Millions Begin Celebration of Labor Holiday

Fair Weather Assured for Most of Parts of Nation

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (AP)—Under bright skies, millions throughout the nation today began to celebrate the Labor day week end dividing their summer and fall.

Fair weather was promised for the climax on Monday in the east and southeast. The weather bureau forecast Labor day rain only in scattered areas of Florida.

Hoover at River Camp

President Hoover was spending a last long week end at his Virginia mountain camp, and Secretary Lamont was with him. Vice President Curtis was in his office as usual today, and planned "a quiet time at home," with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann.

Next week several other members of the cabinet will return from vacations; desks will be cleared in the capitol by many new members of congress arriving early; and the rigors and the relaxations of the winter season will begin.

Holiday Late as Possible

Coming as late as possible this year, Labor day nevertheless will be followed by warm weather lasting through next week, Charles L. Mitchell, weather bureau forecaster, said cooler temperatures would come late next week. He predicted showers tomorrow in the Ohio valley, the lower lake region, middle and northern Atlantic states, the Dakotas, western Washington, northwest Oregon and Florida; but added, "It looks like a fair, warm Labor day."

Government Will Probe Grain Deals

CHICAGO, Sept. 5 (AP)—The federal government will investigate the grain futures trading of Walter E. Wolf, confessed embezzler of $2,000,000 from the bank where he was employed, it was announced tonight by Leslie A. Fitz, representative of the United States department of agriculture.

Fitz said the investigation will extend through the entire case and that "anyone found guilty of falsifying records of grain trades will be punished." Fitz is head of the Chicago office of the grain futures administration of the agricultural department.

Among the details which the government wishes to know, Fitz said, are what Wolf did with the misappropriated securities, what brokers handled his accounts and how the transactions were made.

Fitz said the government investigation will be concentrated on any possible evidence that brokerage firms falsified records in order to obtain illegitimate profits from Wolf's accounts.

Short Session of Parliament Seems Likely

LONDON, Sept. 5 (AP)—A short and sharp parliamentary session and an early general election loomed today as the most likely developments in Great Britain's political and financial crisis.

Conservatives were authoritatively said to be in favor of the government pressing on with the task of balancing the budget and getting out at the earliest possible moment.

In their view a general election before the end of next month is a distinct possibility with a widespread measure of tariff protection as the conservative battle cry.

Liberals, on the other hand, are believed to be far less enthusiastic about the prospects of an early election.

If the conservatives insist on the election, however, the present government could not remain in office. Cabinet members planned an active week end in preparation for the special session of the house of commons Tuesday.

Arthur Henderson, labor leader, and his colleagues, also have been busy preparing for the parliamentary fray. Official labor as a whole seems unalterably opposed to the government although there are one or two exceptions.

Nevada Court Cuts Alimony Payments of Sinclair Lewis

CARSON CITY, Nev., Sept. 5 (AP)—The state supreme court today affirmed a district court order reducing the monthly alimony payments of Sinclair Lewis, the author, to Mrs. Grace Hegger Lewis, who divorced him here in April of 1928.

Lewis obtained the reduction a year ago when the district court, on his petition, modified provisions of an agreement whereby Lewis was to pay his former wife $1,000 a month.

Under the amended judgment affirmed by the supreme court, he will pay Mrs. Lewis one fourth his gross annual income from all sources, "on a basis not to exceed $48,000." Mrs. Lewis will receive $200 on account of the first of each month and the balance "if any," not later than January 10 of each subsequent year. On this date Lewis also will pay her any sum in excess of $2,400 that equals one fourth of his annual income.

Pilots to Try for New Air Marks Today

Doolittle Hits 272,934 But Bayles Aims Higher

CLEVELAND, Sept. 5 (AP)—Major Jimmy Doolittle, yesterday's maker of a new transcontinental speed record, flashed through the air at 272,934 miles per hour today in a speed trial at the national air races here, but Lowell Bayles, Springfield, Mass., made plans tonight to go faster tomorrow.

Bayles intends his flight to be the races' first officially-timed assault on the world's speed record for land planes, 278.8 miles per hour. He will fly his Gee Bee monoplane, which took him 286 miles per hour Tuesday with a 20 mile wind behind him.

Another assault on a speed record tomorrow was planned by some of the women pilots. Entered in the Aerol trophy race for a $1,500 purse, they were aiming at the 210 mile record for American women set last spring by Ruth Nichols at Detroit.

Among the entries are Mae Hazelip of St. Louis, Gladys O'Donnell, Long Beach, Cal.; Florence Klingensmith of Minneapolis, holder of the women's inside loop record; Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, New York, and Mildred Morgan, Beverly Hills, Cal.

Doolittle-Bayles Duel
Major Doolittle, in his speed trials today, used the same Laird biplane in which he yesterday flew from Burbank, Cal., to Cleveland, to New York, and back to Cleveland again. He made four dashes over a one-mile course. His average for the four was 255,345, which compared with Bayles' average of 267 last Tuesday. Both Doolittle and Bayles will be entered Monday in the $15,000 Thompson trophy free-for-all, but Doolittle will use a larger motor on his plane.

Eleven so-called "high hat" flyers arrived at Cleveland airport today from Hicksville, N. Y. All of this group were classed as sportsmen pilots. Allen Eustis, 27, New York broker, was announced as the winner of their race and of the Lawrence trophy. Robert Buck of Hillsdale, N. J., was second.

Call Special Session for Cutting Crop

By The Associated Press
The governor of Texas, the state holding the balance of power in the proposal to legislate relief for the cotton growers, announced last yesterday he would call the legislature into special session Tuesday noon to enact a cotton reduction law.

Launched by Governor Long of Louisiana as a means of aiding the distressed cotton farmer, the movement to ban cotton growing or reduce acreage in 1932 had awaited action of the Texas chief executive, Ross Sterling.

Texas produces about one third of the nation's cotton crop and governors of several other southern states had said they would not call special "cotton" sessions unless and until Texas acted.

Governor Sterling's action brought quick response from Governor Parrell of Arkansas, who said he was "exceedingly glad."

Chile Enlists Airplanes to Quell Mutiny

Government Declares Martial Law for 30 Days

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 5 (AP)—Chile's air force, armed with bombs, moved in battle array today against the mutineer sailors who have taken command of the major part of the Chilean navy at Coquimbo and Talcahuana.

Meanwhile the government, headed by acting President Manuel Trucco, declared a state of martial law throughout the nation for 30 days.

Censorship Invoked
Censorship was invoked and dependable information about the situation in the naval centers was difficult to get.

Plans took off from bases along the coast between Coquimbo and Talcahuana with orders to bomb the insurrectionists, but hours later no information was available about whether any action had taken place.

The planes were sent out after the mutineers defied an ultimatum calling on them to surrender by one o'clock this afternoon. When the zero hour came the government allowed 20 minutes grace. At the conclusion of the 20 minutes they took to the air.

Control Coast Defenses
Federal officers remained in control of coast defenses and of land units of the navy department.

Guards were placed to protect the property of foreign companies, including the Anaconda Copper company's fuel oil base at Tocopilla.

Government authorities said that it would be only a matter of hours before decisive action at Coquimbo ended the rebellion.

Units of the air force were receiving their orders direct from General Vergara, minister of war, to whom supreme command against the insurrectionists was entrusted by the president. The general had his headquarters in the presidential palace here and, although the plane movements were kept secret because of the plan to attack the fleet, it was said, the outlook for victory was excellent.

Predicts Dire Fate
Unless the fleet surrendered it could expect a dire fate, General Vergara said, for the government intended to take whatever steps were necessary to put down the mutiny.

Other parts of the country were said to be quiet, with the civil population fully co-operating with the government. A government communique reported that an intercepted radio message showed the revolutionary forces to be disorganized.

Would Bolster Reserve
An official statement issued by Finance Minister Pratt said that many persons had offered to put their jewels and other valuables in the vaults of the Central bank to bolster the reserve and, chiefly, to manifest their faith in the ability of the government to weather the threat of revolt.

The minister recommended to the bank that such temporary deposits be accepted.

Reports were circulated that several naval vessels had been sunk, but they were denied by the naval minister.

The navy department announced that the Talcahuana and Valparaiso bases were held by the government. The department forecast that the rebellion would be quickly put down. President Trucco asked for the co-operation of all patriotic Chileans. The government, he said, had gone to extreme lengths in treating with the mutineer seamen, who started their uprising last Monday in protest against threatened pay decreases.

Robbers Use Blow Torch to Rob Bank

HILLSBORO, Sept. 5 (AP)—Using a blow torch to cut off the door of the safe, burglars obtained approximately $500 from the Farmers and Savings bank last night.

They obtained entrance to the bank by breaking a window at the rear. The robbery was not discovered until this morning when Maynard Corry was opening his store opposite the bank building.

Noticing the broken window and the condition of the bank's interior, Corry gave the alarm.

A bar and tools the burglars used were found inside. State Agent E. C. McPherson obtained fingerprints from the instruments, bloodhounds from Ft. Madison were able to follow the burglars' trail only a short distance.

H. D. Tate, president of the bank said the institution was protected against such losses.

Burglars Get $400
DES MOINES (AP)—Burglars blew the safe at the Country Club Beverage company, obtaining $400.

China's Purchase of 15,000,000 Bushels Wheat Half Enough for Hungry Natives

SHANGHAI, Sept. 5 (AP)—The China flood relief commission said today that wheat purchased from the American farm board would be less than half the foodstuff needed this winter by ten million starving Chinese.

The commission was seeking to augment the 15,000,000 bushels of American wheat with huge amounts of millet and beans from Manchuria. The commission had no money and Manchurians not only withheld credit but protested against the purchase from America, made possible by payments to be extended over a period of years. Moreover Manchurian cereals are unsuited for Chinese rice eaters.

Although the Chinese government estimated there were 50,000,000 flood sufferers, the commission believed it would not need food for more than 10,000,000. The American wheat would supply 450,000 tons of the necessary 1,000,000 tons of foodstuffs.

With at least 10,000 reported dead in the northern Kiangsu province flood of the past fortnight, conditions there continued harrowing, additional towns were being flooded daily, increasing the hundreds of thousands of destitute homeless.

Most of these sufferers could not be aided immediately as relief workers were unable to reach them in the great area submerged by the overflowing grand canal. Thousands were taking refuge in Yangchow and other cities.

Jinrikishas were reappearing on the streets of Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang. The sister cities were getting back almost to normal after the August floods which caused about 250,000 deaths there and made a half-million persons homeless. Relief workers estimate one third of a pound of food daily would keep a flood victim alive.

Murray Will Visit Chicago

Plans to Give Three Labor Day Talks in City

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 5 (AP)—Gov. William Henry Murray, of Oklahoma, today departed for Chicago where he will deliver three Labor Day speeches, thus beginning an ambitious schedule of journeys to other states.

The colorful governor, invited to Illinois by the Chicago Federation of Labor, has left Oklahoma several times in recent months to make addresses, but not until he spoke at Dallas did political observers freely admit he was a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Murray himself, has never admitted that he had presidential aspirations, but boosters in Oklahoma, Kansas, Texas and other states have taken his candidacy for granted and have launched booms in his behalf.

His last trip outside the state was made to attend the Mississippi basin unemployment relief conference, which he called at Memphis. He will return here for a state wide cotton conference September 16, and then go to Hutchinson, Kan., where he will speak at the Kansas state fair, September 20. Another address will be made by Murray at Newton, Ia., September 23, upon invitation of the Iowa Democratic central committee.

Jeweler Loses Gun, $34 to Young Man Posing as Customer

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 5 (AP)—L. C. Larson, Omba, jeweler, was robbed with his own gun and relieved of $34 and a wrist watch in his store late today. The bandit, a young, well dressed man, entered the store early today, Larson said, and underwent a test for glasses. Late today he returned. On a shelf behind the counter lay a pistol Larson had purchased for protection.

Casually walking behind the counter the man picked up the gun and turned it on Larson with the calm statement that he was robbing the store.

Larson surrendered $5 from his own pocket. The cash register gave up $28 more. Selecting a watch, the bandit pocketed it and quickly left the store.

Women Plan Ocean Hops

Misses Nichols, Smith, Ingalls Ready for Flights

NEW YORK, Sept. 5 (AP)—Three feminine air birds finally had their plans ready today for long-planned transatlantic flights.

But now that they are ready the weather is so unfavorable that unless conditions improve in a week or so the flights may be abandoned until next year.

But now that they are ready the weather is so unfavorable that unless conditions improve in a week or so the flights may be abandoned until next year.

Ruth Nichols of Rye, N. Y., who crashed in New Brunswick on a previous attempt to fly the Atlantic, had her plane at Floyd Bennett airport where it was said she was preparing to hop off for Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, en route to France when and if the weather conditions improve.

At the same time, Ellnor Smith of Freeport, L. I. and, Laura Ingalls, former New York actress, were making test flights in preparation for crossing the ocean.

After the fifteenth of September, it would be deemed unwise to attempt any flight of the Atlantic, it was pointed out.

Hold Service for Aged Newspaperman

CEDAR RAPIDS, Sept. 5 (AP)—Simple funeral service will be held here Monday afternoon for Frank D. Wasson, veteran newspaperman who died Friday night.

Death occurred four days after he had been injured severely in a fall down stairs at his home. In conformance with his wishes the body will be cremated.

Coin Flip Decides Verdict of Sixth Marriage Venture

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 5 (AP)—James H. Taylor, 45, and lonely, sought companionship in the court house today. He seated himself beside Eva Wallace, 23, on a bench in the lobby.

Conversation developed that Taylor had been married five times and the young woman had failed in three matrimonial ventures.

"Life is all a gamble and so is marriage," she sighed.

"Well," offered Taylor, "I'll see how good a gambler you are. I'll match you coins. If I don't match you you pay me a dime; if I do, you marry me."

The coins were flipped. Both fell heads.

Ten minutes later, after Taylor had learned the young woman's name for marriage license records, they were married.

Death Brings End to Four Year Vendetta

Former Omaha Consul Shot by Loser in "Bank" Fraud

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Sept. 5 (AP)—Sebastiano Salerno, former Italian vice consul at Omaha, was shot to death today in the revival of a four year old quarrel growing out of his banking activities there.

Sam Napolitano, 47, dishwasher, had just arrived in San Pedro and was walking down the street looking for work. He saw a sign over a clothing store reading "Sebastiano Salerno, proprietor." Napolitano walked inside and a few minutes later Salerno was dead, shot through the heart.

Admits Slaying
Captain of Detectives A. L. Gentry said Napolitano readily admitted the slaying, claiming he had lost $2,500 in Salerno's "Banco Napoli" which failed in 1928. He asked Gentry to telegraph other of the Italian colony there who had also lost money that he had shot Salerno. He was charged with murder.

Napolitano, speaking broken English, could not explain clearly how the money had been lost. He said he invested $2,800 with Salerno and after repeated demands got back only $300. Salerno deeded a house to him before he left Omaha, Napolitano said, but declared it was so heavily mortgaged it brought him but $45.

Paid Interest
Omaha dispatches said Salerno had explained his institution was not a bank in the strict sense of the word but he had agreed to accept deposits from his countrymen, paying them interest.

Salerno is survived by his widow and a son, Anthony, living in San Francisco.

Slayer Vowed to Kill "Banker"

OMAHA, Sept. 5 (AP)—The slaying today of Sebastiano Salerno, one time Italian consul in Omaha and head of a private bank here, in San Pedro, Cal., climaxed a vendetta of nearly four years standing during which Sam Napolitano, the slayer, had sought Salerno to avenge a loss sustained when Salerno's "bank" failed, according to friends of the pair here.

Tony Salerno, nephew of the slain man, tonight said that Napolitano left Omaha last Tuesday, saying he was going to California to seek work. Salerno, however, said that he had learned from other sources that Napolitano had told associates here that he was going to San Pedro to kill Sebastiano Salerno.

Swore to Kill
"After my uncle left Omaha almost two years ago, Napolitano swore many times to kill him," Tony told newspapermen.

In August, 1922, Sebastiano Salerno, then a political power here, was appointed Italian consul. Shortly after this he opened his "bank" eventually falling in this enterprise. In April 1929, he was discharged from bankruptcy.

Only Owed $19,000
According to Mrs. Hector Gianolo, a sister of the slain man, Sebastiano had paid depositors and creditors about $90,000 before he was forced to leave Omaha and owed only about $19,000 when he left.

Napolitano, she said, had been bribed by Sebastiano after the "bank" failure. Sebastiano, she related, took Napolitano into his home and fed him for about two weeks. Napolitano, she continued, had worked in Omaha for several years, first as a railroad section hand and later as a dish washer in a roadhouse here.

Next Step in Mystery Case Not Revealed

Attorney General Tells Physician to Delay Commitment

DES MOINES, Sept. 5 (AP)—The next step in unravelling the shroud of mystery about John M. Smith, Perry insecticide manufacturer, tonight appeared to be as much of a secret as the wanderings of Smith during the four and a half months after he disappeared Feb. 3.

Dr. George Donohoe, head of the Cherokee state hospital, returned to Cherokee after completing a two-day examination of Smith. He said he would not comment on Smith's sanity until he was subpoenaed.

Further Procedure Uncertain
James Risden, chief of the bureau of investigation, and his agents made no comment on the next step.

Risden was closeted in his office during the afternoon and newspapermen were barred from the third floor of the capitol, where Risden's office was located.

Smith and his wife were both taken from the capitol early in the afternoon, but they returned later. It was presumed they were in conference with Risden. Shortly after 6 p.m. Smith was taken to Adel, where he has been confined each night since being brought back from Clarinda state hospital to be identified by Miss Pauline Shaw as the man who married her bigamously in Kansas last March 11.

Heeds Fletcher's Advice
Dr. Donohoe's statement that he would not give an opinion on Smith's sanity until he was subpoenaed into court to do so was made, he said, upon the advice of Attorney General John Fletcher.

Donohoe's decision will make it necessary to file formal charges against Smith, officials said, in order to get a decision on his mental condition.

Smith was committed to Clarinda state hospital for treatment last June after he reappeared near Garner and failed to give any account of his actions during the more than four months of absence. He disappeared Feb. 3 after his burning truck containing a corpse was found on a roadside near Denison.

Mrs. Smith Under Arrest
Mrs. Smith has been under arrest for several days on a technical charge of attempting to defraud insurance companies that held $50,000 in policies on Smith's life. She has been held in the city jail here.

Miss Shaw, the Chattanooga, Kan., girl whom Smith married, and Mrs. May Clayton, the friend with whom she lived, were still in Des Moines tonight. They said they expected to go home shortly since it appeared that officials had completed questioning them, but they expressed willingness to return if they were wanted to testify in any trial of Smith.

Smith, who was committed to the Clarinda hospital in July for observation until the September term of court in Dallas county, is in the custody of the court.

If at any time during a trial of charges against Smith, reasonable doubt as to his sanity should arise, the criminal proceedings would have to be suspended, and trial had upon the sanity issue.

At Criminal Prosecution
Such a trial would be conducted in all respects as would a criminal prosecution, except that the burden of proof would be on Smith, and that his evidence concerning his sanity would be offered first. His attorneys would have the opening and closing argument.

If he should be found insane, no further proceedings under the criminal charge would be taken. The court would order him committed to the department for criminal insane at Anamosa until he became sane.

Presuming Sanity
If, on the other hand, he should be found sane, the trial would revert to the original proceedings, and the question of the defendant's insanity could not be raised in it.

Dr. Donohoe and Dr. Witte would be called as witnesses as to Smith's condition, and for that reason, as

Strolling Through Fashion Lane

By CELIA GOLDBERG
Society Editor, The Daily Iowan

Parisians have found a new diversion in finding for an object a use for which it was not designed. Women adorn their hats with their bracelets, or fastening several together, wear them as belts. Moreover, brooches, equipped with little rings, are strung into necklaces, and finger rings become loopholes for sashes and scarfs. Try it. It's lots of fun!

Evening skirts trail in many instances. In front their lengths are off the floor, often to the ankles, and in back they sweep a bit into train not very long. These skirts are rather hard to handle, but they're quite picturesque and those who love elegance will have them.

The manner considered extremely smart for several seasons of wrapping a coat around the body and holding it there without the help of fastenings is completely out. This year coats button straight up the front, even some evening wraps.

Quilted satin blouses are smart for wear with new fall tailcoats. White is the favorite color. Many of them are designed in hip tunics, belted with a satin belt or one which matches the fabric of the skirt.

An interesting way to introduce color combinations is to braid strips of material in the three colors desired. Ribbons, fabrics, or cord may be used for trimming belts, pockets, necklines, and hats.

Petticoats are seen again! Many afternoon gowns are slit in the back to reveal the color foundations beneath.

Black or white suede gauntlets in six or eight button lengths are the smartest gloves for formal daytime wear. Handsewn chamouis and hogskin gauntlets are most fashionable.

Court Discourages Union of Austria, Germany Customs

GENEVA, Sept. 5 (AP)—The World court decided today that the projected Austro-German customs union would be a violation of Austria's international engagements under the Geneva protocol of 1922.

The decision, reached at The Hague and made public here, was returned by eight judges of the court, with seven dissenting. One of the dissenters is Frank B. Kellogg, former secretary of state of the United States.

Other Dissenters

Members of the court from France, Poland, Salvador, Cuba, Spain, Italy, Columbia and Rumania concurred in the majority opinion. In addition to Mr. Kellogg, the German, British, Japanese, Chinese, Dutch and Belgian jurists dissented.

The German delegation declared there was clarity and force in the minority opinion compared to the "vagueness" of the majority opinion which did not specify clearly the grounds for its conclusions but, in the language of the dissenters, aroused the suspicion that "these conclusions cannot amount to more than mere speculations."

The Germans also interpreted the decision as a repudiation of the charge that they and their Austrian colleagues had flaunted treaties and "upset the peace of Europe."

Smith will be taken directly to court for trial on a charge of conspiracy to defraud, County Attorney George Sackett said. Mrs. Smith is being held on a preliminary information, issued in a justice court, and must face arraignment in a court of that kind.

The information against Smith was issued at the time of his commitment to the state hospital at Clarinda, while that against his wife was issued a few days ago at Adel.

Beyond the statement that the trials of Smith and his wife would be begun sometime during the September term of court, Attorney Sackett would not comment.

Gas Flares Burn Again in Oil Lands

KILGORE, Tex., Sept. 5 (AP)—Gas flares burned again tonight over the 600 square miles of the east Texas oil fields, one of America's greatest petroleum producing areas. The field, under a martial law shutdown since August 17, was reopened at 7 a.m. today in compliance with a general order from military authorities acting for Governor Ross S. Sterling.

Occupation of the area by national guardsmen may be continued indefinitely, but only with a skeleton force of probably not more than 60 men and a few officers. Plans were being made for demobilization of 700 men by Monday or Tuesday. Total daily restricted production is expected to be in the neighborhood of 400,000 barrels, compared with 300,000 barrels or more before the shutdown.

Labor's Day

TOMORROW is the one day in all the year that labor can call its own. Millions of workers throughout the country will doff overalls and don Sunday clothes for a welcome holiday, coming as it does to make a long week end.

The day has also become one of significance to those not connected with organized labor, for when the working man rests, there can be little for his white collar employers to do. So while labor rejoices most of the rest of the country can join in the merry making.

Labor day was originated for, among other things, recognition of the laboring man and the part he plays in society's scheme of things.

And so it is desirable that in the haste to make the most of an idle week end, that the purpose of the holiday be kept in view. At least it could be devoted partially to reflection on labor's problems. Or, just one or two moments might be given to whether or not labor has been given all it is entitled to, in what way the working man can be helped in his struggle against economic ups and downs, and investigation into whether labor is getting and will continue to get the square deal it deserves.

Even those who feel that labor's troubles are of no concern to them would profit by giving serious thought to such matters. The time is particularly appropriate now, but eventually the labor problem will be a matter of concern to all walks of life, and it would do no harm to begin giving it consideration now.

Do College Graduates Have Jobs?

FRIDAY The Daily Iowan reprinted an editorial from the Christian Science Monitor telling of the success of a metropolitan school for adult unemployed. The Monitor declared that the results achieved by this commercial school constituted the best editorial that could be written supporting President Hoover's go to school campaign.

Another editorial dealing with a recent unemployment survey at Cornell university might be written to show that college and university attendance not only relieves the labor market, but is the surest route to employment when competition is especially keen. But the facts speak for themselves.

Many members of Cornell's recent graduating class already have jobs, the survey discovered, and the remainder have definite prospects.

Of 84 seniors in the college of mechanical engineering 75, or 89.29 per cent, found employment upon graduation and the others seem likely to find work soon. Salaries for beginners — the average starting salary for a trained mechanical engineer is about $150 a month, has not dropped, the report stated.

Certainly there must be something to it when actual results can be presented.

A Divorce Tax?

IT TOOK a farmer from the hills of Nevada to better the nation's economists and statesman in suggesting a painless formula for increasing public revenues. His plan looks quite justifiable. A $50 tax on each divorce granted is his idea for bringing more money into public treasure chests.

There is a luxury tax that looks worthwhile. If men and women in this country insist on keeping up the divorce rate habit, a privilege which certainly exceeds many other luxuries that are taxable, let them be prevailed upon to pay for this excess privilege.

Even if such a tax would only defray the expenses of keeping up divorce courts throughout the country, it would at least save the happily and permanently married people from contributing toward a cause from which they expect and want no benefits. Looking at the situation from this angle one recognizes that a divorce tax would have the element of equity.

Small wonder, however, that a man from Nevada would advance such a method of taxation. Living so close to Reno, popular divorce center, and obviously being satisfied with his own marriage, he must certainly have been appalled many times to see so many people take short residences in his state for the purpose of finding the easiest method out of their matrimonial affairs. This viewpoint, however, is not analogous with that of Reno residents who capitalize on the influx of divorce seekers.

As far as state officials of Nevada and Arkansas are concerned, they might as well put the divorce business on a purely revenue basis. The lenient divorce laws of these two states could in most cases command a stiff tax without much agitation on the part of the parties who would be obliged to pay. Why shouldn't they charge $50 for a license to wed, and anywhere from $50 to $500 for breaking the ties?

Part of a Generation

(From Wallace's Farmer)

If human beings lived for a thousand years and grew in wisdom as a result of their experience, both wars and depression would be greatly reduced. But when we have a new generation coming on every thirty or forty years, it takes a serious shock to beat sense into the heads of the people. Not since 1893 have we had a depression like that from which we are now suffering. Not since 1865 have we had experience with the terrible evils growing out of a great war.

The lessons of a really great depression seem to last from 20 to 30 years. Beginning with 1837, the really great depressions have been those of 1837, 1857, 1873, 1893 and 1930. Wars are even more serious than the deepest depression, and the memory of a really great war usually lasts for at least 50 years.

There are many things to cause us serious trouble during the next 20 years, but somehow we believe that the people of this generation have now learned their lesson with respect to both war and depression. Depression such as has existed during 1890 and so far in 1931 can not continue so very much longer in a world which is blessed with such resources, such scientific knowledge, and such unusual inventive power. Of course, we shall continue to have small depressions as we have always had them every three or four years, but somehow we don't expect such a world-shaking cataclysm as that of 1930 for many years.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

Those of us who read mother goose rhymes at an early age and failed to become depraved enough to be sent to asylums as a result, will take considerable satisfaction from news reports concerning the third matrimonial crackup of Winifred Sackville Stoner, II.

Winifred was the little girl whose mother, known as "Mother Stoner," spent her time in lecturing against the evils of such rhymes as the one about the Pumpkin eating Peter who had a wife and couldn't keep her. Meanwhile she kept her own offspring free from such baneful influences.

Now Winifred is asking for an annulment of her third marriage, having lived with her latest but a few days. She declares that this marriage was a trial of the jazz age, but she couldn't stand it because of a preference for older men. Her first two husbands were older, and they amused her, her mother explains to a curious world. Her third was 18 years old.

Winifred's mother may be right in bringing up her child to be blasé enough to be amused by older men and sophisticated enough to be made miserable by a young man, but the kind that intend to cook and have babies as the doleful outcome of Mother Goose reading are still pretty much in demand.

It looks as if Russia is going to step out of the dirt. Next year there will be 550,000 tons of soap ordered by the Soviet government, available for those among the 150,000,000 citizens who care to use it. Soap has been a super luxury in Russia for several years, and used only among the higher ups. It is to be hoped that the lower classes won't rub their eyes full of the cleanser when they first use it for fear that they might swear off from using it at the start.

Tobacco Products corporation and subsidiaries reports for the first half net profit of $1,077,282, equal to 48 cents a share of Class "A" stock, compared with $1,074,731 in the corresponding period last year. There's no slump in the tobacco market. People will buy their fags, cigars, and chewing tobacco even if they have to give up other things.

There is a township in Indiana which has refused to give aid to impoverished residents who insist upon retaining dogs or automobiles. Automobiles have become almost as important to even poor people as clothing, but it is easy to see the township's point of view on that matter. Nobody would feel like contributing gasoline instead of food.

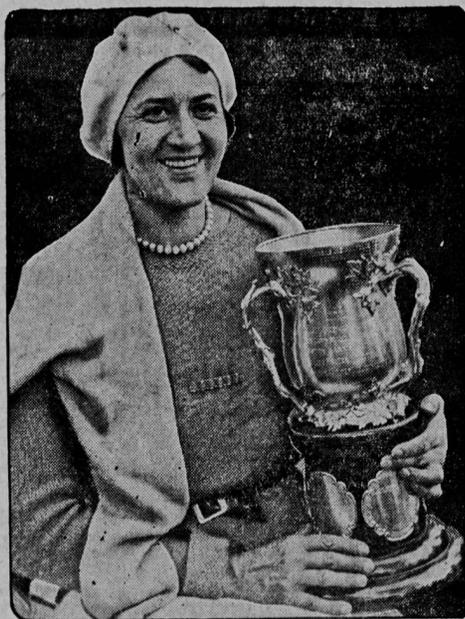

But in the matter of dogs, Cedar Creek township might reconsider. It is true that one dog and one child consume about the same amount of food, but there are scraps that humans won't eat on even the poorest of tables. Most dogs would be willing to subsist on refuse until better times without costing the welfare bureau of Cedar Creek a whit more. Further, dogs in many an impoverished family are as much of the family as any of the children.

Wire tapping, frowned upon by civilization not only per se but in all of its attendant evils and related practices, has been the cause of many a long fight between congress and the department of justice, particularly the secret service department in getting evidence of a political nature.

Now Acting Attorney General Thomas D. Thacher has announced that dismissal of case which involved federal agents' wire tapping did not mean that the department was opposed to the practice altogether. Apparently that means that the department of justice frowns on wire tapping, but does not forbid it, and if an entire case does not rest on evidence gained through this channel, as the one above did, it will be quite all right.

It's the old question again of the forces of right opposed to the forces of wrong. Should the law stoop to the tactics of crime to beat it at its own game, or should justice be an example for those it seeks to control?

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON
WASHINGTON—When President Hoover, then president-elect, was making up his cabinet probably no names were more often heard in speculation as to his selections than those of Henry M. Robinson of California and Julius Barnes of New York.

Both had been very close to Hoover while he was commerce secretary or before.

Both were his close personal friends and the Hoover habit of turning to his friends was even then well known.

The fact that the Hoover cabinet list included neither man was a surprise. Robinson particularly was supposed for a time to have the refusal of the treasury portfolio, although Andrew Mellon's retention as treasury head was one of the first things disclosed.

Time and again since Hoover took office the White House has had to combat rumors that Mellon was about to quit. Usually Wall street talk seemed the basis of these reports, which led to suspicion that they were started for the momentary effect they might have on the market. The last such occasion was in January.

A CHANCE FOR RUMOR

Had any enterprising rumor pur-veyor noted the frequency of Henry Robinson's White House calls this summer, he might have hoped to revive the Mellon resignation report under good auspices.

Robinson has been a week end guest at Rapidan several times, and was much about the White House at crucial moments in the war debts moratorium negotiation period.

He seemed to be informally as much mixed up with all that as Barnes has been continuously with Hoover's approaches to the business depression problem at home.

Robinson is a lawyer by trade, yet his activities since he moved from his native Ohio to California a quarter of a century ago have been more concerned with banking, public utilities and oil production than the law. He is a high ranking figure in several of west coast enterprises.

HELD MANY POSTS

His public service began about the same time as that of his friend, President Hoover. He served on the Council of National Defense in 1917-18 and on the supreme economic council of the post war peace conference in Paris.

Those first contacts with government activities must have developed his taste for that sort of thing.

Later he was on the shipping board, attended the first international labor conference, was on the bituminous coal commission, and on both Dawes plan committees in 1924.

For a man whose business interests all seem to lie in the far west, Robinson has spent a lot of time around Washington since 1917.

Dry Agents Quit Tasting

Director Woodcock Forbids Prohibition Officers to Drink Intoxicants for Evidence

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP)—Federal prohibition agents today were forbidden to drink intoxicants as a means of obtaining evidence.

Director Woodcock of the prohibition bureau, in a lengthy letter to all members of the federal dry army, said it was better to proceed against speakies by cutting off their supply, but that in any event drinking by agents to avert suspicion was "the older method."

Approaching Speakies
When it was necessary to act against a speakie directly, he said, it was preferable to advance "by the observation method or by the method of purchase of liquor, not for consumption."

"I strongly recommend to you for use against certain types of speakies," he said, "the method of immediate arrest after purchase. This method is certain and direct. It eliminates the necessity for consuming intoxicating liquor and if followed by careful intensive investigation should lead to the disclosure of the real parties in interest."

In conclusion the federal dry chief went on record for almost the first time as saying "we are slowly winning this fight against the commercial trafficker in intoxicating liquor." He added that no one in the prohibition bureau "has any reason to be discouraged."

"One little bit of effort more on the part of all of us," he said, "will make victory assured." His letter was made public here upon telephoned orders from his Salisbury, Md., home.

"More Injunctions"
The letter recommended increased use of the injunction against speakies as "a powerful and easily applied weapon." Woodcock said the "basic strategy" of its use was that it brought the property owner "to the side of law, order and decency."

Although asserting flatly he believed it was no longer necessary for agents to consume intoxicating liquor, Woodcock added: "It is conceivable that there are still places in some districts where the older method will be necessary. If such places exist administrators are authorized to give special permission in advance for agents to consume intoxicating liquor upon the premises."

Unemployment Aid Up to Communities Reports Committee

DES MOINES, Sept. 5, (AP)—Responsibility for unemployment relief was placed on community groups in a resolution adopted by Gov. Dan Turner's unemployment committee.

A report read before the committee said that crop failures in the northern part of the state have led to the gravity of the situation.

"It shall be our purpose to care for the unemployed in our separate communities and to discourage that type of transient person known as the 'floater.'"

J. H. Ainsworth of Ames presided at today's meeting of the committee in the absence of State Auditor J. W. Long, chairman. The next meeting will be held Oct. 3.

Honoring the birthplace of President Hoover, the United States army band gave a special concert yesterday morning in West Branch. The concert, granted by special arrangement of the war department, was attended by a large crowd of townspeople and farmers.

The band, enroute from Muscatine to Waterloo on a coast to coast tour, stopped in West Branch to give the concert in front of Hoover's birthplace. The band group was photographed with the President's first school teacher, Mrs. Mollie Brown Carran, and Dr. L. J. Leech, Civil War veteran, who was formerly the Hoover family physician.

The feather bed grave; J. D. Mitchell, an old cotton planter and slave owner of Auburn, Ala., was buried in a feather-bed under which his shoes were placed. During an illness of several years Mr. Mitchell became so fearful of the time when he would die and be buried that he extracted a promise from his family and slaves that when he died he would not be buried under the ground, but on top of it in a bed

Gandhi's London Trip May Alter British, India Destinies

(Editor's note: C. F. Andrews, who has written this article for the Associated Press, has for 20 years been an intimate friend of Gandhi and has been associated with him both in South Africa and India. He is the editor of Gandhi's autobiography, and is in close touch with the Indian leader.)

By C. F. ANDREWS

LONDON, Sept. 5 (AP)—Mahatma Gandhi's decision to participate in the Indian round table conference at London has removed one heretofore formidable factor in regard to it.

For on his decision may hang not only the destiny of India, but that of Great Britain itself.

Great Britain's economic future depends largely on her eastern trade. The prospects of trade in China have become more and more depressing.

If the Lancashire cotton trade with India collapses completely, along with the China trade, it will mean a new burden for British industry.

Therefore the British government has been patient and conciliatory. In India itself, Mahatma Gandhi believes from long experience that the officials who carry out the British government policy are still obstructionists.

Not until Gandhi and Viceroy Lord Willingdon came to an understanding in regard to the controversy between the government and the nationalists did the Mahatma decide to sail for London.

He'll Wear Native Garb
Of Gandhi's own desire to be present in London at the conference there can be no open question.

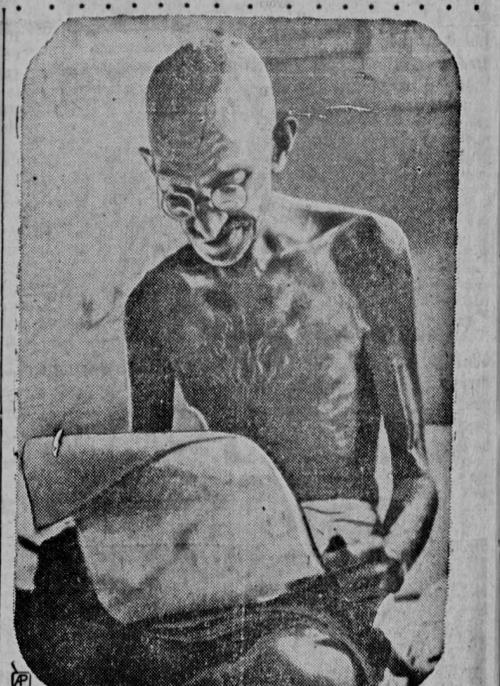

Already everything has been arranged in accordance with the ascetic life which he wishes to maintain in England.

He has determined not to wear English dress or adopt English modes of living. He will live as a poor man and a brother of the poor, Miss Slade, who is the daughter of Admiral Slade of the British navy, has herself entirely adopted his ascetic mode of living and finds her own happiness in service.

Gandhi himself has given the former West End society girl the Indian name of Mira, the queen who gave her own life in the service of God to help the poor. The village people have added the word "behn" which means "sister."

Mirabehn, who has grown old in Gandhi's service, is expected to accompany him to London. If he goes to the continent, her knowledge of French and German will enable her to act as interpreter.

The freedom of the 350,000,000 Indian people, one-fifth of the population of the globe, cannot possibly be achieved in a day.

Gandhi's visit to England has economic aspects viewed by some as vital to world prosperity. This little man will be spokesman for India's 350,000,000 people at the London round table conference.

Mahatma Gandhi has himself given his connotation to the demand for full independence:

"Soul Independence" Desired

It is not merely external freedom from British control that is urgently needed, though this is already overdue. There also is required that inner freedom of spirit and that independence of soul which can face the extraordinary difficulties that have to be met, where there has been such prolonged dependence in the past and such constant subjection either to one foreign power or another.

The religious problem, which above all other things had been making Mahatma Gandhi's London trip uncertain, will have to be met with the united courage and good will of Indian nationalists in order to find its true solution.

The prince, who has shown lately what seems to me signs of going back on assurances given in London a year ago, when they were ready to join an Indian federation.

The democratic freedom of their subjects is no less necessary than that of the Indians who are under British rule.

India cannot be half a modern democracy and half medieval feudal states.

The economic troubles of China and India, owing to the universal trade depression and the depreciation of silver, have brought to America and Great Britain financial troubles which are hardly less serious than those on the continent of Europe.

The political settlement which is not unlikely to be reached when Mahatma Gandhi comes to London, may become a turning point in these difficult years leading back to prosperity among nations.

Farmers of Iowa to Hold Back Grains

Dealer Association Asks Cooperation in Movement

FT. DODGE, Sept. 5 (AP)—Grain will be withheld from market to await satisfactory prices, under the plan advanced here by the Iowa Farmers Grain Dealer association.

The first of a series of county meetings to obtain cooperation in the movement will be held here next Wednesday, it was announced today. Cong. Fred G. Gilchrist of Laurens and Rep. R. L. Rutledge will be the speakers, Sec. W. H. Thompson of the association announced.

The association will ask the cooperation of 600 farmer elevator companies in Iowa in withholding corn and oats from market until prices reach a higher level.

Farmer's grain dealers associations in Nebraska, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Kansas, Minnesota and North and South Dakota also will be asked to take part.

Want Only Fair Price

The movement does not have dollar corn as the aim, Thompson said, adding that the proposal is to hold back the balance of the old crop and all crops on the farms, "until prices reach a level where the farmer can at least pay the overhead and get through the coming winter."

Grain withheld from market will be disposed of by orderly marketing when the prices reach a satisfactory level, Thompson said. An organization among farmers' elevators would prevent the dumping of large stocks.

Twenty Grand Wins Over Sun Beau in Historic Cup Race

Twenty Grand finished the mile and six furlongs eight lengths in front of Sun Beau while the latter had difficulty beating Sir Ashley by one half a length.

The big bay three year old stepped the distance in 3:01 1/5, more than six seconds of the track record held by Reich Count. Twenty Grand went to the post the 2 to 5 favorite.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 5 (AP)—The Louisville Colonels won from the Indianapolis Indians, 4 to 3 in the dedicatory game of the new $350,000 Perry stadium here today. A costly error on the part of Burwell allowed two runs to cross the plate in the eighth and produce the tales needed by the visitors to win.

Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball and Thomas J. Hickey, president of the American association, were among the notable present for the contest.

The ceremonies accompanying the official opening of the new park were brief, including only a flag raising. Approximately 7,000 persons were in the stands.

Francis Ouimet Stages Spectacular Comeback to Capture Amateur Crown

Defeats Jack Westland by 6 to 5 Tally

Regains Championship Last Won in 1914 at Vermont

BEVERLY COUNTRY CLUB, Chicago, Sept. 5 (AP)—Nearly a score of years after he wrote one of the most thrilling and romantic chapters in American golf history, Francis Ouimet today completed a spectacular comeback by regaining the amateur championship of the United States.

The 38 year old Boston veteran, as popular a figure as ever struck the links, conquered Alfred J. (Jack) Westland, Chicago's district champion, to recapture the crown he last wore away back in his youthful prime of 1914.

Ouimet's victory in the final round, 6 and 5, duplicated the margin by which he defeated the great Jerome D. Travers at Manchester, Vt., 17 years ago.

On Jones' Pedestal

Placing the veteran on the pedestal of American amateur golf from which Robert T. Jones, Jr., stepped into retirement, the triumph struck a chord of national enthusiasm such as have few golfing events since Francis himself, in 1913. He first sprang to fame by beating Ted Ray and Harry Vardon for the open championship.

The 1931 championship final, over a course in which par was equalled or beaten only twice all week long, was not particularly thrilling. Nor was it marked by a display of superlative golf, except in the few spots in which Ouimet gave a gallery of 2,500 spectators an exhibition of the shotmaking skill that made him virtually a world's champion at the age of 20. Francis had entirely too much experience behind him from which to benefit, too much control at the critical stages and too much skill on the greens for the game and capable Chicago star to offset.

Victory for Experience

It was a great victory for experience in a tournament which from the outset was overrun by the golfing youth of the land. Ouimet was the oldest of the 32 qualifiers, by far the most experienced and the only former champion to get into the match play battle. In five successive matches the Bostonian took the measure of five opponents, who averaged less than 23 years of age. His hardest contest was over the 19 year old "boy wonder" from Richmond, Billy Howell, who carried Ouimet to the 35th hole before yielding in the semi-finals.

After his 1914 conquest and prior to this tournament, Ouimet had reached the semi-finals six times. Once he got to the final, in 1926, only to be turned back by Chick Evans. With the big goal in sight again today, the veteran lost no time seizing and keeping command of the battle.

Ouimet was 4 up before Westland had a chance to shake off his preliminary feeling of nervousness, inspired by his first appearance in a national championship final. Seven holes were under the bridge before Jack emerged from his streak of wildness to make the only really serious threat to the Bostonian's lead.

Cuts Margin at 13th

Over a stretch of six holes, Westland cut Ouimet's margin in half from 4 up to 2 at the 13th. Ouimet had three putts to two greens. He had been forced to negotiate a full stytle with his niblick on the 11th to save a half. He was in a trap to lose the 13th. It looked as though Westland might ride the crest of his rally into the lead.

Ouimet's putter came to his rescue at this stage, he holed a 15 footer to win the 14th, canned one from six feet to capture the 15th hole and then made the greatest recovery of the day to halve the 16th. On this 414 yarder, into the wind, Francis hooked his drive under a tree and was forced to play a safety shot, while Westland got home nicely in two good pokes. Ouimet carried a hillside and several traps to reach the green but was 25 feet beyond the pin, with a downhill putt on a tricky surface. With Westland "dead" for his four, Francis hit his putt crisply and it went true to the cup, bouncing around the edge before dropping, while the crowd let loose a wild roar.

Restores Ouimet's Confidence

This stroke, heart-breaking for the slim Chicagoan, was of vital importance in restoring Ouimet's full confidence. He made a great recovery from the rough back of the green to win the 17th with a par 3, and easily got his half at the home hole to finish the morning round 5 up.

It was given and take in the high wind of the afternoon round, but at no stage did it appear Westland had a chance to do more than extend the match. Although Ouimet dropped the 19th, he came back to capture three of the next four as Westland became tangled up in a losing struggle with the traps.

Francis sank a 20 foot putt to go 7 up at the 23rd hole but Westland's par golf in the next four holes to the turn cut the margin to 5 up, with nine to do. At the 27th Ouimet again struck a master's blow. While Westland was straight all the way, Francis hooked his drive into a grove of trees, shot out safely

Sportively Speaking

By Bill Rutledge

Without arousing much excitement in the National league, the Giants have been steadily closing in on the Cardinals. Yesterday sport fans came to the realization that the McGraw men are a mere five and a half games in rear of the Red Birds.

It is not in the least impossible for the Giants to beat the Cards out for the pennant. The former has 18 games yet to play and the latter 17.

The New Yorkers would not be conceded much of a chance if it were not for the well known fact that they are an excellent road team. Otherwise the Cards would remain the high favorite.

The Gabby Street crew settles down at their home lot Sept. 10 for the remainder of the season. In the meantime the Giants will be touring the western end of the circuit.

The pennant may be decided in the Giants-Cards series that opens Sept. 17. If the Pirates continue their rough treatment of the champions and the Manhattan club can extend its streak to nine straight over the Braves today, the lead will slip down to four and a half games.

Then Labor Day the Cards' advantage will drop to a slight two and a half game margin—providing the Cubs can tumble the Cards twice and the Giants spill the Phillies twice.

The colorful wrestling match between Harold Croy and Johnny Meyers will attract many local sport followers to the Hills' arena Labor Day evening. It will be Meyers, the veteran campaigner, versus Croy, the young title aspirant,—identically the same situation in the Gray bout with Ralph Parcaut at Coralville July 2.

Tick On Triumphs in Saratoga Meet

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 5 (AP)—Tick On, 7 to 1 choice from Mrs. Louis F. Kaufman's Lonsdale, led 18 for the turf's best two year olds over six and one-half furlongs to win the twenty-seventh running of the $50,000 Hopeful stakes before a crowd of 20,000 at Saratoga today. Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt's Sweeping Light was second and W. R. Coe's Polonaise third.

Through a narrow opening and then chipped a beauty, two feet from the cup, to elch his par 4 and a half.

Finishes in Even Par

It required only four more holes to settle the issue. Ouimet won the short 28th, where he just missed a birdie, and finished the last four holes in even par to end the match on the 31st green.

Ouimet, due to his good inward nine, carded a 76 for the morning round but otherwise the medal scores of the finalists were nothing to become excited about. Westland used 81 strokes for the first round. With the wind strong in the afternoon Ouimet was out in 42 and Westland in 41.

For the day, Ouimet was 11 over par and Westland 16.

Statistical analysis showed Ouimet was in five traps, in the rough 10 times and took 60 putts for 21 holes. Westland was eight times in the bunkers, 11 times in the rough and required 63 putts.

Giants Within 5 1/2 Games of Cards; Wallop Robins Twice 5-1 10-1

Jim Mooney Annexes Fifth in Succession

Fitzsimmons Injured as New Yorkers Cop First Fray

NEW YORK, Sept. 5 (AP)—The New York Giants ran their winning streak to eight straight by walloping Brooklyn in both ends of a double header, 5 to 1 and 10 to 1, and pulled up within 5 1/2 games of the league leading St. Louis Cardinals.

Jim Mooney, lefthanded rookie from Bridgeport, won his fifth straight in the second game and would not have scored on but for a bad throw by Ott in the third inning. Mooney kept the Dodgers' 10 hits well scattered and his single in the fifth started a six run rally off Dazzy Vance. Vance and Day, who came in in the seventh, allowed the Giants 13 hits, among them homers by Hogan, Allen and Mel Ott's 27th of the season.

Freddie Fitzsimmons held the Dodgers to 10 hits and a single run for seven innings before he had to retire because of injuries. The last out of the seventh, Heimach's grounder, which he fielded himself, knocked him down. First up in the Giants' half of the eighth, Freddie was felled by a pitch to the left temple by Cy Moore, who had relieved Heimach. Fitzsimmons was not badly hurt but retired in favor of Hubble.

Falls led the early assault on Heimach, getting three singles, scoring each time. Fitzsimmons hit a home run.

Bucs Take Another From Cards by 8-5

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 5 (AP)—Pittsburgh came from behind today to make it three straight from St. Louis, National league leaders, 8 to 5.

Haines was given a five run lead by his teammates in the fourth but could not hold it. He was replaced in the seventh by Lindsey who allowed the Pirates to tie it up when L. Waner tripled and Jensen singled. The game was put on ice in the eighth as Lindsey was driven from the mound in a three run rally.

Kremer did not allow a hit after the fourth. Bad fielding was mainly responsible for the Cards' runs in this inning.

Score by innings: R. H. E.
St. Louis ..... 000 500 000—5 5 1
Pittsburgh ..... 000 202 138—8 12 2

Cards Get Picher, Infielder From Minors

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 5 (AP)—Purchase of James O. "Tex" Carleton, righthanded pitcher with the Houston club of the Texas league, and Lee Cunningham, infielder with the Danville, Ill. club of the Three-I league, was announced here tonight by the St. Louis Cardinals.

Quimet's Win Over Westland in Same Score as in 1914

CHICAGO, Sept. 5 (AP)—Just to give Father Time even a nearer licking, Francis Ouimet won his second national amateur golf championship today by the same score, the same day and almost to the same hour that he did 17 years ago.

Ouimet won his first amateur crown on Sept. 5, 1914, at Manchester, Vt., by defeating Jerome Travers, 6 and 5. Today he defeated Jack Westland, Chicago, by the same margin. There was no daylight savings time in those days so the time was almost the same both times when word was flashed to the world of golf that Francis Ouimet had won the United States amateur golf championship.

Back on Job

GORDON C. LOCKE

By BILL RUTLEDGE

As far as Gordon Locke is concerned, the 1931 grid season for the Hawkeyes can open anytime now.

Coach Burt Ingwersen's new aide-de-camp spent yesterday re-acquainting himself with Iowa City and the university campus that he left in 1926.

"I am glad to be back in Iowa City and doubly glad to be back with Coach Ingwersen."

Assistant in '24, '25

Ingwersen and Locke worked hand in hand in developing Iowa's eleven in the seasons of '24 and '25.

In this coaching combination Head Coach Ingwersen devotes most of his attention to the line, while First Assistant Coach Locke centers his work on the backfield.

Ingwersen was one of the greatest linemen ever turned out at the University of Illinois. Locke was one of the greatest backfield players ever produced at the University of Iowa.

Ingwersen was pleased to see his former assistant back on the job. "I am indeed glad to have Gordon Locke back. I know he will be a strong asset to the coaching staff."

Record at Iowa

The record slurred by Locke in his three seasons here as fullback includes the following:

Captained the undefeated Hawkeye team of 1923 to a co-conference championship with Michigan.

Named all-American back in Walter Camp's select eleven that year.

Created a Big Ten scoring record of 12 touchdowns in five conference encounters that still stands.

Accepted in June

At the invitation of the athletic board, last June Locke accepted an offer to resume coaching here. While not assisting the coaching of full and spring football, he will be practicing law in Cleveland.

The successor to Locke as director of athletics at Western Reserve university is J. P. "Tom" Keady. The Locke's have made their home at 430 S. Summit street.

Independents, Wellman Will Meet Today

Moose Play Coralville There; Introduce New Game

GAMES TODAY

Wellman vs. Independents at city park, 2:30.

Knights of Pythias vs. Elks at Coralville, 1:30, diamond ball.

Coralville vs. Moose at Coralville, second game of double-header.

As the local baseball attraction today, the Iowa City Independents will seek their first victory in their third start when they meet Wellman at the city park diamond at 2:30 this afternoon.

Wellman has won six of its last eight games aided by the twirling of Blin, a young righthander. Whiting will probably be on the mound for the local club. The rest of the lineup will be about the same that has been playing, including members of the Twilight league teams.

The Coralville athletic association is offering a real doubleheader today when a new game in this locality, diamond ball, will be played in addition to regular baseball.

The Knights of Pythias will meet the Elks, teams in the local kitchentball play, in the first game of the afternoon. The game, which they will play, is much similar to kitchentball except that the bases are longer, the seams are on the inside of the ball, and the players use gloves. This makes it a faster game.

In the nighttime, the local Moose will meet the Coralville nine in a regulation ball game. Both teams have been winning a great share of their games this summer and the game should be a real battle. The first game will be called at 1:30 on the Coralville Athletic association diamond.

National Rifle Cup Won by Marine Squad

CAMP PERRY, Ohio, Sept. 5 (AP)—Eight expert riflemen of the United States marines from Quantico, Va., today excelled 77 military and civilian teams to win the Herrick trophy match of the national rifle matches here. It was the fourth straight annual victory for the marines.

Firing 15 shots per man, five each at 600, 800 and 1,000 yards, the marines piled up a total of 1,766 out of a possible 2,000 points. The United States cavalry team placed second with 1,752. The Washington state national guard was ranked third although it too had 1,752.

Vere F. Hamer of Primmberg, Ia., with a score of 287 out of a possible 300 was tied for second place with Jesse Berber of Dumright, Okla., in the individual list of shooters in the west team which won the east and west team match for small bore contestants.

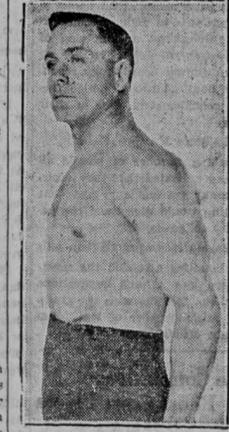

This match is fired by teams made up of shooters from the east and west sides of the Mississippi river, and the west team with a score of 2,265 took the match. The east team had 2,235 points. Each team had eight members shooting. The match was won last year by the west team.

Ready for Croy

Johnny Meyers

The headline event of the all day Labor Day celebration at Hills brings Johnny Meyers and Harold Croy together in a mat bout.

The principals will be evenly matched in weight. Both are expected to weigh in at 165 pounds.

The main difference between the 2 is in experience. Meyers is 42 years of age, at the point where most athletes begin to think of retiring.

Croy a Comer

On the other hand Croy is one of the rising young middleweights.

In his wrestling career Meyers has won the world's championship in his division five times. For many years he and Ralph Parcaut dominated the middleweight mat game.

The battle gives Croy a chance to put himself back in the front ranks after having lost on a foul to Parcaut early in July and being unable to accomplish anything in a later bout at Davenport.

500 Free Tickets

The free tickets to youngsters under 16 years of age is still open. Gratis admission can be secured until 500 tickets have been distributed.

BURLINGTON, Sept. 5 (AP)—The two favorites in the tri-state tennis tournament were pushed to the limit here today in the opening rounds. Merle Robins of Ames, defending champion, was forced to travel three sets before disposing of Max Everett of Cedar Rapids, former Drake university athlete, 6-3, 4-6, 6-1.

Ted Swenson of Cedar Rapids, University of Iowa star in bygone years, found the smooth game of Kenneth Cliffe, Washington ace, hard to pierce but finally won, 6-3, 5-6, 6-3.

Robins entered the third round by eliminating Cliff Sandusky of Danville, Ill., in straight sets. Another prominent player to advance was George Struble of Toledo, a Grinnell college luminary, who won two matches.

STAR WHITE SOX ROOKIE

BILLY SULLIVAN, JR.

CHICAGO (AP)—When it comes to ambition among major league rookies, Billy Sullivan, Jr., has it. Early this summer this 20 year old son of a famous father stepped out of his Notre Dame cap and gown into a White Sox uniform. He was up for a tryout.

Almost immediately he became the team's regular third baseman—and he's made a better-than-average showing for a rookie.

But that's not all.

Billy also wants to be a lawyer. His ambition is not confined to baseball. If he can handle both jobs, young Sullivan figures, so much the better.

Instead of spending his winters in idleness, Billy will go back to Notre Dame this fall after the baseball season ends. There he will enroll in the law school.

This last week's play in the twilight kitchentball leagues saw several changes take place in the club circuit, notably of which was the three straight defeats suffered by the Knights of Pythias, who had gone undefeated before.

Now the K.P. team is down in fourth place. Press-Citizen, Elks and Dairy Boys ahead of them with the dairy men entrenched in first place. Another surprise in the club loop is the three wins this week by the Knights of Columbus who had not won a game before.

This put them in fifth place. Ford Service is down in seventh, while the Odd Fellows continue to stay in the cellar.

Rangers Still Undefeated

Although Alexander's Rangers continued undefeated and in first place in the Industrial loop, several changes took place in the standings. Dewey's have moved into second place following Racine's trouncing by Dee's Recreation. The cigar store men are now in third.

Dee's continue to play slightly erratic ball, but nevertheless they keep their hold on fourth. Iowa Supply is now in fifth following a victory earlier in the week. Hotel Jefferson and 186th Hospital company have gone from better to worse and have lost most of their last few games. Iowa City Wholesale Fruit still has its perfect average in the lost column having not yet won a game.

Boston Gains 6-3 Decision in Afterpiece

BOSTON, Sept. 5 (AP)—George Earnshaw let the Red Sox down with a lone hit in the first game of a double header today which the Athletics and Sox divided. Earnshaw beat the Bostonians 6 to 0, but the Sox garnered a 6 to 3 win over Rube Walberg in the night cap.

Marty McManus as lead off man for the Sox in the eighth hit a roller which got away from Shortstop Williams to mar Earnshaw's blissless game. It was the second one hit game for Earnshaw this season. For a Boston runner reached second on a single.

Wilkey Moore gave Walberg a setback in the second game and although Earl Webb got his fifty-fifth double of the season, Sweeney's batting was the feature of the game.

Lou Gehrig scored his forty-first grand drive in the first inning of the opener, bringing home Ruth whom he now leads by three. Byrd also garnered a homer in the eighth of the same game.

The Senators reached Gomez for only five well-scattered hits while the Yankees were collecting eight off Fischer and Hadley. In the second, Brown yielded 13 while Washington hit seven of Ruffing's offerings for only three tallies.

Lazzeri led the Yankee assault against Brown, driving in four of the seven runs to make it two out of three in a four game series closing tomorrow. The Babe's best was a two bagger in each start.

Winds Cause Postponement of Cup Races

Gar Wood, Kaye Don Will Run First Heat Today DETROIT, Sept. 5 (AP)—A choppy sea, whipped up by a high south-west wind that swept over the Detroit river all afternoon, caused postponement today of the first heat of the famed Harnsworth trophy race.

After twice inspecting the course, the race committee announced the initial heat of the contest would not be run until 5:30 p.m. tomorrow. The respite probably was welcome to Gar Wood, defender, whose chief opponent, Miss America IX was disabled yesterday afternoon and was only made ready for today's expected heat by a score of mechanics who worked throughout last night and most of today replacing a broken manifold on one of the big hydroplane's superchargers.

Wood had not been able to give Miss America IX more than a hurried test after the repairs were made. The task facing Kaye Don, Great Britain's speed ace, was made materially less arduous by announcement that Horace E. Dodge had withdrawn his Miss Syndicate III, which has sought a third place on the trophy defending team. Previously Wood had withdrawn his Miss America V, leaving only his Miss America VIII, and Miss America IX for Don to compete against with his Miss England II.

The shores of Belle Isle and the river edge of the mainland were packed with spectators, estimates of the crowd varying from 200,000 to 500,000. The Harnsworth rules require a competing country to win two 30-mile heats to lift the trophy. A second heat has been scheduled for Monday and in the event a third is necessary, it will be run Tuesday.

Favorites in National Tournament Win Easily FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 5 (AP)—Some of the excess baggage was cleared away today in the opening round of the golden jubilee national men's tennis tournament, a score of the weaker entries going into the discard as a sort of preliminary to the main show starting Monday.

Johnny Doege, this country's left handed champion, started the ball rolling with a 6-3, 6-2, 6-4 victory over Keith Werner of Los Angeles and the others paraded after him into the second round. Frank Shields of New York, second ranking American, overwhelmed Federico Sendei of Mexico, 6-0, 6-1, 6-0, and Clifford Sutter, New Orleans star, eliminated Lester Stofen, Los Angeles, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4. They were the only members

Keokuk, Dubuque Split Doubleheader 9-1, 3-1 DUBUQUE, Sept. 5 (AP)—Keokuk and Dubuque split a double header here today as the Indians bade Du-buque farewell for the season. Keokuk took the opener, 9 to 1, and the locals came back to win the five-inning nightcap, 3 to 1.

The Wolves of the Waterfront

by Edgar Wallace

Synopsis of Preceding Installments
Just as the police conclude that they have evidence to connect him with a gang of criminals, Lord Siniford is murdered. Inspector John Wade, of the London police, thinks that he was the prime mover in a conspiracy against Lila Smith, who, according to Wade's belief, is Delia Pattison, heiress to a fortune that would go to Siniford if she were out of the way. She has been, until recently, a slaver in a lodging house, and Wade believes that her former employer, Mrs. Oaks, is also in league with the India Rubber gang.

Sixteenth Instalment
The contents of the pockets of the dead man lay neatly arrayed on a plain deal table at police headquarters. A gold cigarette case, a watch and guard, a tiny gold box containing a powder that John Wade knew was cocaine, a small silver knife, a platinum ring, keys, and a packet of medicine universally known as a specific against seasickness comprised the lot. There was no pocketbook, no document by which the body might have been identified, although it was fairly certain, as Elk pointed out, that the keys and the cigarette case would have been sufficient to establish an identity.

The fatal wound was hardly visible, as Wade had seen when he examined the body. Lord Siniford had been stabbed in the back of the neck. Death had been instantaneous.
"I've seen one or two murders like that," said Elk. "Original fellows, these Chinese. What do you make of this stuff?" He indicated the articles on the table.
"Nothing much. Evidently he was a bad sailor and was going to sea. The murder took place between midnight and six o'clock, the hour when he was found; therefore, it occurred somewhere in the region of Westminster."

He took down from a peg the heavy-looking waistcoat the dead man had worn.
"This is proof that he expected to go to sea. It is padded with fiber, and is the sort of thing worn by nervous passengers; it would serve as a life belt. His murderers didn't realize that it would cause the body to float! The watch stopped at one seventeen—five minutes before the tide began to ebb. That means the murder occurred six hours from Greenwich. The tide had turned just as the body was found."

"What's this?" asked Elk. He picked up the ring from the table and looked at it curiously. "Bit small for his finger, wasn't it?"
"It was in his waistcoat pocket," said Wade. "It was never intended for his finger—it is a wedding ring," Elk whistled.

"He was going to be married, eh?"
He put the ring down on the table, and then he caught a glimpse of Wade's haggard face.
"You're getting rattled, Johnny," he said kindly.
Wade nodded.

"I am," he said. "All my ideas and pet theories are knocked sideways. I thought the scheme was to marry Lila to this fellow, and I've been counting on this as a respite for her. It lessened the danger, and now—"
He made a despairing gesture.

He left soon after, and had only been gone an hour when Elk telephoned, asking him to come to Scotland Yard. Weary of mind and body, sick at heart, Wade obeyed the summons.
Elk was in the superintendent's room, and the burly chief was studying a radio message when Wade came in. He pushed the paper across the table.

"Here's the end of the 'Seal of Troy,'" he said. "Acting on instructions from the Admiralty, one of our cruisers picked her up as she was nearing the Brazilian coast—here's the report."
It was a long message covering four sheets of paper.

"Acting on your X.F.43[C]9A195142, I intercepted 'Seal of Troy' latitude X longitude X, and made search. Ship carries cargo agricultural machinery and motor cars. Manifests in order. Master Silvini, Chief Officer Thomas Treat of Sunderland. Neither Captain Alkness nor Chief Officer Raggit Lane on ship. In cabins 75, 76, and 79 on fourth deck below water line I found three men, two English and one American, who stated they had been detained on the ship six years and were employed in the melting down of the settings of stolen jewelry. Each man made an independent statement to the effect that the ship was mainly utilized for the reception of stolen property. In the cabin behind the paneling I found a small room that contained 1,250 carats cut diamonds, 750 carats emeralds, many of a considerable size, 17 small ingots of platinum, 55 ingots of fine gold. The ship has three refrigerating chambers, one of which was found to contain negotiable bonds to the value of 83,000 pounds, and as far as can be ascertained 184,000 pounds in bullion and currency notes. One of the jewelers stated that these represented the proceeds of six robberies, including a bank robbery. Am proceeding . . ."

The two lines after this were in code and unintelligible. Then the message went on:

"Statements from the men have been taken and will be verified by magistrates and forwarded you. 'Seal of Troy' proceeding in charge of her own officers."
"This will be sad news for Captain Alkness, not to say Raggit Lane," said Elk.
Wade shook his head.

"Not so sad as you imagine. My own opinion is that Alkness knew the game was up and allowed the ship to go to sea, expecting it would be held up. Somewhere in South America he has a pretty large sum cached. This won't hurt him—if he can follow up, but I hardly think he can."

Elk looked a little dubious.
"Alkness? Humph! What is Golly doing in that galley? He's roped in with the rest of the crew. I rather like Golly—even though he did buy pants! But he's a tool."
"A double-edged one, I think," said Wade.

He had an appointment at the police court and found an unusual large number of Mrs. Oaks's friends there.
The loungers stood with their hands thrust in their pockets, cigarettes drooping from their mouths, and scowled at John Wade as he passed, or gave him an oily greeting. He saw Sniffy there, and the sight of those unprepossessing features reminded him of something.

"Didn't I see you at the Mecca the other night, Sniffy?" he said.
"Yes, sir."
"What were you doing there? Putting a little money in soak?"
Sniffy was amused.

"I went there on purely a personal and private visit," he said unctuously. "A gentleman calling on a lady, is there anything wrong about that?"
Sniffy sighed. "I've dropped all that low hooking," he said. "I've had the offer of a regular job. A man like me, who knows the river backwards—I'll bet there ain't another man in this room that's followed the river to Gloucester—oughtn't to loaf round this hole."

It was perfectly true that Sniffy was one of the few cockney rivermen who knew the stream in its more pleasant moods—the long, silvery reaches that wound between the wooded hills, the old mill streams, the green gray locks, the tiny hamlets that cluster round the banks of the river where it narrows.

"I've jumped across the Thames," said Sniffy complacently. "I'll bet there's few people who can say that—jumped from one bank to another. I know the river better than any pilot; I know the landings of every pub from here to Oxford."
He stopped suddenly, and then asked:

"What are you going to do with Mrs. Oaks? That's persecution, if you like. A more innocent woman never drew the breath of life. There's a lady!"
Wade was moving on when Sniffy caught his sleeve.

"You'll find a pretty tough lot round here today, Mr. Wade," he said in a low voice. "I shouldn't wander about alone, if I was you."
The warning was not necessary, however, for Wade knew the danger he was in as he passed men who stared at him with expressionless eyes and glanced quickly at one another, but uttered no word.

He saw Mrs. Oaks in the small waiting room adjoining the corridor. She had evidently slept very little, but she was calm. She asked if he had been to the Mecca, and when he replied that he had not, she said:
"I hope you're going to settle this business today, Mr. Wade. I don't see how you can bring any charge against me, much less prove it. I've got the best lawyers that money can hire, and, if they don't tie you in knots, I'll be surprised. I don't want to make you look foolish in court, Mr. Wade. If you'll withdraw the charge, I will say no more about it, and I'll bear no malice."
He shook his head.

"The case has gone forward to the public prosecutor, and I shall ask for a remand," he said.
"All right, you'll see what I can do! I've got some friends, you know, Mr. Wade. Lord Siniford will—"
"Lord Siniford is dead."
John Wade spoke coldly and deliberately, watching the woman. She went scarlet, and then the color faded, leaving her face peaked and gray.
"Dead?" she whispered.

He nodded.
"When—when did he die?"
"He was murdered last night," said Wade. "His body was found in the river."
She swayed forward, and he caught her and helped her to a chair. But she had not fainted.
"They killed him—and he was going to marry her! Why did he let her do it?" she groaned.
The reply came from Wade's lips as an inspiration. He had never thought of that solution.
"Because he wants to marry her himself," he said, and she raised her hand, as though to ward off a blow.
"No, no!" she wailed. "He couldn't do that—he wouldn't do that!"
"Mrs. Oaks, you're not so much a driving force as a cog in the machine," he said. "I'm going to drop all pretense with you. Why don't

A New Yorker at Large

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK—If Mayor Walker sought rest and seclusion, he picked the wrong place to find it in the Riviera.

Most of the missing playboys and girls of this town may be found sunbathing themselves at the cocktail bars of Biarritz, Monte Carlo and Cannes.

True, the summer expatriates aren't as numerous as usual in the south of France this season, but there are enough to provide plenty of sophisticated gaiety. The fragile bathing beauty is unknown along these beaches, all of the women oiling themselves and lounging upon the rocks for hours to gain complexions of deep, dark brown.

Impoverished nobility mingles with wealthy social climbers. Broadway playboys gamble alongside Italian countesses. International crooks have cocktails with adventure-seeking debutantes. It is a strange, blasé cult that works almost too hard to find relief from boredom.

NOT EXAGGERATION
Once someone accused Michael Arlen of exaggerating the characters he pictured in his stories of Riviera life. Arlen retorted that he would take any character in any of his works and point out the living double in any of the Riviera resorts.

Too, the mayor, encounters just as sophisticated a group in Paris.

grega 10 day celebration, "La Fiesta." Tugging at a wilted collar, he eyed the salesman with an injured look.

"Now if it were only 'La Siesta,'" he muttered wearily.

LATEST GOSSIP.
Larry Tibbett, Hollywood's newest reclaimed bachelor, has rented his wife's house until the end of October. . . Jimmy Durante admits he has received only two fan letters in his life. One was from Spain and another from Canada. . . Columnist John P. Medbury is very much annoyed. A film-struck girl invited him to a party and then had cards sent to the press naming him as one of the hosts. . . George Arliss returns here towards the end of this month to commence filming flying corps, will bring the Maurice le Blanc mystery story to the screen.

ANOTHER SPANISH CUSTOM.
On one of those "unusual" hot days, someone approached Sam Mintz to buy tickets to the Los An-the same crowd following those pined pipers, Elsa Maxwell, Boni de Castellane and Erskin Gwynne.

Miss Maxwell gave a party that rocked New York last winter and then departed for Paris. She has just given one there of such magnificence that it has become a legend after only a few weeks.

It was a rural party, and all the guests came attired in costumes suggesting country life. Farm animals in abundance were present at the party, and they had their own private dinner in a specially built corral.

Cole Porter, wearing straw sombrero and overalls, drove up to the party in a rickety hay wagon. It was probably the nearest most of that crowd ever had been to farm life.

RETORT TO LOVE
Dorothy Parker can write the most romantic of love poetry one moment, and then turn out lines unbelievably bitter and ironic in their denunciation of tender thoughts.

One of her old sweethearts wrote her a long letter, recently, telling her how he missed her companionship and wondering if she ever gave him a thought.

Miss Parker promptly dispatched this answer: "I, too, have been thinking of you. In fact, the more I think of you the less I think of you."

York to collaborate on a play. She is mysterious about it. . . Reginald Denny is ambitious to swim the 28 mile Catalina channel. He thinks nothing of five and six mile stretches at Lake Arrowhead. . . There will be speaking parts for 81 players in Paramount's "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." . . Humorist Ted Cook is recuperating from an appendicitis operation in a southern California seaside resort. On the first day of his convalescence, he writes, they put him in a wheel chair and took him on a tour of the unsoiled lots.

RECLAIMED FROM SEA.
A ship built from lost ships is living a brief existence at RKO-Pathé studio in Culver City.

The unique creation is in reality only part of a ship, being an exact replica of the control room of a German submarine.

Among its parts are a steering stand from the wrecked steamer Harvard, a wireless set from the Japanese steamer Asma Maru, which was dashed to pieces in a storm off the California coast, and a speaking tube from the German submarine U-88. Most of its valves and gauges are relics of ships wrecked off the coasts of California and Mexico.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

Sergius Mihaloff, former submarine construction expert with the U. S. navy, designed the film craft and furnished the parts.

You'll see his handiwork in "Suicide Fleet."

ANYWAY, IT WORKED.
Here's one for Hollywood's "1001 Nights."
Some time back, Author Charles MacArthur was engaged to write the dialogue for Joan Crawford's picture, "Paid."
Finishing it one day, he turned in his copy and hopped a train for

New York. By the time the train reached Daggett his conscience drove him to mail several pages of suggested continuity to the studio. The reply reached him at Albuquerque—a 500 word telegram, beginning, "Of all the rotten tricks for an author to play upon a producer."

Now, still more contrite, MacArthur wired a promise to send further continuity from New York.

The studio finally received this in nightly long distance calls. Director Sam Wood's secretary took dictation from MacArthur, 3,000 miles away.

And the payoff is, the picture is a winner.
DID YOU KNOW:
That Hollywood, with more than 200,000 population, has no railway station?

Farmers National Grain Corporation Buys Midwest Firm

CHICAGO, Sept. 4 (AP)—The Farmers National Grain corporation today purchased the assets of the Mid-West Grain corporation, sales subsidiary of the Illinois grain corporation.

Directors of the Illinois company approved the sale today "in order to help consolidate the cooperative grain marketing agencies of the country so as to give grain producers an efficient and economical nationwide sales organization controlling the bulk of production."

The United States has about 115 physicians for every 100,000 people.
