HAWKEYES LOSE TO HUSKERS 7-0

Nebraska Scores in Third Period Following Sustained Drive of Sixty-Seven Yards

Captain Sansen, Hickman, Moffitt Outstanding for Hawkeyes; Capt. Marvin Paul Leading Ground Gainer

(Special to The Daily Iowan)
LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 7.—The University of Nebraska eleven, contenders for the 1931 Big Six title, battered down the determined defense of a dogged Iowa line this afternoon 7 to 0, decisively avenging its 12-7 defeat of a year ago.

The Hawkeyes, pitted against a superior opponent, battled desperately throughout the game, and by snapping savagely at every break of the play, were able to hold the revenge mad Cornhuskers to one touchdown.

In the third quarter, however, the Nebraska line was not to be denied. Urged on by showers of colored cards fluttering wildly over the student cheering section, Captain Marvin Paul, fresh from a long confinement to the bench, answered the clamors of the red-jerseyed "corncob" peppers with a touchdown.

Kick Out of Danger
A lateral pass, Paul to Penney, gained a yard, Paul made two yards at center and then toted the oval to the six-yard line. A few plays later he fumbled and Kriz kicked temporarily out of danger.

The Huskers were not undaunted, however, and on the first play jammed to the 30-yard line, and then passed to Joy for a first down on the Hawks' 21-yard line. Another pass Bauer to Joy, took the Huskers to the 14-yard line and Iowa took the ball on downs when Bauer's pass was incomplete.

On an exchange of punts between Kriz and Bauer, the Huskers were forced back to their own 31-yard line but a series of plunges took them to the 41-yard line from where Paul plunged again to the Iowa 35-yard line to be stopped by Hantelmann. Nebraska was on the Hawkeye 24-yard line as the first quarter ended.

Sansen Annoys Huskers
The rest of the first half found the Hawks with Sansen and Hickman carrying, annoying the Huskers although never in dangerous territory. On Sansen's fumble, Nebraska recovered on the Iowa 19-yard line, but after three tries at the line Master-son dropped back for a placekick that fell short of the bar.

The end of the second quarter and the end of the fourth found Iowa fighting hard for yardage with Moffitt throwing deadly passes to the Hawkeyes ends or himself circling the wing for good gains. Once he reached 20 yards from punt formation before he was forced out.

Paul, Husker plunger, brought the stands to their feet with a sensational run of 41 yards as he intercepted Sansen's pass while the Hawks were deep in Nebraska territory.

Nebraska Line Powerful
Nebraska's sustained drive found its linemen opening wide gaps for both Paul and Kreizinger. While the former bore the brunt of the burden, Kreizinger plunged once for 12 yards and again for 8 yards.

Captain Sansen, Hickman, Dolly, center, and the fleet Moffitt played a hang-up game for the losers.

Rhea, Husker tackle, was a mountain of strength in the line for Nebraska. Bauer, Husker backfield ace, played only a part of the game,

Japan Refuses League's Order to Withdraw

Insist China Must Carry Out Demands

Japan Says Action Will Further Oriental Cooperation

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—A polite refusal was Japan's reply today to a League of Nations resolution requesting withdrawal of its troops from Manchuria by Nov. 16.

In a note to Aristide Briand of France, chairman of the League's council, the Japanese government rejected as impracticable the proposal that protection of Japan's nationals and property be undertaken by the League on withdrawal of the soldiers.

Keeps Forces in Manchuria
Japan definitely asserted its intention to keep its forces in Manchuria until China gives assurance of the safety of Japanese subjects and agrees to respect Nippon's treaty rights.

The note made public at the Japanese embassy here said:

"Having regard to the actual conditions in Manchuria, the Japanese government has regretfully been brought to the conclusion that the dangers involved in the precipitate recall of the Japanese troops could not be averted by measures of League supervision."

Five Principles Stressed
In emphatic terms, Japan announced its intention of demanding compliance with its "five fundamental principles" laid down on Oct. 24, before calling off its soldiers.

The five points — which Briand contends have already been met by China — include "respect for the treaty rights of Japan in Manchuria." The others are mutual repudiation of aggressive conduct, respect for territorial integrity; suppression of agitation and boycott; and protection of Japanese nationals.

"Unless and until an arrangement is reached between Japan and China on the basis of these principles, no measure of security for the lives and property of Japanese subjects, sufficient to enable the withdrawal of the Japanese troops to the railway zone, can possibly be assured," the note said.

Benefit Golf Tournament Starts Today

With a fair weather forecast, Charles Kennett, chairman of the American Legion Unemployment and Relief association, said last night that a large number of spectators and entrants were expected at the benefit golf tournament at Finkbine field today.

A large number of entrants had already registered last night, he said. The money received from the tournament will be used by the association in financing the first part of the work for the unemployed.

Three tournaments will be played. They are: 18 hole medal tournament; 18 hole blind bogey tournament; and a veteran tournament which is open to all players 45 years old and over. Low medalist of the medal tournament will be presented with the Welfare cup, a donation of the Iowa City Light and Power company, which he will hold for one year. Upon payment of the fee, players will be entitled to enter all tournaments. Three or more prizes will be awarded in each of the tournaments.

Following is a list of the business firms who have given prizes for the tourney: Iowa City Light and Power company, Fuhrer's, Hausser's, Handels and Son, McNamara Furniture company, Lorenz Shoe store, Bremer's, Evers Shoe store, Dombey Boot shop, Whetstone's, Racine's, Coast's, Iowa Supply company, University Book store, Iowa Typewriter company, Economy grocery store, Yetter's, Strub's, Boerner's, and the Kinney Shoe store.

Wet Candidate for Ohio Governorship

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 7 (AP)—Galen Starr Ross, an advocate of manufacture and sale of beer, will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Ohio next year.

Ross, a Columbus advertising man and public lecturer, said that besides urging modification of the prohibitory laws to make beer legal, his platform would call "for a more just tax burden on the utilities in favor of the common people."

THE WEATHER

IOWA: Generally fair and continued mild Sunday; Monday increasing cloudiness, possibly showers in west and north portions, cooler in extreme west portion.

Train Kills Three Children Trapped on Rail Trestle

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 7 (AP)—Three children, trapped on a trestle of the Big Four railroad, were run down and killed by a train here late today. The victims were: Hazel Prater, 7; her sister, Gladys 10, and Maxine Vance, 8.

The children were crossing the trestle hand in hand and had reached a point about half way when a passenger train rounded a curve and bore down on them. When the engineer sounded his whistle Gladys looked around and drew her companions to the edge of the track. A moment later the train struck them. The train stopped after it had traveled across the elevation.

Dolls and other toys which the children carried were found scattered along the tracks.

Baroness Will Tell Changes in Education

Helene von Hindenburg to Describe Europe Since War

Part of the illustrated lecture, "Glimpses of Germany," to be heard in the main lounge of Iowa Union at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow, will be a description of the significant changes which have taken place in European education since the World war.

The baroness will arrive this afternoon at 4 o'clock, from Chicago, and will be met by Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh, chairman of the senate board on university lectures.

Had Many Governesses
Belonging to one of the most socially prominent families in Europe, the baroness is a typical example of the rigid discipline which went into the training of young women who were to take part in Germany's court life.

According to the titled visitor, from an early age she was placed under the direction of governesses. It was not uncommon, she says, for a daughter of the nobility to have as many as 24 governesses at the same time.

Instructed to Talk
"Correct carriage was encouraged through the use of boards which were strapped to children's backs," she continues. "We were never allowed, under any circumstances, to go out unattended."

"We were instructed to 'talk, talk, talk.' When I visited my uncle, Prince Munster, at the Embassy in Paris, he liked for me to prepare the salad at his diplomatic dinner parties. But whenever I became absorbed in my duty, he

Lectures, Parties, Sports, Fill Students' Spare Time Until Christmas Holidays

By GEORGE KALBACH
Today marks the beginning of the last six week period until school is out for the Christmas holidays.

For many, those six weeks are just something that must be endured, perhaps brightened up a bit here and there by planning holiday parties. But to the student who really appreciates Iowa life, those six weeks are full of interest. Lectures, plays, football and basketball games, an international debate, and parties are all included in the list of extra-curricular activities.

Vesper Services
This afternoon, the Rev. Fulton J. Sheen will speak at the university vesper service. Two more vespers remain before the holidays, one of which will present Bishop Edward H. Hughes. The second, to be held the last Sunday before vacation, will be a program of Christmas music.

The list of lectures, headed by one to be given tomorrow night by Baroness von Hindenburg, will include a discussion of overproduction, unemployment, the machine age and financial conditions, given by Stuart Chase, economist, two Baconian lectures, and a talk on "Fiction in history and history in fiction," by Rafael Sabatini, author, and a lecture by John A. Scott of Northwestern University.

Oxford university's debate team will appear against the Iowa debate team Nov. 16, while the Northwestern team will invade Iowa City Dec. 11.

While the university conferences are temporarily over with until after the holidays, two important clinics

State Senator to Give Talk on Armistice

Legion Plans Program Wednesday; Asks 5 Minute Silence

In a program under the auspices of the Roy L. Chopek post of the American Legion, Iowa City will observe Armistice day Wednesday in a parade and program to take place at the American Legion Community building. Paying tribute to war dead Edwin R. Hicklin of Waterloo, Iowa state senator, will be the speaker of the day at the Legion building.

Senator Hicklin is a graduate of the University of Iowa and is chairman of the legislative committee of the state department of the American Legion.

Program Follows Parade
Following the parade the program at the Legion building will begin at 10:55 a.m. At 11 a.m. the audience will rise and face the east in silent tribute to the war dead, while a bugler sounds taps. Dr. H. C. Parsons will lead the assembly in patriotic songs, which will be followed by the address by Senator Hicklin.

The parade, under the leadership of George Maresh, marshal of the day, will assemble at 10:20 a.m. north of the university campus on Jefferson street. It will start at 10:30 a.m. The line of march will be: east on Jefferson street to Clinton street, south to College street, and east to the American Legion Community building where the program will be held.

Two Bands Will Play
Two bands, the university band and the Iowa City municipal band, will take part in the parade. Other units include the university R.O.T.C., the American Legion, and the 186th Hospital company.

All visiting and resident Gold Star mothers are especially invited to attend the services which are open to the public. George R. Gray, chairman of the Legion's Armistice day committee, is in charge of the day's program. He is assisted by Capt. R. V. Rickard.

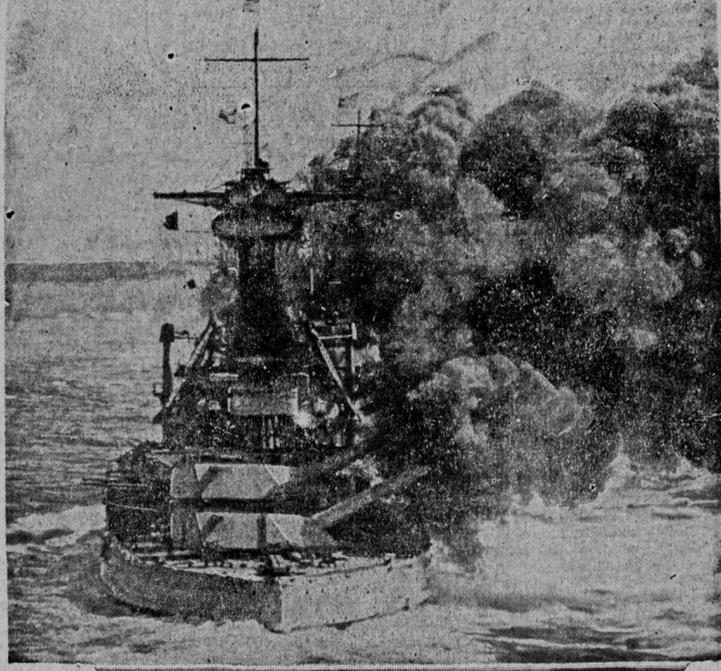

Business houses have been requested to suspend work during the five minute silent period beginning at 10:55 a.m., and that employees who have a part in the program be released from duty for the necessary time.

Heed 'Docking Rule' Warns Dean Rienow

Students wishing to escape the penalty inflicted under the one credit-hour "docking rule," in connection with absence before and after Armistice day, must attend all classes Tuesday and Thursday, according to announcement from the office of Robert E. Rienow, dean of men.

Class cuts for tomorrow and Friday will not subtract from students' credits, but will count as ordinary cuts, even though the class meetings in the particular course are the last held before, or the first held after, the vacation period.

'33 Hawkeye Sale Starts Tomorrow

Free Trip to National Parks Goal of 23 Contestants

With the opening of classes tomorrow morning, the annual Hawkeye sales campaign will be inaugurated, with 23 contestants in the field.

Francis O. Wilcox, circulation manager of Student Publications, Inc., and Brydon O. Myers, assistant business manager of the Hawkeye, will be in charge of the campaign.

Each of the 23 contestants is to have a partner working with him, both to share in the awards for salesmanship. The grand prize for the person selling the most year-books will be a trip to Yellowstone and Glacier national parks.

Can Win Staff Jobs
In addition to the grand prize, commissions will be given each salesman, and to the six entrants selling the most books will go the honor of being automatically placed on the business staff of the 1933 Hawkeye.

The campaign will end Dec. 12, at midnight. For each fully paid subscription, the name of the purchaser will be printed in gold leaf on the cover of the book.

23 Contestants Vie

Man Shoots Wife Fleeing Advances; Commits Suicide

DENISON, Nov. 7 (AP)—After shooting his estranged wife as she fled his advances, Nels Casaday of Charter Oak last night committed suicide by shooting.

She said he entered her house and sought to enter her room. She ran when he threatened her, she said. After shooting her, he returned to his house and killed himself.

The tragedy was witnessed by their 9-year-old daughter, Irene.

'Hoover' Falls Into Evil Ways; Brought to Court for Biting

KEOKUK, Nov. 7 (AP)—"Al Smith" was poisoned some time ago, and now, it seems, his faithful Abachates, "Hoover," Mrs. Carrie Tighe's dog, has fallen into evil ways.

Charles Buckler claims that "Hoover" bit off his pants pocket when the Burlington switchman was on his way to work.

So "Hoover" will go on trial Monday afternoon in Judge W. L. McNamara's superior court here.

"Hoover" isn't bad, his mistress says, even though his father was a bulldog and his mother a wolf dog, but he does hate to have people throw rocks at him.

An information filed against "Hoover," however, says he is "notoriously fierce and vicious."

Find Car Abandoned by Thief in Chelsea

Abandoned by the robber after it had been missing for more than a day, a car belonging to D. E. James, 509 E. Jefferson street, was found in Chelsea, Iowa City police were notified Friday night.

The thief gained access to the automobile when he pried open Mr. James' garage door Thursday evening.

Jury Favors Hoover Naval Policy Stand

Gardiner's Charges of Ignorance Found Erroneous

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—A verdict in favor of President Hoover was returned today by the jury he appointed to weigh the truth of statements contained in William H. Gardner's attack upon the administration's naval policy.

Fully supporting the chief executive, the committee found that the pamphlet issued by Gardner as president of the Navy league, charging Mr. Hoover with "abysmal ignorance" of naval affairs contained "many inaccuracies, false assertions and erroneous conclusions."

Expected Retraction
Aroused by the Gardner attack, Mr. Hoover had charged the Navy League head with uttering falsifications and said he would expect a public retraction and an apology after the committee had completed its inquiry.

Vespers Lecturer to Present Views on Intolerance Tonight

Reverend Sheen Will Talk at 8 O'Clock in Iowa Union

Talking on the subject, "A Plea for Intolerance," the Rev. Fulton J. Sheen, educator and writer, will speak at the university vespers service in Iowa Union at 8 o'clock this evening.

Ordained a priest by the Roman Catholic church in 1919, Father Sheen has been a member of the faculty of the Catholic university of America since 1926. For a number of years, he was secretary-treasurer of the Catholic Philosophical association.

Father Sheen was born at El Paso, Ill., in 1895. He graduated from Spaulding Institute, Peoria, Ill., in 1913. After receiving his B. A. degree from St. Viator college, Kankakee, Ill., in 1917, he continued his work there, and two years later was awarded his M.A.

In the fall of 1919, he entered St. Paul, Minn., seminary, and received, in 1920, his S.T.B. and J.B.C. from the Catholic university of America.

Father Sheen was awarded his Ph.D. from Louvain (Belgium) university in 1923. A D.D. degree was accorded him in Rome in 1924, and in 1925 he was honored with the Agrege en Philosophie. In 1925,

The Rev. F. J. Sheen

Father Sheen was a teacher at St. Edmund's college, Ware, England.

The Rev. Father Sheen is a contributor to the religious magazines, Commonweal, America, and New Scholasticism. Among his books are, "God and Intelligence," "Religion Without God," and "The Life of All Living."

Child Study Group Hears Mrs. Morgan

"No Theology for Small Children," Speaker Tells Club

"I believe in no theology for small children. But religious education has other functions along with the laying of foundations for religious attitudes in the experiences of the home," was the belief evidenced by Mrs. William Morgan in her talk before the Child Study club at Iowa Union yesterday following a 12:15 p.m. luncheon.

Mrs. Morgan introduced the idea that all over the country there is a movement towards interest in a new religious education for children, following not the old regime but a new one which will take in three things only—the nature of the child, educationally sound scholarship in religion, and religious education which is psychologically sound as well.

Stressing the fact that religious experience must come early in life to have much influence upon the growing child, Mrs. Morgan showed that the child reared by stern parents would find the necessity for a religion to suit him. God would be a disciplinarian and the world would be cold and hard. The pampered child would draw down a God to understand why he was that way, while the normal child would have few religious confusions or conflicts because of a level, well-regulated life and raising by parents.

The functions which accompany religious foundations in experiences in the home are first, to interpret the child's universe in a way which will last him, since the kindergarten boys and girls instead of the student's faith is in jeopardy today; second, to socialize his experiences; and third, to give the child experiences which give him insight as to the meanings, causes, and values of the world.

Mrs. Morgan illustrated her talk with quotations from conversations, experiences and questions from her study in the Union School of Religion in New York city.

Picnic Supper on Calendar for Club Members Tuesday

Those who are in Lincoln, Neb., this week end for the Nebraska-Iowa football game are: Lumund Wilcox, A3 of Jefferson, and Gall Morse, A2 of Estherville.

Carl Schack, A4 of Burlington, is spending the week end at home.

Strolling Through Fashion Lane

By CELIA GOLDBERG
Society Editor, The Daily Iowan

At last, girls! Dame Fashion decries it complimentary to be "high hat." The newest hats have a built-up high look. But they're worn down in front to make the brow low. The hats are decidedly more sophisticated than the earlier season ones—have more of a "grande dame" air, as the French would say.

Some are built up in the back to look high. Often the back is enough higher than the front so there's a decided down slant from back to front. Other hats are rolled up high at the side while the opposite side comes down equally low.

But it's not only in shape and trimming that you get this "high hat" feeling. You get it in materials, too. Many of the new hats are made of materials that make you think of a man's high hat—suede, velours, and some of the latter's plush.

Sometimes the whole hat is of these materials. Sometimes they're combined with felt, and then you get an interesting fabric contrast in dull and shiny material.

Knitted houses are the newest accompaniment for the wool tulleur. They are only waist length and are finished with a three inch band at the bottom. Many of them are signed with short puffed sleeves and round necklines.

Pockets are "here, there, and everywhere" in the fall mode. Coats display patch pockets, wool dresses have flaring pockets perched on the hips, and even evening frocks are designed with little slit pockets several inches below the waist line.

With their greater importance, gloves seem to be getting fancier. There are long suede gloves, usually elbow length, set with three puffs, and the black suede gauntlets, which depend on white stitching to lend them distinction. A wide flare at the cuff is a smart silhouette.

Jeweled pendants, modeled on lines of Hindu architecture are new tricks in costume accessories. Some of them are suspended from a black cord, and are designed along the lines of a miniature Hindu temple and studded with diamonds and car-bonaceous emeralds.

Ostrich-bordered scarves are a new trick for evening wear. Three cornered chiffon scarves are edged with a wide band of ostrich and tossed about the throat in a manner reminiscent of the feather boa in vogue during the gay nineties.

Necklaces of bead ropes as thick as a finger are the newest ornament for wear with plain black frocks. The ropes, made of tiny beads closely woven together, hang almost to the waist.

There is no danger of the fashion world going off the gold standard. Bits of gold glitter from the tops of milady's head to the tips of her toes.

Even for street wear gilded belts and buckles, gilt buttoned gloves and gilded quills are being shown. Dull kid pumps are enlivened with tiny golden buckles and flowers for the coat lapel are of gold kid.

Many afternoon dresses have tops and sleeves, sashes or capes of gold lame, and dark crepe dresses have puff sleeves and tops embroidered with golden threads.

Erodelphians Will Hear Talks About Literary Leaders

Pledges of Erodelphian literary society will present a number of talks on persons in the literary field at a meeting of the group at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday in the women's lounge at Iowa Union. Marian Prabh, A4 of Davenport, president, will be in charge.

Subjects for the talks are based upon the lives and works of various writers, each of whom will visit the campus this year or has already been here. Literary figures to be discussed are Ruth Suckow, Zona Gale, Langston Hughes, and Rafael Sabatini. Ethel Stone, J4 of Iowa City, arranged the program.

Those speaking are: Gertrude Mowry, A1 of Newton; Constance Bassett, A2 of Odell; Ruth Fatherson, A2 of Odell; Ethel Keller, A2 of Iowa City; Martha Fulmer, A3 of Iowa City; Cherie McElhinney, A1 of Washington; Marian Price, A3 of Ft. Dodge; and Lucia Schramm, A2 of Burlington.

Business Meeting Tuesday Evening

The Business and Professional Women's club will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the American Legion Community building.

Plans have been made by the program committee to attend the community band concert and dance afterwards, which will take place in the Legion hall.

Woman's Club to Discuss Russia

Mrs. C. W. Thompson, 415 S. Lucas street, will entertain members of the literature department of the Iowa City Woman's club at her home at 3 p.m. Tuesday.

Using the book entitled "These Russians," by W. C. White, as the basis of her talk, Mrs. O. G. Mars will present a comparative study on a number of writers on this topic.

Mrs. Mars' discussion will point out how the various authors agree on the methods used by the soviet union, and their disagreements as to results.

Armistice Eve CELEBRATION and CONCERT

Do you remember 13 years ago November 11th? Do you recall the rejoicing and the irrepressible spirit that prevailed on that great day?

Let's bring back those memories! Hear the

STURDY STYLES TAKE AUTUMN TRAILS

Leaf-flecked woodland trails now beckon hikers and lovers of fall and winter sports. Here are three young stars of the films who find that not all the pleasures of the season are confined to southern resorts. As for clothes—they're part of the winter scene. Thus Ruth Hall (left) has an outfit happily combining utility and attractiveness. Leather and suede combine effectively in the jacket Leila Hyams (center) wears with a leather skull cap to match. Nor is style sacrificed in the sturdy costume in which Frances Dee (right) heeds the call of winter's swirling snows.

Pythian Past Chiefs Officials at Meeting

Past chiefs of the Pythian Sisterhood will occupy official chairs at the annual roll call meeting of the order tomorrow. The meeting will take place at 7:30 p.m. at the K. P. hall.

The following past chiefs will officiate: past chief Mrs. Lola Harmon; most excellent chief, Mrs. William Schuppert; excellent senior, Mrs. Inez Shaybaugh; excellent junior, Mrs. Ethel Beach; manager, Mrs. Beulah Cheek.

Husa Reports on Lodge Conference

A report on the Grand Encampment of district No. 52 of Iowa Odd Fellow lodges at Clinton in October was given by Albert Husa, Jr., at a meeting of the local encampment, Friday. The meeting took place at 7:30 p.m. at the I.O.O.F. clubroom.

Club Members Give Bridge Tournament

Thirty-six persons attended the bridge tournament given by members of University club at the club rooms at 745 p.m. yesterday. Contract bridge was played at six tables, and auction bridge was played at three. Winners in the tournament will be announced the latter part of this week.

Elect Three to Order of Artus

Jerome D. Fenton, A4 of Great Neck, N. Y.; Jimmie McCollister, A4 of Davenport; Warren M. Sparks, C4 of Oskaloosa, have been elected to the Order of Artus, honorary economics fraternity.

Ralph Capone Less Cheerful as Prison Gates Welcome "Public Enemy Number 3"

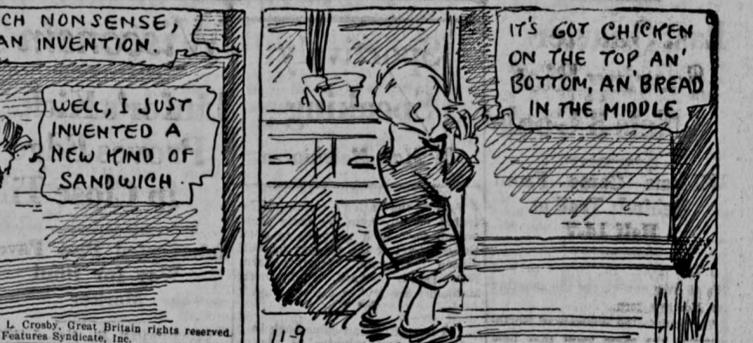

By George W. Smith
 LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Nov. 7 (AP)—Ralph Capone, swarthy elder brother of "Scarface Al," dropped his title "Chicago's public enemy No. 3," today to assume a longer number assigned to him at the federal prison which he entered to serve a three-year term for income tax evasion.

The brother of Chicago's gangland overlord, who is expected at Leavenworth shortly himself to serve a 11-year sentence on a similar conviction, was "just another federal prisoner," to Warden White.

Dons Prison Denim
 "Ralph has begun to realize that, too," was the only comment in Capone's first reaction to prison life, brought from within the brick walls by Deputy Marshal Thompson, who guarded him from Chicago to the receiving room where Capone exchanged his tailored business suit for drab prison denim.

The convict, who owes his sentence to failure to pay a $300,000 government income tax claim, shuffled through the prison gate at 9:15 a.m.

SKIPPY—Food for More Than Thought

Bandit Shoots Grocer; Flees Without Cash

DES MOINES, Nov. 7 (AP)—Walter Todd, grocer, was seriously wounded in an attempted holdup of his store tonight by a bandit who fled without searching for loot. One of the robber's shots pierced Todd's arm, another lodged in his abdomen, and a third went wild.

Todd and his wife were sitting behind the counter talking to a clerk when a tall, blond man dressed in a light cap and lumber jacket entered the store. Two pistols were lying on the counter placed there for the protection of the day's receipts totaling approximately $200.

The bandit pointed his gun at the trio as he stepped inside the door and demanded that Todd "hand over the money." "Don't move," the bandit was quoted as saying to Mrs. Todd. The woman, however, grabbed one of the pistols and fled into an adjoining room.

Todd had raised both his hands when the bandit entered the store, police were told, but lowered one as his wife ran from the room, and attempted to get possession of the weapon remaining on the counter. As he did this the bandit fired three times, then fled.

Concert, Ball Will Feature in Celebration

Presenting its "first concert, the Iowa City municipal band will play Tuesday evening at the American Legion Community building. An Armistice celebration ball will follow the concert.

The concert, in which more than 40 musicians will take part, will feature World War tunes. Special club rates have been made by the committee in order that a large group may attend. Tickets will give admittance both to the concert and to the dance.

The purpose of the program is to raise money to cover band expenses during the winter. Beginning next summer a series of ten concerts will be played. Admission charges will be used only for the running expenses of the band.

Groups interested in the club rates are requested to see or telephone William Mueller, manager of the band.

No Successor Appointed for Late Senator

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 7 (AP)—The sorrow cast over Arkansas by the sudden death last night of United States Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway, firebrand Democrat, had not lifted sufficiently today for the state to give serious public consideration to his successor.

A special election is compulsory as the law provides for such in no less than 60 days or more than 120 days. Had Caraway lived two days longer his post could have been filled by appointment from Governor Parnell, however, Arkansas law provides a general election is necessary where vacancies occur more than one year before the general election.

Life slipped from the junior senator without warning last night at a hospital here where he was recovering from an operation he underwent Oct. 29.

The body will lie in state at the Arkansas capitol several hours tomorrow and then will be taken to Jonesboro for funeral service and interment Monday. The service will be held at 11 a.m. The entire Arkansas congressional delegation will accompany the body from Little Rock to Jonesboro.

Youth Fellowship Council to Discuss Program for Year

"The Youth fellowship and its 1931-32 program" will be the theme of a 6 o'clock supper and a worship period beginning at 6:30 p.m., today, given by the Youth Fellowship council of the Christian church in the church parlors, with Robert Schmitt, president of the council, presiding.

This is the first of a program of religious and social events planned by the council, which is made up of the University Bible class, the Fidelity Christian Endeavor society, and Kappa Beta, Christian church societies.

Short talks will be given at the program tonight by Arthur Leff, on "Our relation to the church"; Eleanor Saltzman, "Values of the church school"; Esther Belle Moore, A2 of Iowa City, "Opportunities through Christian Endeavor"; Marjorie Larson, A1 of Iowa City, "The missionary enterprise"; Edwin St. Clair Gantz, C of A, "Our social activities"; Ruth Garrigues, A1 of Iowa City, "For our church center"; Pearl Bartholow, A3 of Alton, "The aims of Kappa Beta." An open discussion will follow.

Car Overturns, Kills Omaha Man Going to Iowa-Husker Game

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 7 (AP)—Trapped underneath his heavy car when the machine left the road and turned over while he was en route to the Iowa-Nebraska football game here, M. P. Frantz, 26, Omaha, was killed today.

Arthur H. Frantz, friend, Neb. banker and father of the Omaha man, recognized the overturned car as he drove past.

Investigating, he found his son's body. M. P. Frantz, was secretary of an Omaha livestock commission house. He was unmarried.

Waterloo Woman, Clarksville Man in Jail for Car Theft

WATERLOO, Nov. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Margaret Dodd, 22, of Waterloo is in jail here in connection with the alleged theft and wrecking of a car belonging to Everett Hansen, Waterloo insurance man, near Clarksville early today.

Hartsell Block, 22, of Clarksville was in the Butler county jail at Alton tonight, held in the same connection. He was jailed at Clarksville early in the day after a fight with Harry Wilhelm, son of the Clarksville marshal, but escaped shortly. He was re-arrested near dusk by the Wilhelms and was lodged in the county jail.

Mrs. Dodd wrecked Hansen's car today, police said, attempting an escape after Block's first arrest.

Navy League Await Word of Kidnapers

 10,000 word document accompanied by a lengthy letter of transmittal. Six statements incorrect. Six of Gardner's statements were especially stressed as incorrect. These were:

(1)—That the president and prime minister, MacDonald of England, had "admittedly" reached agreements never divulged in their entirety;

(2)—That the administration refused to allow even an executive session of the senate foreign relations committee to see the full record of negotiations preparatory to the London naval conference;

(3)—That Mr. Hoover in 1929 delayed the building of the first five of fifteen cruisers just ordered by congress as a gesture preparatory to the naval conference not commensurately followed by other powers;

(4)—That Gardner termed an obvious inference from a speech by Hugh R. Wilson, minister to Switzerland, that Mr. Hoover under the one year naval holiday just begun intends to forego treaty rights to the construction of 87,600 tons of naval vessels;

(5)—That the committee saw as an implication in Gardner's statement that the Washington treaty established a ratio of 10 to 6 in all classes of naval vessels between America and Japan;

(6)—And what was regarded as an implication by Gardner that the ratios established by the London treaty are effective prior to Dec. 1, 1936.

Hoover's Message
 Answering the first point, concerning secret agreements, the committee used as refutation quotations from President Hoover's message to congress, July, 1930, denying similar charges; a joint statement issued by President Hoover and Premier MacDonald at the close of their rapid conversations and the Stimson denunciation of Gardner's attack made Oct. 30, two days after the Navy league pamphlet was issued.

Refuses Senate's Demand
 On the second point it again took as evidence the message to congress of the president, refusing the senate's demand for withheld papers but agreeing to let any senator see the papers if he would keep them confidential.

As to the third, it pointed out that three and not five cruisers were delayed; that the postponement was matched by a similar British announcement, and that construction was allowed to proceed within the time specified by congress.

Irene Brady, 103 1/2 W. Burlington, Mrs. Edward Brady, 618 Rindell street, and Ira Glassman, 421 S. Dodge street, attended the Nebraska-Iowa game.

Northwestern Continues March Over Title Road; Whips Minnesota 32-14

Last Quarter Scoring Riot Nets 3 Goals

Wildcats Come From Behind; Trail at Half 14-7

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 7 (AP)—It's all over now except the shouting for Northwestern.

The undefeated Wildcats of Northwestern, the same team that held Notre Dame to a scoreless tie, mowed down Minnesota 32 to 14 in a fourth period scoring riot before a Homecoming crowd of 48,000 persons today, and as good as won the 1931 championship of the Western conference. Only the comparatively easy Iowa and Indiana teams remain in the path of the Wildcats for undisputed championship honors.

In the most dramatic game played in the Big Ten this season, Northwestern, trailing 14 to 0 at one time, came back to score five touchdowns, and eliminate the Gophers, the only other undefeated crew in the title race.

For the greater part of the first half Northwestern, surprised by Minnesota's score on the first four plays of the game, was outplayed and overwhelmed. Before the Wildcats could get their bearings, Minnesota had crashed over with another touchdown. But in the fourth period the Wildcats turned the game into a dramatic victory.

"Pug" Runs 95 Yards

The first half ended with Minnesota leading 14 to 7. At the start of the third period "Pug" Rentner, Northwestern's flashy left halfback, grabbed the opening kickoff of the third period, and slashed his way 95 yards in a thrilling touchdown run. Ollie Olson, the great Northwestern kicker, failed to drop kick the point to tie the score, but this omission failed to cause a ripple.

With the start of the fourth period, the second play, a tricky forward passing formation, resulted in another surprise touchdown for Northwestern and started the rout of the Gophers.

Running behind the line of scrimmage Olson tossed a forward pass to French, who heaved a short lateral pass to Johnny Sullivan, coming in to the game as replacement for Meenan at left halfback for Northwestern. Sullivan, shooting close to the side lines, galloped 45 yards to score. That gallop put Northwestern in the lead 21 to 14.

Like Melting Snow

After that, Minnesota's defense faded like melting snow. Olson intercepted a pass and ran 55 yards for a touchdown, and then Rentner caught a punt on his own 20 yard line and dashed 80 yards for a touchdown that ended the scoring slaughter.

Minnesota started the scoring in a surprise attack with Somers, Minnesota quarterback, returning the kickoff 50 yards to Northwestern's 45 yard line. Manders then shot away at Northwestern's 18 yard line and on the next two plays broke through for a touchdown, kicking the goal from placement himself.

Olson's fumble near the end of the period paved the way for Minnesota's second touchdown. Gay, tackle, recovered for Minnesota on Northwestern's 25 yard line. Manders poked up eight yards and then a tricky pass, Uhl to Hass, placed the ball on Northwestern's two yard line. Somers advanced it a yard as the period ended, and on the first play of the second quarter Manders slashed through center for the touchdown, kicking the extra point. Then the Northwestern power began to function. The Wildcats marched from Minnesota's 33 yard line with Olson going over for the score, and kicking goal.

Yale Easily Wins

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 7 (AP)—Scoring two touchdowns in each period against its hopelessly outclassed opponent from the south, Yale today overwhelmed St. John's of Maryland, 62 to 0, in a game played before only 5,000 spectators, the smallest crowd ever to witness a football contest in the bowl.

Sportively Speaking

By Matt Melchiorre

Five of the nation's leading undefeated eleven kept up their early season pace with victories to open the last part of the present football season. Georgia, Northwestern, Notre Dame, Harvard, and Southern Methodist are still in the running.

A team that can come back in the last few minutes of play and overwhelm an opponent holding a lead from the start of the contest is truly a mighty one. That team is Northwestern. Throughout most of yesterday's game the Gophers outplayed their hosts, but a last period drive upset the visitors' aspirations for the Big Ten championship.

After yesterday's showing, Northwestern should wait through its remaining games with Indiana and Iowa. By comparative scores Northwestern is 52 points better than Iowa. Its a mighty good thing for the Hawkeyes that the Wildcats have a post-season charity game or Dick Hanley would have his men give everything in that last game.

A previously undefeated eleven tasted a loss when Notre Dame crushed an invading team from Pennsylvania university at the Yankee stadium. Southern Methodist players found the Texas Aggies more than they had bargained for and were content to win by a small margin.

Georgia, playing in cold weather, kept in the running for the national championship by just barely whipping New York university at the Yankee stadium. Southern Methodist players found the Texas Aggies more than they had bargained for and were content to win by a small margin.

Harvard did not gain much prestige in winning by a one point margin over Dartmouth. Columbia, not rated in Harvard's class, has beaten Dartmouth by a larger score this year. But Harvard's victory over the man who will in all likelihood be the 1931 all-American quarterback, Barry Wood, who threw a 45 yard pass for the touchdown and then droppicked the winning point, will step into Carideo's place.

Trojans Spill Stanford 19-0 Before 95,000

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 7 (AP)—Southern California advanced a long stride toward the Pacific Coast conference football championship by defeating Stanford, 19 to 0 today before a record crowd estimated at 95,000 persons.

The largest assembly to witness a football game in Los Angeles saw the Trojans of Southern California display a powerful attack with which the alert but less sturdy Indians from Stanford could not cope.

The players of Howard Jones and followers as well of Southern California awaited with fearsome anticipation some victory from Glenn Warner; and not until the game was over was the fear dissipated that the veteran "Pop" might begin at any minute to pull rabbits out of any available helmets.

Along College Grid Front

Pitt Kicks Tech 14-6

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7 (AP)—The University of Pittsburgh won the eighth city series game with Carnegie Tech here today, 14-6. Carnegie scored just before the game ended.

Georgia Still Unbeaten 7-6

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP)—Georgia kept its slate clean today by nosing out New York university, 7 to 6, on a 97 yard gallop for touchdown from kickoff by Buster Moore and a placekick by Catfish Smith. A crowd of 63,000 saw the Georgians stop N. Y. U. on their one yard line in the final period.

Fordham Whips Detroit 39-7

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP)—Scoring in every period and pushing three touchdowns across in the final quarter after their opponents had weakened, the powerful Fordham Rams defeated the University of Detroit, 39 to 7, before 20,000 fans. Captain Jim Murphy scored three of Fordham's touchdowns.

Aggies Spill Creighton 20-0

STILLWATER, Okla., Nov. 7 (AP)—Before a colorful Homecoming throng of 4,000 the Oklahoma Aggies won their only Missouri Valley conference game of the season by defeating Creighton, 20 to 0, here today.

Simpson Rally Wins 34-13

INDIANOLA, Nov. 7 (AP)—Simpson came back with a wild last half rally to parade through Morningside for a 34 to 13 victory in their Homecoming battle here today. The victory left Simpson in the running for the Iowa conference championship.

Luther Drubs U.L.U. 32-14

DECORAH, Nov. 7 (AP)—Luther ran rough shod over Upper Iowa university today to win its fourth Iowa conference victory, 32 to 14.

Wisconsin Edges Out 7-6 Win Over Illini; Michigan Beats Indiana 22-0

Linfor's Kick Proves Edge in Close Tilt

Intercepted Pass Paves Way for Illini Marker

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 7 (AP)—The Badgers of the University of Wisconsin rushed over a one-point victory today against the down-trodden University of Illinois, 7 to 6.

Playing for nothing but the honors of the day, both having suffered Western conference defeats, the teams battled through a scoreless first half. A Badger pass, from John Schneller to Joe Linfor, placed the ball on Illinois' five yard line early in the third period and Schneller bucked it over on the first down. Linfor, the hero of that long pass, kicked the all-important extra point that decided the game.

The Illini, beaten by Purdue, Michigan and Northwestern, bounced right back. Gil Berry intercepted a pass from the same Schneller and ran to midfield. Bob Horsley on the next play threw an aerial to Fullback Ed Schalk. He completed it and journeyed behind two blockers to a touchdown.

Horsley failed to convert for the extra point.

The game for the most part was a punting battle between Berry, Illini halfback, and Schneller. The Illini were successful in completing seven out of 14 passes attempted passes for a total gain of 85 yards. The Badgers tried six passes and connected once. Illinois intercepted three Badger passes.

Wisconsin made 10 first downs and Illinois five.

The first two periods and the second, took up the baton in the last half to roll up four more touchdowns.

Iowa State in Upset Victory Over Kansas

AMES, Nov. 7 (AP)—An Iowa State football team came back today from the depths of a three-year dependency to make a bid for the Big Six championship by defeating the previously undefeated Kansas Aggies, 7 to 6.

A placekick from the toe of Dick Grefe, lanky young halfback, after Kenneth Wells had gathered in a pass for a touchdown, was the margin that sent the Aggies into the ranks of the vanquished conference eleven. Nebraska, the Cyclones' only remaining Big Six foe, is the only other undefeated eleven in the conference.

The invaders scored in the initial period when Eldon Auker, faking a punt on third down, broke through his left tackle and raced 80 yards to a touchdown. His try for the extra point would have resulted in a tie was wide.

Iowa State scored in the second period. With the ball on the Aggie 44-yard line, Schafroth heaved a long pass 40 yards to Wells. Auker tried desperately to knock down the throw but just tipped the ball, knocking it into the hands of the fleet Cyclone end who raced unopposed to the goal line 10 yards away.

Two Upsets Change Complexions of Iowa Conference Title Race

By The Associated Press

A pair of rather startling upsets Saturday placed an entirely new complexion on the Iowa conference football championship race.

While Iowa Wesleyan was known to have a strong team, its victory over St. Ambrose 17 to 14 came as a distinct surprise as the fast-stepping Saints appeared to be well along the road to the conference title.

Simpson had made a relatively better showing against Iowa State than Morningside did, but nevertheless the Sioux City eleven was not expected to take the 32 to 13 jolt it suffered.

As a result of these two games, Iowa Wesleyan, Simpson and Central remain in the undefeated class.

Wesleyan has the easiest task ahead of it. Conference games with Upper Iowa and Parsons and a non-conference battle with Culver-Stockton.

California Down Huskies

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 7 (AP)—Fighting with a fury that brooked no opposition, California's Bears captured a spectacularly close game into a second half rout today to defeat Washington's Huskies, 13-0 in the twenty-seventh annual renewal of football hostilities between these old time rivals.

Gridders Can't Get Loose; Score, 7-6

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 6 (AP)—The boys of New Hampshire state prison went down to defeat today in their first football game of this or any season, on probably the oddest gridiron in the land. The score was Penacook Panthers 7, New Hampshire State Prison 6.

Tutors Lose 14-0

CEDAR FALLS, Nov. 7 (AP)—Western State Teachers of Kalama, Mich., scored two touchdowns in the final period today to register a 14 to 0 victory over the Iowa State Teachers.

Who Can Stop Them Now? Those rampant Wildcats who spotted Minnesota 14 points in their Homecoming game at Dye stadium, Evanston yesterday afternoon and then cut loose in the second and fourth periods to register a 32 to 14 victory.

Scarlet, Gray Smash Navy Craft 20 to 0

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 7 (AP)—The Navy dreadnaught limped to ward home port at Annapolis tonight, badly battered from 60 minutes of tossing on Ohio State rocks. The Buckeyes trimmed the Midshipmen, 20 to 0, before a Homecoming crowd of 60,000 persons who refused to leave despite rain, sleet and hail.

Razorbacks, Chicago Tie in 13-13 Tilt

CHICAGO, Nov. 7 (AP)—Arkansas turned loose a greased razorback, Fullback Ledbetter, who alighted through Chicago's line for two touchdowns in the final period today to earn a 13 to 13 tie with the Maroons in their inter-sectional football game.

The fourth period had a crowd of 12,000 in an unaccustomed state of excitement. Vinson Sahlin, Chicago sophomore halfback ace, had given the Maroons a 13 to 0 lead with touchdowns in the second and third quarters, when the Razorbacks, who had tossed passes all over the place for three periods with varying success, suddenly came back to earth.

Last Minute Rally Brings Harvard Win

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 7 (AP)—After being checked for 56 minutes by a band of hard-fighting Dartmouth Indians today, Captain Barry Wood rallied his stumbling Harvard forces just long enough to put over a touchdown with one of his amazing aerial miracles, and then droppicked the vital point that gave the undefeated Crimson a 7 to 6 victory.

Carleton Beats Coe at Homecoming 33-2

NORTHFIELD, Minn., Nov. 7 (AP)—Carleton college's 1931 football team delighted a huge Homecoming crowd today with a well earned 33 to 2 victory over Coe college.

Cornell Pushes Knox Out of Title Race 9-0

GALESBURG, Ill., Nov. 7 (AP)—Cornell college of Iowa tossed Knox out of the Midwest conference football race today by handing the Siwashers a 9 to 0 defeat before a Dad's day crowd.

Aerial Barrage Nets Pioneers 25 to 0 Win Over Washington U.

GRINNELL, Nov. 7 (AP)—Hank Thomas shot passes all over the Grinnell gridiron today to sail the Pioneers to a 25 to 0 victory over Washington University of St. Louis in their first Missouri Valley conference battle today.

Iowa Wesleyan Nips Saints in 17-14 Win

MT. PLEASANT, Nov. 7 (AP)—Iowa Wesleyan turned back a desperate St. Ambrose aerial attack in the closing minutes of the game here today to win 17 to 14.

Iowa Harriers' Jinx Ends; Beat Chicago 25-30 in Final Duel

(Special to The Daily Iowan) CHICAGO, Nov. 7—University of Iowa cross country team wound up the dual meet season with a 25 to 30 victory over University of Chicago here today. The run was held in Washington park over a three mile course.

Superior teamwork on the part of the Hawkeyes overcame whatever advantages the Maroons secured when they took first place. Capt. Howard Wickey, placing second, was the first Iowa man to finish. Time of the race was 16 minutes, 23 seconds.

Boilermakers Batter Down Dixie's Gents

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 7 (AP)—Outlasted in everything but courage Centenary college went down to an overwhelming defeat before the Purdue football team in an inter-sectional encounter here today 49 to 6.

Purdue Hammers Out 49-0 Victory Over Centenary

The Boilermakers smashed through the Gentlemen's line repeatedly, intercepted their forward passes and, when they gained the ball themselves, ran rampant behind beautiful interference.

Centenary scored its only touchdown in the first three minutes of the game.

The ball went into Centenary's possession when Yunevich, Purdue fullback, fumbled on his own 29 yard line. A forward pass, Womack to Osbore, was good for 23 yards and Oslin went over.

Purdue scored a few minutes later when Yunevich intercepted a pass on the 34 yard line and ran for a touchdown. The Boilermakers added seven more points in the second period when Hecker, Pardonner, Purvis and the hard-hitting Horstman smashed the Centenary line to shreds. Purvis made the next touchdown and Hecker the point from placement.

The final period was a rout, with Pardonner intercepting a Centenary pass and dashing 90 yards for a touchdown, and Yunevich running 89 yards from scrimmage to count. It was the second touchdown of the period for Pardonner. Risk counted the fourth touchdown in the final 15 minutes of play.

Purdue gained 449 yards from scrimmage and made 19 first downs. Centenary gained 226 yards and made nine first downs.

Army Trims Tigers 20-0 at West Point

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 7 (AP)—A stubborn, colorful band of Tigers from Louisiana State, clad in purple and backed by all the loyalty of the state, gave Army a tussle today before bowing, 20 to 0, before a crowd of 15,000.

Far more powerful, with a multitude of reserves, the cadets scored in each of the first three periods and forced the Tigers to stop a final march on downs on the seven yard line in the final quarter.

Louisiana tried even the "shoe string" dodge and the "statue of liberty" trick to no avail.

Carleton Beats Coe at Homecoming 33-2

NORTHFIELD, Minn., Nov. 7 (AP)—Carleton college's 1931 football team delighted a huge Homecoming crowd today with a well earned 33 to 2 victory over Coe college.

The Kohawks who have not registered a touchdown this year staved off the Carleton team until late in the game when the Coe passing attack failed and the Carls capitalized on it.

Cornell Pushes Knox Out of Title Race 9-0

GALESBURG, Ill., Nov. 7 (AP)—Cornell college of Iowa tossed Knox out of the Midwest conference football race today by handing the Siwashers a 9 to 0 defeat before a Dad's day crowd.

The Iowans scored a safety in the second period when Captain Center of Knox stepped out of the end zone while punting behind his own goal. In the third period Crosby, a substitute back, circled end for a touchdown after Griffen's pass to Watson had put the ball in scoring territory. It was Knox's first conference defeat.

Wolverine End Stars; Hoosiers Fail to Threaten

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 7 (AP)—A hopeful but dubious football team from Hoosierland seeking its second conference victory of the season came to Ann Arbor today, caught the University of Michigan eleven at the top of its stride, and went down tamely to a 22 to 0 defeat.

Some 25,000 spectators saw the game.

Ivan Williamson, an "all A" student who finds time to play football, was the star of the game. Williamson, an end, broke through early in the opening period to block the Indiana fullback's punt, the ball bounding into the end zone for a safety.

Fay Scores

Roy Hudson, Michigan's halfback captain, then ran Jones' punt back to the Hoosier 20 yard line and Stanley Fay sneaked around right end for the first touchdown. The kick for extra point was good.

Harry Newman, Michigan's passing ace went in at quarterback in the third period, tossed the ball to Williamson for a 43-yard gain, and Williamson trotted the ten yards necessary for another goal. Newman's kick failed.

Another forward pass, Newman to Hewitt, late in the final period, was good for 15 yards and a touchdown.

Numerous Penalties

Throughout the game Michigan's attack was hampered by numerous and costly penalties, repeatedly being penalized for roughness. Even then, the Wolverine backs gained at will through the Hoosier forward wall.

The Hoosiers failed to make a sustained drive at any time during the game, but when they were in danger of being scored upon the line would hold. All of the Michigan touchdowns came after long gains.

Stocks Jump 1 to 5 Points in Big Day

Slow Revival in Steel Noted by Reports of Industries

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP)—Sparks from the grain and silver markets touched off a flare of bullishness in stocks today.
Trading was active, for shorts felt the pinch of rising prices, but the large volume of profit-taking that proceeded under cover of the rally kept the average advance slightly below yesterday's.
The turnover of 2,033,260 shares was the largest for a Saturday in nearly two months and exceeded the volume for any full session this week with the exception of Friday.
Friday Highs Stimulate Bulls
Bulls were stimulated not only by the action of commodities but by the fact that the market yesterday had gone through the previous highs of the recovery. Thus encouraged, operators for the advance worked strenuously with their favorites and final prices were roughly 1 to 5 points higher. Oil and metal issues kept in the spotlight, although the food, steel and chemical groups were also strong.
Further evidence of a slow revival in steel operations was associated with reports that automobile manufacturers were stepping up production schedules, and gave support to a belief that October had seen the bottom of the depression in the steel industry where expanding activity has already brought an increase in employment.
Bar Silver Advances
The speculative appetite for mining shares was stimulated by the fractional advance in bar silver to 34 3/8 cents an ounce here, despite a decline at London, American Smelting, International Silver and Homestake were leaders. Firmer gasoline prices influenced the oils, although that group quieted down in the latter trading.
Bethlehem Steel was a feature, rising 3 points. U. S. Steel's extreme gain was 4 points, but this was cut to 2 3/8 in the profit-taking which shaded most prices at the close. American Telephone reduced a 3 1/2 point rise to 2 3/8 and American Can yielded part of a similar extreme gain. Coca Cola, Allied Chemical, Ingersoll Rand, Electric Auto-Lite, Union Pacific and Du Pont were up 3 to 4 while Atchafalpa's gain was 5. Numerous rails joined a wide assortment of industrials.

Errors in Selection of Foshay Jury; Order Change in Procedure

ST. PAUL, Nov. 7 (AP)—A change in procedure of federal court jury selection was ordered today as a result of revelations in connection with the disagreement in the mail fraud case of W. B. Foshay and six associates.
J. M. Dickey, federal court clerk for the state, ordered that permanent records be kept of persons submitting names of prospective jurors.
Court officials have been unable to determine how the name of Mrs. Genevieve A. Clark was included in the Foshay panel. Mrs. Clark, who alone held out for acquittal, must show Monday why she should not be judged in contempt of court.
The government charges that before becoming a juror she failed to reveal former employment by the Foshay company.
Norway Professors Visit Luther College
DECORAH, Nov. 7 (AP)—Two professors from the University of Oslo, Norway, were guests of Luther college today, their primary purpose being to gather information regarding Norwegian dialects.

Audience of 200 Sees First in Series of Children's Plays

Before a combined audience of more than 200 persons for the two showings, "All Baba and the Forty Thieves," the first in a series of children's plays, was presented at 2 p.m., and again at 8:30 p.m., yesterday in the Iowa Union studio.
By popular request, the play will be repeated next Saturday at 2:30 p.m., in the Iowa Union studio.
Staged under the auspices of the university theater, the play was under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Mary Young, who was assisted by Warren Lee, G of Iowa City, technical director of the university theater. The production staff for the play, as well as the cast, was made up entirely of Iowa City children.
Maurice Fofal, as All Baba, the merchant, and Carolyn Trowbridge, as the wife of All Baba, played the parts of the poor couple, who through the accidental discovery by All Baba of a robber's cache, were made fabulously rich.
J. W. Guy, in taking the part of Cassim All Baba's brother, was rather handicapped by the fact that the play required Cassim to be murdered in the second act. The part of Mrs. Cassim was taken by Mary Woodward.

University Museum Adds African Lion to Mammal Group

One of the lions which Harry Bremer brought back with him from Africa will soon find its permanent home in the university museum. Members of the museum staff are working on the mounting of it now and will place it in mammal hall as soon as it is finished.
The animal, which is three and a half years old, died during the hot weather last summer at the city park. Its mate is still living at the park.
Mr. Bremer bought the lions from some children in Africa while he was touring the world in 1929. They were four month old cubs at the time, weighing only 15 pounds.

What About Freedom?

ANNOUNCEMENTS were made recently at the University of California and the University of Illinois that women students have been freed from the strict hours imposed many years ago, the hours for week end nights at the California school being extended until 2:15 a. m. In an editorial reprinted this morning in the magazine section of THE DAILY IOWAN, the editor of the Trojan, University of Southern California daily, commends this action.

"This up-to-date policy is consistent with ideas on the ability of the modern girl to take care of herself could well be adopted by other leading universities," this editor writes.

At Iowa, women students are keeping the same hours their mothers would have kept if they had been students here, obeying a ruling passed long before the day of the movies, automobiles and public dances. Week nights, they must leave the library nearly half an hour before it closes in order to hurry to their sorority houses or dormitory by 10 o'clock.

The ruling is certainly the thing for freshman or sophomore girls, away from home for the first time, still young enough to need strict supervision. But, it seems to be a flout to upperclass women, many of them of age, who are trusted by their parents at home to return home at a sensible hour. Girls, who have made their own way in the world, many of them, find themselves bound by rules that their parents abandoned for them years before.

There is a moral issue, perhaps, concerned. But, college women by the time they are juniors or seniors have formed their ideals; they can, as the Trojan editor suggests, "take care of themselves." A woman who is trusted is more apt to develop into a woman of character than a woman who is held under constant suspicion.

Most college women are serious about their studies—a scholastic delinquency could rapidly weed out the others—those who fall down in their studies could be deprived of their social privileges.

College is not alone preparing for life, it is living it. The women who leave school to marry or go into business or some profession should go out as reliable, dependable characters—and the University of California and the University of Illinois have started in on the right way to build such characters—by trusting "the ability of the modern girl to take care of herself."

The Tax Game

TAXES MOVE only one way—always forward.

They crash through the taxpayers' line for gain upon gain. The official who can throw them for a loss is usually found only in the federal government. Where trimmings are made in that department of taxation, gains are often made in local and state assessments that more than make up for the federal setback.

Concurrent with the announcement from Washington, D. C., by President Herbert Hoover that he had slashed 350 million dollars off the federal government budget comes reports of an impending uprising of taxpayers in New York city. The budgets of America's foremost metropolis have "grown like Jack's bean stalk," it is reported.

Uncollected tax levies aggregate $121,000,000 for the city. Increases in taxes have amounted to $14,000,000 in the past year. New York city is on the brink of bankruptcy—as Chicago was during the last two years. American cities have leaped upward in size and power to an extent that they are almost uncontrollable. Frequently, men able to handle the affairs of great metropolitan cities are not in office.

If the federal government can pare the federal budget down by 350 million dollars, it seems there is no reason for a 14 million dollar budget-fattening in New York city.

Hoover, in his recommended budget for the fiscal year 1933 which will be sent to congress this season, has made this tremendous cut through his policy of rigid economy. There will be adequate funds for all necessary functions and projects of the federal government.

What does it profit the taxpayer to have federal expenses boiled down if the local and state governments are to keep adding new and higher levies.

The state of Illinois finds itself hard pressed for cash. As the state legislature convenes nine of every 10 legislators has his own plans of raising more money. Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has declared that he is opposed to any tax levies. The administrations of President Calvin Coolidge and Hoover have furnished a strong secondary defense, but the line of state and local governments needs reinforcing somewhere if it is to resist the line plunging tactics of graft and waste.

Cooperative Service

A NEWSPAPER which serves students and those primarily interested in students has not fulfilled its complete obligation until it has provided its readers with news of significant trends on other university campuses where interests and activities follow the same general lines.

In order to better accomplish this end THE DAILY IOWAN has entered into a reciprocal agreement whereby Western conference schools, bound together geographically and athletically, will exchange news weekly. This Big Ten News Service was organized by The Daily Cardinal of the University of Wisconsin, and it has now achieved a point of organization which will permit a maximum of inter-campus service for readers of each school.

The Daily Cardinal deserves commendation for its aggressiveness, and other Big Ten editors deserve thanks for their cooperation in keeping Iowa City informed upon trends in other parts of the collegiate world.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

"Think as I think," said a man,
"Or you are abominably wicked;
You are a toad."

And after I had thought of it,
I said, "I will, then, be a toad."

"Toads" Stephen Crane would call them in his "Collected Poems"; Nelson Antrim Crawford calls them "Goddesses of Learning" in the American Mercury for November, which is almost as good (or bad).

Of course, they may not have conjured up similar connotations, but Crane explains how men are brothers under the skin; Crawford tells of sisters under the pin.

Crawford, B. A. Iowa, present editor of Household Magazine, author of "Ethics of Journalism," "The Healthy-Minded Child," etc., writes about the little known side of sororities, especially of their origin, metamorphoses, aspirations, and what of them.

The I. C. Sorosis, later to become Pi Beta Phi, "burst upon the world, and at once began to scatter chapters like stars," he relates, when in 1867, some bright United Presbyterian girl at Monmouth college in Illinois felt that she could insure her sisters of superior intellectual achievements "better and more frequent necking than fell to the lot of the loud and uneducated young women of the town." Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, at some later date, became a selling point of that organization.

"Today there are 40 national sororities with a membership, living and departed, of about 250,000," Crawford estimates. In comparison, there are 89 male fraternities, with 800,000 members. In 1929, the sororities owned a total of 527 houses valued at $18,000,000—just one-fourth the valuation of fraternity homes.

This, Mr. Crawford suggests, may be due to the fact that "many a loyal fraternity alumnus, who will gladly spend $500 on liquor and poker every time he goes back to alma mater for a game of football, begrudges his wife $50 to help build a house for her sorority."

Zeta Tau Alpha, you know, originally bore the "diverting title" of the Three Question Mark Girls, while Phi Omega Pi, which once admitted to its ranks only women "whose fathers, brothers, grandfathers, husbands, or uncles of blood relationship are Masons in good standing," originally was known as Aethoth, a Hebrew word for sister and the badge bore Hebrew characters. "But despite the large number of Jews in the Masonic order," the writer adds, "it developed a complex against being mistaken for a Jewish sisterhood and altered its name."

Money, Crawford admits, does help in the selection of sisters, and social standing counts for a good deal. Wealth adds prestige, anyway, but "girls don't eat so much as men, so their board bills are lower, and with few exceptions they depend on their boy friends for what gin they consume."

The writer goes on to reveal that "attractiveness to the boys, however, probably stands first among assets by a prospective sorority girl. Nothing gives any girl's organization a more envied reputation on the campus than for its members to be present at the formal dances of the leading fraternities and for the house and the porch on Sunday nights to be thronged with petting couples."

But sororities, at least some of them, have amounted to something in a national way, even if some local chapters exploit the sisterhood to individual advantage, and Crawford is loud in his praise of their accomplishments.

Gamma Phi Beta, for instance, maintains a summer camp for underprivileged children; Zeta Tau Alpha operates a health center in Currin Valley, Va.; Delta Zeta has a community center comprising school, community house, and dormitory at Vest, Ky.; Kappa Delta has for 10 years supported a ward in the Crippled Children's hospital of Richmond, Va.; Sigma Kappa plays Santa Claus to some 1,000 children on the Maine coast; Pi Beta Phi maintains an institution with 10 grades, nine teachers, and 170 pupils at Gatlinburg, Tenn.; Alpha Chi Omega has built a music studio at the MacDowell colony at Peterboro, N. H.

And he closes his interesting story with the observation that "Socialism and other advanced movements have a good deal of support even among undergraduate sorority members. . . . If I were a Socialist, I should assert that this is due to the girls having more brains; in point of fact, they probably have."

The New Bridge in Paris is the Oldest Bridge in Paris
The construction of the New Bridge (Pont Neuf) in Paris was begun May 31, 1587, in the presence of King Henry III, and it was completed in 1604 in the presence of King Henry IV. At the time of the construction, Paris had only two other bridges, the Pont au Change and the Petit Pont, both wooden structures, which were destroyed by fire shortly after. The Pont Neuf was the center of Paris city life in the first centuries of its existence, and it was said in those days that "you can always see on the bridge a white horse, a lady, and a monk."

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—As soon as her picture is completed, Lil Dagover, Warner's German star, will return to her native land to appear in a stage play.

This doesn't necessarily mean she is through with Hollywood. Her first American talkie, "The Captain's Wife," is being rushed onto the screen so studio officials can see how the public will take her.

If the film is a success, Warner will exercise their option for three more. In the meantime, rather than be idle in Hollywood, Miss Dagover has accepted the German stage contract.

At the time of her arrival in New York, Warner provided the star with a personal publicity man and there was much blowing of trumpets. Walter Huston appeared opposite her in her Hollywood talkie and Michael Curtiz directed.

TERRIBLE THOUGHT
Now that John Hertz, the Yellow Cab king, is on the Paramount board of directors, "The Captain's Wife," says the studio writers are in a panic for fear he'll put meters on their typewriters.

I HEARD TODAY
John M. Stahl and Roxanne Ray pulled a surprise on their friends. They left for the east, accompanied by the bride to be's mother and father. . . . The wedding will take place in Chicago or in New York. . . . Patsy Ruth Miller is up and around now. She is trying to get the doctor to allow her to return to work. . . . Herbert Brennon is wondering who left a gold watch at his house Sunday. . . . George Hill is back from Reno, a free man. He and Frances Marion were married about a year and a half. . . . Both Walter Huston and his ex-wife are living in the same Beverly Hills apartment hotel. . . . Have a card from Lilyan Tashman and Ed Love. They were in Potsdam and headed for Budapest. . . . The public stares at the stars but you should have seen the film celebrities peer when they made their first appearance in the M. G. M. commissary. . . . Jackie Coogan's mama has lost 35 pounds on a diet.

MALIBU HAS TOURNAMENT
Out of a starting group of 30 couples, Gilbert Roland and Bonnie Miller fought their way to first place in the Herbert Brennon tennis tournament at Malibu. Miss Miller is only 15 years old, but is the national junior doubles champion. She and Roland won five matches, eliminating Buddy De Sylva and Carolyn Babcock in the semi-finals, and Ralph Inco and Elizabeth Deike in the finals. The winning score was 6-2, 6-2.

A gallery, comprising many famous stars, watched the tournament, which began at 9 a. m., and was not concluded until after 5:30 p. m. All the tennis courts in the Malibu Beach Colony were used, but deciding matches were played at Brennon's own court at Peter Pan Cottage.

Among the film people you might have seen had you been at the tournament were Norma Talmadge (who still isn't thing of pictures), Dick Barthelmess and his wife, Jessica William Powell and Carole Lombard; Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon (Bebe still looks a little pale from her illness); Anna Q. Nilsson (looking fine); Cedric Gibbons and Dolores Del Rio (Dolores finishes "The Dove" today and starts "The Bird of Paradise" in three weeks); Robert Montgomery; Warner Baxter; Dave Butler (linesman in the tennis matches); Gertrude Olmstead and Bob Leonard; Joan Marsh and Lefty Coby; Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Clesoff and dozens of others.

"Hardest fought match of the day" was between Gilbert Roland and Bonnie Miller and Buddy De Sylva and Caroline Babcock.

FISH PREFERRED

Synopsis of Preceding Instalments
Ronald Fish, nephew of Lord Emsworth of Blandings Castle, is in love with Sue Brown, a chorus girl.

spend the whole day bouncing tennis balls on their backs?
Ronnie gulped. "Eh?" he said feebly.

Ronnie Fish's aimlessly wandering feet had taken him westward. It was not long, accordingly, before there came to his nostrils a familiar and penetrating odor, and he found that he was within a short distance of the detached residence employed by Empress of Blandings as a com- modious bedroom and restaurant.

"I saw you! I was on my way to the pigery and I saw you bouncing your infernal tennis balls on my pig's back. Tennis balls!"

Everybody likes to see somebody eating. Ronnie leaned over the rail, absorbed. He poised the tennis ball with an absent-minded flick of the wrist bounced it on the silver medallion's back. Finding the pleasant, ponging sound which resulted soothing to harassed nerves, he did it again.

"What's the good of being sorry?"
"I never thought—"

How would this be, for instance? If there was one thing calculated to appeal to his Uncle Clarence, to induce in his Uncle Clarence a really melting mood, it was the announcement that somebody desired to return to the land.

"Here! What is all this?"
It was the Hon. Galahad who had spoken, and he had spoken peevishly. Working in the small library with the door ajar, he had found the babble of voices interfering with literary composition and, justifiably annoyed, had come to investigate.

"I say, Uncle Clarence," he said, prancing into the library some half-hour later.
Lord Emsworth looked up, his eye not any too chummy. This, however, did not disturb Ronnie. That eye, he was confident, would melt anon.

"Can't you do your reading some time when I'm not working, Clarence?" he said. "What's all the trouble about?"

"I say, Uncle Clarence," he said, prancing into the library some half-hour later.
Lord Emsworth looked up, his eye not any too chummy. This, however, did not disturb Ronnie. That eye, he was confident, would melt anon.

"I refuse to allow you to call the Empress a blasted pig! Good heavens!" cried Lord Emsworth passionately. "Can none of my family appreciate the fact that she is the most remarkable animal in Great Britain? No pig in the whole annals of the Shropshire Agricultural Show has ever won the silver medal two years in succession. And that, if only people will leave her alone and refrain from incessantly pelting her with tennis balls, is what the Empress is quite certain to do. It is an unheard-of feat!"

He had not expected the eye to melt yet, and it did not. Seen through the glass of his uncle's pince-nez it looked like an oyster in an aquarium.

"The Hon. Galahad shook his head reprovingly. It was all very well, he felt, a stable being optimistic about its amine, but he was a man who could face facts. In a long and checkered life he had seen so many good things unstuck. Besides, he had his superstitions, and one of those was that counting your chickens in advance brought bad luck.

"I wish to start another night club?"
Lord Emsworth's voice was cold, and Ronnie hastened to disabuse him of the idea.

"I bless my soul!" said Lord Emsworth, deeps impressed. "Let me tell you about young Parsloe. One or two of us used to meet at the Black Footman in Gossett street in the old days—they've pulled it down now—and match our dogs against rats in the room behind the bar. Well, I put my Towser up against young Parsloe's Banjo on one occasion for a hundred pounds a side. And when the night came and he was shown the rats I'm dashed if he didn't just give a long yawn and roll over and go to sleep. I whistled him—called him—Towser, Towser!—No good—fast asleep. And my belief has always been that young Parsloe took him aside just before the contest was to start and gave him about six pounds of steak and onions. Couldn't prove anything, of course, but it sniffed the dog's breath, and it was like opening the kitchen door of a Soho chop-house on a summer night. That's the sort of man young Parsloe is."

"I want to breed pigs," he said reverently.
Something was wrong. There was no blinking the fact any longer. So far from leaping in the air and showering gold, his uncle merely stared at him in an increasingly unpleasant manner.

"I bless my soul!" said Lord Emsworth, deeps impressed. "Let me tell you about young Parsloe. One or two of us used to meet at the Black Footman in Gossett street in the old days—they've pulled it down now—and match our Expenditures for world travel are estimated by the American automobile association to total $7,500,000 annually.

DEMPSEY K.O.'S 1,200 POUND MOOSE

Maybe this is further evidence of his comeback attempt—at any rate here's Ex-Champion Jack Dempsey after his most recent knockout—a 1,200-pound moose. He hit the Wyoming trails in search of big game with a party that included Gov. Fred Balzar of Nevada.

promise of higher wages." Lord Emsworth's expression had now become positively ferocious. The thought of George Cyril Wellbeloved, that perjured pig man, always made the iron enter into his soul.
The Hon. Galahad whistled. "So that's it, is it? Parsloe's pig man going about offering three to one—against the form book, I take it?"

One Hundred Six Cases Filed For November Court in Johnson County

13 Petitions for Divorce on New List

Judge Harold Evans to Preside at New Session

By BOB BROWNELL

One hundred and six new cases have been filed in the county clerk's office with Walter J. Barrow, clerk of the district court, for the November term of court before Harold D. Evans. This number is less than half the number filed with the clerk for the September term of court.

Thirteen of the 166 cases filed are petitions for divorce, representing a medium average.

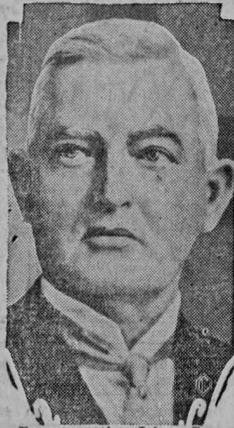

Term Starts Nov. 16

The November term of court starts Monday, Nov. 16, with grand jurors appearing at the jury room at 2 p. m. at the Johnson county court house. Petit jurors will report for the first time on the second Monday of the term at 2 p. m., Nov. 23.

Judge Harold D. Evans, who has been presiding judge during the September term of court in Johnson county at the new term of court.

Judge R. G. Popham of Marengo, presiding judge here during the September term of court, will open the November term of court in Marengo tomorrow.

Probable Speaker

Representative John Garner of Texas (above), leader of the Democratic party in the House, will be the next speaker of that body if the present strength of the two major parties is not materially changed by elections which are yet to be held. The Democrats gained control in recent polls. Rep. Garner and the late speaker, Nicholas Longworth, were close friends.

With Iowa City Churches Presbyterian Pastor Will Attend Round Table Conference of Church at Cedar Rapids

The Rev. William P. Lemon, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will attend the pastors' round table conference under the direction of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education, Philadelphia, Pa., at Cedar Rapids, tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday. Representative Presbyterian pastors from Iowa have been invited to attend.

The pastor leading his own church in Christian endeavor will be the theme for the seven-session round table which will cover three days of intensive study and discussion. The Rev. Edward P. Westphal, director of adult education for the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education, will conduct the meetings, assisted by the Rev. J. S. Armentrout, director of leadership training.

Topics for the meetings, which will begin tomorrow at 2 p. m., and end Wednesday, at 2 p. m., are "What is the educational function and responsibility of the church?" "What should be the church's purpose in education?" "What shall be the content of the church's program of Christian education?" "How shall the church discover, enlist, and train a more adequate leadership?" "How shall the church be organized for effective Christian education?" and "What is the minister's place in Christian education?"

Stevens Criticizes Hoover's Proposal of Reduced Budget

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 7 (AP)—Henry L. Stevens, Jr., national commander of the American Legion, today said "It's poor economy to leave our nation defenseless on the sea." He criticized reduced budgets proposed by President Hoover.

"The Legion," Stevens said, "is committed to campaign in the next congress for maintenance of the United States navy to the standards of the London pact." He was here for a conference with officials of the Nebraska department of the Legion.

"I'm for a shipbuilding program that will give us the strength planned in the London pact," Stevens asserted in an interview. "It would furnish work for many men, helping to relieve unemployment and restore our defense to a sound position."

He also expressed a desire to see the strength of the army increased to 12,000 active officers.

Hidden Prayer

By John Henderson

THE man in the gray suit watched her casually as she picked her way through rifts in the crowd that jammed Wilkins' department store on the Saturday morning of the "Golden Jubilee Sale—50 years of service behind these tremendous values."

The man had been abstractedly fingering pastel shaded ties on a rack that stood by the elevator, but he quite unconsciously allowed himself to stare as the little figure rustled past him, elevator bound.

She was probably Mexican, he observed. He had a mid-westerner's distrust of Mexicans as a species which belonged somewhere south of the Rio Grande and which sometimes mingled with civilization for questionable purposes.

The man was not inordinately tall, but it occurred to him that she could probably stand on her tiptoes under his outstretched arm without touching it. She was dressed in black, her odd little feathered hat was black, and the man suspected that under her copious folds of skirt and petticoat, which brushed the floor as she passed, there would be black stockings and shoes.

As he sauntered into the jammed elevator behind her, he kept a speculative eye on his wrist watch, and when the car stopped at the third floor and the woman slipped out, he had not yet seen her face.

THE Mexican woman appeared to lose her sureness of direction after leaving the car. She wandered aimlessly down the long aisles piled high on either side with fascinating displays of Persian rugs, dining room suites, and upholstered furniture. The man noticed that she seemed timid, appeared to have lost her way. He walked down an aisle on the far side of the floor completed a three quarters circle around the phonograph counter at the end and stopped at the nook in the center of the room which was partitioned off for radio supplies.

As he turned the dials of one of the radios on display, he glanced again at the woman in black, coming toward him now with a nervous step. He saw her face, crinkly, like yellow paper, her small black eyes fixed upon him intently. He smiled reassuringly, sincerely, for the bluish lips made a thin line that had a pathetic droop on either end, and as he glanced away he reflected that the senora must be always hungry or always cold to look so deucedly frail and pinched.

"That woman gives me the creeps," commented the clerk, without ceasing a vigorous polishing of the console set. "Worked here once scrubbin' out and got canned last fall when they had the big layoff. Comes up every once in a while to look at the furniture and stuff."

"Prob'ly won't do any harm to let her look around."

The clerk sat down on an ornamental foot stool. "Got a cigaret, Leyden?"

Leyden proffered his pack and taking a cigaret for himself, produced matches and sank into a davenport across the aisle. "Snap working up here. No crowds, quiet as hell, nothing much to do. Wish I had your job. It's no fun playin' football with those bims at the bargain counters."

TO THE right of the elevator doors was an arched aperture which led into Wilkins' art department and as Leyden finished his cigaret and stood up he noticed the Mexican scrub woman, standing in the archway. She was quite motionless, her body tense, looking straight down the rectangular, low ceilinged room at the paintings hanging in even rows on the walls and the triple-shelved center table covered with glass ware, pottery and vases.

Suddenly she darted into the room, out of Leyden's sight.

He picked his way across the furniture-strewn room and followed her into the gallery.

A Lost City

*Gay old dowager
Squatting on the hill!
Your voluminous petticoats
Trail along the river-banks
And drag in the mire.
In winter they are white,
Fringed with lacy trees,
Fluted ruffles of snow
That the soot polka-dots
And the river licks hungrily*

*Gay old dowager
Looking toward the sea—
You sit and blink
Through a veil of mist,
While pygmies scramble in your lap
To tear the gold buttons from your dress
And mount with them
Up to that cocked bonnet
Of twisted spires,
Crazy chimneys,
Rain-pocked and frost-nipped,
Wreathed in a cascade
Of ostrich plumes,
Purple smoke curling
Staid old dowager,
Bustled and padded
With moth-eaten taffeta:
Mansions of solidity
That finally crumble.*

—LILLIAN V. INKE

First Fight

"When did you have your first fight?"
She said,
"Please tell me all about it."
"Lady," I said, "I was seven, cold, hungry,
A kid came along and kicked my papers into the gutter—
And I cracked him.
"There you are, lady,
Take it or leave it."

—LESTER GARDNER

As he entered he noticed that she had already arrived at the far end of the room. No one else was near. The old woman was mumbling softly to herself, moving from picture to picture, and as she turned to the shelves of pottery, Leyden began an intense and critical survey of some English etchings displayed at his end of the room.

The woman's mumbling was still for an instant, and Leyden started slightly, but apparently did not turn his head from the pictures on the wall.

The woman seemed unconscious of Leyden's presence; her mumbling began again and she started toward the door along the opposite side of the center table, pausing occasionally to peer up at a portrait or landscape hanging along her side of the room.

Suddenly, as Leyden swung to meet her, she stopped, and her skirts made a little "swish" as she fell slowly to her knees before a life sized Madonna, hanging just inside the doorway. Leyden waited.

GAZING at the canvas before her, she lifted her face slowly, raising the gold crucifix, suspended from her neck by a tiny chain, to her lips. Leyden, unfamiliar with the language she spoke, knew she was praying as she fingered the miniature cross, clasping it to her breast spasmodically. Her voice was soft and low like a girl's at first, but it faded until in the silence of the room Leyden could once more hear the broken mumbling of the old crone. Her voice became louder and came in a kind of cackle that startled the man momentarily. She appeared to be complaining bitterly; then once more the smooth low tones of her initial prayer, and the tears came suddenly to her eyes and flowed in crooked streams down the furrows of her cheeks. The old woman broke off into sobbing at last and Leyden thought, "now she is done."

The clang of an elevator door and the clatter of feet outside the room roused her from the stupor into which she had fallen.

Looking hastily around, she observed Leyden who was slowly approaching. Quickly she rose to her feet, wiped her eyes with the back of her hand, and turning the same expressionless face Leyden had seen earlier, cast a single calculative glance at the intruder. Then she slipped from the room. Leyden made no attempt to halt her until she had reached the street.

She made no sign of protest—said not a word when he touched her shoulder and said, "just a moment." In Mr. Wilkins' private office she readily produced the Monsoon vase from somewhere beneath her third or fourth petticoat, but refused to talk with Leyden or Mr. Wilkins as the three waited for police headquarters to send someone over.

About Books

Edited by Harriet I. Mahnke

Young and Healthy by Donald Henderson Clarke; Vanguard Press, $2.00.

Dick Raynor was young and healthy. He had good health, a young man's appetite, freedom from responsibility, a generous allowance from a perplexed father, and an eye for pretty girls. Furthermore he owned one of the few "horseless carriages" in town, possessed a fine knowledge of good liquor and how to overcome its odor on his breath, and had a mother who prayed for him every night.

With such an imposing list of possessions, and the added virtue of a quick mind and writing ability it would seem that young Dick should surely "make something of himself."

But he received admission to Harvard only after pressure had been exerted on a high school principal, obedient to the boy's father because his position hung in the balance, to give Dick the needed certificate. He was too alive to keep out of mischief; too democratic to keep out of bad company; too candid to lie about his exploits. Naturally his reputation among school authorities was anything but favorable.

His career at Harvard was much the same. He spent two years on the campus, making many friends, knowing the best drinking places, and forming acquaintances with many women. But Dick's college career ended disastrously. He got drunk and failed to take midyear examinations. And he was no longer healthy, though he was young. Moreover he was the cause for the tragic death of a girl.

His mother was crushed; she had had such ambitious dreams for her older son. After he left college he shipped on a schooner, worked in a paper mill, and finally ended up in New York city. Here he started as a cub reporter and after several years of heavy drinking became what is known as a "star" reporter.

Raw, crude realism to the nth degree, this book may amuse you when you read it although I doubt very much if it will linger much longer in your mind.

Rafael Sabatini, noted author of historical novels, began his first American lecture tour in New York city Oct. 16 when he spoke before the Institute of Arts and Sciences. He will give a lecture in Iowa City Dec. 7 when he comes to the Iowa campus as a speaker under the auspices of the senate board on university lectures.

Sabatini, who has been writing historical books for the last 25 years, will speak on "Fiction in history and history in fiction." Since the appearance of "Scaramouche" in 1921 fame has come to the man and many of his earlier novels have been reprinted. "The Romantic Prince" was published serially in The Daily Iowan last year. His two latest novels "Scaramouche, the King-Maker" and "Captain Blood Returns" are printed by Houghton Mifflin company.

Arthur Gardner, author of "Medieval Sculpture in France," evidently believes that more can be gained by illustration than from reading the printed page. Therefore he has inserted photographs of almost every important statue which he describes in the book. The volume contains 113 illustrations in collotype and 498 halftones. The London Times, at an exhibition of books published by the Cambridge University Press singled it out as one of the most beautiful books of the year. Macmillan company is the American publisher.

If you are planning to add some of the "heavier" type of reading to your list you'll be interested in some of the new books recently published by Harcourt, Brace. Among them are: "American Poetry: From the Beginning to Whitman" by Louis Untermeyer; "Portraits in Miniature, and Other Essays" by Lytton Strachey; "The Brown Decades; A study of the Arts in America" by Lewis Mumford.

Harold Donaldson Ederlein, who has written books about Renaissance architecture, historic mansions of America, England and Italy, and who has several books to his credit about Spanish and French period furniture, has turned to biography. He is author of "The Rabelaisian Princess," the life story of Duchess d'Orleans, sister-in-law of Louis XIV. Brentano's published the book.

Willa Cather's latest book, "Shadows on the Rock," published in late summer is still a best seller. The book tells of the life and people in seventeenth century Quebec. With very little plot the novel is a word photograph of the French colony.

Turning to lighter and liquid things Albert Stevens Crockett, author of "Old Waldorf Beer Days" says that contrary to the belief that the Bronx cocktail was named after the borough or the river, it was named in honor of the zoo. The bartender who concocted the drink, when asked to name it called it the Bronx cocktail. Because drinkers so often see strange animals.

Among new books soon to be reviewed in the Sunday supplement of The Daily Iowan are "Maid in Waiting" by John Galsworthy, and "Cold" by Laurence McKinley Gould. The former is the first novel to be written by Galsworthy in four years. It has just been released by Scribners. The book "Cold" has interest for local readers who heard the Michigan professor speak on the antarctic and arctic at the university lecture Oct. 30.

A new dog story, "Flax: Police Dog," by Svend Fleuron is unique because the dog is the central character of the full length novel. The book is illustrated with pictures drawn by Cecil Aldin. Henry Holt and company published it.

Another feminist step forward since the days when philosophers of the Middle Ages debated whether or not women possessed souls has just been taken on the Berkeley campus. With rare understanding of the difference between the modern collegiate world and the day when the administrators attended school, officials of California have ruled that campus women do not have to return to their rooms until 2:15 after their dates during the week end.

Another ruling of importance, especially to the men, is that sorority house callers do not have to be ushered, politely but firmly, out of the door at 12 o'clock, but may stay on the sofa or porch swing until 2:15.

This up-to-date policy, consistent with ideas on the ability of the modern girl to take care of herself, could well be adopted by other leading universities.

Since the few cannot govern the many and the many cannot govern themselves it would seem that an ideal form of government is impossible and that mankind is doomed to suffer here below.

So They Say

THE younger generation of Iowa alumni following the example set for them by prominent sons and daughters of the Old State who graduated in the days of yesteryear, ready these men and women who just a while ago were students wading through leaves in front of Old Capitol in autumn through the snow down by Reserve Library in winter. Dr. Edward Johnson, M '30, has opened an office at Kanawah. After graduating Johnson was an interne in the U. S. Marine hospital at New Orleans and did medical work at the Touro Infirmary and Charity hospital in New Orleans.

LOLA Moeller, who graduated from the school of journalism in 1930, has accepted a position on the Coconino Sun, weekly newspaper Flagstaff, Ariz. Miss Moeller, who was managing editor of The Daily Iowan while in the university, has been an employe on the Tulsa News-Herald for the past year. Her home is in Spencer.

WHEN the Community Players of Cedar Rapids recently presented their first production of the season, Margaret Altman, an alumna of the university, was in the cast. Miss Altman, a former member of University Players, is conducting a woman's hour over KWCR, Cedar Rapids radio station.

JEANNE Coppage, who graduated from the university last June, is coaching the decathlon contestants of the Sidney high school. Jean Schadel of Red Oak, another alumna, has accepted a position in Clarinda as assistant pharmacist at the state hospital.

LOHENGRIN and Mendelssohn still prove the favorite music of Iowa alumni, seems, for each day brings its reports of weddings in which the interested parties have been either one or both graduates of the university. Elizabeth Glenn, who attended the university and Dorsay L. Botham, engineering graduate in 1930, were married in Iowa City Oct. 21. They will make their home in Madison, Wis., where Mr. Botham is a designing engineer.

RUTH Martz of Grinnell, a graduate of the school of nursing, and Ben C. Cobbs of Newton were married in Grinnell Oct. 18. Another October bride is Mrs. W. H. Brown of Des Moines, who before her marriage on Oct. 17 was Kathryn Louise Foss. Mr. Brown attended the university. Ruby K. Ingersoll of Des Moines, an Iowa alumna, was married Oct. 17 to Paul W. Phillips, who attended Simpson College, Iowa State colleges. They will make their home in Waterloo.

PANAMA will provide the setting for the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Strong who were married in West Union Oct. 19. Mr. Strong was a student in the university, and until last December was on the Herald-Star in Panama. Mr. Strong is Canadian government trade commissioner in Panama and a graduate of Queen's university at Kingston. His home is in Toronto, Can.

ESTHER Helms, of Davenport, who attended the university, and Charles W. Briggs of Davenport, who received his master's degree from the university, were married in Iowa City Oct. 28. They will make their home in Davenport. Mr. Briggs was an all-Missouri conference end while a student at Grinnell college where he received his B.A. degree.

RUTH Mayer of Iowa City and H. M. Thibault of Dumont, both former students, were married in Rock Island, Ill., on Oct. 17. They will make their home in Iowa City.

What Is Your Opinion?

One Way to Disarm

(From the Denver Clarion)

The blind and indiscriminating optimism of the American press is well displayed in the loose way in which the conference to convene in Geneva on Feb. 2, 1932, is referred to as the "Disarmament Conference."

It is not a conference to propose disarmament; and the sooner that idea is dispelled, the sooner will the practical importance and significance of the conference be seen. There is only one way to disarm, and that is to DISARM. This expedient is precisely the one which is to be ignored. No nation expects seriously to disarm; there need be no fearful or frantic anxiety on that point.

The Geneva conference is called for a consideration of Reduction and Limitation of armaments. It is not to be a conference of theorists who will ignore historical facts and existing realities; it is not to be a conference of idealists who believe that the world can be transformed by one magnificent gesture. This is to be a conference of hard-headed statesmen, practical politicians, and realistic technicians. For this reason, among others, the intelligence of public opinion in supporting practicable suggestions may determine whether or not we are to continue to live in an arsenal.

Today, we are told, though the great powers have made individual attempts to reduce armaments, there are 5,000,000 men under arms, not counting China, at an annual expense of nearly $5,000,000,000.

A tardy world may not be ready for disarmament. The lion may need re-education before it will lie down with the lamb. But both the lion and the lamb should be willing to curtail their face-making activities.

Teaching Them to Think

(From The Daily Illini)

An almost untouched opportunity for development in the university curriculum lies in the field of psychology, like that in other universities, is confined to courses of an academic nature. The expansion of the science into the bordering fields of economics, sociology, commerce, journalism, political science, speaking, writing, music, etc., has been neglected both by the psychologists, who hesitate to tread on other's toes, and the representatives of the bordering sciences, who ignore psychology's potential value.

Excellent opportunities for research which may result in improvement of the curriculum lie in every school of the university.

In commerce, psychology has its obvious uses in salesmanship, advertising, public relations, publicity, and personnel administration. Mob psychology applied to economics might uncover methods of smoothing the business cycle, certainly an important problem at the present time.

In the department of English, psychology may be applied to public speaking, writing, business English, and the technique of the teacher. In the school of journalism, the science should play an important part in editorial writing, in circulation building, in the selection of features to interest the readers, and in the exploitation of the unlimited advertising fields of radio broadcasting and the still experimental television. And so on through the catalog.

In only one school, the college of education, has applied psychology been exploited to a degree commensurate with its possibilities. Psychology of education, child psychology, and psychology of athletics all have been developed by the college staff. The explanation is that psychology research was first carried on in the field of education, its first development being made by educators.

The future of psychology lies in its application to new subjects. The University of Illinois can make an outstanding contribution to the science by pioneering in its extension into the new fields of study. The new research can be begun by expanding the scope of the present department of psychology, or by the employment of psychologists in the departments fostering each line of activity. Whichever plan is the best, there is a need for a definite program of psychological research in every department. A senate committee, appointed to plan such a program, could coordinate the work of the various departments, and could define closely the boundary lines of each bordering field of activity.

Possibilities for Psychology

A university which is truly liberal teaches students to think. It makes them alert intellectually, and graduates them mature and conscious individuals into a new, interesting and intricate life.

We desire to see the university continue the advance it has recently begun, so that some day it may attain to its particular fullness in the liberal ideal of an institution of higher instruction. It will have to avoid the form of a purely Utopian university which might place no limitation on the number of courses under instruction. Excesses of this nature in the ideal might finally expose it to utter failure. Consequently, the university must check the growth of such flaws by an intelligent reaction which will disperse weaknesses in student application, mind and utilize knowledge resources, and cut away the cataract which obscures student intellect.

Our new study-freedom weighted by its implied and defined responsibilities will eliminate those who have an innate lack of intelligence, those who are slothful in mental effort, and those who are indifferent to their studies. The university must next reach out and influence education in secondary schools so that the mass production of high school graduates who are imitators, mental dwarfs, owners of dormant intellects and fact gourmands may be ended.

The University ought to rid itself of its flabby scholars, and take instead critical scholars who teach the student to ask and to answer not so much what but why. Thinkers do not demand recitation, they require analysis instead. Such men can be obtained today at less money and without any cost of that vanity, self-respect, for everywhere there is going on an awakening and re-organization in education.

TRUST women to think of something like this.

Freshman women at City college, New York, are prohibited by a sophomore decree from wearing lipstick, jewelry or similar refinements and are ordered to wear bows of lavender and black ribbon on their left shoulders for six weeks. And lavender clashes terribly with burned orange, green, and bright blue, favorite autumn colors.

Campus Jogs

HINDUS from India, organ grinders from Italy, Si and Myrandy from the farm, tramps from the railroad tracks and even the president of the university in his model "T" Ford—were represented in the annual Hobo parade held recently by students of the University of Illinois.

"CALIFORNIA, here we come" will be the theme song of many collegians when they hear that a football game is not a good place to take a date in the University of California. The university men sit in a solid rooting section in which girls never venture. Next to the men's section is the women's section and the brave men who have dates must sit there among the fair sex. All men wear blue and gold rooters' caps and white shirts. Display stunts are performed with the caps, and at big games with colored cards.

WASPS must be in league with the students at the University of North Carolina. The insects, finding the temperature of the room suitable for hibernating moved into the classroom for the university's new library school, preventing the women students from moving in.

HERE'S true college spirit — women students of the University of Minnesota challenged the coeds of the University of Wisconsin to a milking contest and were accepted. University of Wisconsin football and cross country teams are scheduled to appear at the Minnesota Homecoming, and the committee decided they might as well bring along a delegation of milk maids.

MEN'S worst fears have been affirmed. Women students at Carleton college at Northfield, Minn., give an annual Ball and Chain dance. The coeds must handcuff their escorts, the orchestra plays "The Prisoner's Song" for the musical motif, and the chaperons are designated as wardens.

FROSH-SOPH feuds at Stanford university are rather dirty affairs. On a designated date the classes band together and socially dump each other into specially prepared mud pits for the period of one-half hour. At the end of that time the class that has blackened the hides of most of its opponents is declared the winner.

WELL, at least the critics of modern youth can't say our college men are getting effeminate. In fact, the campus commission of the University of Denver were forced to abolish the flag rush as a part of the freshman-sophomore annual warfare when the last of the hectic battles ended with one participant under physician's care for severe lacerations of the thigh and sent another to the hospital with a possible fractured cervical vertebra.

PRAISEWORTHY indeed was the action of students at Beloit, Wis., who decided to abolish the annual "victory fire," a feature of their Homecoming celebration, and donate the wood instead to the needy of the city.

"MUSIC hath its charms," and the most charming thing about it to Donald Cuthbert, is that it is providing him with his college education. Cuthbert, University of Wisconsin sophomore, and tackle on the Badger varsity team, is working his way through school by singing at fraternity parties. Cuthbert is enrolled in the school of music, and his favorite subject is harmony. Last year he wrote a song called "Lawsonia Nights," depicting the experiences of a college boy at a summer resort.

Public Utilities and Grant Power

And the Regulation of Business

By Kirk H. Porter

Advocate Control

CONCERNING the relationship of the federal government and the great electric power companies the questions that are usually uppermost in the minds of men simply indicate varying degrees of control which the government might be expected to exercise. They are:

(a) Should the federal government own and operate at least one great power plant?

(b) Should the government own great power sites, but sell the current at the switchboard to private corporations?

(c) Should there be no federal ownership, but strict federal regulation?

(d) Should regulation be left to the states?

On these questions the president has expressed himself so often, and in such emphatic and unmistakable terms, that his position cannot be misunderstood. He detests the very thought of government ownership, believing it to be a step in the direction of state socialism. He has expressed his hostility to government ownership again and again in many different connections. Furthermore he is opposed to any large measure of federal regulation. He believes this is a problem which the states should deal with themselves.

OPPPOSITION comes from Democrats and from those who are known as liberal Republicans. Indeed some of the most ardent advocates of government ownership are at least nominally members of the president's own party. Among the members of the other party perhaps Governor Roosevelt of New York stands out as a leading advocate of a limited measure of government ownership, and a pretty large measure of government regulation, both state and federal.

And it is very significant that Owen D. Young, who is directly connected with the Utility interests, seems to hold opinions not far different from those of the governor. However, many so-called liberals profess to be skeptical of Mr. Young's sincerity in this regard, not believing it quite possible for him to hold opinions contrary to the interests of the great corporations in which he has been so active.

It is believed by many that if Governor Roosevelt is nominated by the Democrats the utility problems would present the chief issues of the campaign, whereas if Mr. Young were to be nominated the utility issues would be greatly minimized.

THE federal government already has two great agencies, existing for the purpose of supervising or regulating, to a certain extent, the business institutions of the country. These two great agencies are the federal trade commission and the interstate commerce commission. There are a great many men, prominent in the business world, who have always been antagonistic toward these great agencies of government. They are men who believe pretty largely in the laissez-faire doctrine of economics. In their opinion business should be let alone and should not be subjected to the restraining hand of government bureaucracy.

Prosecution for grave offenses is one thing, incessant, petty, stupid persecution is quite another. Especially as respects the federal trade commission many business men who are engaged in interstate commerce feel that they have been victims. These men have not relished having their business practices investigated, criticised, excoriated, by political appointees whom they have looked upon as shortsighted, incompetent, pompous bureaucrats.

They have been restive under it, and they have steadily resisted a literal interpretation of the anti-trust laws. In their opinion a literal interpretation leads to the suppression of very wholesome cooperation and great economies.

DURING the past half dozen years these men have found a willing ear and much sympathy in the White House. The president believes the salvation of the country lies in the hands of America's business men — great and small. Private initiative, rugged individualism, the free play of the hard but wholesome laws of economics will promote healthy business, industry and commerce. The policies of the federal trade commission have been greatly modified in this period of time, much to the relief of those who thought themselves the victims of its pettiness.

And as for the railroads — they have felt themselves slipping more and more into the control of the interstate commerce commission. Those who object to government ownership view this tendency with much distaste. Surely if President Hoover is nominated by the Republican party, which seems almost certain, two important questions will be to the fore.

(a) Should the federal trade commission be stimulated to apply the anti-trust laws more vigorously?

(b) Should the common carriers be allowed to drift still further into the hands of a government commission?

(a) Should the government continue its efforts, and extend them, in the direction of price stabilization—and assist the farmers to hold their crops for better prices?

(b) Should the old idea of the equalization fee be revived and put into operation?

(c) Should the latter plan, known as the debenture scheme be tried?

Fundamentally the administration leaders are suspicious of all these plans. It would be grossly unfair to assume from this that they do not want the agricultural areas to get relief. There has been no administration in modern times that has been so beset with plans for relief that are actuated by the best of motives. And it is quite natural that people who advocate plans with such humane motives should accuse those who object to them of not wanting to achieve the main purpose being sought.

Against their better judgment administration leaders tried out one of these plans which seemed to them the least offensive. A board was created which set about the task of stabilizing prices in farm products. Huge sums of money were spent, particularly in an effort to maintain the price of wheat. The results of this experiment were most unsatisfactory; and naturally the administration has had to bear the blame. Nevertheless the underlying idea of a government agency to stabilize prices no doubt will be brought forward. And it is most unlikely that it will have administration support.

In Professor Porter's fifth article, next week, he will discuss "Conservation," a probable issue in 1932.

DR. R. J. HENNES, M '30, has opened an office in Oxford, Ia. Following graduation, Dr. Hennes served his internship in a St. Louis hospital, and assisted Dr. G. H. Scanlon in Iowa City for several months. Dr. I. L. Clifton, a graduate of the dental college of the University of Iowa, has moved his practice from Primghar to Milford.

DR. Cyril O. Koehn, D '29 of Winterset, and Elene Doop of Winterset, a former student of the university, were married Oct. 29 in Winterset. Dr. Koehn has been practicing dentistry in Winterset since his graduation.

Next Sunday

Oxford university's debate team will meet a team representing the University of Iowa in Iowa City Nov. 16. The speakers will use the famous Oxford style of debating, common in England, but unfamiliar to the majority of Americans.

Prof. A. Craig Baird of the speech department, coach of the Iowa team, has prepared an article on Oxford debating which will be published in the magazine section of The Daily Iowan next Sunday. Professor Baird has drawn from his years of experience as a debater and debate coach to describe the style of speaking which will be displayed at the Oxford-Iowa debate the following day.
