child. All of her 11 sons were born during her second marriage.
"Always be in love," said the aged globe trotter, "but don't go sex crazy. I mean that one should fall in love every day with a great poem, majestic mountains, a noble character, a great ideal, or a faithful dog." She maintains that one should never entertain a prejudice against anything to get the most joy out of life. By investigation, she says, prejudices will always melt

Friends Pledge Aid to College, Devise Means of Income
OSKALOOSA, Sept. 4 (AP)—The annual Iowa meeting of Friends today voted support for Penn college. The aid would amount to about $5,000 annually under present plans. Subject to final decision by the finance board, the yearly meeting approved an appropriation of $3,000 and a "dime a week" club is expected to yield the balance.
H. Clark Bedford, president, said that a $500,000 endowment fund should be raised to assure financial security for the school. His report showed that 40 per cent of the students are from Quaker homes and that 83 per cent are from Iowa.

Next Move in Smith Case Depends on Sanity Report

Doctors Test Perry Man's Mind Ability

First Wife Secluded at State House; Second Greets "Jay"

DES MOINES, Sept. 4 (AP)—On the findings of two alienists who spent five hours today in questioning John M. Smith, once a candidate for the governorship of Iowa, there rested the next move in the state's prosecution of his case.

Dr. George Donohoe of the Cherokee state hospital and Dr. Max E. Witte of the Clarinda state hospital were closeted with the Perry insecticide manufacturer the entire afternoon, ending their investigation temporarily at 5:15 p.m.

Continue Tests Today
Dr. Witte was to return, he said, to Clarinda, but Dr. Donohoe said he will return tomorrow to continue the sanity tests and to make his and Dr. Witte's reports to James E. Ridsen, chief of the state bureau of criminal investigation.

It was agreed that the next move in the case will depend on their report, whether Smith will be charged with bigamy growing out of his marriage March 11, to Pauline Shaw, Chautauqua, Kan.,—more than a month after he disappeared and his burning truck found near Denison with a corpse in it—or whether he will be charged with conspiracy growing out of an alleged attempt to defraud insurance companies of the $50,000 in policies they carried on his life.

Mystery Remains
Meanwhile neither from Smith nor from the other two principals, Mrs. Smith and Miss Shaw, could clarification be obtained to the major enigma of the case, the identity of the corpse that was found in Smith's blazing truck, just before the absence that led officials of four states to probe his activities during the weeks that preceded finding him bound with wire on a roadside near Garner.

While at the capitol alienists were testing Smith, Charles Holley, a Des Moines attorney, asked officers at the city jail, where Mrs. Smith was held last night on a technical charge of conspiracy to defraud, for permission to see her. This was denied and Holley was told that since Mrs. Smith was a prisoner of the state permission to see her must be given by state officials.

Holley said that he was acting at the behest of Harry Witvat, Mrs. Smith's attorney at Perry.

Mrs. Smith Secluded
Mrs. Smith was brought to the state house this morning. She was kept in seclusion throughout the day.

While it was presumed that she was returned to the city jail, officers at the city jail and county jail said that she was not returned to either place early this evening. They said that she was still in custody of state officials.

Dr. Donohoe tonight was reluctant to discuss the sanity tests. He said that information about it must come from Ridsen. He declined to say whether he and Dr. Witte had come to a definite conclusion as to Smith's sanity, but said that the two alienists were "in complete harmony" about their point of view concerning Smith's mental status.

Sanity Report Saturday
The Cherokee alienist said his report would be made Saturday to Ridsen and that he would stay in Des Moines until Saturday afternoon. He said a part of the morning, at least, would be devoted to a continuation of the tests.

Doctors Donohoe and Witte examined Smith at the time of his commitment to the Clarinda hospital June 24.
On their findings will be based any recommendation for Smith's

"I thought the Kansas girl had red hair," said John Smith yesterday to newspapermen when asked after seeing Pauline Shaw (above) whether she was the girl who claims that Smith was married to her in Kansas. Miss Shaw has dark hair.

Day's Developments in John Smith Case

By The Associated Press
Doctors Max E. Witte of the Clarinda state hospital and George Donohoe of the Cherokee state hospital spent five hours today in testing Smith's sanity. They made no report at the conclusion of the hearing late today.

Dr. Donohoe said Dr. Witte was returning to Clarinda and that he would continue the sanity tests Saturday.

Smith apparently did not recognize Pauline Shaw whom he married bigamously in Elgin, Kan., March 11, when he saw her again today. Yesterday he admitted the bigamous marriage.

Mrs. Smith this morning was taken to the capitol, where she was kept in seclusion until late in the afternoon.

Charles Holley, Des Moines attorney, was refused permission to see Mrs. Smith while she was at the city jail this morning. He said he wanted to see her at the behest of Harry Witvat, Mrs. Smith's attorney in Perry.

Mrs. Smith was brought to the state house this morning. She was kept in seclusion throughout the day.

Continue to Search for Mrs. Zager

Missing Woman Last Seen South of Iowa City

At a late hour last night searchers were unable to find Mrs. Mable Zager, who disappeared from her home, 218 W. Benton street, at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

According to a description broadcast over station WSUI Friday morning, Mrs. Zager, who was 44 years old, had gray hair, wore a black checkered dress, gray coat with a fur collar, and no hat.

On Air Port Road
When last seen she was walking along the road to the air port, just south of the junction of highways No. 1 and No. 161.

The sheriff and members of the fire department were unsuccessful in finding her when they dragged the river yesterday afternoon. Further search was being made in the river opposite the air port last night.

Follow Foot Prints
Mr. Zager had followed footprints which he identified as those of his wife to a point just north of the air port hanger, where they abruptly ceased.

Mrs. Zager, according to members of her family, has been in ill health for some time. Four sons: Stanley, 21, Delbert, 19, Lewis, 18, and Olin, 15, are assisting in the search for their mother.

Bedford Man Dies of Burns on Journey Home With Gasoline
BEDFORD, Sept. 4 (AP)—L. O. West, 61 a farmer living near Blackton, was burned to death today when his automobile caught fire. He was driving home with a can of gasoline. It is thought the gasoline spilled from the can, due to the rough road, and became ignited in some manner by the engine.
Marks along the road indicated that West attempted to save himself by rolling in the grass and dirt.

Twenty-One Windows Smashed
MOLINE, Ill. (AP)—Police were searching for four men who are believed to have broken 21 plate glass store windows Thursday night.

Purchased by China; Part of U. S. Surplus

Will Go to Homeless, Starving in Flood Regions

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP)—The farm board has sold China 15,000,000 bushels of wheat.
Completion of the negotiations for the transaction was announced today by President Hoover. The grain will be used to feed the hungry in the flooded regions along the Yangtze river.

Carl Williams, farm board member, said a minimum of 50 per cent of the wheat would go as flour and that shipments were expected to begin in the latter part of this month.

To Pay By Installments
The Chinese government, he said, agreed to pay equal installments on the wheat in 1934, 1935 and 1936. The price is to be market quotations at the time of shipment with interest at four per cent.

Millers complained when Brazil put an embargo on flour soon after the government had exchanged 1,050,000 bags of coffee for 35,000,000 bushels of wheat held by the board.
Shipping interests also protested after they learned the Brazilian contract made no provision for carrying the grain or coffee in United States vessels.

Grain on West Coast
Williams said the grain was now stored in Pacific ports. The flour would be milled in this country, he said, before shipment, adding that most of the grain would be sent from Puget Sound.

A minimum of 50,000 tons monthly is to be shipped, after the movement begins, and more if possible.
Although the amount settled upon in the deal is 450,000 tons, approximately 15,000,000 bushels, Williams said it was possible that China might wish to purchase additional grain. He said in that event, new negotiations would be necessary.

75,000,000 Bushels Sold
The farm board has disposed of approximately 75,000,000 bushels of wheat this year but the amount it still holds is unofficially estimated at close to 200,000,000 bushels.
The steady accumulation of surplus wheat in the United States is regarded by the government as being the result altogether of overproduction and not the result of the depression.

The trouble, it was said, today, is deep-seated and goes back to the development of varieties of wheat which could be raised in semi-arid sections. This brought a large area into production which theretofore had produced nothing.

Equator Crossed by Graf on Way Home

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Sept. 5 (Saturday) (AP)—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin, communicating with the Zeppelin works at 12:20 a. m. today, gave her position as 7.20 degrees north latitude, 28.50 degrees west longitude.
The position is well above the equator and more than half the distance from Pernambuco, Brazil, which the Graf left yesterday, to the Cape Verde islands.

New York Will Investigate Evidence in Divorce Suits

MINEOLA, N. Y., Sept. 4 (AP)—In 1927, but only recently learned he had obtained a divorce on supposed evidence of misconduct in 1929 and 1930.

The district attorney said she was able to prove conclusively that she had not been in the state at that time.
Thomas Hennessy, Jr., investigator for Greenspan, who gave the evidence, was arrested and taken before the grand jury today. District Attorney Edwards said he admitted having given false testimony to obtain the divorce for Paxton.

The prosecutor said he would seek indictments for perjury and subornation of perjury against both Greenspan and Hennessy.
Immediately after the presentation of evidence before the grand jury today, Edwards sent word to all southern New York counties asking a complete examination of approximately 3,000 divorce cases which he said had been handled by Greenspan in recent years.

The complaint which resulted in the investigation was made by Mrs. Miriam Paxton.
She said she had been separated from Philip Paxton of Long Island

Army Band Will Visit West Branch, Give Free Concert

The United States army band of 42 pieces, which played last night at Muscatine will give a free public concert at 9 o'clock this morning in West Branch. The band is making the trip to pay honor to the birthplace of President Hoover which is located there.

W. B. Anderson, president of the West Branch community club, last night telephoned Dave Crum, secretary of the chamber of commerce here, extending an invitation for all Iowa Citizens to attend the concert. The affair will be held in the street near the former Hoover home.

Chile Seeks Truce Terms

Situation Grave While Mutiny, Strike Continues

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 4 (AP)—The failure of the Coquimbo naval mutineers to ratify final terms of a truce by which the government hoped to end the mutiny, and a general strike of all Valparaiso laborers, presented a grave situation for the Chilean government to cope with tonight.

The Valparaiso strike, ascribed by government officials to communists, tied up all street car and bus services. Regiments Revolt
Two regiments at Valparaiso revolted tonight and joined the naval mutineers.

The report that Great Britain, the United States and France were sending warships to Chile circulated persistently but was scoffed at in diplomatic circles. The embassies refused to dignify the report with denials.

Train Service Disrupted
Train service between Santiago and Valparaiso was partly disrupted but the government announced it would operate trains in the face of any strike.

Despite the day's developments, the government continued to contend that the situation was in hand.

City Inspector Office Altered by Councilmen

Change in the office of the city inspector was made last night by the city council when they gave all three necessary readings to two resolutions which divided the present position up into two parts, making one having charge of buildings and wiring, and the other having charge of plumbing. Previous to the passage of the resolution the council read a petition signed by practically all plumbers in Iowa City urging the measure and had heard several plumbers present their views.

Under the new system, one man will have charge of buildings and wiring and a journeyman plumber will be hired to take charge of plumbing inspections. Salary not to exceed $1,200 yearly will be paid out of the fees for plumbing inspections. The new official will be appointed January 1, 1932, at the same time as the building and wiring inspector, and will serve two years.

The petitions was signed by C. Rollin Sherck.

Doolittle Speeds Over U. S. in 11 Hours, 15 Minutes to Break Cross Country Mark

Babies, Autos Hold Attention at State Fair

Exposition's Baby Beef Auction Establishes Price Record

DES MOINES, Sept. 4 (AP)—Babies and roaring motor cars were in the spotlight today as the 1931 Iowa State fair came to a close. Proud mothers and fathers, and their friends found the most interesting at the women's and children's building viewing the various champions in the healthiest baby contest.

Des Moines Baby Wins
Proudest of the parents was Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Milligan of Des Moines, whose 23-month-old son, James Elmer, carried off the grand championship with a score of 98.60 points, a new high scoring record for the healthiest boy.

His score gave him a narrow margin over the healthiest girl, Patricia Ross Graham of Ft. Des Moines. James Elmer was the healthiest boy shown while young Miss Graham was the healthiest rural girl. The healthiest rural boy was Charles William Bass, son of Charles Bass of Winterest, and the healthiest city girl was Dolores Mae Patterson, daughter of W. A. Patterson of Des Moines.

Town Children's Class
In the town children's class the winners were Richard Dale Erickson, son of Archie Erickson of Roland, and Marilyn Jane Button, daughter of Deway Button of St. Charles.

The twin daughters of Edward T. Worden of Marshalltown, Beverly Ann and Barbara Jean, were adjudged the healthiest twins.

The final program in front of the grandstand featured the automobile races.

Woodbury Girl Wins
Another grand championship awarded today was in the 4-H club girls' demonstration teams. The prize was won by Merle Olson and Audrey Spencer of Woodbury county, who demonstrated styles and children's clothing.

The feature in the livestock barns today was the auction sale of baby beavers.

60 Cents a Pound
A new record for state fair baby beef auctions was set when the Morrell Packing company of Ottumwa paid 60 cents a pound for the grand champion of the 4-H club show, a shorthorn fed by Dale Westphalen of Atlantic. The animal weighed 940 pounds, netting Westphalen $564.

There were several bidders for the grand champion, Harry Hopley of Atlantic, Bishops cafeteria and E. W. Hubbell of Des Moines being the contenders.

Reserve Champion Sold
Bishop, bought the reserve champion, an Angus fed by Robert Wilkinson of Lucas, for 24 cents a pound. The 4-H club members were enriched to the extent of approximately $45,000 for the 370 head sold. The price was estimated to have averaged more than 10 cents a pound.

Morrell with 80 head was the heaviest individual purchaser with Iowa Packing Co. next with 55. In the boys 4-H club demonstrations the Polk county team of Everett Ellis and Elmore Balhals of Grimes, with a demonstration on control of mange in swine, was awarded the grand championship after having won first in the livestock division.

The Scott county team of Kenneth Ruetner and Grover Hahn won first in the booth demonstration contest although Story county was awarded first for having the best booth. The Scott boys demonstrated the planting of trees to control erosion.

Volunteers to Sell Heart Tags Today
Volunteers of America will hold their annual Heart Tag day in Iowa City today. The tags will be sold to a large extent in the residential district.

Beats 1930 Record of Captain Hawks in Race

NEWARK AIRPORT, N. J., Sept. 4 (AP)—In a dazzling streak of super speed, Major James H. Doolittle raced across the transcontinental sky trial to a new record today.

The audacious airman set his plane down here at 3:50 p.m. (E.S.T.), just 11 hours and 15 minutes after he had hopped off from Burbank, Cal., at 4:35 a.m. (E.S.T.)

In bettering the 1930 performance of Captain Frank M. Hawks by one hour, 10 minutes and three seconds, Doolittle also beat a field of eight into Cleveland, Ohio, to capture the Bendix air trophy competition from Burbank to Cleveland.

Tired, But Ambitious
Tired but still ambitious, Doolittle turned his plane around here and streaked back toward Cleveland to-night en route to his St. Louis home.

He arrived in Cleveland at 4:52 p.m. (C.S.T.), one hour and 52 minutes after leaving here. He took six minutes longer to cover the distance on the westward hop than he had taken coming in this direction.

"Where's my gas?" was his main concern when he landed here on the Flying Argosy which will carry him over a total of more than 3,500 miles by the time he reaches St. Louis.

$7,500 Prize
A prize of $7,500 rewarded him for his victory in the Bendix race and an added purse of $2,500 was his for the new cross country performance.

Captain Hawks in 1930 completed his record-smashing flight at Roosevelt Field, N. Y., but that airport is only six or seven minutes disused from here, and Doolittle's whirlwind trip at an average of 225 miles an hour left a wide margin to account for the difference in their terminals.

Few Thunderstorms
"I had good weather except for a few thunderstorms," he said. "My motor worked beautifully. My best time was 240 miles an hour, between Kansas City and Cleveland, but as I circled Newark airport for a landing I was making 250 miles an hour."

A crowd of several hundred persons, three newsreel trucks, and more than a score of cameramen lined the edge of Newark airport as Doolittle's tiny green and orange biplane tore out of the west, and taxied up to within a few feet of the spectators.

Both the plane and the pilot showed the effects of the long flight. The sides of the plane were streaked with oil that had splattered from the motor. Doolittle appeared greatly fatigued.

Cotton in Ears
As soon as the wheels of his plane had stopped he ripped off his headgear and goggles, pulled wads of cotton from his ears and shouted to airport attendants:

"Where's my gas? I've got to go right back to Cleveland."
The battery of cameramen and newsreel photographers was pressing forward and begging that he pose for them. Reporters were trying to interview him, but Doolittle, temporarily deafened by the roar of his motor, and interested only in making preparations for his return hop, paid no attention to them.

While Waiting
Instead, he rushed to the airport office and had a number of telephone calls put through for his fuel. While awaiting its arrival, he ate some ice cream. He took no time to wash the grease from his face, pushed aside the crowd of reporters and well wishers who pressed close to him and went off to inspect his plane.

The time of Doolittle's arrival at 3:50 and his establishment of a transcontinental record of 11 hours and 15 minutes was certified by W. D. Ward and Luke Christopher, official timers of the National Aero-Club.

No Wind Benefits
Doolittle explained in discussing his time that he had not been benefited by wind. He said he encountered as much headwind as tailwind.
Doolittle made three refueling stops on the way from Burbank to Newark, at Albuquerque, Kansas City, and Cleveland, taking on 140 gallons of gasoline each time.

Capture Bank Bandits
RUSH CITY, Minn., Sept. 4 (AP)—Within five hours after they are alleged to have robbed the First National bank of Braham of approximately $1,500, two 17 year old St. Paul youths were captured in a haystack near here tonight.

Another Education Remedy

NOW ARISES another critic to remind the world that education is "chaos," but with the difference that he has a pleasing remedy, albeit it is insufficient and impractical for other than self education. The new prophet is Gamaliel Bradford, popular biographer, who expounded his theory recently in the New York Times literary supplement.

In justice to Mr. Bradford let it be said that he refers to his suggestions only as a "clue which . . . may afford a certain amount of help. I mean the clue of biography." Admitting his solution does not offer intellectual discipline, Mr. Bradford says that biography has "the immense advantage of affording a natural link between the otherwise widely scattering and mutually repellent divergences of developing knowledge . . . all that makes the universe, is simply the human being. Now biography is the study of human beings, what they have been what they are, what they may be . . . what they can do."

"In short, biography is the autobiography of humanity, and if so, can there be any study of greater educational value and utility?"

Biography might not solve the whole problem of education, but a really substantial dose of it would act to make up one vital lack in most undergraduate curricula. It would help correlate the divergent fields of educational effort, and educators are coming more and more to agreement that lack of correlation is the principle fault of their trade.

At any rate the individual who is not able to attend college or university will find one of the shortest routes to broad education through biographical works.

Time for Good Reading

IT BRINGS you the contents of more than 50 volumes," advertises a publishing company of its magazine subscription offer, "a $50 reading program for the cost of a single book."

Nor is that all. In two magazines the subscriber gets, in one year, "12 new novels, 125 short stories, 600 special articles."

For $3 that is unquestionably a bargain. But it would be easy to go broke "saving money" on bargain sales if anybody tried to see how much money he could save by spending all he had. The bargain price is only an object if the article is first needed or desired.

When it comes to reading, money is not really the most important thing being invested. The time devoted to reading is of more consequence, for there is an abundance of printed matter available without great cost.

To be informed on what is going on in the world and the neighborhood, the daily newspaper is read. Perhaps a current events periodical like newsmagazine Time is added. Additional material on contemporary personalities and contemporary movements can be gleaned from magazines, with a proper selection aiding in time saving. And ordinarily a professional or business man will read a publication related to his line of work.

The ordinary reader has small time for reading books if he gives much time to newspaper and magazine perusal. In most cases, the reading of books comes last, to be got around to after everything else is looked through — perhaps not at all.

With only a little time to read, is it shrewd to be content with the 12 novels which appear in two magazines during a year? If only a dozen books are to be read in a year, should that dozen be selected? What of novels — or non-fiction works — which have loomed large within the decade, the century, or all time? Must they be altogether neglected?

Literature affords at once an escape from the humdrum phases of life and a source of additional, enriching experience. To have read widely is to have lived more deeply. Of all that has been written; it pays to read the best.

As to short stories, shall the 125 published in two periodicals comprise the sources for the year's reading? What of Maupassant and O. Henry? Are the masters to be ignored for their less skilled imitators?

Time devoted to reading magazine fiction and current literature is not wasted. But even for a person with nothing to do but read during his whole lifetime, it is not possible to get through all the published works available. Can anyone who merely wants first class entertainment afford to squander his time altogether on untried writing when there is so much bearing the approval stamp of thousands? The slight extra effort involved in getting a book from the library fades into insignificance at the thought.

Let's Keep the Punt

(From the Des Moines Register)
See Taylor in The Register's sports section has taken courteous issue with Howard Jones, former Iowa university coach and now coach at the University of Southern California, as to abolishment of the punt in football.

The punt, Jones suggests, merely slows up the game. It has outworn its value. And it might well be eliminated.

But the punt, in Taylor's opinion, is one of the most interesting plays in football. It is true that it often enables a team that has been driven down close to its goal to shift the play, in one quick stroke, from that dangerous region to the center of the field. It enables a team that has been forced on the defensive to "get out of the hole." It can gain for a team 50 yards in a jiffy, though those 50 yards may have been bought by the opposing team by 10 minutes of terrific effort. In short, the punt is a powerful defensive weapon which often nullifies a great offensive attack.

The Register suggests that its sports editor is right in concluding that the coaches who regularly develop heavy, powerful attacking teams would not mind seeing the punt abolished, but that all other coaches will favor its retention. It suspects also that the public, which jams the stadiums and rolls up the "gates," will insist on its retention.

Perhaps it is incidental, but the fact also remains that the punt can be made into a useful weapon of attack in the hands of a coaching staff and a team that are able so to employ it. Styles in offense change, but they probably change in cycles.

One other thing to consider is the need of stabilizing football rules. In no other great and popular sport in the world would such frequent, experimental changes be tolerated as in football. There was need of change once, about 20 years ago, fundamental change. And the making of that change necessarily was followed by a period of adjustment. That period ought to be past. When we get to the point at which practically all proposed rule changes are advanced by coaches who want to gain an advantage for their own style of play, or their own kind of material, or to destroy an advantage which they think another coach or a rival team enjoys, is it not time to stop?

From now on why not let coaches and teams adjust to the rules, rather than try each year to make the rules fit the special interests of individuals?

The punt in football, it may be added, is about all that remains of the game to identify it with "foot."

You can say one thing for a bear market; it doesn't tempt the boys to make a killing with somebody else's money.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

In the midst of the $250,000,000 radio city project in New York, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and his associates are planning to establish a cultural center, a veritable oasis in the center of the largest single commercial enterprise of its kind in the world. Plans include the establishment of a training school for promising young musicians and the development of a forum for the dissemination of political and civic topics.

That form of combining business with pleasure is assured of success as a worthy enterprise and a notable achievement in the world of big business. If more huge corporations spent more time and money on training and developing of cultural skills as well as commercial, we would never be guilty of the stigma of "commercialism."

A University of Idaho student topped them all recently in the way of odd jobs for tuition money by discovering a gold mine in his spare moments and working it for seven half pint fruit jars of coarse placer gold, netting him $1,700. Other students have found comparative gold mines selling aluminum ware and magazines during the summer vacations but it remained for this Idahoan to do the real thing.

After panning between $30 and $40 a day from his claim in the Thunder mountain region just east of Cascade, Idaho, with all the hardships of forty-niners, that student ought to enjoy the education he can buy with his hard earned money. On the other hand, and this is somewhat remote, if he can hike out and find himself a paying gold mine every so often, why worry about the education? Perhaps he'll need that to help him spend the fortune.

Wages must be the same regardless of age, sex or nationality when the work is of the same quantity and quality, are the terms of the new national labor law in Mexico. Not a bad law, although it has been an unwritten law for ages. In rare cases will two men be found doing precisely equal quality work under the same laboring conditions. Regardless of age, sex or nationality, there are always men and women who seek to push to the fore by doing superior quality work; others not so ambitious just hold the same position for years, or are demoted. Therein lies the justice for salary scales. And by the time Mexican employers analyze the various qualities of interest and energy exerted by their laborers, they will be forced to recognize the justice of scaling wages, and yet they will be abiding by the labor law which says that there shall be no variation of salaries between men of the same quality and quantity of work. Few such they will find.

From coast to coast in 11 hours, 10 minutes, and 10 seconds was the record made yesterday by James Doolittle when he flew from Burbank, Cal., to Newark, N. J., to lead Derby racers in a dash to Cleveland. Now Capt. Frank Hawks' transcontinental record of a little over 12 hours is history, and dare-devils of the air have another cross country speed record to shoot at. Air enthusiasts are proud of Doolittle's achievement, but they should not be loath to predict that the record won't stand long. Nobody wants the record to stand too long. There would be no progress in aviation speed if it did, and there must be progress.

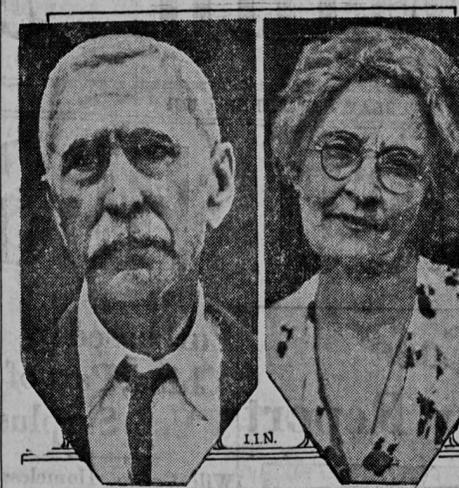

Postal supervisors, convening in San Francisco, decided to ask the United States civil service commission to drop all married women from the rolls so that unemployed men might be given their jobs. There are so many cases these days where combined incomes of husband and wife are necessary to support any kind of family, that it seems unjust to rule out women just because they are married. And the hard part is that probably a lot of men who will gain jobs thereby have wives working somewhere else.

"COIN" HARVEY OUT FOR PRESIDENT

W.H. COIN HARVEY and WIFE

MONTE NE, Ark., Sept. 4.—While the political bee has been merrily buzzing about the probable candidacies of President Hoover and Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for presidential honors in 1932, a once famous, but, for 30 years obscure, political-economist, has stolen a march on the "big shots" and tossed his hat into the proverbial ring as the first nominee.

W. H. "Coin" Harvey is his name. He may be past 80 years of age and nearly blind, but with the enthusiasm of a zealot, he stands out today as the first nominated candidate for the White House.

Although "Coin" retired to this tiny village in the Ozarks of Arkansas 30 years ago, when he became disgusted after the country turned its back on free silver and William Jennings Bryan, he was a well-known political figure of his day. With becoming modesty, he suggested when the party he and his loyal wife and their followers organized, the "Liberty" political faith, nominated him for the presidency that they withdraw the honor and select a younger man. But when his party was threatened with dissolution at its first convention, he forgot his years, his physical limitations and dove into the contest for the highest honor of the land with all the vigor of a man half his years.

The platform of the Liberty party and "Coin" Harvey can be stated simply and well in the three words — "To save civilization." The "saving" process includes such radical changes as reorganization of the money system, abolishment of interest charges, government ownership of all banks, railroads, telephones and electric projects. Mints, incidentally, would be opened to the free coinage of silver.

Some of Presidential Aspirant Harvey's political followers intimating at the national nominating convention held at Monte Ne that such a platform, the brain child of "Coin" himself, was being "railroaded,"

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON — So many odd and unexplained things happened in connection with Secretary Stimson's summer trip to Europe that Washington speculated as to whether he would fill out his term in the cabinet.

Just what definite foundation there was for any idea that he would resign, it was difficult to say. That is the trouble with Washington gossip. Sometimes it is founded on perfectly good information.

Big men in the political set-up like just as well to peddle about news in confidential whispers as do other folk.

But you can never be quite certain they are not merely guessing. They have personal as well as political likes and dislikes.

PRECEDENT

As far as the Bystander knows, President Hoover set a precedent when he selected Stimson for the job.

He had never seen the man to whom the most important cabinet post was to go.

Looking over the long roster of past secretaries of state, one gets the impression that most presidents picked men for that post with intimate personal knowledge, if not long

Explanation of Yesterday's Cartoon
Ivan the Terrible: Ivan IV "The Terrible," the first of the Russian Czars and the most bloodthirsty ruler to be inflicted on any nation, entered the city of Novgorod on January 6, 1570 at the head of 6,000 gangsters (opryczniki). From then until February 11, 1570 he raged over the unfortunate inhabitants "with unbridled fury and unchecked cruelty." On a trumped-up charge of treason he caused them to be arraigned before him in groups of 100 and after a mock trial invariably sentenced them to be roasted alive over a slow fire and drowned. Seventy thousand Novgorodians including women, children and infants, were tortured to death before the eyes of the tyrant within the five weeks, or at the rate of 2,000 daily. "The Artist in Crime" was history dubbed him, was a victim of insanity, but he could exercise remarkable ingenuity in the invention of tortures for his subjects. ## Scientific Principles Outwit Tornadoes, Says Dean Williams

Curbing of the damage done by tornadoes by use of scientific principles of stress and strain in the construction of buildings is possible, according to Clement C. Williams, dean of the college of engineering.

Even the most severe tornadoes will fall greatly to injure a sturdy-built structure of steel and reinforced concrete, providing the building has been maintained in a good state of repair, he said.

When faulty details of carpentry handed down through the years are supplanted by scientific designs of proven worth, frame dwelling houses will resist the average tornado.

The popular notion that such violent storms cannot successfully be combated arises from overestimation of the velocity and pressure of the wind. Actually, he declared, wind velocities in the most severe storm amounts to not more than 150 miles per hour, although estimates increase that figure three times.

Sees Miss Shaw Again
Smith this morning saw Pauline Shaw again.

She accosted him with, "Hello, Jay," the name by which she knew him at the time of their courtship and marriage in Kansas.

He stared at her blankly. She repeated the salutation, but he gave no sign of recognition, other than a grunt.

Later a newspaper man asked him about the incident, saying, "Isn't she the Kansas girl?"

Red Hair?
Smith said little to this, except a vague statement that he "thought the Kansas girl had red hair."

Miss Shaw recognized Miss Shaw and called her by name. Miss Shaw and her companion, May Clayton of Chautauque, Kan., yesterday said they positively identified Smith.

Miss Shaw appeared happy today, and less distraught than yesterday, when she met Mrs. Smith for the first time. The 18 year old Kansas girl said that Smith had told her on March 21, the night when he departed nearly caught him as he was about to keep a rendezvous with his wife, that a return to Perry was "to get even with some people."

Miss Shaw Talks
To newspaper men Miss Shaw said Smith had told her the statement referred to Mrs. Smith, and that she had failed to keep an agreement with him regarding the division of the insurance money.

The car in which Smith returned to Perry was said to have carried Minnesota license plates. State agents here said they had investigated several clues as to the origin of the car, but in vain. It was understood that this car later was traded in for a new automobile in Kansas. This latter machine bears a mortgage and allegedly was taken out of the state, contrary to law.

Pershing Mum on Politics; May Write Second Volume

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (AP)—General John J. Pershing, who helped win the greatest war in history, came home from France again today, still a soldier from foot tip to hat crown, still carrying himself like the general he is, but finally beginning to show his 70 years.

He had been in France in his capacity as chairman of the battle monuments commission and said the memorials probably will all be completed by next summer.

Wants to Chat
More than 15 reporters were received by the general in his stateroom on the Leviathan as it docked. Turns Interviewer
So General Pershing turned interviewer and the men who came to question remained to be questioned. He showed pleasure over the reception of his own book on the war had been accorded here and abroad.

He told how he had labored two years on it, some times dictating, more often writing himself.

Now he is contemplating another volume. It will contain his complete memoirs.

May Get Done
"Well, I'm thinking about it," the general said with a laugh, "but if this hot weather continues it won't get rewritten."

The general seemed a bit weary at the close of the interview, but as the reporters filed out he stood in the center of the room beaming after them, his shoulders squared and head erect, his eyes flashing—for a moment the hero of 1918 again, the man after whom Paris has just named a boulevard and who enshrines himself deeper in the hearts of the French every time he visits them.

Alexander's Rangers continue to win their industrial league kitenball games with regularity, holding first place in the standings with an unblemished record. Last night they took the 186th Hospital company boys into camp by the tune of 5 to 2.

Neither of the teams did much in the way of hitting, but the winners bunched the few hits they did get. The army started out as if they were going to win, counting twice in the first frame, but that was the end of their scoring.

Batteries — Linder and Potter; Vestermark and Judy.

Racine's Lost to Dee's
Dee's Recreation, in the other game at the municipal field last night, took the measure of Racine's 6 to 4.

There were numerous extra base hits on the part of both teams, but a home run by Ted Fay, the only four bagger of the game, figured materially in the win for the Recreation boys.

Batteries — Smith and Catta; Geiger and Kelleher.

Knights of Pythias Triumph
After losing their last two games, before which they had held first position in the club loop standings, the Knights of Pythias started on the comeback trail last night when they defeated the Press-Citizen 11 to 7.

Throughout the game the lead changed from one team to the other, but superior hitting brought victory to the lodge men.

Batteries — Weber and O'Hara; Chervinka and Anderson.

Elks Win Over Dairy Boys
In a free hitting contest at the park last night, the Elks were finally able to eke out an 11 to 10 win over Sidwell's Dairy Boys.

Neither of the pitchers were able to check the hitting, relying entirely on their offensive support to win.

Batteries — Koza and Katzenmeyer; Miller and Maxey.

More than 300,000 persons visited the new Chicago board of trade building during its first year of operation.

2 Local Men Aid in Study of Calendar

Survey Result to Reach League of Nations in October

With two University of Iowa professors playing major parts, the University Association for the Study of Calendar Reform has begun a can-United States.

The purpose of the survey is to ascertain opinion on the two more generally favored plans — the 12 months revised plan and the 13 months scheme.

Prof. Roy C. Flickinger, head of the department of Latin and Greek, and Prof. Charles C. Wylie of the department of mathematics, the Iowa executives of the association, declare that the result of the canvass will be reported to the league of nations committee at the October meeting in Geneva, Switzerland.

As explained by Professor Wylie, secretary of the organization, the 12 months revised plan would make each quarter three months long, the first month having 31 days and the others 30 days each.

Each month would have 28 week days, each quarter 13 complete weeks, and the four quarters 52 weeks or 364 days.

The 365th day of the year, an extra above the equal quarters, would be placed at the end of December and called Year day. In leap year, the extra day would come either at the end of June or December. Both would be considered the second day of a double Saturday, or a "blank" day falling between Saturday and Sunday.

Under terms of the 13 months calendar, each month would consist of four complete weeks, or 28 days. A new month, called Sol, would be inserted between June and July. The thirteen months would contain 52 weeks or 364 days.

Then the 365th day, extra above the thirteen months would be dated Dec. 29 and called Year day, and in leap year, the 366th day would be dated June 29. Each extra day, or holiday, would be a "blank" day between Saturday and Sunday.

Veteran Francis Ouimet to Play Jack Westland for U. S. Amateur Title

20 Foot Putt Wins for 1914 Titlist by 2-1

McCarthy's Desperate Rally Falls Short of Victory

BEVERLY COUNTRY CLUB, Chicago, Sept. 4 (AP)—The veteran Francis Ouimet today turned back the "boy wonder" of Virginia, Billy Howell, and will play the home town favorite, Jack Westland, tomorrow for the amateur golf championship of the United States.

With a finishing flash of inspired golf reminiscent of the pre-war days when he was first open and then amateur champion of the nation, Ouimet dealt the finishing blow by sinking a 20 foot putt on the 35th green for a birdie duce after Billy had come within a few inches of holing out from a trap.

A gallery of nearly 3,000 spectators cheered this brilliant finale shortly after Westland checked the last-ditch rally of Maurice J. McCarthy, Jr., to eliminate New York's favorite, 3 and 2 on the 34th hole. McCarthy started out a 2 and 1 choice but he was never a match for the cool and skillful Chicago star until it was too late. Six down and six to go, McCarthy put on a typical rally, capturing three straight holes, but missed a three footer to win the 34th and passed out of the picture.

Sharp Contrast
The 36 hole final will bring together two players whose national tournament experience hardly could be more sharply contrasting. This is Ouimet's fifteenth national amateur battle since 1913, whereas Westland qualified only once before, in 1926 at Baltusrol, where he was eliminated by Watts Gunn in the first round.

Ouimet, a semi finalist eight times altogether, twice before has been in the final. He beat Jerry Travers for the crown in 1914 but lost to Chick Evans of Chicago in 1920. Ouimet is 38 years old and Westland 27.

Westland, the Chicago district champion, has contributed some of the most brilliant golf of the first "Joneless" tournament since before the war. First to tee off in the qualifying round Monday, Jack shot the first nine in just 33 strokes, 3 under par. He led the whole field for the day, with a 72 but skidded to an 84 on Tuesday and qualified only by the margin of a single stroke.

2 Up at Lunch
Safely past this barrier he displayed extraordinary match-play skill. His golf today was the soundest in either semi final. He negotiated the first round today in 73 despite a weird 7 on the home hole, and went to lunch 2 up.

From the outset of the afternoon round, Westland turned the match unexpectedly into a rout. He took five to the first seven holes to become 7 up with only 11 to go. He was out in 37, only one over par, and six up as McCarthy sought desperately to regain control.

On the 24th McCarthy exploded from a trap on this 137 yarder, dead for his 3, only to have Jack roll in a 20 footer for a winning duce.

Whittles Down Lead
McCarthy had whittled his rival's lead to five holes as they shot the water hole, the 30th of the match. Maurice got a big hand as he hit within five feet of the pin. Jack's ball landed barely a foot farther from the cup, whereupon he sank the putt for another duce and McCarthy missed.

Six down then and six to go, the New Yorker still proved himself a fighter. As Westland took a turn at getting mixed up with the traps, McCarthy reeled off three straight winning holes. He won the 33rd despite hitting a tree and being in a trap. At the 34th Maurice had two putts for a win but he missed the last one, from three feet. Westland got a half and it was all over.

Howell looked like a winner as he outstayed, outdove and outputted the veteran Ouimet in the morning round. Billy was only one up at lunch, with a medal score of 79 to Ouimet's 80, but he had led most of the way and was playing sounder golf. Francis missed two putts of less than three feet for wins and was in seven traps, due to a marked tendency to hook his approach shots.

Control "Cracks"
Starting the final round, a third straight stymie at the 19th put Howell 2 up, whereupon for no apparent reason his control "cracked." The youngster dropped four of the next five holes as he wandered into all sorts of trouble.

Howell was lucky to get back the 26th, where Ouimet stymied himself after apparently having the hole clinched, but Billy holed an eight footer for a birdie at the 26th and squared the match. After dropping the 27th he negotiated a three quarter stymie, caroming off Ouimet's ball to win the 28th and again deadlocked the battle. When the youngster holed a 10 footer for a duce on the 30th to go 1 up the big gallery let loose with a wild demonstration.

Howell was the favorite of the fans all day, because of his youth and fighting qualities. But the veteran Ouimet holed a 22-footer for a birdie 3 on the 31st to square the match once more, got down a 10-footer to regain the lead at the 33rd and settled the match with a sensa-

Sportively Speaking

By Bill Rutledge

The Cubs have the right idea. If they can't win the National league pennant they so earnestly desire with the present players, then scout around for new recruits. Considerable has been accomplished along that line already this season, but it is apparently far from the end.

A sterling hurler and a slugging outfielder who have been keeping the Des Moines Demons at the top of the Western league have been purchased by William Wrigley this season.

Lyle "Bud" Tinning, who holds a minor league pitching record of 16 straight victories, will be given an opportunity to don a Bruin uniform at the spring training session at the Catalina Islands next season.

The same chance will be extended to Mike Kreevich. The sum laid out for these players has been reported to have been a record amount for the Western league.

The down-the-chute act of the Cubs has been ascribed to poor management on the part of Rogers Hornsby. Yet Owner Wrigley refuses to take any stock in that argument. He has said that he is perfectly satisfied with the "Tajah" as the manager of his club.

The patriarch of amateur golf—Francis Ouimet—who took the championship in 1914, can clutch the crown this afternoon by downing Jack Westland.

Ouimet might have become the greatest golfer in the amateur ranks if it hadn't been that Bobby Jones came along and reaped the honor. Jones was an unsurmountable barrier to Ouimet in amateur tourneys. Bobby was just that to practically all simon-pure golfers for that matter. The peerless Atlanta may become a supreme champion among the professionals if he decides to play for pay. Only 29 years of age if it is not at all unlikely that Jones will turn to pro competition.

Meyers Here Today; Croy in Top Shape

"Be there tomorrow without fail." Signed: Johnny Meyers.

This telegram was received by Hubert Smith, head of the local Knights of Pythias, yesterday afternoon.

The 42 year old Chicago mat veteran will immediately begin final training for his bout Labor Day at Hills with Harold Croy. He will appear in a series of exhibition matches with local wrestlers.

In the meantime Croy has been putting himself in condition for the battle with workouts at Hills.

Two other wrestling matches and a boxing bout will support the main go. Ernie Thompson of Newton, a protegee of Ralph Parcaut, faces Brendell of Des Moines. Harold Timm clashes with Hess, a Davenport wrestler. The glove scrap brings Oscar Graham of Iowa City into action against Bud Mentzer of Hills.

Alex Fidler of Cedar Rapids will referee all the matches.

Ouimet shot the last six holes in two strokes under par, 33-4-4-2, against Billy's par golf of 2-4-4-3-3.

Connie Mack, Jr., son of the Philadelphia Athletics manager, won four games and lost none for the Skytop, Pa., club in the Pocono mountains. He is spending the season at the club.

Misjudged Fly Breaks 1 to 1 Tie in Eighth

Pepper Martin Loses Fly as L. Waner Counts Tally

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 4 (AP)—A misjudged fly and a base on balls enabled Pittsburgh to make it two straight over St. Louis today, 3 and 1.

With the score tied 1-1 in the eighth, Martin, St. Louis center-fielder, failed to gather in Traynor's fly and the hit went for a single, enabling Lloyd Waner to score. The locals added a second tally in the same frame when Bill Hallahan passed Piet to force Jensen across the plate.

Hallahan and Meine allowed six hits each.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4 (AP)—Phil Collins hurled his seventh straight victory for the Phils today when he defeated Boston 11 to 1.

The Phillies hammered Brandt out of the box with a six run attack in the fifth inning and continued their slugging against Haid. Chuck Klein and Spud Davis, who are in the race with Terry for the batting championship of the National league, each had three hits.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 4 (AP)—The National league dungeon keepers showing unexpected championship class today, defeated the wobbling Cubs for the fifth consecutive time, slamming three Chicago pitchers for 21 hits.

The score was 12 to 3. Red Lucas, who beat the Hornsby machine last Sunday, accomplished the same thing in even more decisive manner today.

He was aided by heavy hitting, Douthitt getting 4 safeties and Roush and Hendrick three hits each.

Giants Cop Sixth in Row; Blank Robins

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (AP)—Bill Walker, Giant southpaw, chalked up his sixth shutout and his fifteenth victory of the year today as the McGrawmen blanked their old rivals, the Brooklyn Robins, 3 to 0. It marked the Giants' sixth straight triumph.

Watson Clark held the Giants to three hits and one run for six innings, but weakened towards the last. Ethan Allen's pinch single drove across two runs in the eighth. Walker yielded eight hits, but only one Robin got as far as third base, Frederick in the sixth. He struck out five.

83 Per Cent of Grid Squad Native Iowans

NATIONAL AMATEUR GOLF TOURNAMENT

Survivors on the third day of the national amateur golf tournament at Beverly Country club, Chicago, were, left to right, Francis Ouimet of Auburndale, Mass.; William Howell of Richmond, Va.; Maurice McCarthy of New York and Jack Westland of Chicago.

Eighty-three per cent of the members of the 1931 University of Iowa football squad are natives of this state, a scrutiny of the roster discloses.

Fifty of the 65 candidates for the forty-third Hawkeye grid machine first saw the light of day in Iowa, while the other 15 were born in nine states and Canada.

Ed Dolly, Illinois; Al Rogers, Arkansas; and Bud Willer, Illinois, are the three major letter men who are not Iowans. Eight minor letter winners are Iowans of the state, Austin Akin, Louisiana; Jim Hart, Canada; Sam Meltzer, Illinois, and Ray Story, Nebraska.

Neither of the giant Foster boys, who completed their high school grid careers at Davenport, are natives, Jerry, the 220 pound tackle prospect, was born in Michigan, and Bill, 195 pound line hope, in Alabama.

Other athletes born in states other than Iowa are: Glen Baker, 215 pound tackle of Davenport, Wisconsin; Art Hannes, Council Bluffs end; Washington; John O'Leary, Cherokee halfback, Kentucky, and Philip Thurlie, Mason City quarter, Illinois.

Carlos Proctor, Florida football star and captain-elect for 1931, was successful in his professional boxing debut. He intends to seek a career in the ring.

George Washington Payne was the second pitcher to win 20 games this year in the Texas league. "Dizzy" Dean was the first. Both are Houston Buffaloes.

Hawkeye Gridders Will Wear Double Numbers This Fall

MAJOR LEAGUE STANDINGS

Gallery following Francis Ouimet on eleventh fairway at Beverly Country club, Chicago, on the third day of the national amateur golf tournament. Ouimet is in right foreground in white.

"Who is the big fellow who stopped that play?"

"Boy, that man surely can run! Who is he?"

Such questions have been frequently asked at Iowa football games in the past and inevitably the answer has been "Wait until he turns around so I can see his number."

That day is now gone, Hawkeye gridders this fall will wear identification numbers on both the front and back of their jerseys according to the announcement of Coach Burton A. Ingwersen.

This plan follows the recommendation made by Big Ten coaches at their last meeting. Many Old Gold opponents have worn the double numbers in recent years, but the idea is a new one here.

Sig Haughdahl Wins Major Race Honors in Fair's Last Day

DES MOINES, Sept. 4 (AP)—Sig Haughdahl of Minneapolis, who holds more world's dirt track records than any other driver, improved one of his maris and carried away major honors in the Iowa state fair auto races today.

Piloting his Miller straight eight in faultless manner, the veteran Norwegian driver chopped four seconds off his old two-mile record of 1:56.8, set seven years ago in Springfield, Mass.

Haughdahl took an early lead and successfully balked at the curves the challenges of Gus Schrader of Cedar Rapids, Ia., whose Frontenac had more speed on the straightaways but would not cling to the track on the corners.

Schrader, however, was the thrill vendor of the day. After bringing the DUBUQUE, Sept. 4 (AP)—The Dubuque Tigers lost their final game with Ed Hendee as manager to Keokuk, 8 to 5, today. Hendee leaves for Newton, Ia., where he has winter employment which he must begin now. The Tigers will be led for the remainder of the season by Elmer Peters, 21 year old star second baseman.

Phil Weintraub, injured Dubuque outfielder and former pitcher, started but was wild and was relieved by Ed Paust, who was also wild and was charged with the defeat. Keokuk bunched hits in the last three innings to win.

Seventy-eight golf caddies of the Owensboro, Ky., Country club were guests of honor at a barbecue.

The scores were 2 to 0 and 6 to 1. Foxx' homer was a long drive over the left field fence. Grove allowed the left field fence. Grove allowed not a Bostonian reached third.

Waite Hoyt also chalked up another win for himself in the second game by holding the Sox to seven hits. The one Boston run was unearned and followed an error by Foxx, who played third in this game. Four of Boston's hits were successful bunts, mainly directed at Foxx.

Nats Win 10 Inning Tilt With Yanks 5-4

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP)—Puddy Myer, alumnive Washington second baseman, proved too much for the Yankees today as the Senators nosed out New York 5-4 in opening a four-game series.

By the victory, Washington drew a game more away from the Yankees, leaving New York two and one-half games out of second place. They will play a double header tomorrow and conclude the series Sunday.

Myer brought in three of Washington's five runs, two on a long single he stretched into a double in the eighth, and the winning marker in the tenth after two were out.

Ruth's triple in the first sent New York away with a lead in Combs score. The Bumping came home on Gehrig's single. New York got two more in the fourth, Dickey's three-batter driving in Larry, who had walked. Dickey scored on Lazzeri's one-baser.

Manager Johnson used four pitchers, Firpo Marberry, senior ace, being eluded out in his fourth.

Washington .....000 020 100—5 9 0

Walker's home run in the sixth inning with two men on base proved to be the Detroit Tiger's winning margin over the White Sox here today. Detroit won the game 4 to 3 to make it two in a row over the Palo Hose.

Ted Lyons making his first start since July 27, pitched good ball but his mates could not solve the offerings of Earl Whitehill, to any great extent.

The White Sox collected their runs in the first and fourth frames but could not get to Whitehill in the late innings.

The Wolves of the Water-Front by Edgar Wallace

Synopsis of Preceding Installments A crook, masquerading as an officer, obtains from a safe deposit box certain papers concerning Della Pattison, an heiress who is believed to have perished in a fire.

Wary as he was, Wade had to return to duty, to formulate his charge against Mrs. Oaks. When she was brought in from her cell, she was in a most conciliatory mood.

Fifteenth Installment The bearded man, whose masquerade as a police sergeant had completely fooled both Wade and Elk, went up the stairs, reached the top, and backed slowly into the adjoining room.

"Me, for example?" said Wade brusquely. "Is that the bait you're holding out? Well, I don't rise to it. And as for your poor dear sister, if you ever had one, I'm quite sure she was neither poor nor dear. That story doesn't wash. Lila Smith is Della Pattison."

"The alarm bell!" gasped the manager. He pushed past Elk, sprawled over the desk, and groped underneath. Instantly the quiet street echoed with the clang of the alarm.

Wade nodded to the sergeant and briefly stated the charge. "You'll give me bail, won't you, Mr. Wade?" She was almost tearful.

"Who was it?" he asked. Elk blew a cloud of smoke to the ceiling. "The late Lord Sinford," he said. "Sinford — dead? Drowned?"

Wade stared at him. "Who was it?" he asked. Elk blew a cloud of smoke to the ceiling. "The late Lord Sinford," he said. "Sinford — dead? Drowned?"

South Dakota County Treasurer, Assistant Held as Embezzlers

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 4 (AP)—Sheriff John P. Cuffe and Deputy Joseph F. Glass arrived here today from Roberts county, South Dakota, by automobile to get Albert Wickard, 59, former Roberts county treasurer, and Pearl Cline, 45, his assistant, wanted on a charge of embezzling $2,000 of the county's funds.

Sheriff Cuffe and his deputy said they traveled 2,000 miles in their car since last Friday. They expect to start back with their prisoners tomorrow.

Wickard, a farmer with a wife and 11 children, came east five months ago for medical treatment and shortly afterward the alleged shortage was discovered in Roberts county's 1927 accounts.

City Council Argues Over Veto Action

Accept August Voucher Bills; Authorize Petitions

Intermittent storm and calm featured the city council meeting last night which started off with a protest by C. Rollin Sherck, alderman-at-large, on the method of procedure used by the mayor and ended by Mayor J. J. Carroll calling the councilmen into secret session, the reason for which was not revealed.

Highlights of controversy in this round of the mayor-council quarrels was the tiff that opened the meeting which caused the council to pass a motion that the rules of procedure be adhered to from then on and the brief but bitter battle when City Clerk George J. Dohrer began to read the mayor's veto of the ordinance passed July 24 which was to grant the council power to locate hospital sites without appeal from their decision by petition of residents adjacent to the site selected.

Sherck Presents Statement
Apparently aware that the veto was to be read, C. Rollin Sherck had prepared a written statement which he handed to the city clerk. The statement was to the effect that the mayor had not returned the resolution with his veto and within the 14 days allowed him by law, and for this reason, the city clerk should be ordered to place the resolution on files as adopted.

Mayor Carroll claimed that he had filed his veto with the clerk by August 8 and that it was ready for reading that night when the council met, only to adjourn in argument over the rearranging of committees without having taken up any business. A special session called the next day could not take up the matter because it was not definitely called for that purpose and so the number of days allowed by law was passed.

Ayres Gives Support
Sherck, supported in argument by Roscoe B. Ayres, fifth ward alderman, contended that the placing on file did not constitute a return to the council and that the ordinance was legally passed. City Solicitor William Hayes refused to give a legal decision on the matter without more time for consideration.

After both sides had had chances to air their views, the council polled votes on Sherck's resolution to the clerk and passed it by a vote of 4 to 3. "Ayres" were Leroy S. Mercer, C. Rollin Sherck, M. J. McGuan, and Roscoe B. Ayres. Glen Kenderdine, Edward Sybil, and M. P. Lumsden voted "no."

Accept August Bills
In the calm minutes of the meeting, the council attended to accepting August bills, salaries, and expenditures.

Petition of Paul Shaw to have his lease on the local airport renewed, which has been hanging in the balance since early spring, was brought up again last night and once more referred to the airport committee for consideration.

Petition asking consent for the erection of a lunch room and carrying consent of adjacent property owners, made by Roy Pixler and Arthur Barnes, was referred to the ordinance committee. Petition of George S. Albright for sewer connection was referred to the sewer committee.

Ask Extension of Mains
The petition asking for the extension of water mains on Hollin street was referred to the waterworks committee with request for a report next meeting.

Paul Whitebook received permission to place an oil storage tank underground at Muscatine and Dearborn streets. The Florango grocery, located at Riverside and Clinton streets, received permission to install two 500 gallon oil storage tanks. Jess and Peg's barbecue were granted the right to erect a neon sign opposite their place of business on the airport road. A $100 bond for the sign was accepted.

Authority was given the chief of police to buy a 40 gallon drum of street sign paint, the fire chief to buy 500 feet of hose, and the city clerk to buy 100 ton of coal.

Withdraw Stoker Offer
Shortly after the motion to purchase the coal was passed the council decided to withdraw their offer to accept on approval a stoker from the Eddy Stoker company for the city hall because the company had not yet signed the contract, which it had been given sufficient time to do.

At the request of the school board, the council passed a resolution asking the Rock Island railroad to place a flagman at the Myrtle avenue crossing for the protection of school children. Allen Wallen, city engineer was also directed to aid the school board in any desired surveys.

Reconsider Former Motion
Reconsideration of the motion to raise the rent on land used by Heinie's lunch room at the airport from $10 to $25 which was recently passed caused the original sum to be accepted until future council action.

Resolution to remove lots 1 to 10 of the Rate estate on Muscatine avenue from residence to business zoning, excepting lots 5, 6, and 7, was referred to the ordinance committee. A new factory is seeking the site for building purposes.

Protest by Edna Hostetter, owner of Hostetter's Style shop, 109 S. Dubuque street on the parking of taxicabs in front of her shop, brought forth a request to Chief of Police Frank Smith to order the bus company to the bus now stopping on the south corner of Dubuque and Washington streets, to change to the north corner, leaving room for cabs at the Hotel Jefferson. Chief Smith was also requested to reopen the cab stands recently closed on the east side of the street across from the Hotel Jefferson.

Before the council went into the closed meeting they adjourned until next Friday night for unfinished business.

Council Cuts Program for New Walks

Although final action on the sidewalk paving around and leading to the new Roosevelt school was deferred until Sept. 25 by the city council at its meeting last night, several blocks were deleted from the original program, and the city clerk was given power to ask for and accept bids on the rest for opening on that date. The estimated cost of the paving is $8,560.

Streets now under consideration for sidewalks and recommended by the council committee are:

East side of Riverside Drive from the south side of Rock Island railroad tracks to the south line of the NW-14 of Section 15-79-6.

North side of Benton street from the east side of Riverside drive east to Benton street bridge.

North side of Benton street from the west side of Capitol street west to the Benton street bridge.

West side of Seventh avenue in front of lots 12-14-15, block 13 Rundell Addition.

West side of Hutchinson avenue from the south side of River street south 160 feet to the walk in place.

North side of W. Benton street from the east side of Windham road west to west city limits.

South side of W. Benton street from a point 275 feet west of the west side of Orchard street west to the west side of Windham road.

East side of Capitol street from the north side of Benton street to the south side of Lafayette street.

Paving work on the above streets will probably begin Oct. 1 with Nov. 15 set as the date for completion.

The city clerk was also authorized to receive bids for the resurfacing of the Iowa avenue bridge for consideration Sept. 25.

Holiday Air Leaves Mart Prices Mild

Wall Street Goes Home for Three Day Vacation

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (AP)—Wall street went home for a three day holiday today leaving the security markets in a state of mild unsettlement.

Numerous principal stocks were about steady, but utility, merchandizing and food issues became rather tired and irregularly lower prices prevailed at the close.

Less Activity
Activity diminished to 1,200,762 shares, nearly a million less than yesterday's. There was a mild renewal of pressure in the last hour but sizeable losses, for the most part, were confined to inactives.

U. S. Steel made a new low of 82 3/8 in the morning, more than recovered its loss and then sagged, finishing 1-4 off. American Telephone offered an uninspiring example to the utilities with an extreme break of 3 points which was reduced to 2 net.

International Telephone and American and Foreign Power were offered rather actively during the afternoon, perhaps because of South American situations, Western Union was down 4 1/2 net. American Water Works, Canada Dry, National Biscuit, Macy, the American and Foreign Power preferreds and Peoples Gas suffered larger than average declines.

Small Change
Changes in Bethlehem, American Can, General Motors, General Electric, Westinghouse, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Atchison, Case and Pennsylvania were small, with declines favored. The rail group was much steadier than recently, although New York Central closed at the bottom for a net loss of a point.

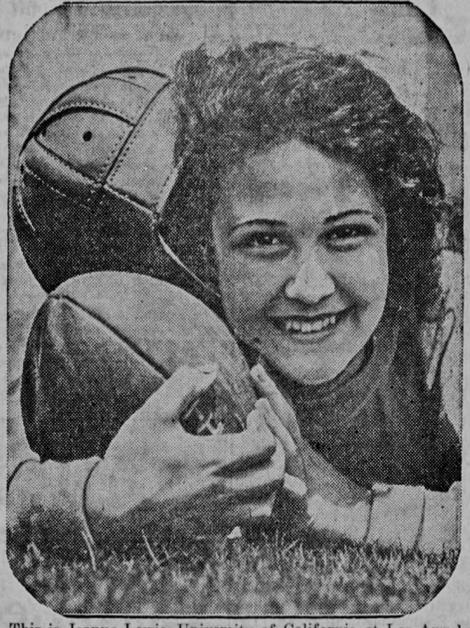

Union Pacific touched a new low but returned a gain of 1 1/2.

Bonds had much to contend with in the continued selling of less favored railroad loans and also renewed weakness of several foreign groups.

Business Trend Steady
Labor day arrives without much definite changes in business trends. Some wholesale and retail branches of trade are profiting from seasonal expansion, but evidence of a turn in the heavier industries, such as steel, is mostly lacking. It is perhaps encouraging that, as Dun's points out, "the tendency is to resist recessions."

The Berlin stock market was much steadier, although London sagged. Sterling closed unchanged after a small recession attributed to the absence of demand.

"TOUCHDOWN" IN GOLD SATIN

This is Jeanne Lewis, University of California at Los Angeles co-ed, one of the mainstays in the Bruin co-ed's football team that introduced what the well dressed football player will wear this year. The girls displayed the new uniform, composed of bright sweaters and gold satin pants. Miss Lewis would have you believe she has just made a touchdown in spite of the satin attire.

W. L. Keyser, Veteran Movie Operator, in 23 Years Shows Close to 60,000 Miles of Film

Forty-four thousands of feet of film constitute an average daily grind for W. L. Keyser, 522 E. Burlington street, Iowa City's veteran movie operator.

Mr. Keyser has been operating movie machines since 1908, when he was employed at a theater in Sterling, Ill., after finishing a course of training in Chicago. He came to Iowa City in 1913, and worked at the Pastime theater for eight years before going to the Strand, where he is now employed.

Machinery Complex
Equipment for the projection of movies has not kept pace with the development of the movies themselves, according to Mr. Keyser. The machinery, instead of being made more simple, is, to the contrary, more complex and difficult to operate. The introduction of electrically powered machines, and the use of two projectors have proven the greatest step in improvement, but to the operator it means the constant application of attention to his work.

While keeping a watchful eye, and a listening ear, to the movie which was being shown by his assistant, and rewinding the rolls of films as they were taken from the machines, Mr. Keyser attempted to explain the involved mechanism to the reporter.

The unprojected film is placed in the upper, circular magazine, threaded through the intricate projecting mechanism, and as it is pulled through, runs down into the lower magazine.

Film Breaks
The film, with both the photo and sound recording, is equipped with four sprocket holes on either side of each frame, the frame being the small individual picture on the film, of which there are 16 to each foot. A delicate mechanism turning at a steady speed moves the film by these holes. A hole that is torn, or misplaced, will cause the film to break and become rapidly entangled with the mechanism, often resulting in fire.

A photostatic light, admitted to the sound recording part of the film, through a narrow slit, reproduces the sound wave in the amplifier. The sound wave is then stepped up and transferred to another volume amplifier, and then carried to the sound horns back of the screen, on the stage.

Pausing a minute, Mr. Keyser listened to the sound of the voices of the actors as they came from a small horn near the ceiling of the booth. Reaching up to a small box he turned a knob, explaining that this was the "fader," or the instrument which controlled the calibration of sound.

Sound Regulated
The sound must be regulated a number of times during the showing of the film, as the acoustics of the theater change with the varying of the size of the audience, and are even affected by the ventilation system.

Mr. Keyser believes that a person's ears are as easily fatigued as one's eyes, because after operating for a long time, without relief of another operator, he finds it impossible to distinguish imperfections of sound that would be readily noticed otherwise.

In 23 years of operating, Mr. Keyser has shown approximately 325,000,000 feet of film. The fact that he has shown nearly 60,000 miles of celluloid negative without ever having had a fire attests to his ability as an operator, although he modestly attributes it to his good fortune.

Carter Imposes $100 Fines on Three Men From Cedar Rapids
Fines of $100 each and costs were assessed to three men giving their homes as Cedar Rapids by Justice of the Peace B. F. Carter yesterday. They were: James LeRoy DeForest, Ovel Trimble, and Louis Brennan. The charge on which DeForest pleaded guilty was illegal transportation of intoxicating liquor. Trimble and Brennan were sentenced for larceny.

All took 30 days in the county jail in lieu of the fines.

Thursday afternoon the three men attempted to escape with a $1 bill belonging to Charles M. Oberholtz, 802 Bowers street, after having offered to change it for him. They were arrested at the intersection of Prentiss and Gilbert streets by Officers Charles Book and Wesley Sedivec. DeForest had a partly filled bottle of alcohol with him at the time of arrest.

Wheat Price Holds Firm; Corn Higher

CHICAGO, Sept. 4 (AP)—Wheat prices showed a slightly firmer tone today, largely on short covering stimulated by unfavorable reports from Russia on grain collections and rumors of political friction between China and Japan. With a triple holiday ahead, traders were not disposed to get far from short and prices held within narrow limits. Wheat had a range of around a cent and corn of 3-4 cent. Sales for shipment of 215,000 bushels of cash corn had some effect on trade.

Wheat closed firm unchanged to 3-4 cent higher than yesterday's finish. Corn stronger, unchanged to 7-8 up, oats uneven, 1-4 down to 1-8 advanced, and provisions also uneven, ranging from 2 cents decline to 3 cents higher.

Corn averaged slightly higher with sales of 215,000 bushels of cash corn for shipment having some influence. This brings sales for the last two days to 650,000 bushels, the largest total in several months. Crop reports were spotted, rains falling in the middle west, but with western sections of the belt reporting severe damage from drought which is only now becoming apparent.

Oats and rye prices showed little change. Provisions were generally dull and steady.

Closing Indentments: Wheat—September 45 5-8, 47 3-8-1-2; December 43 2-8, 50-50 1-8; May 53-53 1-8, 54 5-8. Corn—September 43 5-8, 46 1-4; December 38 3-4-7-8, 40 1-4; May 43 1-2, 44 5-8-3-4.
